SIR CHARLES LYELL, now in his sixty-eighth year, is the eldest son of the late Charles Lyell, Esq., of Kinnordy, in Forfarshire. He received his early education at Midhurst, in Sussex; and then entered Exeter College, Oxford, where he took the degrees of B.A., in 1819, and M.A., in 1821. On quitting the University he studied for the law, but, although called to the Bar, he at once devoted himself to those researches in science his natural genius for which had been evinced by the eloquent lectures of Buckland. In 1823 he was the active secretary of the Geological Society, and in 1826 took some part in the affairs of the Council list of that society, of which he has since been elected President—namely, in 1836-7, and again in 1840-1. Before 1828 he had made several tours in various parts of England, in Wales, in Scotland, in Mt. Constant Prevost; and even in 1827 he had already completed the manuscript of a part of the first volume of that great work of which he was afterwards to become famous; but he suspended its publication until he could add to his own observations the results of observations chiefly relating to tertiary geology. For this purpose he critically examined the tertiary formations of Auvergne; and, after visiting other portions of central France passed through Piedmont into Italy. In 1828 he made a second visit to Auvergne, to complete his investigation. The succeeding summers, up to 1838, were unintermittingly spent in completing his geological education. They were employed in making various formations and researches in the eastern counties of England, in the south of France, in the Pyrenees in Belgium, in Switzerland, and in several parts of Germany, Denmark, and Sweden. His earliest scientific papers appeared in the Transactions of the Geological Society and in the Royal Institution Journal of Science in the years 1826 and 1827. Other detached papers followed in various communications, and published from time to time; but it was not until 1833 that Sir Charles fairly sprang into notice by the publication in that year of the first volume of his memorable "Principles of Geology;" and in 1837, while holding the Professorship of the Physical Sciences at the London and King's College, London, he delivered in his courses of lectures there the substance of those materials which formed the two concluding volumes, published in 1838, of the entire work. He then married, and the Royal Society showed their appreciation of its value by awarding their gold medal to the author. The fifth and last edition of the complete work, it was eagerly read and admired. No scientific work had ever so rapidly attained to such consideration. Its publication appeared before the summer of 1838, and made the reputation of Lyell pre-eminent among contemporary geologists. In 1839 he printed the first of his researches in work—as indeed, is the case in all his larger books—in the Transactions of the Geological Society, entitled "On certain slight or strange, as is the indefatigable industry and acute discernment which he has manifested in the investigation of these facts, and in combining the information obtained by others in every region and even every subject into a stable and harmonious fabric of science.

It is only necessary to refer to the condition of geology five-and-thirty years ago that we can form a true estimate of the literary services of Sir Charles Lyell to science; we must bear in mind that at the commencement of the present century the first rudiments of geology as a science were only beginning to be known, that no, indeed, been associated with more than half the actual existence of the present age, and that those writers how ranked as the first of books have contributed towards its progress. Though we may find amongst the ancients, and especially amongst the Greek and Roman Arabian writers, some rational expositions of the perpetual changes in the surface of the earth—Aristotle and Strabo, for example, recognising the interesting variations which take place between the degrading and wearing actions of rivers, sea, and flowing water, and the building force of volcanic agency—it is assuredly incredible that the presence of petrified shells in the interior of mountains remote from the shore—there are instances recorded even at a late period—have excited observed; and again, after the lapse of ages, the philosophers of the Middle Ages, instead of discussing the mere fabulous and ridiculous assumptions, and even assigning to the petrifactions of past organic beings the character of "sports of nature" and "freaks of the plastic power" in the senseless soil. Towards the beginning of the last century the process of separating the various mineral strata into various groups, and of studying their relationship to each other, became pretty generally diffused. Pallas, the first scientific investigator of the Alps, had acutely contributed to this important step in the science; Werner, of Freyberg, had been a remarkable contemporaneous, William Smith, who, noticing how the different fossiliferous strata of England were each by different species of petrifactions, attempted the classification of rocks by their organic remains—a principle which has since been applied to every new country, and which has since been universally adopted in the study of geology in the most remote parts of the world.

But before these bases for the future arrangement of the science were adopted, Werner, professor of the School of Mines at Freyberg, propounded the notion that all rocks were deposited from water, and that even granite and porphyries had been developed from internal matters in a state of solution. This notion, however, which had rattled the wonderful extinct volcanic region of Auvergne: Dolomieu, who was the first to discover the true nature of Etna; and Spallanzani, whose travels or researches had made them acquainted with eruptive phenomena, were opposed to the Wernerian theory; and the war of the Neptunists and Plutonists was raging fiercely when James Hutton published his "Theory of the Earth" at Edinburgh, in 1785, with his "Theory of the Earth," which was destined to open the way for the new views of Playfair, Hall, Leslie, and Lyell, to place subjects in the present structure of our planet; and the strata which now compose our continents were once beneath the sea, and were formed out of the ashes of ancient continents. This same Hutton, who was still destroying, by chemical decomposition or mechanical violence, even the hardest rocks, and reducing the materials to be used by others they are repeated out and form strata analogous to those of more ancient date. Playfair published his "Illustrations of Hutton's Theory" in 1802, because others who skirted and consolidated by volcanic heat, and thus to form new crystalline rocks.

Hutton's views were soon adopted by the best of the contemporary geologists, among whom were Macculloch, Wm. Phillips, Greenough, Fitton, Pinkinton, Conybeare, and Buckland, by whom the Geological Society was established in 1807. To these active workers in the field were soon added Mantell, Scrope, De la Beche, Murchison, Sedgwick, Lyell himself, and, shortly after, John Phillips, the successor of Buckland as Reader in Geology in the British Academy, who died within the present year. In France, also, the importance of fossils as characteristic of strata was soon recognised by Cuvier and Alex. Brongniart. Cuvier had pointed out the distinctive difference between the fossil and living species of the Paris basin; and in his new "Theory of the Earth," Germany had contributed to an increased knowledge of the older formations. In Russia, Pallas had published his travels in Siberia; and in France, where the tertiaries are more largely developed, Cuvier's researches were greatly continued. In America, also, some attention had been given to the science. Franklin's "Theory of the Earth" appeared in Philadelphia in 1782, and Jefferson's "Notes" for 1785, and William Maclure's "Observations on the Geology of the United States," with a remarkable map, had been published in 1803; while Archibald Bruce, of New York, had attempted a geological journal as early as 1810. In 1818 the brothers Dana published their "Geological Essay," and a geological survey of Albany was directed by the Agricultural Society. In England some books of importance had appeared, such as Parkinson's "Organic Remains," Conybeare and Phillips's "Outlines of the Geology of England and Wales," Buckland's "Reliquiæ Diluvianæ," and Hutton's "Illustrations of the Huttonian Theory." William Smith's primitive map, so highly improved by Greenough, had appeared in its first edition so in 1819. About the same time a similar excellent map for Germany was produced by Leopold von Buch; and in 1823 a geological survey of France was ordered, and M. Beaechant de Villiers, Elie de Beaumont, and Dufrenoy appointed to the charge of the work; the map, however, was not produced until 1841. Such were the main works of geological research previous to 1831. The new school, formed upon the foundation of Hutton, sought to discourage hypothetive views and to restrict investigators as closely as possible to the accumulation of observations, patiently awaiting until sufficient materials should be gathered to justify theories and deductions.

We have thus taken a survey of geology as connected to as at the appearance of Lyell's first great work, the "Principles of Geology." We find that the virulent controversies of the men of water and the men of fire had been hushed, and geologists, instead of attacking each other with the animosity of rival schools or factions, had been for nearly thirty years vying with each other in searching, surveying, collecting, investigating, and accumulating facts, and in gathering materials for the solid building-up of the science. Their published labours, it is true, were scattered here and there, and of what had been done there was no connected account; whilst there was no accessible indication of what still remained to be accomplished. As yet there was properly no general treatise on geology, and the period when Lyell's work came but was therefore most ripe for its appearance. It was exactly what was wanted; and, although separated since into two works—the "Principles" and the "Elements of Geology"—one running to a tenth, the other to a sixth edition, so well has the author kept every new edition abreast with the rapid and wide advance of the science that among the many excellent manuals, British and foreign, which have since appeared, there is yet no book (speaking of the two works collectively) like it still—no book equal to this, with its latest revisions, as an exposition of geology. What the "Principles" really effected in 1833 was the first firm establishment of geology as an inductive science. Sir Charles Lyell expressed a conviction that in the existing operations of Nature we should find the explanation of the phenomena of the past. Instead of looking to catastrophes, cataclysms, deluges, and violent commotions, or to the extraordinary effects of former physical forces, he argued in favour of the great results producible by the repetition of more gentle ordinary processes continued through indefinitely lengthened periods of time. Whereas, for example, Elie de Beaumont had contended for the upheaval of the Alps by a single concussion of the elevating force, Lyell contended that there was not the slightest authority for believing in any such sudden event, but that the minor shocks and uplifts of certain tracts which were known to have occurred were fully adequate, when repeated frequently through a sufficiently protracted period of time, to produce the elevation of a mountain chain. While previous geologists had supposed that the former high temperature of the earth itself was due to hypothetical internal sources, Lyell showed how the variations of the relative dispositions of land and water could produce vast alterations of climatic temperature. He urged that the slow changes of level going on for ages in Sweden and Greenland were instances of gradual as I constant elevation or depression of continents, and he proved the recurrence of ages of submersions and ages of re-elevations at different geological periods. His minute investigations of volcanic phenomena enabled him to form something like a chronological estimate of remarkable geological revolutions. Thus, in visiting Etna, he sought to judge of the age of the successive piles of lava from an observation of the rate of its periodic outflows; and in the extinct volcanic regions of central France he used a similar method to show that vast periods must have elapsed during the production of the whole series of the beds of lava and intermediate fluviatile or lacustrine deposits. So with regard to Niagara, from the present rate of the recession of the falls, he estimated that the time during which they had flowed through the gorge, was not less than 50,000 years. He applied a similar induction to the formation of the Mississippi sediments. Such chronological estimates are peculiarly Lyellian, and are not merely captivating to the imagination, but serve the purpose of leading us to put faith in the enormous time-periods required for the completion of geological revolutions. They serve the mind as standard lengths, small yard or foot measures, by which to gauge the vast extent of geological space, or rather as the ticks of a pendulum, to help our thought to realise the duration of the past ages of geological time. His comprehensive chapters on the changes which have taken and are still taking place in organic nature are not the least noticeable part of his work. Having referred to "The Elements of Geology" as almost one work with the "Principles," we may explain that in the first edition of the latter, which was mainly devoted to the discussion of recent operations, there was a portion devoted to an outline of the actual state of the science of geology. After 1834, this portion was omitted in the succeeding editions of the "Principles," and formed into a separate work, under the title of "The Elements of Geology." Since then some of the revised editions have been styled "A Manual of Geology;" but in the last very recently printed edition the author has very justly reverted to the original title, "The Elements of Geology." Hereafter, it is to be hoped, the two will be united into one work, under the double title.

"BABY'S CORNER," BY F. WYBURD, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.—SEE PAGE 218.

The earliest papers of Lyell, on the freshwater limestone of his native Forfarshire, on the plastic clays of Dorsetshire and Hampshire, on the use of land in Sweden, and on the volcanic phenomena of Auvergne and Etna, show the germs of his own special views on these subjects to which he has devoted his personal researches. It was Lyell who first instituted the divisions of the tertiary deposits, according to the proportions in their fossils of recent to extinct species of shells, denominating the lowest, or those in which the extinct forms predominate, and where the dawn of recent life-forms first appear, the Eocene; the middle series, where the extinct and recent forms are approximately equal, the Miocene; and the uppermost, or newest in age, where the recent predominate over the extinct, the Pleiocene.

SIR CHARLES LYELL, BART., D.C.L. AND F.R.S.

In 1841 Sir Charles Lyell visited America, travelling over the middle and northern States, and as far south as Kentucky, and going also to Canada and Nova Scotia. His special investigations were, as usual, communicated to the Geological Society; but, on his return to England, he printed his "Travels in North America," an entertaining, discursive work, on a variety of subjects—social, political and geological. He again crossed the Atlantic in 1845, on this occasion spending six months in the South, and making the tertiary deposits of the Gulf of Mexico, the effects of the Mississippi and the sunk country of New Madrid, his chief subjects of observation. These travels were commemorated in his equally discursive and instructive "Second Visit to the United States." In 1856 he read a valuable paper before the Royal Society, "On the Consolidation of Lavas on Steep Slopes"—a topic which also formed the subject of a discourse delivered the same year at the Royal Institution. The question involved was an important one. Leopold von Buch's theory, that volcanic craters were formed by the sudden rupture of previously solid horizontal strata by the expansive force of the molten materials beneath them, had long been opposed by Lyell, who, with Mr. Poulett Scrope, took the ordinary popular view, that such cones were formed by the deposition around the volcanic chimney of the ejected lava, scoriæ, and ashes. Von Buch's "crater-of-elevation" theory had gained support amongst Continental geologists on the ground that lava—as it was asserted by Dufrenoy, Elie de Beaumont, and others—would not consolidate at inclinations of and above 4 deg. Now, as there were notoriously many examples of highly inclined compact stony lavas, it followed, if this assertion were correct, that such beds must have originally flowed over nearly level ground, and, consequently, have since been elevated. Sir Charles, who had, in 1853-4, inspected the volcanoes of Madeira and the Canaries, with a view to the final settlement of this subject, now (1857) revisited Vesuvius and Etna, returning with such numerous and convincing proofs of the actual consolidation of modern and historically recorded lava-streams, at all inclinations, from 5 deg. to 45 deg., as to render any further discussion of the subject completely futile.

His last work of importance, "The Geological Evidences of the Antiquity of Man," appeared about two years since. Whatever the early geologists of the last and present century may have done—and it was much, and done long enough ago for a place to have been found even in the first edition of "Principles of Geology"—in recording the contemporaneous association of the fossil relics of man with the bones of extinct species of beasts, all their labours on this point were absolutely ignored; and it was the custom of some leading men of science to set their faces against any evidence, no matter how convincing on this point. Schmerling and M'Enery alone had done sufficient to prove the case; and they did not stand alone; but it might still have been the fashion to keep in the dark these trees which, from time to time, the labourer's spade might accidentally disclose, or to bury them up again, if that could be—as the Mayor of Amiens did those discovered by Boucher de Perthes to acquire due acknowledgment for his valuable labours and collections. Perhaps even he might not have attained his end but for the spread of the Darwinian theory of the "origin of species" having cleared the way by exciting a disposition in the leading naturalists to investigate the zoological relationships or connections between mankind and monkeys. Having consummated the foundation of geology as a science, no living man had a better right than Lyell to attempt the first putting together of the most important results obtained by the Danish and Swiss archæologists, by some of the French and English geologists, by anatomists, philologists, and able workers in every portion of the prehistoric and geologic history of man. The materials are not yet collated which would render perfect any work on the "Antiquity of Man;" but with the greatest care and discrimination he has elaborated a most complete view of the main features of the inquiry. Here man's existence on earth is first traced backwards into the past, through the ages of iron, bronze, and polished stone, which the Danish antiquaries have shown to have been contemporaneous, in their northern land, with three equivalent periods of different climatic conditions, when the beech, the oak, and the fir respectively flourished. The kitchen-middens of the oldest inhabitants are searched, and with the shells, bones, and other relics of their food some few skulls of those ancient men themselves are found. Lake-dwellings are discovered in Switzerland, yielding, amongst their ruins, articles of bone, stone, and bronze. Still, the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the air, and the fish of the sea were the same as they now are. Then come evidences of former men from the alluvium of the Nile, from the river banks in Brazil, from the ancient mounds of the valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi, and from the coral reefs of Florida. We are told of still older bones of mankind found in the Belgian and British caves, mingled with the huge bones of the extinct mammals of true geological times; whilst rude—merely chipped—implements of flint are brought by hundreds from the valley-gravels of Amiens, and Abbeville, Hoxne, Bedford, and the valley of the Seine—from wherever the old torrential rivers overflowed and cut shelving slopes for the habitations of the first known human dwellers upon earth. The author brings forward in review the main physical and historical changes which throw light on the mystery of these early men and the conditions under which they lived. He shows the structure of the valleys which contain the gravels in which their remains are imbedded. He shows two ages of those gravels marked by slightly-differing faunæ, two species of elephant and hippopotamus co-existing with primitive man in France. He points out the chronological relationship of these human-relic-bearing gravels with the great northern drift—that wonderful clay and boulder deposit of the glacial period when the British Isles and all Europe, as far south as Italy, were enveloped in a mantle of snow, and the woolly-haired mammoth of Siberia and the reindeer of Lapland roamed wild over countries which boast now of their "sunny clime." Then he reverts to his favourite notion of the elevations and depressions of the land, and shows England first 600 ft. below and then 600 ft. above her present setting in the sea. Strange skulls turn up from Borreby and Neanderthal, and Lyell takes such deep interest in their indications of "transmutations" from still lower forms as to devote the concluding part of his book, not less than five chapters, to the discussion of theories of progression and transmutation, to the theory of the origin of species by variation and natural selection, and to the objections raised against that theory.

During the past year Sir Charles Lyell was chosen president of that great annual gathering of men of science, the British Association, in which capacity he delivered a very excellent address on the mineral waters of Bath—the fashionable and pleasant city where the meeting was held. Such has been the literary and scientific career of this leader of the modern school of natural geology—a living link between the geologists of our day and the founders of the science. We have only now to record one or two dates of his personal history. He married, in 1832, the eldest daughter of the late Mr. Leonard Horner, F.R.S., a lady who is herself an excellent geologist. He was knighted in 1848, and received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford in 1855. A baronetcy was conferred upon him last year to mark the Royal esteem for his labours in the cause of science.

Our Portrait of Sir Charles Lyell is engraved from a photograph taken by Mr. W. Jeffrey, of Great Russell-street.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

ONE evening last week there was a great constitutional ceremony in the House of Lords. The throne was unveiled, and presented itself in all its glitter and Gothic tracery; the Lord Chancellor, in his scarlet robes, with his hat on the top of his wig, and with three other Peers, in all their finery, occupied the uncomfortable bench which is appropriated to her Majesty's Commissioners for giving the Royal assent to bills; the Usher of the Black Rod, indued in the shorts and buckles without which any act of the estates of the realm would probably be illegal, and grasping his gold-tipped truncheon in that menacing manner which is prescriptive, tripped in solitary grandeur across the central hall, amidst the stares of the strangers who were kept in line, gave his three ghostlike taps on the door of the House of Commons, and, having delivered the usual curt command to the Speaker, took that right hon. gentleman into custody, and landed him, with his bobtail retinue of members, at the bar of the Chamber of Peers. The new Reading Clerk expanded himself over half an acre of parchment, read a long jargonish statement, made half a dozen bows to the Lords Commissioners, and then the form of giving the Royal assent to "one bill" was gone through—an amendment of an Amendment Act of last Session, in which latter there were "six clerical errors;" and the bill was an Irish one; Irish business thus keeping up its position in the front in every respect this year. What a glorious constitution, which is so careful in the smallest things!

But the Peers have not been without extraordinary amusements, for they have been employed in "roasting" a Lord Chancellor—very high jinks, indeed. To be sure, the Commons began it. Last Monday all the Opposition mustered before half-past four; nobody, at first, knew why. Presently, after all the other questions had been disposed of, Lord Stanley put a carefully prepared interpellation which, without naming anybody, opened the now famous case of Mr. Edmunds, Clerk of Patents, Clerk of Commissioners of Patents, and Reading Clerk of the House of Lords. To him the Attorney-General replied in that astute official fashion which reminds one of a horse in a circus, which appears to be going like a whirlwind, but whose pace is but ordinary after all, and which is kept so carefully in an orb. What everybody wanted had nearly slipped away; and the Opposition, who are generally moderate in their dealings with personal matters, though disappointed, hesitated to press the matter; whereupon, a guerrilla on the flank of Ministers—who, not being, as he thinks he ought to be, in the Ministry, is always ready to wound, and, if he had the strength, to strike them hard, being gifted with no refinement of reticence—jumped up, and bawled out names, and demanded categorical answers. Again the Attorney-General glided away from the difficulty; but then, as the phase of delicacy had passed away, Sir James Elphinstone ranged up alongside the Treasury bench, and, with a voice and manner as if he were hailing the maintop, demanded more, got less, from the law officer of the Crown; tried the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and found himself, as it were, leaping against a boarding-netting, and fell back, discomfited. The matter dropped there, but was caught up the next night in the Lords. There the Lord Chancellor, smarting beneath insinuations and actual accusations against his conduct in the matter of Mr. Edmunds, formally brought the subject before his Peers; and, in earnest, solemn tones, gave a version which he asked to be accepted as the true one, though he moved for a Committee of Inquiry to test it. Although there was of course deep attention, there was decorum and gravity until Lord Derby, in one of his impulsive veins, started up and, deprecating all discussion until full information was before the proposed Committee, in the next breath went like a rocket into the very midst of the case, arguing, inferring, illustrating, and quoting hearsay evidence, until the Lord Chancellor's patience gave way, and he rose, in manifest agitation, and emphatically denied an assertion of Lord Derby, who, with scarcely a covert sneer, rejoined that he must accept the denial, but that its value would be tested when the Chancellor was face to face with his accusers before the judicial tribunal which was to be appointed. Then there was a scene; such high and mighty personages as the Marquis of Bath and the Duke of Montrose complained of their outraged feelings; and there was confusion, and disorder, and bandying of retort amongst that usually very lymphatic body, the Peers of England, in whose talk, probably for the first time, the Law Lords did not mingle, as their invariable manner is, the question being one of the distribution of legal patronage by a Lord Chancellor—a fact which may be considered remarkable. Be it said that a row in the Lords is always a model of a row, in the noisy sense.

The chronicles of the Commons for the past week or so might be written variously and amply. If one went so far back as the occasion of Mr. Newdegate's motion on the inspection of monastic and conventual institutions, one might record that a singular change has come over the spirit of the House since the time when that question was fought with all the acrimony and persistency of sectarian feeling. Now it seemed as if the only desire was to get rid of it; and there seemed to be a universal notion that, after Mr. Newdegate had been allowed, in deference to his character and position in the house, to state his case, the best thing to be done was to go to a division at once. Certainly, although there was a good deal of laughter at the out-Whalleyed speech of Mr. Whalley, it is quite possible that most members would have been satisfied to have lost that remarkable exhibition—remarkable in a negative point of view. Conceive a member of Parliament, professing to be uttering a solemn adjuration, demanding of the Home Secretary what his answer would be if the Sovereign of this realm wrote to ask him "What had become of Eliza M'Dermott?" To be sure, Mr. Whalley was much in the condition of the bull when a matador shakes a red cloth in his eyes; for under the gallery was sitting Father Charles Bowden, supported by Father John Bowden, whose countenances were probably wreathed with a certain description of smile while they witnessed the questionable reception which the enthusiastic champion of Miss M'Dermott met from the House, and which convinced them that, if they had formed any strong estimate of Mr. Whalley's aggressive power against them and the Brompton Oratory, that idea was completely dissipated. Indeed, the debate took so unserious a tone, that even Sir George Grey was delivered of a grim joke; and with that climax this record of the discussion may close.

At this time last year the Navy Estimates had been got through; now, up to Monday night, not a single vote had been passed, and it was with difficulty that on that evening Lord Clarence Paget got in his statement. As a rule, as everybody knows, the Secretary to the Admiralty is a Parliamentary artist who invests all his pictures with a most elaborate roseate hue, which, while it is soft, is yet warm and glowing. This time it seems as if he had deepened his colouring and worked in with carmine. The painting was positively dazzling, and was set off by the singularly mild, modest, and even shrinking demeanour of the manipulator as he presented it with a conscious grace for approval. Perhaps the study was too palpable, for it would seem that the statement of the condition of the Navy put Sir John Pakington in a passion, and he went in for a tearing, tattering speech, in which he showed quite as great powers of exaggeration in depreciation as Lord Clarence exhibits in making everything pleasant.

According to Sir John, as the Warrior—his own creation, as he believes, design, construction, and all—is laid up out of commission, all the other iron-clad ships may be divided into two classes, those that cannot keep the sea and those that cannot resist shot. Notwithstanding that Sir James Elphinstone said ditto, with even an inflation of boisterous denunciation, to Sir John, and shivered his timbers and talked quarterdeck criticism for a long hour and more, people will hardly believe the representations of these naval reformers as to the utterly deplorable state of our Fleet any more than they will give all credit to the sugar-candy assurances of the Secretary to the Admiralty that ships and men (he said nothing of guns) are in as nearly perfect a condition as any human thing can be. There has sprung a new naval reformer in the person of Mr. Seely, who has heaped up a pile of figures, by which he proves, to his own satisfaction and to that of those who are content to accept that which they do not understand as true, that the repairing of ships of the Royal Navy is much more expensive than building them outright. We believe Mr. Seely is a merchant or a manufacturer who has attained to the rank of prince amongst his fellows, therefore he most likely has a yacht, or, more likely still, has recently got one, and hence his sudden inspiration about nautical affairs, which, however, by force of habit, takes rather the calculating-of-expence point of view than the poetic phase usually associated with the "glad waters of the dark-blue sea."

Sir Fitzroy Kelly on the malt tax was not a tempting announcement on the Parliamentary notice-book. Accordingly, comparatively few members came to greet the hon. and learned farmers' friend at the opening of his case, and a great many of those that did come went away to witness the Chancellor-baiting in the other house. Nevertheless, Sir Fitzroy did well, emancipating himself for the nonce from most of his faults of diffuseness and iteration, and leaping above his ordinary style so far as even to make a joke, though it was an elaborate one, and contained in a sentence of thirty lines as printed. As Mr. Gladstone was eagerly watching and noting the weak points of Sir Fitzroy, every one expected that he would have leaped up at once to reply to him; and it is probable that was his original intention; but as Sir Bulwer Lytton rose to second the motion, of course that was impossible. As it turned out, it seemed as if the speech of the literary and Protectionist Baronet had entirely dissipated Mr. Gladstone's energies. Certainly, he flung himself into the easiest attitude of repose which is to be obtained on the Treasury bench, and most portentously he yawned and gaped when Sir Edward was talking farmer-talk and transfusing elaborate illustrations culled from divine philosophy and the reports of the Board of Trade into what was meant to be a practical lecture on manure, beef, and beer. From this time, Mr. Milner Gibson, whose department had been impeached, was roused from that half slumber which always steals over him in the house, and was busied with bluebooks and memoranda from seven to ten. In that interval, to a very sparse House, Mr. Du Cane pumped up oratory in which antithesis was produced as painfully as if it had been tooth-drawing; Mr. Morritt was jovially critical; Mr. Hardcastle severely arithmetical; Colonel Barttelot made a very capital speech, in which he took a broad and sensible view of the question; and Mr. Butler Johnstone was cut out of delivering an address of which he was pregnant, and which of course would have been wholly unprepared and only the result of the impulse of the moment. Then rose Mr. Gibson, and, taking upon himself the whole burden of the case of the Government, began by passing sentence on a special Parliamentary antecedent of his own; for he protested against the House being asked to pledge itself by resolution to a special and particular remission of taxation, conveniently forgetting a certain motion made by a certain Mr. Milner Gibson on a certain duty on paper. For the rest, he was laborious, though he had got together arguments which were well enough in their way; but he again gave proof of the extraordinary change for the worse as a debater which has come over the President of the Board of Trade, who was once the dangerously subtle and systematically aggressive member for Manchester. In the natural order of things, Mr. Disraeli should have followed, and Mr. Gladstone have concluded the debate; but somehow it seemed, as if by tacit agreement, both these right honourable gentlemen were desirous of not trusting themselves to think on their legs (as public speaking has been defined) on a subject so ticklish to Chancellors of the Exchequer, in office or out, as the malt tax; and so Mr. Henley was allowed to utter a number of statistics made droll, and to intimate that he had not much hope of the tax being repealed; and, it being only twenty minutes to twelve, the division was called. It happened that at that moment Mr. Bentinck was not in the House, or perhaps things would not have gone so quietly, for he had sworn upon an orange, at the refreshment bar in the lobby, that he would have the debate adjourned; and he had been sitting for two hours on the keen edge of his basis, with arm half extended and hand grasping that small bundle of papers without which he never ventures to speak, waiting for the say with which he was prepared. But Fate, in the shape of watchful whippers-in on both sides (the leaders having no doubt decided that, as they were not going to speak, the sooner the discussion was over the better), interposed between him and his design, and he had only the small satisfaction, amounting perhaps to dissatisfaction, of voting against that Parliamentary go-by to troublesome motions which commits nobody to anything, the "previous question," which not a soul out of the house, and few, if any, in the house—the Speaker, perhaps, included—ever did or ever will exactly understand.

On Tuesday was issued the first Act passed during the present Session, the object of which was to correct an Act passed last year to amend the Civil Bill Courts Procedure Act. The alterations embodied in the Act relate to six "clerical" errors which were allowed to pass in the statute of last year as to certain figures used therein.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The following summary of the proceedings in both houses on Friday week appeared in our late edition:—

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FRIDAY, MARCH 3.

The Game Licenses (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.

The Royal assent was given by Commission to the Civil Costs Procedure (Ireland) Act (1864) Amendment Bill.

COUNTY COURTS EQUITABLE JURISDICTION BILL.—The LORD CHANCELLOR moved the second reading of this bill.—Lord ST. LEONARDS objected to the principle of the bill, believing that the County Court Judges were wholly incompetent to administer equity.—Lord CHELMSFORD highly approved of the equitable jurisdiction proposed to be given to the County Court Judges, and thought that those learned functionaries ought to receive at least £1600 a year salary. He, however, regretted the provision in the measure by which they would be remunerated by fees for their extra labour.—The LORD CHANCELLOR said he should have much preferred increasing the salaries of the Judges in the usual manner; but he believed that if he attempted to do so he would have endangered the passing of the bill in the House of Commons.—The bill was then read a second time, upon the understanding that it would be referred to a Select Committee.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FRIDAY, MARCH 3.

Mr. Layard, in reply to Mr. Lefevre, said the Government had seen and disapproved of instructions issued by the Confederate Government as to the seizure of neutral vessels by their cruisers. It would not be for the interest of the public service to state what steps had been taken.

The Court of Chancery (Ireland) Bill (No. 1) was read a second time.

The Industrial Exhibitions Bill passed through Committee, as did the British Kaffraria Bill—after a discussion initiated by Mr. A. Mills, who questioned the policy of the measure.

MONASTIC AND CONVENTUAL INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. NEWDEGATE moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the existence, character, and increase of monastic or conventual societies or establishments in Great Britain. The hon. gentleman entered at some length into a history of these institutions, and directed attention to the cases of Mr. Harrison, late captain of Westminster School; of Miss M'Dermott, and Miss Ryan—all of which have lately been before the public.

Mr. HENNESSY contended that if, on the hon. gentleman's own showing, there had been any offence committed, the laws of the country provided an ample remedy.

Mr. WHALLEY maintained the necessity of having the monastic institutions of this country placed under Government surveillance. He blamed the Home Secretary for not requiring the Brompton Oratory and similar establishments to be properly registered.

Sir G. GREY said he was not aware that any law compelled such establishments as the Brompton Oratory to register, as the inmates were not bound by any religious vows. If there had been any such law in existence the hon. member might have pointed it out to the Attorney-General, and he would have taken the necessary steps to punish those persons for not complying with the Act of Parliament. The right hon. gentleman justified the conduct of Mr. Selfe in the M'Dermott case, and contended that the law was quite adequate to deal with any case that might require legal interference. As to appointing a Committee to inquire into the subject, it had once before been proposed in that House, but it was found impossible to nominate one containing the elements necessary to carry out the investigation in an efficient manner.

The motion was negatived by a majority of 106 to 79.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

MILITARY HOSPITALS.—The Earl of DALHOUSIE called attention to the condition of the military hospitals at Netley and Woolwich, and inquired whether the vote of £6000 was all that was intended to be applied to the erection of a landing-place at Netley, and whether the hospital at Woolwich was intended for a general military hospital or only for the use of the garrison at Woolwich.——Earl DE GREY AND RIPON replied that the sum asked for Netley Hospital was quite sufficient, as it was only intended to construct a pier of two hundred yards; but if necessary a more extensive structure would be erected. With regard to Woolwich, it was intended for a general hospital, and would be conducted on the same principles as a general hospital in time of war.——Some observations followed from the Duke of Cambridge, the Earl of Ellenborough, Earl Granville, and the Earl of Longford, and the matter dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

Mr. Moore took his seat for the county of Tipperary.

The Common Law Courts (Fees) Bill was read a third time and passed.

In Committee of the whole House, leave was given to Mr. M. Gibson to bring in a bill to amend the law of partnership.

The amendments to the Industrial Exhibitions Bill and to the British Kaffraria Bill were considered and agreed to.

Mr. Villiers stated, in reply to Mr. Mitford, that the bill for the renewal of the Poor-Law Board would include provisions for carrying out the recommendations of the Committee with respect to unions and parishes under Gilbert's Act.

Sir G. Grey, in answer to Mr. Lawson, said that it was not intended by the Government to introduce any public or general measure for the alteration or amendment of the licensing laws.

Mr. Bentinck moved a resolution affirming that the Government ought to frame regulations for the better management of railways; but the motion was opposed by Mr. Milner Gibson, and negatived without a division.

The Attorney-General, replying to questions put by Lord Stanley, said that an inquiry had been instituted by the Lord Chancellor and the Commissioners of Patents into certain alleged irregularities in the accounts of the Patent Office, which had resulted in two reports from the gentlemen who had conducted that inquiry. Mr. Edmunds, the late clerk of the patents, complained that as to a considerable portion of the matter in the concluding report, which would involve a large amount of pecuniary charge, he had not had an opportunity of offering an answer in explanation, which he said he was now preparing. It would, therefore, be premature to produce the reports at this moment. If the conclusions arrived at by the gentlemen who had instituted the inquiry were correct, a very considerable sum remained to be accounted for by the officer referred to. Taking all the circumstances into consideration, it was thought that the case was not one in which it was expedient to institute any species of criminal proceeding; but it was the decided intention of the Government, unless further explanations should lead them to a different conclusion, to take civil proceedings for the recovery of the whole of the balance due from Mr. Edmunds.

Mr. Ferrand called attention to the inequality in the rate of wages paid in the Royal and private dockyards. He urged that an addition of 6d. a day at least should be made to the wages in the Royal yards.—Sir J. Elphinstone took the same view.—Mr. Childers said that the addition of 6d. a day to the wages of the men would amount to £145,000 a year, and he urged that the Government could not, in justice to the country, agree to such an addition to the expenditure.

THE NAVY ESTIMATES.

The House went into Committee of Supply, and Lord C. Paget moved the Navy Estimates. He explained the principal votes which the Committee would be asked to sanction, observing that the total sum which would be required for the Navy for the year 1865-6 would be £10,392,821, against £10,780,051 in the current financial year, being a decrease of £316,427. The number of men and boys would be 69,570, being a decrease of 2290. There would also be a reduction of 500 men in the coastguard service, and 1000 in marines ashore. There would be a decrease of six seagoing ships; but against this there would be four more armour-ships. So that, although the actual number of vessels afloat would be less, the actual force would be greater. With regard to the dockyards the Admiralty were endeavouring to carry out the recommendations of the Royal Commissioners of 1861; and he hoped they would soon be able to lay a regular balance-sheet on the table, and a perfect capital account. It was proposed to construct, in the ensuing financial year, 15,115 tons of shipping, against 18,952 in the current year. The armour-plated fleet consisted of thirty vessels, either complete or in course of construction; and all these, with the exception of the Northumberland, would be ready by the end of the present calendar year. Having described the nature of the armour-ships which it was proposed to construct, the noble Lord stated that it was intended to construct a turret-ship on Captain Coles's principle, which would be a thorough seagoing vessel. After reviewing the general heads of expenditure and pointing out the nature of the works which it was proposed to erect at Malta, Cork, Pembroke, and other places, Lord C. Paget denied the truth of the assertion which, he said, was periodically made—namely, that the service was not a popular one; and concluded by moving a vote of 69,750 men and boys, including 17,000 marines.

Sir J. PAKINGTON pointed out certain shortcomings in the naval administration which had not been referred to by the Secretary of the Admiralty, and expressed the "alarm" he felt at the rumours which had reached him to the effect that, after a vast expenditure on our ships, we had not, in the event of an emergency, a fleet fit to put to sea. He had been told that the Defence and the Resistance (both armour-plated ships) were not safe to go into action, for if wounded in their unprotected parts they would inevitably sink. If that were true, the Admiralty had assumed a grave responsibility.

Sir J. ELPHINSTONE criticised with some severity the administration of the Admiralty, more especially with reference to the construction of ships, and contended that many vessels which had cost enormous sums of money were, after all, unequal to ocean navigation in bad weather.

Mr. SEELY directed attention to the mode of keeping accounts for the building, repairing, and refitting of her Majesty's ships, and expressed his opinion that they were kept in an unsatisfactory and delusive manner.

Sir W. MILES called attention to a class of men who were badly treated—viz., the engineers. They had no pensions now, although they were a most useful class of petty officers. He trusted their case would receive the attention of the Admiralty.

Sir M. PETO moved to report progress, and the motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Game Licenses (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee.

The Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Ireland) Bill was, after some conversation, read a second time—the Earl of St. Germans undertaking that the Irish law officers should consider whether the bill could not be amended.

THE CASE OF MR. EDMUNDS.

The Lord Chancellor called attention to the case of Mr. Edmunds, late Reading Clerk of the House, and who was also Clerk of the Patent Office and of the Commissioners of Patents; and stated that investigations into the accounts of that office showed a deficiency of £7873, which, on further inquiry, was shown to amount to £9100 more, although Mr. Edmunds questioned the accuracy of this statement, and urged that he was only a defaulter to the first amount. When this came to his (the Lord Chancellor's) knowledge, he submitted to the Government whether it was not his duty to communicate with the House of Lords, and consequently he had intended in the first week of the session to move for a Committee to inquire into the matter, but delayed doing so for a few days at Mr. Edmunds's request; and that gentleman had presented a petition resigning his office in the house and asking for a pension, which was referred, in the usual way, to a Committee. He (the Lord Chancellor) might have been wrong in allowing this course to be taken; but the law officers of the Crown were of opinion that there was no case for criminal proceedings, and as the whole information as to the defalcations had been obtained from that gentleman himself, he had acted as he had done. As regarded the two offices vacated by Mr. Edmunds in the Patent Office, the Prime Minister had appointed a relative of his (the Lord Chancellor) Clerk of the Patent Office, but the more valuable one of Clerk to the Commissioners would not be filled up at present. He moved for a Committee to inquire into all the circumstances connected with the resignation of Mr. Edmunds as Reading Clerk of the House and the grant of a pension to him.

The Earl of Derby approved of the motion, and said that there were three subjects to be considered—namely, the case of Mr. Edmunds himself, that of the Committee which had recommended him for a pension, and the course pursued in the matter by the Lord Chancellor. He was informed that Mr. Edmunds had paid the money he received in the Patent Office into a deposit bank, and received interest for it, and that was all. He understood that Mr. Edmunds had been told by the Lord Chancellor that if he resigned no obstacle should be placed in the way of his obtaining a pension.

The Lord Chancellor emphatically denied this.

After a conversation, in which Lord Redesdale, the Marquis of Bath, and the Duke of Montrose severally complained that incomplete information was brought before the Committee which decided on the pension as to the defalcations in the Patent Office, the motion for a Committee was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

The O'Donoghue took the oaths and his seat for Tralee.

Mr. Blake obtained leave to bring in a bill to amend the Act for the regulation of Municipal Corporations in Ireland.

Sir R. Peel obtained leave to bring in a bill to provide for superannuation allowances of officers of Unions in Ireland.

Mr. Baring had leave to bring in a bill to confirm certain provisional orders under the Local Government Act, 1858, relating to certain districts.

THE MALT TAX.

Sir F. Kelly moved that in any future remission of indirect taxation the House should take into consideration the duty on malt, with a view to its early reduction and ultimate repeal. In an elaborate examination of the question, in which he dealt with numerous calculations and statistics, his argument arrived at the point that under the penalty of the malt tax the public paid £60,000,000 a year for beer, while if the duties were removed they would only pay £40,000,000, so that in addition to the actual duty they were mulcted in a sum of £20,000,000 per annum, to say nothing of their being supplied with a pure, wholesome article, instead of the present adulterated compound. He contended that when the duty had been taken off all raw materials—cotton, wool, and the like—malt was made an exception, while it had as good a claim for exemption as a manufactured article, such as paper, and certainly as good a claim as foreign produce, such as tea, sugar, &c. He urged, besides, that there could be no question but that malt was entitled to remission of duty in preference to foreign wines. He argued that one effect of the reduction of the malt duty would be to enable a million of people to drink good beer who never have it at all, and this by means of home-brewing, at a cost of fourpence per gallon.

Sir B. Lytton seconded the motion, and asserted that the amount of the duty levied on malt was the exact measure of the wrong and spoliation which was inflicted on the agricultural producer of a raw material. Another result was the discouragement of the cultivation of much land well adapted to the growth of barley, while it acted injuriously and restrictively on stock, thus rendering meat dearer to the consumer, and interfering with the fertility of the soil, which was aided by the use of manure; so that the question was extended beyond that which related to beer. The relief from this tax was necessary to the consummation of free trade. But, confining the argument to malt liquors, he argued that the duty created a deteriorating effect upon the quality, and protested against the principle which reduced the imposts on the beverages of the rich and for purposes of revenue maintained them at a high rate on those of the poor, while it presented an example of injustice, inasmuch as it excepted agriculturists from the remission of taxation which had been awarded to every other industrial class. As to the question of loss of revenue, it was not asked or expected that the whole duty should at once be removed, but that the principle should be admitted, and the mode and time of dealing with it would be contentedly left for consideration; and if as much earnestness was felt and displayed in this as in other instances of remission of taxation, there need be no fear that this act of justice might be done.

Mr. Neate moved an amendment to the effect that the owners and occupiers of land were not entitled to any special consideration on account of the malt tax, and that, if it should be reduced or abolished, compensation should be made by withdrawing from landed property total exemption from probate duty and partial exemption from succession duty and income tax.

Mr. Du Cane, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Morritt, Mr. Hardcastle, and Colonel Barttelot continued the debate.

Mr. M. Gibson objected to the motion on the ground that by its adoption it would bind the hands of any Government in dealing with indirect taxation, and create a pledge to prefer the malt duty to any other subject for remission of taxation. He contended for the principle of indirect taxation on articles of consumption which were included in the category of strong drinks, and urged that beer should not be excepted. He also contended that the growers of barley were those producers of cereals who had the least right to special legislation on their behalf.

Mr. Henley suggested that the principle of taxation on alcoholic drinks was not thought of when there was a remission of taxation on foreign wines and French brandy. The repeal of the malt tax was essentially a farmers' question, who applied to the article of malt the experience they had gained of the effect on consumption of the reduction of duties; and they believed that the consumption of this article would increase in proportion to the diminution of duty upon it. He argued that the tax amounted to 30 per cent to the consumer, and it was only from a consumer's point of view that the subject ought to be looked at, while he was of opinion that if beer was cheap there would be less intoxication.

Mr. Neate having withdrawn his amendment,

Mr. Hardcastle moved the "previous question."

On a division, Sir F. Kelly's motion was practically lost by 251 to 171.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Wednesday.

The Sewage Utilisation Bill was read a second time and referred to a Select Committee.

The Affirmations (Scotland) Bill was read a second time.

The Private Bill Costs (recommitted) Bill passed through Committee.

The Prisons Bill was read a second time and referred to a Select Committee.

Mr. Hunt obtained leave to bring in a bill to amend the law relating to the registration of county voters.

Mr. Longfield obtained leave to bring in a bill to provide for the security of the property of married women separated from their husbands in Ireland.

POLLUTION OF RIVERS.

Lord R. Montagu moved the second reading of the River Waters Protection Bill, the object of which is to interfere with the universal pollution of rivers by sewage and other impure matter, and which is founded on the recommendation of a Select Committee which has inquired into the subject. He pointed out the injurious effect which was caused by the existing state of things on the water which was used for drinking by the inhabitants of the metropolis and large towns; while the pollution of the streams prevented the breeding of fish, especially salmon, which might otherwise be available in large quantities. He contended that the only alternative remedy was the application of all sewage to land instead of depositing it in streams. He then enlarged on the vast advantage which would accrue from the use of the sewage on land, its fertilising influence, and the consequent increase of food for the population of this country, which was becoming far too much dependent on foreign supplies, while there would be a proportionate addition to agricultural wealth.

Sir G. Grey pointed out that Lord R. Montague had mixed up the questions of the pollution of rivers and the utilisation of sewage, and he had altogether failed to present a practical plan for the remedy of the former; and therefore the House ought not to be called on to give the bill a second reading. There was no doubt of the evil which it was proposed to meet; but the question was whether the measure would be efficacious for meeting it. He objected to the bill because it gave unlimited power to Government inspectors, and created a number of large and unmanageable boards, which would override local authority all over the country.

Mr. Kendall opposed the bill, pointing out that one of its effects would be to destroy half the mines in Cornwall.

Mr. Jackson moved the rejection of the bill, on the ground of its mischievous tendency in relation to the manufacturing and mining interests, and those of hundreds of thousands of men who by its operation would be thrown out of employment.

Mr. Bright seconded the amendment. He was a member of the Committee which inquired into the subject with which the bill dealt, and he could say that this measure was not one which had the sanction of the Committee, containing, as it did, most sweeping provisions, which would work great injury to a number of industrious persons, while very large interests would be perilled. Indeed, if the measure were put into operation, it would produce a revolution in the country.

After some further discussion, in the course of which the principle which is involved in the bill was admitted universally, and the necessity of legislative action in the direction of purification enforced, the bill was withdrawn.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

The Lord Chancellor introduced a bill, which he considered very important. The bill proposed the abolishment of imprisonment for debt, and that no discharge shall be made to protect the future property of the bankrupt, unless he shall have paid 5s. in the pound, or unless he obtain the assent to his discharge of four or five sixths of his creditors.

The Game Licenses (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The following Peers were appointed to form the Select Committee to inquire into all the circumstances connected with the resignation by Mr. Edmunds of the office of Clerk of the Patents and Clerk to the Commissioners of Patents, and Reading Clerk to the House of Lords, and also as to the circumstances connected with the grant of the retiring pension to him:—The Lord President (Earl Granville), the Duke of Somerset, the Earl of Derby, Lord Graham, the Earl of Durham, the Earl of Malmesbury, the Earl of Donoughmore, the Earl of Dalhousie, Lord Stanley of Alderley, Lord Houghton, and Lord Chelmsford.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

Lord Palmerston, in reply to Mr. Maguire, stated that the British Minister had remonstrated against the assumed intention of the Brazilian Admiral and the commander of the insurgent forces to bombard Montevideo, and had received an assurance that the property of British and foreign subjects should be respected as far as possible.

On the motion of Colonel Taylor, a new writ was ordered for the county of Wiltshire in the room of Mr. Sotheron Estcourt, who has accepted the Chiltern Hundreds.

NAVY ESTIMATES.

The House went into Committee of Supply on the navy estimates, the adjourned debate on the vote of 69,500 sailors, marines, &c., being resumed by Sir M. Peto, who severely censured the Board of Admiralty on their administration of the affairs of the Navy, which he believed to be in a most defective state, and wholly unfitted to meet the emergency of war should it arise. It was his intention, in a few days, to move for a Committee of Inquiry into the condition of our Naval force, and he hoped that the Government would throw no obstacle in the way of a full and fair investigation.

Admiral Walcott urged the necessity of making docks for ships damaged in conflict with the enemy in the Channel.

Sir J. Hay expressed his regret at the number of seamen that were to be reduced, and pointed out as a practical man the class of ships which in his opinion were the most serviceable for the Royal Navy. The great points to be attended to were speed, strength, and indestructibility. These advantages, however, he did not think could be attained if the ships were to be plated all over. In his opinion, all that was necessary was to plate the vulnerable parts—such as the stores department, the boilers, and the magazines.

Mr. Laird supported the efficiency of iron as a substance for ship-building, and stated that he had himself built an iron ship thirty years since which was as good now for all practical purposes as the first day, except the want of new engines and boilers. He advocated the cupola principle, and said that that description of vessel, if fitted with a double screw, would make the most perfect man-of-war afloat.

The debate was continued by Mr. Scourfield, Sir H. Willoughby, Mr. Bentinck, Mr. Stansfeld, and others.

Ultimately the vote, which was one for 69,750 seamen, marines, &c., for the service of the Royal Navy, was agreed to.

The Great Dublin Exhibition will, it is stated, be opened by the Prince of Wales.

The Birmingham Society of Mechanical Engineers has determined on originating a subscription to erect a statue in that town to honour the memory of James Watt.

The foundation-stone of a new grand stand, to be erected on the Knutsford racecourse, at a cost of from £1100 to £1500, was laid, on Monday, by Sir Harry Mainwaring, Bart.

The restoration of the cross at Winchester, one of the antique architectural relics of that city, has been begun. The church of the famous St. Cross Hospital is also about to be restored and beautified.

The works of restoration and improvement at Alnwick Castle and throughout the estates generally are to be resumed. The parks, which were closed for a short time after the Duke's death, are open to the public.

The south window of the Edinburgh Parliament House is to be replaced by a new one. The subject proposed to be pictorially delineated in the new window is, the Edinburgh Courant states, the opening of the College of Justice, which was constituted in 1532 by King James V.

The mortality throughout the country generally greatly decreased during the last week. The general average over the principal towns in the United Kingdom was last week 28 per 1000, in place of 31 per 1000 in the week previous. Of these towns Birmingham had the lowest average, and the highest of all was Liverpool.

A great public meeting was held in the Birmingham Townhall, on Tuesday, in aid of the proposed Working Men's Industrial Exhibition for Birmingham and the midland counties. Lord Leigh, Lord Lieutenant of Warwickshire, presided. The Rev. Dr. Miller, Mr. Wiggin, and several working men and others addressed the meeting, and resolutions for the carrying out of the project were passed with enthusiasm.

The ancient tower of Julius Cæsar at Windsor Castle, better known as the "Belfry Tower," is being repaired, and the window-openings and loopholes which light what were once the dungeons of the prisoners confined at the Royal pleasure, are being re-cased with new stone, while the walls facing Thames-street have been strengthened here and there, where required, by the insertion of new work. Portions of the buildings in the Horseshoe Cloisters, which abut upon the wall at this point, have also been restored, and new stone windows inserted, more in accordance with the general style of the architecture of the castle than those which have been removed.

The long-threatened lock-out in the iron trade has taken place. The men in North Staffordshire who are out on strike refused to yield, though requested to do so by their brethren in the trade, and warned that, if they persisted, they would not receive support from the other associations. They did persist, however, and on Saturday the masters in South Staffordshire closed their works; and it is expected that the same course will be followed by the masters all over the country till the men in North Staffordshire yield. It is calculated that about 70,000 men will thus be thrown out of employment, and about 200,000 persons will be deprived of the means of subsistence.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

The Government brokers have continued their operations for the Sinking Fund, and some rather large investments have been made on account of the general public; nevertheless, nearly all Home Securities have continued heavy, and the quotations have not been supported. The quantity of Stock in the hands of the jobbers is unusually large.

There has been rather an active demand for accommodation in the Discount Market; and in Lombard-street, although the supply of money is very large, the lowest rates for the best commercial paper are as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	4½ per cent.	Four months'	5 per cent.
Sixty days'	4½ ,,	Six months'	5½ 6 ,,
Three months'	4¾ ,,

In the Stock Exchange short loans are offering at from 3½ to 4 per cent.

Throughout the Continent money is becoming rather lower in price. The quotations in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	4	3½	Turin	6	6
Vienna	5	5½	Brussels	4	4
Berlin	4	3½	Hamburg	—	2
Frankfort	4	3½	St. Petersburg	6	9
Amsterdam	4	4

On Thursday the Bank of France rate of discount was reduced to 3½ per cent.

The Joint-stock Banks are now giving 3½ per cent for deposits at call, 3¾ if with seven days', and 4 per cent with fourteen days', notice of withdrawal.

The imports of the precious metals have been trifling, and scarcely any gold has been disposed of to the Bank of England. The export demand, however, is limited. Mexican dollars have been disposed of at 60½d. per ounce.

On Monday Consols, for Money, were done at 88¾ ⅞; Ditto, for Account, 89 to 89⅛; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87 to ⅛ ex div.; Exchequer Bills, 4s. to 7s. prem.; Bank Stock was 215 to 217; India Stock, 215 to 218; and Rupee Paper, 101 to 103, and 109 to 111. The Bonds sold at 10s. to 15s. prem. On the following day, Consols, for Transfer, closed at 88¾ ⅞; Ditto, for Time, 88⅞ 89; Bank Stock, 216 to 218; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 86⅞ 87 ex div.; India Stock, 215 to 218; Ditto, Five per Cents, 103¾ ⅞; Rupee Paper, 101 to 103, and 109 to 111; Debentures, 98½; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 4s. to 7s. prem. The dealings on Wednesday were limited. Consols, for Delivery, left off at 88¾ ⅞; Ditto, for Time, 88⅞ 89; Bank Stock, 216 to 218; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 86⅞ 87; India Stock, 215 to 218; Ditto Five per Cents, 103¾ ⅞; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday the market was firmer. Consols, for Money, realised 89⅛ ¼; for Account, 88⅞ 89⅛; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87, 86⅞, 87⅛; India Five per Cents, 104; and Exchequer Bills, 6s. prem.

In the Confederate Loan a heavy fall has taken place, and the quotation is now 35 to 38. Nearly all other Foreign Securities have ruled heavy, and the quotations have given way. Egyptian Scrip has sold at 1¼ to 1½ prem.; Italian, 2¼ to 1½ dis.; and Danubian 3½ dis ex div. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have been done at 81½; Chilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 81½; Danubian, 84½ ex div.; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 91 ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 95½; Greek, 20¾; Italian Old Five Cents, 63¾; Ditto, 1865, 76; Mexican Three per Cents 26; Ditto, 1864, 24½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47½; Russian Old Five per Cents, 89 ex div.; Ditto, 1862, 89½; Ditto Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 87¼; Spanish Three per Cents, 48½; Ditto, Deferred, 40⅞; Ditto, Passive, 32½; Ditto, Certificates, 16¾; Turkish Six per Cents, 1858, 70½ ex div.; Ditto, 1854, 77¾; Ditto, 1863, 64¼; Venezuela Six per Cents, 1862, 43½; Ditto, 1864, 40½; and Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 63.

The market for Joint-stock Bank Shares has ruled quiet:—Agra and Masterman's have realised 126; Alliance, 3⅞; Anglo-Egyptian, 12¾; Bank of Egypt, 31; Bank of Victoria, 39½; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 31½; City, 116; Colonial, 41¾; Consolidated, 11; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 19½; European, 11½; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 24½; Imperial Ottoman, 17½; Land Mortgage of India, 4¾; London and Brazilian, 44; London Chartered of Australia, 23½; London and County, 7 ¾; London Joint-stock, 46½; London and Westminster, 94; Merchant, 33; New South Wales, 43; Provincial of Ireland, 86½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 11; Standard of British South Africa, 21½; Union of Australia, 54; and Union of London, 52½.

In Colonial Government Securities very little has been done. Canada Six per Cents have realised 87; Ditto Five per Cents, 75; New South Wales Five per Cents, 93½; Queensland Six per Cents, 102½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108½.

The Miscellaneous Market has continued inactive. Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance, 2½; Berlin Waterworks, 9½; Bombay Gas, 6½; Ceylon Company, 9½; City of Milan Improvements, 9½; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 9½; Ditto, New, 7½; Crystal Palace, 34; East India Irrigation and Canal, 6½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 4½; Fairbairn Engineering, 6½; Fore-street Warehouse, 8; General Credit, 6½; Hudson's Bay, 15; International Financial, 6¼; Joint-stock Discount, 8½; London Financial, 21½; London General Omnibus, 3¾; National Discount, 11½; North British and Mercantile Insurance, 18; Oriental Inland Steam, 7¾; Ottoman Financial, 8; Société Financière d'Egypte, 8½.

The amount of business doing in American Securities has increased to some extent. United States Five per Cents have been 53¾ Illinois Central, 53½; and Erie Shares 34½.

Railway Shares have been heavy and drooping in price. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonian, 131½; Great Eastern, 46½; Great Northern, 127½ ex div.; Ditto, A Stock, 158 ex div.; Great Western, 72½; Ditto, West Midland—Oxford, 53; Ditto, Hereford, 103½; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 113½ ex div.; London and Blackwall, 84½; London, Chatham, and Dover, 28; London and North-Western, 116½; London and South-Western, 97½; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 59; Metropolitan, 117; Midland, 131½ ex div. and ex New; North-Eastern—Berwick, 107; South Devon, 53½; South-Eastern, 87¼ ex div.; West Hartlepool, A, irredeemable, 73½ ex div.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 100½; Eastern Bengal, 91½; East Indian, 104½; Grand Trunk of Canada, 15½; Great Indian Peninsula, 100¼; Great Western of Canada, 7½; Madras Five per Cent, 99½; Scinde, Punjaub, 98.

Foreign.—Central Argentine, 5; Great Luxembourg, 12½; Imperial Mexican, 2¼ ex div.; Sambre and Meuse, 7; San Paulo, 17½; and West Flanders, Five-and-a-Half per Cent Pref., 9¾.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending March 8 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£99,685	A decrease of bullion of	£42,741
An increase of public deposits of	123,389	An increase of rest of	12,152
A decrease of other deposits of	233,629	An increase of reserve of	59,541
An increase of securities of	521,987

The circulation is now £20,291,455. Public deposits amount to £7,577,720; and private deposits to £13,104,702. Securities are £30,949,096; and the stock of bullion is £14,754,397.

THE MARKETS.

Corn Exchange, March 6.—Only a moderate supply of English wheat was on offer here to-day, in but middling condition. Fine samples were in fair request, at full prices. In other kinds very little was doing, at late rates. The show of foreign wheat was less extensive; for the most part the transactions in it were limited, at about stationary prices. We were well supplied with foreign barley, and most descriptions changed hands slowly, on rather lower terms. Malt—the show of which was tolerably good—ruled inactive; yet prices were supported. The inquiry for oats was somewhat restricted, at barely late rates. No change took place in the value of either beans or peas. The flour trade was steady.

March 8.—The amount of business doing in all kinds of produce to-day was limited. Compared with Monday, however, no change took place in the quotations.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 42s.; ditto, white, 39s. to 45s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s., to 40s.; rye, 28s. to 30s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 27s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 29s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 51s. to 60s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 56s. to 60s.; chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 17s. to 22s.; potato ditto, 18s. to 24s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 16s. to 19s.; ditto, white, 17s. to 21s.; tick beans, 32s. to 34s.; grey peas, 33s. to 35s.; maple, 37s. to 40s.; white, 36s. to 38s.; boilers, 39s. to 40s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 37s. to 40s.; town households, 33s. to 35s.; country marks, 25s. to 32s. per 280 lb.; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 1080; barley, 670; malt, 2150; oats, 5460; flour, 810. Irish: Oats, 3020. Foreign: Wheat, 120; barley, 10,930; flour, 250 sacks.

Seeds.—The amount of business doing in seeds is only moderate; nevertheless, prices are supported. In cakes very little is passing.

Linseed, English, crushing, 60s. to 63s.; Calcutta, 56s. to 58s.; hempseed, 41s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. to 10s.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 71s. to 73s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 0s.; rape cakes, £5 10s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 44s. to 50s. per quarter; red clover seed, 62s. to 120s.; white ditto, 56s. to 83s. per cwt.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 6d.; barley, 28s. 11d.; oats, 20s. 2d. per quarter.

English Grain sold last Week.—Wheat, 87,163; barley, 55,610; oats, 9771 quarters.

Tea.—Most kinds are a dull inquiry, and prices are barely supported. The show of samples is large.

Sugar.—Good and fine raw sugars are in fair request, at full quotations; otherwise, the trade is heavy, and prices are a shade lower. The stock consists of 102,104 tons, against 71,268 tons last year. In refined goods about an average business is doing, at 42s. 6d. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—The trade may be considered steady, at previous quotations. Stock, 9795 tons, against 9768 tons in 1864.

Rice.—The demand is somewhat restricted, at late rates. Stock, 49,600 tons, against 58,993 tons last year.

Provisions.—The sale for all descriptions of butter is heavy, and the quotations have a drooping tendency. Bacon is rather lower, with a dull inquiry. In the value of other provisions scarcely any change has taken place.

Tallow.—The market is firm, at 40s. per cwt. for P.Y.C., on the spot. Stock, 44,433 casks, against 57,019 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £32 10s. to £32 15s.; rape, £41 10s. to £44 10s.; olive, £48 10s. to £52; fine coconut, £39 5s.; and fine palm, £36 10s. French turpentine, 60s. per cwt.

Spirits.—In rum only a limited business is doing, yet prices are supported. Brandy and grain spirits rule about stationary.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 7s. 6d.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 7s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Haswell, 19s. 6d.; Hetton, 19s. 6d.; Hartlepool, 18s. 9d.; Gosforth, 16s. 6d.; Hastings's Hartley, 14s. 6d.; Eden Main, 17s. 6d.; Hough Hall, 17s. 6d. per ton.

Hops.—The demand for good and fine hops is steady, at full quotations. Other kinds move off slowly, at late rates.

Wool.—The public sales of colonial wool are progressing slowly, and, in some instances, prices have a drooping tendency.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate, and the trade is steady, at from 55s. to 140s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, March 9).—The supply of beasts here to-day was moderate, and most breeds moved off slowly, at Monday's currency. The general top figure for Scots was 5s. 2d. per 8 lb. The show of sheep was tolerably good. Downs and half-breds sold steadily, at full quotations. Otherwise, the mutton trade was heavy, at late rates. Downs, in the wool, sold at 6s. 4d. to 6s. 6d.; out of the wool, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 4d. per 8 lb. Lambs ruled heavy, at from 6s. to 6s. 8d. per 8 lb. The inquiry for calves was steady, at previous quotations—viz., from 4s. 6d. to 5s. 8d. per 8 lb. There was a fair demand for pigs, at full prices. In milch cows very little was doing.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 2d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 4d. to 6s. 6d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 10d.; sucking calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 21s. to 28s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1120; cows, 140; sheep, 4150; calves, 212; pigs, 240. Foreign: Beasts, 400; sheep, 600; calves, 294.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 0d.; veal, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 2d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 5s. 0d. per 8 lb. by the carcass.

Robert Herbert.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 3.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

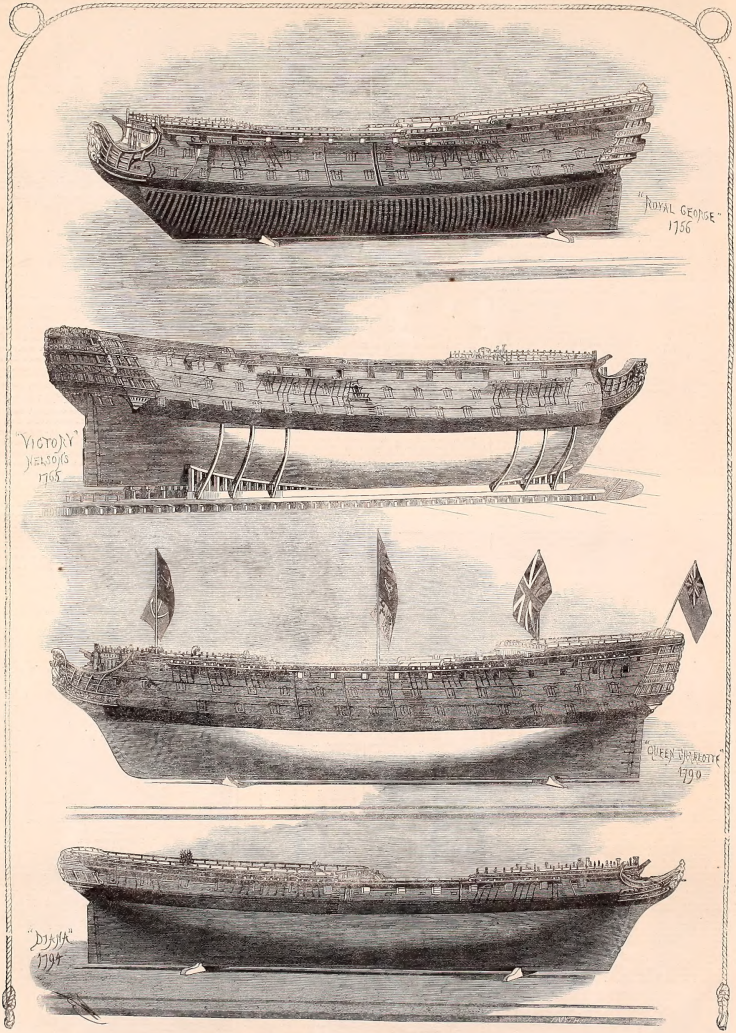
T. BURROWES, Angel-court, City, stockjobber.—J. H. RODGER, Leadenhall-street, City, shipbroker.—R. D. STRINGER, Staines, grocer.

BANKRUPTS.

F. HIGHLAND, City, manufacturer of fancy leather goods.—A. W. D. LEATHER, Lincoln's-inn-fields, attorney.—T. H. PALMER, Gracechurch-street, bookseller.—W. H. HOWE, Great Saffron-hill, baker.—G. WILLARD, Hackney, cheesemonger.—J. REGAN, Spitalfields, musical-string maker.—B. BARNETT, Burlington-gardens, picture-dealer.—J. HAYWARD, Hoxton, cocoanut-fibre matting manufacturer.—F. SHERWIN, Borough, boot manufacturer.—J. SKEETS, Waterloo-road, brick-burner.—J. GINNER, Chapter-street, Pimlico, confectioner.—W. CHILDS, Peckham, mason.—F. WREN, Croydon, tailor.—T. MULLIS, Old Kent-road, marble-mason.—J. BURROUGHS, Kennington-road, tailor.—T. SMELT, Whitechapel, licensed victualler.—J. LAWSON, Deptford, merchant.—J. A. COLLEAU, Willesden-green, decorator.—J. DYER, Limehouse, manure manufacturer.—E. COLLINS, Sutton-at-Hone, grocer.—M. BAKER, Upper Boddington, farmer.—C. HOARE, Southampton, commission agent.—R. CLARE, Ledfield, grocer.—B. OAKLEY, Finney, surveyor.—T. WILMOT, Eastbourne, builder.—E. WYMAN, Bishop's Stortford, brewer.—G. A. WATFORD, Kempston, tailor.—J. BUTLER, Darlaston, bolt manufacturer.—W. NEWSOME, Milverton.—W. M. SMITH, Derby, ropemaker.—J. WALKER, Lechlade.—H. SANTY, Trowbridge, linendraper.—H. SCHOLEFIELD, Bradley, farmer.—C. K. ARMSTRONG and G. JACKSON, Middlesborough, coal exporters.—S. CROWTHER, Gildersome, cloth manufacturer.—E. M. LYONS, Ripon, watchmaker.—O. OWENS, Amlwch, draper.—H. LLOYD, Maes Lewis, farmer.—W. BLACKBURN, Liverpool.—J. DANIELLS, Wigan, commission agent.—S. PILKINGTON, Manchester, baker.—E. RICHARDS, Manchester, furniture-dealer.—J. KEENAN, Manchester, clothes-dealer.—W. JACKSON, Burnley, innkeeper.—G. T. GREY, North Shields, builder.—T. MOON, Bowness, husbandman.—W. DUNNING, Monkwearmouth, cabinetmaker.—R. H. J. ADAMSON, Durham, publican.—E. BROOKES, King's Norton, builder.—C. B. MELTON, Aldershott, tobacconist.—S. ROWLEY, Old Swinford, tailor.—C. EVANS, Llanvrechva Lower, innkeeper.—J. DIGGLE, jun., Loughborough, publican.—W. JONES, Aberystwith, hat manufacturer.—J. INSTONE, Farnborough, smith.—J. WATKINS, Trevethin, collier.—W. TALL, Winchester, lessee of tolls.—J. JONES, Dowlais, confectioner.—J. G. BAKER, Kirkdale, bootmaker.—J. BREWSTER, Woolwich, baker.—S. ANDERSON and S. COLLIER, Liverpool, printers.—W. ASH and E. A. HOOPER, Totnes, masons.—H. WALKER, Ogley Hay, baker.—J. WRIGHT, Lichfield.—P. MILNS, Stamford, cordwainer.—J. G. AKRILL, Llanfyllin, jeweller.—G. DUCKER, Swineshead, blacksmith.—J. STANSFIELD, Sowerby-bridge, shopkeeper.—J. LOVELUCK, jun., Hafod.—D. SMITH, Penarth, tailor.—T. H. MORRIS, Southampton, outfitter.—W. BRITTAIN, Stratford, carpenter.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

G. SOUTAR, Frankleyden, Perthshire, farmer.—J. WADDELL, Glasgow, contractor.—A. S. ANDERSON, Glasgow, wine merchant.

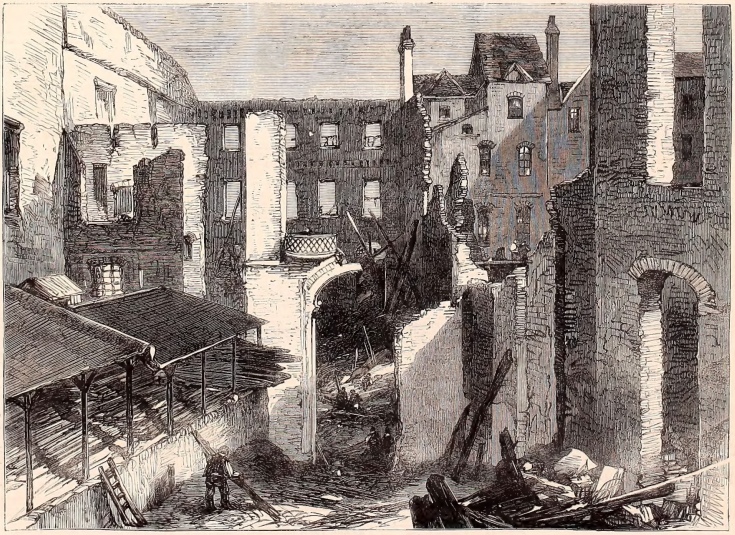


TUESDAY, MARCH 7.

BANKRUPTS.

A. J. CROFT, Oxford-street, jeweller.—R. and G. F. TANNER, Lower Thames-street, Custom-house agents.—A. M. RANDALL, Finsbury-square, surgeon.—W. W. MANSELL, Walbrook, manager of companies.—J. C. SHRIMPTON, Cheshunt, saddler.—A. C. AYRES, Ramsgate, surgeon.—J. SIMPSON, Agar-street, commission agent.—W. CHANDLER, Auckland-street, miller.—T. WILSON, Sclater-street, trimming manufacturer.—G. T. ELLIS, John-street, builder.—W. JUBY, Crettingham, maltster.—J. REEVES, Walworth-place, manure merchant.—W. P. HOMES, Leman-street, boot manufacturer.—T. WELLS, Westminster, parliamentary agent.—J. MASON, Westminster, tobacconist.—W. MAIDMENT, Westbourne Park-villas, carpenter.—C. MOYCE, Gospel Oak-grove, grocer.—W. DAVISON, Upper Berkeley-street West, outdoor Custom-house officer.—N. HARRIS, Well-street, merchant.—T. H. MACKENZIE, Rye-lane, commission agent.—J. DAVIS, Old Cavendish-street, surgeon-dentist.—W. HUTCHINSON, Canterbury, horsedealer.—W. FROST, King's Lynn, fish merchant.—W. MORRISON and W. B. FLEMING, Gracechurch-street, shipbrokers.—P. WOOD, Walsall, bricklayer.—A. HAMMOND, Worcester, glove manufacturer.—M. HIGGITT, Coventry, confectioner.—T. SILK, Nether Whitacre, farmer.—R. C. LEMON, Torquay, auctioneer.—J. SWALES, Holmsley, chemist.—D. JAMESON, Goole, cabinetmaker.—W. DIXON, Morley, dyer.—W. HARDY, West Drayton, farmer.—S. LAW, Manchester, cotton-dealer.—G. STEPHENSON, Manchester, merchant.—T. W. DRURY, Blackburn, innkeeper.—J. NEAL, Ashton-under-Lyne, cotton-dealer.—H. FRAMPTON, Worcester, tailor.—J. ILLSTON, Sheffield, joiner.—J. JACKSON, Sheffield, butcher.—M. MARSH, Manchester, provision-dealer.—S. BURNLEY, sen., Morley, commission agent.—E. WILLIAMS, Duke's Town, miner.—J. H. TRAVIS, Royton, patent agent.—F. BOYCE, Garboldisham, innkeeper.—T. GENT, Thursford, wheelwright.—S. A. ORWIN, Chesterfield, miner.—J. BURTON, Burton-on-Trent, plumber.—J. FAULKNER, Coventry, grocer.—H. NEWBOLD, Foleshill, farmdealer.—W. BRACEGIRDLE, Wem, farmer.—M. J. CHEW, New Sleaford, plumber.—W. STEPHENS, Hulme, joiner.—T. D. YORKE, Northampton, clicker.—G. JOHNS, Devonport, grocer.—W. WATT, Newport, haulier.—C. J. STEVENSON, Woore, saddler.—J. D. M'KINNELL, Liverpool, grocer.—W. R. GLASGOW, Stretford, salesman.—C. TUCKER, Bristol, attorney.—J. F. CANE, Brighton, lodging-house keeper.—S. REYNOLDS, Bristol, porter merchant.—O. LEESON, Sutton-in-Ashfield, plumber.—R. DOBSON, Lofthouse, ropemaker.—J. FRANKS, Stockton-on-Tees, tailor.—S. WARREN, Stoke-on-Trent, cratemaker.—M. FARMER, Overton, timber-dealer.—J. ADYE, Llandaff, coal-shipper.—S. JAYONS, Newtown, fish-dealer.—G. BUCKELL, Cambridge, grocer.—R. SMALL, Retford, butcher.—R. WEBSTER, Tranmere, insurance agent.—J. PETRY, Mumps Oldham, publican.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.



C. SOUTAR, Frankleyden, farmer.—J. CAMERON, Tomchrasky, tacksman.—J. JACK, Glasgow, boot manufacturer.—J. MORRISON, Bishopbriggs, graindealer.—W. WILSON, Lilliesleaf, innkeeper.

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SEE PAGE 238.

THE FIRE AT SAVILE HOUSE, LEICESTER-SQUARE.

THE RUINS OF SAVILE HOUSE AFTER THE FIRE.—SEE PAGE 238.

MRS. FANNY KEMBLE will read AS YOU LIKE IT on March 13, and OTHELLO on March 20, in the MARYLEBONE LITERARY INSTITUTION, Glenmadesier, Tavistock-square. Commence at Eight. Numbered stalls (with Tickets of Admission) and unreserved, 5s.; area, 2s.; balcony, 2s. Tickets to be obtained at the Institution, or of Messrs. Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, 201, Regent-street; Mr. Austin, Piccadilly; Mr. Ollivier, 19, Old Bond-street; and at the Institution.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, Regent's Park. THE FIRST SPRING EXHIBITION of SCARLET GERANIUMS, CALCEOLARIAS, CINERARIAS, and other PLANTS, on SATURDAY NEXT, MARCH 18. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, or of Fellows of the Society (transferable to all days). The Band will perform during the afternoon. Dense Hooper, Sec.

THE GREAT PYTHOGORA GIANT, whose appearance in Hannibal and Hop-Stone has created such universal admiration, may be seen at 74, Leicester-square.

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.—The ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING will be held (by permission of the Lord Mayor) at the MANSION-HOUSE, Guildhall, on TUESDAY NEXT, the 14th inst., at Two o'clock precisely. Chairman of the Committee of Management, Sir JOHN GUEST, Bart., M.P. Bernard Lucas, Secretary.

ART-UNION OF LONDON.—Subscription £1 1s. Every Subscriber will select from the public exhibitions a work of the value of a subscription guinea, and in addition receive an impression of the Line Engraving by Mr. A. H. Ryland, after the Picture by Mr. Frederick Goodall, R.A., CLAUDE DUVAL. The prints are now ready for delivery. Subscriptions received by CHARLES GODFREY, Hon. Sec.

March, 1865. LEMUS FRANCIS, } Hon. Secs.

NAVAL CADETSHIPS, &c.—EASTMAN'S ROYAL NAVAL ACADEMY, Gosport.—Twelve Pupils stood on their respective lists at the late Examination as follows:—

Each Examination ...	2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, &c.
Ditto ...	3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, &c.
Ditto ...	4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, &c.
Ditto ...	5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, &c.
Ditto ...	6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, &c.
Ditto ...	7th, 8th, 10th, 11th, &c.

For full information address to Mr. JOHN EASTMAN, as above.

MALVERN COLLEGE.—This COLLEGE is NOW OPEN.
Boarding-house Masters { Rev. CHAS. MERIVALE, M.A.
{ Rev. F. E. PRIDEAUX, M.A.
"There will be no consideration so effectual as the moral assurance that for the children's welfare and good the whole of the masters mean for ever to be responsible."—Dr. Arnold.
For information apply to the Head Master, Rev. Arthur Faber, M.A. Or to the Bursar, Mr. Bowden, who will be in attendance on Tuesday next, March 14, at the College.

THE UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited).
Chairman—Thomas Sutton, Esq.
Permanent Photographs are obtained by the New Patent Process on Paper, Glass, Ivory, Porcelain, &c., and guaranteed in the most perfect state, as no fading can ever be experienced.
Full Instructions and Cost of Prices by post.
"The pictures are all most wonderful delicacy."—Times.
115, Regent-street, W.

SIX PER CENT DEBENTURES.—RECIPE for SAFE INVESTMENT.—Mr. ROBERT MORRIS'S FIFTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT and BALANCE-SHEET, showing the Profits and Applications for a limited amount of DEBENTURES, to mature at not less than £100 each, bearing Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, payable half-yearly.
Full particulars may be obtained at the Company's Office,
No. 2, Great Winchester-street-buildings.
W. H. HELLARD, Secretary.
15, Old Jewry Chambers, London, Feb. 28, 1865.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Endorsed by the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Wellington, and Nelson.
Capital, £1,000,000, in 20,000 Shares of £50 each, payable Branches and Agents in New Zealand.
Auckland ... Dunedin ... Napier ... Nelson
Blenheim ... Hokitika ... New Plymouth ... Nelson
Christchurch ... Invercargill ... Picton ... Taranaki
Dunedin ... Onehunga ... Russell ... Tokomairiro
Grahamstown ... Otago ... Southbridge ... Wellington
Hokitika ... Picton ... Wellington ... Wellington
Invercargill ... Russell ... Westport ... Westport
Lyttelton ... Stanley ... Whanganui ... Whanganui
Manawatu ... Wellington ... Whangarei ... Whangarei
Nelson ... Wellington ... Whangarei ... Whangarei
Agents in London, Messrs. Glyn, Mills, Currie, and Co.
Bankers, The Bank of England.
The Bank grants Drafts on the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with New Zealand, in the most favourable terms.
The Bank receives Deposits at Interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
LAWSON GURNEY,
No. 36, Old Jewry, London, March, 1865. Managing Director.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 by one of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, may be secured by an Annual Payment to the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill, and 10, Regent-street.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 3s. Annually. At the ACCIDENTAL INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. M. DIXON, Secretary.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND NAVAL and MILITARY and CIVIL SERVICE EXHIBITION, A.D. 1865, under Royal Patronage, 12, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR S. HUMPHRYS, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

THE ROYAL TURKISH BATH.

HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, 11, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, W.C.
Manager, Mr. T. Pretsch. Terms, £2 2s. per week.
Physician, Dr. Lane, M.R.C.S.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BRIGHTON, S.W.—Supported entirely by Voluntary Contributions. Funds are much required for the Support of the Institution. Donations and Subscriptions will be thankfully received by the current expenses of this Charity.
FREDK. ELLIS, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBELL, Treasurer.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, 27, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from 9 till 5 daily. Mr. Smart's system of Writing is unrivalled for the beauty of its results and the rapidity with which it can be acquired. Lessons, each, 5s. Course, 5s. extra. Improvement guaranteed in Eight Lessons. Mr. Smart's Writing Fluid, Pens, and Inkstands, for the use of pupils, may be purchased at the Institution. Prospectuses, post free, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agents for the Brightland Insurance Company.

PARTNERSHIP.—TO BANKERS and OTHERS.—A Branch of most active country practice is now vacant, and will be offered to a Gentleman as PARTNER, with a capital of not less than £2000, which would be required to meet the present expenses of the Practice. Unexceptionable references will be given and required. Address, in the first instance, to Mr. Wm. Hall, Solicitor, Bridgnorth, Salop.

TWO PARENTS and GUARDIANS.—A VACANCY is now open for an ARTICLED PUPIL in the Office of a Solicitor in extensive practice in the City. He will have opportunities of attending the best instruction in the Metropolis in the branch of the profession. The Pupil can reside with the Principal, who is a Member of the Church and further particulars address—C. S., 8, Gresham-street.

PROVINCE OF NATAL.
MESSRS. NORTH, SIMPSON, GRAHAM, and CO. beg to announce that they have REMOVED to No. 30, Nicholas-lane, Lombard-street, E.C., where all communications relative to the Province of Natal should be addressed.

TRELOAR'S COCOANUT MATTING, as supplied to Her Majesty's Palaces and Public Buildings.
42, Ludgate-hill.

BROWN AND POLSON'S PATENT CORN FLOUR,
FOR CHILDREN'S DIET
and Table Supplies.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. D. DODGSON, 1, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

SUPERB FLOWER SEEDS, post-free, at half-price.—Send for Mr. Fish's Autumn Catalogue, containing upwards 3,000 first-class Annuals, at 1s. 6d. per Packet, 3s. 6d. per Dozen, &c., &c., post-free.—Address, FISH, Seedsman, Ryde.

SUPERB W. KNIGHT, Florist, Highclere, Hants, Sussex.

NEW BOOKS.

CHAPMAN and HALL'S SELECT LIBRARY OF FICTION. Price Two Shillings per Volume, bound in cloth, and forming a handsome Series for the Library or Table, printed in clear, readable type, on good paper, and strongly bound.
"The Edition published by this firm in Dolly Select Library, for all it costs, is a boon to the reading public."—Spectator.
"Capital novels, well worth the price asked for them."—Guardian.

AINSWORTH'S CONSTABLE OF THE TOWER. THE ONLY CHILD. By Lady Duff Gordon.
AGATHA'S HUSBAND. By Miss Mulock.
A BRAVE LADY. By Miss Mulock.
THE WHITEBOY. By Mrs. S. C. Hall.
THE CRUISE OF THE MIDGE. By Cutlife Hyne.
MY UNCLE THE CURATE. By M. W. SAVAGE.
LAVINIA. By Mrs. Gaskell.
MARY BARTON. By Mrs. GASKELL.
RUTH AND HER FRIENDS. By GEORGE JEWSBURY.
BACHELOR OF THE ALBANY. By H. W. SAVAGE.
THE LOST SIR MASSINGBERD. By J. Maxwell.
THE ORPHANS, and CALEB FIELD. By the Author of "Mary Barton."
MISS MACKENZIE. By Mrs. TROLLOPE.
EMILY FOSSBROOKE. By Mrs. GREY.
ADVENTURES OF A CLEVER WOMAN. By Mrs. TOMLINSON.
BELLE OF THE VILLAGE. By JOHN MILLS.
THE CHRONICLES OF CARLINGFORD. Dedicated to the Author of "Barchester Towers."
SORROWS OF GENTILITY. By GERALDINE JEWSBURY.
HECKINGTON. A Novel. By Mrs. GORE.
HOUSE BESIEGED. By the Author of "Charles Auchester."
MR. AND MRS. ASHTON. By the Author of "Passages in a Woman's Life."
MARY ANNE. By Mrs. GERALDINE JEWSBURY.
MARIAN WITHERS. By GERALDINE JEWSBURY.
GERTRUDE. By Frances Trollope.
YOUNG HEIRESS. By Mrs. TROLLOPE.
MAJESTY'S PLEASURE. By Mrs. STEPHEN."
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

MR. CHARLES LEVER'S WORKS.
A SELECT LIBRARY EDITION, in Two Shilling Volumes, each complete in itself, and illustrated with a Frontispiece by Phiz.
JACK HINTON, THE GUARDSMAN.
TOM BURKE OF "OURS."
HARRY LORREQUER.
CHARLES O'MALLEY, THE IRISH DRAGOON. In 2 vols.
THE ODONOGHUE. An Irish Tale.
THE FORTUNES OF GLENCORE. In 2 vols.
ROLAND CASHEL. In 2 vols.
DAVENPORT DUNN. In 2 vols.
THE DODD FAMILY ABROAD. In 2 vols.
THE MARTINS OF CRO' MARTIN. In 2 vols.
DAVENPORT DUNN. In 2 vols.
ONE OF THEM.
A DAY'S RIDE; A LIFE'S ROMANCE.
MAURICE TIERNAY.
SIR JASPER CAREW.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

QUALITY and STANDARD of EDITIONS of POPULAR AUTHORS.—Now ready, post 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
THE SAINT GERMAN LEGENDS: "How a Play" and "Christmas Day."
By the Author of "Mary Powell," &c. Edited by W. HARRISON AINSWORTH. REUBEN DAVIDGER. By the Author of "Jack Hinton," &c.
CHARLIE THORNHILL; or, The Dance of the Family. By the Author of "Rattlin the Reefer."
THE MASTER OF THE HOUNDS. By HARRY HIEOVER.
THE DODD FAMILY. By the Author of "Jack Hinton," &c.
THE MARTINS OF CRO' MARTIN. By the Author of "Tom Burke of Ours."
THE MAN OF MYSTERY. By "SCRUTATOR."
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

Now publishing in Monthly Volumes, price 1s. 6d. per volume, in fcap. 8vo, cloth, a New Library Edition, with all the Original Illustrations, of the Novels of CHARLES LEVER, complete in 18 volumes.

CHARLES LEVER'S WORKS.
TOM BURKE OF "OURS." HARRY LORREQUER.
CHARLES O'MALLEY. JACK HINTON.
Vol. 1, containing TOM BURKE OF "OURS," with Portrait, and like the rests of Mr. Lever's Novels, Dickens, and Thackeray, full of Illustrations by Phiz, is printed in a clear and readable type, on good paper, and handsomely bound. Each subsequent volume will contain two complete Novels, and will be published on the first day of every alternate month.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

LIBRARY of POPULAR AUTHORS. New Volumes, price 2s. 6d. each, bound in cloth.
EMILIA WYNDHAM. By Mrs. MARSH.
THE ANNALS OF THE PARISH.
HE WOULD BE A GENTLEMAN. By SAMUEL WARREN.
THE DAUGHTERS. By Mrs. GREY.
THE HEIRESS. By Mrs. GREY.
HIGH STORIES AND LEGENDS. By SAMUEL LOVER.
Handsomely bound in cloth, and forming a handsome Series for the Library or Table.
TIME THE AVENGER. By Mrs. MARSH.
Also, in post 8vo, cloth, price 2s. 6d., the Novels sold at all Railway Bookstalls.
THE DODD FAMILY ABROAD. Second Edition now ready, with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, bound paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.
BEAUTIES OF THE POETS. By HENRY CHERRY. 21 LITERAL SKETCHES AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. Post 8vo, cloth.
This is a charming volume; the poems are full of vitality, and richly illustrated by the author's pencil.—Sun.
Mr. Cherry has produced a very pleasant volume.—Athenæum.
It is adorned with a delicate frontispiece.—Illustrated Times.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

CROQUET. By JOHN JAQUES. A New Edition, with Additional Diagrams, enlarged and revised, with Additional Diagrams and Illustrations.
Post 8vo, cloth, price 1s.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly, and LEWIS and NEWMAN, Paternoster-row.

JAQUES'S CROQUET.

Now ready, Fifth Edition, price One Guinea, post-free.
THE ART of BREAKING, TRAINING, and MAKING of MALT. By JOHN CUTHBERT, late Maltster to the Marquis of Westminster, Author of "Practical Malting," "Practical Brewing," "Practical Hop Growing," "Practical Cheese Making," &c. "Malt is the soul of beer, and without malt there would be no beer, and consequently no brewers, and no beer-drinkers, and no beer-shops, and no beer-houses, and no beer-barrels, and no beer-engines, and no pewter pots, and no beer-money, and no beer-taxes, and no Chancellor of the Exchequer to spend it."—Cuthbert's Practical Brewing.
Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 10s., post-free.
HOMŒOPATHY, its PRINCIPLES and DOCTRINES. By J. LAURIE, M.D. "We have carefully perused this work, and have much pleasure in recommending it to the notice of those who desire to form their own conclusions, and especially to acquire a knowledge of Homœopathy sufficient to enable them to treat their own ailments in the first instance."—Medical Times and Gazette. "Dr. Laurie has adapted to the former work, price 10s., and to this latest edition, 10s., the best introduction to Homœopathy."—Bell's Life, 6th inst. Sixth Edition, now ready, price 5s. 6d.; per post, 5s. 8d.,
DR. HUNTER'S LETTER ON THE USE of MERCURY in SYPHILIS. "Dr. Hunter's letter is a model of what a medical letter should be. It contains the opinions of the most eminent authorities on the subject, and is written in a clear, concise, and unprejudiced manner."—Medical Times and Gazette. "Dr. Hunter's letter is a valuable contribution, and deserves, by its moderation and fairness, to be widely circulated."—Lancet. "Dr. Hunter's letter is a masterly production."—Dublin Medical Press.
Fifth Edition, price 1s. 6d., post-free, 1s. 8d.,
HUNT on the SKIN: a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By HENRY HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, St. Clement's-inn, Fellow of the Medical Society of London, and Author of "Medical Notes on Climate, Baths, and Mineral Waters." "Mr. Hunt has produced a very useful little book."—Lancet. "Mr. Hunt's book is very good."—Lancet.—London: J. CHURCHILL, 11, New Burlington-street.

Fifth Edition, price 5s. by post, 5s. 4d.,
ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE ELUSTACHIAN TUBE. By JAMES YEARSLEY, M.D., Aurist to the Royal Infirmary for Children, Physician for Diseases of the Ear to the Orthopædic Hospital, &c.—London: J. CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

NEW BOOKS.

Will be ready March 15, in one vol., cloth and gold, with tasteful Frontispiece and Vignette, price 6s., post-free 6s. 4d.,
SOCIAL CONTRASTS: portrayed in a Series of Twenty-one Humorously-coloured Lithographic Plates. By ALFRED CROWQUILL. Author of "Phases of Fashion," "Scenes in Army and Navy Life, and other works, completed on Stone chiefly by Himself.
The following is a List of Subjects illustrated in this volume:—
1. Early rising. 2. Dressing for the Ball. 3. Waltzing and Without. 4. Leaving the Ball. 5. Leaving Home. Lisbon—Going Home to the Dull. 6. Going to the Ball. 7. Dressing for the Ball. 8. Waltzing and Without. 9. Supping at Home. 10. Supping Abroad. 11. Returning from the Ball. 12. Breakfasting Abroad. 13. Breakfasting at Home. 14. Dressing for Dinner. 15. Dinner at Home. 16. Dinner Abroad. 17. Dining Out. 18. Dining at Home. 19. Dressing for the Play. 20. Going to the Play. 21. Returning from the Play.
London: DEAN and SON, 160, Fleet-street.

Just ready, the Second Edition, with Portrait, 8vo, cloth, price 15s.
THE NEW TESTAMENT OF OUR LORD AND SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST. Edited with a short Practical Commentary, for the Use of Schools and Families. By the Rev. W. HARRY RAMSAY, M.A., and Rev. W. HARRY JELLICOE. Illustrated with authentic views of places mentioned in the Sacred Narrative, from Photographs taken on the spot by Rev. H. C. Malan and Joseph Bonomi, Esq.
JOHN RUSSELL, Aldersgate-street.

ATLASES and MAPS, all of the latest and best Publications.
Catalogues sent on application.
Also a Magic and Travelling Map.
Attested as the best and cheapest House for Inspection at
J. GILBERT, 31 and 32, Southampton-buildings, London, W.C.

FOR THREE HUNDRED beautiful ILLUSTRATIONS of ANIMAL CHARACTER, Humorously Delineated, see the Comic Almanack for 1865. Hotten, Piccadilly.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. 100 Beautiful Subjects, Coloured, Post-free, Sixpence. Catalogue, Sixpence. Wholesale, Retail, and for Exportation. W. M. BARNARD, 19, Cornwell-street, London, W.

STAMP YOUR OWN PAPER with ARTHUR GRAY'S Registered Embossing Press, fitted with Engraved Die (business or name) and Copper counterpart complete, 10s. 6d. Arthur Gray, Stationer, Engraver, and Printer, 59, Fleet-street, E.C. Price-list post-free.

FIFTEEN CARTES de VISITE for 2s. 6d. The Royal Photographic Copying Company, 8, Railway-street, Hyde-road, Manchester, and 8, Argyll-street, Regent-street, London. Specimens and testimonials forwarded within a week. Dated, Coloured carte de visite, 2 Portraits for 3s. Address as above.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome morocco bindings and moroco bindings and moroco bindings, ornate, tasteful, and economical. Albums for monogrammic effect, and photographic display. 192, Piccadilly; 4, Cornhill.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and DESIGNS for STATIONERS, Engravers, and Illuminators. Monogram and envelope stamped in colour relief, and illuminated monogram executed. 192, Piccadilly; 4, Cornhill.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 4s. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Bill, Programme and Circular Printing. Arthur Gray, Stationer, Engraver, and Printer, 59, Fleet-street, E.C. Price-list post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office, established 23 years) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d. Painted in Colours, 5s. Engraved for Seals or Dies, 7s. Steel Die for Stamping Paper, 7s. Pedigrees, Crests, &c. HUGH BRIDDON, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Heraldically Accurate, Artistic, Modern, Elegant, and Terse in Treatment. Designs, Sketches, Estimates, Engraving, Matrices, Presses, and Stamps. Arthur Gray, Stationer, Engraver, and Printer, 59, Fleet-street, E.C. Price-list post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—Important to Everyone—not surprised, a valuable Index, containing the Names of nearly every Family entitled to Arms, with the Crest, Motto, and Description of the same, may be had, price 5s., of Mr. Stiff, Herald Painter, Engraver, and Stationer, 57, Long-acre. Arms found, and Sketch, 2s. 6d. Painted in proper colours, 5s. Steel Die for stamping Paper, 5s. Arms painted on Vellum, Hatchment, or Carriage Panel, 10s. 6d. Pedigrees, Family Quarterings, &c. Seals and Rings, Gold and Silver Plate Mark, 5s. 6d.; Labels, 3s.; Arms, Crest, and Motto, Inscribed on Seals, Rings, Dies, Book-plates, &c. Heraldic Stationery, Envelopes, Cards, Wedding Cards, Invitations, Dinner Cards, Arms, Crest, and Motto, Illuminated and Emblazoned. Heraldic Office, 57, Long-acre, W.C. Observe the Name and Number.

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Best Quality, Gold Pin, Dials, very massive, Ear Rings, Studs, Lockets, and Chains, at Wholesale Prices. The Hall mark is a guarantee for good quality. Illustrated Price-list post-free. Benson, 33 and 34, Ludgate-hill, London.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged by other houses) on your Note Paper for a Guinea Box of Stationery. All charged for.—T. CULLETON, Diemaker, &c. Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 3s.; post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 50 for 3s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name Plate, 2s.; Set of Moveable Numbers, 2s. 6d. Crest Plate, 5s.—T. CULLETON, Diemaker, &c., 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

NEW MUSIC.

ELLIE.—"This most successful ballad, by Geo. Linley, is sung by Miss Rebecca Welbourne, the favourite vocalist, and through the provinces with Miss Dolby and party."—London: BREWER and Co.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL DUETS, combining all the requisites for Drawing-room Performance, including seven Original Duets, published with Italian and French Words, and Pianoforte Accompaniments, by Stephen Glover, Author of "Jolly Young Waterman," &c. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Santley.
1. SPARKLING STREAMLET. By T. Oliphant. 2. Ditto. 3. Ditto. 4. Ditto. 5. Ditto. 6. Ditto. 7. Ditto. 8. Ditto. 9. Ditto. 10. Ditto. 11. In Fairies and in Friends. 12. The Lake and I. 13. Ditto. 14. Ditto.
London: BREWER and Co.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—A NEW Arrangement for the Pianoforte of Lovely Primrose Dance, by Brinley Richards.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

TRAVELLING ORGANIST may be had, in six volumes, small 8vo, cloth, 2s. each, or Complete, in one volume, 10s. 6d., of all Music Sellers.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

TRAVIS'S SACRED MUSIC FOR THE PIANOFORTE may be had in 30 Books. Each Book contains upwards of Twenty Pages, and is selected from the works of the most Eminent Composers. By each.—London: BREWER and Co.

BRINLEY RICHARDS. A new and brilliant Arrangement for the Pianoforte of the popular Song, Sweet Kitty Clover.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

LOVE'S MELODIES VARIETIES, for the Pianoforte, may be had in 30 Books. Each Book contains upwards of Twenty Pages, in each, of Dance Music.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. Book 1, for Treble Voice, Violin, and Violoncello, or Organ, Harmonium, or Piano. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. Book 2, for Treble Voice, Violin, and Violoncello, or Organ, Harmonium, or Piano. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. Book 3, for Treble Voice, Violin, and Violoncello, or Organ, Harmonium, or Piano. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. Book 4, for Treble Voice, Violin, and Violoncello, or Organ, Harmonium, or Piano. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. Complete and most effective arrangement for the Pianoforte of the Four Books, in one volume, 10s. 6d.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Holywell-street, Strand.

SWEET KITTY CLOVER. The New Song by the COMPOSER of BOTHERED. I was waiting in the fields near the Rosses Quay, When I heard some one sing in a voice so sweet, 'twas he, 'twas Pat Brady, 'twas Pat Brady, 'twas he, 'twas Pat Brady, and 'twas the pity I Pat Brady, 'twas he, 'twas Pat Brady, and 'twas the pity I was not there. For Pat Brady is now from Kerry. The words are by the COMPOSER of BOTHERED. The music by the COMPOSER of BOTHERED. Price 2s. 6d. With beginning for a waltz. From the girl I love, well. "I'll join your company," I said to the boy, "Oh, no, sir," he replied, "I'm not a singer, it's sweet Kitty Clover I sing." BOTHERED and DANNY BOY. Two Irish Songs. The words by the COMPOSER of BOTHERED. The music by the COMPOSER of BOTHERED. Price 2s. 6d. each.
London: BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street.

LAGLIE" (Galop Courant), a New Dance, by Meyer Lutz. Beautifully illustrated. Price 3s. Messrs. Louise Nichols. Hunt, and Addison.

DIANOFORTES, by Messrs. Erard, Collard, Kirkman, Broadwood, Hoadkinson, Allison, and other makers, from 15 guineas to 100 guineas. Also Cottage Pianofortes, from 10 guineas to 50 guineas. Every Pianoforte warranted by the maker, or it has been taken back within two years from the date of purchase, and the purchase money returned.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS OF PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of Three Years.—Tolkien's Manufactory, 27, Wilton-street, Belgrave-square.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, screen retrace, the cheapest and best Pianoforte ever manufactured. Tolkien's Manufactory, 27, Wilton-street, Belgrave-square. Established 20 years.

TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, screen retrace, fine tone. Most elegant and cheapest Pianoforte ever made. Tolkien's Manufactory, 27, Wilton-street, London Bridge. Established 20 years.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOTS, 56, Cheapside, and 65, Regent-street.—Messrs. NICOLE FRERES beg to call the attention of the Public to their extensive assortment of Musical Boxes, playing the most popular pieces and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for the Sale of Messrs. NICOLE'S Instruments, 56, Cheapside, and 65, Regent-street. Catalogues may be had on application.

TOLKIEN'S PATENT OBLIQUE GRAND PIANOFORTE, 7 octaves, in elegant Rosewood Case, 65 guineas. Tolkien's Manufactory, 27, Wilton-street, Belgrave-square.

PIANOFORTE HOOD (new iswic), in gilt and plain, price 27 6s. by 17 in., with plush, back-board, and brass rods complete. Any size made to order. Illustrations, &c., sent. STEVENSON'S COMPANY, 34, Cheapside, and 194, Regent-street, London.

FRAMES for RED BIDING HOOD, Mantel Mirrors, Glass Shades, Glass and Metal Dishes, Wire and Metal Stands, &c. 66, Hight and 66A, St. The trade supplied with Looking-glass Plates, Glass Shades, Dishes, &c. 66, Hight and 66A, St. Martin's-lane, and 37, Broad-street.

THE MAGIC CASE.—Lifelike Figures of the Wonderful Dancing and Performing Dwarfs, Miss Lavinia Warren and Commodore Nutt, Tom Thumb, Miss Minnie Warren, &c., obtain a selection. The most next-door to Catalogue.
CHARLES MORTON, 24 and 25, Oxford-street.

PUNCH ON HORSEBACK.—Roars of Laughter.—Punch on horseback, with Judy and Policeman, the famous Lower Heath, with the inevitable sausage for his friend the dog, and the Beadle, all in full action. Price of the Large Engraving, 12 G. CLARKE and CO., 374, Strand.

THE MAGIC CASE.—Roars of Laughter.—These exuberant animals go through their exploits with the most perfect ease. Price 10s. 6d. Post-free. Per rail—from the Interior—12 G. CLARKE and CO., 374, Strand.

HALF-GUINEA BOX of HOISE COLOURS for Painting Flowers, Landscapes, &c. Post-free, 10s. 6d.—MOTTE, BRUSH, and BOX, 23, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square.
Catalogues sent on receipt of stamp.

HALF-GUINEA BOX of HOISE COLOURS for Painting Flowers, Landscapes, &c. Post-free, 10s. 6d.—MOTTE, BRUSH, and BOX, 23, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square.
Catalogues sent on receipt of stamp.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, with Rules and Directions, without the necessity of drawing, in print photographs, producing a beautiful coloured picture, perfectly fast and indestructible, and equal to the finest miniature. Price 10s. 6d. Post-free.—MOTTE, BRUSH, and BOX, 23, Cranbourn-street, and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES, MANSIONS, and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNES have Designs, containing Subjects from the Old and New Testaments, Emblematic Figures, Heraldic charters, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses, now published, 3s. 6d., post-free.—Heaton, Butler, and Baynes, New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

MARBLE CHIMNEYPIECES.—RYANS, 67, 68, and 69, respectfully invite the attention of gentlemen to their extensive Stock of the above, as well as of Stoves, Grates, and Fenders, all of the newest patterns, at very moderate charges, and to an inspection of their Show-rooms, 67, 68, and 69, King William-street, Strand.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.
West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Fish-eating Knives. Fish Carvers for Lent.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in wear to sterling silver.

	Per Dozen. £ s. d.		Strong. £ s. d.	Ivory Table Knives, full size, Balance Handles, First Quality.	Per Doz. £ s. d.
Table Forks	1 10 0	to	1 18 0	Table Knives	1 2 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0	Dessert Knives	0 15 6
Table Spoons	1 10 0	,,	1 18 0	Carvers (per pair) ..	0 6 9
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0	Kitchen Knives & Forks	0 8 6
Tea Spoons	0 12 0	,,	0 18 0

Catalogues gratis or post-free. Orders carriage-free by rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London. Established 1818.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. Large and Choice Selection, including, among other articles, Groups, Statuettes, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and foreign Porcelain; Clocks (bronze, marble, and gilt), first-class Bronzes, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
Novelty, Beauty, and Art.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, watch-stands, &c., in Italian, Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c. Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s. Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2. All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents. Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

THE PATENT CARRIAGE-SPRING MATTRESS.—This novel invention is perfectly elastic, portable, easily adjusted, and economical.—Price-lists free by post. THE GENERAL FURNISHING AND UPHOLSTERY COMPANY, LIMITED (F. J. ACRES, Manager), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.—N.B. Shippers and the Trade supplied.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 Engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete Guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage free.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHIMNEY-GLASSES, in best French Plates and double gilt. The following is a list of prices:—

Size of Plate.	Outside Measure of Frame.	Price.
40 by 30 inches ..	50 inches wide by 39 inches high ..	£2 12s.
40 by 36 inches ..	50 inches high by 45 inches wide ..	3 15s.
50 by 40 inches ..	62 inches high by 52 inches wide ..	4 15s.
60 by 50 inches ..	74 inches high by 65 inches wide ..	8 8s.

Larger sizes in proportion. Among which are several handsome pairs, 7 ft. 6 in. by 6 ft., price 15 guineas each; girandoles, from 14s. 9d. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE. Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders; it will save them much time, trouble, and expense. A ten-roomed house furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An illustrated priced catalogue sent post-free on application.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.
The next house, although in the same trade, is not connected.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS! CARPETS!!
First Brussels for Bed-rooms, 2s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Handsome Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard.
Very choice ditto, new in design, 4s. to 4s. 9d. per yard.
500 pieces of Old Patterns, 2s. 11d. per yard.
Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.
145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place, London.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requires no calendering, is both elegant and serviceable.—J. MAPLE and CO. have an immense stock of this fashionable material, suitable for Curtains or Covering for Sofas, Chairs, &c., at moderate prices.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two settees and two easy-chairs—a great improvement.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced List post-free.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

CARPETS, CURTAINS, &c.—The GENERAL FURNISHING UPHOLSTERY COMPANY are now exhibiting all the most approved novelties of the season in Carpets, Chintzes, Muslin Curtains, and every variety of textile fabric for upholstery purposes, constituting the most recherché selection in the trade. Special attention is solicited to a lot of first-class French Chintzes (last year's), reduced to one half their original price.—The General Furnishing and Upholstery Company (Limited). F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (opening to the Monument), London Bridge.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

THE GROVER and BAKER SEWING-MACHINE COMPANY hereby give public notice that they have cancelled the Agency for Great Britain hitherto held by Newton, Wilson, and Co., who will no longer be supplied with any of their Machines. The Offices and Sales-rooms of the Company are now established at 150, Regent-street, London, W.; and 59, Bold-street, Liverpool.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

BLACK SILKS. Brightness of colour rather than thickness of texture is the quality of Silks is the surest index for a good selection. Messrs. Bonnet, of Lyons, are well known to be manufacturers of the best and purest Silks, and all importations from their firm possess an intrinsic and special value both at home and abroad. Messrs. Jay, who are very large importers of these Silks, which they can and do in preference to any others, solicit an inspection of their Stock, the genuineness of which consists in the name of "Bonnet" being distinctly woven into the end of each piece, and intended as a warranty that the Silk is of their manufacture.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

PATTERNS IN BLACK SILKS.

MESSRS. JAY, having long adopted the custom of sending on order patterns of their Black Silks to any part of the kingdom, beg to assure their patrons and the general public that none but those of the best manufacture are ever issued from their establishment. They would, however, respectfully suggest that if customers, naming a definite price, would depend on a selection by the firm, their honour and credit would act as a guarantee against disappointment in the wear or colour of the material.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.

MESSRS. JAY beg to announce that they ordered from Lyons a large consignment of Black Silks during the late commercial crisis, and that their present offers are, in consequence, far below the average quotations of the Silk Market.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

DRESSES FOR THE CHANGE OF SEASON.

MESSRS. JAY have received some elegant specimens of the Spring Fashions in dress, which they much desire to submit for inspection to their numerous patrons and the public.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent street.

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article suitable for First and Family Mourning, either made-up and ready for immediate wear or materials from the piece cut by the yard, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Patterns free.
Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, at .. .. £1 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks.. .. .. .. £1 13s. 6d. ,,
The New Rich Fancy French Silks .. £2 2s. 0d. ,,
Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S. Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks (same both sides), £1 13s. 6d. Full Dress, or 2s. 9½d. the yard.—198, Regent-street.
198, Regent street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S, Patterns free.
12,000 yards of Plain Chinese Silks, very bright, all at 1s. 6d. and 1s. 9½d. per yard; worth double.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! Rich, bright, wide, and durable, from 1 guinea the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 RICH DAMASK SILK DRESSES. 2000 Striped and Fancy Silk Dresses. 1850 Checked, Plain, and Corded Silk Dresses. There are a manufacturer's clearance Stock of Sample Dresses, at greatly reduced prices, commencing at £1 19s. 6d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW ARABIAN MOHAIRS, 1 yard and 1½ yard wide, in all the new Colours for the Season. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SPRING MOHAIRS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress. 50,000 yards of the new Spring Camlets, Genappes, Grenadines, Barèges, Mexican Cloths, &c., from 8s. 9d. to 1 guinea Full Dress. The best makes. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free. Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, BARÈGES, Balzarines, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S LAST YEAR'S CAMBRICS, Brilliants, Piqués, Muslins. All the best goods. Prettier, better, and half the price of the new goods. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

MOURNING GRENADINES, MUSLINS, Barèges, Balzarines, and Mixed Fabrics, from 10s. 6d. Full Dress. The new Crape Laine, 15s. 6d. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE BEST ALPINE KID GLOVES, 1s. 6d. pair, in every size or colour, post-free for 2 extra stamps. Very best Paris, 2s. 9d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE most Ladylike DRESSES for the present and coming Season are the NEW ROYAL SILK CORDS, in black and all colours, obtainable only at BAKER and CRISP'S, at 25s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

MOHAIRS, Camlets, Mexican Cloths, &c. Patterns free.
The New Spring Mohairs, and Camlets, 8s. 9d. to 15s. 6d.; Mexican Cloths, Poplinettes, &c., 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea, Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

WOOL EMBROIDERED MUSLINS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress.—BAKER and CRISP are now selling a Manufacturer's Stock of White and Coloured Embroidered Muslin Dresses at the above price; every Dress worth double. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

WASHING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress.—Richest Silk Grenadines, for Wedding, Evening, or Walking Dresses, from 12s. 6d to 1 guinea. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SALE OF LACE, FLOUNCINGS, 18in. and 20in. wide, all at 3s. 6d. yard; were 12s. 6d. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS at Half Price. During March we shall sell Black Lace Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas for 12s. 6d., 19s. 6d., and 25s. 6d. Samples free.
BAKER and CRISP.

CURTAINS! CURTAINS! CURTAINS! Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP have the cheapest stock of Muslin, Lace, and Leno Curtains in London, measuring from 3½ to 4½ yards long, from 6s. 9d. to 2 guineas the Pair.

THE NEW PETTICOATINGS. Patterns free.
Camlet, Linen, and Madapolams, all washing, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. 3d. a yard, at BAKER and CRISP'S.

2 YARDS WIDE, THE UNTEARABLE

BLACK GRENADINES, Barèges, Tamatayes; also the New White and Black Llamas, 2 yards wide, for Shawls, Mantles, or Dresses, very cheap. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP.

SILK GRENADINES. Patterns free. Plain, Striped, Checked, and Embroidered, for Dinner, Evening, or Walking Dresses, from 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MANTLE and JACKET CLOTHS of all kinds, from 1s. 11½d per yard. Also a large assortment of woollen goods for gentlemen's and boy's wear at very moderate prices; also Fancy Flannels for Shirts.
CHARLES MEEKING and CO., 111, Hatton-garden, London.

SPECIAL NOTICE!!
Now selling, upwards of 5000

WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES, in Three Lots.
Lot 1—7s. 9d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 2—8s. 9d. ,, Eight Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3—9s. 9d. ,, Nine Guineas for Twenty.
Being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of White Dresses ever offered.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3½ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 27 inches wide. Check Silks, £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILK STOCKS. PETER ROBINSON has just concluded the purchase of two manufacturers' stocks of Rich French Silks. Prices from 2 to 5½ guineas the Full Dress. These Stocks are confidently recommended, and worthy ladies' special attention.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR EARLY SPRING. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Foult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 15s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST IMPORTED,

5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS (Both Sides Alike), including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,

TARLATAN BALL-DRESSES. Numerous Designs, on Black, White, or Coloured grounds, 12s. 9d. the extra Full Dress (fine quality). Plain Tarlatans, all colours, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE

RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress. Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new. An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF FOREIGN FABRICS FOR

EARLY SPRING DRESSES. The "Honeycomb Poplinette," 35s. the extra Full Dress. The "Mexican Cloth" (new colours), 12s. 6d. to 25s. And a variety of other cheap and useful Dresses ranging from 10s. to 31s. 6d.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in

PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses. An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPRING SEASON, 1865.

KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that they are now showing their first delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered before the late advance in prices, and 30 per cent under the present market value. Ladies who wish to avoid paying the advance price should make their Spring purchases this month.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks, £1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks, £1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks, £1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains, £1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks, £1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks, £2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France, £2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques, £3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.

Black Ducapes	£1 7s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Black Gros Grains	1 10s. 6d.	,,
Black Corded Silks	1 15s. 6d.	,,
Black Reversible Broché Silks ..	1 17s. 6d.	,,
Black Drap de France	2 2s. 6d.	,,
Black Drap de Lyon	2 5s. 6d.	,,
Widows' Silks	2 10s. 6d.	,,
Richest Black Moire Antiques ..	£3 3s. 6d.	,,

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street, equal to any produced this year.
Finest Jaconet Muslins .. .. 5s. 9d. the Full Dress.
Finest Organdie Muslins .. .. 7s. 6d. ,,
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING FABRICS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street,

Marle Glacés	8s. 9d.	the Full Dress.
Chéné Cashmeres	8s. 9d.	,,
Shepherd's Plaid Challis ..	12s. 6d.	,,
Chéné Mexican Cloth ..	12s. 6d.	,,
French Lawns	12s. 6d.	,,
Chéné Satin Cloth	13s. 9d.	,,
French Poplinettes	13s. 9d.	,,
French Camlets	13s. 9d.	,,
Marle Poplinettes	17s. 6d.	,,
Chéné Poplinettes	19s. 6d.	,,
Silk Warp Serges	£1 10s. 6d.	,,

Patterns post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street, London.

GREAT FIRE IN LEICESTER-SQUARE. STAGG and MANTLE respectfully inform their numerous Customers and the Public that their Premises will be reopened on MONDAY, the 13th inst., when the SALE of the SALVAGE STOCK will commence. In consequence of the injury part of the premises have sustained, and for want of room, that portion only of the Stock mentioned below will be offered until further notice.

Silks.	Dresses.	Prints.
Shawls.	Linens.	Flannels.
Mantles.	Calicoes.	Blankets.

Doors open at Ten o'Clock.

FAMILY MOURNING.—IMPORTANT to FAMILIES. Families requiring supplies of FIRST or DEEP MOURNING will derive the most important advantages by making their purchases
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET,
the largest and most economical
Mourning Warehouse in the Kingdom.
Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses in the most correct taste can be obtained ready for instant wear; also, every description of goods by the yard.
Goods are sent to any part of the country for selection free, accompanied by a superior-fitting dressmaker if desired.
Address Peter Robinson, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London,
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse.

BLACK SILKS.—PETER ROBINSON, BLACK SILK MERCER BY APPOINTMENT, would invite the special attention of purchasers of Black Silks to the superior make and qualities of his Black Silks and the very reasonable prices at which they are sold.
Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 10 guineas.
Patterns of every make free by post on application.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse.
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILK DRESSES, the Skirts made up, trimmed in the most correct taste with crape or with fancy trimmings, in the largest variety, and at the most reasonable prices, At PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street.

NEW SILKS, DRESS FABRICS, &c.

GRANT and GASK invite an inspection of their large collection of new French Fancy SILKS, rich Silk Robes, Court Trains, Satins in all the new colours, Moire Antiques, made-up Skirts, Mantles, Shawls, Evening Dresses, Organdie Muslins, &c.
Several very cheap lots of rich Silk Robes and Fancy Silks, from 2½ to 4½ guineas Full Dress of 14 yards; greatly under value.
Richest Moire Antiques, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
The Made-up Skirt Department contains a beautiful collection of Novelties for the Season.
Odd dress lengths of rich French Silks, very cheap, from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard, full width.
Several hundred pieces of French Brilliantines and Printed Cambrics much below the usual prices.
PATTERNS FORWARDED FREE.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS, 10s. 6d. and 18s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"Learned in the art of petticoats."—Le Follet.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

EMPRESS CRINOLINES, 8s. 6d., 11s. 6d., and 15s. 6d.
"Beautiful shapes from French models."—Court Circular.
"A celebrated maker of Jupons."—Art-Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE, late Philpott, 37, Piccadilly.

EBONITE CRINOLINES, 15s. 6d. and 17s. 6d.
"Made from indiarubber—a new invention."—Queen.
ADDLEY BOURNE, late Philpott, 37, Piccadilly.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

FORD'S COLOURED EUREKA SHIRTS, Six for 30s. Superior quality, and made expressly to measure; the new patterns sent to select from on receipt of three stamps.
R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free. Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a call, will find it a great assistance. It contains over forty drawings of shirts, shirt-collars, &c. All the new fashions are to be found in it.
R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	£4 14 6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6 6 0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8 8 0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled..	11 11 0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12 12 0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes ..	14 14 0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped ..	13 13 0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance.. ..	19 19 0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE JEWELLERY.—A very elegant STOCK of GOLD CHAINS, 18s. to 20 gs.; Gentlemen's Albert Chains, 21s. to 18 gs.; Gold Brooches, 20s. to 15 gs.; Gold Bracelets, 50s. to £20; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s., 15s., and 20s.; Gem ditto, 12s. 6d. to 20 gs.; Gold Earrings, 12s. 6d. to 5 gs. per pair. Gold Lockets, 10s. to 16 gs. Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 10 gs.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 148, Regent-street. Old Chains, Jewellery, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones purchased or taken in exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds reset. List of Prices free. Shippers supplied.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Braiding patterns for dresses (5 yards) 20 stamps.—E. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

DIAMOND HAIR DUST. PIESSE and LUBIN'S. Price 3s. 6d. box; by post, 6d. extra. Sprinkling Diamond Dust on the hair is now la mode. It produces the most charming effect.
Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

THE CONGRESS OF FLOWERS. PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME, made only at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, full directions in the new and beautiful art of getting-up the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

FORTY YEARS of success have proved that nothing can equal OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA for restoring and strengthening the Hair, Whiskers, or Moustaches. Price 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per bottle.—C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand.

HAIR CURLING FLUID.—248, High Holborn, London.—ALEX. ROSS'S CURLING FLUID is for producing immediately a graceful curl to either ladies' or gentlemen's hair. 3s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., or per post for 54 and 144 stamps.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL.—This elegant and fragrant Oil is universally in high repute for its unprecedented success in promoting the growth, restoring, and beautifying the Human Hair. Its invaluable properties have obtained the patronage of Royalty, the Nobility, and the Aristocracy throughout Europe. Price, 3s. 6d., 7s., 10s. 6d. (equal to four small) and 21s. per bottle. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for "Rowlands' Macassar Oil."

BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING-INK is by far the best for marking household linen, wearing apparel, &c. Price 1s. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c.—NOTICE. The genuine bears the address, "10, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.," upon the label.

PURVEYOR TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." No connection with anyone of the same name.

IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT in ARTIFICIAL TEETH, and great Reduction in Prices. Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon Dentist, 9, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole inventor of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, on a soft, elastic, chemically-prepared indiarubber gum. No wires or unsightly fastenings are required; they are more natural, durable, and comfortable than any yet introduced. They are self-adhesive, and render support to the adjoining teeth. Consultations free. Observe—No connection with anyone of the same name.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS immediately relieve the most violent fit of coughing. They have a pleasant taste. At 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box, by all Druggists.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

LADIES' ABDOMINAL BELTS, for Debility, Pregnancy, &c. Prices and directions for self-measurement sent free. ELAM'S improved Enemas, with extra pipes for all purposes.—Elam, 196, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA.

THE MOCK DOCTOR (Le Médecin Malgré Lui). By CH. GOUNOD (Composer of "Faust"). Performed at the Royal English Opera, Covent-garden, with the greatest success. The Overture and Airs from this charming work, 3s. each. The following are just published:—

THE OVERTURE. For Pianoforte. Price 4s.; Duet, 5s.

AVA.—FAVOURITE AIR. For the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

DUET.—FANTASIA. On favourite airs, including "The Cloche." For Pianoforte. Price 4s.

LA CHEMISE.—MADGE WILDFIRE'S SONG. Arranged for the Pianoforte. 2s.

LA SERENADE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

M. W. GOODMAN.—SOFT AND LOW (Sung by Cord). Transcribed for the Pianoforte. 3s.

SO WANDER THROUGH THE WORLD. Sung by Misses Poole and Fanny Holland. 3s.

O! YOUTHFUL HEARTS. Sung by Mr. Aynsley Cook. 3s.

FRIEND IN A CAGE. Sung by Mr. Haigh. Price 3s. 6d.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE. Sung by Miss Poole. 3s. 6d.

SOFT AND LOW. The thrilling song. Sung by Mr. Cord. Price 3s.

QUADRILLE. By Camille Schubert. Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz." Solo or Duet, 4s. each net. Solo or Duet, Illustrated, 5s. each. Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A New Set of Favourite Dancing Reminiscences. By CHARLES D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards" and "Mabel" Waltzes; and Bandmaster of the 1st Royal Regiment. Price Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ, by CHARLES D'ALBERT, Composer of the "Mabel" and "Margaret Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 5s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE LIFE. A new set of Waltzes, on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. By A. GODFREY. Illustrated with Portrait of Mlle. Marguerite Life, from "Faust," containing Portraits of Patti, Mario, Tenco, &c. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A New Set of Quadrilles on airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Band-music, &c. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the 1st Regiment. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.; Solo or Duet, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Military Band, 10s.; brass Band, 7s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STEIROP-CUP QUADRILLE. Just published, New Quadrille on favourite Airs. Admirably adapted for dancing. By CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. The popular new set of Lancers accompanied all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HUNT QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille, on popular hunting melodies. By A. F. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Scots Fusilier Guards. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By CHARLES COOTE, Composer of the Steirop Quadrille, &c. Gratuitously Illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Military Band, 10s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO. A collection of graceful and ennobling voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of students, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains Twelve Pieces (some by favourite voluntaries, including one Fugue, Fantasia, or Movement of importance. Price 4s. each; or in three vols., one hundred pages in each, 10s. each. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BELLAGIO. Moreau for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant and arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by WAL. BACHMANN. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Requiem"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY. Handel's charming song, sung by Sunday-Out satisfied for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.

FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BENEDICT'S NEW PIECE.

BENEDICT'S SEA BREEZES.—Brilliant Waltz for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S GWENDOLINE. Chanson de Bonheur for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S NATHLIE (The Sleeping Syren). A Sketch for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HAYDN'S IMPERIAL MASS. (No. 3, in D.) Published this day. This celebrated Mass, arranged in a complete form for the pianoforte by Henry Smart, uniform with his arrangements of the "Stabat Mater" and Twelfth Mass of Mozart. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S 28 FOUR-PART SONGS. Now ready, in one volume, 28 Four-Part Songs with English Words. Also, for Choral Societies, the same work in twelve Numbers, 2s. each.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

SIGNOR ARDITI'S NEW SONGS. This new and already popular Song, by the Author of "Il Bacio," is published in the following various forms, in each every taste:—

1. In Italian (C and D) ... ... 3s.
2. In English ... ... 3s.
3. For Soprano ... ... 3s.
4. As a Polka ... ... 3s.

Each of the above and everywhere.—BOOSEY and CO.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW VALSE ARIETTE may be had both in Italian and English, and for the Pianoforte Solo.

1. Il Mormorio d'Amore. ... ... 3s.
2. The Message of Love. ... ... 3s.
3. Valse Ariette. ... ... 4s.

To be had of all Musicsellers.—BOOSEY and CO.

FOURTH EDITION OF

CAPRERA, by FORBES, Chanson Napolitaine for Pianoforte. Forbes's most popular piece. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

Just published,

CASTELLUCIA. By FORBES. Second Chanson Napolitaine, and companion piece to "Capuca." BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE, a charming little piece of 4 pages. Price 3s. 6d. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MME. ARABELLA GODDARD'S TWO NEW PIECES, Lindsay Sloper "Spanish Dance," and Rimbault Rogers' "Souvenir de Schubert," two new Fantasias performed by Mme. Arabella Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song in the author's best style. Published this day. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co.

FORBES'S ROSAMUNDA NOCTURNE, in the style of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," and one of the best pieces of the popular author of "Rappelle toi," "Capreca," &c. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

FORBES'S MARYLAND, a most stirring Pianoforte March on the sustained Confederate national air, "Maryland, my Maryland."

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FORBES'S GIOJOSO GALOP, a very showy piece on a most attractive subject. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MME. OURY'S SOUVENIRS D'ENDINGTON. New and brilliant Fantasia on Two Favourite Airs, performed by the Composer at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MME. OURY'S ADIEU AUX ROBIN GRAY and BONNIE DUNDEE. A very popular and showy piece. BOOSEY and Co.

MADAME OURY'S BRIGHTON GALOP. A new composition, dedicated to the Ladies of Brighton, in the author's best style. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ADOLPH GOLLMICK'S MARGUERITE and WINIFRED. Two new and original pieces, by the Author of "Lurline," "Les Cloches," &c. Price 3s. each. Published this day, price 3s. each, by BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. An elegant Pianoforte Piece, on Lady Scott's favourite Song. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S CUJUS ANIMAM. HENRY SMART'S ADNUS DEI. A simple and devotional arrangement of the well-known BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ASCHER'S SOUVENIR ITALIEN, a short and melodious Pianoforte piece, on a very beautiful but unknown air by Verdi. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

I ALWAYS FEARED A MARRIED LIFE. By J. L. HATTON. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, and Mr. Lawrence Kenney. London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Cheapside.

GENTLE FLOWER, CANST THOU TELL! Madame Sherrington's popular Ballad in F. In Hatton's new Opera, "The Brides of Venice," sung by Mr. Santley. Words written by Miss Mary Mark. "Sweet and Plaintive in tone."—Daily Telegraph.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL.

I DO NOT ASK TO PRESS THAT CHEEK. New Ballad. By Miss GABRIEL, Author of "The Skipper and the Boy." Sung by Mr. Lawrence. BOOSEY and Co.

BOOSEY'S MODEL PIANOFORTE TUTOR, in 4 parts, complete, in addition to the Instruction Book, contains 36 Easy Exercises by Ries, 25 Exercises by Cramer, 21 Lessons by Pleyel, 8 Fantasias by Dussek and Hinkley Richards, and an article on Playing the Piano, by Thalberg.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. — Just published, BOOSEY and Co.'s new and accurate edition of Mozart's Pianoforte Sonatas, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by Dr. Rimbault, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music, in one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, the same work, with Portrait of Mozart, and Memoir by Holmes, in one vol., cloth gilt, price 15s.; or, in two vols., cloth gilt, price 21s. Uniform with Boosey and Co.'s prices edition of Beethoven's Sonatas. This edition of Mozart's Sonatas is the only one which contains the elegant alternative movements.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS, 14s.—BOOSEY and Co.'S complete edition of Beethoven's Pianoforte Sonatas, printed from the original plates, in one vol., paper cover, 14s. Also, with Memoir and Portrait, in two vols., cloth gilt, price 21s. Uniform with Boosey and Co.'s edition of Mozart's Sonatas.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini), complete for the Pianoforte, price 3s. An easy arrangement in which the original parts are preserved, unaccompanied with great pianoforte difficulties. 4th edition.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SELECTION of TWENTY SACRED SONGS by the most famous composers, in one vol., handsomely bound, cloth, gilt edges, 5s.

SELECTION of TWENTY SACRED SONGS by the most famous composers, in one vol., cloth, gilt edges, 5s. 6d.

SELECTION of TWENTY SACRED SONGS by the most famous composers, in one vol., cloth, gilt edges, 5s. 6d.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SIXTY GLEES for HALF-A-CROWN, in BOOSEY'S NATIONAL EDITION, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, at cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TWELVE SONGS of the AMERICAN WAR, in "Boosey Musical Cabinet," No. 94, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, price 2s. 6d. Also, in Boosey's Musical Stocks, each 6d. (post-free, 7d.), as follows:—

FEDERAL SONGS. CONFEDERATE SONGS.
Marching Along, Father Abraham. Dixie.
Glory Hallelujah. Bonnie Blue Flag.
Stand up for Uncle Sam. Is my country's call.
Rally round the Flag. Old King Cotton.
The Yankee Chair. Dixie's Land.
Battle-cry of Freedom. A Native Rivah.

NEW MUSIC.

SIX EASTER HYMNS, 6d. SIX GOOD-FRIDAY HYMNS, 6d. The two together, in Four Parts and Organ or Piano Accompaniment.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S PART-SONG MISCELLANY. Just published, price 6d., No. 1 of BOOSEY'S PART-SONG MISCELLANY, containing Twelve Part-Songs and Anthems each. A list gratis. The following authors' Part-Songs may be had also in Rolling Part-Song Volumes:—Boosey's Six Part-Songs, 1s.; T. Haines's Six Part-Songs, 1s.; J. Barnby's Six Four-Part Songs, 1s.; Boosey's Part-Song Book, 2s. 6d.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Subscribers in this Library paying Two Guineas per annum have the use of Fifteen Volumes at the same time in town, or twenty-four in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a Guinea Musical Publication. Prospectuses, with Terms and List of Works, All the New Music, Vocal and Instrumental, which comprises also a complete collection of the best Standard Works. Furnishers, postpaid, on application.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, post-free. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—JOHN JOHNSON, 23, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.

FLEETING THOUGHTS, by TUCHO, price 3s., is charming, and daily acquiring popularity.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECE.

MATILDA ROSE. Reverie. By MULLER. Price 4s. This piece is accordingly graceful, without being difficult.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. 6d. This celebrated Galop eclipses all the others, and is the rage in fashionable circles.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. "Waltzed Round" and "Encored" Everywhere. Price 4s., or Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will sure to take its place with the celebrated "Polly Perkins" for some time to come.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

COOTE'S PRINCESS OF WALES. Price 4s., or Orchestra, 5s. This Quadrille has become quite the rage of the season.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VERY DANCEABLE.

COOTE'S KING'S FISHER POLKA. Price 3s. The best Polka ever written.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST GUARDS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful illustration of the Game in colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW MERRY QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC. On the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Herrmann, at the Royalty Theatre. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

Novelty Tune.—Price 6d.

COOTE'S Illustrated Interval at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S ROYAL ALFRED BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s., or Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s. "The Rage of London." "So Early in the Morning." "The Cure," and other popular Airs. Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. Played at every Concert of the season.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S DÉBUTANTE VALSE. Price 4s. With lovely Illustration.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO,

MY TRUE LOVE HAS MY HEART ONLY, price 3s. 6d. by SHIRLEY, is greatly admired.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONGS.

THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 3s. 6d., is a most charming song, and the more charming chorus we have ever listened to.—Review.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WERRY-GO-ROUND; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 3s. 6d., is the best comic song published.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG,

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 3s. Illustrated.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SHIRLEY SONG.

THE WEST-END BOYS. Price 2s. 6d. This is a rapid song.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Great Success.

HE SHE, AND HIS POSTMAN. Price 3s. J. L. Toole's new song, sung by him nightly at the Adelphi.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VANCE'S GREAT SONG.

SWEET JENNY, OH! WHERE CAN SHE BE? Price 3s. Is always encored.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.—IF'S AND AND'S. Price 3s. THE BOY AND GINGERBREAD STALL. Price 3s. Illustrated. These last created a perfect furore.—D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwin-place, W.

£40 A YEAR. By J. E. ROE. Price 2s. 6d. Sung with immense success Comic Song. Easy, telling, and extremely funny. Sung at the Pavilion.

D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwin-place, W.

THEY'VE LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. By FRANK ROSS. Sung by Charley Mascotte. Price 2s. 6d. A beautiful plaintive ballad.

D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwin-place, W.

R. COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and dedicated to the Jolly Dogs of London. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

R. COOTE'S ORPHEUS GALOP. Founded on Melodies in Offenbach's celebrated Opera. Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.

D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre. Solo or Duet, 4s. Orchestra. Illustrated with a view of the Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight.—D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS; or we are all Jolly Dogs; Such a Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Convivial Song, sung at the great Vance at the Crystal Palace and the Strand Musick Hall. Free for 4 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Baldwin-place.

NEW MUSIC.

POPULAR SONGS BY THE NEW OPERA.

LARA.—TO A FAR DISTANT PAST, 2s. 6d. THE MERRY HEART SINGS, 2s. 6d. M'KEY LARA MARCHED, 2s. FROM THAT DREAD PAST, 2s. 6d. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—THE ARAB SONG. Sung by Mr. Santley. "The song of the entire work."—Daily Telegraph. "The principal hit of the opera."—Times. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA. By A. MAILLART. Complete for Voice and Piano, bound and illustrated, 15s.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.—Time.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Fantasia for the Pianoforte. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—Mdme. OURY'S Fantasia for the Pianoforte. Post-free for half price. Also, a set of moderate difficulty. Price 2s.; half price post-free.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—RUBE'S Transcription for the Pianoforte. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—The Favourite Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, by BRINLEY RICHARDS, Mdme. OURY, and CHARLES COOTE. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA QUADRILLES. By COOTE. Price 4s., or Orchestra, 5s. LARA VALSES. Price 4s. Illustrations from the new Opera.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA'S LOVE WALTZES. By F. MUSGRAVE. On the popular Song. Played everywhere. Price 4s.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SIDNEY'S New Song, MONCONTOUR, Poetry by Lord MACAULAY, PATTISON and SONS, Music-sellers, Hanover, Chester, and York. Free for cartoon stamps.

FAR MORE, STRETTON.

GRANDE FANTAISIE sur "GOD SAVE THE KING," for PIANOFORTE, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. LA FOLIETTE. Grand Valse de Salon, half price, 2s. 6d. ANNIE LAURIE. Fantasia. 3s.

METZLER and CO., 33, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL & ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments.

Per Month.
No. 1 and 2 One Row ... ... 10s. 6d.
3. Three Stops ... ... 15s. 0d.
4. Four Stops ... ... 18s. 0d.
5. Four Stops ... ... 21s. 0d.
6. Fourteen Stops ... ... 25s. 0d.
7. Fourteen Stops, Expression Action ... 30s. 0d.
8. Twenty-three Stops ... ... 42s. 0d.
11. Fourteen Stops ... ... 25s. 0d.
12. Eight Stops ... ... 15s. 0d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards ... ... 21s. 0d.
14. Ten Stops, Two Keyboards ... ... 30s. 0d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

No. 1, Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells ... 42s. 0d.
2. Four Stops ... ... 52s. 6d.
3. Five Stops ... ... 63s. 0d.

N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on Instruments taken for the season.

In the case of purchase purchasing and paying for an Instrument at the rate of Three Guineas per month, the Hire-money fee for hire will be given up to the end of the Season.

Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (Model), the instrument which the Prince Napoleon used at very crowded Pianofortes, of small size, the full compass, check action, and the best possible quality of tone. Price 50 guineas. CHAPPELL'S NEW PIANOFORTE, with check action, the best and cheapest Pianofortes, with check action and all the latest improvements. Price, in rosewood, 25 guineas. A great variety may be seen at

CHAPPELL and Co.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To announce perfecting the Model Cottage Pianofortes, which have been brought to the highest degree of excellence yet attained by any maker, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as that used in the Grand Pianofortes, and the tone is remarkably full and sympathetic, and the workmanship artistic and elaborate in the cases. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to the Grand Pianofortes, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD, the three Pianofortes recommended by Mr. Hullah, and the newest models from celebrated makers, including the bijou Pianoforte, and Harmoniums and Harmoniphons for sale or hire.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, with patent check action, with patent sound-board, with patent metal plate, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this pianoforte to the notice of their patronés at or about this same price, whether new or second-hand.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM ORGAN, with Two Rows of Vibrators, Sixteen Stops, and all varieties of Tone and Expression. Illustrated Lagrue and Pamphlet and Harmonium Instructions gratis.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with Two Rows of Vibrators, 16 Stops, 5 octaves. These Instruments are known in personal reputation to all other Instruments at the price. Lists gratis.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, usually (if not quite) as good as new, at moderate reductions from the list prices.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 2 rows of vibrators, 5 octaves, with Venetian swell, and the knee action to the expression movement. Every description may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S HARMONIUMS are of the highest description, from 15 to 110 guineas, in every possible variety. The College Harmonium, with 16 feet pedal organ stop, 75 guineas. The Model Harmonium, with 16 feet pedal organ stop, 110 guineas. Illustrated Catalogue gratis.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MIDDLE-SIZED PIANO, 7 octaves, in handsome rosewood case, full compass. The tone is pronounced unrivalled at this price. Drawings before the public. The best and rare are alike cautious, and the workmanship is of the highest order.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant rosewood case, with trichord throughout. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure quality that especially distinguishes the productions of this firm.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. The workmanship and finish of this Pianoforte is equal, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full Compass, with all the latest improvements, warranted for hot climates, and to keep well in tune. Two Guineas, with case, tuck and key, 3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great makers, for SALE, HIRE, or SCHOOL SYSTEM, Music Warehouse, 5, Aggrandise-street, Hyde Park-corner, next the Marylebone. Lowest terms for the system.

THE RIGHT HON. W. N. MASSEY.

THE recently-appointed Finance Minister of India, the Right Hon. William Nathaniel Massey, whose Portrait we wesgrave, was born in 1809, and married, in 1835, a daughter of the Rev. J. Orde. Although from the time he entered public life his career has been comparatively rapid, he did not enter on that vocation at a very early age. He became a member of the Inner Temple in 1826, but was not called to the Bar until 1846, when he joined the Western Circuit, and for a short time practised in the Court of Bankruptcy. In 1852 he was appointed Recorder of Portsmouth, and was in the July of that year returned to Parliament for the borough of Newport, Isle of Wight. Though he was never prominent in the debates in the house, he devoted himself to its business, and had attained such a position as an able and careful member that soon after the formation of Lord Palmerston's first Ministry—viz., in August, 1855, he was appointed Under-Secretary for the Home Department, which office he filled until March, 1858, when the Government of Lord Derby succeeded to office. On the return of Lord Palmerston to power, in June, 1859, Mr. Massey was selected for the important office of Chairman of Committees, which he held until he resigned it the other day on being appointed the Financial Member of the Council of India. The manner in which he discharged the duties of his Parliamentary employment was so complete, that few if any Chairmen of Committees have obtained such a legitimate influence with the House; and especially in regard to matters connected with private business, his recommendations were accepted as if they were judicial decisions. Last year, when an attempt was made to remodel the mode of conducting proceedings on private bills by the erection of that tribunal which has just commenced its working, and which is known as "The Referee," Mr. Massey volunteered to add to his already sufficiently onerous duties the duty of presiding over and modelling that body; and he has been a subject of regret that circumstances have prevented his participating in the first trial of a system which is of the nature of an experiment, towards the success of which he would most probably have materially contributed. It should be stated that at the general election, in April, 1859, Mr. Massey was returned for the borough of Salford, and thus became politically connected with the largest constituency in the country which is represented by a single member. Although professing very liberal opinions, being an advocate for a £6 franchise in boroughs and vote by ballot, Mr. Massey was averse to the extinction of all small boroughs, and he took a very marked part in opposing the reform bill which was introduced by the present Government in 1860. That measure had been subjected to very severe criticism even from most liberal members; and at a peculiar juncture Mr. Massey struck into the discussion with a speech in which he elaborately dissected the details of the bill, and proceeded, as it was felt, as nearly as possible to demonstrate that the measure could not work; but, at any rate, it was generally considered that his speech gave the coup-de-grace to the bill, which was soon after withdrawn. In regard to his general opinions, it may be stated that Mr. Massey was in favour of what may be designated a good system of national education, and of a rigid economy in the administration of the public expenditure, consistently, however, with the maintenance of the efficiency of our naval and military establishments. Mr. Massey is the author of a work entitled "Common Sense versus Common Law," and also of a "History of England under George III.," by which he achieved some reputation as a constitutional historian.

THE RIGHT HON. W. N. MASSEY, THE NEW FINANCE MINISTER OF INDIA

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE SOUTH LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE Prince of Wales visited the South London Working Men's Industrial Exhibition, at the Lambeth Baths, on Thursday week. His Royal Highness arrived between one and two o'clock in the afternoon. He was accompanied by Baron Brunnow, the Russian Ambassador, and attended by Colonel Grey, the Equerry on duty. He was received at the doors by his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Sir C. W. Dilke, the Rev. Newman Hall, and Mr. G. M. Murphy, the hon. secretary. Although the Prince's visit was understood to be of a private rather than of a public nature, a large number of visitors, besides the keepers of the various stalls, were present. The Prince did not leave the exhibition till past three o'clock. After he came down from the gallery he signed his name, as did the Archbishop of

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE SOUTH LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION AT LAMBETH BATHS.

Canterbury, in a book brought to him for that purpose. Three cheers were then given for the Prince, and the first verse of "God save the Queen" was sung, the Rev. Newman Hall leading off. His Royal Highness, having bowed gracefully to the assemblage, retired. He afterwards expressed to the honorary secretary, Mr. Murphy, the great pleasure which it had afforded him to visit the exhibition, and his hearty wish that industrial displays of this character might multiply and flourish exceedingly. As he was passing through the exhibition, his Royal Highness's attention was attracted to a very handsome perambulator. This child's carriage is supposed to be drawn by a couple horses in front, and the legs of which are sported by a lord and trot by a lever—a toy above all others likely to delight an infant. The exhibitor, carrying the Prince into great raptures of delight at this article, requested permission to present it to him; but the Prince declined the offer with a gracious smile, at the same time expressing that he should be happy to purchase it for the use of Prince Albert Victor. A large crowd assembled in Westminster-road to view the arrival and departure of the Prince, and he was loudly cheered.

THE ISLAND OF HAYTI. WEST INDIES.

We have been favoured by an esteemed correspondent of this Journal, who lately proceeded to the West Indies and Central America, upon an expedition of a purely scientific and commercial character, with a series of illustrations of the scenery of that region. Two of his first sketches we this week engrave. The port of Samel, which supplies the subject of these illustrations, is situated on the southern side of Hayti. It is the centre of the trade of a large district, and, during the French possession of the island, was a place of considerable importance. At present it is in a very dilapidated condition; the exports, however—chiefly coffee, cocoa, and logwood—from the cultivation requiring little trouble, and being just adapted to the taste of the negro, are still of some amount. Hayti is a large island, as it is of poor quality; and even the little labour required for its cultivation is the basis of an unfortunate system. Free trade and no restrictions placed upon foreign commerce at Hayti, and no white man is allowed to possess real property. The government is carried on in the name of the people, and by name Hayti is governed by a King, an Emperor, or a President. The island lies between the 17th and 20th parallels of north latitude and the 68th and 75th degrees of west longitude. It is 390 miles long by from sixty to 150 broad, and contains 29,000 square miles of most fertile land, capable of obtaining an elevation of 8500 ft. The population is said to amount to 800,000; but one fifth part of this is the most that can be estimated. In 1650 the French and Spaniards divided the country between them; the former taking the western, and retaining it to the present day; the latter the eastern end, and christening their portion San Domingo. After the breaking out of the French Revolution the negroes rose, the French and Spaniards were destroyed to a man; and in November, 1803, after more than ten years of conflict, the blacks remained the undisputed possessors of the soil. In 1822 the government made a feeble attempt of the Spaniards to reconquer the eastern portion, called San Domingo. The Spaniards are said to have lost 10,000 men in the enterprise, and they could only hold four places on the coast—namely, the capital (San Domingo), Santiago, Puerto Plata, and Monte Christi. All their communications were kept up by sea, as the guerillas swarmed in such numbers that it was necessary for a party of Spaniard to be found beyond a mile from the lines. The great object of the Spanish Government was to secure possession of the Samana, or east Bay of Samana, which they have constantly feared the descent of a body of Yankee filibusters upon Cuba. By the last accounts, however, it seems that the Spaniards have given up all idea of any attempt on San Domingo.

Our other illustration represents the landing of passengers on the pier at Jacmel. The officer, shaved bursting with pride and dignity, stands in front of his two men, who for the time being are quiet until it has pleased the authorities to grant permission. The military costumes are somewhat mixed. One of the men wears a shako and peg and a shoe on the other; his comrade is less fortunate, having only a slipper on one foot, and that a carpet slipper, the one being without a barrel and the other so thoroughly rusted as to be utterly useless. With old shakos and worse coats and trousers, the many glittering ornaments (the brass of which, based on sardine tins in a special favorite), such is the motley array of the Haytian soldiers.

PARIS IMPROVEMENTS: THE NEW MARCHÉ DU TEMPLE.

In a former volume of this Journal we published a view of the demolitions in the Old Temple, necessitated by the improvements accomplished in its neighborhood, and by its state of decay, since it had been for more than eighty years in a condition of overcrowded occupation. The new building, of which we give an illustration on page 220, has been erected on the old site, and preserves in its general aspect the Halles Centrales and other new markets, for the construction of which the Imperial Government has set the example, by a judicious combination of iron and glass. Brickwork, however, has been employed for the lower 10 ft. of the exterior walls, and the construction of the glazed portions separated at regular distances by decorative iron columns. The entire market consists of four pavilions, surmounted at the point of junction by a circular dome of corresponding form. A nuance composed of two others peculiarly separated from the remainder of the market by a roadway, forms the entrance to which the establishment through which it passes.

The business carried on in the new market is the same as that hitherto characteristic of the Parisian Temple, the great emporium of secondhand articles of clothing. Furniture, ironmongery, shoe shops, arranged banner-wise, display their theatrical costumes, elegant shawls and clocks; bales, bundles, jugs, bottles, and packages innumerable, in the most captivating manner, so as to attract the attention of the bargain-hunters who frequent this rendezvous of abandoned toilets. The monetary requirements of the new and more extensive traffic, the harvest of the well-bitumined alleys is five feet in width, and a principal avenue of the same is twenty feet wide. Running east and west, thus forming a most favourable contrast with the extremely narrow and often dirty passages of the former establishment. The ventilation is excellent, and the shopkeepers will be protected in summer time from the direct effects of the heat. Provision is made in case of complaint to facilitate the means of recognition, each shop bears a number, and on a metal plate is inscribed the name and the name of the occupying marchande.

The Marché du Temple has been constructed at the expense of a company, who, after having obtained the concession, confided the plans and direction of the new edifice to M. de Mérindol, a government architect of eminence. Our View of the Marché du Temple is taken from the Rue du Temple, and is from a drawing by M. Thorigny.

"BABY'S CORNER."

A double set of incentives seem desirable in every work of art. There should be some fine superficial display as to a general appearance and intention; there should be some scope for memory or imagination to supply what is required by his favourite "associations," or by the true system of aesthetics (e would, we think, be advanced as a leading proposition that every picture is in its nature incomplete until, by its nature, if not relatively to the human mind. Of course, in every attempt to reproduce the past the artist can only hope to give a semblance of probable reality, and that especially the case when, as in the picture we have engraved, he draws upon for some one of the almost numberless incidents of history incidents of life. But, for this very reason, such a theme is in many ways all the more favourable. Leaving the mind to supply in the first place, is the subject, as depicted, consonant with our generalised ideas of life and its conditions? We examine the glittering grain submitted to our view to see if it be identical with the pure gold of the mine of experience. Then we compare the representation with all we remember of the historical period indicated. In this case, we place the simulated antique side by side with the real; and, finally, if satisfied both of the general truth and the particular resemblance, we give the reins to speculation, as we should in inspecting some authentic relic of a bygone time. On the not unreasonable assumption that this pleasant latitude is justified by Mr. Wyburd's picture, we invite the reader to form some theory to account for the Puritan-like dress of this fair young mother (or is it the nurse only?), and its apparent incongruity with the lavish painted glass, oak carving, and trellised window which might well belong to some Old-English baronial and therefore presumably Cavalier hall, and which will also explain why this picturesque and sunny end bay of the old house has come to be considered baby's own particular corner. Here are materials for many a romance—scope for instance, for conjecture as to "the Merry Peak." Everyone will remember how the Puritan Bridgnorth's infant daughter was tended by the Cavalier Lady Peveril. But we will make no further suggestion, which might only interfere with the reader's free exercise of his own fancy.

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

In the Numbers of our Journal for the 31st and 28th of January we gave some illustrations of the history of British naval architecture, selected from the great collection of models in that museum, and, lately removed from Somerset House to the South Kensington Museum. In continuation of this subject, we have this week engraved four more of those models, the most interesting than those already represented in our pages.

The first is that of the celebrated and unfortunate Royal George, the flagship of Admiral Kempenfelt, which rank in the harbour at Spithead, on the 29th of August, 1782, with her crew, numbering about 800 men, who were all drowned. The ship seems to have been accidentally overbalanced and capsized while she was heeling, "careened" or inclined on one side, for the purpose of repairing the pipe which communicates with the sea. The disaster remained in the minds of the people, by means of the diving-bell, many of her guns and stores were recovered; and, the hull being then blown to pieces with gunpowder, the remaining timbers were entirely removed. The Royal George was designed by Mr. J. Fowell, and built in Woolwich yard, being laid down there in 1746 and launched in 1756. Her length was 176 ft. 6 in., her breadth, and 21 ft. 6 in. in depth; her burden was 2041 tons, and she carried an establishment of 1000 men.

The second ship engraved upon the same page is the Victory, also of 100 guns, which, as it was the flagship of Nelson in the action off Trafalgar. It was from this ship that he made his memorable signal, "England expects every man to do his duty." The ship was upon the quarter-deck of this ship that he received his mortal wound. The Victory was designed by Sir Thomas Slade, and launched at Chatham in 1765. Her dimensions are 186 ft. in length, 52 ft. 4½ in. in breadth, and 21 ft. 6 in. in depth; 2164 tons burden. She is still extant at Portsmouth Dockyard, and is now in good repair. The models of the Victory consisted of thirty lower-deck guns, which were 42-pounders; twenty-eight upper deck guns, 24-pounders; the main-deck were twenty-eight 12-pounders, on the poop and forecastle were 6-pounders and 18-pounder carronades. The Victory was present illustrated at the Queen Charlotte, of 100 guns, built at Chatham between 1785 and 1790, but destroyed by fire off Leghorn, in 1800. She was named after a sister ship to the Royal George, but differed somewhat from that ship in her dimensions, being 190 ft. in length, 52 ft. 9½ in. in breadth, and 22 ft. 1½ in. in depth; 2286 tons burden.

The frigate Diana, 32 guns, which is the last vessel shown in our Engraving, was built at Chatham in 1794, launched from the dock in the River Thames, about 1794; but was sold to the Dutch Government in 1815. She was 151 ft. 3 in. in length, 40 ft. 3 in. in breadth, 13 ft. 6 in. her breadth 39 ft., and her depth 13 ft. 9 in. She carried a crew of 284 men.

DESTRUCTION OF SAVILE HOUSE.

In our Journal of last week we briefly recorded the conflagration by which, on the 1st inst., Savile House, in Leicester-square, was destroyed, was, in less than two hours, laid in ruins, and the adjoining premises severely damaged. The fire broke out between seven and eight, and our View of the ruins, with the large vacant space and blackened walls, gives some idea of the extent of the disaster.

Savile House occupied nearly the centre of the north side of Leicester-square, and communicated immediately with Leicester House, which mansion, however, stood in the north-east corner of the square, and was built on the site of Coventry House. It was originally built, or have let it as a town house for people of fashion. The fame of Leicester House chiefly rests upon its having been bought by the Prince of Wales afterwards George II., and by him settled upon his eldest son, Frederick, Prince of Wales, who made it the residence of the Royal family. According to Sir George Savile—for his children; a communication being made to Parliament, in 1749, by the Prince of Wales, that "it is for the more immediate intercourse of the Royal family." Hence much of the celebrity of Leicester House become extended to Savile House, whereby, probably, the latter mansion was built. It was the "Court" by the junior branches of the Prince of Wales's household, Prince George (afterwards George III.), and his brothers, till the accession to the throne as George III., when, in front of the mansion, he was first hailed as King by the people. Here, too, Queen Caroline, wife of the Duke of Gloucester, grandson of George II. The mansion was sold in 1792 to Mr. Thomas Wyndham, by whom it was removed in 1788. Leicester House was then taken down: it occupied the site of the present Nos. 1 and 2, Leicester-square, and Horne Tooke. Westward was built Leicester-street, where, in 1776, Charles Dibdin, the song-writer, had his shop-warehouse. Next to Savile House, which was left standing, belonged to the Savile family, and here resided Sir George Savile, M.P., in 1780, when, in the riots that year, he was stripped of his valuable furniture, and paintings, which the rioters burnt in the fields. The Rev. W. Peters, M.A., F.R.S., was the last inmate of the political wisdom of Sir George Savile, "who chooses this very moment to publish his opinion of the Roman Catholics—from him and his party by rising up the champion of the Papists." Actually, in the Gordon riots, Lord Mansfield's house in Bloomsbury-square was burnt, and Sir George Savile was chosen member for Yorkshire by the Whig grandees in the Marquis of Rockingham's drawing-room.

At the commencement of the present century, Savile House was rebuilt by the late Mr. Samuel Page, of Dulwich, an architect of some eminence, at the time. It was, in fact, merely a sort of "Noah's Ark" for exhibition purposes. Here Miss Linwood's needlework pictures were exhibited, and here Mr. Page's panorama of London, in her nineteenth year; two large saloons were added for this purpose. Here, in 1824, Burford's, the "Battle of Waterloo," was exhibited for a limited forty years, related to this property. The late Earl Cottenham, as Mr. Pepys, was counsel for the plaintiff; and Mr. Sugden, now Lord St. Leonards, was counsel for Miss Linwood. The property, however, still belongs to Mr. Page's family. Various have been the adventures of Savile House in these latter days. The collection of pictures sold here by auction in 1846 realised less than £1000. Here the National Political Union held its Reform meetings, recalling the storms of the previous century. Then came a succession of prodigies of nature and art: amongst the latter were a large moving panorama of the Mississippi River, and a series of views of New Zealand; concerts and balls; and exhibitions of too questionable a shape for us to detail. The principal staircase was spacious and handsome, as were also the principal rooms; still the history of the place presented but a mimic reflection of a nursery of royalty. Through some sixty years of the showman's art, flaring by night and by day, Savile House lasted unharmed until the catastrophe of last week, when the royal baby-house and the cheap pleasure haunt were burnt in the short space of two hours, wrapping away "The El Dorado Music-hall and Café Chantant," the "Imperial" and "Odéon," and a host of other diversions, native and foreign. The building was insured for £12,000.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Equine of the Army in India. By Stewart Clark, M.R.C.S., Esq. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) The recollection of the Indian mutiny, the remembrance of an empire preserved by a passive and active heroism of soldiers and of civilians, of military science and military energy, should make a grateful country and a grateful Government extremely careful of the lives of soldiers. Hence the time of self-interest, to study the health at least, if not the comforts, of the British Army in India. The services of Surgeon-Major Galley not long since drew attention to the question of the healthiness or unhealthiness of the cantonments; to British troops in India; and the general conclusion arrived at was, if we be not grievously mistaken, that non-commissioned officers and private be lodged under due modicum of pure air and ventilation. Now, when we consider that "the average Scotch Highlander is able to walk forty, fifty, and even sixty miles a day among his native hills, on no better fare than a dish of porridge and a few cakes of oatmeal," and that in the toughness of the pure air in which the greater part of his life has been passed, and that the Indian palanquin-bearer, who lives much in the open air and has never more than two meals a day (and often not more than one), consisting of chupattes and a little dhall (C. a. unleavened cakes and coarse lentil flour), makes the toil of carrying a heavy load twenty-five, thirty, and even thirty-five miles a day comparatively easy and without fatigue and distress, and that, on the authority of the Earl of Shaftesbury (vide p. 225 of Mr. Morris Birkbeck's book, "Colonial Punishment"), "the restriction of the vice and crime with which society is infected must be attributed to last air and free use of the limbs, and the suppression of the one by air and pure water to men living in barracks under the sultry sky of India can scarcely be over-estimated. Anyone, therefore, who has observations founded upon experience and practical examination based upon scientific knowledge to make upon the subject deserves to be thanked to write a book. Such a one is Mr. Stewart Clark; and we recommend his remarks, propositions, and illustrative woodcuts to the serious consideration of the military and medical world.

Capital Punishment. Edited by John Macrae Moir, M.A. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) This book is in the main an abridgment of Professor Mittermaier's "Todesstrafe." It has prefixed to it a biographical sketch of the professor, and a series of well-selected statistics more or less germane to the subject. It contains, in small compass, all the arguments which the editor could or would collect for and against capital punishment. It is, in fact, the opposite of a book in what is called "book-making," but it deals with an interesting subject, and will probably be read with considerable attention. No little trouble has apparently been taken to arrive at correct statistics, but in one instance (p. 171) we have a comparison which we do not deem to be satisfactory. We read: "An important observation, militating against the supposed efficacy of capital punishment, is that in seven years from 1850 to 1857, during which, on an average, six executions took place each year, the number of commitments for wilful and bodily injury from which death ensued, were committed; whilst in fourteen years, from 1836 to 1850, in which only one execution a year took place, the number of commitments for wounded also only by half." But the editor remarks in a note—"We regret that, in spite of the pains we have taken, we have not succeeded in obtaining information with regard to the punishments inflicted since 1857. We learn, however, that the number of executions in 1864 is the largest we have seen in any one year." Now, it is a mystery how he learned the fact he states. Moreover, during that time of comparatively enlightened opinion, crime precedes execution, and execution depends not only upon crime, but the clemency of the Crown and the recommendation of the jury. Hence a certain space of fourteen years there were only 153 capital offences committed, and there was only a yearly instance of capital punishment, whereas in a certain space of seven years there were 156 capital offences committed with an average of six yearly executions, population having meanwhile increased. Consequently increase of the increase of crime was due to the increase in capital punishments. What we require is to have a list of the capital crimes in clearly and proportionately tenable to decrease of capital punishment, year by year, and to volumes of statistics published by Milner and other wreiches to give all they have to save their miserable lives, so that they will stand with the rope round their necks and the last brink of the grave, shows that capital punishment is considered the severest of all punishments. If the punishment is proportion to the severity of penal severity, perhaps it would have a beneficial effect if murder were left altogether unpunished, or if only a second were offered for the commission of it. For our part, we are content to have the punishment of death abolished; "amen," as it was once grimly remarked, par excellence in a certain assembly.

Sermons Lenguay. By Mrs. Hamerton. (Chapman and Hall). These sermons, by the celebrated Jeanne Lenguay, are a mere delusion, so far as our experience and information go, when she informs them that "Englishmen are Englishmen" when talk to girls, walk with them, and kiss them as much as they like." But French women are not quite so much in the dark about the social customs of England as English women are about the social customs of France. Hence, Mrs. Hamerton's book will be offered to many a French girls after, marriage. Mrs. Hamerton has written a slight, pleasant, fresh-toned story, full of piquancy, liveliness, and sentimental effusion, for the amusement of her French countrymen and a French air pervading the whole. One has often read of the matter which is contained in this story, as single tales be committed a pious forgery for the benefit of his family who have a weak, feminine, scheming side of character. But what spiritual, beautiful daughter who thinks that he shame has long been hidden, and that nobody but the confessor and the forged letter know for the daughter's lily-white hand, greatly against the daughter's wish; who is exerted from marrying the man she loves by her unscrupulous priest lover; whose wife is induced to give her consent to the marriage of the daughter with the man she loves; and who has by some means or means been together a dower for her whom his wife supposes to be a portionless child. But the story is not often told so pleasantly as it is by Mrs. Hamerton. The marriage of the grandmamma with the artist-lover, and Jeanne Lenguay are charmingly drawn, and all we have to regret is that Mrs. Hamerton has not given us more details into the ironies of Fortune. The lady's-maid falls in love with the artist, who breaks her heart by refusing to his perfidies pupil. Why not willing to take poor Marianne's portrait; but what satisfaction is this to poor Marianne?

Soldiering in Sunshine and Storm. By William Douglas. (Edinburgh: A. Black.) Mr. Black's brother Douglas, of the Scots Fusilier 16th Hussars, be as smart a soldier as he is a writer, it is a marvel that he should still be Lieutenant Douglas. Perhaps, he says, it is "by-and-by" true, though it may be a rather rambling, description of the travels and experiences of any regiment in the march from India to the Crimea, and Home, via the Desert, the Nile, and the Euxine, and our sojourning at Cairo by the way." Some of the papers which make up his volume have already appeared in the All the Year Round and the United Service Magazine. This fact is of itself sufficient guarantee for the entertainment to be derived from, and the popular style of writing to be found in, Mr. Douglas's performance. Considering the barrack-room turmoil amidst which his pen was plied, he has turned out a really remarkable specimen of the literary talent to be found in the ranks of our Army. He seems to have had an unusually good education for a man in his position, and one cannot help suspecting that an account of the reasons for which he became and remains a full private would be even more interesting than the sketches it has seemed good to him to write. There is a certain tone of bitterness in some of his remarks and criticisms which betrays the temper of a disappointed man.

Military Characters. By Charles Cowden Clarke. (Edinburgh: W.

P. Nimmo. It is not very long since we had occasion to thank Mr. Cowden Clarke for a thoughtful, instructive, and genial series of essays upon "Shakspeare Characters." His present work contrasts in some respects unfavourably with the former; for it displays unmistakable symptoms of having been composed in a hasty and superficial manner. The object, explained in a turgidly-written preface, of the book is praiseworthy enough—Mr. Clarke desires by his reprints to popularise and the specimens given in English of the great French comedy-writer's genius to inspire English readers with a not the gift of the French tongue with a desire to learn Molière's language and to appreciate the grace and wit of Molière's style. Unfortunately, Mr. Clarke's rhymed renderings of certain passages, if they enable us to form a notion of the drift of the original, are, as to the spirit of fairness, too, should have led Mr. Clarke to give the credit of his source (page 9, 108) where the whole of the translation is beaten with a stick to the humourist to whom it is due—Molière, no doubt, borrowed the idea from Lucian, but the Greek humourist's plays are now blasphemed, and the classical authors are in danger of being ignored.

Lighthouses. By David Stevenson, F.R.S.E. (Edinburgh: A. and C. Black.) A reprint from Good Words. The papers, however, are worthy of publication in their present form. They are rendered more by explanatory illustrations, and are likely, as they deserve, to attract the notice of a numerous people, and to be read with interest "by all the sea in ships" and find a grave "in the deep waters" for want of, or from the faulty construction of, a lighthouse.

Eden, and other Poems. By Alfred Dixon Toovey. (Longmans.) "Eden" is a sort of ground paraphrase of the Mosaic account of creation of the first two or three chapters of Genesis, but the improvement upon the "authorised Translation" is not perceptible. The most pretentious poem in the volume is "Modern Life," of which the late Mr. Samuel Rogers would have thus:—"I need scarcely with what interest, with what pleasure, I have read it, or how highly I shall value it as long as I live." We are not aware that Mr. Rogers was a Jesuit, but the words just quoted are analogous to the spirit of a passage which we shall be more open, and plainly declare our opinion that the author shows some power of writing musical sounding lines, a not unpleasant plaintiveness, and a yearning after what is good: that he reaches so high flight; that he frequently drops down on the commonplaces to his expressions, and sometimes faulty in his rhymes, e.g. —

Shall see that head before me placed,
His hand upon a rebel's sword,
and,
He ever loved to wander forth and muse,
And from creation drew sublime truths.

It would have been well, too, had the "Schoolboy Verses" been omitted.

THE MAGAZINES.

The Cornhill Magazine remains unrivalled in the art of purveying light reading, and at the same time well worth reading. None of the essays it contains make any pretension to profound research, but almost all are more or less valuable and instructive. Undoubtedly the ablest is that which treats of the Revolutionary Calendar, and which, in few paragraphs and the simplest and most unpretending fashion, conveys nearly the whole philosophy of this branch of art, and of its ever-increasing prevalence in modern times. Some sensible remarks on the practical difficulties connected with agricultural labours conclude the paper. "A Midsummer Ride in South China" is another article of much interest, containing a very graphic and full description of the scenery of districts hitherto little visited by Europeans. The article is described as very full of the inhabitants in simple and well-disposed. The ravages of the rebellion were painfully perceptible in many quarters. A record of campaigning experiences with Garibaldi, is plainly the production of Captain Dunne, R.N., a brother of the Miss Jessie White so well known for the scrapes in which she involved herself with the Piedmontese Army. The paper, which is, consequently, bitterly hostile to Victor Emmanuel, and, like too many producers of the Garibaldian literature, is disfigured by the sectarian narrowness which regards a disagreeing friend as worse than an enemy. Of the author's good sense, as well as of his unaffected and unpretending manliness, he gives unmistakable proof in the comparison with his selfish and passionate colleague, Signor Mario, between whose and his own character he draws a humiliating contrast, and does not conceal that there were portions of the campaign in which he was glad to leave the "Garibaldino Babel" to a pretty and affecting tale. Of the longer stories, "Wives and Daughters" decidedly bears away the palm this month. It is replete with subtle and delicate observation, and the contrast between the old squire and the favourite son who has disappointed his hopes are exquisitely drawn. "Miss Arndale" is the reverse of entertaining. We regret this less than what we understand to be the reason—the illness of Mr. Collins. "Why Frau Frohmann Raised Her Prices" is poem, in the style of Tennyson's "Dora," aiming at homely pathos and simplicity, with general impression is that it is not the work of another designed; but his artifice is somewhat too apparent, and the impression of mannerism is heightened by the introduction of employing Scotch words where English would have done as well.

The Scottish magazine, Blackwood, concludes its attack upon Mr. Gladstone in the same carping and spiteful spirit in which it began, and, assessed, but virtually admits his ponderous article to be merely a huge domineering epistle intended to damage Mr. Gladstone's election at Oxford. A writer of more ability has been intrusted with the impossible task of writing up Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, but, as a rule, it must have been may be inferred from the state of mind in which we find him at the end of the paragraph, saluting the publication of the last novelist of the day, and we know not what beside. "Miss Marjoribanks" is continued pleasantly, and the "Autobiography" is a clever story. But the best contribution of this kind is the first instalment of a medley entitled "Contemporaneous Autobiography," a species of composition almost peculiar to Blackwood, the secret of which consists mainly in the perpetual effervescence of rather heady animal spirits. It is a most interesting piece of reminiscence, and the reviewer of Blake's biography is devoid of the first requisite for his task—imagination. He is, however, sensible, if somewhat too severe, and his remarks on the modern style of putting biographies together are very judicious.

Anything by the Dean of St. Paul's is sure to be read with respectful attention. His commonness with a sermon he has just preached before the clerical subscription committee on a subject almost equally interesting to Dr. Tait and to clergymen, is worthy of the author. The sermons on the conversion of the Roman empire may, probably, be attributed to Mr. Freude. It is very ably written. "Virginia, First and Last," is no doubt by Mr. Conway, whose able contributions to the magazine we have before had occasion to notice. The writer's situation is peculiar, he being, at the same time, a native Virginian and one of the most determined opponents of slavery, in America or out of it. His love for his native State is unbounded, and his description of Virginian homes in the good old times, while he does not disguise the deterioration which the system has in the unhappy day when, some thirty years since, Virginia definitively united her fortunes with the slaveholding States, is a most charming picture and humanising culture of New England. According to Mr. Conway, the actuating principle of Virginia and the other slave States in general State rights, and consequent dissolution of a Union which has become incompatible with them, while the real cause of secession was regard the destruction of the Union as a means to an end, and that end the propagation of slavery. He seems to foreshadow a breach between the allies on this account. The "Autobiography" paper on Ireland in the sixteenth century is disappointingly brief, being merely an abstract of one or two pages of Leland, but it will afford acceptable material to Fenian declaimers. Miss Cobbe's second paper on "The Hieroglyphic of Art" is full of good taste and good sense. "The Law of Honour" has several curious anecdotes of duelling in past generations. Finally, the short paper on "Law Reporting" describes the system as at present practised, but condemned by the Bar itself, while it refrains from suggesting a remedy.

Macmillan is not equal to its usual self this month. The best paper is Signor Ruffini's charming account of the pretty Italian town of Sarzeno, which is especially laying itself out to attract the English, and is very likely to succeed through the beauty and cheapness of this deservedly popular writer. The notes from Lady Gordon's Journal are interesting, and very pleasing, from the sensible and kindly feeling of the authoress, who belongs to the school of travellers like Miss Rogers and Miss Cobbe, whose freedom from prejudice has enabled them to report so truly of Oriental domestic life. Miss Cobbe herself contributes a very striking allegory entitled "The Shadow of Death." The novels are not very interesting this month, and Professor Goldwin Smith's article on the proposed North American federation lacks his usual force and clearness. We are sorry to observe a falling off in the Victoria Magazine, once so good, but which this month contains nothing of note.

The readers of Temple Bar will hardly regret the conclusion of Mr. Tyrrell's story, which has throughout been unpleasantly and dramatic. Miss Braddon's tale is essentially of the same school, but rivals none in the intelligence. "The David Dodds" is a collection of such interest as last month, but full of clever remarks and subtle delineations. "The Vampyre" is a story of considerable power in supernatural horrific. The St. James's contains nothing of note, which, perhaps, is not surprising, as the late Lord Winterford in his "Springhead" days. It is, however, pleasantness to read. "Bentley" and the same may be said of Bentley and the New Monthly. We do not say anything against the "Autobiography of a Thief" contained in London Society the most difficult of any, and it is surprising how well it is performed. They are not interesting points of view, however, and light social sketches. Good Words is no less of a phenomenon. We shall appointed with the account of the Churchmen's Family Magazine which has not proved a miserable failure. A review of Dean Hook's "Lives of the Archbishops" more than the High Church party are very angry with him. With the best will in the world we can by no good of the Englishman's Magazine. It is dreadfully heavy. The Sunbeam is far more interesting than it ought to be, and is a good little illustrated circulation. The British Army and Navy Review contains a long and interesting paper on "Fighting in Fortresses." The Household Monthly—a new candidate for public favour—is a wonderful sixpenny-worth, and will, we hope, meet with the encouragement its quality. It would do well to improve its illustrations, or to dispense with them altogether. The Gentleman's Magazine is, as usual, excellent in its contents a tale entitled "The Goldmaker's Village," not merely an unacknowledged translation from the German, but one reprinted verbatim from "Chambers's Tracts." The editor has been imposed upon by some unscrupulous contributor.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. 11. (Chapman and Hall.) In this rambling to encounter another number of Dickens is equal story after the dullness of the last. Fascination Fledgeby is made more interesting than we should have thought possible, and there is genuine humour, albeit a little strained, in the account of the Wilfer's anniversary party. The best passage is the number, and one of the best in the book, is the description of the scene on the river, and the resuscitation of the submerged Riderhood. The paraphy of the Lammles is becoming tiresome. The mystery is in suspense, and their ill-concealed repugnance when it fairly returns to the Veneering's dinner-table is a masterpiece of delicate and subtle truth and power. The story seems about to take a turn which will find Mr. Dickens scope for displaying some of the finest qualities of his genius.

MUSIC

Gounod's "Mock Doctor" (Médecin Malgré Lui) continues to run, with undiminished success, at the Royal English Opera, Covent garden. It is the last novelty of the season, which is about to terminate.

At Her Majesty's Theatre, Miss Louisa Pyne's benefit, on Saturday last, was a most interesting house; and our English prima donna had an enthusiastic reception.

Herr Joachim, the greatest of living violinists, has arrived in London for the purpose of leading the performances of the Popular Concert of Monday last, when he led two of the finest quartets of Beethoven and Mozart. The performance, as usual, was given to a crowded audience, notwithstanding the inclement weather. He played, if possible, more superbly, and was received more rapturously, than ever.

A chamber concert was given, on Wednesday evening last week, at the house of Mr. Charles Salaman, in Hanover square, when the performances of the students the following were the most remarkable:—Wieland, "The Fairy Queen;" Miss Lucy Franklin, Mercadante's air, "Mi sogli ritrovai istanti," sung by Miss Matilda Westmoreland; and a concerto for violoncello, by Servais, sung, in flat minor, played by Miss Maddalena Cronin; Mendelssohn's pastoral song, "Ist es wahr?" and "Auf Flügeln des Gesanges," sung by the students; and Mendelssohn's variations for the piano and violoncello, played by Miss Emma Bauer and Mr. H. Harper.

The Crystal Palace Company have issued a prospectus of the Triennial Handel Festival in June next. It is to be carried on, as formerly, by the Sacred Harmonic Association, and the Handel Festival Society; and will be held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, the 20th, 28th, and 30th June, in the next month. The first day ("The Messiah" will be performed; on the second day, a selection from Handel's works; and, on the third day, "Israel in Egypt." The chorus will consist of 2,500 performers, and the band of 500. From the metropolis, but from all parts of the United Kingdom.

All difficulties seem to have been settled about Meyerbeer's posthumous opera, "L'Africaine," being arranged, it will first be given at Italian by Her Majesty's Opera, and in the winter by the company of the Royal English Opera, in English.

The series of four orchestral concerts, to be given this season at the Musical Union, commenced on Tuesday last, and will conclude on the 29th of this month, the 3rd of May, and the 7th and 28th of June.

Mozart's "Zauberflöte" has been produced at the Théâtre Lyrique under the title of "La Flute Enchantée." No attempt has been made to tamper either with the words or the music, and the result has been a most brilliant success.

The English version of the libretto written by M. Maillart, composer of "Lara," to Signor Arditi, conductor at Her Majesty's Theatre:—

Paris, Feb. 20.
"My dear Cynthia,—I beg your acceptance of the accompaniments of Lara as a souvenir of all you have done for its success. I hope some day to have the pleasure of presenting to you the score of Lara, and I am sure expressing to you personally my gratitude. In the mean time, my dear and esteemed confrère, pray accept my best thanks and the assurance of my best wishes. A. MAILLART.

THE THEATRES.

This week is fertile in theatrical intelligence. Managers have now thoroughly awakened to their respective interests, and evidently intend to make the most of the encouragement of the lightest kind in new given to the drama. On Saturday night, the Princess and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Lady Wood, the Duke of Sutherland, and Lord Alfred Paget, visited the Olympic, under the Lyceum in order to witness Mr. Reeves's impersonation of Roy Tom, which was executed to a marvel.

A new five-act drama, by Mr. Tom Taylor, was produced on Saturday at the Olympic. We are happy to find that it is described as "new and original," and we have reason to believe the author's statement. Its reference to certain banking frauds still fresh in memory is obvious enough. It is entitled "Settling Day," an appellation which sufficiently indicates the point of interest. The first act introduces us to the morning-room of a villa on the Thames, and is very skilfully written. Here Mr. Markland (Mr. H. Neville) with his young bride (Miss Kate Terry), just returned from a continental tour, is about to celebrate his birthday. All appears to be unclouded prosperity. But appearances are deceptive. A partner whom he had trusted during his travels has been dishonest, and the firm is unable to meet a claim for £40,000. Meiklam (Mr. H. Wigan), who is a consummate hypocrite, and capitally made up by the actor, particularly in the articles of wig and neckcloth, contrives, in the first instance, to have his villainy mistaken for an information, but it ultimately transpires that he has speculated with the funds of the bank and lost the money. A visit to Capel-court becomes needful; and here, at the stockbrokers, both Mr. and Mrs. Markland, though unknown to each other, are brought under the same roof. The latter overhears the conversation between the partners, and makes an effort to place her own private fortune at her husband's disposal, but the trustees will not agree. There is not only a Meiklam a rogue himself, but he has a roguish nephew, who is inclined to take advantage of the situation of affairs. He knows that the accounts have been cooked with considerable ingenuity by his uncle; and, on the strength of his knowledge, aspires to the hand of Miss Hargrave, Mrs. Markland's rich cousin. He calls there, and seeks to compel Markland's consent to his nefarious scheme. But the latter has eliminated from his character by a solicitor named Haworth (Mr. Macleand), and, as the missing deeds are recovered in time, the whole affair is hushed up. Meiklam is dismissed from the country and the self-sacrificing sister giving her note-of-hand to the bank for the difference. Thus all ends in bad resistance. It is best to add that the drama was not only well acted throughout, but well appointed with a due regard to the most important. The scenery, also, is superb. The view of Capel-court and the interior of the Stock Exchange, the reception-room of Markham's mansion, and the river terrace, with the view from it of the Houses of Parliament and the Thames, are finely painted and elaborately set. The style of the dialogue is lively and telling, and the arrangement of the action is easy and intelligible. The comedy is likely, we think, to prove attractive.

An agreeable surprise was prepared on Saturday for the audience at the Adelphi, when "Our Lives Once" was performed, and Henrietta Somers, who made such an unexpected hit in the part of Helen, in "Uncle Dunchback," was appointed to appear as Neighbour Constance. We found that the character would be not only worthy for our fair light comedian, and so to a certain extent it was; but the degree of intelligence displayed by Miss Somers was remarkable for all physical shortcomings. Mr. Webster resumed his character of Meiklam on the occasion of Mrs. Stirling (here a widow) very agreeable light on the Widow Green. Altogether, the comedy was pleasantly given. Mr. Ben Bateman's management is, as of old, an alternately gain the advantage. Rossell succeeds at last in securing the death of his accomplice, but the latter pins to his breast the letter which is to bring the former to account on it securing Rossell of his assumption. Frippert, accordingly, shall not have the triumph which he would not achieve in life, and Rossell, as the fall of the curtain, is in the hands of justice. Rossell was played by Mr. Leslie, and the piece is accompanied by Miss Marriott), who has made a fortune by gambling, and who is about to marry the heroine of the piece, for the purpose of the means of restoring the trio heir to his estates. If the number of sensational scenes and the "effects" were less, the piece would have been more effective. The acting, on the whole, was good, and worthy of a better drama.

A new drama, by the late pen of Mr. Henry Leslie, originally intended for the Surrey, has been produced at Astley's. It is entitled "The Master's Secret," and has the advantage of a good historical and pathetic story, which has to be worked out in the plot. In some respects the incidents resemble those of Dumas's "Enoch Arden," but the catastrophe differs. Silas Englehart (Mr. Robert Taylor) becomes the husband of Hetty Arnold (Miss Josephine Hodder), who wrongs Silas by her conduct during the absence of the latter. Silas returns from the grave, and is sincerely attached to her. Both, however, are reconciled in a sentimental manner in the Margate station, and manager of a water-mill. Considerable time elapses between the first and second acts, during which Silas grows rich by fortune; and in the third we find Hetty about to be married to Mr. Ashton (Mr. Frank Matthews). Silas to be dead. However, arrives on the morning of the intended wedding; and scenes of passion and recrimination ensue between the unfortunate pair. For in the end Hetty throws herself into the mill-stream; she is followed by Baby, and is saved by the intervention of the revolving wheel. Silas endeavours to stop its movement, and so far succeeds as to save the life of Roby perishes. This is a stirring action, but the pathos of the dialogue and situations is wanting. Too much credit cannot be given to the actors, who supported the various characters with an earnestness and talent that well assured the triumphant success of the new drama. The scenery throughout is excellent.

The Grecian has produced a new piece, called "The Fall of the Avalanche," in which a striking sensational effect is produced by the descent of the ice. The story is essentially French in its character, Fauvrelle, the lessee of the theatre, and Miss Cullen in the accompany with a gallant swain, who is already betrothed; and, as the lively companionship of the two excites the jealousy of the swain, the results. Embarrassment ensues, which is, however, ultimately disengaged, and Fauvrelle and Miss Cullen are united. Happiness is duly celebrated with Eugene, at the same time that he makes good his title to a noble fortune.

THE SEARCH FOR WATCHES IN THE THAMES.

SINCE the apprehension of the burglars concerned in the great robbery at Messrs. Child's bank from the shop of Mr. Mayle, in Cornhill, a portion of the stolen property has been recovered in a very singular manner. It appears that about two or three months since, passing in a boat under Blackfriars Bridge when they observed something floating in the water. On the piers of the new bridge of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. On examining they found two gold watches, inscribed with the name of Mr. Walker as the former proprietor, and to which they were the property. It seemed probable that these watches had been thrown from the temporary wooden bridge which connects the Surrey side with the intention of sinking them in the river. This discovery having been imparted to the Metropolitan police, they proceeded to search the bed of the river in that place, and a couple of divers were employed several days in this operation with the result that a large quantity of property was found on the first day, and others have since been recovered, making altogether about 200 articles identified by Mr. Walker as part of the property stolen from his premises. For the present, the search has been discontinued, as there is but no more of the missing property is to be found there. The operations of the divers were watched by many curious spectators from the wooden bridge and from the bank of the river. We have engraved a sketch of this scene.

VIEWS IN PARAGUAY, SOUTH AMERICA.

SEVERAL illustrations of the scenery and costumes of Paraguay have lately appeared in these columns, including a view of the River Paraguay at Asuncion, the capital city, and one of the fortress of Humaita, near the junction of the Paraguay and Panana rivers. The Engraving we present this week is, like those just mentioned, from a sketch by Mr. Duvell Powell. It shows an ordinary scene of rustic life in a native rancho or farm, overlooking the lake at Aragoya, some thirty miles from the capital. The small house below, in the centre, is at present used for a railway station. The country people here are exceedingly hospitable, and a stranger always finds a hammock and a meal awaiting him everywhere, without any charge being made for it. On the right of the Engraving a woman is pounding meal; her dress is that peculiar to the country, with a square black border to a white body, and a striped petticoat. To the left a man is drinking his maté, or Paraguay tea, which is the universal beverage in these countries.

DIVING FOR THE STOLEN WATCHES AT BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

A few statistical notes on Paraguay may be read with interest at this time, when the outbreak of a war between that country and Brazil has given it some political importance. The Republic of Paraguay has a population of 700,000 to 800,000 persons, speaking the Guarani, a widely-spread Indian dialect, with an intermixture of Spanish words. The revenue of the republic is about £300,000, derived from monopolies of the principal articles of commerce, from the rents of public lands, and from the tithe of all the products. The standing army is estimated at, in time of peace, from 12,000 to 20,000 well-armed troops, disciplined and commanded by European officers, and can readily be reinforced by conscription. The bulk of the population is collected along the River Paraguay, and is densest in the neighbourhood of Asuncion.

A RANCHO IN ARAGUAY, PARAGUAY.

EMBASSY OF MEXICAN INDIANS TO THE EMPEROR OF MEXICO.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

EMBASSY OF KICKAPOO INDIANS TO THE EMPEROR OF MEXICO.

We have just received from Mexico the sketch engraved on the preceding page. Our readers will readily recognise the pencil of M. Beaucé, to whom we are also indebted for the following particulars relating to the Kickapoo Embassy:—

"The streets of Mexico have been recently rendered more than ordinarily interesting by the presence of about twenty wild Indians belonging to the tribe called the Kickapoos, who inhabit the district of Santa Rosa, sixty leagues to the north of Saltillo, near the Rio Bravo del Norte. Rolled, rather than draped, in their red or blue blankets, their heads covered with ornaments composed of the feathers of birds of prey, marten fur, ribbon, and glass, they walked hurriedly, without betraying astonishment at what they saw, and preserved the strictest silence, without giving any expression to their physiognomy. The total absence of their weapons deprived them of a part of their naturally warlike appearance. The chief, who is the principal personage depicted in our Illustration, is very old; he wears suspended from his neck, as the sign of superiority, a large silver plate, upon which is engraved the picture of a jaguar, and a medal bearing the effigy of Louis XV. His tribe originally came from North America, and, having quitted the United States in consequence of the extension of the civilised settlements, ultimately settled beyond the Rio Bravo, in the Mexican region. During the presidency of Arista, an embassy of the Kickapoos was sent to Mexico to demand the formal cession of a certain portion of territory, which was granted. However, notwithstanding this cession, the tribe suffered considerably from hostile attacks, defending itself with difficulty. Even the Mexican bandits harassed them frequently, and when they appealed to the Government at Mexico, which was powerless even in its endeavours to drive away the bands that infested Pedregal, only four leagues from the capital, that Government could render no assistance to the distant Kickapoos. On the recent occupation of Monterey, the favourable recollections the tribe had preserved of the French from the time of Louis XV. induced the Kickapoos to send their chief and a party of old men to wait upon the commanding officer, by whom they were welcomed in a friendly manner and sent on to Mexico, where they were at once favoured with an introduction to Marshal Bazaine. In order to do honour to the occasion, the elders dyed their untattooed visages with the brightest colours, a preparation undergone also by the three women and the child who accompanied them. Their interpreters were two negroes from Texas, who understood the Kickapoo idiom pretty well, but could not speak Spanish. The second language spoken by the Texans was English, so that the process of rendering their explanations into French was rather curious, as the English language is rarely understood at Mexico. Subsequently their Majesties the Emperor and Empress of Mexico received the deputation with kindness, and promised their friendly protection; they were, moreover, invited to dine at the Imperial table. They visited the shops in Mexico very perseveringly, and were screened from the over curiosity of the populace by an escort of French infantry. They will shortly return to their friends, and they will then perhaps, in the solitudes of the Rio Bravo, give a free expression to the cleverly-suppressed admiration they must have felt for what they have witnessed during their short sojourn amongst a civilised people."

THE FARM.

Fifty-four new members, including Lord George Manners, M.P., and Mr. Thomas Booth, the owner of the Warlaby herd, were elected at the meeting of the Royal Agricultural Council on Wednesday week. The number of members is about 6000, be the same more or less; and the balance in the hands of the bankers on Feb. 28 was £1379 8s. 5d. It is in contemplation to provide more commodious premises for the use of the society; and it is about time, seeing that two important committees were recently compelled to sit at the same table, and that not a very large one. On Wednesday, March 15, Mr. Ellman will read a paper on the management of a breeding flock of sheep; and, on March 29, Professor Voelcker lectures "On Natural Deposits of Potash in Germany." On bringing up the report of the Committee on Agricultural Education, a motion to the effect that the committee should consider whether an examination as to the candidates' practical knowledge of stock and agricultural machinery might not be desirable, was negatived by sixteen to five. Colonel Challoner and Mr. Randell were the proposer and seconder. The railway companies are to be requested to make charges in accordance with the great majority of such companies previously to 1862. It will require no small tact this year to manage the gauge shift, to say nothing of a single line part of the way.

We gather from a letter the following interesting account of the lot of English sheep in Egypt:—"Last year the English Government sent out twenty-five picked sheep of best races, bought for £400, to cross with the native breed, under the superintendence of a member of one of our well-known Norfolk sheep-breeding families; but when the Arabs saw the big Leicesters and compact Southdowns, contrasting so strangely with their own diminutive race, 'Wullah,' said they, 'this is a device of the Christians to make us eat pork; these are no sheep, but pigs with wool on them.' These splendid animals, thus despised, cooped up in an old stable, soon began to suffer from too great a growth of hoof for their heavy bodies, which superinduced foot-rot, so that they gradually drooped and died. The black pig would flourish, but religious prejudice is opposed to his increase."

At the recent festival of hippophagy at Paris, it was announced, amid immense applause, that all the horses eaten at the dinner were old and miserably thin; that none had cost more than 40f., and one only 18f. Savoury visions of fat things floated before the company at the thought of the deep treat in store from the flesh of young and well-flavoured colts and fillies. One disciple boldly claimed that the ass or the mule should be admitted to the same culinary honours as the horse, which the late Geoffrey St. Hilaire strove so hard to rescue from the dogs.

During the past year 102 tons of meat have been condemned in the London markets and slaughter-houses, which is greatly in excess of former years, besides 774,000 fish at Billingsgate, and eels, shrimps, whelks, and winkles to boot.

It has been settled by the Queen's Bench, in "Kenyon v. Hart," that to constitute a trespass in pursuit of game, under sec. 30 of 1 and 2 Will. IV., c 32, it must be a trespass in pursuit of live game. In this case, Mr. Hart, the respondent, was out shooting, and shot a cock pheasant, which rose on his own land and fell dead on the field of another. Mr. Hart went and fetched it, taking his dog and gun with him; and the Court held that the justices were right in not convicting him of a trespass in pursuit of game. "Osbond v. Meadows" differed from this case in this very important particular, that the pheasant shot was all the time on the land of another, although the shooter was on his own; and therefore the shooting and the picking up were one transaction. The appellant in "Kenyon v. Hart," who was under gamekeeper to Sir Richard Tufton, stated, in reply to the chairman of the magistrates, that the bird was in the air over Sir Richard's land when the respondent fired; but he must have been contradicted upon that point, as it is expressly stated in Mr. Justice Blackburn's judgment, as given in the new Reports, "there is evidence that when he (Mr. Hart) shot and hit the bird it had not crossed his own boundary; and he may never have had the intention of crossing the boundary to pick it up."

In Scotland the demand for pure shorthorns more than keeps pace with the supply. At Rettie, near Banff, last week, fifteen of Mr. Longmore's bull-calves averaged £40 7s. 8d.; and four two-year-old heifers just 4d. more. Sir Charles the 2nd—a Babraham purchase—and Knight of Stirling, the highest priced bull-calf at the last annual Keir sale, are in this herd. Mr. Douglas's Next of Kin, who has been second and first in 1863-4, at the Highland Society, where he beat Mr. Willis's first prize, Royal Will, is announced for sale, at 120 gs. At the Smithfield Christmas Show an addition of £5 is to be made to the first prizes in each class of "crossbred" cattle, which is good hearing for our Scottish friends. Kentish sheep are to have a distinct class, and so are longwools not being either Leicesters, Cotswolds, Lincolns, or Kentish. The class for two-year-old "Shrops" is to be abolished. A £20 silver cup is to be given, in future, in lieu of the gold medal for pigs; the breeder of the silver-cup winner in either cattle class is to have a gold medal; and there are to be three silver cups for butchers who buy most in the cattle, sheep, and pig classes. Mr. Waghorn, of Cheltenham, got the one silver cup last Christmas.

No less than £1200 will be awarded in money, cups, and medals at the Yorkshire Agricultural Show, the entries for which close on the 1st of July. The secretary is Mr. Thomas Parrington, of Normanby, Middlesboro'. A champion cup, of the value of £25, will be given to the best pure shorthorn. There will be nine classes for cattle, ten for sheep, eleven for pigs, thirty for horses, cobs, and ponies, two for wool, three for dairy produce, three for flax, £120 and a silver medal for implements; and poultry, pigeons, and rabbits are not left out. To hounds no less than £175 will be awarded in plates and gratuities to huntsmen; and a silver-mounted whip will be given to the huntsman who brings hounds from the farthest distance. In short, the Yorkshire Society will have a regular Doncaster carnival. Boxes will be erected in the yard for several of the horse classes at a charge of 15s. per box. The hound prizes are for the best three couple of entered hounds, none being more than a seven season hunter; the best unentered single hound of either sex, and the best hound which has been the sire of puppies. There is a first and second prize in every class except the fourth, and each is accompanied by a gratuity to the huntsman. Any master of hounds subscribing £2 to the "Fox-hound Fund" will have free entry to all the classes.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Marshall, in his sixth lecture on the nervous system, given on Wednesday, the 1st inst., commenced his exposition of the motor functions involved in the regulation of animal movements, by classifying them as direct motion, reflex (or excito-motor), consensual (or senso-motor), emotional, and instinctive, and voluntary, for our knowledge of which we are much indebted to the labours of Prochaska, Unger, Blane, Marshall Hall, and Flourens. After noticing the direct motions observed in protozoa and the lowest forms of animals, who possess no nervous system and have no power of controlling their movements, he proceeded to the main subject of his lecture, the consideration of the reflex movements, the structural character of the nerves engaged, the conditions of their excitation by stimulus, and their action, totally or partially, independently of sensation or will, which has been substantiated by experiments upon insects and other of the lower animals deprived of their brain. He concluded by dwelling upon the importance of the reflex function of the motor nerves to the well-being of the animal economy, referring, as examples, to the sucking of infants, the swallowing of food and its reception by the action of the motor nerves of the stomach, respiration, &c., all of which are so essential to our life, as being either nutritive or protective.

Professor Hofmann began his second lecture on the study of chemistry on Thursday, the 2nd inst., with additional illustrations of the properties of hydrogen gas, its lightness, inflammability, and inability to support combustion. He then explained some new apparatus, by means of which he decomposed hydrochloric or muriatic acid into hydrogen and chlorine; and then exhibited the properties of the latter, a powerful, odorous suffocating gas, of a yellowish-green colour, highly soluble in water, possessing strong bleaching powers, and having a volume weight of 35·5, hydrogen being taken as 1. He also proved that hydrogen and chlorine were the sole constituents of muriatic acid, by its reproduction, when the gases were combined on the application of heat. Water was next decomposed by the action of the voltaic battery, the result being the production of hydrogen and oxygen; and the properties of the latter gas were then exhibited, it being a colourless gas, an energetic supporter of combustion, with a volume weight of 16. Dr. Hofmann then showed that, when chlorine was combined with steam, it seized upon the hydrogen, forming hydrochloric acid, and set free the oxygen; and he also produced water by combining hydrogen and oxygen under the influence of heat. He next decomposed the gas ammonia by the agency of the electric current of the voltaic battery, evolving hydrogen at one pole and nitrogen at the other; and then exhibited the properties of the latter gas, having a volume weight of 14, forming with oxygen our atmospheric air (weight 14·4), and being colourless, inodorous, non-inflammable, and a non-supporter of combustion. He also showed that, when chlorine was combined with ammonia, it took up the hydrogen and set free the nitrogen. It will be seen by the foregoing that this able teacher verifies his statements by synthesis as well as analysis.

Mr. James Fergusson, F.R.S., author of "The Illustrated Handbook of Architecture," delivered the Friday evening discourse on the 3rd inst., his subject being "The Holy Sepulchre and the Temple at Jerusalem." He began by reverting to his lecture given at the Institution on Feb. 21, 1862, and by stating that his recent visit to Jerusalem had still more firmly convinced him of the correctness of his opinion, that the beautiful building outside the city, now termed the "Mosque of Omar," was really a Christian basilica or church, which had been erected by the Emperor Constantine, on the site of the Holy Sepulchre, and which had been adopted also as a sacred place by the Saracens; and that the present supposed Church of the Sepulchre, within the city, had been rebuilt by the Crusaders, about 1100, on the site of one erected for the Christian pilgrims, about a century previous. Mr. Fergusson still further supported his opinion by stating that the various architectural details of the mosque, shown by drawings and photographs, were Christian rather than Mohammedan, and by adducing the testimony of early historians respecting its erection and existence. He then proceeded, by the aid of diagrams, to describe the structure of the Jewish Tabernacle, and the temples successively erected by Solomon, Zerubbabel, and Herod; and exhibited a plan of a temple based upon the vision of Ezekiel (ch. xl—xlii.) He also gave substantial reasons for believing that the roof of the tabernacle was sloping, with a ridge, like that of a tent. He concluded with expressing his opinion that the Mosque of Omar deserved still further investigation, both on account of its intrinsic beauty and its being the oldest Christian church in the world. Sir Henry Holland, Bart., M.D., F.R.S., Vice-President, was in the chair.

Professor Marshall's seventh lecture, given on Saturday last, was devoted to the description of that part of the nervous system engaged in sensori-motor functions, or consensual acts, which consist of reflex movements more or less combined with sensation, and which are protective and preservative, although involuntary and irrational. Of these actions the Professor selected as a type the movement of the hand when hot sealing-wax is dropped on it; and, among the numerous examples, he especially noted as sensori-motor acts in man sneezing, coughing, winking, yawning, laughing, and tetanus. In animals sensori-motor acts are evidently combined with instinct, as seen in chicks scratching the ground as soon as they are hatched, the motions of the young snapping turtle, bees constructing their cells, &c.

Professor Tyndall concluded his lectures on electricity on Monday. He began with illustrations of electric resistance, which increases in proportion to the length of the wire, and diminishes with its thickness (the larger the area the less resistance). He expounded the formulæ of Ohm, and its application to electric telegraphy by Steinheil, who discovered that the return wire might be dispensed with if each end of a single wire were connected with a plate of copper buried in the earth. Dr. Tyndall also exhibited in action a form of Wheatstone's dial telegraph, modified by Siemens. The heat and light of the voltaic battery were next considered, and their intensity proved to depend on electric resistance. Among numerous illustrations it was shown that, when the curved part of a piece of platinum wire (U-shaped) was heated to redness by the current and dipped into cold water, it became a better conductor and was blackened, while the other part became white hot and was fused. The structure of the electric lamp of Duboscq and others, was explained, and the brilliant arc of green light produced by silver placed in it was exhibited on a screen. The latter part of the lecture was devoted to thermo-electricity, currents evolved by heating two metals, and the delicacy of the action of Melloni's thermopile was shown by a galvanometer, indicating the electricity produced by the warmth of the finger. In conclusion, the professor referred to his experiments as having illustrated the great law of the conservation of force, since he had proved that all the physical forces—motion, light, heat, magnetism, and chemical affinity—were able to produce electricity, and could be produced by it.

Dr. Hofmann began his third lecture on chemistry, on Tuesday, by setting forth the characters of the four gases examined in his previous lectures—hydrogen, chlorine, oxygen, and nitrogen—and stating that all had been proved to be elementary bodies by the most rigid analysis. He then proceeded to ascertain the composition of hydrochloric acid by volume, and proved, by analysis and synthesis, conducted in a crucial manner, that one volume of hydrogen and one of chlorine, when combined, formed two volumes of hydrochloric acid. By similar methods he also showed that two volumes of hydrogen and one of oxygen, when combined under the influence of heat, produced two volumes of steam, which, when condensed, gave a few minute drops of water. The principles of each process were fully elucidated.

On Friday, the 17th inst., the evening discourse will be given by Mr. Balfour Stewart, F.R.S., "On the latest discoveries concerning the sun's surface."

The shipments of treasure from San Francisco last year amounted to nearly 56,000,000 dols. the largest amount, a San Francisco paper states, ever shipped in a like period.

A treaty has come into force between Bavaria, Saxony, Hanover, and Wirtemberg for carrying out identical police regulations respecting passports, and all German States will be invited to adopt it. The most important reform relates to the abolition of the visa on the frontiers.

A private letter from Paris states that at a masked ball the other night, three men personating Julius Cæsar, Charlemagne, and Napoleon I. respectively, were walking arm in arm admist roars of laughter. Cæsar was dressed like an ancient Roman exquisite, and scratched his head with his finger. When the crowd interrupted their movements the great Roman rebuked them with humorous gravity by saying, "Happy the people who understand and obey us; woe to those who disregard and oppose us."

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

1st Life Guards: Lieut.-Gen. the Earl of Lucan, K.C.B., to be Colonel: First-class Veterinary Surg. M. Mence to be Veterinary Surgeon.

8th Hussars: Major-Gen. J. Lawrenson to be Colonel. 19th: Lieut.-Gen. J. Hall to be Colonel.

Royal Artillery: Major-Gen. E. Sabine to be Colonel Commandant; Brevet Col., with temporary rank of Brigadier General, J. H. Lefroy to be Colonel; Brevet Major C. R. O. Evans to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capt. C. B. Brackenbury to be Captain; Lieut. C. D. Chalmers to be Second Captain; Cadets H. S. Ford, F. Howard, and G. H. Palmer to be Lieutenants.

Coast Brigade of Artillery: Master Gunner J. W. Hunter to be Lieutenant.

3rd Foot: J. C. Brown to be Ensign. 4th: Lieut. B. H. Vidal to be Lieutenant. 5th: Lieut. C. L. Dashwood to be Captain; Ensign J. H. Clutterbuck to be Lieutenant; Cadet F. W. Saunders to be Ensign. 11th: Lieut. F. J. S. Whiteside to be Captain; Ensign B H. Vaughton to be Lieutenant; O. Bond to be Ensign. 13th: Major and Brevet-Col. J. W. Cox, C.B., to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. R. Peel to be Major; Lieut. T. T. Gould to be Captain; Ensign S. Flower to be Lieutenant; Cadet R. A. Jalland to be Ensign. 23rd: Lieut. G. F. R. Colt to be Captain; Ensign G. A. Dawson to be Lieutenant; C. J. Gilbert to be Ensign. 25th: Ensign W. H. Hale and Lieut. J. M. Grant to be Lieutenants; Cadet H. Kemble to be Ensign; Staff-Surg. W. Y. Jeeves to be Surgeon. 29th: Ensign J. W. Boyfield to be Lieutenant; E. J. H. Spratt to be Ensign. 32nd: Capt. A. R. Fowler to be Captain. 39th: Lieut. F. S. Hore to be Captain; Ensign D. B. Tarleton to be Lieutenant; Cadet C. P. Egerton to be Ensign. 41st: Capt. S. B. Noble to be Captain. 42nd: Ensign A. M. Creagh to be Lieutenant; S. G. Hulse to be Ensign. 47th: Lieut. H. Gem to be Captain; Ensign L. W. Atkinson to be Lieutenant; H. E. Poole to be Ensign. 67th: Ensign T. Davidson to be Lieutenant; Cadet T. F. E. Knox to be Ensign. 73rd: Lieut.-Gen. Sir H. R. F. Davie, Bart., to be Colonel. 83rd: Capt. E. G. Johnson to be Captain. 85th: Lieut. the Hon. C. Dutton to be Lieutenant. 108th: Ensign F. W. Graham to be Lieutenant.

Rifle Brigade: Capt. G. L. Huyshe to be Captain; Lieut. H. A. St. John Mildmay to be Captain; Ensign A. Arbuthnot to be Lieutenant; E. A. P. Burnell to be Ensign.

1st West India Regiment: Ensign W. H. Hill to be Lieutenant. 2nd: Lieut. C. C. Sayce to be Lieutenant; A. D. A. Furse to be Ensign. 4th: Capt. W. J. Coen to be Captain; Lieut. A. R. Lees to be Captain; J. Crum and P. Shephard to be Ensigns.

BREVET.

Paymaster T. Hunt to have the honorary rank of Captain. Deputy Commissary J. Brooke to have the honorary rank of Lieutenant.

The undermentioned promotions to take place consequent on the decease of Lieutenant-General R. Powney, Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, on Jan. 23, 1865:—Major-Gen. G. Conran to be Lieutenant-General; Col. C. S. Reid to be Major-General.

The undermentioned promotions to take place consequent on the decease of General G. Cobbe, Royal Artillery, on Feb. 8, 1865:—Lieut.-Gen. A. C. Mercer to be General; Major-Gen. J. E. Dupuis to be Lieutenant-General; Col. J. M'Coy to be Major-General; Major W. A. Armstrong to be Lieutenant-Colonel.

The undermentioned promotions to take place consequent on the decease of General W. Pattle, C.B., Colonel 18th Hussars, on Feb. 9, 1865:—Lieut.-Gen. J. Drummond to be General; Major-Gen. G. H. Mackinnon to be Lieutenant-General; Brevet Col. Lord H. H. M. Percy to be Major-General; Major S. Hackett to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. J. D. Reece to be Major.

ADMIRALTY.

Commander S. Douglas to be Captain; Lieuts. C. F. Knowles, H. R. Stewart, A. G. Bogle, and E. Kelly to be Commanders; Sub-Lieut. H. C. Walker to be Lieutenant.

Mr. J. Phillips has been promoted to the rank of First-class Assistant Engineer in her Majesty's Fleet.

A Parliamentary return issued on Monday shows that 379 men were flogged in the Army of Great Britain and Ireland, including home, Indian, and colonial stations, in the year 1862. The number of lashes inflicted was 18,180 out of the 18,600 sentenced. No case is recorded in the militia. The number of men marked with the letter "D" was 1492, and thirty-seven were marked with the letters "B C."

The following officers of the Navy have been permitted to accept and wear the Order of the Legion of Honour, conferred upon them by the Emperor of the French, as a mark of his Majesty's approbation of their services, in conjunction with the naval forces of his Imperial Majesty, during the recent operations in the Strait of Simonosaki, in Japan:—Sir Augustus Leopold Kuper, Rear-Admiral, the insignia of Grand Officer of the said Order; Captain Hayes, C.B., the insignia of a Commander of the said order; Captain William Garnham Luard, Captain Dowell, C.B.; Captain Leckie, and Captain Alexander, C.B., the insignia of officer of the said order. Colonel Suther, of the Marines, has also been permitted to accept the insignia of officer of the same order. Admiral Kuper has also been allowed to accept and wear the Cross of a Commander of the military Order of William of the Netherlands; and Captain Hayes the Cross of a Knight of the third class of the same order.

The Council of Military Education has issued its second report on Army schools, libraries, and recreation-rooms. After a minute review of the progress made since the last report, the council makes the following general remarks:—"The council think it will be seen that the efforts which have now for several years been made for the improvement of the position of the soldier and of his family have had, upon the whole, satisfactory results as respects education, and also as regards the difficult but most important question of the employment of the soldier in his hours of leisure. That more—very much more—has not been done in respect to education is not to be ascribed to any deficiency in the staff of teachers, nor, it is believed, to any unwillingness generally on the part of the pupils, but to those multifarious duties which occupy the time of the soldier, and make his attendance at school both infrequent and irregular. A way of meeting this great difficulty, and at the same time of leavening a whole corps with sound and useful information, has been suggested by the formation of special classes; and the council feel no doubt that by such a plan it is in the power of any commanding officer to provide within his corps a large body of sufficiently educated men from among whom to select non-commissioned officers, and thus to enable the school to work in the most direct manner towards the efficiency of the regiment."

The annual report of the state of the Patriotic Fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of those who lost their lives in the late war with Russia has been laid before Parliament. The contributions received amounted to £1,459,734, and it is stated that a further sum of about £5000 might be expected from a bequest made by the widow of a Paymaster of the Royal Marines, besides what may become of the Rodriguez bequest. The expenditure to the end of 1863 amounted to £627,202. In April last there were upon the pension list 150 widows of officers, receiving £5448 a year from the fund; 3119 widows of non-commissioned officers and men, receiving £33,894 a year; 3443 orphan children, of whom 290 were in the Victoria Asylum, and to the remaining 3153 was appropriated £28,817 a year; also 251 orphan children of officers, £5169 a year; to which must be added £7380 for apprentice premiums, outfits, and management—this latter item amounting to £2380 a year. Mr. Finlaison estimates that in April next the liabilities of the fund will be, in present value, £798,879; and the value of the assets will be £931,143, showing a probable surplus of £132,264. The report gives an account of the inspection of the several schools and asylums in which the children are placed, and states that application has been made by Lord Petre and Mr. C. Langdale for a grant for the building and endowment of separate orphanages for the children of Roman Catholic soldiers and sailors, representing that the Duke of Norfolk's trustees will grant land for the purpose, and reminding the Commissioners that they have already devoted a portion of their surplus fund towards orphanages, which will, after a certain period, be used for the children of the soldiers and sailors in her Majesty's service generally. The Commissioners regret that the necessity of maintaining a reserve fund precludes the possibility of entertaining the application at present. They consider that the proportion of Roman Catholics in the service is so large that at least £50,000 would be required for the endowment of Roman Catholic orphanages. They add that the sxms which have been appropriated for the Victoria Asylum amount to no less than £237,973, and that it is open to Roman Catholic girls, and facilities are afforded for the religious education of children of all persuasions. Provision appears to be at present made from the fund for fifty-two boys and sixty-five girls in Roman Catholic orphanages and schools.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel F. G. T. Deshon, of the 2nd Dépôt Battalion at Chatham, has been appointed an assistant inspector of volunteers.

The winter general meeting of the National Rifle Association took place last Saturday, at Willis's Rooms, for the purpose of receiving the report as to the operations of the association for the past year. The Duke of Cambridge, president of the association, occupied the chair, and was supported by Earl Dalhousie, Earl Grosvenor, the Speaker of the House of Commons, Earl Cowper, General Sir J. Burgoyne, General Eyre, Colonel M'Murdo, Lord Elcho, Colonel Erskine (the new Inspector-General of Volunteers), Lord Colville, Colonel Kennedy, Colonel Tyrwhitt, Colonel Wright, Lieutenant-Colonel Cochrane, Major Oxley, Rev. Harcourt Skrine, Sir John Anson, Colonel Warde, the Hon. Frederick Byng, Major Charter (Adjutant of the Queen's), Captain Flood Page (London Scottish), Major G. Russell, Captain Palmer, Captain Templer, Mr. Luxmoore, Captain Edward Ross, and many other persons of mark. The report (of which an abstract has been published in this Journal) was considered as read, after which his Royal Highness addressed the meeting, congratulating them on the flourishing condition of the association. Their funds were more prosperous and their members more numerous than ever. The branch associations had also increased, and there was every prospect that, large as was the sum spent in prizes at the last Wimbledon meeting, the sum for the ensuing year would be larger still. Among the new prizes is a "China cup," for which the British residents of Hong-Kong have subscribed the sum of 500 guineas. The resolutions proposed were unanimously agreed to, and, his Royal Highness having been again elected president, the meeting adjourned.

A large muster of the members of the 2nd Manchester assembled last Saturday on their range, at Astley, to compete for the regimental challenge cup presented to the corps by Lieutenant-Colonel Mawson. Some excellent scoring was made. The cup was won by Colour-Sergeant Smith.——Last Saturday a match came off on the ground of the 56th (Salford) Lancashire at Clifton between No. 2 and No. 4 companies of the above regiment. No. 4 Company won by three marks.——A competition took place on the ground of the 3rd Manchester at Barton Moss, last Saturday, between the married and single members of the 1st Manchester. The single members won the match by twenty-six marks.——On Saturday last the members of No. 8 (Captain Philips's) Company of the 1st Manchester assembled on the shooting-range of the Stockport volunteers to compete for their new challenge cup, value £10, and three money prizes. Sergeant Green won the cup and first money prize, and Lance-Corporal Canfield the second. Sergeant Thomas and Private Russell tied for the third prize; on shooting off it was won by the former.

THE SANCY DIAMOND.

THE accompanying Illustration shows the exact shape of the celebrated Sancy diamond, which has been purchased, for £20,000, by Messrs. R. and S. Garrard and Co., of the Haymarket, for Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, the great Parsee merchant, of Bombay. The historical interest of this gem is worthy of remark. It once belonged to Charles the Bold, last Sovereign Duke of Burgundy, who wore it in his cap at the Battle of Nancy, where his army was routed and himself slain, in the year 1477. A Swiss mercenary soldier found the diamond among the spoils of the battle-field, and sold it to a French gentleman, M. de Sancy, whose family kept it nearly two centuries, though it was lost upon one occasion—having been intrusted to a servant, who was charged to carry it to Switzerland to be deposited there as security for the payment of the Swiss troops hired by King Henry III. The servant was attacked by robbers and murdered; but when his corpse was opened—having been disinterred after his burial—the diamond was found safe in his stomach. He had swallowed it to prevent the robbers from taking it away. At a later period this jewel passed from the Barons de Sancy to the Crown of France, and it was worn by Louis XIV. and Louis XV. at their coronations. It was stolen by the sansculottes at the sack of the Tuileries, in 1789. It then became the property of the Queen of Spain, who gave it to her paramour, Godoy, the Prince of Peace, and from him it passed to the family of Prince Demidoff, its last possessors. This diamond is of peculiar form, being neither of a brilliant nor a perfect rose cut. It is what is called a briolette—that is, a solid drop; but it differs from a briolette in having flattened tables back and front, a perfect briolette being cut to a point. The facets are very regular and well cut, which leads to the belief that, although the stone retains its original form, the work has been gone over and improved at no very distant date. We are the more inclined to this idea from the fact that the stone was said to weigh originally 55 carats, but its weight now is only 53½ ¼ carats.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE QUEEN DOWAGER OF THE NETHERLANDS.

Her Majesty Anna-Pawlowna, Queen Dowager of the Netherlands, was the youngest daughter of Paul, Emperor of Russia, by his second consort, Princess Sophia Dorothea Augusta (Marie Feodorowna), daughter of Duke Frederick Eugène of Wirtemberg, and was the sister of Alexander I. and Nicholas, Emperors of Russia, and aunt of Alexander II., present Emperor of Russia. Her Majesty was born Jan. 18, 1795, and was married, Feb. 21, 1816, to William II., King of the Netherlands, by whom (who died March 17, 1849) she leaves issue William III., King of the Netherlands; Prince Henry, Lieutenant-Admiral of the Danish fleet and Lieutenant of the King in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg; and the Grand Duchess Sophia, wife of Charles Alexander, reigning Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach. The Dowager Queen of the Netherlands died on the 1st inst. Her consort, prior to his union with her, while Prince of Orange, was, it will be remembered, a suitor for the hand of Princess Charlotte of Wales.

LADY JERVIS.

This lady was the elder daughter (by his wife, Lady Elizabeth Jane Lambart, daughter of Richard, sixth Earl of Cavan) of Captain William Henry Ricketts, R.N., nephew, and heir-presumptive to the viscountcy, of the great Admiral John, Earl of and Viscount St. Vincent. Captain Ricketts assumed the name of Jervis, by Royal sign-manual, in 1801; but died during the lifetime of his uncle (he was drowned by the upsetting of his barge in the Channel while carrying despatches to the Commander-in-Chief). He left no male issue. Upon the death of Admiral Lord St. Vincent, in 1823, the elder daughter of Captain Jervis, Martha Honora Georgina (the subject of this notice), succeeded under the Admiral's will to his favourite estate and residence of Rochetts, near Brentwood, in the county of Essex. Miss Jervis was married, first, June 25, 1821, to Osborne Markham, Esq., youngest son of the Most Rev. William Markham, Archbishop of York, and leaves by him an only daughter and heiress, Martha, wife of the Rev. William Henley Pearson, M.A., of Christ Church, Oxford, second son of the late Dean of Salisbury. Mr. Osborne Markham died in 1827; and, in 1834, his widow contracted a second alliance with Lieutenant-General Sir William Cockburn, Bart. (who died March 19, 1835), and she was thenceforth known as Lady Jervis, being compelled to retain that surname. By her second marriage Lady Jervis had no issue. She died at Ballbrook Lodge, near Bath, in the seventy-first year of her age, on the 26th ult.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL BENJAMIN ORLANDO JONES, K.H.

Lieutenant-General Benjamin Orlando Jones, K.H., Colonel of the 73rd (Perthshire) Regiment of Foot, who died recently at The Hafod, the romantic seat of the family near Abergavenny, entered the British Army as an Ensign in the 28th Regiment in the summer of 1805, and was in the campaign of 1805-6 in Hanover, and subsequently proceeded to the Peninsula. During the first two campaigns he was incessantly employed, not being one day away from the duties of his regiment, and he shared in the glories of Roleia and Vimiera. He became attached to the Portuguese service in April, 1809, and was at Busaco, the occupation of the lines of Lisbon, the actions of Redinha and Condiexa, Puente de Marcella, Cassal Nova, Ceira, Guarda, Foz d'Arouce, Sabugal, and Fuentes d'Onor; also at the storming of the forts of Salamanca, where he was wounded; Bayonne (Dec. 9), at St. Jean de Luz (Dec. 11, 12, and 13), the passage of the Adour, the blockade of Bayonne, and repulse of the sortie. In recognition of his military services he was made a Knight of the Hanoverian Order in 1837, and was a Knight of the Order of Charles III. of Spain. He had received the silver war medal and seven clasps. He became a Captain in 1812, a Colonel in 1851, a Major-General in 1855, and a Lieutenant-General Nov. 12, 1862. He was appointed Colonel of the 73rd Foot in September, 1860.

VICE-ADMIRAL E. R. WILLIAMS.

Admiral Edward Richard Williams, who was found dead in his bed, at his temporary residence at Leamington, on the 21st ult., was an officer of long and active service. He entered the Royal Navy in 1804 as a volunteer, when he joined the Neptune. After being with the Bellona on the coast of North America, he sailed with the Bucephalus to the East Indies, where he attained the rank of midshipman. He went again to the Mediterranean, and assisted at the reduction of Genoa. On returning to England in the Impregnable, he was promoted to the rank of Commander. After much further laborious duty in the Mediterranean, he was advanced to post rank in 1827, and in 1837 was made Flag-Captain to Sir Thomas Williams, at Portsmouth. He attained the rank of Vice-Admiral in 1860. The Admiral was married, and leaves issue.

FIELD MARSHAL LORD COMBERMERE.—A correspondent, in correction of last week's notice of the eminent Field Marshal, observes:—"Lord Combermere was not the eldest son of Sir Robert Salusbury Cotton, the fifth Baronet. Sir Robert's marriage with Miss Frances Russel-Stapleton took place in 1767. Their eldest son, Robert Salusbury Cotton (who died in 1799), was born at Lleweny, in the county of Denbigh, on Sept. 11, 1768. Two daughters were born in the two succeeding years—viz., Frances, the Countess of Kilmorey), on Dec. 1, 1769; and Penelope, on Dec. 31, 1770." This information, given from the registers of Bodvari, Denbighshire, completely (as there is no mention of twins) contradicts the generally-received averment that the Field Marshal was born in 1769, and adds to the probability that he was born in 1772.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Baroness Harriet De Dunstanville and Basset, late of Charles-street, Berkeley-square, widow, was proved in the London Court under £20,000 personalty—the executors nominated being her Ladyship's brother, Sir Charles Lemon, Bart., who is appointed residuary legatee; and William Twopenny, Esq., of the Middle Temple, who is the acting executor, and to whom a legacy of £100 is bequeathed, free of duty. There are legacies to her Ladyship's two sisters and two nieces; also legacies of £400 each to her Ladyship's maid, housekeeper, and coachman; and £300 to her butler, all to be paid free of duty; and to all her servants one year's wages and mourning.

The will of Miss Elizabeth Hervey, late of Park-street, Grosvenor-square, formerly of Englefield-green, Surrey, was proved in London, on the 24th ult., by her nephew, Sir Frederick Hutchinson Hervey Bathurst, Bart., the sole executor. The personalty was sworn under £90,000. The will is dated in 1861, and there are six codicils. The bequests are liberally bestowed. To Sir Charles Knightley, Bart., and Sir Frederick H. H. Bathurst, Bart., each a legacy of £10,000; and a like legacy to four of her nieces, and liberal legacies to others. To her niece Selina Hervey Bathurst she bequeaths her jewellery, books, and pictures absolutely, and the use of her plate and furniture for her life. Her real estate and the residue of the personalty she bequeaths to her nephews Thomas J. H. Bathurst, Esq., and Rainald Knightley, Esq., M.P. To each of her servants she leaves a legacy of £100, in addition to any wages or other benefits under the will. To St. George's Hospital, King's College Hospital, Cripples' Home, and Cambridge Asylum, each £250, free of duty. To the poor of Egham £200, to be distributed by the Incumbent in sums not to exceed £20, preference being given to the old and infirm.

The will of Sir John Henry Pelly, Bart., of Warnham Court, near Horsham, Sussex, and of Upton House, West Ham, Essex, was proved in London on the 20th of February. The personalty was sworn under £20,000, c cting executors and trustees nominated being the testator's brothers, Raymond Pelly, Esq., of Woodford, and Percy Leonard Pelly, Esq., of Tokenhouse-yard, power being reserved to John Carstairs M'Neill, Esq., of Gigha, Argyle, Scotland. His estates in Sussex and Essex are entailed on his eldest son, now Sir Henry Carstairs Pelly, Bart., who is of age this year. Sir John has directed a sum of £7000 to be paid over to the trustees under his wife's marriage settlement. Provision is made for his younger son, and also for his daughters. The testator succeeded to the title in 1852. He was Deputy Lieutenant for Essex, and was High Sheriff for Hunts and Cambridgeshire in 1857; and died at the age of fifty-six.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. BOSBING.—In the position mentioned ("Chessplayer's Handbook," page 150), if Black, at move 6, take the Q B Pawn, White evidently wins a piece by taking the K Kt with K Pawn.

I. H. G. B.—Your problem shall be noticed next week.

R. S., Malines.—In that case White simply plays—2. R to K 8th, and mates next move.

T. C.—The rule in such a case as the one mentioned is thus given in "Chess Praxis," p. 36:—"In a game of this description (games by correspondence) a move once dispatched by the medium agreed on cannot be recalled. If a legal move, it must be abided by; and if an illegal one, the party sending it will be subjected to the same penalty as for a false move played with an opponent vis-à-vis.

DUBITAS.—Look at the position again attentively.

B. B. FISHERTON.—You overlook the fact that Black can interpose the K Kt Pawn.

C. HERD.—No; it cannot be so solved.

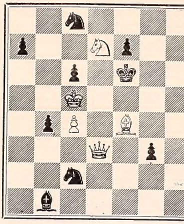
C. and K., Liberia.—They are very promising, and want but little to be well worth publication. A few more specimens of Liberian Chess will be acceptable.

MATEO DE ZAMORA.—Your problem shall receive every attention.

THEO. E., Cambridge.—The key-move is—1. R to K Kt 8th.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1096, by Clericus, F. G., R. B. C., Nancy, H. C., George, B. P. D., Box and Cox, Letty, M. P., D. C. L., Subscriber, Nereus, Lizzie, I. W. R., Manfred and Man Friday, The Trio, Schoolboy, Vox, Peter, E. C. F., Alpha and Beta, Naas, I. Ll Calsi, W. V. F., Ernest, B. A., Oxoniensis, D. T., Iota, Fergus, Cantab, S. B, St. Botolph; Theo; Ellis, Cambridge; Bath Archer, Lobro, Boston Stump; E., St. Omer; I. B. D., Locksley, Ossian, Edward, P. D. E., Annie Laurie, Dr. Fould, Percy, Victoria; S. O., Nantwich; Pendragon, Imogene, W. N. G., G. Allan of Prees, Dereven, Julio, A. M., I. of Darlington, I. H. Powick, F. R. A., P. T. C., Lucy, Stanley, I. Pulford, I. H. G. B., Alfyn, D. K., T. C. D., G. E. L., Aunt Sally, Mark, and L. S. D. are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1097.



WHITE.	BLACK.
1. R to K 6th (ch)	B takes R
2. R to Q 4th (ch)	K takes R (best)
3. Kt to Q B 6th (ch)	K takes Kt
4. B to K B 3rd. Mate.

(If he move the King to K 4th, then follows 4. Kt to Q B 3d. Mate.)

PROBLEM NO. 1098.

By Mr. T. SMITH.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A lively little Game between two good English players.—(Allgaier Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. Gossip).	WHITE (Mr. Zachary).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to K Kt 5th
5. Kt to K 5th	P to Q 3rd
6. Kt tks K Kt P	B to K 2nd
7. P to Q 4th	B takes P (ch)
8. Kt to K B 2nd	Q to K Kt 4th

(The variations of attack in this beautiful opening are almost as infinite as those in the still more charming Evans's Gambit).

9. Q to K B 3rd	B to K Kt 6th
10. Kt to Q B 3rd	P to K R 4th
11. Kt to Q 5th	B to K Kt 5th

(This is an ill-judged move in many respects).

12. Q B takes P

(He might also have played, with advantage, Q to Q B 3rd.)

12.	Q takes Kt
13. Q takes K B	Q takes Q P
14. P to Q B 3rd

(Good; but B to Q 2nd would have been much better.)

14.	Q to K Kt 2nd
15. Kt takes B	P takes Kt
16. R takes P	Q takes R
17. Q takes P	Kt to Q 2nd
18. Castles	Castles
19. B to Q B 4th	Q to K R 2nd
20. P to K 5th	P to K B 4th
21. Q to K Kt 5th	P takes P
22. B takes P	Q to K R 3rd
23. B to K B 4th	Q takes Q
24. B takes Q	R to K sq
25. B to K B 7th	R to K B sq
26. B to K 6th and White resigns.

CHESS IN AMERICA.

Game between Mr. ELDER, one of the most promising players in the States, and Mr. BURY.—(Evans's Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. E.)	BLACK (Mr. B.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
10. B to Q Kt 5th	B takes Kt
11. P takes B	P to Q R 3rd
12. B to Q R 4th	B to Q R 4th
13. Q to Q B 2nd	Q to K B 3rd

(The position now is extremely critical on both sides.)

14. Kt to K 2nd

(If we mistake not, White might safely have played his Kt to Q 5th, and then have taken the adverse Kt with the Bishop, if Black took the K B Pawn with his Queen.)

14.	K to B sq
15. B takes Kt	P takes B
16. Q takes Q B P	R to Q Kt sq
17. P to K B 4th	Kt to K 2nd
18. Q to Q B 2nd	P to K R 4th
19. K to R sq	P to K Kt 3rd
20. B to K 3rd	P to Q 4th
21. P takes P	Q to K B 4th

(He would evidently have lost a piece if he had taken the Pawn with his Kt.)

22. Q takes Q	Kt takes Q
23. Q R to Q B sq	R to K sq
24. R to Q B 5th	Kt takes B
25. P takes Kt	R takes P
26. R takes B	R takes Kt
27. R takes Q R P	R to Q 7th
28. K R to Q B sq	K to Kt 2nd
29. K R takes Q B P	K R to K sq
30. R to Q B sq	K R to K 7th and the game is drawn.

A Game between Mr. ELDER and Mr. THOMPSON, played at the New York Chess Club.—(Evans's Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Mr. E.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Q to K B 3rd
10. P to K 5th	P takes P
11. P takes P	Q to K Kt 3rd
12. B to Q R 3rd	K Kt to K 2nd
13. Kt to Q B 3rd	Castles
14. Kt to Q 5th	Kt takes Kt

(Very well played.)

15. B takes R	Kt to Q R 4th

(K Kt to K B 5th would have been valueless.)

16. Q to Q R 4th	B to K R 6th
17. Kt to K R 4th	Q to K Kt 5th
18. B to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to K B 5th
19. P to K Kt 3rd	Kt takes B
20. Q R P takes Kt	Kt to K 7th (ch)
21. K to R sq	Q takes Q
22. P takes Q	B takes R

and Black resigns.

CHESS ENIGMAS.

No. 1445.—By an AMATEUR.

White: K at Q B 7th, R at K B sq, B at K 4th, Kts at Q 3rd and 5th, P at Q B 2nd.

Black: K at Q 5th, Kt at K 4th, P at Q B 5th.

White, playing first, to mate in four moves.

No. 1446.—By Mr. ROSMAN.

White: K at Q Kt 2nd, Q at K Kt 7th, Kt at K B 5th, P at K 5th.

Black: K at K 3rd, B at Q 4th, Kt at K B 3rd, P at K 5th.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

Forests of the great tree, Sequoia gigantea (termed also Wellingtonia and Washingtonia), have been discovered by Professor W. H. Brewer, State Geologist of California, in great abundance on the western banks of the Sierra Nevada, along a belt at between 5000 ft. and 7000 ft. altitude. Professor Brewer, in a letter recently communicated to the Linnean Society, describes the grandeur these trees impart to the scenery, sometimes a hundred being in sight at once, their rich foliage contrasting finely with their cinnamon-coloured bark. The largest tree he saw was 276 ft. high and 106 ft. in circumference at 4 ft. from the ground. Its circumference, which had been reduced by fire, had been originally 115 ft. or 120 ft. There seems no danger of the speedy extinction of the species, as immense numbers of trees are found, from the seedling up to the largest size.

A new mineral has been discovered by Mr. W. E. Brown in a cargo of phosphatic guano from an island in the Caribbean Sea. Mr. G. E. Moore, who has communicated an account of it to the American Journal of Sciences, names it Brushite, after the eminent mineralogist, Professor Brush, of Yale College. The mineral is found in the guano as seams, varying from a fourth to an eighth of an inch in breadth, in the form of small but very perfect crystals of a yellowish white colour. When heated in a closed tube before the blowpipe the mineral whitens, and at an incipient white heat gives off water. Chemical analysis revealed the presence of lime, phosphoric acid, and water, with barely discernible traces of magnesia and alumina. In the polarising microscope it showed a vivid succession of colours.

Dr. Charles T. Jackson, the State Geologist of Massachusetts, has reported the discovery of what he terms an inexhaustible bed of the best emery in the world at Chester, Hampden county, in the middle of Massachusetts, and refers to the English saying, "That a good mine of emery is worth more to a manufacturing people than many mines of gold." He states that he discovered the emery while examining a hard rock excavated by the miners, who supposed it to be iron ore. He soon found it would scratch quartz and topaz readily, and that it possessed all the properties of emery. Chemical analysis gave—alumina, 45·50; protoxide of iron, 45; silica and titanic acid, 11·50. Regarding the oxide of iron, which he dissolved out by acids, as accidental, and that which cannot be so removed as an essential constituent, Dr. Jackson thinks that emery must be ranked as a distinct species, and not as a mere granular form of corundum or sapphire.

At a recent meeting of the Chemical Society a paper by Mr. John Broughton, of the Royal Institution Laboratory, was read, in which he describes a new reaction for the production of anhydrides and ethers by means of bisulphide of carbon, which excited much interest. Mr. Broughton has thus obtained what others have failed to procure—the acetate of phenyl, a colourless liquid somewhat heavier than phenylic alcohol, and boiling at 200 deg. Centigrade. It is not decomposed by boiling water and is neutral to test-paper. Its index of refraction appears to be identical with that of the German fusible glass, which was demonstrated at the evening meeting at the Royal Institution on Feb. 24, when some pieces of glass rod placed in a small bottle of the liquid became nearly invisible.

Dr. Hermann Sprengel's researches on the vacuum appear in the last numbers of the Chemical Society's Journal, with woodcuts representing the apparatus employed, which is very simple in its construction and which performs its work with great perfection. Dr. Sprengel describes the methods by which he displayed the immense elasticity of air in a very striking manner, and gives, in the following words, the main result of his labours:—"If a liquid be allowed to run down a tube, to the upper part of which a receiver is attached by means of a lateral tube, and if the height at which the receiver is attached be not less than that of the column of the liquid, which can be supported by the atmospheric pressure, a vacuum will be formed in the receiver, minus the tension of the liquid employed."

Mr. Fleeming Jenkin, secretary to the committee on electrical standards, appointed by the British Association in 1861, announces, in the Philosophical Magazine, that copies of the standard can be had on application to himself. The unit coil and box will be sent on the remittance of £2 10s. He states that the standard is a close approximation to 10,000,000 metre-seconds in Weber's absolute electro-magnetic system, determined according to new and careful experiments by different members of the committee, and the copies are made of an alloy of platinum and silver in a well-chosen form.

Some interesting remarks on the construction of the feet of insects are given in the introduction of Professor Schjödte's paper "On the Classification of Cerambyces," with particular regard to the Danish fauna, which appears in the new number of the Annals of Natural History. He says that only those plantigrade insects have foot-pads whose mode of life requires that they should move on highly-inclined dry surfaces, and accordingly the foot-pads consists of innumerable thick hairs, broader, softer, and more or less divided at the tips, collectively forming an even and almost smooth surface under the foot, soft as velvet, which slopes outwards towards the point of the foot. Two sets of neighbouring organs—spurs and claws—facilitate the working of the foot-pads.

At a recent meeting of the French Academy of Sciences a communication was read from Father Secchi, of Rome, relating to the influence of the atmosphere on the rays of the spectrum and the constitution of the sun. After describing his apparatus and experiments, he says that the phenomena of luminous absorption fully accord with the great power of thermic absorption possessed by the vapour of water which had been rendered so clear by the delicate experiments of Tyndall and Magnus. With regard to the solar structure, he notices the luminous base, which he compares to a network filled with white dots, more or less elongated, and refers to the singular filaments of all forms, resembling threads of cotton, which accompany the penumbra of the solar spots. At the same meeting a note was read, from M. Tresca, describing the movement of ice through an orifice under strong pressure. Dr. Tyndall's experiments have shown that ice may take up any form in a mould; and M. Tresca's experiments now show that when ice is pressed through an orifice it obeys the geometric law observed in the flowing of liquids. M. Tresca comments on this phenomenon in relation to the motion of glaciers.

At the meeting of the Geological Society, on Feb. 22, a communication from Professor Harkness was read, relating to the Lower Silurian Rocks of Cumberland and Westmorland, in which he showed that they mainly consisted of Skiddaw slates, with interstratified greenstone, porphyry and ash, and a band of fossiliferous shale. Mr. R. Spruce communicated a note on the volcanic tufa of Latacunga, at the foot of Cotopaxi, and on some volcanic mud from the Quitenian Andes. It appears that the tufa is not only used for building purposes, but is also employed by smiths instead of charcoal, since, when heated to redness, it emits considerable heat, but very little flame. The mud was described as compact, slightly argillaceous, and more or less saline, and as occurring in rocklike masses, yielding very slowly to atmospheric agency, or even to running water. The last paper read was by Dr. H. P. Blackmore, being an account of the discovery of a large number of excellent flint implements of the long-pointed kind in the drift gravel at Milford Hill, Salisbury. This gravel is from ten to twelve feet thick on the top of the hill, becoming thinner and gradually dying away at the sides. The hill is quite isolated from surrounding higher land by river valleys, its highest point being about 100 ft. from the level of the rivers. Four species of land-shells and a single tooth of a species of horse were the only fossils found in a bed of sand, discovered by a cutting made on the south-east side of the hill.

The discussion respecting the rival theories of the origin of the Alpine lakes and valleys is continued in the Philosophical Magazine in a paper by Professor Alphonse Favre, of Geneva, who expresses his adhesion to the "fracture" in preference to the "erosion" theory. Referring to the lake of Geneva and its neighbourhood, and the evidence disclosed of great disturbance and reversal of the strata, he says that he is confident that "it is in such fractures that the true origin of these lake-basins is to be found." He adds that the ancient glaciers, not having had the power of removing the older drift below Geneva, have not had the power to produce in the lake-basins what is called their excavation. He considers that the sort of basin to which the lake of Geneva belongs is not the result of a cause acting on the surface of the globe, but is what may be termed a volcanic effect (in the sense assigned by Humboldt)—viz., the influence excited by the interior forces of a planet on its external crust in the different stages of its cooling. In the same number is a note by Dr. Werner Siemens, of Berlin, on the heating of the glass plate of the Leyden jar by the discharge. After stating that the heating effect can be due neither to conduction through the glass, nor compression by attraction of the armatures, nor to the penetration of electricity into the glass, he says, that if we assume with Faraday that the charge and discharge depend on a progressive molecular motion in the insulator which separates the coatings, the fact of the heating of this insulator is no longer surprising.

The Government have determined to arm the whole of the cavalry with carbines on the breech-loading principle, and have selected the Westley Richards gun as the arm of the service.

The Queen has appointed Major-General George Hutt, C.B., to be Secretary and Registrar to the Commissioners for the government of Chelsea Hospital, in the room of A. J. Moorhead, Esq., resigned.

The Gazette of yesterday se'nnight contains the official announcement that Sir Frederick Bruce, who lately returned to England on leave of absence from his post as our Ambassador at Pekin, has been appointed our Ambassador at Washington, in place of Lord Lyons, resigned.

Tuesday's Gazette contained notices of the appointment of Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, Knt., to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Island of Ceylon and its dependencies; and of Hugh William Hoyles, Esq., to be Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Island of Newfoundland.

A venerable-looking gentleman was seen a few days back in the Avenue de Noailles, at Lyons, offering handfuls of gold and silver to the passers-by, and crying out, "To-morrow is the end of the world. I am rich; what can I do with my fortune? Let us share, my friends, and pass merrily the few moments which remain!" One woman alone accepted the proffered money. The person thus conducting himself was out of his mind. Some friends of his family, hearing of the incident, took him home.

NEW MUSIC.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions:—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Song by Titiens. In A and G		3s. 0d.
" "Hero to Leander." An exquisite Song		3s. 0d.
" "The Lark Song." Vocal Waltz		7s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again!"		3s. 0d.
" Beauty Sleep (L'Ardita)		3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Bacio)		3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night		3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing		3s. 0d.
V. GABRIEL—Little Golden Hair		3s. 0d.
" Breeze and the Harp		3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps! though not a star		3s. 0d.
" Ah, could I but re-live the past!		3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C		3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B		3s. 0d.
MORI—Rustic Song (River Sprite)		3s. 0d.
" Sunshine of love (ditto)		3s. 0d.
" Maid of the silver mall (ditto)		3s. 0d.
" Bright as love's dream. Duet		3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day		3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys! Yo-ho!" In C, B, and G		3s. 0d.
" Innamorata d'una stella. Aria		2s. 6d.
" La luna è bella. Aria		2s. 6d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove		3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo! says the gentle dove. In G and F		3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier! In A and F		3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and C		3s. 0d.
" "The Chieftain's Wife,"		3s. 0d.
" "In the hour of my distress." Sacred Song		3s. 0d.
ADAMS—When golden eve		2s. 6d.
SMYTH, R.A.—"Frappe Fort!"		3s. 0d.
PERRING—Beware!		2s. 6d.
MACFARREN—I've watched him		3s. 0d.
" Wear this flow'r		3s. 0d.
" Duet: Ne'er yield thy soul		3s. 0d.
ROBERTI—Duet: Faintly flow		3s. 0d.
" Child's Vision. Duet. S.C.		3s. 0d.
BILETTA—Duet: I Tamburi		3s. 6d.
VERDI—"Swiftly thro' the West." Boat Song.		3s. 0d.

II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo		5s. 0d.
" Tarantelle		4s. 0d.
" Mazurka, Cracovie		3s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each		3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naiades		5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella		3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré		3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes		4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn)		2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s.; Duet		4s. 0d.
" "Leah." Transcription		3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie		3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto		4s. 0d.
" Pandora. Bluette de Salon		3s. 0d.
SCHUMANN—Chanson dans le Jardin. Duet. Edited by Lindsay Sloper		5s. 0d.
SURENNE—Reverie d'Amour		4s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

MONTGOMERY—Starry Night Mazurka		3s. 0d.
DE VILLIERS—Donato Galop		4s. 0d.
" Donato Quadrille		4s. 0d.
" Poppies Red Valse		4s. 0d.
CLARKE—Witches' Own Galop		3s. 0d.
COOTE—Merry Wives' Quadrille		4s. 0d.
" She Stoops to Conquer, ditto		4s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Hellvellyn Galop		4s. 0d.
" " Waltzes		4s. 0d.
" " Quadrille		4s. 0d.
" Dark Eyes Valse		3s. 0d.
GIORZA—Limited Liability Galop		4s. 0d.
GODFREY—Coldstream Guards Quadrille		4s. 0d.
WARREN—River Sprite Quadrille		3s. 6d.
" Sleeping Queen Quadrille		3s. 0d.

IV.—CHAMBER OPERETTAS.

Now ready, scored for Voice and Piano, with or without Chorus, and suited for private performance.

1. BRIDE OF SONG.—BENEDICT.
2. SLEEPING QUEEN.—BALFE.
3. PUNCHINELLO.—LEVEY.
4. JESSY LEA.—MACFARREN.
5. RIVER SPRITE.—MORI.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application. All New Music sent at Half-price.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW VOCAL MUSIC.

O YE TEARS. (Abt.) Will be sung by Mdme. Sherrington at the Crystal Palace, March 18. 2s. 6d. Free for 16 stamps.
THE CUCKOO SONG. (Abt.) Sung, with complete success, by Mdlle. Liebhart. 3s. Free for 19 stamps.
THE LIQUID GEM. (Wrighton.) Sung, with unbounded applause, by Mdme. Sherrington. 2s. 6d. Free for 16 stamps.
JENNY OF THE MILL. (Leduc.) 3s. THE VILLAGE FLOWER GIRL. (Leduc.) 3s. COME, SING WITH ME. (Leduc.) 3s. Each free for 19 stamps.
"The beautiful, light, and sparkling music by M. Leduc."—Brighton Examiner.
SOFTLY THE BELLS ARE RINGING. (Leduc.) 2s. 6d. THE SARABAND. (Leduc.) 2s. 6d. BLONDINETTE. (Leduc.) 2s. 6d. Each free for 16 stamps.
THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. (Richards.) 3s. Free for 19 stamps.
THE THRUSHES AROUND US ARE SINGING. (Abt.) 2s. 6d. THE VOICE OF NIGHT. (Abt.) 2s. 6d. SWEET IS REST. (Abt.) 2s. 6d. Each free for 16 stamps.
THOU, O LORD. Sacred Song (Lindsay), 2s. 6d. Free for 16 stamps.
ADMIRED SONGS.—Words by Alfred Tennyson, Esq., D.C.L. (Poet Laureate); Music by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). "Airy Fairy Lilian," "Lady Clare de Vere," "The Brook," "The Song of Love and Death," "Maud," "Home they brought her Warrior dead," and "Too late, too late," each 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps each.
FIFTH gratuitous EDITION of ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S THEMATIC CATALOGUE of recently-published vocal music, giving the first four bars, &c., with the words of each song.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington-street, W. Agents for India—Messrs. Burkinyoung and Co., Calcutta.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad by S. GLOVER.—This truly beautiful song is now established as one of the leading favourites of the season. Mr. Glover has lately made a transcription of it for the Pianoforte, copies of which are now ready for delivery. Sent by post for 18 stamps each.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S ORPHÈE AUX ENFERS. A brilliant Fantaisie from Offenbach's popular Opera. Just published, price 3s.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S WOOD-NYMPH'S CALL. Sung by Mdme. Parepa, most successfully. Price 3s.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S EXILE'S DREAM. Sung by Mr. Santley. 6th Edition. Price 2s. 6d. (with Portrait of Mr. Santley).
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S SING ME A MERRY LAY. Composed for Adelina Patti. Price 2s. 6d. (with portrait).
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

LANGTON WILLIAMS'S SPARKLING CASCADES. This Mazurka brillante is quite equal to the celebrated "Fairy Footsteps," by the same Author.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

THE FOOTSTEP AT THE DOOR. New Ballad by Langton Williams. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Miss Louise Keeley at the Theatre Royal, Haymarket, with great success.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS, Cornets, Saxhorns, Circulating Vibrating Horns, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are all manufactured on the premises and sold at prices much below any other English house. A written guarantee given with every instrument. Cornets from £2 to £5. Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices and drawings post-free.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)

LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut. 10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut .. 15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut 20 guineas per annum.

Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)

Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut	2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	5 guineas per quarter.

Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE. 22 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small instrument. It has all the requisites of the best Pianoforte—check action, solid touch, agreeable tone. The case is of polished ash or pine. In practising on this Pianoforte the fingers of the player will be strengthened much more rapidly than on an old instrument loose in the key and worn in the hammer. In rosewood or walnut, 26 and 28 guineas.
Purchasers are particularly requested to observe that this instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or check action; and that Cramer and Co. were the original manufacturers.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 165 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to direct attention to these extremely elegant and greatly admired new Pianofortes. Cramer and Co. have selected the very finest specimens, and they will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 150 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The cases are of walnut and rosewood, and very elegant. The tone and touch are everything that can be wished for. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. exhibit the largest selection to be seen in London. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, in Rosewood, 135 guineas; in Walnut, 155 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. have selected from the manufactories of these celebrated makers the most perfect instruments, both as regards tone and touch, that have yet been produced. They are very greatly in advance of the older class of instruments, and come very near the power and fulness of the largest grand. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE new COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, at from 20 to 25 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the instrument becomes the property of the hirer without further payment. Hire paid quarterly.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they extend their system of three year's hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references and a quarter's hire in advance being the only indispensable preliminaries.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) manufacture for India a superior COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic bracings, and all other appliances necessary to resist the effect of extreme climates. Unusual skill and attention are bestowed upon the manufacture of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest commendation. Cramer and Co. deliver these instruments, f. o. b., packed in cases lined with zinc, at any home port, for 50 guineas. Size:—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in.; width, 4 ft. 4½ in.; depth, 2 ft. 1½ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

ERARD.—A NEW WALNUT GRAND PIANOFORTE, of very remarkable qualities has just been finished by Messrs. Erard, and placed in the Pianoforte Gallery of Messrs. Cramer and Co., 207, Regent-street. The power of tone of this magnificent instrument is even greater than that attained in the Pianofortes prepared especially for the public performances of M. Thalberg last season; while the quality of tone remains pure and equal. The instrument may be inspected at Messrs. Cramers' Gallery. The price is Two Hundred and Thirty-five Guineas.
Other fine specimens of the manufacture of Messrs. Broadwood and Messrs. Collard are now also on view.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA. Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,

THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

OLD PICTURES and ENGRAVINGS—by this extraordinary new Process they are restored from the most hopeless condition to their pristine purity by Mr. E. HAMMOND, 12, Baker-street, Portman-square.

FLOWER-BASKETS.—The New Designs of these beautiful Ornaments for the Dinner à la Russe, Drawing-room, and Conservatory, to be seen only at Messrs. HAMMONDS', Decorators to the Queen, 12, Baker-st., Portman-sq.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3¼in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £5, which will also distinguish the features of a man four miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power Pocket Telescopes, Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE MESSRS. SOLOMONS' NEWLY-INVENTED TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give by day and night extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. A genuine fine old Port, 36s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-street (corner of Bloomsbury-square), London, W.C. Established 1841.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

FISON'S PEARL SEMOULE is Delicious, Wholesome, Economical, and Extremely Nutritious.
For the Dinner Table it gives a variety of choice dishes.
For Invalids it is very delicate, light, and digestible.
For Children, prepared with milk, it is a perfect diet.
For Infants it is much prized; they will often thrive upon it when everything else fails.
Sold in Packets by Grocers, Chemists, &c. London Wholesale Agents: HICKS BROS., Maiden-lane, E.C. Works Ipswich.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Médical Men.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
Few articles of confectionery embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in a portable and convenient form.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER. The best aliment for Breakfast.

Yellow wrapper	2s. 0d.	per lb.
Chamois ditto	2s. 6d.	"
Pink ditto	3s. 0d.	"
Blue ditto	3s. 6d.	"
Flavoured with Vanille.
Green wrapper	2s. 6d.	per lb.
Lilac ditto	3s. 0d.	"
Bronze ditto	3s. 6d.	"
White ditto	4s. 0d.	"

Sold, in ¼ lb. packets, by all respectable Houses.
Wholesale, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. EPPS, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. For general use Epps's cocoa is distinguished as an invigorating, grateful breakfast beverage, with delicious aroma. Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea." Directions:—Two tablespoonfuls of the powder in a breakfast cup filled with boiling water or milk. Tin-lined ¼lb., ½lb., and 1lb. labelled packets. Sold by grocers, confectioners, and chemists. Each packet is labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street, 170, Piccadilly; 48, Threadneedle-street; Manufactory, 398, Euston-road, London."

BROWN and POLSON'S

PATENT CORN-FLOUR, Packets, 8d., for Children's Diet and Light Suppers.

OSWEGO

PREPARED CORN for Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c., Manufactured and Perfected by T. KINGSFORD and SON, of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original preparation from the farina of maize, established 1848, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the consumer.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by artificial process.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1823. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.

ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation for making pure and delicate gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard-pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli. It is appreciated as a non-inflammatory drink, is excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success for rearing children by hand.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD, First Manufactured A.D. 1742, or more than ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for more than a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that are recommended for family use are the Double Superfine and the Genuine, both of which can be obtained from most Family Grocers, in canisters of 1 lb. and ½ lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained Prize Medals, International Exhibitions, 1851, 1862.
Report—"Superior Quality, with large Production."

SAFETY FROM FIRE—By using FIELD'S Patent Snuffless, Hard, Self-fitting CHAMBER CANDLES. Sold everywhere, and wholesale of the Manufacturers, J. C. and J. Field, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

A DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE and a delicate Skin by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Sold everywhere.

HOUSEHOLD SOAP, dry and fit for use. Railway-carriage free, and no charge for case by the cwt., or 112 lb. Strong Yellow, 30s.; excellent ditto, 40s.; for fine fabrics, 46s.; finest Primrose, 48s. per 112 lb. Mottled Soaps—Excellent, 42s.; finest made, 48s. per 112 lb.—WHITMORE and CRADDOCK, City Soap and Candle Dépôt, 16, Bishopsgate-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

CURE FOR TOOTHACHE. BUNTER'S NERVINE gives instant relief, forms a stopping, and saves the tooth. Sold by all Chemists. 1s. 1½d. per packet; or post-free for 15 stamps, from J. R. COOPER, Chemist, Maidstone.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Gros de Suez, all the new colours.
£3 9s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Best Spitalfields Ducapes, warranted to wear,
2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 6d., 4s. 11d. per yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DRESSES.—PATTERNS FREE.
Double Mohairs, Challis, Checked and Plain.
A large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

FORD and CO. respectfully intimate to their patrons and the public that, in consequence of the great increase of their business, they have REMOVED to more extensive premises, at 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S JACKETS FOR INDOOR WEAR. A large assortment of decidedly new shapes to select from. Velvet, 42s. and upwards; silk, from 21s.; cloth and cashmere, 16s. 6d. to 42s.; the new Coquette Jacket, in all colours, 14s. 6d. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S VELVET PROMENADE JACKETS, at 3, 4, and 5 guineas, are especially worthy of notice as an elegant, useful, and fashionable Mantle for the Spring.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S NEW SILK MANTLES for the SPRING, at very moderate prices. Also, Waterproof Cloaks, warranted to resist rain, 21s. and upwards.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GLACÉ SILK SKIRTS, in various styles, ready for immediate wear. A full handsome Skirt for 3½ guineas. Also, Seaside Dresses, with Jacket complete, 2½ guineas.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of all the above, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

BLACK SILKS (wear guaranteed), 3 guineas, 3½ guineas, and 4 guineas the Dress of 15 yards.—SEWELL and CO., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

FRENCH CASHMERE SHAWLS, at an enormous reduction in price, from 12s. 6d. to 20 guineas. On MONDAY the 6th, and during the Month of MARCH, FARMER and ROGERS will offer for SALE a Manufacturer's Stock of beautiful French Cashmere Shawls, at a reduction of 50 per cent from the regular prices. Included in the stock are several exclusive patterns of the new Florentine Silk Shawl, price 5 guineas, manufactured expressly for the present season.
171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street.

GREAT SALE of BERLIN WOOL NEEDLEWORK, at GEO. ROOKE'S City Berlin Wool Warehouse, 75, Newgate-street, for a few Weeks only.
Fender Stools, Banners, Cushions, Chairs, Slippers, Ottomans, &c.
All at half price. No reserve.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865. A large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Cambric Shirtings, made from the finest materials adapted for Spring and Summer Shirts.—BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO., 11 and 50, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; 11, Old Bond-street, W., London.

COST'S PATENT ELASTIC CALISTHENIC CHEST-EXPANDER, as used by the Royal Family, produces symmetry of figure, ease and elegance of deportment, a healthy development of the frame, and promotes vigorous action of the organs of respiration. List of prices, testimonials, &c., forwarded on application to Messrs. Cost, 65A, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

ROUND SHOULDERS, Stooping Habits, &c., CURED by wearing CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDER, for both sexes. Specially adapted to children to assist growth and produce a symmetrical figure.—66, Berners-st., W. Illustrations sent.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1303.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

NEW ZEALAND.

THE recent debate in the House of Commons on the affairs of New Zealand elicited the singular and gratifying fact that all parties who take an interest in the well-being of that colony are at length agreed as to the practical measures best fitted to secure it. The Colonial Government and Legislature and her Majesty's Government at home, Mr. A. Mills and Lord Stanley, Mr. Adderley and Lord Robert Cecil, Mr. Roebuck and Mr. C. Buxton, are somewhat unexpectedly found to be perfectly at one—not, indeed, in their theoretical views, nor in their opinion of the origin of the yet unfinished war, but in their judgment of the "possible best" thing to be done at the present juncture for the colonists, for the natives, and for the interests and honour of the mother country. This almost unexampled unanimity is probably due far more to the teaching of events than to the force of pre-existing wishes or of unanswerable arguments. Perhaps no solvent of apparently insoluble problems is so potent as a dead-lock; for when all conflicting opinions are brought to a standstill, common-sense usually suggests that they should be all alike abandoned in favour of some course in which they can move together. There has been a dead-lock in New Zealand, and the consequence has been that all parties felt the necessity of occupying new ground, and, a proposal to that effect having been made, it has been accepted on all hands as the most sensible one of which the case will admit.

Self-government and self-defence, as we have found by experience in New Zealand, must be yoked together in colonial administration to give the slightest chance of continuous progress. The one is the true political complement of the other. A community claiming to manage its own affairs should feel itself bound by that very act to accept the responsibilities which such management draws after it. Protection from dangers to which a colony may become exposed, in consequence of a strictly Imperial policy, it is entitled to demand, because in the determination of that policy it has had no voice; but, by parity of reasoning, when a colony excludes the mother country from all share in its councils, it has no right to devolve upon her the burden of upholding them. Whether the present or the former war in New Zealand originated with the settlers, or the natives, or the Governor who represented this country, is a question which, besides being all but impossible of decision on account of the conflicting nature of the evidence, need not be discussed with a view to any practical issue. It is quite certain that the Imperial Parliament could not consent to keep 10,000 men in New Zealand, and spend £1,000,000 a year in defence of about 80,000 colonists against 40,000 natives, without assuming the supreme direction of the war policy—what should be its objects, what its extent, what its conditions, what the terms of pacification. No doubt in doing this the principle of colonial self-government was put in abeyance; but to have furnished men and money on so large a scale, and to have allowed the colonists to prescribe how and to what purpose they should be applied would, in effect, have simply placed a considerable section of the British Army beyond the control of the British Government, and have extorted from the House of Commons a large annual sum without giving them an opportunity of directing the mode of its appropriation.

"If you have the direction of the war," said Mr. Cardwell to the colonial authorities, "you must bear the expenses of it." "If we are to bear the expenses of it," they replied, "we must have the direction of it." The controversy having been once brought into this shape, it became obvious enough at a glance that, as "things which are equal to the same are equal to one another," so two propositions involving precisely the same result, and differing only in the way in which they are put, are, in fact, identical. New Zealand has declared, by its Government and its Legislature, its willingness to take the war on its own hands, in consideration of being left free from Imperial interference in the management of it. Five regiments, we believe, are already ordered home; the rest will remain until the colony has had time to make its arrangements square with its new position. In relation to the past, it seems to be understood that we shall be generous; in relation to the future, if the colonists cannot contrive to keep clear of quarrels with the natives they must settle those quarrels without our assistance. Such is, in substance, the agreement which all parties have accepted as final.

THE WAR IN AMERICA: PRISON IN CASEMATE NO. 7, FORT LAFAYETTE, NEW YORK HARBOUR.—SEE PAGE 301.

It would seem, at first sight, as if by this adjustment of the relative claims of the colonists and the mother country the Maories are henceforward to be left in the hands of the settlers to be dealt with as the will of the latter may determine. In form, this would appear to be unjust to them; in effect it will probably be greatly to their advantage. It is taken for granted by some—a very small minority, we suspect—that civilisation cannot come into contact with semi-barbarism without subjecting it to an inevitable doom of extinction; that it is useless attempting to prevent it; that, as it cannot be prevented, it is mere hypocrisy to take measures with that view; and that, perhaps, the swifter the doom the more merciful to such as perish under it. The theory is one which will not bear a wide application. A child smitten with consumption is sure to die. No human efforts are likely to save it. Does it, then, become the duty of those who are in health to hasten the process of dissolution? Are those who, foreseeing the fatal issue, call in the highest medical skill, and use all counteractive agencies up to the last moment, guilty of enacting a solemn "sham," and of placing themselves in puerile opposition to the decrees of Providence? Had the Romans treated the ancient Britons on this principle, where should we have been, and how severely would their heathenism have been reprobated by the Christian world in after ages? Who ever dreams of justifying the extirpation of the ancient Mexicans by the Spaniards? Even assuming for a fact, what needs much more convincing proof, that colonisation by a civilised people invariably implies extinction of the aboriginal races, yet colonisation is not released by it from the ordinary obligations of humanity. We regret that any such doctrine should ever have been broached in the British Parliament, and can only express our satisfaction, first, that it was thrust forward in all its naked deformity, and, secondly, that it obtained very little patronage.

Whether the ultimate destiny of the Maori race is to be extinction or absorption — extinction in consequence of a change of habits, or absorption by intermarriage with Europeans—the new relation in which it will hereafter stand to the colonists is one, we apprehend, which must tell in their favour. We reject the indiscriminate calumny which attributes to the white population in New Zealand a desire to hunt down the natives for the sake of their land. But if it were much nearer to the truth than it is—if the settlers, like Mr. Roebuck, in defiance of innumerable facts, had learned to put the Maoris into the class of "wild animals" and to see no distinction between them but the more mischievous propensities and dangerous powers of the former—the arrangement which will leave the races to settle their mutual position and rights without interference by the mother country would still commend itself to our judgment as the best for both parties. The prospects of a colony greatly depend upon the maintenance of peace. The class of emigrants most in request for the development of its resources would be scared from it by perennial hostilities, involving, as they must, insecurity of life and property, or heavy taxation—peradventure, both. Where the military force employed, and the expense incurred, can be shifted from themselves to the empire, colonists are less likely to observe forbearance and circumspection in their dealings with the aborigines, especially if the large commissariat, indispensable in the case of war, yields some of them a rich harvest of pecuniary profit. A thorough subjugation of the Maoris would, owing to the formation of the country, prove a costly undertaking. With the aid of ten thousand British troops, and in the course of a two years' struggle, the colonists, it is said, have not killed above two hundred natives, nor have they been in hostile contact with more than about two thousand. Under such circumstances, there is no probability that, left to their own resources, they would be tempted to adopt an exterminating policy, which, besides ruining the reputation of the colony, would be sure to prove eminently impracticable.

But we repudiate, on behalf of the settlers generally, any such inhuman desire. We believe the origin and the protraction of the present war to have been due mainly to mistakes on both sides—mistakes, moreover, which would hardly have arisen but for the relation in which both were supposed to stand towards British sovereignty. That position will, in future, be clear and unmistakable. False hopes and fears may be expected to vanish. There is abundance of room in the colony for the comfortable and even prosperous existence of the two races. Facts prove that the Maori is susceptible of high civilisation, and many of the most influential men in the colony are intent upon promoting it. The proximate future may be clouded over by uncertainty; but, under the new understanding, we do not despair of witnessing a gradual growth of mutual confidence between the white and brown inhabitants of the islands, and of a state of material and moral culture in which all alike will find ground for satisfaction.

Mr. William Pole, F.R.S., has been appointed secretary to the Royal Commission of Inquiry into the Railways of the United Kingdom.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Duke de Morny died yesterday week, as announced in the town edition of our last Impression. A memoir of the Duke is given in our Obituary column. His funeral took place on Monday, at the expense of the State. The chief mourners were Count de Flahault, the Marquis de Lavalette; M. Boitelle, Prefect of Police; M. de Marpont, and a few intimate friends. The Emperor was represented by the Duke de Bassano and General Fleury, the Empress by M. de Cossé-Brissac, and his Imperial Highness Prince Napoleon by General de Fanconière. Then followed deputations of the Privy Council, the Senate, the Legislative Chamber, the army, &c. The late Duke is buried in a family vault at Père la Chaise. Orations over the grave were delivered by M. Rouher, Minister of State, and M. Schneider, Vice-President of the Corps Législatif.

In the Senate, on Saturday, M. Rouland made an important speech, explaining the views entertained by the Government as to the relations between Church and State, in which he combated with great energy the pretensions put forward by the Pope in his encyclical of Papal supremacy and the negation of the civil power. In Tuesday's meeting the principal speech was delivered by Cardinal de Bonnechose, who defended the clergy from the vigorous strictures of M. Rouland. The Cardinal gave utterance to a hope that the Minister would one day regret the manner in which he had assailed the clerical party.

A statue of Napoleon I., in white marble, ordered by the late Duke de Morny, has been placed in the library of the Legislative Chamber.

M. Haussemann, the Prefect of the Seine, has resolved upon giving the name of "Julius Cæsar" to one of the streets of Paris.

The number of Polish refugees in France amounts to 10,000, of whom 2800 only were engaged in the late insurrection, the remainder having sought refuge after the insurrection of 1831.

The American journals announce the unconditional surrender of Oajaca to Marshal Bazaine, on the 9th ult., and of the capture of the whole Mexican garrison, 7000 strong. Diaz, one of the principal Juarist leaders, attempted to make his escape, but was, it is said, arrested and immediately shot.

SPAIN.

The Minister of Finance has announced that, in consequence of the reductions effected in the Budget, the revenue and expenditure for 1865 may be expected to balance.

The Finance Committee of the Congress have decided that 25 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of the Crown domains shall be remitted to the Queen immediately after the passing of the bill.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Congress the Government was questioned respecting the prosecution of those present at the Progressist banquet on the 5th. The Minister of the Interior replied that he had executed the law upon public meetings; and upon the question being put to the House, the conduct of the Government was approved by 166 against 70 votes.

PORTUGAL.

The sittings of the Cortes are very tumultuous, the new Ministry meeting with great opposition.

The first turf has been turned of a new branch of the Southern Railway between Beja and Faro.

ITALY.

The King has signed a decree granting a full amnesty for political offences and for contraventions of the press law, as well as to all those persons who were compromised in the Aspromonte affair.

An official decree, dated Turin, March 10, has been published, stating that a medal commemorative of the wars for the independence and unity of Italy, in 1848, 1849, 1859, 1860, 1861, is thereby established. The medal is to be silver, bearing on one side the effigy of his Majesty, with the words "Vittorio Emmanuele II., Re d'Italia," and upon the other a figure of Italy crowned, leaning upon the escutcheon of Savoy, and surrounded with the motto, "Guerra per Independenza e l'Unita d'Italia." The medal is to be worn on the right side of the breast, attached to a ribbon formed of eighteen vertical stripes, consisting alternately of the three colours of the Italian flag. A number of silver clasps will be attached to the ribbons, corresponding with the number of campaigns in which the wearer has served, the campaign to be marked upon each clasp by the date of the year for which the clasp had been conferred. The decree further states that those who are entitled to the medal are all belligerents, officials, and administrative employés attached to the land and sea forces, upon whose service-roll one of the campaigns is inscribed; also all those belonging to the National Guard or volunteer corps who have fought for the national cause under conditions which, by the existing regulations, entitle military persons to be reckoned as having taken part in a campaign. The period requisite for presenting the demand and the documents necessary to obtain the declaration of the right to wear the medal is limited to one year from the date of the publication of the decree. The medal in question cannot be worn with any other national medal for the same object, except that distributed to the "Thousand" for the expedition to Sicily. A further decree, issued at the same time, appoints a committee of fifteen to sit at Turin, to examine the rights of claimants, and furnish them with the necessary certificates entitling them to wear the medal.

In Monday's sitting of the Chamber of Deputies the articles of the bill for the abolition of the penalty of death for crimes committed under the common law were agreed to by 150 against 91 votes. Capital punishment is maintained in the military and naval codes, and in the laws against brigandage.

Signor Sella, the Minister of Finance, made his annual statement on Tuesday. According to the Ministerial estimate, there will be, in spite of the loans and imposts already authorised, an accumulated deficit of £17,000,000 at the end of September, 1867; and he asks for the power to contract a fresh loan of £17,000,000, for the imposition of house and property taxes, expected to produce £2,400,000 a year, and for sundry alterations in the stamp and registration laws, in order to augment the revenue.

A despatch from Rome asserts that General de Montebello has requested the Emperor Napoleon not to withdraw at this time any troops, as he cannot answer for the maintenance of order if the French garrison should be diminished.

A statement of the Pontifical revenue and expenditure during the year 1864 has been published. It shows a deficit of four millions of Roman dollars. The revenue is stated at four and a half and the expenditure at ten millions. The Peter's Pence yielded during the year one million and a half.

PRUSSIA.

The Crown Prince has promised to open the Industrial Exhibition in Stettin (where he and the Princess are at present) on the 12th of May. On the 15th of May the Prince will open the International Exhibition in Cologne.

A debate took place, on Monday, in the Chamber of Deputies on the position of religious dissenters in Prussia. The Minister of Public Worship declared that no oppression whatever had been practised towards dissenters, and that the article of the constitution which secured them equality before the law had always been maintained.

AMERICA.

Our latest news from New York, by the Nova Scotian, is to the morning of the 5th inst.

In President Lincoln's Inaugural Address, which we give in another column, there is, it will be seen, no indication of any change of policy.

The great blockade-running city of Wilmington, as stated in a considerable portion of our Impression last week, passed into Federal occupation on the 22nd ult., Washington's birthday. From Admiral Porter's official despatches we learn that General Schofield, now in command of the Federal military in that quarter, advanced, on the 17th ult., from Smithville, four vessels of the fleet simultaneously attacking and enfilading the works. The wind and tide prevented more vessels from participating in the engagement. Fort Anderson answered pretty briskly, but quieted down by sunset. During the night the Confederates sent 200 floating torpedoes down the river, but Porter sunk them by musketry. One torpedo entered and blew up the wheel-house of the Osceola, and knocked down the bulkheads. No damage, however, was done to the hull. Porter spread fishing-nets across the river. Next morning Porter advanced with the greater part of the fleet. A heavy fire was maintained silencing the Confederate batteries by three p.m. Porter, however, continued the fire until dark, and also through the night, and in the mean time Schofield was working in the rear. "While the fleet maintained a heavy fire upon the fort," Schofield says, "I pressed the enemy on both sides of the river, and sent Cox sixteen miles round the swamp to the enemy's right. Cox proceeded along the narrow defile between the two swamps, and completely turned the enemy's position. The enemy, discovering the movement, abandoned the works and retreated to Wilmington. The guns captured are uninjured. Fifty prisoners were taken. The loss was small on each side." It is stated that the Confederate shot made no impression on the Federal monitors, although but a third of a mile from the fort. The southern face of the fort, however, was "badly disfigured." The Federals sent a sham monitor, constructed of canvas, up the river with the tide to explode torpedoes. It floated past the fort, and is supposed to have hastened its evacuation, the Confederates believing the water communication gone. Immediately upon the evacuation of Fort Anderson, Schofield directed Cox, one of his subordinates, to follow the garrison towards Wilmington. The Confederates made a stand behind Town Creek; but on the 20th Cox crossed the river below them on flat boats, attacked their rear, and routed them, taking two guns and 300 prisoners. On the 21st Cox pushed on to Brunswick River, opposite Wilmington, where the bridges were on fire on his arrival. The Southerners had begun burning cotton and resin in the city, and left it that night. Citizens state that 1000 bales of cotton and 15,000 barrels of resin were burned. Northern accounts say that "Union feeling showed itself strongly in the city."

Sherman has burnt Columbia—in retaliation, it is said, for his troops having been fired upon after they entered the city. The Southern papers charge the Federal General with having bombarded the town without giving warning of his intention to do so. Such accounts as we have of General Sherman's movements are obscure and contradictory. On the one hand, it appears to have been reported in New York that General Sherman had marched in an easterly direction, and had effected a junction with General Schofield, on the 27th ult., at some place not named. On the other hand, it seems to have been stated by the Richmond newspapers that General Sherman was moving against Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina, and had left the Confederate army, under its new Commander-in-Chief, General Joseph Johnston (who has superseded Beauregard), in his rear, at Charlotte. There are rumours by the last mail of a battle, and of Sherman and Schofield having been checked.

Southern papers continue to speak confidently of the safety of Richmond and of Lee's ability to withstand any movement made by Grant. On the other hand, there are statements that preparations for the evacuation of the place have begun. It is said that Grant was preparing for a new movement, but that the weather interfered with his plans. General Grant states that since May last 17,000 deserters have come over to him from the Confederate army. According to the Richmond papers Grant's troops north of the James River have been moved to the left and massed with the rest of his army in the vicinity of Hatcher's Run.

The proposition to arm 200,000 negroes passed the Confederate House of Representatives on the 20th ult.; but it was indefinitely postponed by the Senate on the following day by a majority of one. The Richmond Dispatch thinks the bill will be reconsidered and passed. Opinion at the South seems evenly balanced on the subject. General Lee has expressed his opinion that the employment of slaves in the army is both expedient and necessary, on the ground that the white population alone cannot supply the necessities of a long war; and recommends that a call for those who will volunteer upon the condition of their freedom be immediately authorised by the Southern Congress. The message of the Governor of Georgia opposes the arming of the slaves. They do not wish to enter the army. They will desert by thousands. The Governor, it is said, denounces violently the military and civil policy of President Davis, which, if persisted in, he says, must terminate in reconstruction, with or without subjugation.

A bill has passed the Confederate House of Representatives, in secret Session, authorising the arming of negroes tendered by owners, and also authorising the President to call upon each State, whenever expedient, for a quota of 300,000 troops, irrespective of colour, in addition to those subject to military service under existing laws. The relations of slaves and masters remain unchanged, except by consent of the owners in States where slaves reside.

The Confederate Congress have expelled Senator Foote.

The Virginia Senate has authorised the Governor to call for volunteers among the slaves and free negroes of the State for the defence of Richmond and other points threatened. They are to be organised into infantry companies for the year's service, under white officers, and to be placed at the disposal of the General-in-Chief.

Governor Vance, in a proclamation to the people of North Carolina, declares that the only dangers that threaten the cause of Southern independence are the depression consequent upon recent reverses and the risk of internal dissension. The muster-rolls of the Confederacy show the record of 400,000 soldiers, but thousands upon thousands of them are absent without leave. To entreat, to put to shame, or to drive these men back to the defence of their country's standard is the business of the hour.

President Lincoln has approved the Fortifications Bill, the appropriations for which have been reduced to half their original amount.

The House of Representatives has passed the 600,000,000 dols. Loan Bill.

The Senate has adopted the amendment increasing the duty on tobacco, snuff, cigars, and cheroots. It has also passed the House Bill taxing sales ½ per cent.

New Jersey had refused to ratify the constitutional amendment.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

We have news from Quebec to Feb. 24.

The Legislative Council have got rapidly through with the debate on the confederation scheme, having closed the discussion of that measure on Monday, Feb. 20, when the motion in favour thereof was carried by a vote of 45 to 15.

The discussion of the proposed new Constitution continues nightly in the Lower House.

The resumption of the trial of the St. Albans raiders took place in Montreal on Monday, Feb. 20, when the court was thronged with spectators. Mr. Kerr opened the argument for the defence, and was followed by Mr. Laflamme on the same side. On Tuesday the latter counsel was to continue his arguments against the extradition of the prisoners, but, owing to the indisposition of Judge Smith, the Court did not sit on that day. The investigation is creating vast excitement. Mr. Kerr submitted to the Court a series of printed propositions, seventeen in number, with authorities sustaining them.

Mr. F. W. Torrance, barrister, of Montreal, has opened his commission of inquiry into the conduct of Judge Coursol in dismissing the St. Albans raiders. Mr. Henry Stuart, Q.C., applied to be admitted to watch the case for his client, which the Commissioner declined to allow. The Hon. Mr. Letellier brought the matter before the notice of the Upper Chamber by inquiring of the Government whether it was by their instructions that the Commissioner was proceeding ex parte and with closed doors. In reply, Sir E. P. Taché stated that Mr. Torrance was only acting in virtue of his commission, that he had received no instructions, and was carrying on the inquiry according to law.

Committees of both houses are examining witnesses respecting the mineral resources of the country. A report will be duly issued.

INDIA, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

The intelligence from Bhootan, received by the Calcutta mail, is far from satisfactory, and the disbandment of the Bhootan field force must be postponed. The Bhooteas had attacked four of our posts, and, although driven back by our forces, they are so active and numerous that reinforcements of men and material will be required to subdue them.

In China various bands of stragglers, consisting of men belonging to the class from which the late insurrection sprung, were assembling in the neighbourhood of Fuhchau; and, although the inhabitants were alarmed and getting out of the way, the Chinese authorities were looking on with the greatest supineness.

In Japan the daimios had assembled a large fleet for the purpose, it is said, of punishing Prince Negato for rebelling against the Tycoon. The report that the Prince was rebuilding his batteries is incorrect.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

The following is the full text of President Lincoln's inaugural address, received on Thursday night through Mr. Reuter's office:—

FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN,—At this second appearance to take the oath of the Presidential office there is less occasion for an extended address than at the first. Then, a statement, somewhat in detail, of the course to be pursued seemed very fitting and proper: now, at the expiration of four years, during which public declarations have constantly been called forth concerning every point and phase of the great contest which still absorbs attention and engrosses the energies of the nation, little that is new could be presented.

The progress of our arms, upon which all else chiefly depends, is as well known to the public as to myself. It is, I trust, reasonably satisfactory and encouraging to all with a high hope for the future. No prediction in that regard is ventured. On the occasion corresponding to this four years ago, all thoughts were anxiously directed to an impending civil war. All dreaded it; all sought to avoid it. While the inaugural address was being delivered from this place, devoted altogether to saving the Union without war, the insurgent agents were in the city seeking to destroy it without war, seeking to dissolve the Union and divide the effects, by negotiating. Both parties deprecated war; but one of them would make war rather than let the Union perish; and war came. One eighth of the whole population were coloured slaves; not distributed generally over the Union, but located in the Southern part. These slaves constituted a peculiar and powerful interest. All knew the interest would, somehow, cause war. To strengthen, perpetuate, and extend this interest was the object for which the insurgents would rend the Union by war, while the Government claimed no right to do more than restrict the territorial enlargement of it. Neither party expected the magnitude or duration which it has already attained; neither anticipated that the cause of the conflict might cease even before the conflict itself should cease. Each looked for an easier triumph and a result less fundamental and astonishing. Both read the same Bible and pray to the same God. Each invokes His aid against the other. It may seem strange that any man should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing bread from the sweat of other men's faces; but let us judge not, that we be not judged. The prayer of both should not be answered; and neither has been answered fully, for the Almighty has his own purposes. "Woe unto the world because of offences, for it must needs be that offence come, but woe unto that man by whom the offence cometh!" If we suppose American slavery one of these offences which in the providence of God must needs come, but which, having continued through His appointed time, He now wills to remove, and that He gives to both North and South this terrible war, as due to those by whom the offence came, shall we discern that there is any departure from those Divine attributes which believers in the living God always ascribe to Him? Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away; yet if it be God's will that it continue until the wealth piled by bondsmen by 250 years' unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn by the sword, as was said 3000 years ago, so still it must be said that the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous. With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are engaged in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for the man who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphans; to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishop of Chester intends to hold his next ordination at Chester, on Trinity Sunday, June 11.

The Prince of Wales has consented to head the list of stewards of the 211th anniversary festival of the Sons of the Clergy, and to honour it by his presence on the day of its celebration, Wednesday, the 17th of May next.

An anonymous donation of £4000, which has been given to the Bishop of London's Fund, has been applied, at the donor's wish, to the building of a permanent church in the district of St. Andrew, Haverstock-hill. The population of the district is between 8000 and 9000, of whom five sixths are very poor, and is increasing very rapidly.

At Oxford the Rev. H. Furneaux, M A., and Mr. W. W. Capes, M.A., have been elected Proctors for the ensuing year by the electors of Corpus Christi and Queen's Colleges respectively. The first Bampton lecture for the present year was preached on Sunday, on "Miracles," by the Rev. J. B. Mozley, B.D., of Magdalen College. The text was St. John xv. 14, and the subject of the first lecture was "The Necessity of Miracles as the only possible Attestation of a Divine Revelation."

The Bishop of Gibraltar has converted a loan of £1000 to Trinity College, Glenalmond, into a gift, and has directed the reasons to be entered in the records of the college. They are as follow:—"I do so as a slight token, first, of the thankfulness with which I reflect on my consecration in the venerable Scottish Church, after the free election of a Scottish diocese; and, secondly, of my sense of the benefits which Trinity College has derived from the present Warden's management of its affairs, and the Church at large from his Bampton lectures."

The Dean and Chapter are about to erect a new reredos and altar in Westminster Abbey. The old reredos of the fifteenth century was defaced some time in the last century by the erection against it of a "classic" one. This was taken down about 1824, and Bernasconi was employed to restore the original design as well as he could ascertain it in his artificial stone. For as much of this artificial work as they can afford the Dean and Chapter purpose substituting alabaster and marble; and the sham stone altar is to be replaced by an altar-table of cedar, richly inlaid with other woods. Over the altar, below the fine central canopies, is to be introduced a mosaic picture of "The Last Supper," to be executed by Dr. Salviati, from a cartoon by Messrs. Clayton and Bell: and over the canopy of the altar there will be a cornice of white alabaster, with carvings of various events in the life of our Lord, to be executed by Mr. H. H. Armstead.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Ven. R. Kempthorne, late Archdeacon of St. Helena, Rector of Elton, Hunts, to be Rural Dean of Yaxley; Rev. W. Moore, Rector of Brimpsfield and Cranham, to be Rural Dean of Northern Stonehouse. Rectories: Rev. E. R. Davies to Catheline; Rev. M. Day to St. Swithin, Worcester; Rev. D. Vaughan to Bryngwyn. Vicarages: Rev. C. H. Collier to St. Neot's, Huntingdonshire; Rev. J. B. Evans to Roch, Pembrokeshire; Rev. W. A. Strong to Ravensthorpe; Rev. R. Wynne to Scalford, Leicestershire. Incumbencies: Rev. J. C. Barker to Holy Trinity, Hinckley; Rev. F. G. Sykes to St. Mary's, Dunsforth. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. W. J. Bristow to Offenham; Rev. J. P. Firmin to Marton, Cheshire. Curacies: Rev. H. N. Bousfield to St. Mary's, Spital-square; Rev. W. G. Bullock to Wapping; Rev. E. Castley to Skelton; Rev. F. T. Chamberlain to Hawarden, Flintshire; Rev. C. P. Clarke to St. Martin's-in-the-Fields; Rev. H. F. Crockett to Poulshot, Wilts; Rev. A. B. Delap to St. Paul's, Stratford New Town, Middlesex; Rev. R. P. Dickin to Stainton; Rev. R. G. Fish to Stillington; Rev. A. L. Gore to St. John-in-Bedwardine, Worcester; Rev. T. O. Hall to East Carlton, Northamptonshire; Rev. R. N. Kane to Mortlake with East Sheen; Rev. J. A Kershaw to Easingwold; Rev. H. Lathbury to Sydenham; Rev. G. B. Latreille to St. Mark's, Islington; Rev. J. H. Littlewood to East Acklam; Rev. W. Melland to Wem, Salop; Rev. W. Mills to Burton Agnes; Rev. B. B. Newenham to Bilton; Rev. W. J. Randall to St. Luke's, West Holloway, Islington; Rev. D. Robertson to St. Michael's, Chester-square; Rev. F. T. Salmon to Maiden Newton; Rev. G. Sanger to Stokesley; Rev. W. N. Stedman to St. Matthew's, Yiewsley; Rev. W. T. P. Timperley to Dyer's Hill, Sheffield; Rev. A. F. Tollemache to St. Matthias's, Stoke Newington; Rev. E. Ward to Rudston.—Guardian.

The Swiss Federal Council has prolonged the delay for the accession of the different European Governments to the Sanitary International Convention from the 22nd of March to the 22nd of June.

Otho, ex-King of Greece, who has taken up his residence permanently in Bamberg, is at present, it is said, devoting his leisure to the compilation of a modern Greek and German lexicon.

The monument of Melancthon is to be inaugurated on the 25th of June next, the anniversary of the presentation of the Augsberg Confession. The monument will stand on the market-place of Wittemburg, alongside that of Luther.

The inquest on John Newman Harrison, one of the ten cadets drowned, on the 28th ult., by the capsizing of a boat in the Halfway Reach, was resumed and completed, on Monday, by Mr. Carttar, at the Pier Hotel, Erith. Benjamin Joseph Beckworth, aged seventeen, James Awdrey, and James Palmer, cadets, in the boat at the time of the accident, gave evidence, but could not tell the reason why the boat capsized. There was no larking going on at the time. The boat was sound and good, and had been made only a few months ago. Captain Whitby, commander of the Worcester training-ship, said the boat was under-rigged for her size. It further appeared that Cashman, who had charge of the boat, called on the boys to have courage and stick to the overturned boat; and James Sims, a waterman, in attempting to save some of the drowning, caught at Cashman, who cried out, "Never mind me, save some of the others." Cashman, who gave evidence, said everything was done to save life. He could blame no one. He was asked by Mr. Bullivant, the secretary, some questions, in order to show that the lads were properly instructed during the summer months in swimming. The Coroner then summed up the evidence; and, after remarking upon the noble conduct of the lads when in danger, said, that it appeared perfectly clear to him that no blame was to be attached to anybody for this most lamentable accident. A verdict of "Accidental death" was immediately returned. Mr. Bullivant, the secretary, stated that every means was being taken to recover the bodies of the lost boys.——In admiration of the gallant conduct displayed on the occasion by John Cashman, the boatswain, who rescued several of the cadets from drowning, a silver medal has been awarded him by the London Swimming Club.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Prince of Wales has consented to open the International Reformatory Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on May 19.

At the meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works yesterday week, the colleagues of Mr. Thwaites, the chairman, presented him with his portrait, painted by Mr. A. Melville, as a mark of their respect.

The annual ball of the Whittington Club was held on Tuesday night, at the clubhouse, Arundel-street, Strand, and was attended by more than three hundred ladies and gentlemen.

A performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" (Lobgesang) and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was given by the National Choral Society, under Mr. Martin's direction, on Wednesday evening, in Exeter Hall, before a very large audience. The solo singers were Messrs. Sims Reeves, Wilbye Cooper, and Thomas, Miss Louisa Pyne, and Miss Palmer.

On Tuesday night the large building known as "Portman Hall," Carlisle-street, Edgware-road, was filled by a meeting assembled to establish a working-man's club for Marylebone and Paddington. The chair was taken by Mr. Stansfeld, M.P., who declared the club open, and expressed his conviction that it contained the elements of success. The meeting was afterwards addressed by Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., Mr. Hatterslev, the Rev. H. Solly, and Mr. Benjamin Shaw, all of whom spoke most encouragingly of the prospects of the new institution.

The first soirée of the season of the Royal Society was held, last Saturday night, at Burlington House. The attendance was unusually large, and the works of art and inventions arranged for exhibition were numerous. Prominent among the objects of interest was a beautifully-constructed model of Mr. Harrison's pneumatic loom, which was exhibited in action; a small air-pump providing the air necessary for driving the shuttle. A miniature piece of cloth was woven during the evening; and the simple and efficient mode of working the machine was closely examined and greatly admired by the company. The Prince of Wales was present during a portion of the evening.

The seventeenth anniversary festival of the City of London Hospital for diseases of the Chest was held, on Wednesday night, at the London Tavern. Viscount Enfield, M.P., presided. Upwards of 200 gentlemen were present. The number of in-patients under treatment last year was 436, and the number of out-patients 10,819. The receipts during last year amounted to £9295. The expenditure for general purposes amounted to £5897, and on account of the new wing to £3042. The new wing has been completed, and the hospital now affords accommodation for 120 in-patients, and 92 beds are at present occupied. The new out-patients' department is also occupied, and the arrangements have added greatly to the comfort of the patients and the convenience of the medical officers. The total amount of donations and subscriptions was £3600.

An amateur performance, in behalf of a Baronet and his family, reduced to poverty, is announced to be given at the Bijou Theatre (Her Majesty's Theatre), on Wednesday next, March 22, when will be performed the comic drama of "The Old Offender," followed by a comedietta, entitled "Law For The Ladies." The principal characters will be supported by the Right Hon. J. W. Fitzpatrick, Viscount Castlecuffe, Lord Lilford, Sir John Sebright, the Hon. Lewis Wingfield, Mr. Skeffington Smyth, Mr. Temple, Mr. Hozier (2nd Life Guards), Miss Mary Boyle, and Mdlle. Emilie De Vigne. The performance is under the patronage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary of Cambridge, and the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, who have promised to attend, and of a considerable number of the nobility.

A conference of middle and working class reformers took place, last Saturday, at Radley's Hotel, at which were present Mr. Samuel Morley; Mr. John Bright, M.P.; Mr. W. Lawson, M.P.; Mr. P. A. Taylor, M.P.; and Mr. W. S. Ayrton, M.P. The chair was occupied by Mr. Edmund Beales. A deputation from a meeting lately held at St. Martin's Hall reported that the working men were not prepared to support any measure of reform short of manhood suffrage, protected by the ballot. Mr. Bright, M.P., and Mr. Ayrton, M.P., spoke in favour of household suffrage as most likely to command the support of the present electoral body. Ultimately a resolution was adopted almost unanimously to the effect that the middle-class reformers present were prepared to co-operate with the working men on the proposed basis of manhood suffrage, and to recommend the same course to middle-class reformers throughout the country.

The one hundred and twenty-seventh anniversary festival of the Royal Society of Musicians of Great Britain was held, on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, and was attended with even more than the usual éclat. The chair was occupied by the Duke of Cambridge, who was supported by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Right Hon. Sir George Clerk, Bart. Many eminent persons were present, including a great number of our most distinguished musicians and amateurs. The donations were very numerous. Mr. Anderson, the hon. treasurer, stated that, as executor of the late M. Begrez, he had just paid into the fund £1000 bequeathed to the society; mentioning that it was M. Begrez's wish that this sum should form the nucleus of a fund for founding an asylum for poor members of the society and for their widows and orphans. Several vocal and instrumental pieces were performed.

On Thursday week a meeting of employers of labour and artisans interested in the manufactures of north-eastern London was held in the board-room of the Agricultural Hall Company, for the purpose of taking into consideration a proposal for a local exhibition of arts and manufactures during the ensuing autumn. Mr. W. H. Bodkin, Assistant-Judge, took the chair. The proposal was immediately adopted, and also a resolution appointing a general committee of guarantors to make arrangements for carrying the said proposal into effect. The movement is entirely unconnected with working-men's industrial exhibitions, having solely for its object the promotion of the art-workmanship of the district. The exhibition will consist of three distinct divisions—a manufactures department, an artisans' department, and a loan department. The guarantee fund asked for by the promoters of the exhibition is £2000, of which about one third was guaranteed by the meeting, and a considerable portion of the remainder promised.

Last week the births of 2226 children—1151 boys and 1073 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1855-64 the average number (corrected) was 2091.——The number of deaths last week was 1508. The corrected average for the tenth week of 1855-64 is 1484. Whooping-cough was the most fatal complaint in the zymotic class of diseases; it caused eighty-four deaths. Typhus was returned in fifty-eight cases, a third part of which occurred in the eastern districts of the metropolis. Both this disease and scarlatina appear to be less prevalent than they were in the earlier weeks of the year. Of forty-one deaths from scarlatina, sixteen occurred in the north district. Sixteen cases of smallpox were recorded. In the winter months the weekly deaths from bronchitis much exceeded those from phthisis; last week the latter disease was the more fatal, but the numbers were nearly equal. To phthisis were referred 191 deaths, to bronchitis 185, to pneumonia seventy-one. Eleven persons died at the age of ninety years and upwards. Two persons had attained the age of ninety-five years, two ninety-seven years. At 21, Lucas-street, St. George's-in-the-East, the death of a woman aged one hundred was registered.

The scholars' prize meeting of the Ragged School Union, a most valuable association, was held on Monday evening at Exeter Hall, on which occasion the various ragged schools in the metropolis filled this vast hall. The Earl of Shaftesbury occupied the chair. The platform was crowded by a large number of the friends of the ragged school movement, among whom were the Marquis of Westminster, the Countess of Shaftesbury, Lady Victoria Ashley, Lady Edith Ashley, the Hon. W. C. Cowper, Sir R. W. Carden, and Mr. Payne. From 500 to 600 children, together with their teachers, were provided with tea; after which the public were admitted, and the secretary, Mr. J. G. Gent, read a statement, the effect of which was that the prizes were to be distributed to those who had retained their situations with good character for twelve months or more. During the period that this society had been in existence 6996 prizes had been given—4105 to boys, and 2891 to girls. The average number given each year was 583. There were on the present occasion 570 applicants, of whom 520 had been successful—212 boys and 308 girls. Mdme. Ernestina recited Tennyson's poem of the "May Queen," and Thackeray's "Cane-bottom Chair," after which the children sang a hymn, and Judge Payne addressed the children in an affectionate speech, in which he urged upon them to be kind and gentle in their bearing towards all their equals and to dumb creatures. He concluded by proposing a cordial vote of thanks to the Earl of Shaftesbury for the support which he had given to the movement. Sir R. Carden seconded the motion. The Earl of Shaftesbury, in responding, pointed out that by good conduct the children they saw before them were working an entire revolution in the lower orders of society.

The annual general meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern, the Duke of Argyll in the chair. The noble chairman paid a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Duke of Northumberland, the munificent patron and president of the institution. His Grace then touched upon the working of the institution, which, he said, through its relief of human suffering, was one of the most important aids to civilisation. He attributed the necessity for life-boats to the insufficiency of harbours on our coasts, and, having alluded to the generous donor who had recently contributed to the funds, concluded by sincerely congratulating the society on the many successes it had gained during the past year. The secretary then read the report, which stated that Earl Percy has accepted the vacant office of president. The donations last year had been liberal, as usual, and included one splendid gift of £5000 from an anonymous contributor. Last year thirty-four life-boats were built, of which fifteen are intended to replace old boats, and the rest are for new stations. The institution possesses 144 boats, and in the course of last year they saved 432 lives, and brought into port seventeen vessels, and were ready or on the way to render assistance in numerous other cases. The committee has granted rewards to the amount of £1539. Three men perished out of 12,000 who were afloat in life-boats in the course of the year, of whom James Grant and Edmund Robson were lost on the occasion of the wreck of the Stanley at the mouth of the Tyne on the night of the 24th of November. The receipts during the past year were £31,917, the expenditure £29,034. Since the year 1824, the agency of the institution has saved the lives of 14,266 persons. They have expended during the same period £122,000, have given 828 gold and 743 silver medals for the saving of life on the ocean, and also pecuniary rewards amounting together to £19,400.

LAW AND POLICE.—A case of a very unusual nature was brought before the Master of the Rolls on Thursday week. It appears that Lord Robert Montagu has come into possession of a series of letters that had passed between the late Duke and Duchess of Wellington, and from both, to Lady Olivia Sparrow, an intimate friend of both Duke and Duchess, from whom they passed by bequest to Lord Robert. The present Duke of Wellington, hearing that his Lordship was offering these letters for sale, wrote to remonstrate against this, or against such private documents being shown to others at all; and, as the reply was not satisfactory, he applied to the Master of the Rolls for an injunction to restrain him from the sale or publication of the letters. The Master granted an interim injunction. The case was before the Court again on Thursday, and again adjourned.

The final examination of the affairs of Mr. Leigh, late one of the metropolitan police magistrates, took place before Mr. Registrar Winslow, yesterday week. The case, as the Registrar said, was a very painful one. With a fixed salary of from £1000 to £1200 a year, he had contracted debts to the extent of £30,000. But it was not from mere extravagance he became thus involved. His losses began in the failure of a bank in which he held shares; and, to relieve himself, he speculated on the Stock Exchange, for which he had neither the requisite knowledge nor capital. Loss succeeded loss, and these losses were met, for a time, by loans, at a ruinous rate of interest, which completed his fall. The Registrar awarded protection, but ordered that all his future earnings should belong to his creditors—except, of course, the means of his subsistence—till he had paid 5 per cent on his debts.

During the year ended March 25 last, 999 persons were convicted in the metropolis police district of using or having in their possession false weights and measures or balances. The greatest number of convictions occurred in Westminster.

At the Mansion House, on Tuesday, the persons charged with being concerned in the Cornhill burglaries were re-examined before the Lord Mayor. Some evidence, including a statement by the prisoner Hurley, was given, and the prisoners were remanded.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Mr. Henry J. Stonor has been appointed a county court judge in Surrey by the Lord Chancellor.

Earl Spencer is about to give up his "home farm" at Althorp, and the stock is to be sold off, preparatory to the farm being let to one of his Lordship's tenants.

The third and fourth reports of the inspectors of Irish reformatory schools show that there were 638 young offenders in such schools on the 31st of December last.

The Dublin Express states that her Majesty, acting under the advice of his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, has resolved to confer upon Benjamin Lee Guinness, Esq., the style and dignity of a baronet.

A great banking failure at Birmingham was made known on Saturday. The old-established bank of Attwood, Spooner, and Co., of which Mr. Marshall is said to be the only surviving partner, suspended payment, with liabilities which are estimated at a million.

The Belfast Assizes began on Tuesday, and the grand jury have found true bills against several of the late rioters. Two prisoners are to take their trial for wilful murder. Mr. Whiteside has been specially engaged for the Protestant prisoners; Mr. Isaac Butt for the Roman Catholics.

The next great meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society will be held at Plymouth in the third week in July. The meeting for 1866 is to be held in East Anglia. Norwich, Ipswich, and Bury St. Edmunds are contending for the privilege of receiving the society. The council requires a local subscription of £5000, and Ipswich has already subscribed £2000. Norwich, which has come rather late into the field, has not raised more than £1000 at present. The society held its meeting for 1849 at Norwich, but has never yet visited Ipswich.

A committee has been appointed in Dublin to make arrangements for the due reception there of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on his going, in May next, to open the Dublin International Exhibition. The committee is to consist of the Executive Committee, and the Lord Mayor, the Duke of Leinster, the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Meath, the Earl of Charlemont; B. L. Guinness, Esq.; Sir J. J. Coghill, Bart.; Lord Southwell, Lord Powerscourt, Sir R. Deane, Lord James Butler, the Hon. Judge Berwick, and Sir Bernard Burke.

In the week that ended last Saturday the births in London and nine other cities or boroughs of the United Kingdom were 4281; the deaths, 3039. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those ten large towns was 29 per 1000 persons living, and greater than in the previous week, when it was 28. In Liverpool the births were 419, the deaths 342; in Manchester—births 275, deaths 214; in Salford—births 82, deaths 56; in Birmingham—births 292, deaths 173; in Leeds—births 227, deaths 121; in Bristol—births 107, deaths 94; in Edinburgh—births 132, deaths 91; in Glasgow—births 339, deaths 297; in Dublin—births 181, deaths 143.

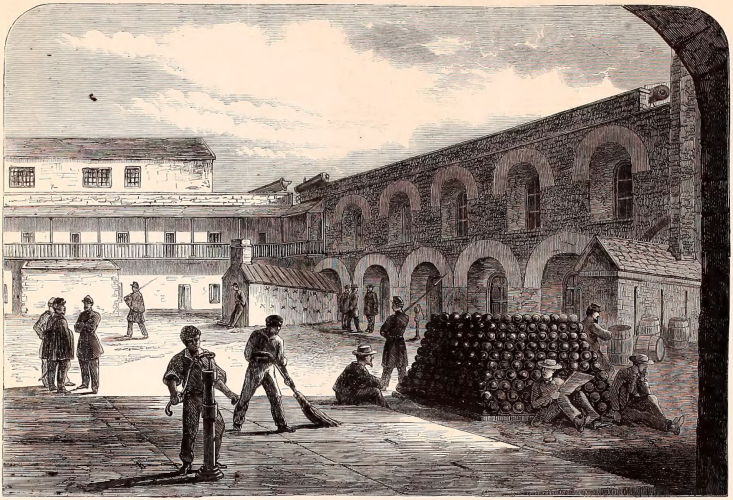
At the monthly meeting, on Monday, of the Central Executive Relief Committee for the cotton-manufacturing districts, Mr. Maclure, the honorary secretary, reported that £360 had been received during the past four weeks, and that the balance in the bank was £54,793. Another period of depression in the cotton trade occurred during the month of February, and in consequence the return shows that the amount of labour afforded in the mills has been materially reduced, there being a decrease of 11,224 in the number fully employed. Compared with the 4th of February the number relieved in the twenty-seven unions of the cotton-manufacturing districts on the 4th of March was 1792 in excess. The total number relieved by the unions on the 4th inst. was 100,322. In the corresponding week of 1864 the number was 138,432, so that there is an improvement on the year's comparison, though there is a retrogression in the last month. On the 25th of February there were also 34,187 persons in these districts who were aided by local charity, making, as Mr. Farnall states, the percentage of pauperism in the cotton districts at this time a little more than five, whilst in March, 1864, it was at the rate of seven. A long discussion took place at the general committee meeting on the number of able-bodied men who were unemployed and might be employed on public works; and Mr. Farnall explained that it was necessary to remember that the men called able-bodied men were not at all fit to work on a hillside or on public works. Mr. Rawlinson gave it as his opinion that, out of 2000 men called able-bodied, not one fourth of them would become able-bodied labourers. The total amount available to the committee was set down at about £148,000. Grants were made for general relief to the places named—among others for less sums—for one month in each case:—Ashton-under-Lyne, £800; Dukinfield, £400; Hurst, £250; Bolton, £400; Padiham, £150; Oldham, £400; Rochdale, £600; Burnley, £100; Hyde, £300; Lees, £250; Mossley, £300; Stalybridge, £800; Tintwistle, £200; Heywood, £400; Chorlton and Ardwick, £120; Glossop, £500; Bacup, £150; Crawshaw Booth, £150; Stacksteads, £100; Crompton, £150; Royton, £150; Preston, £400; Barnoldswick, £100; Wigan, £400; Bury and Elton, £200.

THE LOCK-OUT IN THE IRON TRADE.

A CONFERENCE of the deputation from the northern ironworkers with the masters' committee, held at Newcastle on Tuesday, continued two hours and a half. A number of subjects were discussed in an amicable temper. The deputation from the men repeated that they would not support the North Staffordshire strike. The discussion took this practical form at last. The northern masters, it was suggested, might send puddled bars into North Staffordshire, and thus reopen the mills, the men of all the other districts not to interpose or object. The Gateshead and Brierley-hill executives are called upon to give a definite pledge to such arrangement.

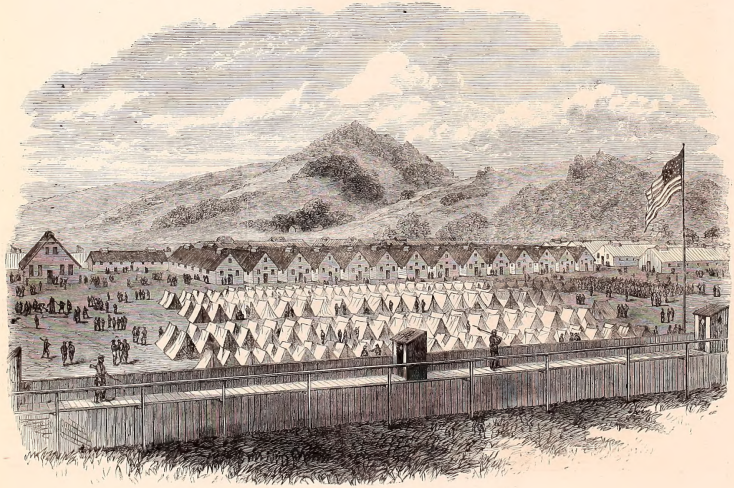
The South Staffordshire ironmasters have agreed to a proposal of the masters in the north of England that a conference representing the employers and the workmen should meet at York on Friday (yesterday).

The Scotch malleable ironmasters held a meeting at Glasgow, on Wednesday morning, to take into consideration the lock-out. Resolutions were passed expressing their determination to reduce the wages of the workmen and to give a fortnight's notice of their intention to adopt that course. It was further resolved that the Scotch masters should refuse work to men coming from those districts in England where the lock-out prevails.



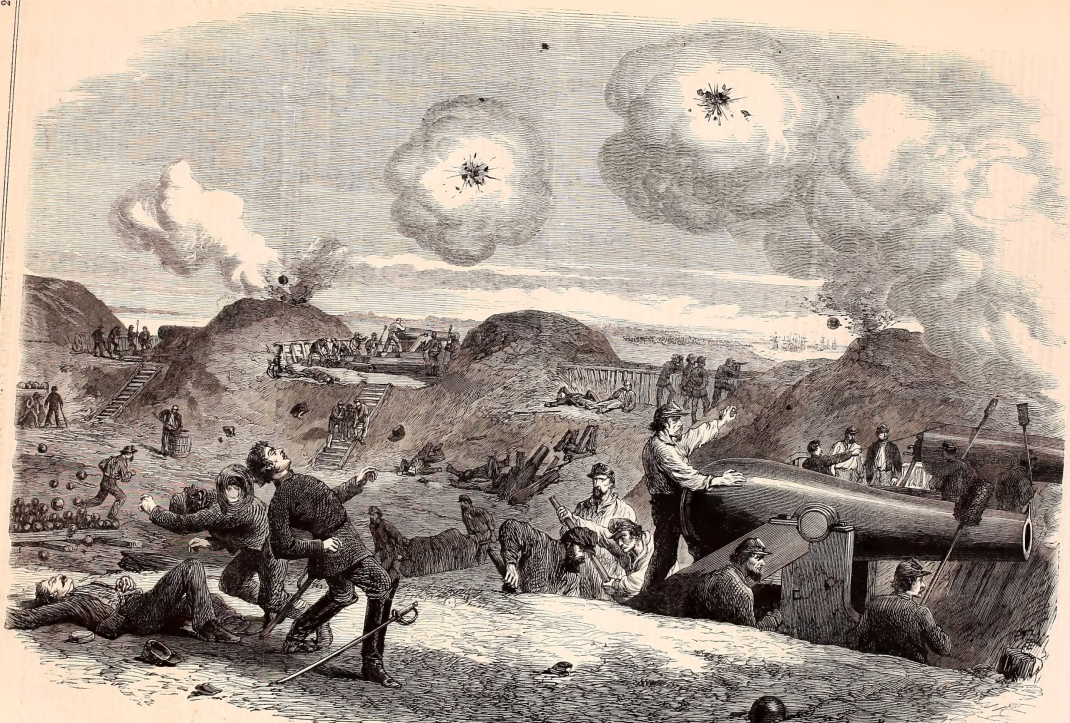
A meeting of delegates from the London trades societies was held at the Sussex Hotel, Bouverie-street, on Wednesday evening, to hear delegates from the ironworkers locked out and to consider the propriety of relieving the men. Mr. George Potter presided. There was some dissension at first in reference to the manner in which the meeting had been called. This was got over, however, and then the delegates from the locked-out men delivered addresses. Resolutions were agreed to declaring the conduct of the masters to be cruel and wrong and promising subscriptions in aid of the men who are locked out.

Letters from Vienna announce that the Governor and the Chancellor of Hungary, owing to a conflict between them, have both sent in their resignations to the Emperor of Austria.



We have received intelligence from Berlin of the death there, on Saturday last, of Sir Robert Hermann Schomburk, lately her Majesty's Consul at Bangkok, and celebrated for his many travels and his scientific investigations in South America. Sir Robert was born in 1804.

According to the Rangoon Times, an agricultural society has been established in Burmah. Its annual show was to take place last month. Among the poultry prizes were some for pheasants, partridges, swans, and peacocks.



THE WAR IN AMERICA.

INTERIOR OF FORT LAFAYETTE, NEW YORK HARBOUR.

CAMP OF CONFEDERATE PRISONERS AT ELMIRA, NEW YORK.—SEE PAGE 307.

THE WAR IN AMERICA: INTERIOR OF FORT FISHER, NEAR WILMINGTON, DURING THE SECOND BOMBARDMENT.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 257.

BIRTHS.

On the 9th inst., at Gunister, Somersetshire, the wife of James D. Blakeway, Esq., of Adelaide, South Australia, of a daughter.
On the 5th inst., at 15, South Park-terrace, Hillhead, Glasgow, Mrs. R. T. Cowan, of a daughter.
On the 1st inst., at Cochin, Madras Presidency, the wife of Francis Newman, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 5th inst., at Claughton, Cheshire, Mrs. T. Wilkinson Tetley, of a daughter.
On the 12th inst., at 11, Princes-square, Bayswater, the wife of Captain J. Andrew Wood, of a daughter.
On the 6th inst., at Charles-street, Berkeley-square, Lady E. Hennage, of a daughter, still-born.
At Hamilton-place, Piccadilly, the wife of Sir P. Hunt, Bart., of a daughter.
At Clifton-terrace, Brighton, the wife of F. Tremenheere, of a son.

MARRIAGE.

At Dytham, Gloucestershire, D. D. Robinson, Esq., Captain of the 7th Royal Fusiliers, son of the late Sir G. B. Robinson, Bart., to Sophia Jane, daughter of the Rev. W. B. Dytham, Rector of Dytham.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., Eliza Mary, daughter of John Tanner, of Speenhamland, Berks, aetatis, aged 27.
On the 5th inst., at Exmouth, Ellen, the beloved child of James Silver, Esq., late of the Madras Civil Service, aged 15 years and 8 months.
On the 23rd ult., at Southsea, of the bloom of her son, Captain H. W. Hire (to which she had been removed three or four days previously), Elizabeth Lock, widow of the late Captain Hire, of Dorchester.
On the 10th inst., at Tenby, South Wales, Geoffry Travers, infant son of Captain Theodosius Burton, 85th Light Infantry, aged 9 months.
On the 8th inst., at 41, Hunter's Jersey, after a fortnight's patient suffering, Ernest Perrin, aged 20.
On the 6th inst., at Strathallan House, Douglas, Isle of Man, Major Samuel Pollock, late 88th Regiment, formerly of the 43rd Light Infantry, aged 69 years.
On the 6th inst., at Lindores House, Fifeshire, Dame Catherine Cranmer, or Maitland, widow of the late Admiral Sir Frederick Lewis Maitland, K.C.B. of Lindores and Rosehall.
On the 10th inst., at his residence, Walliamstow, Edmund Collier, Esq., of New Broad-street, aged 76 years.
In Jermyn-street, A. W. Buller, Esq., M.P., of Downes, Crediton, in his 67th year.
On the 12th inst., at Tortworth Court, Gloucestershire, Elizabeth, Dowager Countess of Ducie, aged 88.
At Hemingford Grey, Huntingdonshire, the Hon. and Rev. G. Hastings, in his 65th year.
On the 11th inst., at his residence, Hill House, Winchmore-hill, aetatis, G. B. Gray, A.B.A., aged 63.
On Friday last, at his residence, Old Charlton, Lieutenant-General Sir S. S. Ellis, K.L.H., aged 76.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 25.

SUNDAY, March 15.—Third Sunday in Lent. The first recorded eclipse of the sun (by Ptolemy), 721 B.C. Annexation of Wales to England by statute of Rhuddlan, 1284.
MONDAY, 16.—Death of Inigo Jones, Architect, 1737. Spring quarter begins.
TUESDAY, 17.—Battle of Edgehill, 1642. Death of Wolsey, 1530.
WEDNESDAY, 18.—Synesius, Bishop of Ptolemais, composed by the Pope, 1212. Death of Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, poet, novelist, and philosopher, 1312. William, King of Prussia born, 1797.
THURSDAY, 19.—Death of Carl von Weber, musical composer, 1825. Battle of Navas d'Tolosa. Birthday of the Academician Sir Charles Eastlake, 1793.
FRIDAY, 20.—The Earl of Arundel captures a large Flemish fleet near Sluys, 1297. Battle of Newbury, Berkshire, 1643.
SATURDAY, 21.—Lady Day. Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The Thames Tunnel opened to the public, 1843.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 21.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m
0 17 0 37	1 3 1 23	1 47 2 7	2 30 2 50	3 13 3 33	3 56 4 16	4 39 4 59

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 24 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.		RAIN.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fahr.	Dew Point.	Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Highest.	Lowest.	General Direction.	Horizontal Movement.	Direct Pressure on 1 Square Foot.	Amount.	Duration.
	Inches.	°	°	0–10	°	°		Miles.	Inches.	Inches.	H. M.
7	29·736	29·0	91	7	39·6	29·3	SW. N.NW.	279	·009	·020	0 40
8	29·941	29·6	96	8	34·1	31·2	N. NW.	422	·020	·040	0 50
9	29·727	27·4	84	10	36·0	29·0	NW. SW.	293	·009	·020	0 40
10	29·751	30·8	84·2	9	39·6	32·9	NNE. N.	466	·011
11	29·777	31·2	87	9	40·2	32·9	E.	465	·011
12	29·841	34·9	94·7	7	42·8	42·9	WSW. E. ESE.	196	·004
13	29·917	36·0	96·2	7	47·3	41·4	SW. NW.	256	·006

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at 10 and past nine a.m.:

Barometer in inches corrected	29·66	29·707	29·688	29·708	29·705	29·695	29·756	29·867	29·903	29·956	29·967
Temperature of Evaporation	39·1	39·45	39·2	39·5	39·5	39·5	39·5	39·5	39·5	39·5	39·5
Temperature of Evaporation	34·75	32·95	33·75	32·95	33·75	33·95	33·75	33·75	34·75	34·75	34·75
Direction of Wind	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.	E.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Managers, MESSRS. ALFRED and FREDERICK WIGAN and F. B. CHATTERTON.—This present SATURDAY, the performances will commence, at a Quarter to Seven, with the new and original Drama, entitled THE HEART OF LONDON; or, Life's Struggles and Love's Victories. Written by Tom Taylor, Esq. The Music and Arrangements by Mr. Frederick Bridgewater. Walter Lacy, H. Marston, G. Belmore, A. Rayner, &c.; Mrs. H. Vandenhoff and Miss Fanny Huddart. After which, Tuesday and Thursday, Balfe's Opera, THE ROSE OF CASTILLE. Mr. Phipps, Messrs. James Anderson, Walter Lacy, Barrett, Robert Roxby, Miss Pyne, Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Rose Hersee, and Miss Fanny Huddart. Conductor, C. W. Corri, Esq. To conclude with a Farce.
On Wednesday, March 18, Shakespeare's Play of AS YOU LIKE IT—Messrs. James Anderson, Walter Lacy, G. Belmore, Barrett, Robert Roxby, Ryder, Miss Pyne, Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Rose Hersee, Miss Fanny Huddart, Shakespeare's Tragedy of MACBETH—Mr. Phipps, James Anderson, Walter Lacy, G. F. Neville, A. Rayner, Miss Atkinson, and Mrs. Herbert Vining. The performances will conclude with a Grand Ballet, the Opening of the Grand Pantomime, HOP O' MY THUMB AND HIS SEVEN BROTHERS, or, The Ogre of the Yellow Mill. Harlequin, Mr. Frederick Payne; Pantaloon, Mr. Barrett; Clown, Tom Matthews; Columbine, Miss Fanny Huddart. Fairy Realm, by Mr. Grieve and the Transformation Scene. Doors open at half-past Six; Commence at a quarter to Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern in the New Comedy in Three Scenes every Evening, with Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Mr. Howe, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Braid, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Frew, Miss E. Wyndham, Miss Marie Wilton, Miss Reynolds, Mrs. Chippendale, and Miss Betty Moore. Miss Snowdon, &c. After which, at Quarter to Eight, the New Burlesque Extravaganza, entitled LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD, with new Scenery, Appointments, Dresses, Music and Action. Concluding with EASY SHAVING—Miss Louise Keeley.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD,"

PRINTED IN COLOURS,
FROM A PICTURE BY J. SANT.

Price Sixpence.

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been RE-ENGRAVED, and IS NOW ON SALE. PRICE SIXPENCE.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given at once to Newsagents, or at the Office, 198, Strand, London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1863.

THE most interesting, as well as the most important, debate which has marked the present Session took place on Monday last, when Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald, calling attention to the report of Colonel Jervois on the defences of Canada, brought up "the American question." Several of the best speakers in the house took part in the discussion, and the Commons were occupied upon it until near midnight, the Premier closing the debate. It was, generally speaking, conducted in a manner which showed that the House had a due sense of the weight which would attach to the deliberate utterances of the British House of Representatives. The report is now on its way to the West, and it will be interesting to know how it will have affected American readers. The declaration of the friends of the British that the Canadas are to be defended and are to be respected, as they do not represent the feeling of the people, may as well be borne in mind when we are told, as we unquestionably shall be, that the British are showing their terror of the power of the North by the fact that many of the rebellion will liberate, and probably dispatch to rectify an account which requires stern overhauling.

We do not suppose that an honest American reader of the debate, however much he may fancy he dislikes England, will perceive any signs of terror in the great debate. We are expressly told, on both sides of the House, that there is no reason to believe that the Federals propose to break the peace. Lord Palmerston assures us of the friendly character of the relations between the Government at Washington and our own, but his words are these which a Minister is bound to use until the moment when he is ready to declare that the conditions of peace which we received within a very short time of the declaration of war with Russia, to derive very great importance from the position of the speaker. Mr. Disraeli, like the celebrated German who had never seen a camel but nevertheless described one, evolved a Federal out of his own moral consciousness, and, having constructed the being, cited Aristotle to show that Lincoln would not invade Canada. The leader of the Opposition discussed, and successfully, the matter in a calm, philosophic tone in regard to America; and argued, from a lofty height, and as if with a bird's-eye view of affairs, that we need not apprehend war, though it was just and necessary to state that our Government was not to be thankful for our security. But Mr. Bright, who may be regarded as the member for Federalia, and who represents American views far more faithfully than those of any large number of Englishmen, would not be content with any formulæ or any philosophy. He was, or seemed to be, more angry than he usually appears; and, while peace was his theme, he thundered over it as if he were proclaiming war. Mr. Bright contended that England had induced all the Powers of Christendom to back the South, in taking a high tone in the Trent affair, and in permitting the Alabama and other English-built vessels to ravage the seas. That was the guilt of the Government. The educated classes had been bribed by an industrious few who had slave-owners and in rejoicing at their successful resistance. The press had behaved ill in recording its belief that the Confederates would make a long defence, and might ultimately establish their independence, and, moreover, in recording the victories which they had gained. Lord Russell was let off easily, though his declaration that the triumph of the North would be good neither for England nor for humanity was a permanent record. Mr. Bright—and we have noted his words at some length because he is the American advocate—is instructed to say that there is "no fear of war."

These words will be received by the men who represent opposed opinions, and, for different reasons, they all agree that at present there is no cause to apprehend a rupture. The allegation by Mr. Seward that at the Hampton Roads conference the Confederate commissioners had declared that the North and South should fall on Canada, is eagerly repudiated by the Richmond press, and we are assured that it was not upon Canada, but upon Mexico, that it was proposed to fall, and that the French, not the Southern, are to be expelled from the New World. This may or may not be. If we have to express our opinion, it would be that, had the North seen its way to any war at all, the South would not have been particular as to the direction in which the crusade was to be carried on. We nor have we done anything to deserve the affection of the South. The Emperor of the French will, doubtless, take into consideration the amiable readiness of the Federals to declare war against Mexico and Empire. He is in fact, in much the same position as ourselves in regard to America. If Canada be attacked, we shall certainly support her with the whole force which Great Britain can bring to bear. If Mexico be attacked, the indefensible Power, like the case with several points in another frontier, which it is not necessary to name. If Mexico be attacked, the honour of France is pledged to maintain, for some years at least, the empire which she found to exist, and which will be an invaluable boon to a country which was never free, by reason of the numerous bloodthirsty and corrupt tyrannies which rendered Mexico a by-word for misrule. The Federals have said in our debates will perceive that our statesmen of all parties are fully aware of all the bearings of the case, and we think that the speeches of the responsible orators will show that "cowdy rhetoric" has produced no effect upon the tempers of Englishmen, and that we do not accept the scoffs of vulgar writers as the expression of American opinion. And, above all, and amid all, and beneath all, we will be content with the calm assessment of a noble faith—namely, the belief that Providence will not permit the despots of the world to enjoy the humiliating spectacle of the free States of America, on earth, the mighty champions of civilisation and progress, engaged in hideous grapple, instead of leading in majestic union the march of mankind towards better things than can be gained by war.

A Parliamentary paper, recently issued, shows that £7,013,766 worth of bar gold and £691,278 in foreign gold were purchased by the Bank of England last year; £396,018 in bar and £120,716 in foreign gold were sold during the same period; and the amount of British gold coin received from the Mint was £9,033,076. There was no bullion in silver purchased or sold during 1862.

THE COURT.

THE Queen held a Council on Thursday week at Windsor Castle, which was attended by Earl Granville, the Earl of Clarendon, and Earl Russell. Lord Lyons and Sir Edward Vaughan Williams were sworn of her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council. Earl Granville and Earl Russell had audiences of the Queen. Mr. Helps attended as Clerk of the Council. Lord Torrington, Sir Charles Phipps, and Sir W. Hoste were the Lord and Groom in Waiting. Subsequently, her Majesty attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa rode in the Home Park.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, left Buckingham Palace, drove out, Princess Louisa rode in the Home Park. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, left the castle for Buckingham Palace. The Duke of Cambridge and Prince Ernest Leopold had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, drove out in a carriage and four. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, returned to the castle from Buckingham Palace. Princess Ernest Leopold arrived at the castle, and had the honour of being presented to her Majesty by the Duchess of Roxburghe.

On Sunday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Rev. C. Elsley officiated. The Rev. C. Elsley had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, left attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Augusta Stanley, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, left the castle at twelve o'clock for London. Her Majesty travelled in a saloon carriage, provided by the Great Western Railway. Mr. Grierson, general manager, and Mr. Tyrrell, the superintendent of the line, had charge of the special train, which arrived at Paddington at forty minutes past one. The Queen drove to Buckingham Palace and held a Court, some details of which are given below. Subsequently, her Majesty accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, visited the studio of Mr. Theed. The Queen next visited the Royal Academy of Music in Hanover Square House, and afterwards visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. The Queen shortly arrived at Buckingham Palace from Windsor Castle. Princess Louisa dined with the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, and accompanied their Royal Highnesses to the Adelphi Theatre.

On Tuesday the Queen, attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lord Alfred Paget, Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, and Dr. Jenner, visited the Hospital for Consumption at Brompton. Her Majesty arrived at the hospital at twenty minutes o'clock, and was received by the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, Mr. Philip Rose, the founder of the hospital, Dr. Fox, Dr. Cotton, and the medical officers of the institution. The Queen passed through the "Victoria," "Albert," "Foulis," and the "Percy Lund" galleries, and visited many of the wards and conversed with some of the patients. Her Majesty afterwards visited the chapel and library, and inspected the kitchens. The Queen wrote her name in the visitors' book, and examined the vellum scroll containing the names of the Royal Consort upon the occasion of the laying of the foundation-stone of the building by his Royal Highness, in 1844. Her Majesty was graciously pleased to express her approval of the institution throughout the establishment. The Queen afterwards visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, and returned to Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, visited the Duchess of Cambridge at St. James's Palace, and also honoured the Countess Dowager of Jersey with a visit at her residence in Berkeley-square. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa were attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and the Dean of Windsor, visited the British Museum, and afterwards visited the Prince and Princess of Wales. Princess Helena dined with their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. Princess Beatrice, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, honoured the Olympic Theatre with her presence. Earl Russell had an audience of the Queen, and introduced Sir Rutherford Alcock to her Majesty.

On Wednesday the Queen, attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, visited the General Lying-in Hospital, York-road, Lambeth. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, left Buckingham Palace at a quarter to one o'clock, en route for Windsor Castle. The above performance consisted of the Contest of Guinsborough, Lady Augusta Stanley, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Florence Seymour, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge. Prince Leopold arrived at Windsor Castle at eleven o'clock.

The Queen will hold a Court on Tuesday, March 28, on which occasion the invitations will not be restricted to the official and diplomatic circle. The ladies will be presented.

It is understood that Princess Helena will hold Drawingrooms for her Majesty during the months of April and May, in the absence of the Princess of Wales, who will only hold the next Drawingroom.

The Duke of Cambridge has arranged for the Court to go into mourning, on Saturday last, for the late Queen of the Netherlands.—The ladies to wear black dresses, with black gloves, shoes, fans, and handkerchiefs, and fans, pearls, diamonds, or plain gold or silver ornaments. The gentlemen to wear black cloth dress, with black swords and buckles. The Court to change the mourning on Saturday, the 25th inst., viz.:—The ladies to wear black dresses trimmed with white lace, ribbon, feathers, and ornaments, or grey or white dresses, with black ribbon, feathers, and ornaments. The gentlemen to continue the same mourning; and on Saturday, the 4th of April next, the Court to go out of mourning.

The Countess of Guinsborough has succeeded the Duchess of Roxburghe as Lady in Waiting to the Queen.

The Earl of Carlisle and Lieutenant-Colonel F. Cavendish have succeeded Lord Talbot de Malahide and Sir W. Hoste, Bart., R.N., as the Lord and Groom in Waiting to her Majesty.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

The Queen held a second Court on Monday at Buckingham Palace, for Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, and attended by the Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Augusta Stanley, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, received at the palace at one o'clock from Windsor Castle.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, escorted by a squadron of Life Guards and attended by a large retinue of Cavendishes, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Exit Spencer, Lord Harris, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and the Hon. R. Meade, left Marlborough House shortly before three o'clock from Marlborough House. The Duke of Cambridge received their Royal Highnesses. Her Majesty's bodyguard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen at Arms was on duty at the Court, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Clayton. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty in the palace, under the command of Colonel C. P. Beauclerk. A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was mounted in the court of the palace.

The Duke of Cambridge, accompanied by Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, entered the White Drawingroom at three o'clock. The attendants upon her Majesty were the Duchess of Wellington, Viscount Sydney, Earl St. Germans, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Lord Sandhurst, the Duchess of Beaufort, Lady Caroline Barrington, Lady Sarah Lindsay, Lady Augusta Stanley, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Florence Seymour, Lord Alfred Paget, Baroness Knyvett, Colonel Sir T. M. Biddulph, K.C.B., Lord Talbot de Malahide, Captain Sir W. Hoste, Bart., R.N., Lord Alfred Paget, Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, the Marquis of Tweeddale, Lord Foley, Colonel Hepburn, the Hon. C. Grey, and the Earl of Beesborough.

The Queen wore a black silk dress, with train, trimmed with crape and jet, and a Mary Queen of Scots cap with long veil, the cap ornamented with pearls. Her Majesty wore four rows of large pearls round the neck and pearl bracelets; the ribbon and the star of the Order of the Garter, the Victoria and Albert Order, and the Order of Louise of Prussia.

The Princess of Wales wore a dress of white moiré antique, trimmed with tufts, rows of ribbon, and jet. Head-dress of black velvet and diamonds, and bracelets to match. Diamond ornaments. Orders: Victoria and Albert and Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Helena wore a dress of black figured net over rich glacé silk trimmed with jet lace, looped up with large jet beads; train of rich black moire antique. Head-dress, wreaths of white wild violets and green ivy leaves, white feathers and veil. Ornaments, diamonds. Victoria and Albert Order and Order of St. Isabella.

Princess Louisa wore a similar dress and similar ornaments.

The following distinguished personages had the honour of receiving invitations to attend the Court:—

The Archbishop of Canterbury and Miss Longley, the Lord Chancellor and the Hon. Miss Bethell, the Archbishop of York and Mrs. Thomson, the Archbishop of Armagh and Mrs. Beresford, the Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. Trench, Earl Granville, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Duke and Duchess of Somerset and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur, the Duke of Wellington, the Duke of Roxburghe, the Duchess (Dowager) of Sutherland, the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, the Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter and Lady Victoria Cecil, the Marchioness of Ailesbury, the Earl and Countess of Derby, the Earl of Dalhousie and Lady Christian Maule, the Earl and Countess of Hardwicke and Lady Agneta Yorke, Earl and Countess Delawarr, Countess Spencer, the Earl and Countess of Clarendon and Lady Emily Villiers and Miss Lister, the Countess (Dowager) of Mount-Edgcumbe and Lady Ernestine Edgcumbe, the Earl and Countess of Malmesbury, the Countess of Bessborough, Earl and Countess De Grey and Ripon, the Countess of Ducie, Earl and Countess Russell and Lady Georgiana Russell, Viscountess Sydney, Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston, Lord Stanley, Viscountess Bury, Lady Proby, Viscountess Castlerosse, Viscount and Viscountess Amberley, Rear-Admiral Lord and Lady Clarence Paget, the Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait, Lady Foley, Lord and Lady Wodehouse, Lord and Lady Stanley of Alderley and the Hon. Maude Stanley, Lord and Lady Cranworth, Lord and Lady Chelmsford and the Hon. Miss Thesiger, the Speaker and Lady Charlotte Denison, the Right Hon. Sir George Grey and Lady Grey, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell and Mrs. Cardwell, the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood and Lady Mary Wood, the Hon. Sir Frederick Bruce, the Right Hon. and Hon. William and Mrs. W. Cowper, Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir F. and Lady Grey, General the Hon. Sir James Yorke Scarlett, the Right Hon. W. E. and Mrs. and Miss Gladstone, the Right Hon. Thomas and Mrs. Milner Gibson, the Right Hon. Sir John Romilly and Miss Romilly, the Right Hon. B. and Mrs. Disraeli, the Right Hon. Spencer and Mrs. Walpole, the Right Hon. Sir John and Lady Pakington, the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, the Right Hon. Sir Alex. Cockburn, the Right Hon. Lieutenant-General J. and Lady Alice Peel and Miss Peel, the Right Hon. Sir Frederick and Lady Pollock and Miss Pollock, the Right Hon. Sir Wm. and Lady Erle, the Right Hon. T. E. and Mrs. Headlam, the Right Hon. Wm. and Mrs. Hutt, the Right Hon. Sir Robert and Lady Emily Peel, the Right Hon. H. A. and Mrs. Bruce and Miss Bruce, Lieutenant-General Sir R. and the Hon. Lady Airey and Miss Airey, Sir Roundell and Lady Laura Palmer, Sir R. P. and Lady Collier and Miss Collier, Rear-Admiral Eden, and Major-General Forster.

Some of the above were prevented by unavoidable circumstances from attending the Court.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

On Thursday week the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. His Royal Highness attended the House of Lords.

Yesterday week was the second anniversary of the marriage of the Prince and Princess. The Prince attended the House of Lords. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince and Princess gave a ball, at which were present Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, the Duke of Cambridge, the Count and Countess de Paris, the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, the Duke de Nemours and Princess Marguerite d'Orleans, the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, the Count and Countess d'Eu, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and Countess Dornberg, the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, the ladies and gentlemen in waiting upon the respective members of the English and Orleans Royal families, and about 150 members of the aristocracy. Messrs. Coote and Tinney's band was in attendance, conducted by Mr. Coote.

On Saturday last the Prince rode out. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, took a drive. In the evening the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. Holzmann, was present at a conversazione of the Royal Society at Burlington House.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Bishop of Peterborough, the Rev. Sub-Dean, the Rev. C. Packe, and the Rev. C. V. H. Sumner, officiated.

On Monday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. The Princess, attended by the Marchioness of Carmarthen, took a drive. Their Royal Highnesses attended the Queen's Court at Buckingham Palace. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured the Adelphi Theatre with their presence.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. His Royal Highness attended the House of Lords. The Princess, accompanied by Princess Louisa, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess had a dinner party. The company included Princess Helena, the Russian Ambassador and Baroness Brunnow, Field Marshal Prince Bariatinsky, the Duke and Duchess o Sutherland, the Marquis and Marchioness of Carmarthen, Viscount and Viscountess Bury, the Bishop of Oxford, Sir Robert and Lady Emily Peel, the Right Hon. E. and Mrs. Cardwell, Sir Rutherford Alcock, Mr. Oliphant, Mr. Fisher, Lady Caroline Barrington, Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

On Wednesday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, hunted with his harriers at Staines. His Royal Highness travelled from the Waterloo terminus by the ten-minutes-to-eleven ordinary train to Staines. The Prince was met at the station by Major-General the Hon. A. N. Hood, and rode thence, by Perry Oaks Farm, to Heath Row, Harmondsworth, where the "meet" took place. There was a large field, and several good runs were obtained. His Royal Highness returned to London by the quarter-past-four train from Reading. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, drove out.

The accouchement of the Princess is expected to take place in the course of a few months.

The Prince will, by command of the Queen, hold levées at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, on Wednesday, the 22nd of March, and on Wednesday, the 5th of April next, at two o'clock.

The Prince will proceed to Ireland on the 8th of May next, for the purpose of being present at the opening of the Dublin International Exhibition on the following day.

The Prince has given Mr. Weigall the last of a series of sittings for his portrait.

Mr. Desanges has had the honour of a sitting for his portrait of the Princess.

Mr. Fowke has had the honour to submit to the Prince his bronze statuette representing his Royal Highness in the uniform of the Hon. Artillery Company, the prize presented to that regiment by the Prince.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Excellency the Russian Ambassador and Baroness Brunnow entertained a distinguished company at dinner, on Saturday last, at Chesham House.

The Duchess of Somerset gave a dance, on Wednesday night, at the Admiralty, Whitehall. A distinguished circle assembled.

The Duke of St. Albans entertained a select party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at his residence in Park-street.

The Marchioness of Ely entertained Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Dornberg and a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at her residence at Prince's-gate.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury entertained a select party at dinner, yesterday week, at their mansion in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

Earl and Countess Russell received a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Chesham-place.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., and Frances Countess Waldegrave entertained the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, the Duke d'Aumale, and a distinguished company, at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Carlton-gardens. After dinner her Ladyship held a reception, which was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Countess of Newburgh received a select party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at her residence in Wilton-crescent.

Lady Molesworth entertained the Duke of Cambridge and a distinguished company at dinner, on Saturday evening last,

Lady Margaret Beaumont had her second assembly, at the family residence on the Terrace, Piccadilly, on Tuesday evening. The réunion was attended by the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, and by a large circle of the aristocracy. Previously to the reception Mr. and Lady Margaret Beaumont received a select party at dinner.

Lady Egerton of Tatton held her second assembly, on Monday night, at her residence in St. James's-square. The réunion was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Right Hon. the Speaker gave his fifth Parliamentary full-dress dinner on Wednesday evening.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

An unlucky person has been just been tried in Ireland for "being an Irish gentleman, and refusing to work," and "coshering" about, against the peace of our Sovereign Lady the Queen and the statute in that case made and provided. A lady philologist—if the signature "Priscilla" is to be considered declaratory of sex—has written to a contemporary to say that the derivation of the word "coshering" is obvious. It comes, according to "Priscilla," from the French coucher, it being an ancient prerogative of feudal "swells" to sleep and regale themselves at their tenants' houses without paying anything. "Priscilla" is quite right in her definition of "coshering"; but I humbly submit that she has jumped somewhat too hastily at her derivation. "Coshe," it is stated by the learned Minshew, in his "Ductor in Linguas," or "Guide into Tongues," 1617, is "an olde Englishe worde," and synonymous with "cotterell," or cottage, which is derived from the Saxon Cote or Cot; or the Latin Quies—locus ipse in quo greges quiescunt, an etiam est domus cubiculum idem quod; gr., κοιτών. "Coshe," in fact, is a small snug cabin or hut. We have in French the words "Coyte" and "Coy," for privacy; and the old canal-boats in France and the Low Countries used to be called, from the snuggery abaft, "coches"; whence, perhaps, our English "coach"—a snuggery on wheels. "Coucher" is a comparatively modern word. Now, a "cosher" is obviously a small yeoman dwelling in a "coshe" or "cotterell"; and a "cosherer" is one who goes about eating "coshers" out of house and home; just as the Americans (to whom, in cases of comparative philology, we should always refer) call the obtrusive claim to hospitality on the ground of kinship "going out a cousining." Thus much, with the homage of the word-grubber to "Priscilla." Query: Has "cosher" anything to do with the mysterious word "codger" or "coger"? Tell us, Mr. John Camden Hotten.

Fifty years hence our grandchildren will be writing to the papers to know the etymology of many of the terms used in the "latest intelligence" of 1865. "Jute," "domestics," "madapolam," "mule twist," and "Dhollerah" will have become imbedded in the language, but few will know their origin. Reuter's telegrams are full of strange words. For instance, I read the other day that the Bey of Tunis had granted an "aman" to certain Arab refugees from Algeria. Now, I will wager that this word "aman" must have puzzled the telegraphic operators; and I "guess" it was a hard nut to crack, even to the most sapient précis-writers of the Foreign Office. I don't pretend to any particular skill in tongues for being able to solve the enigma; for it was quite by accident that I came to know what "aman" meant. I once knew a wild Bashi-bazouk sort of a fellow who had been doing Dugald Dalgetty's work in Asia Minor during the Crimean War. He told me that one day, being out foraging, he stole a pig, half a dozen chickens, and a pipkin of rancid butter from an old woman, and that all the poor bereft soul did was to wring her hands and cry out, in Arabic, "Aman! Andu!" signifying "mercy," from which I infer that the Bey of Tunis's "aman" was an act of grace or free pardon.

Which word "free pardon," by-the-way, is, in English jurisprudence, a shameful misnomer and anomaly. I suppose that, as the police have not succeeded in hanging the Italian Serafino Pelizzioni, and as Sir George Grey can scarcely carry out the agreeable juste milieu of consigning him to penal servitude for life because he didn't kill anybody, that the unfortunate victim of a judicial muddle will have a "free pardon." A pardon for what? Pardon presupposes guilt, which, for some cause or another, has been condoned. Mr. Barber, when it was found that he was perfectly innocent, was "pardoned." The term—unjust and offensive as it is—should be altered. The law should not be ashamed to confess and to make restitution when it has blundered. When a bankrupt pays his debts in full, he can take his petition off the file, and the fiat which made him a bankrupt can be annulled. There should be some means for solemnly quashing and revoking a criminal sentence when it is found that it has been wrongly imposed.

The which reminds me that Mr. Matthews the cabman, or rather Mr. Matthews's creditors, have got the whole of the reward—three hundred pounds—for the discovery of the murderer of Mr. Briggs. There is something abhorrent in the notion of blood-money; and it is a question for social economists whether the offers of large rewards tend, as a rule, to the detection of crime. It certainly often leads to a system of "nursing" and "getting up" cases on the part of the police.

"Half a Million of Money" is the title of the new novel which the authoress of "George Geith"—whom a contemporary calls "Miss Trafford;" but who, in reality, is Mrs. —— (well, I have no right to mention the lady's name)—is about to commence the Shilling Magazine, to be edited by Mr. Samuel Lucas, author of "Secularia," erst editor of "Once a Week," and one of the most distinguished scholars and critics of the day. Mr. William Russell is also to be a contributor to the new venture; so, likewise, will Captain Burton, who has exchanged, I see, his African consulate for a Brazilian one. Anything must be better, in the way of climate, than Fernando Po, which fully bears out the Spanish proverb about Madrid: Tus mesos de invierno y nueve de infierno—without the three months' winter. By-the-way, there is a coincidence between Mrs. ——' title and that of Dr. Viron's novel, "Cinq cents mille livres de cento." I hope the coincidence will stop there. The Doctor's novel was an exceedingly stupid one.

A "Country Clergyman" has written to say that he is going to be married, and wishes to know what style of dress he should adopt on that momentous occasion? What next and next? I should suggest a san benito of flame-coloured satin, with three ruches of tulle (scolloped), over a field marshal's uniform, cream-coloured tights, an Elizabethan ruff, topboots, a cocked hat, and an arquebus. Be very particular about the arquebus. By-the-way, the "Country Clergyman's" handwriting has a suspicious resemblance to that of a clergywoman. Then, another gentleman, who signs his name—not an uncommon one—but doesn't give his address, has filled three neatly-written pages with abuse of the subscriber because he presumed, last week, to speak of the mob of ladies and gentlemen who write with ease. The letter is to all intents and purposes an anonymous one, and the subscriber has only to refer the gentleman to a remark once made by the late Right Hon. George Canning, about people who write anonymous letters. And he is everybody's humble and obedient servant to command.

"Pages in Waiting" is the odd name given by Mr. Edmund Yates to a new volume of essays and sketches which will shortly see the light. What does Mr. Yates mean by "Pages in Waiting"? Are we to understand that his pages have been waiting for a publisher or for republication? Lady Caroline Lamb was said to have "doubled down a page" when she knocked her footboy over; but Mr. Yates is the first author who has kept his pages "waiting." Printers' devils are generally the only "waiters" upon authors.

A temporary cloud has come over "jerked beef at threepence a pound," of which, as charqui, I have partaken, stewed and duommodated with garlic and chiles, in Mexico. With respect to its succulence I cannot do more than indorse the testimonial which Mr. Abraham Lincoln is said to have given Artemus Ward:—"Dear Sir,—I have witnessed your lectures, and they must be very nice to those who like them. Yours, truly, O. ABE." Charqui to those who like charqui must be delightful. The subscriber don't—preferring to wear india-rubber braces to eating them.

Nor with the fathers of the City does jerked beef at threepence a pound find favour, it would seem. The sanitary inspectors in the City have been seizing South American beef right and left. A quantity has been condemned as unfit for human food, and the Lord Mayor has fulminated a decree against jerked beef. The peril in this matter is, that we should conceive a prejudice against a cheap and nutritious article of food because it is cheap. But, on the other hand, there is the danger of the so-called American "beef" being the vilest offal. It may come from South America, but how do we know it is beef? It may be horse, or mule, or the flesh of the vast and terrible wangdoodlum. They are not very particular in South America. We have the authority of Baron Humboldt for the existence on the shores of the Amazon of a most toothsome animal, something between a seal and a sucking pig, but which the monks of the Indian missions declare to be a fish, and consume in vast quantities during Lent. There is, besides, the chance that dishonest persons in England might foist the most horrible garbage on the public as the genuine South American article. I was appalled a few days since to read this advertisement in one of the daily papers:—"Wanted, a market for boiled horse-beef." Now, the advertisement was possibly wholly innocent, but it was not the less suggestive of the most horrifying misgivings. The British Government, however, appear to be above all vulgar prejudices about charqui. It has been publicly stated in Parliament that negotiations are on foot to introduce jerked beef into the prisons. Here, again, another drawback is imminent. If the honest poor come to know that convicts are fed upon South American beef, they won't touch it.

I just noticed a curious advertisement. But here is another, stranger, and full of a darker interest. It is from Wednesday's Times:—"The governess who is dying of cancer caused by a kick from a pupil still lingers on." The poor lady requires help. There is a terrible terseness in this advertisement. A Frederic Soulie could build on those few words a copious addition to "Les Drames Intérieures."

Let me say a good word for a simple, sensible, and well-written story of Irish life, called "Kinkora," by the Hon. Albert Canning, which Messrs. Chapman and Hall have just published. Just at this time, when Irish grievances, Irish distress, Irish landlord-and-tenant questions occupy to so great an extent the public attention, "Kinkora," written as it is by a gentleman connected by birth and property with the sister isle, and full as it is of revelations of inner Irish life and curious couleur locale, cannot fail to be interesting.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The Doncaster Spring opened, on Tuesday last, better than for some years past. The early Spring meetings have been frequently postponed on account of frost and snow, but the sports on the town moor were especially favoured with fine weather, which brought thousands together. The racing on Tuesday was noticeable for close finishes and the success of the favourites. Dunkeld managed to turn the tables upon those who exulted in his defeat in the Nottingham Handicap by carrying off the Spring Handicap, beating the old Earl of Surrey by a neck after a terrific struggle. Qui Vive, a perfect model of a horse, won the Hopeful. He is Theodora's first get, and great things are expected of him before he exhausts his two-year-old engagements. The scandal of the day—for every meeting seems to raise up or create some scandal—was the withdrawal of Wandering Minstrel for the Spring Handicap, after even the form of paying the amount of his subscription had been gone through the previous evening. The consequence was that his many backers were furious, and ugly threats were heard all round the ring. The "wiring" to the London "lists" was incessant, and "Carthage," the designation by which the ruins near Farringdon-street are known, presented a scene of unusual commotion and excitement. Mr. Frederick Fisher, one of the best-tempered "losers" on the Turf, had some recompense for the defeat of his horse in the Spring Handicap by winning the Londesborough Plate with old Reindeer, after one of those exciting finishes for which the meeting was remarkable. Jemmy Grimshaw tried all he knew, but he could not urge Jane Shore further than getting second, beaten a short head. Qui Vive repeated his victory by winning the Betting-room Stakes on Wednesday, he cutting down his opponents in such hollow style that his owner may regret his not being entered for the Derby or any other of the great three-year-old events of 1866. The meeting was a severe trial to bookmakers, as almost in every instance the favourites won on both days.

Birmingham, Chertsey, and Scarborough presented no novelty worth adverting to.

The course for the Grand National, at Wetherby, is on the north side of the River Wharfe, extending from the town end of Wetherby to the village of Linton. Its thirty fences will be all natural, and some of them pretty stiff. The water jump is a hedge and ditch, the latter widened out to ten feet. In the great race the distance will be about four miles two hundred yards, or once and half round the selected ground, and the water jump and the winning-post will be in the same field. There will be three ploughs, or rather fields, of sown wheat, and the rest grass, with a run in of nearly 300 yards. The chances of seeing are admirable, as the course is in a valley, with hills on both sides, on which quite as many Yorkshire men and women as attended the Flying Dutchman and Voltigeur match will, no doubt, be clustered. "No horse or carriage will, on any pretence, be allowed on the course;" and a large ring and stand (admittance half-guinea), with weighing-room attached, will be built on the side of a hill which commands a perfect view of the whole proceedings.

The cricket list for the ensuing season fills up well, considering the disunion and lack of spirit during the last two. The Marylebone Club commences on May 8. Surrey is engaged in twenty-eight matches, Sussex in eleven, Nottingham in seven, Bucks in six, Hants in eight, and York in two. The All-England Eleven have seventeen matches on hand; and the United South, eight. As at present announced, the latter, among whom fully half of the crack players are engaged, will take no part in the match of "the Elevens," which will be played between the All-England and the remnants of the old United, which Carpenter keeps together.

DONCASTER SPRING MEETING.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—The Pirate, 1. Hartley, 2. Grenadine, 3.
Hopeful Stakes.—Qui Vive, 1. Ambition, 2. Valentine, 3,
Doncaster Spring Handicap.—Dunkeld, 1. Earl of Surrey, 2. Club Queen, 3.
Municipal Stakes.—Tragedy, 1. Halifax, 2. Nell Grey, 3.
Londesborough Plate.—Reindeer, 1. Jane Shore, 2. Jig, 3.
United Hunt Stakes.—Vandal, 1. Old Squire, 2. Little Goy, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Scurry Stakes.—Queen Bee, 1. Jig, 2. Novice, 3.
Betting-room Stakes.—Qui Vive, 1. Surney, 2. Jessamine, 3.
Chesterfield Handicap.—Idle Girl, 1. Hawkshaw, 2. Nell Digby, 3.
Great North of England Steeplechase.—Pigeon, 1. Princess Dagmar, 2. The Rogue, 3.
Don Steeplechase.—Patience, 1. Miss Joyce, 2.

The Right Hon. the Speaker will hold his Parliamentary full-dress levées on Wednesday, the 29th inst., and on Wednesday, April 5.

The Duke of Somerset was unavoidably prevented from holding his levée on Thursday. Due notice will be given when his Grace will receive the officers on the list for that day.

THE RIGHT HON. EDWARD CARDWELL, M.P.

The present Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, M.P. for the city of Oxford, is an instance of the versatility, or rather the adaptability, of those of our public men who choose politics for a profession. From the year 1845, three years after he entered Parliament as member for Clitheroe, down to the present time, he has filled various offices, and in all of them he has been found equal to their duties; in some distinguishing himself for administrative ability. Without going through the apprenticeship of a lordship of the Treasury, generally the first step on the ladder of official life, Mr. Cardwell was appointed Financial Secretary to the Treasury in 1845, a critical and important juncture in the Government of Sir Robert Peel. This post he continued to occupy until the dissolution of that Ministry, in July, 1846. In December, 1852, when the Coalition Government of Lord Aberdeen found room for the picked men of what was then known as the Peelite party, Mr. Cardwell was appointed President of the Board of Trade, but without a seat in the Cabinet. In this department he exhibited his usual qualities of industry and capacity for administration, and his tenure of office was distinguished by the introduction and passing of a very important measure, known as the Merchant Shipping Act, which has become the code of our mercantile marine. At the disruption of the Aberdeen Government, in 1855, Mr. Cardwell, in common with the Peelite section of that Administration, declined to follow the fortunes of Lord Palmerston, and resigned his office. While sitting in the cold shade of Opposition, during Lord Derby's brief tenure of office in 1858 and 1859, he originated a motion equivalent to a vote of want of confidence in the Conservative Ministry, which he brought forward in a speech of remarkable—indeed, unusual—vigour of construction and delivery; but, as may be remembered, it was discovered that the attempt was premature, and after a curious negotiation, carried on in the House while the debate, practically at an end, was being languidly pursued, the motion was withdrawn. So prominent a member of the Opposition could not be neglected, even if there had been any inclination to do so, when Lord Palmerston was organising his second administration, on the broad basis of Whiggery, Peelism, and Radicalism combined, and Mr. Cardwell was made one of the Cabinet; but, owing, no doubt, to the difficulty of finding him an office exactly suited to his qualifications, he appeared as Secretary for Ireland. Personal adaptation and antecedents are too often disregarded in the choice of statesmen to this particular share in the duty of governing Ireland; and in the famous which were made during the time occupied in getting up the Ministry of 1859 it is very unlikely that Mr. Cardwell's name was ever mentioned in connection with the chief secretaryship to the Lord Lieutenant. No man could have applied himself more assiduously to the duties of his office than Mr. Cardwell did; it was understood that personally he had conciliated the goodwill of Irish members of all sections of politics and religion, and, so far as ordinary observers could see, he was doing the Irish business well; when, in the change of offices which occurred on the retirement of Lord Herbert, to the surprise of most persons, Mr. Cardwell gave up the Irish secretaryship, and retired from its official labours to the quiet inaction of the chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster, vacated by Sir George Grey on his succeeding Sir George Lewis in the Home Office. This step might be accounted for by the fact that the Irish work was unrecognised to Mr. Cardwell, and probably he felt, as too many of his predecessors have done, how thankless are the assiduity and zeal which produce no tangible results. In the enforced seclusion and comparative inaction of the office of the Duchy Mr. Cardwell remained until the resignation of the Duke of Newcastle afforded him the opportunity of trying his strength in another and a fresh department. It is only justice to say that, as Secretary for the Colonies, Mr. Cardwell has exhibited not only those administrative powers and that capacity for work which he is known to possess, but has displayed large views of colonial policy which have been acceptable generally to the House of Commons, and evidence of which is to be found in the singular unanimity with which members on all sides of the House and of all opinions concurred in the course which he has adopted with regard to New Zealand. Mr. Cardwell is a son of the late John Cardwell, Esq., of Liverpool, merchant. He was born in 1813, and married, in 1838, Anne, youngest child of the late Charles Stewart Parkerson, of Fairlie, Ayrshire.

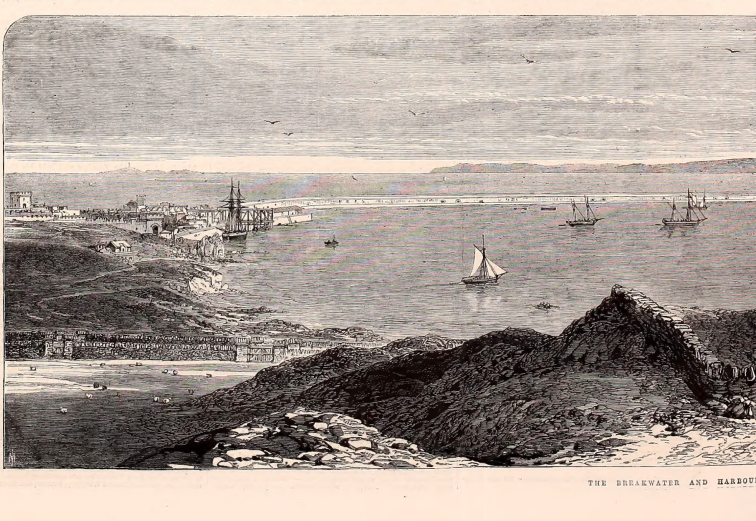
THE RIGHT HON. EDWARD CARDWELL, M.P., SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES.



He is a member of Balliol College, Oxford, of which college he was a Fellow. In 1835 he took honours as a double first class; and, in 1863, was created D.C.L. of that University. In 1838 he was called to the Bar, at the Inner Temple, and had fairly advanced in that career when he deserted it for public life. In July, 1847, he vacated the representation of Clitheroe for that of Liverpool, and sat for that city until July, 1852, when he was an unsuccessful candidate for that town, and also failed in gaining an election for Ayrshire. He did not long remain out of Parliament, for in January, 1853, he was returned for the city of Oxford, which he has represented ever since, having appealed to the constituency with uniform success at the general election of 1859 and three several times besides, on his appointment to office. Our Portrait of Mr. Cardwell is engraved from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins.

THE GREAT BREAKWATER AT HOLYHEAD.

THE important national works still in progress at Holyhead are so peculiar in their character, the breakwater especially, that a brief account of the undertaking becomes necessary as an accompaniment to the View we have engraved.

Holyhead, besides its noble headland, has one of the finest bays in the kingdom. It has also the advantage of being exactly opposite to Kingstown. To this superiority in position, with other great natural resources for the construction of a refuge harbour, the country doubtless owes the great improvements of the mail-packet service between England and Ireland at Holyhead.

The increase of speed in the postal communication between England and the sister kingdom—a social improvement of inestimable benefit to all classes in the country—has been wholly accomplished within the present century. The difficulties of passing to and from Ireland in the middle and latter part of the past century are graphically recorded by various eminent writers, amongst them Swift, Johnson, Edgeworth, and Macaulay; and their descriptions of perilous voyages across the Irish Channel and hairbreadth escapes along the rugged coasts of North Wales seem now more like the dreams of overwrought imagination than the sober and serious realities of truth. Swift, writing to Pope, mentions the "quick change" he "made in seven days from London to the desert, through many nations and languages unknown to the civilised world." The voyage across the Channel frequently occupied three or four days, and the land journey was equally wearisome and dangerous. The public bore all this inconvenience with marvellous patience for many years, for in those days the newspaper press was nothing better than a mere record of events, and ventured not into criticism upon the neglects and shortcomings of Governments. At length a more promising state of things was presented by the establishment of the Legislative Union between England and Ireland in 1801. The Irish Peers and representatives in the House of Commons were by that national change required to attend their Parliamentary duties in the Imperial Parliament, and betook themselves earnestly to improve the communication between the two countries. These and other efforts were followed by the application of steam power for propelling vessels, both at sea and in Channel navigation; and in 1819 a ship of 156 tons, the Talbot, built at Glasgow, was placed on the Holyhead station. Other steamers of about the same size were soon afterwards employed in the postal service between England and Ireland. These and other enterprises at sea were quickly followed by mightier ones on land. Railway locomotion was then struggling into existence. The Liverpool and Manchester Railway became "a great fact," and that achievement was soon followed by the continuous line from London to Holyhead, completed in 1849—thus showing how rapid was now the growth of national spirit and engineering skill. The conveyance of the Irish mails was immediately transferred from Liverpool to Holyhead; and larger and powerful packets, of 700 tons burden, were placed by Government on the line between Holyhead and Kingstown.

THE BREAKWATER AND HARBOUR

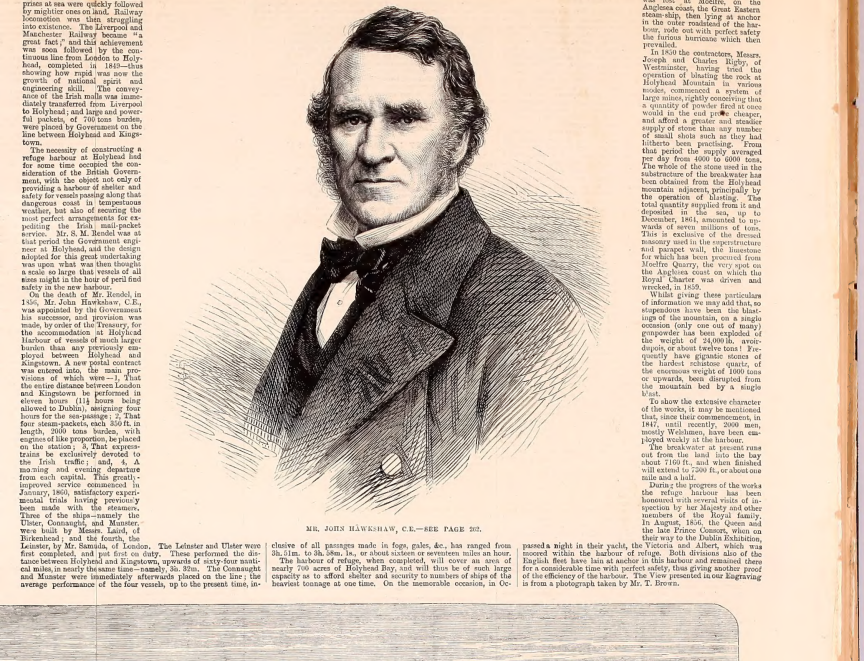
The necessity of constructing a refuge harbour at Holyhead was for some time occupied the consideration of the British Government, with the object not only of providing a harbour of shelter and safety for vessels passing along that dangerous coast in tempestuous weather, but also of securing the most perfect arrangements for expediting the Irish mail-packet service. Mr. S. M. Rendel was at that period the Government engineer at Holyhead, and the design adopted for this great undertaking was upon what was then thought a scale so large that vessels of all sizes might in the hour of peril find safety in the new harbour.

On the death of Mr. Rendel, in 1856, Mr. John Hawkshaw, C.E., was appointed by the Government as his successor, and provision was made, by order of the Treasury, for the accommodation at Holyhead Harbour of vessels of much larger burden than any previously employed between Holyhead and Kingstown. A new postal contract was entered into, the main provisions of which were—1, That the entire distance between London and Kingstown be performed in eleven hours (11¼ hours being allowed to Dublin), assigning four hours for the sea-passage; 2, That four steam-packets, each 350 ft. in length, 2000 tons burden, with engines of like proportion, be placed on the station; 3, That express-trains be exclusively devoted to the Irish traffic; and, 4, A morning and evening departure from each capital. The (at great) improved service commenced in January, 1860, satisfactory experimental trials having previously been made with the steamers. Three of the ships—namely the Ulster, Connaught, and Munster—were built by Messrs. Laird, of Birkenhead; and the fourth, the Leinster, by Mr. Samuda, of London. The Leinster and Ulster were first completed, and put first on duty. These performed the distance between Holyhead and Kingstown, upwards of sixty-four nautical miles, in nearly the same time—namely, 3h. 32m. The Connaught and Munster were immediately afterwards placed on the line; the average performance of the four vessels, up to the present time, inclusive of all passages made in fogs, gales, &c., has ranged from 3h. 51m. to 3h. 58m. is., or about sixteen or seventeen miles an hour.

The harbour of refuge, when completed, will cover an area of nearly 700 acres of Holyhead Bay, and will thus be of such large capacity as to afford shelter and security to numbers of ships of the heaviest tonnage at one time. On the memorable occasion, in October, 1858, when the Royal Charter was lost at Moelfre, on the Anglesea coast, the Great Eastern steam-ship, then lying at anchor in the outer roadstead of the harbour, rode out with perfect safety the furious hurricane which then prevailed.



In 1850 the contractors, Messrs. Joseph and Charles Rigby, of Westminster, having tried the operation of blasting the rock at Holyhead Mountain in various modes, commenced a system of large mines, rightly conceiving that a quantity of powder fired at once would in the end prove cheaper, and afford a greater and steadier supply of stone than any number of small shots such as they had hitherto been practising. From that period the supply averaged per day from 4000 to 6000 tons. The whole of the stone used in the substructure of the breakwater has been obtained from the Holyhead mountain adjacent, principally by the operation of blasting. The total quantity supplied from it and deposited in the sea, up to December, 1864, amounted to upwards of seven millions of tons. This is exclusive of the dressed masonry used in the superstructure and parapet wall, the limestone for which has been procured from Moelfre Quarry, the very spot on the Anglesea coast on which the Royal Charter was driven and wrecked, in 1859.

Whilst giving these particulars of information we may add that, so stupendous have been the blastings of the mountain, on a single occasion (only one out of many) gunpowder has been exploded of the weight of 24,000 lb., avoirdupois, or about twelve tons! Frequently have gigantic stones of the hardest schistose quartz, of the enormous weight of 1000 tons or upwards, been disrupted from the mountain bed by a single blast.

To show the extensive character of the works, it may be mentioned that, since their commencement, in 1847, until recently, 2000 men, mostly Welshmen, have been employed weekly at the harbour.

The breakwater at present runs out from the land into the bay about 7160 ft., and when finished will extend to 7500 ft., or about one mile and a half.

During the progress of the works the refuge harbour has been honoured with several visits of inspection by her Majesty and other members of the Royal family. In August, 1856, the Queen and the late Prince Consort, when on their way to the Dublin Exhibition, the Victoria and Albert, which was moored within the harbour of refuge. Both divisions also of the English fleet have lain at anchor in this harbour and remained there for a considerable time with perfect safety, thus giving another proof of the efficiency of the harbour. The View presented in our Engraving is from a photograph taken by Mr. T. Brown.

MR. JOHN HAWKSHAW, C.E.—SEE PAGE 262.

AD, ANGLESEY, NORTH WALES.

ween England
nd other enterlickly followed and. Railway on struggling
Liverpool and / became "a a achievement
by the condon to Holy-, 1838—thus was now the l spirit and
The convey-ils was sum-oon Liverpool ge and power-tons burden, rument on the ld and Kings-

onstructing a Holyhead had pied the conitish Govern-
it not only of of shelter and ng along that tempestuous securing the ments for ex-mail-packet
Rendel was at rument engi-
ed the design
t undertaking
then thought vessels of all r of peril find bour.
Mr. Rendel, in rkshaw, C.E., e Government
rovision was Treasury, for at Holyhead
f much larger veriously surolyhead and ostal construct e main pro-ere—1, That ween London performed in hours being ssigning four ages; 2, That ach 350 ft. in burden, with ion, be placed
That expendiy devoted to said, 4, A ng departure this greatly humanized in actory experi-ir previous y
he steamers,
-namely the
and Munster.
es. Laird, of e fourth, the ods, of London. The Leinster and Ulster were l put first on duty. These performed the dis-al and Kingstown, upwards of sixty-four nautisame time—namely, 3h. 32m. The Connaught mediately afterwards placed on the line; the of the four vessels, up to the present time, inclusive of all passages made in fogs, gales, &c., has ranged from 3h. 51m. to 3h. 58m. 1s., or about sixteen or seventeen miles an hour.

MR. JOHN HAWKSHAW, C.E.—SEE PAGE 262.

The harbour of refuge, when completed, will cover an area of nearly 700 acres of Holyhead Bay, and will thus be of such large capacity as to afford shelter and security to numbers of ships of the heaviest tonnage at one time. On the memorable occasion, in October, 1859, when the Royal Charter was lost at Moelfre, on the Anglesea coast, the Great Eastern steam-ship, then lying at anchor in the outer roadstead of the harbour, rode out with perfect safety the furious hurricane which then prevailed.

In 1850 the contractors, Messrs. Joseph and Charles Rigby, of Westminster, having tried the operation of blasting the rock at Holyhead Mountain in various modes, commenced a system of large mines, rightly conceiving that a quantity of powder fired at once would in the end prove cheaper, and afford a greater and steadier supply of stone than any number of small shots such as they had hitherto been practising. From that period the supply averaged per day from 4000 to 6000 tons. The whole of the stone used in the substructure of the breakwater has been obtained from the Holyhead mountain adjacent, principally by the operation of blasting. The total quantity supplied from it and deposited in the sea, up to December, 1861, amounted to upwards of seven millions of tons. This is exclusive of the dressed masonry used in the superstructure and parapet wall, the limestone for which has been procured from Moelfre Quarry, the very spot on the Anglesea coast on which the Royal Charter was driven and wrecked, in 1859.

Whilst giving these particulars of information we may add that, as stupendous have been the blastings of the mountain, on a single occasion (only one out of many) gunpowder has been exploded of the weight of 24,000 lb., avoirdupois, or about twelve tons! Frequently have gigantic stones of the hardest schistose quartz, of the enormous weight of 1000 tons or upwards, been disrupted from the mountain bed by a single blast.

To show the extensive character of the works, it may be mentioned that, since their commencement, in 1847, until recently, 3000 men, mostly Welshmen, have been employed weekly at the harbour.

The breakwater at present runs out from the land into the bay about 7160 ft., and when finished will extend to 7200 ft., about one mile and a half.

During the progress of the works the refuge harbour has been honoured with several visits of inspection by her Majesty and other members of the Royal family. In August, 1846, the Queen and the late Prince Consort, when on their way to the Dublin Exhibition, passed a night in their yacht, the Victoria and Albert, which was moored within the harbour of refuge. Both divisions also of the English fleet have lain at anchor in this harbour and remained there for a considerable time with perfect safety, thus giving another proof of the efficiency of the harbour. The View presented in our Engraving is from a photograph taken by Mr. T. Brown.

RTH WALES.

ON. EDWARD CARDWELL, M.P., SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES.

and sat for that city until July, 1852, when he was an unsuccessful candidate for that town, and also failed in gaining an election for Ayrshire. He did not long remain out of Parliament; for in January, 1853, he was returned for the city of Oxford, which he has represented ever since, having appealed to the constituency with uniform success at the general election of 1859 and three several times besides, on his appointment to office. Our Portrait of Mr. Cardwell is engraved from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins.

THE GREAT BREAKWATER AT HOLYHEAD.

THE important national works still in progress at Holyhead are so peculiar in their character, the breakwater especially, that a brief account of the undertaking becomes necessary as an accompaniment to the View we have engraved.

Holyhead, besides its noble headland, has one of the finest bays in the kingdom. It has also the advantage of being exactly opposite to Kingstown. To this superiority in position, with other great natural resources for the construction of a refuge harbour, the country doubtless owes the great improvements of the mail-packet service between England and Ireland at Holyhead.

The increase of speed in the postal communication between England and the sister kingdom—a social improvement of inestimable benefit to all classes in the country—has been wholly accomplished within the present century. The difficulties of passing to and from Ireland in the middle and latter part of the past century are graphically recorded by various eminent writers, amongst them Swift, Johnson, Edgeworth, and Macaulay; and their descriptions of perilous voyages across the Irish Channel and heartbreaking escapes along the rugged roads of North Wales seem now more like the dreams of overwrought imagination than the sober and serious realities of truth. Swift, writing to Pope, mentions the "quick change" he "made in seven days from London to the deanery, through many nations and languages unknown to the civilised world." The voyage across the Channel frequently occupied three or four days, and the land journey was equally wearisome and dangerous. The public bore all this inconvenience with marvellous patience for many years, for in those days the newspaper press was nothing better than a mere record of events, and ventured not into criticism upon the neglects and shortcomings of Governments. At length a more pressing state of things was presented by the establishment of the Legislative Union between England and Ireland in 1801. The Irish Peers and representatives in the House of Commons were by that national change required to attend their Parliamentary duties in the Imperial Parliament, and hence themselves earnestly to improve the communication between the two countries. These and other efforts were followed by the application of steam power for propelling vessels, both at sea and in Channel navigation; and in 1819 a ship of 156 tons, the Talbot, built at Glasgow, was placed on the Holyhead station. Other steamers of about the same size were soon afterwards employed in the postal service between England and Ireland. These and other enterprises at sea were quickly followed by mightier ones on land. Railway locomotion was then struggling into existence. The Liverpool and Manchester Railway became "a great fact," and this achievement was soon followed by the continuous line from London to Holyhead, completed in 1840—thus showing how rapid was now the growth of national spirit and engineering skill. The conveyance of the Irish mails was immediately transferred from Liverpool to Holyhead; and large and powerful packets, of 700 tons burden, were placed by Government on the line between Holyhead and Kingstown.

The necessity of constructing a refuge harbour at Holyhead had for some time occupied the consideration of the British Government, with the object not only of providing a harbour of shelter and safety for vessels passing along that dangerous coast in tempestuous weather, but also of securing the most perfect arrangements for expediting the Irish mail-packet service. Mr. S. M. Rendel was at that period the Government engineer at Holyhead, and the design adopted for this great undertaking was upon what was then thought a scale so large that vessels of all sizes might in the hour of peril find safety in the new harbour.

On the death of Mr. Rendel, in 1856, Mr. John Hawkshaw, C.E., was appointed by the Government his successor, and provision was made, by order of the Treasury, for the accommodation at Holyhead Harbour of vessels of much larger burden than any previously employed between Holyhead and Kingstown, a new postal contract was entered into, the main provisions of which were—1. That the entire distance between London and Kingstown be performed in eleven hours (11½ hours being allowed to Dublin), assigning four hours for the sea-passage; 2. That four steam-packets, each 350 ft. in length, 2000 tons burden, with engines of like proportion, be placed on the station; 3. That express-trains be exclusively devoted to the Irish traffic; and, 4. A morning and evening departure from each capital. This greatly improved service commenced in January, 1860, satisfactory experimental trials having previously been made with the steamers. Three of the ships—namely the Ulster, Connaught, and Munster, were built by Messrs. Laird, of Birkenhead; and the fourth, the Leinster, by Mr. Samuda, of London. The Leinster and Ulster were first completed, and put first on duty. These performed the distance between Holyhead and Kingstown, upwards of sixty-four nautical miles, in nearly the same time—namely, 3h. 32m. The Connaught and Munster were immediately afterwards placed on the line; the average performance of the four vessels, up to the present time, in-elusive of all 3h. 51m. to 3h The harbou nearly 700 ac capacity as to heaviest tonna

THE BREAKWATER AND HARBOUR OF HOLYHEAD, ANGLESEY, NORTH WALES.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

BEFORE now opinions have been expressed that the present Parliament had acquired a bad eminence as compared with most of its predecessors. It was supposed that its bad qualities, assuming their existence, would culminate this year, the last of its duration; but, up to the present time, that supposition has not been verified; for, whether merely galvanised or not, its exhibition of debating power has been exceedingly creditable, and something more. Doubtless, members of the first rank are on their good behaviour, and are careful to display themselves in their best aspect; and the result has been not merely capital speechmaking, but a tone and spirit which are remarkable. It is curious, too, that this state of things is not brought about by the stimulus which crowded houses might give to those who have engaged in the debates; for, as a rule, the ordinary ruck of members are conspicuous by their absence; and the thoughtful, comprehensive, and statesmanlike speeches which have been uttered have been delivered rather to the country than to the House of Commons.

When, after so many delays, the Naval Estimates were at last fairly afloat, the discussions, which had at first been rather acrimonious, took a broad, though critical, view; Sir Morton Peto leading in that line, and Sir John Hay proving his disinterested sense of duty to the public by being as observant as ever on the administration of that Admiralty which has evidently been doing its best to conciliate him; but his spiriting was done in no personal vein, and his mode and manner were as significant as ever of the honest purpose of the man and the scientific knowledge of the sea officer. Considerable interest was felt when it was perceived by the usual symptoms that Mr. Stansfeld was about to speak on naval affairs, and there might have been some misgivings as to how he would demean himself under the circumstances in which he is placed. But such doubts were fully dissipated, for he was true to himself and spoke only as a member of Parliament who had had opportunities of forming opinions on naval administration, and there was not a trace of the "injured individual" about him. It was worthy of remark how advantageous to him, as a speaker, a short official training has been; for, still retaining his breadth of style and copiousness of language, he has descended entirely from those oratorical stilts on which he was rather too apt to mount when he talked as a general politician only. The mode in which Mr. Childers deals with Admiralty critics, like that newborn one, Mr. Seely, is worthy of observation. In this instance he was prepared to meet figures with figures, which was just the best thing to do; while his placidity of temper, which does not prevent his being energetic in manner, was in excellent contrast to the severity, almost querulous, of Mr. Seely, who is still in the throes of a patriotic mission.

The debate on New Zealand which occurred on the last sitting day of last week was an illustration of that goodness of debate which is above alluded to. It is singular that it should not seem to be necessary that members should differ in opinion on a given subject, in order to produce apt and suggestive talk upon it. Here was Mr. Arthur Mills starting by saying that he was prevented in what was meant to be animadversion by the acceptance by Ministers of the very policy he advocated; and one after another members on all sides were only able to contribute to unanimity, and yet there were good and useful things said, and everybody was in earnest. The exception to the general tone, it need hardly be said, was Mr. Roebuck, who reproduced his perpetual theory of the moral cannibalism of the white man, whose mission he asserts it is to eat up the brown man (he does not say the black man—a tougher morsel, mayhap); and who was quite dramatic in his way of showing palpably, and on the floor of the House, what a savage man is, even although he may not be a brown man. Truth to say, Lord Stanley's intense devotion to the practical got him very nearly abreast of Mr. Roebuck in his theories of New Zealand government, and obtained for him something akin to a rebuke from Mr. Cardwell in those portentous tones for which the Secretary for the Colonies is distinguished, and drew upon him the honour of being controverted, in his most opinionated and decisive manner, by Lord Robert Cecil, who, probably, is unable to see why Lord Stanley should be a leader in the Conservative party, his only qualification for that function being that he is the son of that Lord Derby against whose general policy he is a standing protest.

It was not to be taken as a necessity that a great debate on the policy of this country towards the United States was involved in Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald's motion on the defences of Canada. It would have been quite possible to keep the discussion within the narrow circle of military administration; but it would seem that this opportunity was skilfully employed to promulgate opinions and indicate a policy on the part of the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, and to neutralise the bounceability of the chief of the Opposition in the House of Lords in reference to Anglo-American affairs. With considerable dexterity Mr. Fitzgerald contrived to impeach the Government for not preparing to defend Canada to the uttermost, and at the same time to insinuate a belief in the best and most peaceful intentions on the part of the United States, a feeling which, if he happened to get into the Foreign Office, was to be cherished and, if possible, expanded. There was palpable bidding for the support and good opinion on this question of Mr. Bright and his co-thinkers sitting around him, and it might have been perceived that the member for Birmingham was listening without a sneer upon his countenance, an expression which is rarely to be found on his face when any one out of his own immediate surrounding is speaking. His attention to and attendance on the whole debate were persistent; and yet he did not look as if he meant to speak, probably having committed to Mr. W. E. Forster the duty of making the required manifesto for the section of members to which they both belong. This was done in Mr. Forster's best style, which is rather dry at the best, and who was so lengthy that he exhausted his hearers as well as the subject. At a very unseasonable hour for a leader Mr. Disraeli rose, emerging from the reticence of speech he has observed during the Session, and made a speech which one could not but fancy was made more for himself than for his party; for in it he indirectly condemnêd the policy which the bulk of his nominal followers are supposed to hold, and raised the expression of satisfaction on Mr. Bright's face to the height of radiance. At any rate, judging from the fact that Mr. Disraeli did not bring back any of his own party who had been absent to listen to him, the Opposition benches being unusually empty, it may be assumed that his move was not received with sympathy by the great bulk of them. If they are true to their principles, such as they are, in this matter, they would have felt themselves justified in this apparently studied neglect of Mr. Disraeli by the glowing panegyric which was passed upon him by Mr. Bright, who carefully separated the leader from his flock, in a very striking passage of that really superb oration which the turn the debate had taken induced him to deliver, and which was, perhaps, all the better for being comparatively unprepared, thus catching its elements from the inspiration of the moment. The speech of the night, however, taking it from all points of view—its unexpectedness, its daring assertion of policy, its merciless logic, and the complete self-belief in its author—was that of Mr. Lowe. It furnished a new evidence of the determination of this right hon. gentleman not to allow himself to pass into the cold shade of that retreat for ex-officials, the fourth bench behind Ministers, without showing that he is by no means benumbed by its atmosphere, and by no means inclined to submit to an eternal sitting on that penitential lodgment. It is certain that Mr. Lowe intends to be something and somebody in some future Ministry, and never again to undergo the purgatorial sufferings of a subordinate official, who, nominally irresponsible, is in reality a kind of buffer to his chief, and is perpetually interposed between the blows that are offered at a department and its head, upon which in justice it ought to descend. Is there a Bright-Disraeli-Lowe coalition looming in the future? One almost forgets Mr. Cardwell and his roundabout platitudes, confessing nothing and avoiding everything, in the midst of such an admirable and striking debate as the one we are alluding to; but by a terrible effort one may, perhaps, be brought to a confused and dim consciousness that he did once in his speech use language for the unusual purpose of expressing a thought, and that he said something which might be construed into an assertion that war with Canada was war with England; and this idea is confirmed by what was afterwards said by Lord Palmerston in that remarkably physically-robust speech with which he closed the debate.

There has, time out of mind, always stood on the notice-paper of the House of Commons a motion complaining of a grievance by an Indian Prince. There are never two together, but they come in something like a succession. For the last three years the complainant has been an injured Nawab of the Carnatic, who, somehow, seems not to understand the political logic which proves that after the East India Company had taken away his dominions, they could, by no possibility, listen to any nonsense about justice, or reparation, or hereditary claims to titles and revenues. The thrice-told tale of Azeem-Jah was therefore met formally by the whole force of the Secretariat for India, backed by all the law officers of the Crown, and was intended to be smothered in a long debate and a decisive division; but, somehow, the division was not so very decisive, and the Nawab de jure was not killed, and hardly scotched; no allusion being meant to Mr. Smollett, who advocated his cause in a way that smacked of the amenities which it was once popularly supposed ladies in a great market for fish were accustomed to interchange.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FRIDAY, MARCH 10.

The following summary of the proceedings in both houses on Friday week appeared in our late edition:—

The Lord Chancellor laid upon the table of the house the several documents and papers connected with the case of Mr. Edmunds, and moved that they be printed for the use of the Committee.—The motion was agreed to.

The Marquis of Clanricarde asked the Secretary of State for War if the rumour were true that several small barracks in Ireland were to be sold.—Earl De Grey and Ripon said it had been contemplated before he was in office that thirty-seven barracks should be sold. The list had been gone through and reduced. Some of the barracks it was thought advisable to use as militia stores. The Government had in contemplation to sell nineteen barracks in Ireland. If the noble Marquis would move that the return be printed it could be laid on the table of the house at any time. The list did not include the name of the town of Galway.—In answer to some further remarks, from the Earl of Dalhousie and the Marquis of Clanricarde, the same noble Earl said that the Government was well convinced of the inadvisability of splitting up the regiments into small detachments.—After some remarks from the Earl of Malmesbury, the subject dropped.

ATTORNEYS AND SOLICITORS' BILL.—The LORD CHANCELLOR moved the second reading of this bill; the object of which is to enable practitioners to contract with clients for remuneration, instead of being paid on the present plan.—Lord St. LEONARDS opposed the bill on the ground that it was contrary to the principles of equity.—Lord CHELMSFORD also opposed the bill.—Lord CRANWORTH said, though he would vote for the second reading, he thought that the measure would require some modification.—The LORD CHANCELLOR having replied to the objections urged, the bill was rejected by a majority of 23 to 21.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FRIDAY, MARCH 10.

Mr. Hibbert asked the Attorney-General whether her Majesty's Government intended to bring in a bill this Session to carry out the recommendations of the Commission for inquiring into the working of the law relating to letters patent for inventions.—The Attorney-General said it was not the intention of the Government to introduce such a bill this Session.

Mr. Western asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether it was his intention to bring in any measure founded on any of the recommendations contained in the report from the Select Committee on registration of county voters; and, if not, whether he proposed to introduce any bill for the amelioration of the present system of county registration.—Mr. T. E. Baring answered in the negative.

Mr. J. B. Smith asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it was his intention to rectify the singular anomaly in our tariff—viz., that while wooden ships and all articles manufactured of wood were allowed to enter British ports free, the raw material, wood, was subjected to a duty.—The Chancellor said he would explain the matter in the course of his financial statement.

Mr. A. Mills called the attention of the House to the state of affairs in New Zealand, and a discussion ensued upon the subject which occupied several hours but ultimately dropped.

Mr. M'Evoy moved that the recommendations of the Committee of 1858 for granting half the cost of medical officers in Unions in Ireland be adopted by her Majesty's Government. After a short debate, the motion was negatived by a majority of 37 to 34.

The second reading of the Game (Ireland) Bill was carried by a majority of 50 to 8.

Mr. Locke obtained leave to bring in a bill to amend the law relating to theatres.

The Private Bill Costs Bill was read a third time and passed.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The Earl of Clarendon brought in the Public Schools Bill, the object of which is to give effect to some of the recommendations of the Public Schools Commissioners. The bill was read a first time, and that day fortnight was fixed for the second reading.

The British Kaffraria Bill was read a second time, after some observations from Lord Lyveden and Lord Taunton.

The Elections Petitions Act, 1848, Amendment Bill was also read a second time.

The Lord Chancellor withdrew his bill for the abolition of imprisonment for debt in order that some amendments might be made in it.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that he proposed to make his financial statement on an early day after the Easter recess—probably Thursday, the 27th of next month.

The House went into Committee of Supply pro formâ and immediately resumed.

The House then went into Committee of Ways and Means, and a vote of £175,000 was granted.

The Colonial and Naval Defences Bill was read a second time.

A resolution was passed in Committee authorising the Metropolitan Board of Works to raise money on loan, and a bill founded thereon was ordered to be introduced.

The Affirmations (Scotland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE DEFENCES OF CANADA.—OUR RELATIONS WITH AMERICA.

Mr. SEYMOUR FITZGERALD brought under notice the report of Colonel Jervis with reference to the defences of Canada, and called attention generally to the state of that colony in the event of an attack by the Federal States of America. The hon. gentleman observed that in his opinion the Federal Government were quite justified in giving notice of their intention to terminate the mutual arrangement with regard to the naval strength of both Powers on the lakes; but that he thought we ought to have met the Government of Washington and to have proposed a temporary increase of the naval police. Had this been done the Federal Government would, in all probability, never have given us notice of the termination of the convention. Again, with regard to the notice to put an end to the Reciprocity Treaty, that notice might have been given in a moment of irritation, and he could not but think that if we had said to Mr. Seward, "Do not precipitately put an end to a treaty which has hitherto worked so well; but point out to us how we can meet your views and we will endeavour to modify the treaty with that end," matters might have been arranged satisfactorily. Looking at the experience of the past, as exhibited in the Trent affair, he thought it would be idle of us to shut our eyes to the imminence of a quarrel, at no remote period, with the Federal States. He believed that if Canada were independent she would have nothing to fear from the Northern States. But she was not independent, and, so long as she desired to maintain her connection with the mother country, we were bound in honour to stand by her. Under these circumstances, he warned the Government to take active steps to counteract the efforts which the Northern States were now making for the contingency of war with England. What, he asked, were we doing for the defence of Quebec, and for placing gun-boats on the internal waters of America. He considered that we were bound at once to communicate with the Canadian Government, with a view to putting the colony in a defensive state. This would strengthen the prospects of peace; and if, unhappily, war should break out, we would have the satisfaction of knowing that we had done our best towards maintaining the honour of England untarnished. Prompt and vigorous action was absolutely necessary, and he hoped that the Government would not hesitate a moment in taking it.

Mr. W. E. FORSTER expressed a hope that the Government would give a full and frank reply with reference not only to the relations between Canada and the United States, but also with respect to ourselves and the Government of Washington. He admitted that there was apprehension out of doors with reference to our future relations with America, but, in his opinion, they were absolutely groundless. In support of this argument he reminded the House of the absurd panic of a French invasion which had disturbed the propriety of the country a few years since, and which we were all now thoroughly ashamed of. He denied that either the American Government or the American people were anxious for war with England; and he maintained that the proper way to defend Canada was, not by fortifications or gun-boats, but by persistence in a dignified policy of neutrality.

Mr. CARDWELL expressed the gratification with which he was able to make the announcement that our relations with the United States were perfectly friendly. With equal confidence and pleasure he was enabled to state that there were no papers in the possession of her Majesty's Government varying the principle upon which the question of the Alabama stood between the two Governments. With regard to the Convention limiting the naval force to be kept on the lakes, Earl Russell had communicated with the United States Minister his desire to substitute another agreement for the old one; and, so soon as the notice to terminate the Reciprocity Treaty had been given, no time would be lost by Government in endeavouring to open negotiations on a subject of such vital importance. The right hon. gentleman also explained in detail the steps which her Majesty's Government, in conjunction with the colonial Government, intended to take for the strategic defence of the provinces.

Mr. DISRAELI did not wish to pass any opinion on the probable termination of the civil war in America, but he had no hesitation in saying that we were bound to put our Canadian possessions in a state of proper defence. No one wanted the mother country to defend an extended seaboard, but what the country expected was that her Majesty's troops in Canada should not be placed in such a position that their admitted bravery and skill would be of no avail.

Mr. LOWE asked the House to consider what this country was bound to do for the defence of Canada. It was, he thought, absurd to attempt to defend a seaboard of 1500 miles. In his opinion, the better course would be to withdraw our troops from Canada, and, in case of war with the United States, to concentrate our force upon some vulnerable point of the Union.

Sir J. FERGUSSON complained that the Government were not doing that which they themselves admitted to be necessary for the defence of Canada. It was, he thought, a mere mockery to speak of expending £50,000 a year for such a purpose.

Mr. WHITE underrated the value of the North American provinces to the Crown, and asked whether the country was prepared to pay an income tax of a shilling in the pound for the purpose of defending Canada.

Mr. C. FORTESCUE observed that the Government considered it to be a matter of duty to defend our North American provinces, provided they wished to remain dependent on the British Crown and were prepared to play a manly part in their own defence. He did not believe that the American people would be insane and foolish enough to turn their arms against a friendly Power by attacking Canada.

Sir F. SMITH was of opinion that a statement of the entire cost of the scheme of Canadian defence should be laid before Parliament. He confessed he could not see any reasonable prospect of supplying Canada with suitable ordnance for many years to come.

Mr. WATKIN contended that her Majesty's Government should state distinctly to that of the United States that they looked upon Canada as a part of the British empire, and that they were prepared to defend it at all cost. In that case there would be no war with America.

Sir M. FARQUHAR urged that, in consideration of the loyal feeling of the Canadians towards the mother country and the extent of our commercial interests in Canada, it was the duty of this country to put forth all her power in the defence of that colony.

Lord ELCHO concurred in the common-sense view taken by Mr. Lowe, and said that it would be most impolitic to attempt the defence of Canada by means of a British army. If war should break out, he would recommend striking at some vital part of the enemy. He regarded the proposals of the Government as powerless for defence, though strong to invite aggression.

Mr. AYRTON said the best way to defend and preserve Canada would be to maintain amicable relations with the United States. If, however, any dispute should arise between the two countries the better course would be to submit the matter to arbitration.

Lord R. CECIL deprecated discussions of this irritating description, and maintained that for the honour of England it was necessary that whatever was to be done for Canada should be done quickly and completely.

Mr. BRIGHT commented upon the circumstance that a better feeling had grown up of late in reference to the Federal States, and inquired how there was to be war if England was not in favour of it and the United States were opposed to it. He did not believe that any cause of hostility would arise out of the recent affairs in Canada, but that, if the peace were broken, it would be in consequence of some misunderstanding between the Government at Washington and that at London. The hon. member proceeded to comment upon the panic which now prevailed on the subject of America, and said that, although "the City" appeared to be frightened, there was really nothing to cause apprehension, and that "the City" was very seldom right, because speculators were rarely able to form a cool and dispassionate opinion upon any subject in which their financial interests were concerned.

Lord PALMERSTON denied that any feeling of jealousy existed in this country against the United States; on the contrary, he believed that there was no Englishman who did not survey with pride the great Anglo-Saxon race which was rising on the other side of the Atlantic. Feelings of irritation no doubt prevailed against England in America—among the Northerners and the Southerners—because we had refused to join the one or recognise the other; but this feeling would wear away in time, and he was persuaded that nothing would be done by England to provoke hostilities with America. He did not agree with Mr. Lowe, that Canada could not be defended. There was no intention to withdraw her Majesty's troops from Canada, and he thought that, so long as the Canadians were prepared to throw in their lot with us, we were bound in honour to do the utmost we could for them. Her Majesty's Government had no cause of complaint against America. There were, it was true, international claims arising out of the war, but there was no reason to suppose that they could not be adjusted without difficulty.

The subject then dropped.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill was referred to a Select Committee, after a brief discussion.

The British Kaffraria Bill and the Election Petitions Act (1848) Amendment Bill passed through Committee.

The Marquis of Westmeath again introduced the case of Mary Ryan, the nun who was forcibly removed from London to a lunatic asylum at Bruges. He said he was prepared to prove that the abduction was the result of a conspiracy got up by a Roman Catholic priest, calling himself the "Vicar-General of Westminster," and strongly censured Sir G. Grey for not having interfered more actively in the matter.—Earl Russell said the forcible removal of a person from this country was an illegal act; but, it having been ascertained that Mary Ryan, who is an orphan, was suffering from acute mania, and was well cared for in the asylum in Belgium, it was not deemed advisable to have her removed back to England.—After some remarks from Lord Malmesbury condemnatory of the course taken by Sir G. Grey in this matter, the subject dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

Lord C. Paget, in answer to Mr. D. Damer, said that no experiment had been made on the cupola of the Royal Sovereign with 300-pounders, or steel shot, but only by 40-pounder and 100-pounder Armstrong guns, and 68-pounders at 200 yards—and the working of the cupola was not disturbed. It was not intended to submit turret-ships to further experiments.

Lord Hartington, in reply to Mr. Watkin, said the proposal to relieve volunteer officers from service on juries was under consideration at the War Office.

Upon the motion of Sir J. Pakington, the following were appointed members of the Select Committee on Education:—Sir J. Pakington, Mr. Bruce, Mr. Walpole, Viscount Enfield, Lord R. Cecil, Mr. W. E. Forster, Mr. Adderley, Mr. Clay, Mr. Howes, Sir C. O'Loghlen, Mr. Walter, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Stirling, Mr. Buxton, and Mr. Liddell.

The report of Ways and Means was brought up and agreed to.

The report of the resolution on the Metropolitan Main Drainage agreed to in Committee was brought up and agreed to, and a bill founded upon it was afterwards introduced and read the first time.

THE LANCASHIRE AND YORKSHIRE AND GREAT EASTERN JUNCTION RAILWAY BILL.—There was a severe fight on this bill.—Lord GALWAY moved as an amendment that it be read that day six months, on the ground that it was substantially the same project as that which had been rejected by the Committee last Session.—Mr. CHEETHAM denied that it was the same project, and pointed out the great advantages that would accrue to Lancashire, to the eastern counties, and to the eastern parts of London by the line being made.—Mr. MITFORD said he had sat upon the Committee referred to last year, and he could, after examination, confidently assert that the line was substantially the same as that which had been rejected last year.—Mr. Childers, Mr. Bright, Mr. Ayrton, Mr. M. Gibson, Lord Bury, and Captain Jervis supported the second reading. Mr. Egerton, Mr. B. Stanhope, and Mr. Ormsby Gore opposed the bill.—It was contended by the promoters that the railway was required for the convenience of the public in the eastern counties; that coals would be carried cheaply by it; and that, by the time it was completed, some five years hence, the Great Northern, with which this line would come into competition, would be overburdened with traffic.—Captain JERVIS said the question really was one between railway directors, and was whether twenty millions of capital and the people of the Lancashire and Yorkshire districts were to be kept back by another company, which kept the Great Eastern out. It was also submitted that a Committee was the proper authority to determine upon the objections.—By the opponents of the bill it was contended that it had been already rejected by Committees of that House; that the district was at present sufficiently well served by the Great Northern, the Midland, the London and North-Western, and the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railways; and that the construction of a low-level bridge across the Trent would interfere with the navigation of that river, and would destroy the trade of the town of Gainsborough. The House divided—for the second reading, 121; against it, 162. The bill was accordingly rejected.

THE CASE OF PRINCE AZEEM JAH.—Sir F. KELLY moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the claim of Prince Azeem Jah to the title and dignity of Nawab of the Carnatic, and the claims of the Prince under a treaty entered into in 1801 between the East India Company and Prince Azeem ul Dowlah—the point involved being that in violation of a treaty the Company had arbitrarily decided that the father of the claimant should only enjoy his hereditary titles and estates for life.—Mr. SMOLLETT seconded the motion, denouncing the "Carnatic transaction" as an act of grave injustice, reflecting discredit upon its authors.—Sir E. DERING defended the course taken by Lord Harris, Governor of Madras, by whom the treaty in question was abrogated, and who had only been the interpreter of the Indian statesmen who had been parties to it.—Mr. Vansittart opposed and Mr. Neate supported the motion.—The SOLICITOR-GENERAL urged that, in the treaty of 1801 which was relied on, the words "heirs and successors" were omitted in order to meet such a claim as this, the titles and territories of the Nawabs of the Carnatic having been forfeited for proved treachery and treason against the Company in plotting with Tippoo Saib.—Mr. Hennessy, Mr. Ingham, and Mr. Dunlop supported, and Mr. H. Seymour opposed, the motion.—Sir C. WOOD contended that the whole question involved depended on the treaty of 1801, and that alone; and, it having been determined to put an end to the nominal sovereignties of India, which had become a source of danger to the State, the Nawab of the Carnatic was included in the purview of that policy, it being ascertained that this could be done without any breach of the treaty. He pointed out that the Nawabs of the Carnatic were not sovereigns in their own right of that territory, but were only local governors appointed by the Nizam of the Deccan, who was himself only the lieutenant of the Mogul of Delhi.—Colonel Dickson and Colonel Sykes having spoken, on a division the motion was rejected by fifty-three to thirty-eight.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

Sir J. Shelley obtained leave to bring in a bill to abolish the toll for foot-passengers over Chelsea Bridge.

The Metropolitan Main Drainage Extension Bill was read a second time, as also were the following bills:—The Sidmouth and Budleigh Salterton Railway, the Sidmouth Railway and Harbour, and the Goole, Keadley, and Haxey Junction Railway Bills.

Sir C. O'Loghlen moved the second reading of the Juries in Criminal Cases Bill, the object of which is to settle the law, at present uncertain, with regard to the power of judges to discharge juries in criminal cases when they are unable to come to agreement or verdicts. The Solicitor-General opposed the bill, and, after a brief discussion, it was withdrawn.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

The Felony and Misdemeanour Evidence and Practice Bill was read a second time.

The Industrial Exhibitions Bill was read a second time.

The British Kaffraria Bill was read a third time and passed.

Lord Stratford de Redcliffe made inquiry of her Majesty's Government as to the state of certain negotiations respecting the joint boundary of Turkey and Persia and moved for papers relating to the construction of an official map of that frontier. Operations were undertaken by the British and Russian Governments to survey the country, but the Crimean War had put an end to them. He inquired of the Government some three or four years ago as to the extent to which the survey had been carried on, but nothing satisfactory could be stated then. He had now reason to believe that the progress in the survey had been greater than he had expected at that time. The matter was so interesting and so important that he desired to be informed of the state of the matter at this moment.——Earl Russell said the noble Lord must be aware of the difficulty of executing a work of this kind, which extended over 700 miles of country; but it would be finished about the end of the month, when he would be happy to make the map public. The expense of making the map was no less than £57,100.——After some remarks from Lord Stratford de Redcliffe, the subject dropped.

The Earl of Harrowby called attention to the effect of the Revised Code of Regulations of the Committee of Privy Council of Education on the education of children under six years of age. By the Revised Code the test of the capitation grant was the attendance of the children at the examinations, and it frequently happened that they were the lowest during the year. The result had been that frequently inconvenience had arisen from it.—Earl Granville said no alteration had been made in the code, but that this mistake had arisen from a clerical error, which had caused much inconvenience. The subject then dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

Mr. Treherne asked the President of the Board of Trade whether any communication had taken place between her Majesty's Government and that of France with a view to the modification of the Commercial Treaty of 1860; whether the Government were in possession of any report respecting the present condition of the ribbon-weavers; whether it was not the fact that their condition is even more distressing than it was last year; and, if so, whether the Government are prepared to devise some effectual measures by which the annihilation of the English ribbon trade may be averted. The hon. gentleman drew a very distressing picture of the state of the city of Coventry, which he represented. It was once, he said, a flourishing city, but was now destroyed.—Mr. White spoke briefly on the same subject.—Mr. M. Gibson said that, last autumn, an inquiry was made of France in reference to the reduction of duty; and the reply was that, shortly, a reduction of fifty per cent would be made. The Government had not been unmindful of the state of the ribbon-weavers of Coventry. He was afraid that the distress which prevailed there was beyond the reach of legislation.

Lord Palmerston, in reply to Mr. D. Griffith, said that forced labour on the Suez Canal had been finally done away with, and the Canal Company was endeavouring to obtain voluntary labour from other sources.

THE ARMY ESTIMATES

The House then went into Committee of Supply, when

The Marquis of HARTINGTON made his financial statement on the Army Estimates. The noble Lord said that considerable reductions had been made in those Estimates for the year 1865-6. The cost of the Army for the year 1862-3 was £16,060,320; for the year 1863-4 it was reduced by £519,113; for 1864-5 that reduction was still further increased to £1,216,000; and for 1865-6 the reduction was still further augmented to £1,711,903. For the last two years the Government had paid the greatest attention to the diminution of this branch of the service, and they were now in a position to reduce the number of men by 4000. That would be effected chiefly by lowering the number of the artillery and infantry, and also regiments on foreign service; but the strength of the troops at home would not be affected by the changes. The noble Lord then went into explanations of the various items, and remarked that the increased amount for the volunteer force arose from the increased efficiency of that body, by which a larger number were enabled to claim the capitation grant for proficiency. He concluded by moving a vote for 142,477 men.

A discussion then ensued, which continued up to a late hour of the night. Ultimately, the vote was agreed to.

MUSIC.

The musical intelligence of the past week amounts to next to nothing. Her Majesty's Theatre closed on Thursday, when Mr. Harrison had his benefit. The opera was Wallace's "Maritana," followed by some scenes from "The School for Scandal," in which Mr. Harrison, in the character of Charles Surface, gave proof of his talents as a comedian. Covent Garden (as the Royal English Opera) closes this evening with "The Mock Doctor" and the pantomime. Mr. Gye has announced the opening of this theatre (as the Royal Italian Opera) on Tuesday, March 28; and we may expect his prospectus of the season in a few days. Mr. Mapleson has not yet announced the opening of Her Majesty's Theatre.

The Monday Popular Concerts now take place not only on Mondays but on Saturdays. The first of a series of morning performances was given at St. James's Hall. It was similar in every respect to the regular Monday concert. Joachim, Piatti, and Hallé appeared, and the experiment proved exceedingly successful.

A musical society has just been established, consisting of gentlemen amateurs belonging to the Civil Service. The management is vested in a committee of fifteen, of which Mr. Frederick Clay (the author of the opera "Constance," lately produced at Covent Garden) is the chairman. The object of the society is to give concerts on a large scale; and, as it already consists of 150 vocal and from fifty to sixty instrumental members, it may be expected to take an important place among our musical institutions.

At Mr. Aguilar's pianoforte matinée on Wednesday, last week, the programme included the following pieces:—Sonata in B flat, Beethoven; prelude and fugue in C sharp, Bach; variations in A, Mozart (played by Miss Grace Aguilar); serenade, Alfred Holmes; sonata (MS. in A minor), Aguilar; Songs without Words, Mendelssohn; and several smaller pieces, by Mr. Aguilar. Miss Aguilar, a young pianist of the greatest promise, made her début on this occasion, and was warmly applauded by a crowded audience.

A grand organ has just been completed for the cathedral of Bombay by the eminent builders Messrs. Bishop and Starr. It is an instrument of great magnitude and power, containing three rows of keys, 1604 pipes, and thirty-eight stops, with two octaves and two notes of pedals. A series of performances on it were given last week by Mr. Frederick Archer and Mr. Hallett Shepherd, who developed its qualities with much skill, and greatly to the satisfaction of many amateurs of the organ.

Mdme. Arabella Goddard gave a pianoforte performance on Monday (last week) at the Queen's Rooms, Glasgow, which were crowded by an audience attracted by her celebrated name. The programme was selected from the works of Mozart, Beethoven, Woelfl, Benedict, and Thalberg; and our accomplished pianist had an enthusiastic reception.

"Murmures Eoliennes" is the title of a pretty "caprice" for the pianoforte by Master Pape, performed successfully by him at Marlborough House before the Princess of Wales. Master Pape has also performed it at the Free-trade Hall, Manchester; St. George's Hall, Liverpool; and the Townhall, Birmingham; as well as at Her Majesty's Concert Room, Hanover-square, London, with the greatest success. With such an introduction we can safely recommend it to the notice of pianists.

THE THEATRES.

The return of Miss Helen Faucit to Drury-lane Theatre is another proof of the fidelity with which the management carry out their design of devoting the present season to Shakspearean and legitimate drama. "Cymbeline" has accordingly been revived, with some change of cast—Mr. Anderson taking the part of Iachimo, and Mr. Walter Montgomery that of Posthumus Leonatus; but that of Imogen remains the same. The present week's programme has also been varied by the interchange of the exquisite drama of "As You Like It" and Sheridan's fine comedy of "The School for Scandal." The former merits some remark; for in it Miss Faucit repeats that character of Rosalind with which she was wont to delight us in the years that are past, and in which we trust to witness her performance for many that are to come. The grace, refinement, and elegance which Miss Faucit imparts to this rôle are of such excellence that, as yet, she has had no competitor in it. It is the perfection of histrionic art; while it shows in the artist a poetic appreciation of the Shakspearean text which extends to the proper enunciation of, indeed, every syllable. Such delicacy, such discrimination, as she manifests are rare indeed; and the example of studious and careful acting set by this lady cannot but be beneficial to the rising talent of the age. Mr. Phelps, too, as Sir Peter Teazle, gives an illustration of the same kind of merit, and the completeness of his portraiture will be an acceptable lesson to many a younger artist.

A new farce was produced at the Princess's on Monday. It is entitled "An Ample Apology." This piece is one of the kind which it is difficult to describe, dependent as it is on practical incidents. We have a fast medical student appropriating the neckerchief of Mr. Spooner (Mr. Dominick Murray), and a lady leaving a new pair of stays in a closet, both which circumstances bring poor Mr. Spooner into contact with a jealous husband, when, of course, the usual excitements, perplexities, and explanations take place. Mr. Murray did his best for the part, and the audience accepted his efforts, with, perhaps, more regard for the player than for the play.

A similar piece on even a slighter foundation appears at the St. James's Theatre. It is called "The Three Furies;" that is, three young ladies addicted to masculine pursuits. One would be a volunteer, another a surgeon, another a zoologist, to the disgust of a young man whom their father desires should marry one of them. It was difficult to make much of these materials; accordingly, the "new comedietta," for so it is called, was but moderately successful.

Mr. Arthur Sketchley is again in the field—we mean at the Egyptian Hall—lecturing on Paris, and representing Mrs. Brown. As to the former, that fine capital is "portrayed" in a series of admirable pictures painted by Messrs. O'Connor, Hayes, White, and Hall, in which the gaiety and splendour of the city are alike beautifully illustrated. Mr. Sketchley has modified his lecture, gives us some new songs, and also introduces novel remarks, which are both seasonable and reasonable. "Mrs. Brown at the Play" is as laugh-provoking as ever.

It is with pleasure that we record the success of Mr. and Mrs. German Reed and Mr. John Parry in their new entertainment, entitled, "A Peculiar Family," written by Mr. William Brough, and accompanied with some new and admirable scenery by Messrs. T. and W. Grieve. This very excellent production was inaugurated at the Royal Gallery of Illustration, on Wednesday, before a numerous and fashionable audience, who were evidently much amused by the witty dialogue and humorous incidents with which the new piece abounds. The scene of the action is laid on the French coast, overlooking the sea, at an inn, where we meet with a detective officer, a German, admirably impersonated by Mr. John Parry, who is on the look-out for some conspirator in a white hat, and solicits the assistance of the French landlady, Mdme. Groslot (Mrs. German Reed). The conversation between these two worthies, with their mutual mistakes, and the indignation of the hostess at the detective's attempt to convert her into a spy, was exceedingly mirth-provoking. The interest rose when Mr. German Reed appeared as a true-born Briton, Mr. Barnaby Bounce, with the identical hat on his head which he had taken up on board the steamer instead of his own, but which he refuses to surrender to the obtrusive official. Mr. Parry then appears as Grandfather Bounce, whose senility is most artistically portrayed by his inimitable representative. This worthy confounds St. Helens, Aldgate, and St. Helena; and Napoleon Bonaparte with his now-reigning nephew; and is so deaf that his errors cannot be corrected. Mrs. Reed then assumes the character of a German Countess disguised as a toyseller, who, recognising the white hat, puts her confidence in Barnaby, and, in return for the correspondence which it contains, inserts in its lining a considerable sum of money, and returns it to its temporary wearer. The hat is soon after transferred to another member of the Peculiar Family, Mr. Felix Flitter (Mr. Reed), who finds and appropriates the bank-notes. The real owner appears at last—a very excitable "crasher," who succeeds in making his escape, notwithstanding the diligence of the German detective. All these characters are excellently delineated; but there is one, not yet mentioned, which in power and effect exceeds them all—a Miss Mole, a poor relative of the Peculiar Family—who, though subsisting on their bounty, regards herself as the most ill-used woman in the world. Her song, "Situated as I am," was a decided triumph, and commanded a well-merited encore. Mrs. Reed's acting of the part was great. The new entertainment possesses such substantial merit that it must prove a permanent success.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

IN the early part of the week, notwithstanding that the Government brokers were rather large operators on account of the Sinking Fund, great inactivity prevailed in the market for Home Securities, and the quotations were somewhat drooping. Since then, however, increased purchases of Stock have been effected for permanent investment, and prices have had an upward tendency.

The demand for money has been far from active; nevertheless, the lowest rates for the best paper in the General Discount Market are as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	4½ per cent.	Four months' bills	4¾ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4½ "	Six months' bills	5 to 5½ "
Three months' bills	4¾ "

In the Stock Exchange loans for short periods may be had at 4 per cent.

On the Continent money has ruled about stationary. The rates in the leading cities are as under:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3½	3½	Turin	6	5½
Vienna	5	5¼	Brussels	4	4
Berlin	4	3½	Madrid	9	10
Frankfort	4	3½	Hamburg	—	2½
Amsterdam	4	4	St. Petersburg	6	8

About £300,000 in bullion has come to hand, and a few parcels of gold have been disposed of to the Bank of England. The demand for export is very limited.

The Council for India have disposed of £300,000 in bills on the various Presidencies, at a decline of ½ per cent. The inquiry for silver on Eastern account is not, therefore, likely to be active for some time. The value of the gold known to be on passage from Australia is £234,204.

On Monday, Consols, for Money, were done at 88¼ ⅜; Ditto, for Account, 18¼ ⅜; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 86½ ⅝; India Five per Cents, 103⅝ ⅞; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 7s. prem. Bank Stock was 246 to 248; India Stock, 214 to 217; and Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 108 to 110. The dealings on the following day were very moderate. Consols, for Money, closed at 88¾ ½; Ditto, for Time, 88¾ ⅞; Bank Stock, 246 to 248; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 86⅝ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 217; Ditto, New, 103¾ to 104; Ditto, Debentures, 99¼; Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 7s. prem. On Wednesday, Consols, for Transfer, were done at 88⅝ ⅞; Ditto, for Time, 88⅞ 89; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 86⅞ 87; India Five per Cents, 104; Rupee Five per Cents, 101; Ditto, Five-and-a-Half per Cents, 109; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 7s. prem. Bank Stock was 218. On Thursday prices improved, Consols having sold at 88¾ to 89½ for Money, and 89 to 89⅛ for Account. Reduced and New Three per Cents realised 87⅛ ⅜; India Five per Cents, 104⅛ ½; Ditto, Bonds, 15s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 7s. prem.

The half-yearly meeting of the proprietary of the Bank of England was held on Thursday, when a dividend of 5¼ per cent for the half-year was declared.

The chief fluctuations in prices in the Foreign house have been confined to Greek, Spanish, Italian, and Danubian Securities. In Italian, owing to the unfavourable financial statement recently presented to the Italian Parliament, a considerable fall has taken place, the Scrip of the last loan having declined to 3½ dis. Danubian Scrip, however, is firmer, and has advanced to par. Egyptian Scrip is firm, at 1¼ to 1½ prem.; whilst the Confederate Loan has been done at 37 to 39. Brazilian Five per Cents have marked 99; Buenos Ayres Six per Cents, 92; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 93¾ ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 95½; Greek, 21¼; Italian Old Five per Cents, 63½; Ditto, 1865, 74½; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 81; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47½; Russian Five per Cents, 1862, 89½; Ditto, 1864, 91½; Spanish Three per Cents, 48; Ditto, Deferred, 41; Ditto, Passive, 32¾; Ditto, Certificates, 16¾; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 94½; Ditto, 1862, 72½; Venezuela Six per Cents, 1864, 41½; Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 62¾; and Dutch Four per Cents, 98¾.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been dealt in to a very moderate extent. Agra and United Service have realised 124½; Alliance, 33; Australasia, 74½; Bank of British Columbia, 17; Bank of London, 152¾; British and Californian, 5½; Brazilian and Portuguese, 10; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 30; City, 111; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 19; European, 13⅞; Imperial, 31; Imperial Ottoman, 16¾; Land Mortgage of India, 4⅞; London Chartered of Australia, 23⅝; London and County, 72; London Joint-stock, 46½; London and Westminster, 83; Merchant, 30½; National, 97; Oriental, 67; Union of Australia, 53; and Union of London, 52.

Very little business has been transacted in Colonial Government Securities. Canada Six per Cents have sold at 87; Ditto Five per Cents, 73¾; Cape Five per Cents, 92½; Nova Scotia Six per Cents, 90; Queensland Six per Cents, 103½; South Australian Five per Cents, 106½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108¾.

The Miscellaneous Market has ruled inactive. Ceylon Company, 9½; City of Milan Improvements, 10; Company of African Merchants, 3; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, New, 7½; Crystal Palace, 31½; Discount Corporation, 13½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 4¾; Electric Telegraph, 114; General Credit, 6½; Hudson's Bay, 15; International Financial, 6½; Joint-stock Discount, 8¾; London Financial, 20½; Mauritius Land, Credit, and Agency, 2½; Millwall Ironworks, 5½; National Discount, 11½; Oriental Financial, 7¾; Peninsula and Oriental Steam, 81; Royal Mail Steam, 96; South Australian Land, 29½; and Warrant Finance, 8½.

Federal Securities have been heavy and drooping in price. Illinois Central have been 53½ to 54; and Erie Shares, 33½ to 34½.

There has been an improved feeling in the Railway Share Market, and the quotations have somewhat advanced. Annexed are Thursday's official closing prices:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Great Eastern, 46½; Great Northern, 129¾; Ditto, A Stock, 142½; Great Western, 72¾; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 114½; London and Blackwall, 87; London and North-Western, 116¾; London and South-Western, 96½; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 59½; Metropolitan, 122½; Metropolitan District, 99½; Midland, 132; North-Eastern—Berwick, 106½; Ditto, Leeds, 64½; Ditto, York, 98½; North London, 119; South Devon, 57¾; South-Eastern, 83¾; West Cornwall, 39½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 101½; East Indian, 101¾; Great Indian Peninsula, 101¾; Great Southern of India, 99½; Great Western of Canada, 7½; Madras Five per Cents, 99¾.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 10; Bahia and San Francisco, 14¾; Central Argentine, 3½; Dutch-Rhenish, 21½; San Paulo, 17¾.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending March 15 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£185,892	An increase of bullion of	£183,651
An increase of public deposits of	670,753	An increase of rest of	13,255
A decrease of other deposits of	118,877	An increase of reserve of	308,991
An increase of securities of	255,598

The total circulation is £20,095,563. Public deposits amount to £8,348,481; and private deposits to £13,785,825. Securities are £31,204,694; and the stock of bullion is £14,882,253.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, March 13.—The supply of English wheat here to-day was very moderate, and in but middling condition. Good dry samples moved off steadily, at full quotations; but other kinds sold slowly, at late rates. The show of foreign wheat was tolerably extensive. Fine parcels ruled firm in price. Otherwise, the trade was heavy. Floating cargoes were rather dearer. We were well supplied with both English and foreign barley, and all descriptions met a dull inquiry, on former terms. The malt trade was heavy; nevertheless, prices were supported. Oats, though in short supply, were a slow sale, at late currencies. Beans were dull in sale; but peas sold at extreme quotations. Both English and foreign flour was quite as dear as last week.

March 15.—The transactions in all kinds of produce to-day were very moderate. In prices, however, no change took place.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 40s.; ditto, white, 39s. to 45s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 40s.; rye, 28s. to 30s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 26s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 60s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 56s. to 60s.; Chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 17s. to 22s.; potato ditto, 19s. to 24s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 16s. to 19s.; ditto, white, 17s. to 21s.; tick beans, 32s. to 34s.; grey peas, 33s. to 35s.; maple, 37s. to 40s.; white, 36s. to 49s.; boilers, 39s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 35s. to 40s.; town households, 33s. to 35s.; country marks, 25s. to 32s. per 280 lb.; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 570; barley, 1040; malt, 1210; oats, 2720; flour, 710. Foreign: Wheat, 150; barley, 1500; oats, 3910; flour, 40 sacks.

Seeds.—The transactions in agricultural seeds are very moderate, at about previous quotations. In cakes very little is doing.

Linseed, English, crushing, 60s. to 63s.; Calcutta, 56s. to 58s.; hempseed, 41s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. 0d. to 10s.; tares, 9s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; English rapeseed, 74s. to 76s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 0s.; rape cakes, £5 10s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 44s. to 50s. per quarter; red clover seed, 62s. to 120s.; white ditto, 56s. to 88s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 4d.; barley, 29s. 1d.; oats, 20s. 6d. per quarter.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 69,297; barley, 42,655; oats, 8058 quarters.

Tea.—The demand for all kinds is heavy, at barely stationary prices.

Sugar.—All descriptions are a dull inquiry, and the quotations are a shade lower. Stock, 98,153 tons, against 64,645 tons last year. Refined goods are inactive, at 42s. 6d. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—The market is steady, at late currencies. The stock consists of 9599 tons, against 8939 tons in 1864.

Rice.—No change has taken place in prices, but the demand may be considered steady. Stock, 49,412 tons, against 51,658 tons last year.

Provisions.—The transactions in Irish butter continue on a very moderate scale, at late quotations. Foreign parcels are firm, at 130s. to 132s. per cwt for the best Dutch. There is a steady business doing in bacon, at 64s. to 65s. per cwt. for the best Waterford on board. In other provisions very little is doing, at late rates.

Tallow.—P.Y.C., on the spot, moves off slowly, at 40s. 6d. per cwt. Stock, 43,057 casks, against 55,677 ditto last year. Rough fat 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil moves off slowly, at £32; rape is offering at £41 10s. to £44 10s.; fine cocoanut, £40 10s.; and fine palm, £36. French turpentine, 62s. 6d. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum sells heavily, yet prices are supported. In the value of brandy and grain spirits we have no change to report.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 5s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Haswell, 19s. 9d.; Hetton, 19s. 6d.; Harton, 16s. 9d.; Hough Hall, 18s.; Kelloe, 17s. 3d.; South Kelloe, 18s. per ton.

Hops.—There is only a limited inquiry for all kinds of hops. In prices, however, no change has taken place. They range from 110s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—The public sales of colonial wool are progressing steadily, and prices have an upward tendency.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate and the demand is inactive, at from 55s. to 140s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market.—Thursday, March 16.—About an average supply of beasts was on sale here to-day, in but middling condition. Most breeds moved off slowly, at Monday's currency. The general top figure was 5s. 2d. per 8 lb. The show of sheep was only moderate. Downs and half-breds were in good request, at full prices; otherwise the mutton trade was inactive, at late rates. The highest quotation was 6s. 6d. per 8 lb. Lambs sold heavily, at from 6s. to 6s. 8d. per 8 lb. There was a fair inquiry for calves, at extreme rates—viz., from 4s. 8d. to 5s. 8d. per 8 lb. Pigs sold at full prices; but milch cows were very dull.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 2d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 4d. to 6s. 6d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 8d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 10d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 21s. to 27s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1010; cows, 142; sheep, 3820; calves, 120; pigs, 330. Foreign: Beasts, 376; sheep, 280; calves, 109.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 0d.; veal, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 2d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 5s. 0d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. Trade steady.

ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 10.

BANKRUPTCY ANNULLED.

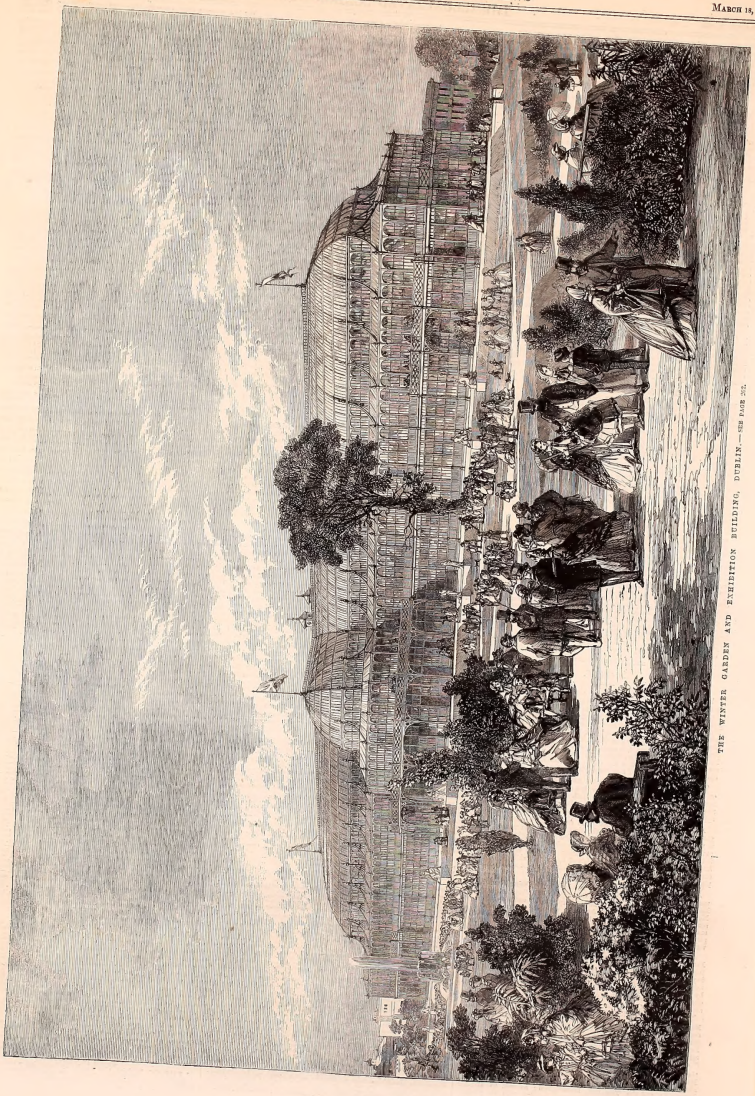
W. HAMERTON, Sneinton, Nottinghamshire, painter.

BANKRUPTS.

N. HARPER, Southampton-terrace, Kentish Town, cattle-salesman.—W. CARTER, Ludgate-street, City, stay and crinoline manufacturer.—C. J. JUSTINS, Smethwick, Stafford, and Birmingham, crinoline manufacturer.—W. MILLER, Richmond, upholsterer.—J. W. LANE, Kentish Town-road, watchmaker.—J. CAREY, Tottenham, carpenter.—C. LE GEYT, Balham, Surrey.—G. BUTLER, Lower Norwood, carpenter.—C. BEATLEY, Basingstoke, Southampton, gunmaker.—H. W. RICHARDSON, Epsom, Surrey.—G. WILKS, Chichester-place, Bayswater, cab proprietor.—J. LOMBARD, Great Marylebone-street, bootmaker.—J. BERRY, Biggleswade, Beds, and Hitchin, Herts, commission agent. J. H. CARTWRIGHT, Upper Thames-street, merchant.—G. S. POLLOCK, Wellington-road, Barnsbury Park, traveller.—O. W. DAVIES, Eltham, Kent, grocer.—F. PEARSON, Threadneedle-street, merchant.—R. W. CARRUTHERS, Rotherhithe-street, Rotherhithe, grocer.—E. M. RANFORD, Grange-road, Bermondsey, ironmonger.—H. BUTLER, Trinity-terrace, Brixton, carpenter.—W. CLIFFEN, George-street, Notting-hill, plasterer.—T. T. GOODEY, North-street, Peckham, baker.—H. GORDON, Gracechurch-street, tobacco merchant.—E. T. OBEY, Acorn-place, Rotherhithe.—Sir J. A. DOUGLAS, Knt., New Peckham, Commander R.N.—M. HORN, Summer Town, Oxford, butcher.—J. HUNTER, Marylebone-road, attorney.—W. SELFE, Milton-next-Gravesend, watchmaker.—W. I. NEWING, Little Thurrock, baker.—E. GLENISTER, Luton, straw-hat maker.—J. STEEL, Wortley, boot manufacturer.—E. PETERS, Birmingham, toirtoischell-box maker.—J. S. MOORE, Birmingham, merchant.—T. BOWERMAN, Birmingham, wholesale butter merchant.—C. HARRISON, Leek, Staffordshire, hardware-dealer.—J. ANDREW, Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, hatter.—C. TAYLOR, Gloucester, bootmaker.—E. S. TRAPNELL, Bristol, ladies' outfitter.—W. WHITE, Portland, butcher.—J. DOMETT, Ottery St. Mary, innkeeper.—S. BURNLEY, jun., Morley, wool merchant.—W. T. KENDALL, Great Grimsby, bookseller.—S. STONES, Over, miller.—W. ODELL, Liverpool, hardware agent. D. M'L. CLARK, Llanidloes, draper.—T. VALANTINE, Rhosllanerchrugog, tailor.—J. LAW, Bacup, grocer.—J. WILKINSON, Patricroft, farmer.—T. B. WILLIS, Sheffield.—H. CARTER, King's Norton, Worcestershire, wireworker.—W. BARTLEET, Birmingham, builder.—J. BAKER, Butterleigh, miller.—R. P. HELE, Kingsbridge, cordwainer.—E. HOLMES, Longton.—R. BAKER, Longtown, innkeeper.—J. REAVEY, Leicester, tailor. J. M. GRIFFITHS, Aberavon, bootmaker.—J. S. TURNER, Wordsley, chemist.—W. DAVY, Stourbridge, contractor.—W. GARDNER, jun., Birmingham.—J. SIMCOCK, Burslem, timber-dealer.—J. TOON, Witherley, farmer.—R. BRADWELL, Salford, general agent.—R. DAVIES, Liverpool, painter.—J. BENNETT, Birkenhead, mason.—E. S. KNOWLES, Little Neston, hidebroker.—T. SANDLAND, Chester, coachbuilder.—J. HUGHES, Taibach, grocer.—E. HUGHES, Swansea, maltster.—H. H. PETERS, Swansea, coal merchant.—W. B. HOPPER, Exeter.—J. W. MARTIN, Exeter.—R. WATTS, Plymouth.—E. CHAPLIN, Hempton, grocer.—J. MILTON, Taunton, shoemaker.—T. RIDLEY, Merryshields, farmer.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

J. PENDER and SON, Glasgow, bleachers.—G. L. WALKER, Aberdeen, hardware merchant.—D. DICK, Campsie, farmer.—J. M'DONALD, Renfrew, grocer.



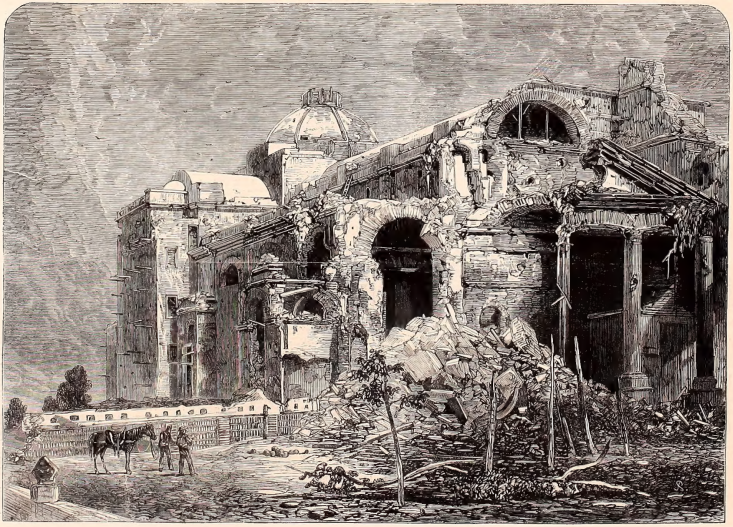
TUESDAY, MARCH 14.

BANKRUPTS.

B. WIGHTMAN, Reading, grocer.—J. J. PARKER, Hackney-road, dairyman, and Strood, brickmaker.—J. ROOKE, Putney, carpenter.—W. WATSON, Rotherhithe, victualler.—H. LEA, Fleet-street, publisher.—G. CHAPMAN, jun., Eastbourne, draper.—J. J. KNIGHT, Robert-street, victualler.—C. W. HOWARD, Walworth, cheesemonger.—E. R. WITHERS, City, merchant.—J. F. NICHOLLS, Buckingham-street, clerk in the War Office.—F. J. COLE, Westbourne-grove, commission merchant.—F. NIEMEYER, Wells-street, tailor.—J. R. COOPER, Westbourne-square, stove manufacturer.—Sir R. H. ROBERTS, Bart., Bayswater, Paymaster of the 12th Lancers.—R. J. T. SMITH, Mincing-lane, colonial broker.—J. G. PUGH, High-street, Wapping, butcher.—R. J. KEMP, Sandy, draper.—H. SKRYMSHER, St. George's, baker.—M. MARKS, Birmingham, boot-factor.—H. MARSHALL, Birmingham, banker (surviving partner of R. Spooner, H. Marshall, and T. A. Attwood).—F. R. HILEY, Newark-on-Trent, currier.—J. CHAPMAN, Neath, baker. G. HOPKINS, Cardiff, outfitter.—T. GRAYSON, Burley, tailor.—J. CROSSLEY, Cleckheaton, joiner.—T. J. LEEVERS, Sowerby Bridge, tanner.—G. HARRISON, Caistor, surveyor of taxes.—T. LEWIS, Egremont, shipowner.—J. CROASDALE, Rochdale, fishmonger.—J. BREWER, Farncombe, Surrey, baker.—J. WHITE, Cheltenham, milkman.—J. BUGDEN, Wimborne Minster, builder.—J. GREENWOOD, Rochdale, bootmaker.—R. WERNPHREY, Gateshead, grocer.—J. BALL, Whitwick, butcher.—J. DEWHURST, Peterborough, hatter.—J. R. WILTON, Peterborough, innkeeper.—J. ROSS, Wrexham, watchmaker.—G. CLAPHAM, Bath, baker.—G. H. MORGAN, Swansea, victualler.—E. BEARD, Cardiff, fruiterer.—P. M. WELLS, Norwich, tailor.—W. KILMISTER, Westbury-upon-Trym, farmer.—J. ROYLE, Irlam, farmer.—N. CANSICK, Leeds, currier.—F. NATTRISS, Ulleskelf, publican.—J. ENGLAND, Leeds, leather-seller.—J. TAYLOR, Dewsbury, cloth manufacturer.—J. KING, Guisborough, newsagent.—J. DAVIES, Newport, draper.—J. CANN, Chawleigh, maltster.—B. HANSON, Hillhouse, Huddersfield, flockdealer.—W. LEWIS, Ross, coachbuilder.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

I. HAUPTMAN, Edinburgh, glass engraver.—B. BREMNER, Pulteneytown, merchant. J. JENKINS, Lochgoilhead, postmistress.—H. CHARLESON, Lochbroom, hotel-keeper.—J. M'CALL, Glasgow, wine merchant.—D. DAVIDSON, J. WOOD, G. R. ANDREWS, and F. NEILSON, Glasgow, shipbuilders.



THE WINTER GARDEN AND EXHIBITION BUILDING, DUBLIN.—SEE PAGE 276.

EFFECTS OF THE BOMBARDMENT OF PAYSANDU, URUGUAY, BY THE BRAZILIAN SQUADRON.

RUINS OF THE TOWER AND FORT.

RUINS OF THE PRINCIPAL CHURCH, IN THE GREAT SQUARE.—SEE PAGE 262.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY, ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS—Mr. J. L. Toole. LOVE CHASE—Mr. B. Webster; and AREA BELLE. Tuesday, IRISH TIGER; THE HUNCHBACK—Miss Bateman; and ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS. Wednesday, and Friday, THE STEEPLECHASE—Mr. J. L. Toole; THE LOVE CHASE—Mr. B. Webster; AREA BELLE—Mr. J. L. Toole. Thursday and Saturday, THE STEEPLECHASE; THE HUNCHBACK—Miss Bateman; and ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS. Commence at Seven.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Under the Sole Management of Mr. FECHTER.—On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, RUY BLAS—Mr. Fechter. MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, THE STRANGER—Mdlle. Beatrice. Concluding with THE ROADSIDE INN. Box Office open Daily from Eleven till Five.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Wet or Dry, always Charming.—Performances by the Orchestral Band twice daily, and Great Organ Performance by Mr. Coward—Picture Galleries—Fine-Arts Courts—Shakspere House—Chimpanzee—Armour Plates (lent by official authority)—Skating Hall—and the Thousand and One other Attractions of the Crystal Palace. Open Daily, from Ten till Dusk.

Monday to Friday, One Shilling; Children under Twelve, Sixpence. Saturday, Concert and Promenade, Half-a-Crown.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GREAT TRIENNIAL HANDEL FESTIVAL.

MESSIAH,	MONDAY,	JUNE 26,	1865.
SELECTION,	WEDNESDAY,	" 28,	"
ISRAEL,	FRIDAY,	" 30,	"

The Programme of Arrangements, with the price of tickets and the Block Plan of Stalls, may be had on written or personal application from and after Monday, the 6th of March, at the Festival Ticket Offices, Crystal Palace, and Exeter Hall. It may also be had at the principal Music Warehouses in London and in the provinces; and, besides numerous other places abroad, at the offices of the South Eastern and London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Companies, at Paris, Brussels, Cologne, Calais, Boulogne, Ostend, Ghent, Antwerp, &c.

The two Ticket Offices as above will be open from Ten a.m. to Five p.m. daily for the issue of vouchers securing seats according to the numbered plans, which are open to inspection.

By order.

Crystal Palace and Exeter Hall, March 17, 1865.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On MONDAY EVENING NEXT, MARCH 20, the Programme will include Schumann's Quartet in A minor, for stringed instruments; Haydn's Trio in G, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello; Bach's chaconne, for violin alone; and Weber's Sonata in A flat, for pianoforte alone. Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Pianoforte, Mr. Chas. Hallé; Vocalist, Mr. Cummings. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—Professor Sterndale Bennett, Mus. D., Conductor.—FIRST CONCERT, MONDAY, MARCH 20, at the Hanover-square Rooms. To commence at Eight o'Clock. The Programme will include Haydn's Symphony, "Il Festino;" Beethoven's Symphony in B flat; Weber's Overture, "Der Beherrscher der Geister;" Onslow's Overture, "L'Arcade de la Vega;" and a Violin Concerto, by Spohr. Solo Violinist, Herr Strauss. Vocalists, Miss Louisa Pyne and Mr. Renwick.

Subscriptions received and Tickets issued by Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street. CAMPBELL CLARKE, Sec., 24, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS. Morning Performances SATURDAYS, MARCH 25 and April 8. Pianoforte, Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Mr. Charles Hallé; Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Programmes and tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in a New Entertainment, entitled A PECULIAR FAMILY, written by Mr. William Brough; with MRS. ROSELEAF AT THE SEASIDE. Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY, Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, every Evening during the week, at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday), Saturday Morning at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED; MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY. Box-office open from 11 to 5.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, Regent's Park. GENERAL EXHIBITIONS, WEDNESDAYS, MAY 24, JUNE 14, and JULY 5.

AMERICAN PLANTS, MONDAYS, JUNE 5 and 12.

Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 4s. each.

THE GREAT FYCHOW GIANT, whose appearance in Shanghai and Hong-Kong has created such wonder, is expected in England by an early mail from China.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a New Piece of Extravagance, termed "GOING TO COURT." the CORN EXCHANGE, WOLVERHAMPTON, TO-NIGHT (Saturday); Stourbridge, Monday, March 20th; Worcester, 21st; Redditch, 22nd; Bromsgrove, 23rd; Malvern, 24th and 25th.—Manager, Mr. J. MORFEY.

THE BRIGHTON HOTEL COMPANY (Limited).

GRAND HOTEL.

Extension Shares, £25,000, in 5000 Shares of £5 each, making the entire [Capital £100,000, in 20,000 Shares of £5 each, £2 to be paid on each share on application.

Future calls not to exceed £1 per Share.

Incorporated under the Joint-stock Limited Liability Act, which expressly limits the liability of each shareholder to the amount of his shares.

The Directors of the Brighton Hotel Company (Limited) have found it absolutely necessary, in order to meet the requirements of the public, to add an annexe to the grand Hotel. This additional building contains an office for the sale of wines, in which the business of a wine merchant will be carried on; a luncheon and light refreshment department, a large assembly room for table d'hôte, balls, &c., and about 36 private rooms.

The annexe is so far complete that the wine office will be opened in a few days, the restaurant will be ready by Easter, and the private rooms are now in use.

To defray the expense of the annexe, it has been determined to issue the remaining 5000 shares of £5 each, which are now offered to the present shareholders and the public.

The Hotel was opened at the end of July, 1864, and the accounts for the five months ending Dec. 31, show a profit at the rate of 25 per cent per annum on the paid-up capital of £2 per share, and a dividend was declared thereon at the late general meeting at the rate of 15 per cent per annum, carrying over 10 per cent to next account.

Applications to be made to the Brokers of the Company, Messrs. George Harris and Sons, 22, Change-alley, Cornhill, or to the Secretary, on or before Wednesday, March 29, which must, in every instance, be accompanied by a cheque for £2 per share, crossed to Sir S. Scott and Co., Bankers, London.

36, Cannon-street, E.C., March, 1865. H. A. LINFORD, Secretary.

INAUGURATION OF THE NEW TATTERSALLS'.

THE Friends of Messrs. TATTERSALL having determined on giving them a DINNER to celebrate the above event and to mark the general estimation in which they are held, the same will take place at WILLIS'S ROOMS, King-street, St. James's, on TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1865, at Six o'Clock precisely, the Hon. Admiral ROUS in the chair.

Tickets, Two Guineas each, to be had at Willis's Rooms; at Mr. Bubb's Library, 167, New Bond-street; and at Tattersalls' Subscription Rooms, Hyde Park-corner, on application to Mr. Thomas.

PARTNERSHIP.—TO BANKERS and OTHERS.—A House of some years' standing, principally engaged in business as Shippers and Shipowners, and having first-class connections, is open to receive a GENTLEMAN as a PARTNER, with a capital of not less than £25,000 to £30,000. The incoming partner's share would be considerable, as there is at present but one in the House.—Apply, in the first instance, to X. Y. Z., care of W. A. Plunkett, Esq., Solicitor, 21, Milk-street, Cheapside, E.C.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity.

PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

LIMPLEY STOKE, NEAR BATH.

HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT. Physician, D. B. Dalzell, Esq., M.D. Manager, Mr. T. Preston. Terms, £2 2s. per week.

CHARLES JUPE and SON, Proprietors.

SEA.—MIDSHIPMEN—First-class Appren-tices wanted for fine Ships sailing to India and China. Premium moderate. Apply to Price, Firmin, and Co., 98, Leadenhall-street.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens.

Full information and card of prices by post.

"The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times.

The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

NEW BOOKS.

MR. TENNIEL'S ILLUSTRATED "LALLA ROOKH."

Lately published, in 1 vol. fcap 4to, price 21s. in ornamental covers, or 42s. bound in morocco by Rivière,

MR. TENNIEL'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION of MOORE'S "LALLA ROOKH:" containing 69 Illustrations from Original Drawings engraved on Wood by Dalziel Brothers; with 5 Initial Pages of Persian design.

The "Times."—"We have never seen a more splendid gift-book in respect of paper, type, binding, ornamentation of introductory pages, and, above all, for the sterling artistic skill of one illustrative pencil. . . . The entire work is an admirable result of academic learning and poetic conception. Even the landscape accessories are in unison with the spirit in which the figure subjects are treated; and it is due to Mr. Tenniel to allow that the entire set of illustrations is without a parallel that we can recall in English embellishment, and the greatest illustrative achievement of any single hand."

MOORE'S "LALLA ROOKH," in crown 8vo, with 13 Plates, price 15s.; in 16mo, with Vignette title, 2s. 6d.; and in 32mo, with Frontispiece, 1s.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

COLLECTIVE EDITION OF MISS SEWELL'S STORIES AND TALES.

The set of ten volumes, crown 8vo, price 34s. 6d., boards; or price 44s. 6d. cloth extra, with gilt edges.

TALES and STORIES by the Author of "Amy Herbert." New and cheaper uniform edition, each story or tale complete in one volume:—

Amy Herbert	2s. 6d.	Ivors	3s. 6d.
Gertrude	2s. 6d.	Katharine Ashton ..	3s. 6d.
The Earl's Daughter ..	2s. 6d.	Margaret Percival ..	5s. 0d.
The Experience of Life ..	2s. 6d.	Laneton Parsonage ..	4s. 6d.
Cleve Hall	3s. 6d.	Ursula	4s. 6d.

"To the thoroughness and integrity, the absolute rectitude inculcated in thought, word, and deed, and to the tender charity extended to the erring and repentant, we are inclined to attribute the hold these works take on readers of all classes and all ages. The pure, transparent sincerity tells even on those who are apt to find any work whose aim and object are religious heavy and uninteresting. The republication of these works in an easy, accessible form is a benefit of which we cannot over estimate the solid advantages."—Globe.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

CHEAP EDITIONS OF MR. A. TROLLOPE'S NOVELS.

The People's Edition, in crown 8vo, price 5s.

BARCHESTER TOWERS. By ANTHONY TROLLOPE, Author of "Orley Farm," &c.

By the same Author, in 1 vol., price 3s. 6d. cloth,

THE WARDEN. Uniform with "Barchester Towers."

"All people who have read 'The Warden' and 'Barchester Towers'—and if anybody has not read 'The Warden' and 'Barchester Towers,' let us counsel them to make up for lost time as soon as may be—will know very well what is meant by the Daily Jupiter, and by Tom Towers."—Saturday Review.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

In fcap 8vo, price 2s. 6d., with gilt edges,

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE AND THE USAGES OF SOCIETY; with a Glance at Bad Habits. By Ἀγωγός. "Manners make the Man." 30th Edition, revised, (with Additions), by a Lady of Rank.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

SHAKSPEARE'S PLAYS FOR FAMILY READING.

The only Genuine Edition in large type, with a Woodcut to each Play, complete in one volume, large 8vo, price 14s. cloth, gilt edges; or price 31s. 6d. bound in morocco, BOWDLER'S FAMILY SHAKSPEARE. To be had also in smaller size, with the same Illustrations, in six volumes, for the pocket, price 5s. 6d. each.

The only genuine copies of this well-known and favourite edition of Shakspeare's Plays, the only edition which can be read aloud, bear the imprint of Messrs. Longman and Co.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

LORD MACAULAY'S "LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME."

A New Edition, in 16mo, with Vignette on Wood, price 4s. 6d., cloth, or 10s. 6d. bound in morocco by Rivière, LAYS OF ANCIENT ROME; with IVRY and THE ARMADA. By the Right Hon. Lord MACAULAY.

An Edition of Lord Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome," with Illustrations, original and from the antique, by G. Scharf, engraved on wood by S. Williams, in fcap 4to, price 21s., cloth, gilt edges; or 42s. elegantly bound in morocco by Rivière.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

MAUNDER'S POPULAR TREASURIES.

In fcp 8vo, with 900 Woodcuts, price 10s. cloth, or 13s. calf,

THE TREASURY OF NATURAL HISTORY, or Popular Dictionary of Animated Nature; in which the Zoological Characteristics that distinguish the different Classes, Genera, and Species, are combined with a variety of interesting Information. By S. MAUNDER. Sixth Edition, revised and corrected, with an extended Supplement, by T. SPENCER COBBOLD, M.D., F.L.S.

Also, all uniform in size, and price 10s. each "Treasury,"

MAUNDER'S HISTORICAL TREASURY;
MAUNDER'S BIOGRAPHICAL TREASURY;
MAUNDER'S TREASURY OF KNOWLEDGE;
MAUNDER'S GEOGRAPHICAL TREASURY; and MAUNDER'S SCIENTIFIC AND LITERARY TREASURY.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

LORD MACAULAY'S HISTORY OF ENGLAND.

May now be had, in 8 vols. post 8vo, price 48s.,

THE HISTORY OF ENGLAND FROM THE ACCESSION OF JAMES II. By the Right Hon. LORD MACAULAY. With Portrait and brief Memoir. Cabinet Edition, complete in 8 vols., price 48s. cloth; or 84s. bound in tree-calf, by Rivière; or each volume separately, price 6s. cloth.

LIBRARY EDITION, in 5 vols. 8vo, price £4 cloth, or £5 15s. 6d. in tree-calf by Rivière.

PEOPLE'S EDITION, complete in 2 vols. crown 8vo, price 16s. cloth; or in 14 Parts, price 1s. each.

London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK, price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.

London: LONGMAN and CO.

FANNY FERN'S NEW BOOK FOR CHILDREN.

Ready this day, post 8vo, 8 page Illustrations, extra cloth, gilt edges, price 3s. 6d.,

MY NEW STORY-BOOK FOR CHILDREN. By FANNY FERN, Author of "Fern Leaves," &c.

London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, 158, Fleet-street.

IN A FEW DAYS.

Dedicated, by special permission, to the Right Hon. Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Bart., M.P.

SONGS OF LOVE AND DEATH. By GEORGE ERIC MACKAY.

London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

Just ready, 95 plates, many coloured, size folio imperial, with descriptive text, bound in cloth, price £1 1s.,

THE CAMEL: its Anatomy, Proportions, and Paces. By ELIJAH WALTON.

London: DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, W.C.

NUMBER 1143 contains the first Three Chapters of THE MYSTERY OF MONK'S HOLLOW, the New Tale in the FAMILY HERALD. "Its novels and tales are quite as well written as the best circulating-library stories."—Saturday Review.

Fifth Edition, price One Guinea, post-free,

THE ART OF BREWING, FERMENTING, AND MAKING OF MALT. By JOHN LEVESQUE, late of the Anchor Brewery. Wherein will be found full directions for the prevention of acetous fermentation, correct tables of mashing heats, and all other necessary directions, the result of forty years' practice in the above art.—JAMES LEATH, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 16s., post-free,

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. No medicine is prescribed without the indications for its selection and the dose to be administered, free from all technicalities, and specially adapted to the use of clergymen, emigrants, and missionaries. Also, just published, an Epitome of the above, Twenty-fourth Edition, price 5s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the former work, price 50s.; and to the latter, price 30s. LEATH and ROSS, 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 5, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,

DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.

MITCHELL and Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,

ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CARRY'S CONFESSION. By the Author of "High Church," "Owen," "Mattie," &c. 3 vols.

BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANAGH. 3 vols.

"A very interesting story, admirably constructed."—Post.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax."

"A more charming story has rarely been written."—Times.

SHATTERED IDOLS. Second Edition.

"A remarkable and original novel."—Athenæum.

Third Edition of BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. M. BELLEW. 3 vols.

LISABEE'S LOVE STORY. By the Author of "John and I," "Dr. Jacob," &c. 3 vols.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

CHEAP EDITION.—Now ready, with Portrait, 5s. bound,

LIFE of the REV. EDWARD IRVING. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, with numerous Illustrations by F. W. Fairholt,

HAUNTED LONDON. By WALTER THORNBURY.

"'Haunted London' is a pleasant book."—Athenæum.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Elegant Gift-Book.—Second Edition now ready, with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, toned paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.,

BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY, LYRICAL SKETCHES, AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. By R. N. DUNBAR.

"This is a charming volume; the poems are full of vitality, and rich, varied beauties."—Morning Post.

"The love-songs are worthy of Thomas Moore."—Critic.

"It is adorned with a delicious frontispiece."—Illustrated Times.

London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

THE PORTRAIT GALLERY of DISTINGUISHED NATIVES of INDIA, a National Work, dedicated by permission to his Excellency Sir BARTLE FRERE, K.C.B., Governor of Bombay.

Arrangements are in progress for the publication of a National Work, to be called the PORTRAIT GALLERY of DISTINGUISHED NATIVES of INDIA. The Plates are to be executed on Steel (from photographs) by the first European Artists, and issued monthly, accompanied by brief memoirs of the individuals represented. About 50 Gentlemen from all India will form the subjects of the work, which it is intended should be a conspectus of Eminent Natives of India.

Subscription Rs. 200, exclusive of postage, to be paid in advance into the Central Bank of Western India, Bombay.

Communications to be addressed to Mr. SORABJEE JEHANGHEER PARUCK, No. 9, Church-street, Bombay. 10th Dec., 1864.

For further information apply to Messrs. DADABHAI NAOROJI and Co., 32, Great St. Helens, London, E.C.

A MERE STORY.—This day.

THE NEW NOVEL, entitled, "A MERE STORY," by the Author of "Twice Lost," may be obtained at all the Libraries this day. In 3 volumes, post 8vo, 24s.

London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 14, Ludgate-hill.

Now ready, price 2s. 6d.,

NATIONAL MEMORIAL TO H.R.H. THE LATE PRINCE CONSORT. A Poem. By JAS. W. DEAN. W. H. SCOTT, 194, Evelyn-street, Deptford, S.E.

CROQUET. By JOHN JAQUES. A New Edition of its Laws for the ensuing season, enlarged and revised, with additional Diagrams and Illustrations. Cloth gilt, 1s.; in paper cover, 6d.

JAQUES and SON, Hatton-garden; and LONGMANS, Paternoster-row.

JAQUES'S CROQUET.

STAINED WINDOWS, by the new process (Diaphanie). Books of Instruction, per post, 8d. Cases Materials, 12s. 6d. and 21s.

DECALCOMANIE.—Boxes Materials, complete, 10s. 6d. and 21s. Books of Instruction, 6d.

WILLIAM BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

BIBLES from 10d. to £6 6s. 0d. COMMON PRAYERS from 6d. to £3 3s. 0d. CHURCH SERVICES, 1s. 6d. to £2 2s. 0d.

Arranged in a show-room most conveniently for inspection.

London: JAMES GILBERT, 18, Gracechurch-street, E.C.

JOHN JERRARD'S COLOURED SCRAPS, from 1s. per dozen to 1s. 6d. each.

JOHN JERRARD'S PHOTOGRAPHIC SCRAPS, 1s. each, or 11s. per dozen.

JOHN JERRARD'S CARTES de VISITE, 6d. each.

JOHN JERRARD'S SCRAP ENGRAVINGS, 1s. per dozen.

JOHN JERRARD'S MILITARY CARICATURES.—8 pictures for 2s., or complete set of 16 for 4s., beautifully coloured.

THIRTY-FIVE charming COLOURED SCRAPS (third series), printed in oil colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—The Hop-Garden, The Swing, The Nutting Party, Feeding the Chickens, The Cornfield, The Return from Milking, The Dance on the Village Green, The Gleaners, &c.; altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrap-books ever submitted to the public. Address, JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, E.C., where the sets are open for inspection.

JOHN JERRARD'S FLOWERS and WREATHS for LADIES' ALBUMS. 4d. and 6d. each.

JOHN JERRARD'S SCRAPS for CHILDREN, 1s. per dozen.

JOHN JERRARD'S SCRAPS for SCREENS, from 2s. 6d. per Sheet of 4 Subjects to 2s. each Subject, according to quality.

JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, Central Dépôt for Scrap Prints of every description.—N.B. All goods sent by post carefully packed for 2 stamps extra.

FOR 7s. 6d., 300 beautiful ILLUSTRATIONS for ALBUMS, Screens, Presents, &c; comprising fine steel engravings, picturesque views, rural, domestic, and humorous scenes, rich chromolithographs, &c. Post-free.—J. REYNOLDS, 174, Strand.

FIFTEEN CARTES de VISITE for 2s. 6d. The LONDON and PROVINCIAL PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY, No. 443, Strand (opposite the Charing-cross Railway Station), execute 15 exact copies on receipt per post of a carte de visite and 32 stamps. A specimen carte sent for four stamps. Cartes beautifully tinted for six stamps.—J. R. WILLIAMS, Manager.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 32 stamps to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING INSTITUTION, 73, Great College-street, Camden Town, and you will receive 12 exact, full-size copies, post-free, with original. Six copies, 24 stamps. Tinting, three extra stamps for each carte. Address, WM. CHARLESON.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormolu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monograms, plain. Rodrigues' Cream-laid Envelopes, 4d. per 100; Cream-laid Note, full size, five quires for 6d. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

ARTHUR GRANGER'S POCKET TIMEPIECE, warranted to denote Solar Time correctly, 6d. and 1s. post-free. Agents wanted for Ladies' and Gents' New Patent Paper Collars and Cuffs, in every variety, at 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. per gross. Sample parcels forwarded on receipt of references. Factory, 308, High Holborn, W.C.

NEW MUSIC.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—THE PILOT. A brilliant and most effective transcription for the Pianoforte of Nelson's popular Song, "Fear not, but trust in Providence." Price 3s.

BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—RULE BRITANNIA. Just published. A new Arrangement of the National Air for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—FAIRY VISIONS. An easy and brilliant arrangement for the Pianoforte of Lovell Phillip's popular Ballad, "Fairy Visions." Price 3s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—EARLY FLOWERS. A graceful and effective arrangement for the Pianoforte of Eulenstein's favourite Ballad, "O give to me those early flowers." Price 3s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

Tenth Edition.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—THE HUNDRED PIPERS. A charming little morceau for the Pianoforte, founded on this popular "Jacobite Air." Price 3s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST may be had, in six volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S SACRED MUSIC for the PIANO-FORTE may be had in 36 Books. Each Book contains upwards of fifteen subjects, selected from the works of the best Composers. Price 3s. each.—London: BREWER and CO.

TRAVIS'S VOLUNTARIES, for the Harmonium, may be had in 36 Books. Price, 3s. each; or in Six Volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BELISARIO.—J. ASCHER.—A brilliant Transcription for the Pianoforte on Airs from Donizetti's Opera, "Belisario." In the hands of an accomplished performer, will be found most effective. Price 4s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. By EDWIN FLOOD. Book I. contains Thirty-eight Psalms and Hymns, for Voice and Pianoforte; also, Twelve Chants. Price 2s.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ELLIE.—"This most successful Ballad, by J. Pridham, was sung by Miss Eleonora Wilkinson, the great Contralto, and vociferously encored, at the Assembly Room, Taunton, on March 11, 1865."—Vide Somerset County Gazette.

London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL PRIMER, with Selections from Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Concone. This work contains numerous Exercises, Solfeggi, and Original Songs, admirably calculated to impart all the requisite information essential to the vocalist. Price 5s.

London: BREWER and CO.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.

DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad by S. GLOVER.—This truly beautiful song is now established as one of the leading favourites of the season. Mr. Glover has lately made a transcription of it for the Pianoforte, copies of which are now ready for delivery. Sent by post for 18 stamps each.

DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

ROSE LEAVES.—Ballad without Words. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour" (sent for fifteen stamps). A melody full of beauty and refinement.—Vide Press.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.

ADMIRED SONGS.—Words by Alfred Tennyson, Esq., D.C.L. (Poet Laureate); Music by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). "Airy Fairy Lilian," "Lady Clare de Vere," "The Brook," "The Song of Love and Death," "Maud," "Home they brought her Warrior dead," and "Too late, too late," each 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps each.

O YE TEARS, O YE TEARS!—Ballad.—Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington sang Franz Abt's ballad, "O ye tears, O ye tears" (at the Crystal Palace) on the 18th inst. Composer of the "Cuckoo Song," "Good Morning," "Kathleen Aroon," "O Rosy Morn," and the sacred song, "He giveth his beloved sleep," &c. Each 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.

The TIMES and TELEGRAPH GALOP. For Piano. Composed by E. E. Armstrong. 3s.; free for 19 stamps. Finely Illustrated.

COME UNTO ME. Sacred Song. Words by W. H. Bellamy; Music by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss), Composer of "Too late, too late," "Resignation," &c., 2s. 6d. each; free for 16 stamps each.

Gratis and postage-free, THEMATIC CATALOGUE of NEW VOCAL MUSIC, just published by ROBERT COCKS and CO.

NEW TRICHORD PIANETTES, full compass, for hire upon very moderate terms.

London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., 6, New Burlington-street, Regent-street. Agents for Calcutta: Messrs. Burkinyoung and Co., Calcutta.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Drawings free.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, seven octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOS! PIANOS! PIANOS! MIDDLETON and COPLEY'S, at wholesale prices, 51, Westbourne-grove, W.; Factory, 17, Castle-street, Finsbury, E.C. Established Half a Century.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOTS, 32, Ludgate-street, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 250 times with the new £5 TELESCOPE, appears seven times as large as the moon is to the naked eye; and the other planetary bodies proportionately. It will also distinguish the face of a sheep and features of a man four miles, shot marks upon a target two miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. This instrument is guaranteed, in writing, to perform the whole of the above, and to be equal in the most important respects to telescopes costing £70. It has a 3-in. superior achromatic object-glass, two eyepieces, &c., with portable metal tripod stand with jointed claw feet. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. High-power small pocket Telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the heights of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £4 15s., sent free.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

THE ACHROMATIC SPECTACLE LENSES, registered by S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 24th December, 1863, No. 4610.—"The great advantage and benefit derived from the use of these lenses need no comment."—Vide "Sir David Brewster on Optics," page 57; and Sir William Herschel, page 22.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

EFFICIENT GOVERNESSES are recommended to FAMILIES free of expense at the INSTITUTE, 9, New Bond-street.

MALVERN COLLEGE.—This COLLEGE is NOW OPEN.
Boarding-house Masters { Rev. CHAS. M'DOWALL, M.A. / Rev. F. R. DREW, M.A.
There will be an examination at the end of the summer term for two classical scholarships, of £30 for three years, and £30 for one year respectively.
For information apply to the Head Master, Rev. Arthur Faber, M.A.; and for any further information as to shares and nominations apply to HENRY ALDRICH, Esq., the Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

ART-UNION OF LONDON.—Subscription One Guinea.—Prizeholders select from the public exhibitions. Every subscriber has a chance of a valuable prize, and in addition receives an impression of an important plate by Lumb Stocks, A.E.R.A., from the picture by W. P. Frith, R.A., CLAUDE DUVAL. The prints are now ready for delivery. Subscription closes 31st. inst.
444, West Strand, March, 1865. GEORGE GODWIN, LEWIS POCOCK, } Hon. Secs.

FRAMES for RED RIDING HOOD. Handsome Gilt Frames, Glass, and Back, for 3s. Ditto, with Broad Mouldings, 4s. 6d. Maple and Gilt, 5s. The trade supplied with mouldings and prints of every description, at GEO. REES', 34, St. Martin's-lane, and 57, Drury-lane.

THE MAGIC DONATO.—Lifelike Figures of the Wonderful Donato and La Premier Danseuse, which dance, when placed on the ground, without visible aid, defying detection. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.
H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

PUNCH ON HORSEBACK.—Roars of Laughter.—The extraordinary performance of Punch, on his famous horse Hector, with the laughable antics of his friend the Clown. Daily, from Ten till Five. The pair sent free for 14 stamps.
H. G. CLARKE and Co., 252, Strand.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—Important to Everyone.—Just completed, a valuable Index, containing the Arms, Crests, and Mottoes of nearly every family in England, Scotland, and Ireland, the result of thirty years' labour, extracted from public and private records, church windows, monumental brasses, and sources throughout the kingdom. Families desirous of knowing their correct crest should send name and county. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Colours, 6s.; Arms, Crest, and Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced, with the origin of family names; wills searched; arms quartered and impaled. The "Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. CULLETON, Genealogist, Lecturer on Heraldry, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CREST ENGRAVED on SEALS or RINGS, 7s. 6d.; on Steel Die, 6s.; Book-plate, with Arms and Crest, 15s.; Handsome Desk Seal, with Crest, 10s.; Livery-button Dies, 2 guineas.—T. CULLETON, Engraver to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 25, Cranbourn-st. (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Engraved with Crest, 43s. Ditto, very massive, for Arms, Crest, and Motto, £3 15s. The Hall mark is a guarantee for pure gold. Gold Seals engraved with Crest, 15s.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged for by other houses) if an order be given for a Guinea Box of Stationery, all stamped free.—T. CULLETON, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 2s.; post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 50 for 3s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, 2s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 5s., with directions, post-free.—T. Culleton, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office, established 25 years) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d. for stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. Book Plate of Arms, 21s.; Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn. Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas, Cheques, and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Artists, Gt. Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

WATCHES AND CLOCKS.—FREDC. HAWLEY (successor to Thomas Hawley), many years watchmaker by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., invites inspection of his carefully-finished Stock, at 148, Regent-street, W. Elegant Gold Watches, £2 15s. to £35; Silver Watches, £1 5s. to £12 12s. Eight-day Timepieces, 12s. 6d. Clocks, striking hours and half-hours, £2 15s. and upwards.—Frederic Hawley, Watchmaker, 148, Regent-street, W. (from the Strand and Coventry-street). Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

MADAME RACHEL'S CIRCASSIAN BEAUTY WASH, ALABASTER POWDER, and CIRCASSIAN GOLDEN HAIR WASH, can only be obtained at 47A, New Bond-street.

DIAMOND HAIR DUST, PIESSE and LUBIN'S. Price 3s. 6d. box; by post, 6d. extra. Sprinkling Diamond Dust on the hair is now in mode. It produces the most charming effect.
Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

THE CONGRESS OF FLOWERS. PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME, made only at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street.

LUXURIANT WHISKERS or MOUSTACHES.—My Formula, so justly celebrated for the production of whiskers, &c., acts immediately upon the smoothest face, without injury to the skin, and is a sure remedy for baldness. Thirteen stamps.—Mr. FOX, Chemist, Macclesfield, Cheshire.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to personal attraction, and to health and longevity, by the proper mastication of food.
ROWLANDS' ODONTO, OR PEARL DENTIFRICE, preserves and imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the Teeth, eradicates tartar and spots of incipient decay, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 9d. per box. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
Ask for ROWLANDS' ODONTO.

THE FURNISHING OF BED-ROOMS.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have greatly enlarged their premises, for the purpose of making a more complete arrangement of their Stock.
They have now Ten separate Rooms, each completely furnished with a different Suite of Bed-room Furniture; these are irrespective of their general Stock, displayed in Six Galleries and Two large ground-floor Ware-rooms; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete stock of Bed-room Furniture in the Kingdom.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have always in Stock from Six to Eight Suites of Deal Bed-room Furniture, each set apart in a separate room, and different in colour and style.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

GOTHIC BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, having been frequently asked for Bed-room Furniture to correspond in design with the Mediæval and Gothic houses now so frequently erected, have manufactured complete suites of Bed-room Furniture, both in solid oak and stained deal, to which they invite the attention of the clergy and gentlemen furnishing country houses. They are plain and simple in character, and moderate in price.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

IRON AND BRASS BEDSTEADS.

HEAL and SON have now on Show 130 patterns of Iron and Brass Bedsteads, ready fixed for inspection, in their extensive Show-rooms; and their stock consists of 2000 Bedsteads, so that they can readily supply orders at the shortest notice.—Heal and Son, Bed-room Furniture Manufactory, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, containing 300 Illustrations, with prices attached, of Bedsteads and Bed-room Furniture, together with Priced List of Bedding, sent free by post, on application to Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 Engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete Guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage free.

THE PATENT CARRIAGE-SPRING MATTRESS.—This novel invention is perfectly elastic, portable, easily adjusted, and economical.—Price-lists free by post. THE GENERAL FURNISHING AND UPHOLSTERY COMPANY, LIMITED (F. J. ACRES, Manager), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.—N.B. Shippers and the Trade supplied.

CARPETS, CURTAINS, &c.—The GENERAL FURNISHING UPHOLSTERY COMPANY are now exhibiting all the most approved novelties of the season in Carpets, Chintzes, Muslin Curtains, and every variety of textile fabric for upholstery purposes, constituting the most recherché selection in the trade. Special attention is solicited to a lot of first-class French Chintzes (last year's), reduced to one half their original price.—The General Furnishing and Upholstery Company (Limited). F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

BEDSTEADS, BEDDING, and BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—An ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with Prices, of 1000 articles, sent (free by post) on application to T. H. FILMER and SON, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, London, W.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, 3 and 4, Goodge-street; and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road, W. Curtains, Portières, Chintzes, &c., of first-class manufacture, for every style of decoration.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA. Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

SLACKS' PRIZE KITCHENER combines hot plate, roasting or baking oven, boiler, saves fuel, a certain cure for smoky chimneys, and is the lowest in price. In operation at Richard and John Slack's, 336, Strand.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The People's Printing Press, from £1 5s. to £4 4s., for Letterpress, Copperplate, and Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

SUPERB FLOWER SEEDS, post-free, at the annexed prices:—100 fine hardy Annuals, 5s.; 50 ditto, 3s.; 36 ditto, 2s. 6d.; 12 ditto, 1s. 2d. Catalogues, with sample packet, 2d. From B. W. KNIGHT, Florist, High-street, Battle, Sussex.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. R. DOSSETOR, 5, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

BROWN AND POLSON'S PATENT CORN FLOUR, FOR CHILDREN'S DIET and Light Suppers. Packets, 8d.

CANDLES.—Her Majesty's Government use FIELDS' PATENT PARAFFINE CANDLES. Sold everywhere, but see that "J. C. and J. Field" is on each packet. Wholesale at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31, 33, and 124, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE.
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

COUGHS AND COLDS ARE INSTANTLY RELIEVED by Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS, which have a pleasant taste.
Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, of all Druggists.

MESSRS. JAY,

MOURNING SILK MERCERS to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN, H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
London General Mourning Warehouse, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.

MESSRS. JAY beg to announce that they ordered from Lyons a large consignment of Black Silks during the late commercial crisis, and that their present prices are, in consequence, far below the average quotations of the Silk Market.
JAYS'.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

DRESSES FOR THE CHANGE OF SEASON.

MESSRS. JAY have received some elegant specimens of the Spring Fashions in dress, which they much desire to submit for inspection to their numerous patrons and the public.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article suitable for First and Family Mourning, either made-up and ready for immediate wear or materials from the piece cut by the yard, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, at	£1 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks	£1 13s. 6d. "
The New Rich Fancy French Silks	£2 2s. 0d. "

Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks (same both sides), £1 13s. 6d. Full Dress, or 2s. 9½d. the yard.—198, Regent-street.
198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! Rich, bright, wide, and durable, from 1 guinea the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 RICH DAMASK SILK DRESSES.
2000 Striped and Fancy Silk Dresses.
1850 Checked, Plain, and Corded Silk Dresses.
These are a manufacturer's clearance Stock of Sample Dresses, at greatly reduced prices, commencing at £1 19s. 6d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE most Ladylike DRESSES for the present and coming Season are the NEW ROYAL SILK CORDS, in black and all colours, obtainable only at BAKER and CRISP'S, at 35s. 6d. Full Dress. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

MOHAIRS, Camlets, Mexican Cloths, &c.
Patterns free.
The New Spring Mohairs, and Camlets, 8s. 9d. to 15s. 6d.;
Mexican Cloths, Poplinettes, &c., 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea, Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

WOOL EMBROIDERED MUSLINS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress.—BAKER and CRISP are now selling a Manufacturer's Stock of White and Coloured Embroidered Muslin Dresses at the above price; every Dress worth double. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

THE NEW ARABIAN MOHAIRS, 1 yard and 1¼ yard wide, in all the new Colours for the Season.
Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SPRING MOHAIRS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress. 50,000 yards of the new Spring Camlets, Genappes, Grenadines, Barèges, Mexican Cloths, &c., from 8s. 9d. to 1 guinea Full Dress. The best makes. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, BARÈGES, Balzarines, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S LAST YEAR'S CAMBRICS, Brilliants, Piqués, Muslins.
All the best goods. Prettier, better, and half the price of the new goods. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

CURTAINS! CURTAINS! CURTAINS!
Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP have the cheapest stock of Muslin, Lace, and Leno Curtains in London, measuring from 3½ to 4½ yards long, from 6s. 9d. to 2 guineas the Pair.

THE NEW PETTICOATINGS.
Patterns free.
Camlet, Linen, and Madapolams, all washing, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. 3d. a yard, at BAKER and CRISP'S.

2 YARDS WIDE, THE UNTEARABLE

BLACK GRENADINES, Barèges, Tamataves; also the New White and Black Llamas, 2 yards wide, for Shawls, Mantles, or Dresses, very cheap. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP.

SILK GRENADINES. Patterns free. Plain, Striped, Checked, and Embroidered, for Dinner, Evening, or Walking Dresses, from 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS at Half Price.
During March we shall sell Black Lace Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas for 12s. 6d., 19s. 6d., and 25s. 6d.
Samples free.
BAKER and CRISP.

THE NEW OTTOMAN CORDED SILKS, both sides alike, in all colours, £1 13s. 6d. to £2 15s. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER AND CRISP'S

NEW CHÉNÉ MEXICAN CLOTHS.
Patterns free.
The largest variety in the kingdom, 15s. 6d. Full Dress.

BLACK SILKS.—PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street,
Black Silk Mercer, By Appointment, would invite special attention of purchasers to the superior Make and Qualities of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable Prices at which they are sold.
Good, useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Full Dress.
Superior and most enduring Qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
Patterns free on application to
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

FAMILY MOURNING.—IMPORTANT to FAMILIES.
Families requiring supplies of FIRST or DEEP MOURNING will derive the most important advantages by making their purchases
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of REGENT-STREET,
the largest and most economical
Mourning Warehouse in the Kingdom.
Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses in the most correct taste can be obtained ready for instant wear; also, every description of goods by the yard.
Goods are sent to any part of the country for selection free, accompanied by a superior-fitting dressmaker if desired.
Address Peter Robinson, 256 to 262, Regent-street, London,
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse.

BLACK SILK DRESSES, the Skirts made up, trimmed in the most correct taste with crape or with fancy trimmings, in the largest variety, and at the most reasonable prices,
At PETER ROBINSON'S
Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 256 to 262, Regent-street.

HER MAJESTY'S DRAWINGROOM.

A SUPERB SELECTION of BRUSSELS and HONITON LACE, Flouncings, Squares, Lappets, and Handkerchiefs, just received, at unusually low prices.
HAYWARDS',
Lacemen to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Princess of Wales,
81, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon.

SPECIAL NOTICE !!
Now selling, upwards of 5000

WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES, in Three Lots.
Lot 1—7s. 9d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 2—8s. 9d. " Eight Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3—9s. 9d. " Nine Guineas for Twenty.
Being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of White Dresses ever offered.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3¼ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 27 inches wide. Check Silks, £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILK STOCKS. PETER ROBINSON has just concluded the purchase of two manufacturers' stocks of Rich French Silks. Prices from 2 to 5½ guineas the Full Dress. These Stocks are confidently recommended, and worthy ladies' special attention.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR EARLY SPRING. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 15s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST IMPORTED,

5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS (Both Sides Alike), including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2¼ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE

RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS. Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in

PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES, for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE

ARABIAN GLACÉS, for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE COLLECTION OF

NEW SPRING DRESSES. The "Silk Crêpe" (a new fabric), 28s. 9d. Full Dress.
The Honeycomb Poplinette, 33s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

AN ENDLESS VARIETY OF

CHEAP SPRING DRESSES. The Llama Mexican, new colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 9d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST PURCHASED, UPWARDS OF

2000 RICHLY-BRAIDED ROBES, and are now being sold at from 18s. 9d. to 23s. 9d., being less than half their value.
These Robes are all full length, and contain ample trimming for Bodice.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FRENCH CASHMERE SHAWLS, at an enormous reduction in price, from 12s. 6d. to 20 guineas. On MONDAY the 6th, and during the Month of MARCH, FARMER and ROGERS will offer for SALE a Manufacturer's Stock of beautiful French Cashmere Shawls, at a reduction of 50 per cent from the regular prices. Included in the stock are several exclusive patterns of the new Florentine Silk Shawl, price 5 guineas, manufactured expressly for the present season.
171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

THE EUAPTONIC EIDER-DOWN CORSETS (Dixon and Calvert's Patent) are the most beautiful, the most healthful, and, by all physicians whose opinions have been obtained, the most approved Corset ever invented. The Corset can be inspected and purchased at the Shop, Great Portland-street (entrance, Crystal Palace Bazaar); and at Mr. Weeks's, 54, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

FORD and CO. respectfully intimate to their patrons and the public that, in consequence of the great increase of their business, they have REMOVED to more extensive premises, at 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S JACKETS FOR INDOOR WEAR. A large assortment of decidedly new shapes to select from. Velvet, 42s. and upwards; silk, from 21s.; cloth and cashmere, 16s. 6d. to 42s.; the new Coquette Jacket, in all colours, 14s. 6d. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S VELVET PROMENADE JACKETS, at 3, 4, and 5 guineas, are especially worthy of notice as an elegant, useful, and fashionable Mantle for the Spring.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S NEW SILK MANTLES for the SPRING, at very moderate prices. Also, Waterproof Cloaks, warranted to resist rain, 21s. and upwards.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GLACÉ SILK SKIRTS, in various styles, ready for immediate wear. A full handsome Skirt for 3½ guineas. Also, Seaside Dresses, with Jacket complete, 2½ guineas.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of all the above, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises Nightdresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

MANTLE and JACKET CLOTHS of all kinds, from 1s. 11½d. per yard. Also a large assortment of woollen goods for gentlemen's and boy's wear at very moderate prices; also Fancy Flannels for Shirts.
CHARLES MEEKING and CO., 111, Hatton-garden, London.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865. A large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Cambric Shirtings, made from the finest materials adapted for Spring and Summer Shirts.—BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO., 11 and 50, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; 11, Old Bond-street, W., London.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."
No connection with anyone of the same name.

NEW MUSIC.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA.

THE MOCK DOCTOR (Le Médecin Malgré Lui). By Gounod. Complete edition, with French and English words, as performed at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, with the greatest success. The Opera complete, with French or English words, 10s.

The following are just published:—

THE OVERTURE. For Pianoforte. Price 4s.; Duet, 5s.

THE AIR DE BALLET. For Pianoforte. Price 3s.

LUCILE.—SERENADA. (In favourite airs, including Faure's Mother Chorus.) Price 4s.

THE WOODMAN'S SONG.—WOOD-GATHERERS CHORUS. Arranged for the Pianoforte. 3s. each.

RICHARDS.—SERENADE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

H. W. GOODBAN.—SOFT AND LOW (Sung by Cruvelli. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. 3s.

GO WANDERING THROUGH THE WORLD. Sung by Mdme. Fanny Hiebner. Price 4s. 6d.

THE YOUTH'S SEASON. Serenade. Sung by Mr. Haigh. Price 3s. 6d.

PRISONER IN A CAGE. Sung by Mr. Haigh. Price 4s. 6d.

WOMAN'S LOVE. Ballad. Sung by Miss Poole. Price 4s. 6d.

SOFT AND LOW. The drinking song. Sung by Mr. Corri. Price 4s. 6d.

QUADRILLE. By Joseph Reinhardt. Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, R.M. Band. Grenadier Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will evidently become as popular as the celebrated Guards' Waltzes. Price for Pianoforte Solo, 4s.; Duet, 5s.; Orchestral Parts, 2s. 6d.; Septett, 2s.; Sextett, 2s. 6d.; Octett, 3s.; Full Band, 4s. Illustrated by Lydon. Performed by the Composer's Band at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, and at the Promenade Concerts, Covent-garden.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A New Quadrille on Favourite Scottish Melodies. Dedicated, by permission, to H.R.H. the Duchess of Edinburgh. Composed by D. GODFREY, Conductor of the Grenadier Guards' Band. Illustrated with Portraits of H.R.H. Prince Alfred in Highland Costume, and the Band in Uniform. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A NEW WALTZ by DONALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Hundred Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestral, 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. A new set of Waltzes on favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust" by A. F. GODFREY, Band of the Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with a Scene from "Faust," containing Portraits of Faust, Mario, Faure, &c. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new set of Quadrilles on favourite airs from Offenbach's popular opera, "Orpheus and Eurydice." By D. Godfrey, Conductor of the Grenadier Guards' Band. Illustrated. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrilles. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards, by D. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 2s.; Military Band, 4s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A SSEMBLÉE GALOP. Played at Mechanics' Institutes. Arranged for the Pianoforte by D. GODFREY, Composer of the Mabel and Guards' Waltzes. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of the most valuable voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for Small Organs, by W. T. WRIGHT. In 12 Books, each containing from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including many arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 8 are now ready, price 2s. 6d. each. Subscribers' names will be received for Nos. 9 to 12. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to the Publisher.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

DUSSEK'S INVOCATION SONATA.—A new and cheap edition of this celebrated Sonata, as performed by Mdme. Arabella Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts, is now ready, price 2s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BELLAGIO. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant Waltz, founded on the admired Guards' Marches, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Selection of Dance Music on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by Mrs. MURRAY GARTHORNE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY.—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Sontag—arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a New Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.

G. ELLSWORTH. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

MARGUERITE. Valse for Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song. Sung by Mrs. Sims Reeves. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "FIVE BUDS." Mélodie for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S GWENDOLINE. Chanson de Boudoir for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S NATHLIE (The Sterling Song). A Sketch for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAIR MOSIE STRETTON.

GRANDE FANTAISIE sur "GOD SAVE THE QUEEN," et "FANTASY FROM LA FERIE." Par LE FLORITYNE, Grand Valse de Salon, mid price, 3s. 6d. AUGUST ad LEIPZIG, 417, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HAYDN'S IMPERIAL MASS. (No. 3, in D.) Published this day. This celebrated Mass, arranged in a cheap and convenient form for Choirs, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by the Author of "Sacred Music" and Turnbull Hart of Mount. Price 5s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S 28 FOUR-PART SONGS. Just work out, in Mendelssohn's Six-Part Songs with English Words. Also, for Choral Societies, the same work in twelve Numbers, price 2s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

SIGNOR ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO. This now and already popular Song, by the Author of "Il Bacio," is published in the following various forms, to suit every taste:—

1. In Soprano and D ... ... 3s.
2. In Tenor and C ... ... 3s.
3. In Pianoforte Duet ... ... 3s.
4. As a Polka ... ... 3s.

To be had of all Musicsellers.—BOOSEY and CO.

FOURTH EDITION OF

CAPRERA, by FORBES. Chanson Napolitaine for Voice and Pianoforte, the most popular piece.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

SECOND EDITION OF

CASTELLUCIA. By FORBES. Second Chanson Napolitaine, and companion piece to "Capera."—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE, a charming little piece for the Pianoforte.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MDME. ARABELLA GODDARD'S TWO NEW STUDIES. Lindsay Sloper's "Mireille" and Lindsay Sloper's Transcription of the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Gounod's Faust, performed by Mdme. Goddard with remarkable success. Price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense favourite. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song in the author's most admired style. Published this day. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO.

FORBES'S ROSAMUNDA NOCTURNE, in the form of a Song, price 3s. Also, FORBES'S LA SERENA, one of the best pieces of the popular author of "Sappho" 3s., "Capera" 3s., "Castellucia" 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

FORBES'S GIOJOSO GALOP, a very showy piece in a small compass. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MADAME OURY'S BRIGHTON GALOP, Dedicated by permission to the Ladies of Brighton, is the Author's most brilliant style. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

ADOLPH GOLLMICK'S MARGUERITE and FAUST WALTZES, Just published, by the Author of "Dripping Well," "A Happy Thought," &c. Published this day, price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE NEW BARITONE SONG.

I ALWAYS PRAYED A MARRIED LIFE. Sung by Mr. Santley. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL.

I DO NOT ASK TO PRESS THAT CHEEK. Sung by Miss Poole. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S CUJUS ANIMAM. A single and double Chant. Price 3d.

A single set of Responses to the above subjects.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

SIX EASTER HYMNS, 6d. SIX GOOD-FRIDAY HYMNS, 6d. Two specially, 1s. For Four Voices and Organ or Piano Accompaniment.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d.—Just published, Mozart's Sonatas (36) from the original Editions of Mozart's Pianoforte Scenas, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell. The Sonatas in one volume, price 10s. 6d. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, the same work, with the Violin Parts, in two volumes, price 21s. Also, in four parts, price 1s. each, viz., Overtures, glee, organ, and pianoforte. With the Scenas and Gu's quintes edition of Beethoven's Sonatas. The Violin Parts to the above, price 1s. each. The Violoncello Parts to the above, price 1s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BEETHOVEN'S SONATAS, 1s.—BOOSEY and CO.'S complete edition of Beethoven's Pianoforte Sonatas, edited by W. Dorrell. Now ready, in one volume, price 10s. Also, with Mozart and Dussek, in two vols., gilt cloth, price 21s. Also, in four parts, price 1s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (or Rosaire), complete for the Pianoforte, price 3s. The most splendid arrangement of this grand Sacred Work.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S FIFTH MASS OF REQUIEM, complete for the Pianoforte, price 3s. An arrangement, by the composer, of this grand and solemn work, unaccompanied with great pianoforte difficulties. 6d. Edition.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

TWELVE SONGS of the AMERICAN WAR, 1861-62-63-64. Price 2s. 6d. or 36, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 3s. post-free, 3s. 6d.

FEDERAL SONGS.	CONFEDERATE SONGS.
Rally round the flag, boys.	Bonnie Blue Flag.
Battle-cry of Freedom.	Dixie's land.
Beneath the starry flag.	It is my country's call.
Hail Columbia.	The Volunteer.
The Yankee Chief.	The Southern Cross.
Battle-cry of Freedom.	A Bonnie Hymn.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Subscribers to the Musical Library can purchase any works they have the use of twelve pieces of music at the time in town, or twenty pieces in the country, at one time, and exchange them as often as they please. Prospectuses free on application.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street. All the newest Music is added to the Library, which comprises also a complete collection of the best Music of the past. Subscribers, apply first, from Boosey and Co., Holles-street, London.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S SACRED PIANOFORTE PIECES.

Jerusalem, Sanctus, Marie, Ave, Duet, in Harmony, my God, to Thee. Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.

What Shall I Render? Sacred Song. Price 3s. Duet, 4s.

A. HAMMOND and CO., 7, Vigo-street, Regent-street.

BRADBURY TURNER'S SACRED PIANOFORTE PIECES.

My God, I Love Thee (The Will to Love). Price 3s.

Abide with me, fast falls the Eventide. Price 3s. 6d.

Ave Maria. Price 3s.

The Heavens are telling. The Heavens are telling. Price 2s. 6d.

A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), Musical Library, 214, Regent-st.

CAUTION.—The Elegant and Beautiful WALTZ Issued by Duncan at Cowper Garden Theatre, and slightly altered, by the Publisher Lenter by Jacob Conquest, Esq., and Dedicated to Miss Lenter, is the Property of Messrs. Duncan Davison and Dear, as such; Full Orchestra, 2s.; Military Band, 2s. Publishers of all the new compositions of the celebrated Dance Writer, Jullien.

JUST PUBLISHED, NEW GALOPS.

BONDEBBYLLUP (Danish). By F. KUHE.

GLORIOSO. By HERMANN LUTZ.

LA BELLE ROSE. By ALEXANDRE.

ASSEMBLÉE. By D. GODFREY.

A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), Musical Library, 214, Regent-st.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage stamps. Catalogues gratis and post-free.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.

FLEETING THOUGHTS, by JUCHO, price 3s., is charming and quite a recherché melody.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM DITTY.

MOUNTAIN BREEZE. By MULLER. Price 4s. This piece is exceedingly graceful, without being difficult.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s., with Jullien's celebrated Portrait. Waltzes on Polly Perkins, by Coote. Price 4s. Polly Perkins," 4s. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Cry. Figures. Price 4s. One of the most pleasing sets ever published by the popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the "Polly Perkins" and "Bonnie Dundee Quadrilles."

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

COOTE'S BONNIE DUNDEE VALSE. Price 4s. "The simple and beautiful melody has become quite the rage."—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VERY BRILLIANT.

COOTE'S KINGFISHER POLKA. Price 3s. The best Polka ever written.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST ENCORES.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a Woodcut of the Game in colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW BOUND QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S PARLEY-TOOLEY-TYCHNIC. On the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, at the Royalty. Price 4s. The Waltzes on "Parley Tooley," 4s. "Tychnic," 4s. The Polka on "Parley Tooley," 3s., and the Mortlake Polka." Price 4s.

The Portrait executed at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success. Price 4s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S QUARRELLING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s., illustrated. "Parley Tooley" or "Lord Lovel" "My Pretty Jane," "A Song in the Morning," "The Stars," and other popular Airs. Waltzes on "Cure Lancers," 4s. Quadrille Band Parts, 2s. Waltz Band Parts, 2s. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. The prettiest Galop by this Composer.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S FIANCÉE VALSE. By the Composer of "Ten Thousand a Year." Illustrated. VALSE. Price 4s. With lovely Illustrations.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO, MY THOUGHTS ARE OF THEE ONLY. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Price 3s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHARITY SONG.

THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 3s. "It is full of poetry, and has the most thorough heart in it."—Vide Court Journal.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG.

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter. Price 3s. "It has been sung everywhere."

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 3s. "A rising composer."

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS. Bob Hanmore's Courtship ... ... 3s. My Wife and Family ... ... 3s. A Terrible Tale ... ... 3s. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VANCE'S GREAT SONG.

SWEET SPRING TIME, WHERE CAN SHE BE? Price 3s. "It is a most charming melody."—Vide Court Journal.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.—IT'S A SORT OF THING WE HEARD ABOUT, and THE GERMAN BAND. Illustrated. Price 3s. each. These songs have created a perfect furore.—D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place, W.

£40 A Year. By J. E. ROOK. Price 2s. 6d. This is a most charming Ballad, in Doris Song Key. Easy, telling, and extremely funny. Song of the Polytechnic.

D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place, W.

THEY'VE LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. By B. COOTE. Song by the Christy Minstrels. Price 3s. 6d. D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place, W.

R. COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and played at the publisher's balls. Illustrated in colours. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

R. COOTE'S ORPHEUS GALOP. Played at the Publisher's, at Offenbach's celebrated Open, Rotunda. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.

D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. Played at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the Strand, and Portraits of Messrs. Toole and Bedford, in character. Post free for 24 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place.

JOLLY DOGS; we are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Christy Song, sung by the Christy Minstrels, with enormous success. Price 3s. Post free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 9, Rathbone-place.

LARA.—THE ARAB SONG. Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne. "The gem of the entire work."—Daily Telegraph. "A perfect gem."—Morning Post. Price 3s. Post-free for half price.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Transcription of the celebrated "Arab Song," for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Post-free half price.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—The Favourite Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, by FRANZ NAVA, in Two Books, price 3s. each, containing all the best subjects in the Opera; post-free half price.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA QUADRILLES. By COOTE. Price 4s. Also, by the same, LARA VALSES. Price 4s. Illustrations from the new Opera.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

LARA.—H. W. GOODBAN'S Transcription of the popular Song. "The merry bells shall ring." Price 3s. Post-free at half price.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA PIANOFORTE PIECES. LARA.—Arranged for the Pianoforte, by Mr. Kuhe's Transcription. 4s.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by ARTHUR LEVEY, on Arrah-na-pogue Valses, 4s.; and Arrah-na-pogue Polka, 3s. All with Illustrations of the new Drama. Half price.

METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments—

No. 1 and 2 Two Stops ...	...	1gs. 6d.
3. Three Stops ...	...	1gs. 9d.
4. Six Stops ...	...	2gs. 6d.
5. Ten Stops ...	...	3gs. 6d.
6. Fourteen Stops ...	...	4gs. 6d.
7. The Same, Tremolo Action ...		5gs. 6d.
10. Fourteen Stops ...	...	4gs. 6d.
11. Twenty Stops ...	...	5gs. 6d.
12. Fifteen Stops ...	...	4gs. 6d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards ...		4gs. 6d.
14. Twenty Stops ...	...	5gs. 6d.

Also,

No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells ... 6gs. 6d.
2. Six Stops ... ... 8gs. 6d.
3. Ten Stops ... ... 12gs. 6d.

N.B. A liberal reduction from the above charges on instruments taken for a term.

In the case of parties purchasing and paying for an Instrument within Three Months from the date of hiring, the amount for the hire will be given up to the extent of the purchase-money.

Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FORTHCOMING PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Of the high fashion to which the Prize Medal was awarded.

A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check repeating action, trichord throughout, and possessing a rich and powerful tone. Suitable for the drawing-room, and for the best and cheapest. Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.

Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 35 and 38 guineas. A pianoforte, with trichord throughout, 45 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL OF COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—72 manufacturers performing the Prize Medal Pianofortes, and possessing the full compass, check action, and trichord throughout, are perfectly suitable for the use of a moderate purse. The action is of the same exact description as the more elaborate and costly Pianofortes especially made for country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the purchasers. Price, in mahogany, 25 guineas; in rosewood, every variety, 27 guineas; in rosewood, with fret, 28 guineas; in walnut, 28 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the latest improvements, for SALE or HIRE, on the most liberal terms. Pianofortes purchased, or taken in exchange.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA HARMONIUM, in oak or deal, or stained and polished, in the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and two rows of vibrators throughout. Suitable for the use of a small church, or for a private family where there is not room for a pianoforte or about the same price, whether new or second-hand.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas, in handsome Italian walnut case, with Gothic fronts, fugue and Jubilate stops, and two rows of vibrators.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with two rows of vibrators, two octaves, and one octave pedals. These instruments are lower in pitch and superior to all other Harmoniums at the price. Price 6 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at 15 guineas, 20 guineas, 25 guineas, and 30 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION A MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 2 rows of vibrators, and 16ft. pedals, in handsome Gothic case, 80 guineas. In oak case, 75 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS are the best and cheapest in the trade. Price 10 guineas, in every possible variety. The Guinea Harmonium has four stops, two rows of vibrators, and 16 pedals. Price 16 guineas. Church Harmoniums at 30, 35, and 40 guineas. Lists sent free.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 25 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is of the same quality as the Cottage Pianoforte, and possesses the same elasticity of touch, and the same volume and sweetness of tone.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished upright walnut case, with fret front, full compass. Price 25 guineas. Lists sent free.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street. This instrument equals in quality many guinea first-class English pianos.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a handsome walnut case, with ornamented keyboard, as well as the new patent check action.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

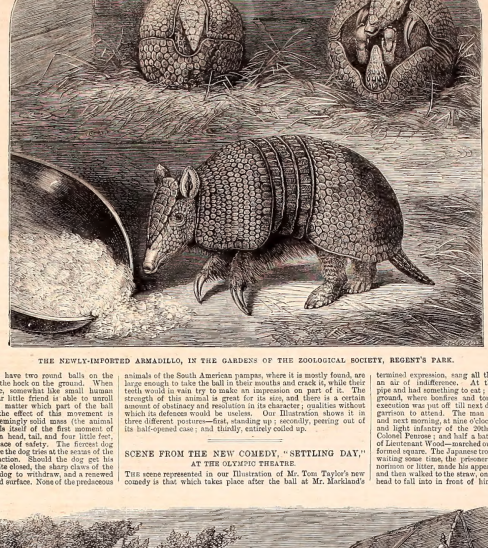
MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. have the honour to announce that the celebrated MUSICAL BOXES from the ancient Manufactory of Geneva, lately expressly made for the Exhibition of 1862, are now on view at their Establishment, 24, Holles-street, where the largest assortment of the very finest Musical Boxes ever imported is always to be found.—24, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by CHARLES WHEATSTONE, 20, Conduit-street, Regent-street, warranted for her climates, and to keep well in tune, from 2 guineas to 20 guineas.—20, Conduit-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have NEW PIANETTE, to acknowledged the best and cheapest Pianoforte for the drawing-room, with Trichord Treble, Patent Plates, and can be had for 18 months on trial. These pianos are also manufactured in every variety of size, style, and price, and are sold for cash, or hired, or on the three years' system, with prize. Pianettes, 15l., Regent-street; the only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have a large stock of Pianofortes, from which the instrument will become the lion's. These ... ... £7 8s. per quarter. ... ... £8 8s. per quarter. ... ... £9 9s. per quarter. ... ... £10 10s. per quarter. Pianos (7 octaves) ... ... £5 5s. per quarter. Most expressive instruments equally moderate. These pianettes are the best and cheapest. Pianettes, 15l., Regent-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB manufacture a PIANOFORTE which, for its strength, great compass of tone, is unrivalled for India, climate, long sitting, about, hilly, mountainous rooms, and all places where great changes of temperature occur. Price 50 guineas.—OETZMANN and PLUMB.



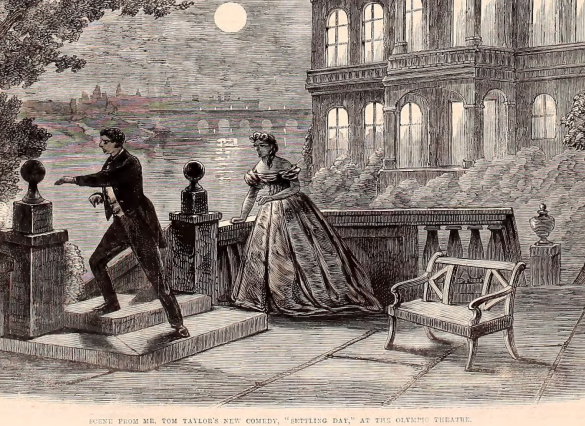
HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's Instruments to suit rich, poor, or the poor monthly; a system suitable for schools, parsonages, &c. 5, 7, 9, 11, 16 stops can be had at single or hire for a number of years, or purchased on the three years' system.—OETZMANN and PLUMB.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS of all descriptions, at very reduced prices.—OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street; the only address.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great makers, for SALE or HIRE, at 104 and 105, Bishopsgate-street, within. Prices from 4l. to 80l. Harmoniums, 5l. to 50l. Pianettes, 15l. Carriage free. Terms for cash. Illustrated Catalogues gratis on application.

THE ARMADILLO IN THE GARDENS OF THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

A NEW specimen of armadillo (Tatusia tricincta) has lately been received at the Zoological Society's Gardens in Regent's Park. It is of a variety which had not been exhibited before, and differs from those with which we have hitherto been familiar in many striking points. Its armour has only three of the usual bands across the body, the rest being composed of bony plates, which cover the other parts of the animal, and which are so arranged that it can roll itself into a ball, resembling thus a spherical box, the lids of which are represented by the shields of the fore and hind quarters, while the cover of the head and the upper surface of the tail, which is incrusted with smaller knobs, close it perfectly in front. The plates and bands are composed of oblong or hexagonal shields, with a pretty raised pattern on each, and all so arranged as to increase the strength of the armour, yet to preserve a certain softness about the joints. This plating has somewhat the aspect of ornamental curved surface worn down by use. The animal being, unlike the other kinds of armadillo, one of daylight habits of life, has a bright, keen black eye, looking somewhat viciously out of the half-opened shell, as it appears in our Illustration. Generally, however, it has the expression of that inquisitive, self-possessed restlessness for which these animals are proverbial. Its trotting walk up and down, or all round, the place of its confinement is not performed on the sole of the fore legs, as in the case of the other species of armadillines, but on the points of the long sharp nails of the fore feet, while the hind feet have two round balls on the sole, and are placed half way up to the hock on the ground. When turned up, they look, at a distance, somewhat like small human feet. The rapidity with which our little friend is able to unroll and throw himself on his legs, no matter which part of the ball is uppermost, is remarkable; and the effect of this movement is very odd and surprising, when the seemingly solid mass (the animal stubbornly feigning lifelessness) avails itself of the first moment of stillness and, suddenly jerking out a head, tail, and four little feet, scuttles off at a rapid rate to a place of safety. The fiercest dog could not harm this animal. The more the dog tries at the sexes of the armour, the stronger is their construction. Should the dog get his muzzle into the ball before it is quite closed, the sharp claws of the armadillo would quickly cause the dog to withdraw, and a renewed attempt would only find a solid round surface. None of the predaceous animals of the South American pampas, where it is mostly found, are large enough to take the ball in their mouths and crack it, while their teeth would in vain try to make an impression on part of it. The strength of this animal is great for its size, and there is a certain amount of obstinacy and resolution in its character; qualities without which its defences would be useless. Our Illustration shows it in three different postures—first, standing up; secondly, peering out of its half-opened case; and thirdly, entirely coiled up.



THE NEWLY-IMPORTED ARMADILLO, IN THE GARDENS OF THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK.

SCENE FROM THE NEW COMEDY, "SETTLING DAY," AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.

THE scene represented in our Illustration of Mr. Tom Taylor's new comedy is that which takes place after the ball at Mr. Markland's villa, at Putney, when the master of the house, who has been denounced as a fraudulent banker by one of the guests invited to his party, is about to throw himself into the river, overwhelmed with remorse and despair, but is saved from that fatal step by the interference of his wife. As performed by Mr. H. Neville and Miss Kate Terry, this is a very effective and interesting scene. We have already spoken of the general merits of the play, which continues to draw good audiences to the Olympic Theatre, the subject being one which "comes home to the business and bosoms of men," and concerns the present state of our commercial morality perhaps more nearly than it would be agreeable to confess.

EXECUTION OF A JAPANESE ASSASSIN AT YOKOHAMA.

OUR Special Artist at Yokohama has sent us two sketches, which are engraved in this Number, representing the Japanese manner of execution in the case of Shimadzu Seiji, one of the men concerned in the assassination of the two English officers, Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird, three or four months ago. On the day before the execution, the 27th of December, the criminal was mounted on a pack-horse and promenaded through the town. His sentence was written on a large flag carried before him, and also on a board. A guard of twelve Japanese soldiers, with fixed bayonets, marched in front; and the rear was brought up by two mounted officers and a crowd of Europeans on horseback. The streets were crowded with Japanese and Europeans. The murderer, who was an athletic man, with a fine head and a determined expression, sang all the time and looked about him with an air of indifference. At the end of the street he smoked a pipe and had something to eat; then he was taken to the execution-ground, where bonfires and torches lighted up the scene; but the execution was put off till next day, because it was too late for the garrison to attend. The man was then conducted back to prison; and next morning, at nine o'clock, the whole garrison—Royal Marines and light infantry of the 20th Regiment, under the command of Colonel Penrose; and half a battery of artillery, under the command of Lieutenant Wood—marched out to the execution-ground, where they formed square. The Japanese troops were drawn up on the road. After waiting some time, the prisoner, escorted as before, but carried in a norimon or litter, made his appearance. He had some wine and food and then walked to the straw, on which he knelt, with the hole for his head to fall into in front of him. He had made a request that he should not be blindfolded, which was granted, and also that his body might be buried and sent to the place he named, and that a tablet should be placed over his tomb. After speaking to the executioner, he sang or yelled out a long recitation, which no one seems to have understood, and turned to the executioner, who had his sword ready to strike. Saying, "Wait a little," he settled himself with his head over the hole, and said, "Now." The sword came down, but only severed a part of his neck: so that the executioner had to make three cuts before the head was off. A gun was then fired, and the head was taken, in a mat bag, to be exposed at the entrance of the town.

SCENE FROM MR. TOM TAYLOR'S NEW COMEDY, "SETTLING DAY," AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN AMERICA.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF FORT FISHER.

The Engraving on page 249 is from a sketch by our Special Artist, representing the scene within the north-eastern salient of Fort Fisher, near Wilmington, during the second great bombardment, which was commenced on the 13th of January, and continued till the successful assault in the afternoon of the 15th. A part of the Federal fleet is seen lying at anchor towards the right-hand side of this view; while the storming-party, which numbered 2500 men, is landing in the distance and preparing to extend itself across the neck of land between the sea and the Cape Fear River. The guns in battery, shown in the right-hand corner of the foreground, are still being worked against that part of the Federal fleet which lies farther to the right, and which cannot, therefore, be included in this view. Most of the other guns in the fort have been disabled by the heavy shot of the enemy; and the exposed position of the men, with shells of the largest size falling and exploding in the midst of them, is terribly apparent in our Illustration.

THE CAMP OF CONFEDERATE PRISONERS AT ELMIRA.

The Federal Government has, since last July, confined a large number of its prisoners of war in an encampment formed at Elmira, in the State of New York, distant 277 miles from New York city, on the Erie Railroad. We have been favoured by Mr. Horace Ruxton with a view of this encampment, taken from the "Observatory" lately built upon the public road outside the camp, which is daily visited by a multitude of curious persons, who pay the proprietor of the Observatory at the rate of ten cents a head for permission to have a peep at the formidable captives. The inclosure within which these prisoners are confined is a space of some twenty acres of ground, with a broad river running in the rear, and high walls on every side. Here about 10,000 of the Confederate soldiers who have been made prisoners of war are kept in safe custody, lodging in the wooden huts or in the canvas tents shown in our Engraving. Sentries are posted all round on the walls in such a position that they can have a clear view of everything within the camp, while the movements of the sentries themselves cannot be watched by the prisoners. At night the whole place is lighted up with kerosine-oil lamps. A number of spies are employed to mix with the prisoners and inform the Commandant of any plots which they may form to escape. Notwithstanding these precautions, an attempt was made, at the end of November, by about 300 of them, to dig a trench underground, from one of the hospitals to the wall, intending to pass under the wall and get out beyond. This scheme was, however, detected, and their escape prevented, on the night which they had fixed. Mr. Ruxton assures us that the prisoners at Elmira are well fed and clothed, and there is an efficient medical staff to attend to the sick. They amuse themselves with reading and writing, or making toys and other small articles for sale.

THE FEDERAL PRISON IN FORT LAFAYETTE.

An Englishman who has been connected with the Southern American Confederacy, and is necessarily an active partisan, having lately undergone a detention in one of the Federal prisons—Fort Lafayette—sends us sketches, of which we engrave two; and a letter, from which we extract the following description:—"I send you three sketches taken during a short imprisonment in Fort Lafayette—two interior views of Casemate No. 2, and a view of the inside of the fort. I may observe that, apart from their giving a true picture of life in the Federal prison, seldom has artist or amateur put pencil to paper with so little in his stomach as was contained in mine during the few hours occupied upon these sketches; for during the brief period of this self-allotted task I was invited to solve the interesting problem of finding upon how very little 'bad bread, salt-horse, and bean-soup' (all but the bean) a full-grown man can continue the somewhat necessary operation of breathing. The rule as to the issue of rations in this Northern prison, both in quality and quantity, is unchangeable and really monotonous in its effect. A word or two about this now celebrated prison may be interesting to your readers. Like old Sumter, it is a sea-girt fortress, standing at the entrance of New York Harbour, and, bristling with 100-pounders, is ready, with its sister forts Hamilton and Richmond, on Long Island and Staten Island respectively, to dispute the passage of the Narrows with any Confederate or other gun-boats attempting to force a passage. As soon as the war commenced, the Federal Government recognised the adaptability of this fort as a military prison; and from that time to the present its gun-rooms and casemates have been crowded with Confederate prisoners of all ranks and grades. It was here that the members of the Maryland Legislature were placed in durance vile, and here it was that ex-Governor Morehead, of Kentucky, lingered till he was brought to the verge of death. The Hon. Pierre Soulé, too, and a host of other Confederate notables have been confined here; and here, when I had the good fortune to obtain my order of release the other day, I left many still in prison, amongst whom were Admiral Buchanan, General Page and his Staff (captured in Mobile Bay and at Fort Morgan), Generals Pryor and Beal, Captain Thom, and other officers, besides a large number of privates and a few blockade-runners. Among them was one Captain Beall, a Virginian, an officer in the Confederate army and holding also a naval commission, who was confined in the same casemate (No. 2) in which I was. He was charged with piracy on Lake Erie, and was kept in irons and forbidden to leave the casemate. With respect to the rules and regulations of this fort, and the system of feeding the prisoners, I have no words at my disposal sufficient to express my indignation; but I must say, in justice to the Yankee officers quartered there during my imprisonment, that from one and all—including even 'Old Burke,' the Commandant, himself—I received every courtesy; and this was not because I was a Britisher, for the disease of Anglophobia had assumed an epidemic form in the North. No discretion is allowed to these officers; they have but to carry out the orders received from Washington, and it is in their power to make themselves very obnoxious to those under their charge. But the explanation of their good conduct in this case is, I believe, that they were officers of the regular army of the United States, and not of the volunteer service: their regiment was the 10th Infantry. I conclude with my earnest prayer for a speedy exchange of prisoners."

With respect to Captain Beall, who is mentioned by the writer of the above letter as one of his fellow-prisoners, it appears from the New York papers of the 25th that he was put to death on Governor's Island the previous day. He behaved with much fortitude, and protested against the execution of his sentence, declaring that what he had done was in the service of his country.

JOHN HAWKSHAW, ESQ., F.R.S., F.G.S.,

LATE PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.

This distinguished engineer, who stands in the first rank of his profession, was born at Leeds, in 1811, and received his early education in the grammar school of his native town. At a period when railways were in their infancy, Mr. Hawkshaw, then a young man, determined upon his future course of life, and became a pupil of Mr. Charles Fowler. He afterwards undertook the duties of assistant to the late Mr. Alex. Nimmo, an engineer who acquired great celebrity by the public works in which he was engaged by Government in the sister kingdom. On Mr. Nimmo's death, in 1831, Mr. Hawkshaw, anxious to enlarge the sphere of his observation and practice, visited South America, and took charge of the Bolivar copper mines. On his return to England he became connected with the late Mr. James Walker, the well-known engineer, who at that period was largely engaged in docks, harbours, and hydraulic works generally. Mr. Walker was President of the Institution of Civil Engineers for about ten years, having succeeded Mr. Thomas Telford, its first president. Having acted as Mr. Walker's assistant for three years, Mr. Hawkshaw was appointed, in 1837, to the office of engineer to the Manchester and Bolton Canal and Railway Company. The ability which he had shown during his connection with that company led to his engagement as engineer to the Manchester and Leeds Railway, which subsequently formed the nucleus of the Lancashire and Yorkshire lines. Nearly the whole of the railways connected with that extensive system have been constructed under his direction. The difficult nature of the district through which some of these lines had to pass rendered it necessary to adopt steeper gradients than had hitherto been attempted to be worked by the locomotive engine. In this change from the former practice Mr. Hawkshaw had to encounter no slight opposition; but, fortified by a careful and earnest examination of the subject, he succeeded in proving, not only its practicability, but also its desirability, even when, by taking more circuitous routes, easier inclines could be secured. This has, more than anything else, led to the vast expansion of the railway system, the locomotive being now seen in districts where its introduction would, until Mr. Hawkshaw pointed out the way, have been considered impracticable.

About the year 1850 Mr. Hawkshaw found it necessary to establish his offices in the metropolis, but he still retains the position of consulting engineer to the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company. Mr. Hawkshaw, as is well known, is the engineer to the Charing-cross Railway, the principal work on which is the "Charing-cross Bridge" across the Thames. This colossal structure, as most of our readers are aware, occupies the site of the old Hungerford Suspension Bridge, recently transferred to Clifton, near Bristol, to span the river Avon there. The new bridge, in addition to carrying the rails of the railway, is provided with a footway on each side. It comprises nine spans—six of 154 ft. and three of 100 ft.—the centre opening of the Suspension Bridge having been divided into four spans, each of 154 ft.; the opening between the Surrey pier, or tower, and the abutment into two spans, each also of 154 ft.; and the opening between the Middlesex pier, or tower, and the abutment into three spans, each of 100 ft. The superstructure of the bridge is carried by cylinders, sunk into the bed of the river, and by the piers of the old Suspension Bridge, which were retained for that purpose. The abutments of the former structure are also retained, but have been considerably lengthened and altered. The width of the river at the bridge is 1350 ft. An Illustration of this great work, with some description of it, appeared in our Journal a twelvemonth ago. Mr. Hawkshaw is now carrying out, for the Charing-cross Railway Company, a second bridge across the Thames, known as the Cannon-street Bridge. This is not yet sufficiently advanced to enable us to judge of its merits; but, being in such good hands, it will doubtless worthily rival Charing-cross Bridge. As for the numerous other important works in which Mr. Hawkshaw has been, and at present is, engaged, we learn that he is consulting engineer to the South-Eastern Railway Company; engineer to the Penarth Harbour, Dock, and Railway; and holds a similar position to the Hull Docks and Hull South Bridge. He is engineer to the Londonderry Bridge, just completed; also to the Riga and Dunaburg Railway; and consulting engineer to the Dunaburg and Witepsk Railway. As respects India, he is consulting engineer to the Madras and Eastern Bengal Railways. He is also consulting engineer to the railways now being constructed in the Mauritius by the Government of that colony. In addition to these multitudinous works, he has discharged the duties of engineer-in-chief to the Government Harbour of Refuge and other works, at Holyhead, since the death of Mr. Rendel, a period of about eight years; and is now carrying out, on behalf of the Government, important works at Spithead—namely, the foundations of the new forts to be built in the sea at that anchorage. In 1861 Mr. Hawkshaw was appointed by the Government sole Royal Commissioner to inquire into the numerous competitive schemes projected for conveying water to Dublin, which suffered much from the absence of a wholesome supply. After a lengthened inquiry, he advised that the waters of the River Vartry should be conveyed from the Wicklow mountains to Dublin, a distance of twenty-five miles. This recommendation was adopted by the Government, and the works will shortly be completed. In May, 1862, in the emergency of the failure of the Middle-Level Sluice, at St. Germans, near Lynn, whereby an extensive tract of country was submerged, Mr. Hawkshaw was called in by the Commissioners, and succeeded in averting the calamity—fresh in everyone's memory—which threatened the entire district. On this anxious occasion Mr. Hawkshaw's inventive powers were especially, and with great effect, called into exercise. By the adoption of syphons of a novel character he supplied an efficient remedy against further inundations. Such are a few of his most important works.

As a witness before Parliamentary and other tribunals Mr. Hawkshaw is remarkable for the clearness and straightforwardness of his evidence. As an arbitrator his counsel is frequently sought, not only on matters strictly professional, but on others where sound judgment is needed. We might readily extend our notice of Mr. Hawkshaw's great and varied professional labours in our own and foreign countries; but, considering that he is still in the prime of life, there can be little doubt that the same genius and practical skill which have won for him so high a position will lead to new engineering triumphs.

Mr. Hawkshaw was requested, on the demise of Mr. Wm. Cubitt, in 1863, to offer himself as his successor in the representation of Andover, in which district the subject of this notice occupies a country seat. He accordingly offered himself on Liberal principles for election, but, having come too late into the field, was defeated by the Conservative candidate, Mr. Humphery, son-in-law of the late member. Having thus evinced a desire to enter Parliament, it can only be a question of time as to when that shall be accomplished. Independently of all considerations of mere party politics, any constituency would confer no slight honour and benefit upon themselves by returning to Parliament a man like Mr. Hawkshaw. Our Portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins.

THE DUBLIN EXHIBITION PALACE AND WINTER GARDEN.

The Engraving on page 256 gives a view of the exterior of the crystal palace which has been constructed for permanent use as a winter garden, but which is connected with the buildings (of solid brick and stone) designed for the International Exhibition of Arts and Industry to be held this year in Dublin. These buildings are situated in Earlsfort-terrace. They comprise, in addition to the space of the Winter Garden, covered with iron and glass, a large concert-hall, to accommodate 3000 persons, adjoining the winter garden; a small concert-hall for half that number; a lecture-hall, a practising-room for the orchestra, a dining-saloon, and extensive picture-galleries, with a large annexe for machinery in motion, a second annexe for other machinery, a third annexe for carriages, and a fourth annexe for refreshment-rooms, kitchens, and other conveniences. The Winter Garden, or Crystal Palace as we may call it, is a light and airy structure, 65 ft. high; the south portion is 447 ft. long and 84 ft. wide; the north portion is 270 ft. long and 126 ft. wide. There is a wide gallery all round the interior, a length of about 1700 ft., with an external gallery which overlooks the terrace and pleasure-grounds. The circular transept, shown in our Engraving, commands a beautiful view of these grounds, which have been laid out by Mr. Riven with admirable taste, and extend to about thirteen acres, containing lawns, avenues, shrubberies, an ornamental pond, and a grand cascade. The internal decoration of the palace is now being rapidly completed, under the superintendence of Mr. Alfred Jones, the architect; and all the preparations for the opening of the exhibition in May are in a forward state. The list of places from which contributions are expected shows that it will be truly international in its character; for, in addition to London, Edinburgh, and the principal towns in the United Kingdom, we find that committees have been formed or agencies established to promote the objects and forward the business of the exhibition in Amsterdam, Berlin, Berne, Brussels, Christiania, Constantinople, Copenhagen, Dresden, Dusseldorf, Florence, Frankfort, Milan, Munich, Nüremberg, Paris, Rome, Stockholm, Turin, and Vienna. Thus a system of direct communication is maintained with almost every country of Europe; while contributions are expected from Spain and Russia. There is also a Colonial Department, which will be enriched by valuable collections from India and Burmah, from Africa, from the North American provinces, and from Australia.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF PAYSANDU, URUGUAY, SOUTH AMERICA.

It has been already mentioned that a squadron of Brazilian gun-boats, with a detachment of soldiers, was sent early in December to the aid of General Flores, who is the leader of one of the contending factions in the republic of Uruguay; and that the town of Paysandu, on the Uruguay River, was captured by their combined forces, after a siege of four weeks, ended by three days' desperate conflict, on the 2nd of January. We have received from one of our correspondents a series of photographs, taken immediately after the surrender of Paysandu, which show the terrible effects of the bombardment inflicted upon that unhappy town by the Brazilian squadron of Admiral Tamandaré. The two Illustrations we have selected will be enough for so painful a subject; the first being a View of the Tower or Fort, which was held by Leandro Gomez, the commander of the garrison, with extraordinary pertinacity until the barricades of the neighbouring streets were forced by the assailants, when Gomez himself, having been invited to come out and parley, fell into the hands of the enemy, and was cruelly put to death. Our second Illustration represents the ruins of the principal church, situated on the Plaza, or great square of the town, which was the scene of much of the fighting on the 1st and 2nd of January, the hostile parties having taken up their positions within forty or fifty yards of each other, and disputing the ground most fiercely to the last. The bombardment, however, which did so much damage to all the buildings in the town, commenced as long ago as the 6th of December, when 700 shells were thrown into Paysandu in a single day. At the request of the commanders of the British, French, and Spanish ships of war, which had come up from Montevideo to watch these proceedings, the Brazilian Admiral consented upon that occasion to stop the bombardment and allow time for the inhabitants of the town to remove. The non-combatant population, including the women and children, took refuge in a small island of the river, where they lived under canvas many days, but suffered extreme hardships from the want of proper shelter and food. On the 31st of December the bombardment was renewed with greater fury than before, and many houses were burnt. As the town was not only bombarded but given up to sack and pillage for several days after its capture, the loss of private property is immense—that of property belonging to foreigners alone is estimated at not less than four or five millions of dollars. Paysandu is now a scene of complete desolation.

The Brazilian army, with that of Flores, after the capture of Paysandu marched towards Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, where the greatest consternation prevailed at the date of the last mail, as President Aguirre was making arrangements for a resistance, which would only bring upon Montevideo a similar calamity to that of Paysandu. On the other hand, the Government of Paraguay, the adjacent State, has taken up arms in defence of Uruguay against Brazil.

THE FARM.

The Fawsley-sale catalogue has been published by Mr. Strafford, and contains fourteen females and five males. Eleven of them are descended from Cornlind, four from London Pride, and four from Pintail—all Janizary (8175) cows, and in descent from Caliph (1774) dams. The Cornlind pedigree includes Rosy by Rob Roy (557), a tribe only to be found at Fawsley and Sarsden, as Mr. Thorne took the rest of them to America. Sylphide by Sarawak (15,238) from Pintail is said to be very good, and both her sire and dam are reserved, along with Cornlind, Smock Frock by Earl of Dublin, and three heifers. Shenandoah from Sylphide is also a favourite calf of six months old. All Captain Gunter's bulls have gone out—Grand Duke of Wetherby to Mr. Sheldon, and Duke of Clarence to Mr. Bell, of Holy Fold, near St. Helens. A second Duke of Wharfdale calf is expected very shortly in this herd from Duchess 77th.

Mr. Thomas Charge, who was the oldest breeder of shorthorns, not excepting Mr. Wiley, died lately, in his ninety-second year. He formed one of the celebrated quartet who each bought a leg of the 1000-guinea Comet, at Ketton, in 1810. In his heyday he used the Collings bulls very extensively, and his name was well known in connection with Dalton Duke, The Grey Bull, and Western Comet (one of the earliest and best bulls in Cumberland and Westmorland); but his stock did not keep up their character, and at his sale before 1828 the highest price was only £50. The Lizzy tribe had its origin in his herd, and many of his best things went to Mr. Coppinger's, in Ireland. There is an offshoot of the Lizzy tribe, called "Charge's Duchesses," in Yorkshire, but it has not done much. The last time we saw the old man was at Mr. Wetherell's sale, in 1859, where two generations looked upon him with no small respect for the part he bore on the Comet day. From Scotland, we hear that Mr. Milne's Prince Louis, a purchase from Lord Kinnaird, at Stirling, has beaten all the bulls at Kintore; and that Mr. Balfour's shorthorns, both bulls and oxen, have taken all the prizes open to them at the Haddington Show

The most remarkable bullock-sale of the last three or four months, in Scotland, was that of twelve of Mr. Harris's prize crossbred three-year-olds, at the Forres Fat Show, for £48 each, to Mr. Skinner, a butcher in Aberdeen, who sent them all to London. Mr. Harris retains a pure poll, which will, it is said, be very dangerous to Mr. M'Combie and all the crack Angus breeders at fat shows to come. For the first time, the Highland Society will give their fat prizes in money instead of medals, at Inverness. As a remarkable instance of what unpromising bullocks may do, it is only eighteen months since Mr. Crawfurd, a Perth cattle-dealer, bought an Irish poll bullock, among a lot of twenty two-year-olds, which only averaged £10 17s. 6d. He went ahead of the rest so completely, when he was put up to feed, that his owner "sent him along with cake and corn," made him so good that he was exhibited for a charity in Perth, and then sold him to a butcher in the town for 76s. a cwt., or about £55 for 15½ cwt. clean, thus leaving some £44 for eighteen months' keep.

The foreign trade to Leith began last week, with about one hundred Holstein bullocks—many of them very useful ones—as well as 600 Merino sheep, and the whole went on, as usual, to the Glasgow market. The bullocks, "some of them as old as a man," and well accustomed to ploughing, have been making from £18 to £26; and equally-venerable sheep from 22s. to 29s. Fat cattle are coming out very sparingly in Scotland, as, owing to the dry summer of '64, the stocks had a great deal of lee-way to make up, and the low price of grain, of which they seem to be getting all sorts by turn, or mixed, induces the farmers to hold hard. In fact, farmers, both in England, Ireland, and Scotland, find it now most profitable not to send their corn to market in sacks, but to make it walk there in the shape of beef. Notwithstanding the high prices which Cheviots made at Falkirk last autumn, in nine cases out of ten the best wedder lots have paid remarkably well, and left a shilling a week, despite the murrain, in their owners' hands. The turnips, contrary to expectation, have proved more than an average crop throughout Scotland; and, as a proof of it, a flock of 470 three-parts-bred wedders were sold last week, near Edinburgh, to the London market at 66s. apiece, of which their skins brought back 13s.

In consequence of the feeders selling off their beasts fat as two-year-olds, the supply of homebred stores in Aberdeenshire and the counties north of it is becoming every year more and more scanty. No less than seven thousand crossbreds, calves and to three-year-olds, have been sent up north from Falkirk and the other leading fairs between September and February; and even then the jobbers were obliged to go into the heart of England for them. A few days since a score of "the white faces" were in Ellon market. "Steam is now the Highland drover," as their buyer only left Aberdeenshire on the Wednesday night, and had the cattle back with him from Herefordshire by the same time on Saturday.

The Holland cattle, of which the Messrs. Swan sold about 5000 last year in the Edinburgh market—principally to the Forfarshire, Fife, and Lothian farmers—have proved well at from 5 cwt. to 6½ cwt., in those cases where they came there direct by sea, and not viâ London and Hull. Still, unless they have a recurrence of the '64 drought, it is hardly likely that the Dutchmen will spare us so many again. Mr. Harvey, of Glasgow, is so pleased with the Dutch cows that he is going to try fifty of them among his 1700 shorthorns and Ayrshires. It is quite expected that when the ice breaks a Denmark beast trade will be opened up with Scotland, thanks to the new steam communication between Copenhagen and Leith. Still, the feeders of good crossbreds, either in cattle or sheep, have nothing to fear, as the first-class butchers will not look at "the foreigners."

AUSTRALIA

(From our own Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, Jan. 25, 1865.

In despair at utterly lacking something sensational—for we can hardly flatter ourselves that Victorian politics can create much sensation in the world's metropolis—I was just putting pen to paper to begin and chronicle the somewhat (to us, at least) important domestic details of the week, when the very climax of sensationalism arrived in the person of Captain Semmes. Beyond stating that the famous sea-rover is actually in our waters, having steamed in just before dark, there is nothing very much to communicate beyond the name of the vessel and her build. In these waters she is an old acquaintance of a year, as the Shenandoah, formerly the Sea King, she arrived as a transport with troops for Auckland. There New Zealand she steamed to China, and returned home, where she appears to have been authorised by the Confederate Government to purchase a fast privateer vessel of some 1200 tons burden and 800 tons register, carrying eight guns, and evidently in every respect, on her first arrival here is fifty-two days sufficiently shows. It seems, however, that she has been doing some awkward business on the way out, as her tracks nearly coincide with the tracks of two vessels supposed to have been run on fire off Trista d'Acunha, and she confesses to having boarded eleven vessels in her seven weeks' trip; but here she will find but poor pickings. The American flag is a rare visitant in our seas; except a few floating some timber-laden vessels, there seldom is one to whaler; and she will probably make tracks, after coaling, for her old cruising-ground off China and the Indian seas, where a fat prize awaits her.

I have said that, except the arrival of the Western Viking, there has been nothing sensational to record; but there has been plenty of deep and grateful sentiment towards our beloved mother for timely aid in need—and children, we all can say so generously, for we were only demanding our rights, but so wisely. The removal of the last ground for serious dissatisfaction between England and Victoria is the lifting of an incubus from every loyal breast; and out here every breast is loyal. Should it be otherwise, it will not be owing to the liberal promptings of some of the English journals, who see in every indication of spirit a wish to run away.

Parliament having reassembled on the 17th inst., after the Christmas holidays, the Land Bill was passed through its remaining stages, and transmitted to the Upper House, where it was read a first time last night. There is a very strong belief that it will be rejected by the council, as its provisions differ so very little from those of the measures that have hitherto been passed into law, and have found practically very little favour. The Bill for the Treasurer (Mr. Verdon) made its financial statement, from which it appears that the revenue for 1864 was in excess of the expenditure to the amount of £60,000. In the face of this highly prosperous statement, the Ministry have brought in a new tariff, which, should it be accepted by the House—there is not much likelihood of this, however—will have the effect of raising the price of from its present high position as the metropolis of the Southern Hemisphere to that of a second-rate town. The duties are all specific, and the Bill of Victoria is extremely simple, and the duties are levied on a few articles, some of universal and others of very large consumption—such as tea, sugar, coffee, spirits, opium, tobacco, and dried fruits—excise duties, a few other small imposts, and an export duty on gold. From these should the Treasurer select for the year 1865 a revenue of £1,000,000 sterling, the gold duty. The aggregate loss on these items for the present year for estimated at £1,000,000 sterling, and their place be substitutes a list of new duties of the most varied, extensive, and unbearable character. Among the new duties are ground and oilmen's stores of almost every description, on salt, on doors and windows—and the jewellery of every class to be imported, on all carriages, on millinery, on apparel and slops, on musical instruments, on carriages, on saddlery and harness, on hosiery, on boots and shoes, on cabinet goods, on hats and furniture, toys, and a variety of other articles, which are calculated to yield a total sum of £236,000. The Ministerial proposition was received with dismay by the whole community, and will immediately took steps to protest against it. Several meetings of the classes who are affected by the new tariff have been held, and strong condemnatory resolutions have been passed. The debate in the house, adjourned from the 18th, was resumed yesterday evening, and is likely to last another week.

The steam ship London (a woodcut of which recently appeared in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS) arrived here, on the 2nd inst., after a rapid passage of sixty-four days from Plymouth. The vessel one of the most remarkable escapes from the perils of the deep which has ever occurred has to be recorded. On the 21st of October, in lat. 24 deg. 8 min. N., and long. 26 deg. W., a sailor fell overboard. Although a heavy sea was running at the time, Mr. Evans, the chief officer, followed the unfortunate man. The crew, got into one of the life-boats to endeavour to rescue the drowning man. After remaining about for some time, they gave up all hope of ever seeing them again. The ship was then worn round, and in consequence of several hours' delay, was hove to. Finding, on leaving that the boat had foundered, resumed his course at nightfall. On the arrival of the vessel here the opinion was freely expressed by many of the passengers that the boat had not foundered, and that tidings of the missing crew would yet be heard. That opinion was realised; for, nine days after the London reached Melbourne, Mr. Harris and his brave companions arrived here in the clipper-ship John Bunyan, they having been picked up after having been in charge of the boat.

The Parliament of New South Wales has reassembled after the elections. The former Speaker was re-elected without opposition. The Ministry is in such a minority, their retention of office is regarded as a waste of the public time.

A chamber of commerce has been established at Port Elizabeth, in South Africa. During the year 98,748 bales of wool, worth £1,481,730, were exported from that port.

One of the Japanese Princes has resolved to erect a sugar-refinery in Japan, and has engaged two skilled Europeans to assist him in carrying out his design.

General Gerlach, the Commander-in-Chief of the Danish army is succeeded by General Meza, who is considerably more advanced age.

According to the census of the kingdom of Italy taken on the 31st of December, 1863, the population amounted to 21,104,985 (11,062,184 males and 11,042,801 females), being an increase of 1,104,985 in two years.

The exportations of Venezuela and Ditna are likely to be followed by an outbreak of Stromboli. Letters from Sicily announce that symptoms of activity in the volcanic mountain have appeared, and that there was a shock of light, rise above it.

The King of Sweden and Prince Oscar are preparing the publication of a collection of poetry, the proceeds of which will be applied for charitable purposes. Baron Beskow will be entrusted with the revision to this collection.

The first turf on the Amsterdam Canal was turned on the 8th inst., at the Sloth-hill, in the parish of Velzen, near the German Ocean, where the proposed sluice will join the sea canal. Communication between the North Sea and Amsterdam for large vessels is through the North Holland Canal from Amsterdam to the Helder—a long and circuitous route. By the new scheme will unite Amsterdam to the North Sea by a canal only fourteen miles long, which at the same time a harbour of refuge will be formed. The waters of land will be reclaimed from the lakes adjoining Amsterdam. The works will be under the direction of Mr. Kinder, the engineer of the Zuyder Zee, Dolder, of Holland, joint engineers to the company.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News in reply to an appeal from a lady—"Now, do give us less politics and more about toilet: what have you now in hairdressing and hats?"—writes:—"I have committed a great hairdresser of the ruisseau school, who says that this winter he has often commenced work at one p.m., so that the lady must remain some ten hours in full toilet, with her hair pinned, bound, stretched, fluttered, bewildered, and generally tortured. Now, as this is impossible, the hairdressing experiments can be had at all ; ladies during the season are obliged to endure them or attend. Well, he declares that you may wear your hair in any fantastic fashion. Some ladies at Court have adopted the classical Grecian style—the hair dragged off the face, and a bunch of clustering ringlets at the back of the head. Others have gone in for a rotten mass of curls, and, with a pretty and little, impertinent, twisting locks round about the ears—baby curls, just beginning life—whilst the mass of hair is dragged off the face to the head, and there studded with flowers, or butterflies, or even gaudy insects."

THE LOCK-OUT IN THE IRON TRADE.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

BIRMINGHAM, March 14.

Labour and capital are again met on the field of contention. Last autumn we beheld a contest in which the counsels of capital were divided and labour possessed some shadow of right on its side. The strife terminated in the subjection of labour. We are now called to witness another struggle, in which the forces of capital are well massed and organised, and those of labour are less united and less able to bear the expenses of a long engagement than they were at the period referred to. It is scarcely hazardous to foretell the result. The late strike was one of the colliers; the present one is that of the iron workers. The strike of the colliers involved the ironworkers, and the strike of the ironworkers will, if it continue a week longer, involve the colliers. These two sympathetic branches of labour in the Staffordshire coal-fields resemble the Siamese twins in this, that a pinch of misery inflicted runs through the whole body.

This disturbance, second only in importance, should it be perversed to, to that which we have just witnessed, has been characterised with it very suspicious evidences of a determination on the part of the trades combined to carry matters with a high hand and establish a "final struggle" between those two powers of production which is deemed inevitable. One is forcibly reminded of the submission of the Lancashire woman to her husband, "Gon, gotten thee foughten done, or I'll gotten thee foughten to?" Capital has gotten its foughten done for the conflict, and the question of 1s. per ton for wages on puddled iron has a little to do with it as theory with the immediate origin, or abolition with the ultimate designs, of the American war.

To understand aright the cause of the present strike it is necessary to take a brief retrospect of the trade in connection with its peculiar circumstances. Iron, first raised in ore, is smelted into pig, and reduced to "pigs." This process is performed by capitalists termed "pig-masters." The pigs are then converted into bars, and the various bars observed in a wholesale ironmonger's yard. These transformations are performed by capitalists termed "ironmasters." Although this term is applied to pig-masters also, or "puddling masters," they are not known by that name. The bars made from the furnace are called "puddlers," and those who guide the rolling mill are called "rollers." Formerly, in the Staffordshire there has existed in North and South Staffordshire and the north of Worcestershire a trade agreement as to wages, and the alterations in their wages should be regulated by the price of Staffordshire bar-iron, as quoted in the official trade circular. They were to receive 1s. per ton for each £1 per ton rise in bars. This agreement has frequently been made from this practice. For instance, in September, 1863, bar iron was advanced to £7 5s. per ton, and in May, 1864, the quotation of being satisfied with 7s. 6d. per ton, obtained 8s. 6d.; in January, 1864, bar-iron was quoted at £8 10s. per ton, whereupon 10s. per ton. This high price of iron brought France and Belgium into the market as competitors, and consequently in March, 1864, bar-iron just as the rise in cotton goods checked demand abroad, and, consequently, at home. Hence, ironmasters, finding themselves overstocked with which were realised at reduced prices to meet pressing engagements. At the quarterly meeting of the trade in July, 1864, the price of Staffordshire bar-iron was quoted at £8 10s. per ton. The rise in which much iron has been sold at £7 10s. since that period, the price now ruling at £8 per ton, or 10s. per ton less.

Now, it is very clear, all other things being equal, that if in 1864 ironmasters were willing to concede 1s. per ton for every £1 per ton of bar-iron was considered fair, the rise since that time must have warranted them in giving 10s. per ton more than they now offer. This is precisely what has happened, and the masters felt that if they were to produce a reduction in wages equal to the rise they were to be preserved to Staffordshire, a reduction in wages must take place. Consequently, on the 29th of December, they met in Birmingham, and agreed upon a reduction of 1s. per ton per puddles and 10 per cent to mill-men," necessitated by the state of trade. The wages in that part would be 7s. 6d. per ton, and 6s. 9d. per ton in £7 5s. A fair night's notice was given of this change in the rate of payment, which was to take effect on January 16. Many of the smaller masters were quite willing to accept the reduction, numerous meetings were held by the workmen; but what really happened I have not been able to learn, but the reporters were rigidly excluded, and only such resolutions were published as the masters thought proper. It is, however, certain that the men of South Staffordshire submitted to the reduction and those of North Staffordshire did not, but, on the contrary, the Staffordshire shire are only six in number, and the men involved about 5000; though of these there are not more than 1500 connected with the puddlers' union, as the resistance to the masters in the north would not pass to the south. Hence, while the men of South Staffordshire passed at local meetings, there seems not a little probability on the part of the ironmasters that they will not double their offer. Prior to the reduction, they also show a very determined intention to maintain the reduction, and the fact that the ironmasters of North Staffordshire men are acting in opposition to the union; their sets are not to be considered as indicative of the course of the trade, for so that we are driven to conclude that the resolution to uphold the union must be the result of intimidation, and that the men are on a strike at the bidding of that union. The masters, at any rate, are not to be shunned if, seeing through this sham, they endeavour to outwit a plan for compelling them to accept terms which they are unwilling for it, therefore, but for the masters to meet combination with combination. Unfortunately for the masters, the double-handed Nature, had wasted its energies in isolated combats; its forces were beaten in detail by the united power of labour, which was ready to use with its own arms. But now the ironmasters called a general meeting of the trade, and, finding that the men were resolved on a general resistance to the reduction, they proceeded to the question of a lock-out. Of this notice, the workmen were informed on the 28th of February, and the lock-out was to take effect on the 11th.

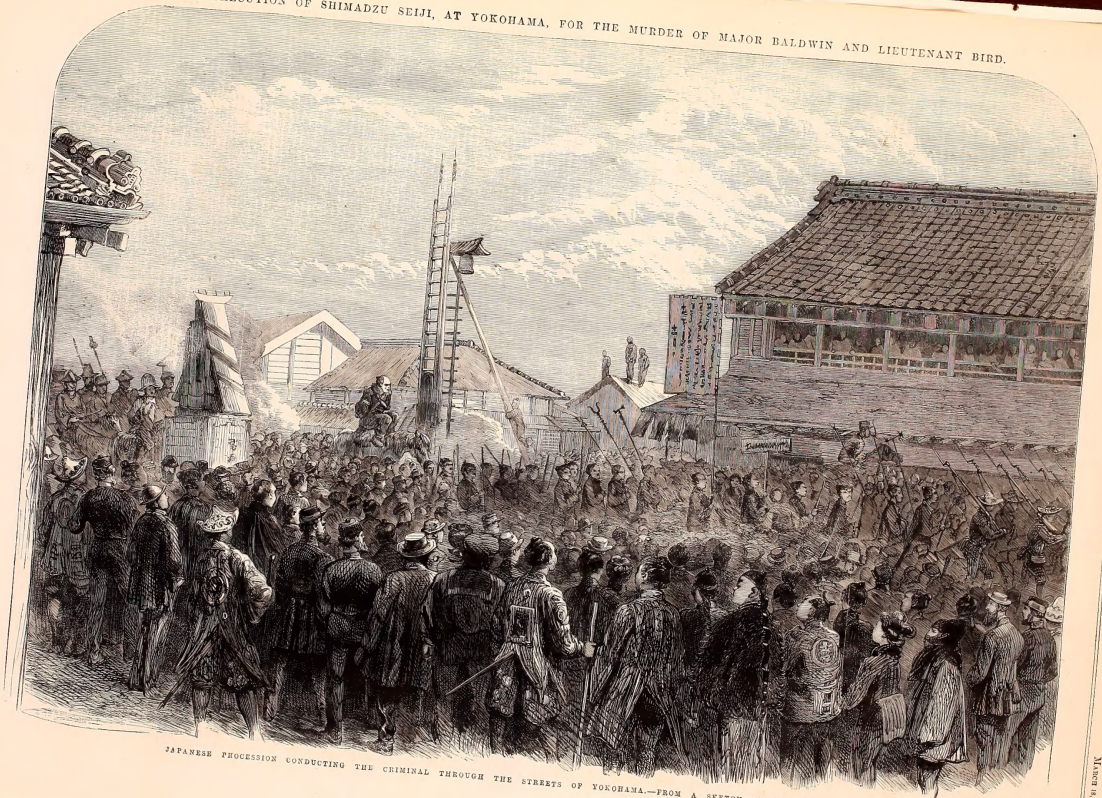
There are now, therefore, in Staffordshire upwards of 20,000 men without employment. This is a serious state of things, and one that may become worse. If the men hold out for 14 days the lock-out will extend yet further, and, certainly, unless it be complete it is nothing. This is indeed a Hobson's choice—Hobson's choice—Hobson's choice—with somewhat different, I imagine, from that which is proposed for Staffordshire. We have no wish to dwell on the sufferings which at this peculiar juncture may bring disasters to the iron trade of Staffordshire—a trade which, perhaps, is, at this moment, Surely, we are mistaken in supposing that the men of Staffordshire are weak minded enough to allow themselves to be sacrificed to the patriotic feelings towards their country. Their present conduct does not foreshadow it. They are now in the midst of a season of the country more assiduously wrought of late years. Wages have increased, food and clothing have risen in price, the burden of taxation has been transferred to the shoulders of the wealthier classes, the hours of labour have been curtailed, and aids to moral, physical, and intellectual improvement have been placed within their reach. These material advances the ironworkers must know are due to the command held by England over the markets of the world, and due in part, therefore, to their own efforts to exalt the iron trade, which has speedily risen from the fourth or fifth almost to the staple trade of the country. They must also be aware that a continuance of these advantages to them depends upon the maintenance by England of her proud position; and that their present unreasonable attitude, as far as it jeopardises the iron trade, is likely to react upon themselves. The fatal advance in price which took place in 1863 has given an impetus to foreign competition. Belgium, France, Prussia, and Austria, which has damped the inquiry for British iron ever since. The diminished export of bars and rails to New York from this country last year was upwards of 27,000 tons as compared with 1863. France not only supplies herself with railroad bars, plates, &c., but joins Belgium to compete with us in Continental markets. In order to accommodate his prices to this state of things, the Staffordshire ironmaster must reduce his wages: the puddlers and mill-men admit that he must, and yet they choose this critical juncture to back their bridled union against the master, and appear to be ready enough to abandon their country and proceed with the Americas agents who are busily tempting them, even to open advertisements, offering high iron found in the Northern States, and enable America to keep Staffordshire "beaten" out of the New York market. It is, I repeat, a serious thing to refuse work to some 6000 for the necessity of which there is no apparent reason, and to put some £15,000 a week out of the £8,000, the human cannot attach to the masters, who merely act in self-defence. But the men are not to blame for this agitation, as their own ends. A little filth will muddy a large pool, and so it is in this case.

It was stated by Roland's Iron Circular that if men from the south could be induced to emigrate, to remove from the North Staffordshire works, the lock-out should cease; but the men appear to be averse to fly in the face of the union," in this matter. Other propositions have also failed. The men have some idea that the masters will make their abandonment of the union the passport to renewed work. To this they would not agree; but there is reason that I can see why the men should not be re-employed on their giving a written promise to do so. This is the position of affairs in North Staffordshire men.

It will be asked what is the position of the masters. In reply, I would state that while they hold together they are invincible. The men cannot hold out for ever, and the masters can wait the trial. They know there are contracts on hand which cannot be completed; consequences that must arise, and that many of the masters are too weak to hold out long. On this knowledge they presume. The masters, it may be presumed, are not to be duped; the great capitalists are well aware that they have no right to call upon many men of small means to act with them unless they are prepared, either themselves or by means of their bankers, to meet their engagements for them. Whether the union really will extend so far I know not; but if it fail to do so it will be to its cost.

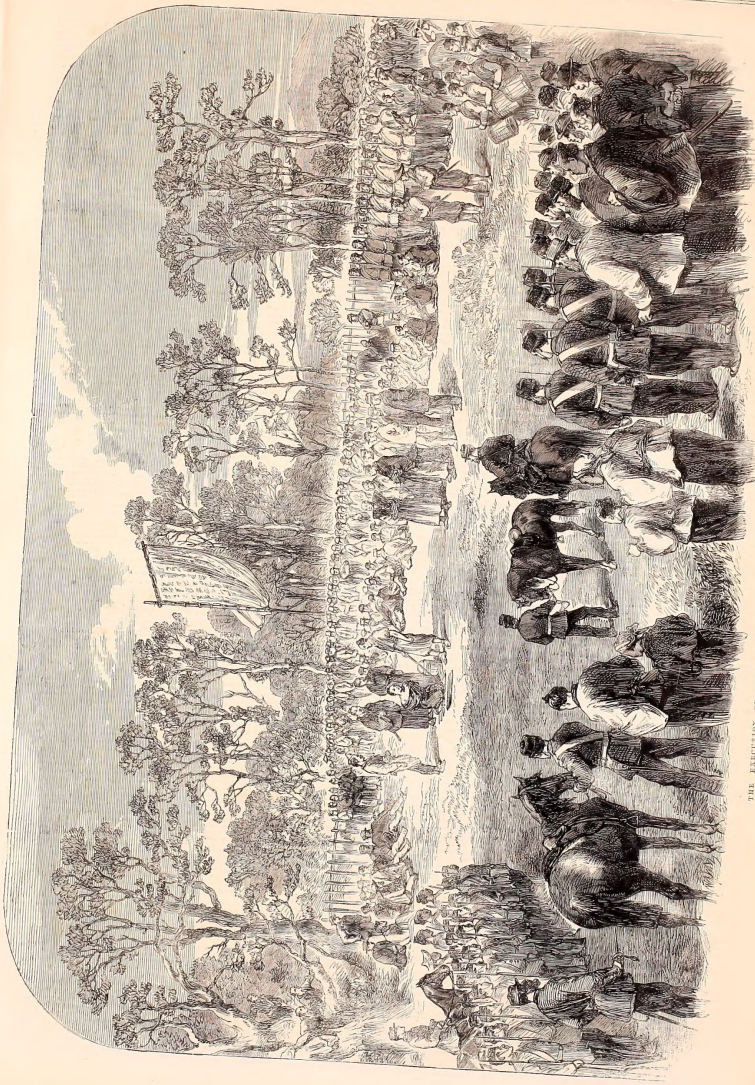
As to the funds in the hands of the men, they must be small and in no way able to meet the claims that will be created by their action. They were much reduced during the colliers' strike last autumn. It is stated that that subscription amounted to a million sterling from Staffordshire coal-fields to those of South Wales; and the inference is that the ironworkers have not had the same unbridled aid. Even immediate neighborhood can afford the means for a very brief strife only; but, of course, throughout the country at large the sympathy is, to some months may be wasted. Much now depends upon the issue of the meeting of the delegates in London, and it is to be hoped that measures will be adopted for putting an end to this contest. I cannot but think that a peaceful issue would be facilitated were both parties to meet in the Council Chamber of Queen Street's breeds suspicion. It may be that the men of South Staffordshire are acting in good faith, but I am unable to know their meaning from the resolves that are vague, they believe the worst, and the two parties are kept aloof. The men, I am informed, are not of course it would not suit the delegates to let it go—it is my impression that the lockout would cease at once; but, as both go moving on in the dark, advantage will be taken of their mutual ignorance by those who desire to keep them apart. About 600 persons are said to be out of work in the iron trade, and the prospect of depriving about 200,000 people of their daily bread. Is the contemplation of the misery they are about to produce a matter of indifference? There is no ironmaster here mess on the part of the men, none on that of the masters. The masters I believe, are willing to meet at least to unite in a lock-out, and would break it up on any pretext. The majority of the men know and feel this, and yet they are bound or by a spell.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.



Messrs. Balfour Stewart and P. G. Tait have recently published a treatise on heat, which has been set by professor Tait's recent researches on the dynamical theory of heat, and which is devoted exclusively to the discussion of energy, they have made many discoveries in connection with the phenomena from a wooden disk, on account of the velocity of its rotation in the open air and in vacuo, as tested by a delicate thermo-electric pile and galvanometer. A sensible effect was produced upon the galvanometer when the disk was rotated in vacuo, although there was no heat, but only radiation, and not in currents of air impinging upon the pile. Upon the disk being rotated in the open air, there was a considerable increase in temperature 0·79 deg. The effect produced in vacuo, and that when the disk was rotated in the open air, appeared to be an increase in temperature of the disk of 1·3 deg. Fahr. The experiments are to be continued and further results communicated to the society.

Mr. Revel Edwards, secretary to the Academy of Sciences at Paris the receipt of his application of Mr. Graham's process, dialysis, to the detection of poisons, and the separation of mineral poisons from organic substances of poisons, due to the presence of fatty matters and albuminoser matters, which have hitherto prevented the employment of chemical discovery and possession, which determine the presence of organic alkalies in the liquid to be tested.



Sir Roderick I. Murchison has contributed to the last number of the Geological Journal a memoir on the Laurentian series of Bohalia, Russia, and Canada, in which he reminds geologists that these same rocks were by Logan, who regarded them as metamorphic, and very carefully and completely severed from all palæozoic rocks. Now, however, he states that the Laurentian rocks of Canada are included, since the discovery of Capital Eozoon canadense, "one of the lowest forms of animals in the lowest known sedimentary rocks." Sir Roderick also states that the Laurentian rocks of W. A. Sanford has found the Eozoin in the green serpentinous limestone of the Grenville range, on the Ottawa, Canada. N. Y. Observer, N. Y. Observer number the Rev. O. Fisher describes, with the aid of an engraving, a sudden sinking of the land in the Valley of Cashmere, in 1865, which carried into silent ruin—five yards in circumference, or more—the city of Sirinagur, and left in its place a lake of unfathomable depth. He attributes the event to the sudden withdrawal of beneath the soil, the coal seat of which had been disturbed by the drought of water, consequent to the boring for artesian wells in the neighbourhood.

We have received a communication from Mr. L. S. Casella respecting the double scale now frequently placed on thermometers; the index erroneously that the scale could be read to 1/10th of a degree. That for the scale of 1/10th of a degree has been determined for the scale of 1/10th of a degree, but for the scale of 1/5th of a degree it is equal to 20·2016 millimetres; being always at 0 deg. and 100 deg. Cent. Mr. Casella considers that the ground of the scale of 10 inches into 762 millimetres is incorrect in one of the scales, in consequence of each of the scales having been constructed from a different standard. Mr. Casella also adverts to errors frequently made in converting the readings of thermometers from one scale to another, and when they are made changing the temperature of the scale. The correct way, he says, "is to reduce the millimetres to the scale of the instrument, and then to convert them into degrees by the tables given at p. 747 of Regnault's 'Elements de Physique.' The French value can be obtained from the conversion table. Thus, at a temperature of 0 deg. Cent. and a barometer of 29·25 inches, the correction for temperature is minus 0·80, hence the reduced reading is 29·445, and the equivalent in millimetres is 747·8 millimetres.

Professor Plücker has communicated to the Royal Society a continued paper on the action of magnets on flame. Infinite space is considered either as consisting of points or traversed by planes. He considers that it may as well be regarded as filled with lines. According to the double theory such lines he thinks that there may be a double construction of space. In the first construction space is supposed to be filled with lines, which, in themselves consisting of points. This constitution is admitted when, in space, we imagine a system of rectilinear axes, and each of these regarded in the second construction, infinite space may likewise be regarded as filled with lines, the right lines, for instance, which connect the point of a sphere with its centre. The existence of the former theory, Professor Plücker says, is proved by the discoveries of Faraday and other researches on solar physics, the subject of their communication being the behaviour of sun spots with regard to increase and diminution. They have diligently compared the behaviour of various series of groups of these spots with the position of Mercury, Venus, and Jupiter, at the same date. Among the deductions from their observations the following is remarkable. The behaviour of sun spots is indicated by something from without; and from the nature of this behaviour it appears that this influence travels faster than the earth in its orbit round the sun. It appears to be determined by the position of Venus in such a manner that a spot seems to be approaching the sun's equation and breaks out and increase as it recedes from the sun's equation. The authors do not mean to convey the idea that Venus is the cause of the two-yearly period of sun spots.

JAPANESE PROCESSION CONDUCTING THE CRIMINAL THROUGH THE STREETS OF YOKOHAMA.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE EXECUTION OF SHIMADZU SEIZI.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 281.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF MR. MADOX BROWN'S WORKS.

Mr. F. Madox Brown is a painter who, though probably little known to many frequenters of the London picture displays, possesses genuine originality and remarkably-varied capabilities. The hundred or so pictures, sketches, and drawings by this painter now on view at the Gallery, 191, Piccadilly, have the biographic character of such aggregations of a life's labour in an eminent degree, while their merits and faults are alike unusually instructive.

There are pictures here painted some twenty years ago, particularly an illustration of Byron's Parisina, which show very creditable mastery over the Rembrandtesque chiaroscuro, texture, and handling, which were so much in vogue from the days of Reynolds till that period. Then there are works indicating the various results of art-studentship in Belgium, under Baron Wappers; in the ateliers of Paris—witness the illustration of "Manfred;" and at Rome—see "Our Ladye of Good Children." The finely-composed and intensely-dramatic cartoon here called "Willelmus Conquistator," exhibited at Westminster Hall, was originally executed at Paris. The painter's largest and most elaborate work, "Chaucer at the Court of Edward III.," was commenced in Rome in 1845. But we need not dwell upon a picture that is the best known of the artits's works.

Other important pictures which, having been previously exhibited, we must be excused from noticing under the present pressure on our space, are, in order of time, "Lear and Cordelia," "The Pretty Baa-Lambs," "Jesus Washes Peter's Feet," "English Autumn Afternoon," and "The Last of England."

It seems to us that—constant only in inconstancy—the desire for change of subject, aim, vehicle, everything, has been prejudicial to the whole career of this artist, and has prevented his developing into a really great historical painter. Certain it is, that about the period of the rise of pre-Raphaelitism he entertained views "very much in harmony" with the innovators, and his works have since shown every peculiarity in every direction which have been noticeable in theirs. Indeed, according to the dates given in his catalogue of the formation of his new views, Mr. Madox Brown might probably prove to be the originator of that revival or heresy which has made so many more converts among literary men than among artists. Is it because, as Dr. Johnson says, the best things are always to be said on the wrong side? The painter's views of the proper mode of treatment in various departments of art are illustrated in the better-known pictures already named, and also in some others too representative to be overlooked, particularly the "Death of Sir Tristram," "The Hayfield," the portrait of Mr. Leathart, and "Elijah and the Widow's Son."

But the picture of "Work," as it is the last, so is it the most elaborate and important of the artist's efforts. Bravo! Mr. Brown, we would at once exclaim for the boldness of representing as your principal hero that potent agent in the work of British civilisation, the excavator, or "navvy." We agree that he is at least as worthy of the powers of an English painter as the fisherman of the Adriatic, the peasant of the Campagna, or the Neapolitan lazzarone. We would applaud, also, the variously suggestive, and by no means squeamish, way in which the theme "Work" is illustrated, positively and negatively—in social and religious workers, in brain-workers as well as physical labourers; in haymakers out of work; in the London Pariah and young Bohemian who have never been taught to work; in the over-worked eldest girl of a motherless family; and in the young lady too rich to work, and in others with unemployed capacities for work. We should have explained before that the scene is in the high street of Hampstead. Some excavations there gave the painter the first idea of his picture, and his characters are to be understood as the passers-by or loiterers on the occasion. We applaud, we repeat, this honest effort to represent the actualities of our workaday life; but the vraisemblance is diminished by the sense of overcrowding which pursues one throughout—an effect increased by the want of the relief of aerial perspective. The artist has fallen into that frequent violation of esthetic law—attempting too much. Then the picture has the shortcoming, inevitable in all didactic painting, of requiring written exposition. But the question which will raise most discussion is, whether the artist has or has not successfully exemplified any new method of treating light. For our part, we beg to dispute altogether his assumption that any "old system of making one kind of light serve for all the beautiful varieties under heaven" has ever existed. In generalising schools, especially in the vast mass of interior scenes, light, like everything else, has been treated somewhat in the abstract. But it is impossible to conceive that, with all the wealth of natural truth and beauty in the art of six centuries, there should have been a total insensibility to the beautiful varieties of light. What of the silvery daylight of Veronese, the afternoon glow of Titian, and the sunset glory of Giorgione? Did not Claude, to use even Mr. Ruskin's expression, "set the sun in the heavens," and have not the Dutch painters, Hobbema and De Hooghe, Ruysdael, and Cuyp, and a hundred others, painted the effects of light under all conditions? Had Constable and Turner, and a score more English, and have Rosa Bonheur and several other French, painters but one system of light? Surely they had and have many "systems." But what the pre-Raphaelites have done is simply this—to dwell upon certain secondary phenomena of light to the point of exaggeration, to the ignoring of unsophisticated perceptions, and to the exclusion of common-sense. And this, we regret to say, appears to us the chief fault of the picture under notice. Even for a July noontide sun on a clear day the lights are too yellow and "juicy" and the foreground shadows too blue or black. The complementary colour theory is carried too far. The scale of Nature's light is infinitely more extensive than that of the artist's, and any attempt to match Nature, portion by portion, with pigments of irregularly unequal relative value must result in the lack of that matchless harmony which is the prime attribute of the painter's great prototype. It is, in fine, a golden rule in art, admitting of very rare exceptions, that what looks wrong is wrong, and cannot be set right by argument. In justice, we must add that there are innumerable merits and beauties of detail well deserving study in this picture.

The Queen has made choice of a design for an equestrian statue by Mr. John Steel, her Majesty's sculptor for Scotland, for the Scottish National Memorial to the late Prince Consort. The site approved for the memorial is the level ground of the Queen's Park, behind Holyrood Palace.

The executive of the Dublin International Exhibition have received an official intimation that the Prince of Wales will open the exhibition on the 9th of May.

Mr. John Lewis was yesterday week elected a Royal Academician.

The competitive designs for the O'Connell Monument are on view in the City Hall, Dublin. Some of the designs are said to be excellent. Messrs. Foley and M'Dowell are conspicuous by their absence.

In regard to the London Palace of Justice, there is little of historic interest in danger of demolition on the site advocated by the Government. As Temple Bar is to be allowed to remain for a time, and the Government has promised to provide some means for crossing Fleet-street from the Temple in front of the new courts, either by a bridge or a tunnel, it has been proposed that Temple Bar should be utilised by being converted into a bridge for foot passengers, which could be done at small expense. The new palace will be a place of general public resort, and as soon as the walls begin to rise we shall urge the peculiar suitability of a series of paintings illustrative of Justice for their decoration. But, to avoid long delays in their execution, such as we have seen at Westminster, and which might more seriously interfere with public business, we should advise the adoption of the Continental system of masters and staffs of scholars working together—the former preparing the coloured designs, and the latter, for the most part, executing them. What an opportunity would thus be afforded for obtaining a grand epic of educational art, and of developing a great national school of mural painting which should elevate at once British art and public taste!

Mr. Phillip's celebrated picture of "The House of Commons in 1860," exhibited at the Royal Academy the season before last, is on view at Messrs. Moore, M'Queen, and Co.'s, Fenchurch-street. A large engraving of the picture is to be executed by Mr. T. O. Barlow.

Additional prizes are offered to art-workmen by the Society of Arts for reproductions from the same models, with some few exceptions, as those proposed for imitation in the last competition.

For the celebrated picture, "The Light of the World," Mr. Holman Hunt executed a small preliminary oil study, which he afterwards finished as a second version, the only difference, however, being that it preserved his original intention of representing a somewhat clearer effect, as of a later hour in the morning. This small picture, which had been exhibited and sold in America, has found its way back to this country, attracted, like many other works of art since the commencement of the war, by the magnetism of gold. And here it has been engraved in line on copper by Mr. Ridgway, and just published by Messrs. Gambart and Co. Engraving in pure line is almost extinct among us, but its advantages as a medium for conveying the higher qualities of art are here so distinctly shown that we have no doubt this small but very admirable plate will enjoy a large share of popularity.

An interesting collection of Chinese objects of rare beauty and great value, formed by Captain Negroni, of the French army, is this day exhibited at the Crystal Palace, and will be visible for some time. The objects were mostly taken from the Summer Palace at Pekin, and are stated to be worth over £300,000.

The statue of Hercules, lately discovered at Rome, is to be known in future as the "Mastai Hercules," in honour of the Pope.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Artemus Ward His Book. (John Camden Hotten.) The grimness of American humour is conspicuous in the remark attributed to President Lincoln when, not long after his election, he was afflicted with smallpox or some similar disease; "now," said he, stretching out his huge hand, with a sardonic smile, "I shall be able to give everybody something." American humour, moreover, is remarkable for breadth, for exaggeration, for vulgarity, and for profanity. The last characteristic is traced by Mr. Hotten, in the preface to "Artemus Ward," to a very probable origin. He considers it to have resulted from the practice in which the Puritans indulged of mingling the sacred with the secular, the words of Scripture with the customs of common life. This comic profanity has spread (not in America only) from the pulpit to the exhibition-hall, the lecture-room, and the "funny" periodical. American humour, in the written or printed form, is further intensified (or not, as you please) by misspelling and by the substitution of numerals for certain words. This trick, whereby a quaint effect is gained, is not unfamiliar to Englishmen, but with Americans it seems to be indispensable. Fair samples of American humour of all kinds are to be found in "Artemus Ward." "Artemus Ward" is, of course, a mere writing name, but he who has adopted it is a type of a large class of Americans, and his biography, sketched in Mr. Hotten's preface, gives a graphic picture of the methods adopted by versatile Americans to secure the "almighty dollar." "Artemus" writes his "book" in the character of a wax-showman, and a few specimens of his style will probably be found amusing. On a certain occasion, during his travels with his show, he "got swampt in the exterior of New York State, one dark and stormy night," when he observed in the distance "the gleams of a taller candle." Thereupon he says, "tiein a hornet's nest to my off hoss's tail, to kinder encourage him, I soon reached the place." The place turns out to be a settlement of Shakers, "the strangest religious sex," remarks Artemus, "I ever met." The Shakers appear to dress oddly, if Artemus has any ground for saying "a solum female, lookin somewhat like a last year's bean-pole stuck into a long meal-bag, cum in and axed me was I athurst, and did I hunger," and for addressing Elder Uriah in the words, "If I may be so bold, kind Sir, what's the price of that pecooler kind of weskit you wear, incloodin trimmins?" The "religious exercises" are thus spoken of:—"The Shakers axed me to go to their meetin, as they was to have sarvices that mornin; so I put on a clean biled rag and went. The meetin house was as neat as a pin. The floor was white as chalk and smooth as glass. The Shakers was all on hand, in clean weskits and meal-bags, ranged on the floor like milingtery companies, the mails on one side of the room and the females on tother. They commenst clappin their hands and singin and dancin. They danced kinder slow at fust; but as they got warmed up they shaved it down very brisk, I tell you. Elder Uriah, in partickler, exhiberted a right smart chance of spryness in his legs, considerin his time of life, and as he cum a dubble shuffle near where I sot I rewarded him with a approvin smile, and sed, 'Hunky, boy! Go it, my gay and festiv cuss!'" Artemus falls in with the "noble savage," but he declares "Injins is pizin, whar ever found." He continues:—"They sed I was their brother, & wantid for to smoke the Calomel of Peace with me. They then stole my jerkt beef, blankits, etsettery, skalpt my orgin grinder, and scooted with a Wild Hoop. Durin the Cheaf's techin speech he said he shoold meet me in the Happy Huntin Grounds. If he duz thare will be a fite." He "pores 4th" his "indignashun" against Salt Lake City, and describes his interview with Mr. Brigham Young thus:—"My desire was to exhibit my grate show in Salt Lake City, so I called on Brigham Yung, the grate mogull among the mormins, and axed his permishun to pitch my tent and onfurl my banner to the jintle breezis. He lookt at me in a austere manner for a few minits, and sed, 'Do you bleeve in Solomon, Saint Paul, the immaculateness of the Mormin Church, and the Latter-day Revelashuns?' Sez I, 'I'm on it!' I make it a pint to git along plesunt, tho I didn't know what under the Son the old feller was drivin at. He sed I might show. 'You air a marrid man, Mister Yung, I bleeve?' sez I, preparin to rite him sum free parsis. 'I hev eighty wives, Mister Ward. I sertinly am marrid.' 'How do you like it as far as you hev got?' sed I. He sed 'middlin'.' . . . 'Besides these wives you see here, Mister Ward,' said Yung, 'I hav eighty more in varis parts of this consecrated land which air Sealed to me.' . . . His wives fite amung theirselves so much that he has bilt a fitin room for thare speshul benefit. . . . Sumtimes they abooz hisself individooally. They hev pulled the most of his hair out by the roots. . . . When he got eny waze cranky thay'd shut him up in a dark closit, previsly whippin him arter the stile of muthers when thare orfsprings git onruly." Mr. Ward is himself married, and his nervous courtship of Betsy Jane was brought to a close so delicately by the lady that her words deserve to be recorded:—"I won't listen to your noncents no longer. Jes say rite strate out what you're drivin at. If you mean gettin hitched, I'M IN!" Hitched, of course, is the same as "spliced." And so adieu to Mr. Artemus Ward and his American humour.

The Three Watches. By W. G. Wills. (Hurst and Blackett.) The title is taken from the last three chapters of the third (and last) volume. The originality, freshness, and manly vigour exhibited in the first two volumes are extraordinary, and one is charmed both by characters and style; but early in the third volume Bedlamism creeps in, and the conclusion is spoilt by the wildest sensationalism. A little child climbs upon its mother's knee and says, "Mother, what is that mark upon your neck?" The mark is the result of a wound inflicted by the child's father. The gallant seaman, Thomas Frompton, whom we loved and admired through two volumes, becomes a common, low, newspaper murderer, and cuts his wife's throat through jealousy; for, though she recovers, he is no less a murderer; and yet murderer and victim live afterwards affectionately as man and wife, and their child plays with the scar upon his mother's neck!

Fresh Springs of Truth. (Charles Griffin.) This is a book dedicated "ad majorem gloriam Dei," and written with the object of strengthening weak brethren whose faith is made to waver by the startling progress of modern science and the bold attitude of modern criticism. We can offer no opinion as to the success which the writer is likely to meet with; but, as he evidently is desirous to employ rather than exclude reason in his consideration of difficulties, he is entitled to respectful attention.

Woman's Work in the Church. By John Malcolm Ludlow. (Strahan.) Some portion of this work has already appeared in print. It is a sort of collection of "Historical Notes on Deaconesses and Sisterhoods," and we commend it to those—and they are many besides Christian women—whom its subject concerns.

Clever Stories of Many Nations. By John G. Saxe. Illustrated by W. L. Champney. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) A pretty book, elegantly illustrated, containing rhymed versions, in more or less playful style, of more or less familiar legends, classical and other. The illustrations partake of the playful and burlesque style observable in the verses.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE DUKE DE MORNY.

Charles Augustus Louis Joseph, Duc de Morny, President of the Corps Législatif of France, an energetic and successful statesman and a devoted adherent of the present French empire, was born, in Paris, in October, 1811, and owed his early education to the care of the Countess de Souza, who held a high post in the Court of Napoleon I., and who attained a creditable position in literature. Morny was afterwards in a scholastic institution conducted by M. Muron, and here he gained many prizes and evinced great aptitude for study. He happened, when a youth, to be brought under the notice of Prince Talleyrand, who, struck with his great intelligence, observed, "This little man will be Minister one day." Morny, as he grew up, became not only remarkable for his talents, but also for the grace and elegance of his manners. After having passed some time in the Staff School, Morny went, in 1832, with the rank of Sous-Lieutenant, into a Lancer regiment, and he, in Africa, served with distinction in the army of the Duke d'Orleans. He, under the orders of the distinguished commander Changarnier, made the campaign of Mascara, and also the first campaign of Constantine, in which he was wounded. He was decorated for saving the life of General Trézel. About the year 1838, M. de Morny retired from military service, and, being possessed of a considerable private fortune, he turned his attention to commercial pursuits, and purchased a large establishment near Clermont, where he carried on the manufacture of beetroot sugar to a great extent. During this period he published a work on the "sugar question," which was so highly approved of that he was elected president of the committee appointed to investigate the subject. In 1842 he began his political life by his election as Deputy from the department of Puy-de-Dôme, and he displayed in the Chamber much aptitude for the elucidation of several commercial questions. He at that time supported the Guizot Cabinet, and belonged to the Progressive-Conservative party. When the Revolution of 1848 broke out, M. de Morny kept aloof from politics for some time; but on being elected to the Legislative Assembly by the Puy-de-Dôme, which he had represented in the Chamber of Deputies, he soon proved himself to be one of the most energetic supporters of the President of the Republic, Louis Napoleon; and France owes to him not a little the fortunate restoration of the second empire. The great act of Morny's political career was the share he took in the coup-d'état of Dec. 2; his previous knowledge and his part in the preparation of it were the natural result of his great devotion to the cause and of the absolute confidence Napoleon placed in him. In carrying out the transaction Morny showed consummate coolness and daring. On the arrest of the chiefs of the democratic party he undertook the post of Minister of the Interior, and signed or countersigned most of the proclamations and decrees by which powerful opponents were either arrested or exiled. On Jan. 23, 1852, he retired from office, in consequence of his generous objection to the confiscation of the property of the Orleans family. He subsequently was returned to the Legislative Assembly for both Ambert and Clermont, and sat for the latter. He succeeded M. Billault as President of the Assembly, in 1854, and continued to hold that distinguished post till his death. The spirit of calmness and reconciliation with which he exercised the functions of President was much appreciated. His eloquent and fascinating mode of address, his thorough good sense, and his known confidential position with his Sovereign, gave De Morny an influence in the Assembly that few succeeding Presidents are likely to possess. M. De Morny went to Russia in 1856, as French Ambassador, to attend the coronation of the present Emperor, Alexander II., and was received with the highest distinction and in the most cordial manner. His sumptuous bearing and his attractive manners soon established him in the good graces of the Russian monarch, his court, and people. He then, also, in St. Petersburg, married the Princess Troubeskoi, who had been educated at the Institution of the Imperial Maids of Honour, and was the daughter of a Russian nobleman of high note. He leazes by her, who survives him, four children. M. De Morny was created a Duke in 1862. During late years the name of the Duke has been associated with many vast undertakings—including railways, canals, mines, credit societies, and other enterprises of a similar nature. He had much to do with founding the Crédit Mobilier; but while engaged in pursuits of this kind, and while holding his high political position, he cultivated his taste for literature and the fine arts. The acquisition of chefs d'œuvre was one of his home occupations most ardently cherished; his gallery of paintings ranks among the best private collections. The Duke was a Knight Grand Cross of the Legion of Honour, and a member of various other knightly orders. In the Duke the sporting world has lost a conspicuous patron. Of late he had been successful on the turf, to an extent, report says, of paying the expenses of his costly breeding establishment and stables. He had a high opinion of English horses, and would have no one about his stables but Englishmen. On a recent occasion he became a patron of the English Cricket Club at Paris, and was always pro-English in his feelings. He frequently received distinguished British visitors at Paris. His marriage with a Russian lady naturally brought about him some of the more leading subjects of the Czar, with whom he formed a lasting intimacy. The Duke de Morny, after a tedious illness from a complication of disorders, died at Paris on the morning of the 10th inst., having received the sacrament the previous evening, administered by Monsignore Darboy, Archbishop of Paris. The Emperor was at the bedside of his devoted friend and counsellor a few hours before he breathed his last. The remains of the Duke lay in state in the palace of the legislative body, and, after a grand funeral service in the church of the Madeleine, were interred, on the 13th inst., in the Cemetery of Père la Chaise: his obsequies were performed with great ceremony and solemnity, an immense throng of persons of note and rank and of all classes attending. The motto set forth on the Duke's funereal trophies and draperies admirably expressed the guiding principles in life of the deceased statesman—Pro Patria et Imperatore.

THE HON. AND REV. R. G. H. HASTINGS.

The Hon. and Rev. Richard Godolphin Henry Hastings, Rector of Hertingfordbury, Herts, who died at his rectory, on the 10th inst., was the fourth son of Hans-Francis, eleventh Earl of Huntingdon, by his wife, Frances, daughter of the Rev. Richard Chaloner Cobb, Rector of Great Marlow, Bucks, and was uncle of Francis Theophilus Henry, twelfth and present Earl of Huntingdon. He was born March 26, 1820, and was educated at the Charterhouse, and at University College, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1843. He was made Rector of Hertingfordbury in 1847. He married, Nov. 26, 1846, Agnes, sixth daughter of Henry Fynes-Clinton, Esq., of the family of the Duke of Newcastle, by whom, who survives him, he leaves three sons and four daughters.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR S. W. STEEL, K.C.B.

Lieutenant-General Sir Scudamore Winde Steel, K.C.B., of the Madras army, an Indian officer of long and distinguished service, who died, at his town house, 101, Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, on the 11th inst., was the son of Daniel Steel, Esq., barrister-at-law, by his wife, Mary, daughter of Scudamore Winde, Esq., Judge of the Supreme Court of Jamaica. He was born in 1769, and entered the military service of the Hon. East India Company in 1806, between which period and his last active employment in India, at Burmah, in 1854, occurred an interval of fifty years. He was Assistant Quartermaster-General throughout the Mahratta War; and was present at the reduction of the hill forts in the Gungterry, and at Rajdeho, where he was wounded. He was also at the siege of Mullegaum, and was several times honourably mentioned in despatches. He served as Assistant Quartermaster-General with the field force in Candeish in the years 1819 and 1820, and also acted as Assistant Quartermaster-General throughout the whole of the first Burmese War, from 1824 to 1826, and was engaged in every action and military operation that took place from 1827 to 1833. He was thanked in despatches seven times, and by the Governor-General in Council. He was Deputy Quartermaster-General with the Nagpoor subsidiary force. He also planned the campaign for the reduction of the Coorg Principality, and, as Deputy Quartermaster-General with the head-quarter column, conducted and was present at all the operations which it entailed during the year 1834: he was thanked in the despatches of the Governor General. The year afterwards he was appointed military secretary to the Government of Fort St. George in the military department, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, being the first officer in the Army selected for that important post: he retained it ten years. He also filled other high positions in India. He was made a C.B., July 20, 1838. He was promoted to be Brigadier-General on the Staff in 1849; and in 1852 he was placed in command of the Madras division of the Burmah army, whilst holding which command he was present at the relief of Pegu, in December, 1852. He, in January, 1853, was detached in separate command of the Martaban column to Sounghoo, through a country never before traversed by a disciplined force. He was thanked by the Governor-General. For these services in Burmah he was created, Dec. 19, 1853, a K.C.B. He was specially appointed, in 1854, to command the Pegu division and Martaban provinces, which post he retained until January, 1856. Sir Scudamore was Colonel of the 1st Madras European Fusiliers, and was made a Lieutenant-General in 1861. He had also received the Indian medal, with two clasps, and a medal for Burmah. He married Charlotte, eldest daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel William Read, which lady died in 1849.

COLONEL THE HON. FREDERICK M'ADAM CATHCART.

This able officer and diplomatist, who died, on the 5th inst., at his residence at Leamington, was the fourth son of the distinguished General, William Schaw, tenth Baron and first Earl Cathcart, by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Andrew Elliot, Esq., Governor of New York, and uncle of the first Lord Minto. He was born Oct. 28, 1789; and married, in 1827, Jane, only daughter and heir of Quentin M'Adam, Esq., of Craigengillan, Scotland, whose surname of M'Adam he subsequently assumed in conjunction with his patronymic Cathcart was educated at Eton, and entered the British Army in January, 1805, and served as Aide-de-Camp to his father when he was Commander of the Forces in the expedition to the north of Germany, in 1805 and 1806. In 1807 he accompanied the expedition sent to the Island of Rugen, in the Baltic, to co-operate with the military force of the King of Sweden. He wa present at the siege and capture of Copenhagen, and brought home the despatches announcing the capture of the Danish capital. This service gained him his promotion to the rank of Captain. He afterwards became Attaché and Private Secretary to his father, on the Earl going as Ambassador to Russia, in July, 1812. He, as Attaché, accompanied his father during the campaigns in Germany in 1813 and 1814, and was present at the battles of Lutzen, Bautzen, Dresden, Leipsic, Fere Champenoise, and in the capture of Paris, in March, 1814. He was employed at the head-quarters of the allied army under Marshal Prince Schwartzenburg in 1815. He, in May, 1820, was appointed Secretary to the British Embassy at St. Petersburg, and served at that post up to January, 1824, when he was accredited as Minister Plenipotentiary to the Diet at Frankfort, which diplomatic appointment he held till 1826. He obtained the rank of Colonel Jan. 10, 1837; and was, April 6, 1852, appointed Colonel of the Prince Regent's Royal Regiment of Ayrshire Militia. Alan Frederick, present Earl Cathcart, is the Colonel's nephew.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Miss Rachel Lemage, of Beulah Cottage, Stoke Newington, and of Oxford-terrace, was proved under £12,000 personalty. The will bears date Aug. 11, 1860, and by it she appears not to have any relatives, as the bequests are made to friends and acquaintances and to her tradesmen, and to charitable institutions. To her executors—viz., Edward Fraser, of Craven-street, she leaves £300; John Goodban, of Coutts's Bank and of Brompton, £500; the Rev. T. Baxter Aveling, of Shacklewell, £200; to the wife of her executor Edwin Carpenter, £100. She has devised a freehold estate to Mrs. Fraser and Mrs. Walconroun, and to the children of the latter; another freehold to Mrs. Aveling, wife of her executor, and to their children. To Carl Schmitz, a baker, nineteen guineas, for his upright conduct; and liberal bequests to her shoemaker, laundress, and others. To Provitt, a muffin boy, living near Beulah Cottage, ten pounds. The following are the charitable bequests:—To the German Hospital, the Royal Free Hospital, London Fever Hospital, Middlesex Hospital, St. Thomas's Hospital, North London Hospital, Margate Sea-Bathing Infirmary, Hospital for Incurables, each £100; Charing-cross Hospital and Stoke Newington Dispensary, £50 each; the Bible Society, £100; Tract Society, £50; Asylum for Fatherless Children, £100; London Missionary Society, £50; New Infant School, Kingsland, 19 gs. The residue of her property she leaves to Mrs. Aveling, Mrs. Maria Fraser, Mrs. Goodban, and Mrs. Nowell, in equal proportions.

The will of Sir Thomas Gage Saunders Sebright, Bart., of Beechwood, near Hatfield, Herts; and Besford Court, Worcestershire, was proved in the London Court on the 28th ult. The personalty was sworn under £45,000; the executors appointed being Miss Octavia Eleanor Saunders Sebright (the testator's sister) and Rear-Admiral Hastings Reginald Yelverton. The will bears date 1851; and a codicil, 1864. Sir Thomas succeeded to the baronetcy in 1846, was twice married, and died at the age of sixty-two. He is succeeded in his title and estates by his son, now Sir John Gage Saunders Sebright, Bart. The testator has made provision for younger children, to each of whom is secured an annuity of £300, and the residue of the personalty is to be divided equally amongst them.

The will of Joseph Taylor, Esq., of Bishops Stortford, Herts, malt-factor and brewer, was proved in London on the 20th ult., by the executors, John Dobede Taylor and Henry Taylor, the sons. The personalty was sworn under £40,000. He has liberally provided for his sons and daughter. To his son John he has devised his residence and freehold at Bishops Stortford, Windhill, and other estates. To his son Joseph a pecuniary legacy is left. To his son Henry he leaves the brewery business at Saffron Walden. To his son Alfred he leaves the business at Bishops Stortford; to his daughter a farm and other property. The residue he divides equally between his sons John, Henry, and Alfred.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Dr. Hofmann's fourth lecture on the study of chemistry, given on Thursday, the 9th inst., began with experiments accurately demonstrating the composition by volume of the gas ammonia to be three volumes of hydrogen and one volume of nitrogen. He also proved that, when these four volumes were chemically combined, they produced only two volumes of ammonia, in consequence of their condensation. He then dwelt on the advantages of the employment of chemical symbols—such as H for hydrogen, O for oxygen, N for nitrogen, Cl for chlorine, &c.—adducing as examples H Cl, hydrochloric (or muriatic) acid; H^2 O, water: and H^3 N, ammonia. Taking hydrogen as the unit of weight, he next demonstrated the volume weight of hydrochloric acid to be 36·5; of water, 18; and of ammonia, 17. The latter part of the lecture was especially devoted to the exposition of the contrast of the properties of the preceding compounds with those of their elements. Hydrogen loses its inflammability in hydrochloric acid, in water, and in ammonia; oxygen in water is no longer a supporter of combustion; and chlorine loses its bleaching properties when combined with hydrogen. The elements retain their essential characters when only mechanically mixed; but take up new ones when subjected to the power of chemical affinity.

Professor A. C. Ramsay, F.R.S., gave the Friday evening discourse on the 10th inst., when, aided by views and diagrams, he considered the geological history of the oldest known rocks—the Upper and Lower Laurentian, and the Huronian, in Canada—and the remarkable discovery in them of the earliest known fossil, the Eozoön. For our knowledge of the character of these rocks we are indebted to the laborious investigations of Sir William Logan, the director of the geological survey of Canada. They have been divided into two unconformable groups—the Upper and Lower Laurentian; and in both divisions zones of limestone occur. In these limestone bands specimens of organic origin were discovered, consisting of layers of calcareous spar and a magnesian silicate. When slices of these specimens were examined microscopically by Drs. Dawson and Carpenter, they were found to consist of the remains of an organism which had grown in large sessile patches, increasing at the surface by the addition of successive layers of irregular chambers, bounded by walls of variable thickness, containing bundles of fine branching tubuli. Dr. Dawson named the animal Eozoön Canadense, and concluded it to be a foraminifer, allied to Carpenteria by its habits of growth, but of more complex structure. It had attained enormous size, and, by the aggregation of individuals, assumed the appearance of a coral reef. The depth of the strata containing them has been computed to be about 23,000 ft., and the superficial extent more than 200,000 square miles in Canada alone. Full details of the subject appear in the Journal of the Geological Society. Professor Ramsay considered in detail the physical, chemical, and mechanical questions involved in the subject, concluding with remarks upon the almost inconceivable lapse of time involved in the history of these remains, and the continually increasing evidence of the extreme antiquity of the commencement of life upon the surface of the earth. Sir Roderick Murchison was in the chair.

Professor Marshall, in his eighth lecture on the nervous system, resumed his exposition of the motor functions with the consideration of psychical movements—the combination of mind and matter, which he divided into three kinds—ideational, emotional, and volitional. When sensations are changed into perceptions they become the food of the mind by giving rise to ideas, which are acted upon by attention, memory, association, comparison, analysis, synthesis, and generalisation. Emotions are intellectual sensations, with motional accompaniments, and ideas and emotions are equally motive, reason acting on both. Action in the lowest animals, being brainless, is merely instinctive, reflex, or sensori-motor; but in the higher animals action is found to be more or less psychical in proportion to the size and development of the brain. Laughter was especially commented on, as being a sensori-motor act when produced by tickling, but as a psychical one when occasioned by ludicrous ideas, by emotions, or by the influence of the will (as by actors). Imitation, locomotion, and manipulation are special volitional acts. By the help of large coloured diagrams the parts concerned in these acts were fully described, the cerebrum, or brain, the hemispheres and their convolutions and structure, and the functions of each part discussed, reference being made to evidence based upon experiments and the phenomena of disease. The co-ordination of all our actions, so remarkable in man, was ascribed to the cerebellum, or little brain, which seems to act as a guide in these wonderful psychical movements. Paralysis, due to a portion of the cerebellum being injured or diseased, is a painful evidence of the importance of this regulating and controlling power. All these acts are associated with sensation and dependent on it.

Dr. Hofmann began his fifth lecture on chemistry on Tuesday last, with additional remarks on the distinction between the mechanical mixtures of two elements and their chemical combination, the latter taking place only in fixed definite proportions. He showed that mere mixtures of carbon and sulphur might be formed in various quantities and remain unchanged, and contrasted them with their chemical compound, sulphide of carbon, a colourless liquid. After referring again to the three compounds of hydrogen—hydrochloric acid (H Cl), water (H^2 O), and ammonia (H^3 O)—he proceeded to consider a fourth compound, marsh gas, formed in coal-mines, where its explosive properties produce so many accidents, and by a series of experiments proved it to be composed of four volumes of hydrogen and one of carbon (H^4 C). The compounds of nitrogen with oxygen were next discussed. Nitric acid (aquafortis) was shown by various processes to consist of two volumes of nitrogen and five of oxygen (N^2 O^5) and other combinations, with varying proportions of oxygen were produced by causing nitric acid to act upon tin, silver, copper, and zinc foil.

On Tuesday, the 21st inst., Professor Masson, of University College, London, will begin a course of three lectures on "Recent British Philosophy" (as represented by Hamilton, Mill, Whately, Buckle, &c.). On Friday evening, the 24th, Professor Westmacott will give a discourse on "How works of Art should be looked at."

A new journal has been started in Rio de Janeiro, published in the English language, the title of which is the Anglo-Brazilian Times.

The portrait of the Right Hon. W. N. Massey, M.P., Finance Minister for India, which appeared in our last Number, was engraved from a photograph by Messrs. John and Charles Watkins, of Parliament-street.

The Swiss journals state that an avalanche of snow, about half a mile in breadth, rolled from the Wiggis, in the neighbourhood of Righi, a few days back, into the valley, 2000 ft. below. The village was untouched, but three farms were swept away, nothing but the stumps of broken trees showing where they had existed. No mention of loss of life is made.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

P. J., Paris.—The Palamede Français for the present month has not yet been delivered.

I. L. B.—The old laws from which you quote have been considerably modified of late years. The present rule on the subject of false moves is as follows:—"If a player be guilty of a false move, by playing a Piece or Pawn of his own to a square to which it cannot be legally moved, or capture an adverse Man by a move which cannot legally be made, he must, at the choice of his adversary, either move his own or take the adverse Man legally, forfeit his turn to move, or play any other Man legally movable which his adversary may select."—"Chess Praxis," p. 19, rule viii.

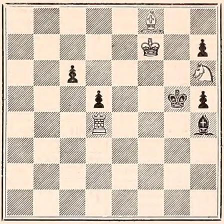
MATEO DE ZAMORA.—1. Your solutions are correct. 2. The key-move of Enigma No. 1444 is, 1. B to Q B 2nd. 3. If we mistake not, mate can be effected in your problem No. 14 by White playing, 1. Q to K R 4th, as well as by 1. Q to K B 4th. Is it not so?

WESTON.—There is nothing whatever problematical in such a position. The line of play is perceptible at a glance.

MAY OF CAIRNSFOOT.—All signatures appended to correct solutions, which reach us in time, are inserted in the ordinary list. It is impossible, except in the cases of foreign correspondents, to publish the signatures of those who send correct solutions after the list has appeared. When a correspondent has sent a correct solution and it is not acknowledged, he may always conclude that it either did not come to hand at all, or came too late.

W. M. W., Woolwich-common.—1. They key-moves of Enigma No. 1441 are—1, Kt to K Kt 6th; 2, Q to Q B 3rd (ch). 2. Of the other position you must be good enough to send a diagram.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1097, by Egmond, L.S., Fanny, T. M., Confederate, B. V., Lanfranc, Quidnunc, T. P. C., M. P., Cosmos; I. C., Knaresboro'; W. W. D., I. N. B., Dereven, F. C. S., H. W., Peter, Charley, Asper, D. C. L., George, Liverpoolian, C. W., Julie, A. M., Lobro, Box and Cox, Sally, I. B., Jemmy, W. S. B., Iota, L. H. Lofthouse, Banshee; I. Q., of Hampstead; Old Joe, F.R.S., A. Z., Query, R. B. C.; T., of Dunkirk; Milo, B. Dodd, R. M. E., Sigma, W. C., Etoniensis, Bath Archer, N. B., Clericus, Teddy, St. Botolph, Antony, Delta, Victoria, Knight, Civis, Nereus, Peon; May, of Cairnsfoot; Ladbroke, E. B. C., H. T. K., Gamma, Fosbrooke, S. M. Smythe, Clarendon, T. M. E., Miles, Black Rook, F. D., Ernest, T. Winchester, Kildare, Walpole; C., of Amiens; I. J., Ponder's End; Valentinus, H. E. K., Gulliver, Gil Blas, A. Z., 1865, Dorrington. A Compositor, Little Annie, John Halifax, Cantab; I. N., of Lyons; Dauntless, Southampton, John Gilpin, T. K. L., Publicola, Aurora, Schoolboy, W. Napier, Monitor; R. S., Malines, are correct. All others are wrong.



SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1098.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. B to K Kt 6th	Kt to Q 3rd	3. B to K 8th	Any move.
2. Q to K B 5th (ch)	Kt takes Q	4. Kt mates

PROBLEM NO. 1099.

By Mr. W. S. PAVITT.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN RUSSIA.

The following pleasant little Game was played, not long since, at St. Petersburg, between H. S. H. K. N., one of the most promising and distinguished amateurs of Russia, and the well-known player Mr. SCHUMOFF.—(Evans's Gambit.)

WHITE (H. S. H. K. N.)	BLACK (Mr. Schumoff.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q R 4th
6. Castles	Kt to K B 3rd
7. Kt to K Kt 5th

(This variation of the Evans's Gambit has somewhat gone out of fashion; which is to be regretted, for it often leads to many lively and instructive positions.)

7.	Castles
8. Kt takes K B P

(The usual move here is P to K B 4th, and the game then proceeds thus:—

8. P to K B 4th	P to Q 4th
9. P takes Q P	K Kt takes P
10. P to Q 4th	P to K R 3rd
11. Q to Q Kt 3rd	P takes Kt
12. B takes Kt	K P takes K B P
13. P to K Kt 3rd	Kt to K 2nd and the game is in Black's favour.)

8.	R takes Kt
9. B takes R (ch)	K takes B
10. P to K B 4th	B to Q Kt 3rd (ch)
11. K to R sq	P to Q 3rd
12. P takes P	P takes P
13. P to Q 4th

(The attack is maintained with unflagging spirit and great ability.)

13.	P takes P
14. P to K 5th

(The best play. From this moment, however, the assault is apt to break down, owing to White's want of sufficient pieces in the field.)

14.	Q Kt takes P
15. Q to K R 5th (ch)	Kt to K Kt 3rd
16. Q takes K R P

(B to K Kt 5th would have been less chivalrous but more effectual. By this valiant capture White lays himself open to the danger of being compelled to exchange Queens, a danger not to be despised considering his inferiority of material.)

16.	Q to Q 4th

(He ought rather, we think, to have forced an exchange of Queens by playing Q to K R 8th.)

17. B to K R 6th	B to K B 4th
18. Q tks K Kt P (ch)	K to K 3rd
19. R to K sq (ch)	K Kt to K 5th
20. Kt to Q 2nd	Q Kt to K 4th
21. P to Q B 4th

(Very well played.)

21.	Q to Q B 3rd
22. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt takes Kt
23. P takes Kt	P to Q 6th
24. R takes Kt (ch)	B takes R
25. Q R to K sq

(The finish and precision displayed in the terminating moves of this game would be creditable to the most experienced and proficient of players, and are truly remarkable in an amateur so young and unpractised as the conductor of this attack.)

25.	K to Q 3rd
26. B to K B 4th (ch)	K to Q B 4th
27. R takes B	R to Q sq
28. B to K 3rd (ch)	K to Q Kt 5th
29. Q to Q Kt 2nd (ch)	K to Q R 4th
30. Q to Q R 3rd (ch), and mates in three moves.

CHESS IN AMERICA.

A lively Skirmish between Messrs. ELDER and PERRIN.—(Scotch Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. P.)	BLACK (Mr. E.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. P to Q 4th	P takes P
4. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
5. Castles	P to Q 3rd
6. P to Q B 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
7. Q to Q Kt 3rd	B takes Kt
8. B tks K B P (ch)	K to B sq
9. B takes K Kt	R takes B
10. P takes B	P to K Kt 4th

(The right move; after which, the first player has an uphill battle.)

11. P takes Q P

(We should have preferred 11. Q to K 6th.)

11.	Kt takes P
12. Q to Q 3rd	P to K Kt 5th
13. B to K R 6th (ch)	K to K sq
14. P takes P	R takes P (ch)
15. K to R sq	Q to K B 3rd
16. P to K B 3rd	R to K R 5th
17. B to Q 2nd	R tks K R P (ch)
18. K takes R	Q to K R 5th (ch)
19. K to Kt 2nd	K to B 2nd
20. Q to Q B 4th (ch)	Kt to K 3rd
21. P to K B 4th	R to K Kt sq (ch)
22. K to B 3rd	Q to Kt 5th

Mate.

An equally smart Affair, between Mr. ELDER and Mr. ROBY.—(Giuoco Piano.)

BLACK (Mr. E.)	WHITE (Mr. R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. Castles	Kt to K B 3rd
5. P to Q Kt 4th

(R to K sq, or Kt to Q B 3rd, is preferable.)

5.	P to Q 4th

(Better, perhaps, to play B takes P, and, when the adversary answers with 6. P to B 3rd, to retreat the Bishop to K 2nd.)

6. P takes P	Q Kt takes Q Kt P
7. P to Q B 3rd	Q Kt takes Q P
8. P to Q 4th

(This move would have been more effective before the Q B Pawn was played.)

8.	P takes P
9. P takes P	B to K 2nd
10. R to K sq	Castles
11. Q to Q Kt 3rd	P to Q B 3rd
12. B to K Kt 5th	P to Q Kt 4th
13. B to Q 3rd	B to K 3rd
14. Q Kt to Q 2nd	Kt to Q Kt 5th
15. R takes B

(This is well conceived, and unlooked for.)

15.	P takes R
16. Q takes P (ch)	K to R sq
17. B to Q Kt sq	Q to K sq
18. Q to K R 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd
19. Kt to K 5th	R to K Kt sq
20. Q to K 6th	K to Kt 2nd
21. Kt to K B 7th	P to K R 4th

(He obviously could not take the Kt without losing his Queen.)

22. Q Kt to K B 3rd	B to Q sq
23. B to K R 6th (ch)

and mate next move.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

Royal Horse Guards: R. D. Steuart-Grossett-Muirhead to be Cornet.

1st Dragoon Guards: Cornet G. C. Childs to be Lieutenant. 4th: E. B. Hawkins to be Cornet. 5th: Lieut. E. Corbett to be Lieutenant.

1st Dragoons: First Class Vet. Surg. F. F. Collins to be Veterinary Surgeon.

8th Hussars: R. Mackenzie to be Cornet.

16th Lancers: W. C. Pullin to be Cornet; Vet. Surg. T. J. Richardson to be Veterinary Surgeon.

Royal Artillery: Staff Assist. Surg. R. Henry to be Assistant Surgeon.

2nd Foot: Major H. Y. R. Werge to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. J. Thompson to be Major; Lieut. E. L. Hercy to be Captain; Ensign J. Campbell to be Lieutenant; A. Evers to be Ensign. 8th: R. L. Fisher to be Ensign. 10th: Ensign R. S. Burgess to be Lieutenant; N. P. O'Gorman to be Ensign. 16th: Cadet W. F. Riddell to be Ensign. 18th: Staff-Surg. J. H. Lewis to be Surgeon. 21st: Surg. W. Stewart to be Surgeon. 24th: Lieut. E. H. B. Sawbridge to be Captain; Ensign W. T. Much to be Lieutenant. 31st: Capt. E. L. B. Lowry to be Captain. 33rd: Lieut. E. S. Wason to be Adjutant. 34th: Lieut. J. O. Gage to be Adjutant. 35th: Lieut. C. Spurgeon to be Adjutant. 39th: R. T. N. Beasley to be Ensign; Paymaster O. Nicolls to be Paymaster. 41st: Lieut. N. Montgomery to be Instructor of Musketry; Staff Assist. Surg. N. Norris to be Assistant Surgeon. 41st: Capt. H. M. Thompson to be Captain. 48th: Capt. J. R. Lovett to be Major; Lieut. R. Eyre to be Captain; Ensigns W. B. Beatty and J. Talbot to be Lieutenants; Ensign G. A. Lewes to be Ensign. 49th: Lieut. A. D. Fordyce to be Captain; Ensign C. P. Temple to be Lieutenant; W. L. Wreford to be Ensign; Lieut. T. C. Hincks to be Instructor of Musketry. 51st: Lieut. H. Chambers to be Captain; Ensigns R. R. Drought and W. H. Hume to be Lieutenants; Cadet H. C. M. Turnbull and C. E. S. Ruthven to be Ensigns. 60th: Lieuts. G. C. Kelly and M. Tilford to be Captains; Ensigns R. D. Elphinstone and G. L. M'Lean Farmer to be Lieutenants; Cadet W. Forster to be Ensign. 70th: Lieut. W. S. F. Feneran to be Adjutant. 74th: W. Montgomery to be Ensign. 88th: Lieut. L. C. Scott to be Captain. 92nd: Major E. E. Haines to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Brevet-Major F. M'Bean to be Major; Lieut. A. F. Mackay to be Captain; Ensign M. Hope to be Lieutenant; P. F. Robertson to be Ensign.

4th West India Regiment: Ensigns G. M. Marshall and T. V. Biron to be Ensigns.

Cape Mounted Riflemen: Lieut. W. C. Nicolson to be Captain.

UNATTACHED.—Lieut. J. J. N. Buchanan to be Captain.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—Surg.-Major W. H. Mackintosh, M.D., to be Staff Surgeon-Major; Staff Assist. Surg. F. L. G. Gunn to be Staff Surgeon; Assist. Surg. V. Maher to be Staff Assistant Surgeon.

BREVET.

The undermentioned promotions are to take place consequent on the decease of Lieutenant-General B. O. Jones, Colonel 73rd Foot, on Feb. 16, 1865:—Sir W. R. Mansfield, K.C.B., Colonel 38th Foot, promoted Major-General for distinguished service, to be placed on the fixed establishment of general officers; Brevet Major A. C. K. Lock to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. J. P. Stuart to be Major.

Lieut.-Cols. J. L. Barrow and J. D. Mein to be Colonels.

Capts. T. E. Anderson and T. H. Salt to be Majors.

ADMIRALTY.

Lieut. R. J. St. Aubyn to be retired Commander.

Mr. W. Herd to be Engineer in her Majesty's Fleet; Mr. J. Dingwall, Mr. J. R. R. Potam, and Mr. W. Hallowell to be First-class Assistant Engineers in her Majesty's Fleet.

The Earl of Clarendon, Earl Stanhope, and Mr. John Walter, M.P., have been elected governors of Wellington College.

His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief will hold a levée on Monday next, the 20th inst.

Mr. Rumble, the Admiralty inspector of machinery afloat at Sheerness, was acquitted, as our readers are aware, of the charge brought against him of enlisting men for the Confederate service in this country. His conduct in the matter of the Rappahannock appears, notwithstanding, to have given such dissatisfaction to the Lords of the Admiralty that they have removed him from his post and placed him on half pay.

An important addition to the British Navy was made at Woolwich Dockyard, on Tuesday afternoon, by the launch of her Majesty's armour-plated screw corvette Pallas, of six guns and 600-horse power, which was laid down in October, 1863, and has been constructed from the designs and under the personal superintendence of Mr. E. J. Reed, Chief Constructor to the Board of Admiralty. She will be completed for service as a full-rigged ship, and will have a crew of 250 men. The following are the dimensions:—Length between the perpendiculars, 225 ft.; ditto of keel for tonnage, 187 ft. 8 in.; breadth extreme, 50 ft.; ditto, moulded, 48 ft. 1 in.; ditto, for tonnage, 48 ft. 9 in.; depth in hold, 16 ft. 5 in.; height of port, 7 ft. 9 in.; mean draught of water, 21 ft.; burden in tons, 2372 ft. The weight of her 4½ in. armour-plates will be 600 tons, and of her guns 120 tons.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The adjourned general meeting of metropolitan commanding officers took place on Tuesday, at the rooms of the National Rifle Association, Pall-mall, for the purpose of receiving the report of the sub-committee appointed to investigate as to which will be the most eligible site for the forthcoming Easter-Monday volunteer review—Brighton or Dover. Lord Elcho presided. The report of the committee stated that they had duly examined the sites offered at Dover and Brighton, and that, although Dover presented many advantages, yet the distance and the character of the ground, a large portion of which was ploughed land, wholly unfitted for field-day evolutions, were insuperable objections; whilst the character of the ground, as well as the other conveniences connected with Brighton, rendered it, in their opinion, much more eligible; and they therefore recommended that the Easter-Monday volunteer review should, with the sanction of the War Office, this year be held at Brighton. Lord Ranelagh moved the reception and adoption of the report, and that, in accordance therewith, the review take place at Brighton this year. Lord Truro seconded the motion. Viscount Bury moved an amendment in favour of Dover; but, not finding a seconder, it fell to the ground, and the original resolution was carried unanimously.

The second competition in the match for riflemen in Britain, Canada, and India has been fired. Thirty-one squads signified their intention to compete in different parts of the kingdom, being double the number competing in January last. The conditions were 800, 900, and 1000 yards, ten shots at each range, and without "sighting shots;" the winners to be decided by the highest two scores out of four competitions, of which the next takes place in April. The weather happened to be stormy, especially in Scotland, where sleet and wind prevented any good scores being made. The best shooting was made in Lancashire, by members of the Altcar and Barton Moss clubs. The following are the highest scores on this occasion (120 marks being the total possible):—Captain Heaton, Manchester, 108; Mr. Fletcher, Liverpool, 107; Lieutenant-Colonel Halford, Leicester, 106; Mr. Miller, Bristol, 105; Lord Bolton, Bolton Castle, 103; Captain Maxwell, Liverpool, 102; Mr. Halsall, Manchester, 99; Mr. E. Cunliffe, Manchester, and Mr. Sproft, Liverpool, 98; Captain Field, Middlesex, 97; Captain Fenton, Manchester, 96; Mr. Formby, Liverpool, 95. One squad of five Manchester men made 488 marks, or an average of 97·6 per man.

The regimental challenge cup presented by Lieutenant-Colonel Cunliffe to be competed for by the marksmen only of the 33d Lancashire (2nd Manchester) was shot for last Saturday, on the range of the regiment at Astley. Colour-Sergeant Smith won the cup.

The construction of railways throughout Portugal and Spain is rapidly developing the resources of the Peninsula, and the rise of the Portuguese International Exhibition at Oporto is indicative of its progress. The Oporto Crystal Palace, now close on completion, will be opened, on Aug. 21 next, as a Grand International Exhibition, by the King of Portugal, who is president of the institution. It is a permanent building, constructed of masonry, ironwork, and glass; and, in addition to the exhibition of works of industry and art, it will comprise a music-hall, picture-gallery, school of arts and sciences, and museum. The building is 362 ft. long by 220 ft. wide, with annexe buildings, and is beautifully situated in ornamental gardens on the heights of Oporto, near the mouth of the River Douro, where it commands views of rare picturesque beauty. The building has been constructed from the plans of Mr. F. W. Shields, C.E.; the decoration of the interior is by Mr. Owen Jones; and the contractors for the ironwork are Messrs. Ormerod, Grierson, and Co., of Manchester. Arrangements are being made for the conveyance of works for exhibition from the principal seats of manufacture and art in Europe.

A Parliamentary return recently issued gives various particulars relative to the proposed new courts, offices, and buildings. It seems that the buildings in Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane, used now for the Registrars in Chancery, the Registrar in Lunacy, and the officers of patents, are to be transferred to the commissioners. The return of the courts and offices to be made available for other public purposes, or of which the rental is at present defrayed out of public moneys for buildings in the occupation of legal departments to be hereafter accommodated in the new buildings, is as follows:—The west side of Westminster Hall, now used as the Courts of Common Law, Equity, Probate, and Divorce; Temple and Serjeants' Inn, Chancery-lane, used for the offices of the Common Law Courts; Doctors' Commons, Great Knight Rider-street, used as offices of the Courts of Probate and Divorce; Doctors' Commons, Godliman-street, assigned to the Admiralty Registry; Rolls-yard, assigned to the Rolls House and offices; Rolls-garden, used as the chambers of the common-law judges; Nos. 33 and 34, Lincoln's Inn-fields, used as Insolvent Debtors' Courts and Land Registration Offices; and 7, Lancaster-place, employed as the Registry of Deeds by Married Women.

The Tithe Commissioners have issued their report for the year 1864, from which it appears that during that year they have received 7070 agreements and confirmed 6778. They have made 5648 draughts of compulsory awards and confirmed 5450; and of these one was received and one confirmed during the year 1864. In 12,228 districts the tithes have been commuted by confirmed agreements or confirmed awards. In 414 of these districts the rent charges have been disposed of by redemption or merger. The commissioners have received 11,787 apportionments and confirmed 11,782; of which one was received and two confirmed during the year 1864. They have made 3129 altered appointments, and confirmed 2697; and of these 180 have been received and 145 confirmed during the year 1864. They have received 1001 applications for the exchange of glebe lands and confirmed 908 of such exchanges; and of these thirty applications were received and thirty-eight exchanges confirmed during the past year. They have received 673 applications for the redemption of rent-charge, and have completed 485 of such redemptions; and of these 121 were received and seventy-seven completed during the year 1864. They have received nine applications to convert variable corn-rents, payable under local Acts of Parliament, into rent-charges to be henceforth payable in like manner as ordinary tithe rent-charges, and have completed awards in five of these cases. At the close of 1864 they had confirmed 14,679 distinct mergers of tithes or rent-charges.

NEW MUSIC.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions :—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Sung by Titiens. In A and G .. 3s. 0d.
" "Hero to Leander." An exquisite Song .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Lark Song." Vocal Waltz .. 3s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again !" .. 3s. 0d.
" Beauty Sleep (L'Ardita) .. 3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Baclo) .. 3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night .. 3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing .. 3s. 0d.
V. GABRIEL—Little Golden Hair .. 3s. 0d.
" Breeze and the Harp .. 3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps ! though not a star .. 3s. 0d.
" Ah, could I but re-live the past ! .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C .. 3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B .. 3s. 0d.
MORI—Rustic Song (River Sprite) .. 3s. 0d.
" Sunshine of love (ditto) .. 3s. 0d.
" Maid of the silver mail (ditto) .. 3s. 0d.
" Bright as love's dream. Duet .. 3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day .. 3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys ! Yo-ho !" In C, B, and G .. 3s. 0d.
" Innamorata d'una stella. Aria .. 2s. 6d.
" La luna è bella. Aria .. 2s. 6d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove .. 3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo ! says the gentle dove. In G and F .. 3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier ! In A and F .. 3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and C .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Chieftain's Wife," .. 3s. 0d.
" "In the hour of my distress." Sacred Song .. 3s. 0d.
ADAMS—When golden eve .. 2s. 6d.
SMYTH, R. A.—"Frappe Fort !" .. 3s. 0d.
PERRING—Beware ! .. 2s. 6d.
MACFARREN—I've watched him .. 3s. 0d.
" Wear this flow'r .. 3s. 0d.
" Duet : Ne'er yield thy soul .. 3s. 0d.
ROBERTI—Duet : Faintly flow .. 3s. 0d.
" Child's Vision. Duet. S.C. .. 3s. 0d.
BILETTA—Duet : I Tamburi .. 3s. 6d.
VERDI—"Swiftly thro' the West." Boat Song. .. 3s. 0d.
CAPT. COLOMB—"Up the Alma's Height." Song. .. 3s. 0d.

II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo .. 5s. 0d.
" Tarantelle .. 4s. 0d.
" Mazurka, Cracovie .. 3s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naiades .. 5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella .. 3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré .. 3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes .. 4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn) 2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s. ; Duet .. 4s. 0d.
" "Leah." Transcription .. 3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie .. 3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto .. 4s. 0d.
" Pandora. Bluette de Salon .. 3s. 0d.
SCHUMANN—Chanson dans le Jardin. Duet. Edited by Lindsay Sloper .. 5s. 0d.
SURENNE—Reverie d'Amour .. 4s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

MONTGOMERY—Starry Night Mazurka .. 3s. 0d.
DE VILLIERS—Donato Galop .. 4s. 0d.
" Donato Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
" Poppies Red Valse .. 4s. 0d.
CLARKE—Witches' Own Galop .. 3s. 0d.
COOTE—Merry Wives' Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
" She Stoops to Conquer, ditto .. 4s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Helvellyn Galop .. 4s. 0d.
" " Waltzes .. 4s. 0d.
" " Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
" Dark Eyes Valse .. 3s. 0d.
GIORZA—Limited Liability Galop .. 4s. 0d.
GODFREY—Coldstream Guards Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
WARREN—River Sprite Quadrille .. 3s. 0d.
" Sleeping Queen Quadrille .. 3s. 0d.

IV.—CHAMBER OPERETTAS.

Now ready, scored for Voice and Piano, with or without Chorus, and suited for private performance.

1. BRIDE OF SONG.—BENEDICT.
2. SLEEPING QUEEN.—BALFE.
3. PUNCHINELLO.—LEVEY.
4. JESSY LEA.—MACFARREN.
5. RIVER SPRITE.—MORI.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application. All New Music sent at Half-price.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer :—
28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut. 10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut .. 15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut 20 guineas per annum.
Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY (the Largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer :—
24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 5 guineas per quarter.
Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY, 201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE. 22 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small instrument. It has all the requisites of the best Pianoforte—check action, solid touch, agreeable tone. The case is of polished ash or pine. In practising on this Pianoforte the fingers of the player will be strengthened much more rapidly than on an old instrument loose in the key and worn in the hammer. In rosewood or walnut, 26 and 28 guineas.

Purchasers are particularly requested to observe that this instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or check action ; and that Cramer and Co. were the original manufacturers.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 165 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to direct attention to these extremely elegant and greatly admired new Pianofortes. Cramer and Co. have selected the very finest specimens, and they will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 150 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The cases are of walnut and rosewood, and very elegant. The tone and touch are everything that can be wished for. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. exhibit the largest selection to be seen in London. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, in Rosewood, 135 guineas ; in Walnut, 155 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. have selected from the manufactories of these celebrated makers the most perfect instruments, both as regards tone and touch, that have yet been produced. They are very greatly in advance of the older class of instruments, and come very near the power and fulness of the largest grand. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE new COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, at from 20 to 25 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the instrument becomes the property of the hirer without further payment. Hire paid quarterly.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they extend their system of three year's hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references and a quarter's hire in advance being the only indispensable preliminaries.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) manufacture for India a superior COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic bracings, and all other appliances necessary to resist the effect of extreme climates. Unusual skill and attention are bestowed upon the manufacture of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest commendation. Cramer and Co. deliver these instruments, f. o. b., packed in cases lined with zinc, at any home port, for 50 guineas. Size :—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in. ; width, 4 ft. 4½ in. ; depth, 2 ft. 1½ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

ERARD.—A NEW WALNUT GRAND PIANOFORTE, of very remarkable qualities has just been finished by Messrs. Erard, and placed in the Pianoforte Gallery of Messrs. Cramer and Co., 207, Regent-street. The power of tone of this magnificent instrument is even greater than that attained in the Pianofortes prepared especially for the public performances of M. Thalberg last season ; while the quality of tone remains pure and equal. The instrument may be inspected at Messrs. Cramers' Gallery. The price is Two Hundred and Thirty-five Guineas.

Other fine specimens of the manufacture of Messrs. Broadwood and Messrs. Collard are now also on view.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

BUTLER'S BRASS BAND INSTRUMENTS, Cornets, Saxhorns, Circulating Vibrating Horns, Drums, Fifes, Flutes, Clarinets, &c., are all manufactured on the premises and sold at prices much below any other English house. A written guarantee given with every instrument. Cornets from £2 to £5. Manufactory, Haymarket, London. Prices and drawings post-free.

CONCERTINAS.—ANGLO-GERMAN, £1 11s. 6d. : Mahogany, 20 keys, separately fitted, screwed notes, as the English ; fingered as the German. Catalogues of other qualities gratis.—JONES and SON, 6, Cross-street, Hatton-garden, E.C.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free,

---

HALF-GUINEA BOX of MOIST COLOURS and Materials for Illumination.
WINSOR and NEWTON, 38, Rathbone-place, London ; and all local Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£	s.	d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£	s.	d.
12 Table Spoons	30	11	0	0	12 Table Spoons	40	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9	7	6
12 Table Forks	30	11	0	0	12 Table Forks	40	15	0	0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	7	6	8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	9	7	6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	3	13	4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	4	0	0
1 Soup Ladle	10	3	13	4	1 Soup Ladle	11	4	2	6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	3	18	4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	4	16	0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		1	0	0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		2	2	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		2	10	0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		3	5	0
12 Tea Spoons	10	3	18	4	12 Tea Spoons	14	5	12	0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		0	15	0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		1	5	0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation ; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.

For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.
West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Fish-eating Knives. Fish Carvers for Lent.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

ATKINSON and CO., CABINETMAKERS, CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, UPHOLSTERERS, &c.
Every style of Drawing-room, Dining, and Bed room Furniture.
Walnut Drawing-room Suites, elegant and moderate in price.
Dining-room Sets in Oak and Mahogany. Polished Deal, every colour of painted Furniture, and Mahogany for Bed-rooms.
All Bedding made on the premises, and especial care is given to this important Department.
The Newest Patterns of Carpets, in Velvets, Brussels, Kidderminster, &c.
Blankets, Sheetings, Damask, Rep, and Pekin Cloths, and all other materials for Curtains.
Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post, or to be had by personal application.
Estimates given for every form of Furnishing Contracts for Public Establishments, Offices, &c.
Address, 198 to 210, Westminster Bridge-road, S.

DRAWING and DINING ROOM FURNITURE.—A walnut suite in velvet, 13 guineas ; a walnut suite in rich figured silk satin, 20 guineas ; a Spanish mahogany suite, 28 guineas ; a suite in solid oak, 33 to 37 guineas ; bed-room suite in polished white deal, for £8 14s. 6d.—N.B. Chimney-glasses, plate 50 by 40 inches, 4 guineas to 5 guineas.—ROBERT FISHER and CO., Wholesale and Retail Cabinetmakers, 32, Finsbury-place North, two doors from Finsbury-square.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES for ornamenting Chimney glasses, 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Tissue Window-blinds. Specimens and prices 2 stamps.—B. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

TRELOAR'S KAMPTULICON FLOOR CLOTH.
Manufacturer's Warehouse,
10, Ludgate-hill, London.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (opening to the Monument), London Bridge.

EVANS'S PRIZE KITCHENER.—This matchless Kitchener obtained a prize at the Exhibition of 1862. It is adapted for the cottage or mansion, from £5 5s. to £30 ; also larger sizes, for hotels, taverns, private and public schools, and hospitals, with steam apparatus, from £50 to £100 and upwards. Show-rooms—33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge ; Manufactory, 10, Arthur-street West, adjoining.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.—66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

NEW STYLE of CARRIAGE, to open and close at pleasure, invented and patented by LAURIE and MARNER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Union-street, and Tenterden-street, Hanover-square.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London ; by the agents in the principal towns in England ; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. A genuine fine old Port, 36s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid.—W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-street (corner of Bloomsbury-square), London, W.C. Established 1841.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 33, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

TONIC BITTERS.
WATERS' QUININE WINE,
the most palatable and wholesome Bitter in existence ;
an Efficient Tonic,
an unequalled stomachic, and a gentle stimulant.
Sold by Grocers, Italian Warehousemen, Wine Merchants,
Confectioners, and others, at 30s. a dozen.
Manufactured by Waters and Williams,
2, Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, London.
Wholesale Agents, E. Lewis and Co., Worcester.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
The best aliment for Breakfast.
Yellow wrapper .. 2s. 0d. per lb.
Chamois ditto .. 2s. 6d. "
Pink ditto .. 3s. 0d. "
Blue ditto .. 3s. 6d. "
Flavoured with Vanille.
Green wrapper .. 2s. 6d. per lb.
Lilac ditto .. 3s. 0d. "
Bronze ditto .. 3s. 6d. "
White ditto .. 4s. 0d. "
Sold, in ¼ lb. packets, by all respectable Houses.
Wholesale, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of
CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA,
in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

2280 AGENTS.—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This tea therefore secures general preference.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER. Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and for Pastry. Sold everywhere.

BROWN and POLSON'S
PATENT CORN-FLOUR,
Packets, 8d.,
for Children's Diet
and Light Suppers.

OSWEGO
PREPARED CORN
for
Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.,
Manufactured and Perfected by
T. KINGSFORD and SON, of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original preparation from the farina of maize, established 1848, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the consumer.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by artificial process.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1823. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation for making pure and delicate gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard-pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli. It is appreciated as a non-inflammatory drink, is excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success for rearing children by hand.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742,
or more than
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for more than a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that are recommended for family use are the Double Superfine and the Genuine, both of which can be obtained from most Family Grocers, in canisters of 1 lb. and ½ lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Manufactured for Laundry purposes.
26, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYOR TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE-POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers ; Wholesale, by Crosse and Blackwell, 21, Soho-square, W.

BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING-INK is by far the best for marking household linen, wearing apparel, &c. Price 1s. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c.—NOTICE. The genuine bears the address, "10, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.," upon the label.

FORTY YEARS of success have proved that nothing can equal OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA for restoring and strengthening the Hair, Whiskers, or Moustaches. Price 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per bottle.—C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London ; and all Chemists.

CURE FOR TOOTHACHE. BUNTER'S NERVINE gives instant relief, forms a stopping, and saves the tooth. Sold by all Chemists. 1s. 1½d. per packet ; or post-free for 15 stamps, from J. R. COOPER, Chemist, Maidstone.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN AND BUNION PLASTERS. Price 6d. and 1s. per box. Obtained through all Chemists.—Wholesale Manufactory, 31, Shaftesbury-place, Aldersgate-street, London.—Observe the Trade-mark, H. Y., on the foot.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER ; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st. ; Prout, Strand ; Butler, Cheapside ; Hooper, London Bridge.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that they have just received their NEW SILKS for SPRING. Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought in Lyons several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices. 300 Patterns post-free. Established 22 years. No connection with any other firm.

OWING to the facilities now afforded by the Postmaster-General, Messrs. NICHOLSON beg to state that they have greatly improved their system of sending patterns of Silks, &c., by post. Instead of the small pieces and necessarily limited variety which, from the expense of postage, could formerly be sent, they now undertake to forward, post-free, 300 PATTERNS of SILKS, each piece 3½ in. by 2½ in. in size.
These patterns comprise every colour and design now fashionable in London and Paris, and represent a stock of £20,000 in value.
NICHOLSONS',
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Coloured Glacés, 30 shades, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress. Reversible. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Broché and Chéné Silks, from 1½ guinea. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Moire Antiques and Corded Silks, from 2 guineas. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS. Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyon, Drap de Paris, &c., from 1 guinea a Dress. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boys' Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 15s. 9d. Useful School Suits, from 12s. 9d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 45 Engravings of New Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S REGISTERED SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF CLOAKS, unlike many sold, are really waterproof. Circulars, with hoods, 1 guinea ; ditto, with hood and sleeves, £1 5s. 6d. Patterns of the new tweeds of which they are made sent post-free.
NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

---

56 pages, gratis and post-free.
D. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to invite the attention of their foreign and colonial correspondents to their NEW PRICE-LIST, containing full particulars of every description of Silks, Dress Fabrics, Mantles, Shawls, Woollen Goods, Muslins, Calicoes, Prints, Ladies' Underclothing, Babylinen, &c. ; in short, all necessary information for ordering this class of goods from their London Warehouse, 50, 51, and 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Gros de Suez, all the new colours.
£3 9s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Best Spitalfields Ducapes, warranted to wear,
2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 6d., 4s. 11d. per yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DRESSES.—PATTERNS FREE.
Double Mohairs, Challis, Checked and Plain.
A large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES,
by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

BLACK SILKS (wear guaranteed), 3 guineas, 3½ guineas, and 4 guineas the Dress of 15 yards.—SEWELL and CO., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

NEW SILKS, DRESS FABRICS, &c.
GRANT and GASK invite an inspection of their large collection of new French Fancy SILKS, rich Silk Robes, Court Trains, Satins in all the new colours, Moire Antiques, made-up Skirts, Mantles, Shawls, Evening Dresses, Organdie Muslins, &c.
Several very cheap lots of rich Silk Robes and Fancy Silks, from 2½ to 4½ guineas Full Dress of 14 yards ; greatly under value.
Richest Moire Antiques, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
The Made-up Skirt Department contains a beautiful collection of Novelties for the Season.
Odd dress lengths of rich French Silks, very cheap, from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard, full width.
Several hundred pieces of French Brilliantines and Printed Cambrics much below the usual prices.
PATTERNS FORWARDED FREE.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street ; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

EIDERDOWN PETTICOATS. These Petticoats, now for many years honoured by Royal and Distinguished Patronage, are not to be surpassed for elegance, lightness, and comfort. List of prices on application.
W. H. BATSON and CO., 1, Maddox-street, Regent-street.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c. ; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W. ; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

LONDON : Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1307.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, MARCH 25, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

DEFENCE OF CANADA.

PUBLIC questions involving a known proportion of explosive elements turn up sometimes very inopportunely. One such, and an exceedingly delicate one, has just done so. The exposed, and, according to the opinion of some highly respectable authorities, the indefensible, position of Canada, in the event of war with the United States—which awful calamity may Heaven avert!—asks consideration at a very unfortunate time. It is a subject which the Government both in London and in Washington, and which the people of the United Kingdom and the people of the States, would have been glad to let remain on the shelf where it has been left unnoticed for a long course of years. Many and good reasons for avoiding, if it were possible, the discussion of it make themselves felt on both sides of the Atlantic. A turn of affairs, however, has unexpectedly thrust it upon public attention. Some practical decision in relation to it must be come to: and hence it is desirable to look it manfully in the face, to consider dispassionately its various bearings, and to do whatever sound statesmanship shall deem right to be done, in a frank, inoffensive, neighbourly spirit.

There are certain preliminaries which, we imagine, must be taken for granted. The first is, that this country would offer no obstacle to the assumption by Canada of formal, separate, independent nationality, if such should be her expressed will; nor, indeed, to the annexation of herself to the American Republic, if, through her legitimate constitutional organs, she should declare her preference for a transference of her troth. The days are long gone by since England would have thought it concerned either her interests or her honour to retain an unwilling colony. The second is, that so long as Canada wishes to preserve unbroken the tie which connects her with the British empire, England will not permit that tie to be severed by force from without. The leaders of political opinion of all parties have pronounced the opposite course incompatible with the maintenance of our national honour. The third is, that the mutual position of Canada and the United States is far different from what it was before the outbreak of the civil war. The Republic has become a formidable military Power, and, as such, inspires apprehensions which would have been groundless four years ago. In her present condition, Canada, apart from our protection, could offer no effectual resistance to an armed aggression by her neighbour: and therefore the tenour of her relations with the States would be mainly determined by the policy which the States' Government might think fit to adopt. With all the aid which England might afford her in case of a contest, her disadvantages would be many and serious. The question whether she can be rendered more secure, especially against the first brunt of a hostile invasion, seems an inevitable one. As against the military power developed by the neighbouring Republic, Canada is at present defenceless. If assailed, Canada is to be defended. How best may Canada be defended, on the understanding that England is to stand by her whenever need requires? This is the problem which is just now seeking solution.

Two plans are before the public. We shall not affect to strike a balance between their respective merits and demerits; this we prefer to leave to the judgment of our readers. All that we propose doing is to submit a general outline of each, and to state as clearly as we are able the arguments by which each is supported.

Her Majesty's Government propose, on the basis of Colonel Jervois's report, to put Quebec into a defensible condition by the erection of suitable fortifications, on the consent of the Canadians to do the same for Montreal and Toronto. Any attempt to hold the entire line of frontier would, it is assumed, owing to its great extent, overtask the strength of the colony and of the kingdom combined. It will not, therefore, be made. The strategical arrangement which Ministers recommend, as at once feasible and likely to prove effective, is the choice of these more vulnerable points for the purpose of making them impregnable, at least for a time. It is taken for granted that any invading force hurled against Canada by the United States would, in point of numbers, greatly overmatch such military force as we might permanently station in the colony, as well as any militia which the colonists could themselves raise and maintain. All that can be done at present is to secure against fearful odds the smaller army until the whole military strength of the United Kingdom could be rendered available against the aggressor. These proposed strongholds would, it is said, answer the purpose. On the approach of a hostile army formidable to be grappled with in the open country, every soldier in Canada would be placed behind stone walls, which would counterbalance the disparity of numbers. It would be hazardous for the assailants to penetrate the province, leaving these garrisons unreduced in their rear. They would be compelled, therefore, to sit down before them, and formally besiege them—an operation which would probably consume some months. In the meantime this country and all the colony—whatever amount of men it could command, and all the evil consequences of a surprise would thus be obviated.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES TO THE CHILDREN OF THE RAGGED-SCHOOL UNION AT EXETER HALL.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The other plan of defence, originally sketched by Mr. Lowe in the recent debate in the Commons and since supported by the Times, is as nearly as possible the opposite of that proposed by her Majesty's Ministers. It starts from the assumption that, should war unhappily break out between this kingdom and the Western Republic, Canada will be the first and former the worst possible battle-field within the whole range of her choice. As a base of operations, it would lie at a most inconvenient distance from the source of her supplies, with which, moreover, direct communication might be cut off for six months in the year; whereas, to the enemy it would be always accessible, being close at hand for any amount of men, commissariat, and ammunition which his exigencies might demand. While it would drain our strength, it would not in the least give opportunity to the United States to effect the greatest possible injury at the least possible cost. It offers, for these reasons alone, precisely the ground upon which the Republic would wish the conflict to be waged, and would be a grave strategical error for us to accept it. Our policy should rather consist in forcing the foe to employ all his available forces in distant quarters, in harassing him upon his own points, in putting him upon the defensive, and making him feel the largest share of the sacrifices and miseries inflicted by the scourge of war.

The arguments by which this proposal is sustained, besides those which are obvious on the face of it, may be thus concisely stated. It would enable us to withdraw at once the military force which we now maintain in the colony, which, it is alleged, is at present largely to excess of what would be sufficient enough to ensure safety. Modern artillery can speedily reduce the most solid fortifications, especially if isolated for several months together, as they would be in Canada; and the proposed fortresses, instead of preserving a secure shelter for an inferior force, would serve rather as traps in which the pick of our troops would be shut up and taken. Besides, if we once fairly commit ourselves to the scheme of defending Canada by fortifying her frontier, and keeping the war out of that undertaking, we become pledged to go through with it at any cost, and however impolitic. The works which we erect will be useless until they are armed, and, when armed, will be worse than useless without adequate garrisons. The expenditure required for them will not only be immediate, but must continue, even though peace should remain unbroken, through many years, and always on an increasing scale. We shall be sure to sink enormous amounts in the event of war, and in the event of peace, will be sheer waste, and, in the event of war, will compel us to adopt a line of defence which, above all others, we should strive to avoid.

Such are the two strategical plans now before the country. The first is in accordance with traditional ideas; the last is in bold defiance of them. The soundness of either of them will be judged of according to the habits and standards of thought most in favour with those to whom choice may at any time fall. Both of them have been framed with a view to the most effectual defence of Canada, should Canada be assailed. But Canada is exposed to aggression by the American Republic alone, and the only conceivable motive for aggression, or for the desire, through our province, to inflict a wound upon us. The pith of the alternative is, whether we shall cover our country and vulnerable points of commerce, to be worn at all times, or whether we shall trust to our own weapon of offence, and to our skill in wielding it, whenever driven to do so, just how and where it will be most dreaded. Some would not be sure safer under the first system, some under the last. Neither plan would afford a fair pretext for quarrel, nor, perhaps, would either present temptation. But it is urged on behalf of Mr. Lowe's suggestion that, while it would remove every pretext for cause for attack, it would present an assurance that, in case of the attack being made by her, she must look for the return blow where it will most painfully tell home upon her.

PRIZE-MEETING OF THE RAGGED-SCHOOL UNION.

THE twelfth annual meeting, in Exeter Hall, for the distribution of prizes to the boys and girls who, after being trained in the schools of the London Ragged-School Union, have distinguished themselves in services with good characters for twelve months or more, was held, under the presidency of the Earl of Shaftesbury, on Saturday last. The children, people, with their teachers, to the number of about 500, were entertained with tea and cake; the schools to which they belong were also ringuished by their respective banners, which had a gay and lively appearance. After tea, the ladies and gentlemen who take an interest in this matter being assembled on the platform, the proceedings commenced with a prayer and the singing of a hymn; and the secretary, Mr. J. G. Gent, then read a report, stating that, including the 520 prizes about to be distributed, 4076 had been awarded at the twelve annual meetings. The recipients of these prizes had been 4165 boys and 2891 girls; and of the 520 who were about to receive them, 93 had obtained prizes on former occasions, some of them three or four times. The value of these prizes was greater than might at first appear. The certificates had been found useful in assisting the bolder to obtain situations, and also to advance from a lower grade to a higher position. Mr. Wolfe, a ragged-school teacher, described the circumstances which brought and at the conclusion of his speech a hymn was sung, after which the schools, each accompanied by its banner-bearer, defiled across the platform, each teacher receiving from the noble president the certificates for his or her school. An illustration of this scene appears on our front page. After the distribution, there was some reckoning of piety by Mr. James Ernsshaw, with the result that seventeen and another hymn was then sung. Mr. Joseph Payne, Deputy Judge of the Admiralty Court, President, and Sir Robert Carden, barrister, also addressed the meeting, a vote of thanks was given to the Earl of Shaftesbury, and the proceedings ended.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Senate, on Saturday last, adopted the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne by a majority of 140 votes; and on Monday a deputation from the House presented it to the Emperor. His Majesty expressed his satisfaction that the acts of his Government were awarded so unanimous approval by the first body of the State, whose almost unanimous vote on the Address again showed the perfect union that existed between the Government and the elective representation.

The Address of the Corps Législatif in answer to the Speech from the Throne was read on Saturday. It entirely approves of the scheme and foreign policy of the Emperor. The debate on the Address will begin on Monday next. The election, on Monday, is conformity with the proposal of the Committee of Elections, has been declared valid by the votes of 55.

The Prince Imperial entered on his tenth year on Thursday week. He received on the occasion the Danish Order of the Elephant and a number of other decorations and presents. It appears that his Imperial Highness has arrived at an age at which, according to etiquette, he can wear the Order of the Golden Fleece. Accordingly, the collar and ensign of the Order were buckled—namely, M. Dubreuil, President of the Senate, on the part of the Emperor; Count Walewski, President of the National Guard of the Seine; General Fleury, Aide-de-camp to the Emperor; and Count Emilien Clermont, Master of the Horse, who, as in previous years, nominated a great number of rural Mayors to be Knights of the Legion of Honour. The Prince Imperial held a grand distribution of cakes at the charity schools. This feast of dainties is supplied by the Monileur. The enfants de troupe of the Imperial Guard and the Polite pupils, numbers 30 in all, were also received by the Emperor in the court of the Tuileries, the young Prince holding a review of them before the Empress. The boys were served to them, at which the Prince presided. Princess Mathilde gave a grand dinner on Thursday week, it being her birthday. The Empress accompanied the young Prince, the Emperor not being present.

The ball in aid of the British Charitable Fund will take place in Paris on Thursday next, the 30th inst., and will be under the patronage of their Excellencies Earl and Countess Cowley. The committee have secured the magnificent saloons of the Grand Hotel, and the most recherché preparations are being made for a grand display of splendour as those of last year.

Two journals, the Journal des Villes et des Campagnes and the Courrier de Dimanche, have received "warnings" during the week for comments on the Polish question. The Courrier de Dimanche has been seized, and is under prosecution for an article headed "La Dynastie de la Pologne." It is said that the papers have been seized on characters of the style of Napoleon III., the criticism bearing strictly on a matter of literary taste, and having no direct reference to politics whatever.

The Moniteur de l'Armée states that a commission of extraordinary size was sent, on Thursday week, at the Imperial order, to Metz. It is to consist of General Ney, and weighs 600 tons.

From Algeria we learn that the disturbances in the district of Babor have increased. Owing to the snow, the soldiers are not able to get into the district.

The Government has formally communicated to the Parisian public the news of the capture of Puebla, Mexico, by General Bazaine. Four thousand prisoners came at discretion into the hands of the French. The city and district are described, in other sources, that Perfirio Diaz, the Mexican General, had been shot.

SPAIN.

On Wednesday the Minister of Finance presented to Congress the Budget for 1865-6. The ordinary expenditure is estimated at 2,120,750,680 reals, and the extraordinary at 553,718,199 reals. The ordinary revenue is stated to be 2,120,750,680 reals, leaving a deficit to be covered by the proceeds of the sale of the national property. Mr. Salaverria, the Minister that the Court of the Spanish Ambassador to Francis II. of Naples has been appointed to the Court of Rome.

According to a telegram from Madrid the Government has come to a more resolute line of conduct in regard to 10 000 men.

The conflict between the Government and the members of the Opposition in the Chamber of Deputies, on the Minister of Finance and the Deputy Sanez Arbanzar exchanged mutually satisfactory explanations.

PORTUGAL.

The new Ministry has received a vote of confidence from the Chamber of Deputies. The debate on the organisation of the Cabinet was more pacific in the Peers.

The exposures of the Oporto exhibition were unanimously voted by the Cortes.

The capital and the provinces are generally tranquil.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel arrived at Turin on Monday.

On account of the diminution of brigandage in the southern provinces the military despotism in Sicily has been abolished.

Negotiations have begun at Turin between General La Marmora and M. Drouin relative to the proposed treaty between Italy and Switzerland.

PRUSSIA.

In the sitting, on Saturday, of the committee of the Chamber of Deputies upon the military budget, the War Minister announced that the Government would not accept the 2½ years' service by law, as recommended by the committee, on certain conditions, which he had before declared. The matter will be discussed by the Government and the Chamber would be settled. On Monday the War Minister made a counter appeal to the Chamber, to vote the army reorganisation schemes of the Government. If the House fails to do so, then the Government will be compelled no longer to "govern" out of Germany, and they might all look forward to the end of her greatness. In the discussion on the military budget in the Chamber on Tuesday, the Minister urged the necessity of placing Prussia in a position to repel any hostile attack by declaring that while he did not believe it was the intention of the Minister of Austria to assail Prussia at an early period, yet he would do so as soon as his interests demanded such a course.

RUSSIA.

Legal proceedings have been taken against eighteen members of the Assembly of Nobles in the government of Pskoff, who joined in the request of the Moscow Assembly for a representative system to be granted to Russia. The Tribunal of First Instance has delivered its judgment in the matter of the Moscow newspaper Vest (the Despatch), which published the address of the Moscow nobles. The new editor of the newspaper and Count Orloff Davydoff, Grand Master of the Ceremonies to the Emperor, have been sentenced to two months' imprisonment. It is believed that the superior courts will agree with the opinion of the minority of the Judges, who voted for a more fine.

The new "Territorial Assemblies of Russia," established on the model of the French Conseils-Généraux, have been opened.

The new press law proposed by M. Valouieff, the Minister of the Interior, has been rejected by the Council of Ministers.

GREECE.

Admiral Canaris has tendered his resignation. He has been replaced in the presidency of the council by M. Comoundouros, who also assumes the portfolios of Justice and Marine. M. Anagnios has been appointed Minister of the Interior. The other Ministers remain in office.

AMERICA.

By the Mercanian we have intelligence from New York to the morning of the 14th inst. The war news, which consists mostly of rumours, is confused, and in many cases contradictory.

Sherman's movements are surrounded with mystery, all the reports respecting his movements having proceeded from refugees, runaways, or scouts. Sherman is reported to have occupied Chowan, and is also said to have destroyed Chowan County, which was a centre for the assistance of Hawker. General Johnston is supposed to have attacked General Cheatham, and is said to have been defeated. The locality of the battle is, however, not given.

Nothing was certainly known of any Federal advance from Wilmington. It was announced at Washington that General Schofield had had an engagement in North Carolina. A body of Federals, subsequent from Newbern, was said to have arrived near Kingston, in North Carolina.

Admiral Dahlgren had captured Fort White, George Town, South Carolina, with fifteen guns. In making the attack, the Admiral's flagship was aground for two hours.

Sheridan, after a long period of inaction, appears to have given a great account of himself in the battle of Hatcher's Run, between Petersburgh and Richmond, against the Confederates. In the engagement the Federals, who are said to have had only ten men killed, captured Early's Staff, eighty-seven officers, 1100 soldiers, seven guns, and a large number of waggons.

Of the doings of General Grant and of General Lee there are nothing but rumours of the vaguest kind. Governor Vance had appealed to the people of North Carolina for provisions for General Lee's army, and was said to have declared that for some months General Lee's troops would be fed from North Carolina and Virginia farms.

The Confederate Senate has passed, by a majority of one vote, a Bill for raising negro troops, and that same majority had also had been even confronting the Federal pickets.

The inauguration of President Lincoln and Vice-President Andrew Johnson passed off with the usual ceremonies. The President never appeared to so much advantage. His excellent explanation of his country peace, with general approval, for a new term, but it is not difficult to prefer, from the Washington letters in the New York papers and the American producers of English journals, that the Vice-President was drunk—he hammered out a few broken sentences in tipsy pluralism of an hour's or a quarter's duration, to the unspeakable shame of all who heard the ceremony. The New York journals stigmatise Mr. Johnson's conduct, and some even call for his resignation.

Mr. Lincoln has been officially informed of England's approval of the recent Canadian measures respecting Southern refugees. The Canadian prospect order has been rescinded, and it has also been agreed not to remove the refugees on the lakes.

The Federal Senate has confirmed President Lincoln's appointment of Mr. M. Blair as Postmaster-General. The Constitutional amendment to abolish and prohibit slavery in the United States.

The celebration by land and by sea, which was to take place in New York on the 4th of March, but was postponed on account of the inclemency of the weather, has now been fixed, under circumstances of more than usual brilliancy and success. The display had cost 100,000 dollars in New York. The people of the States of California, Nevada, and Oregon also observed the day in an enthusiastic manner.

The United States Consul at Matamoras had left, and arrived at Brownsville, the reason of his expulsion being the seizure of cities of the Federal Government in Mexico by the British Minister.

On the 7th inst. an express-train from Washington for New York and a passenger-train from Philadelphia for New York came into collision. Sixty persons were killed and forty others severely injured. Nearly all the sufferers were soldiers, several of them being men and prisoners.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The scheme for a confederation of the British American provinces has been adopted by the House of the Canadian Parliament, by a majority of 91 votes against 33.

The Canadian Parliament has received a vote of thanks from Newbrunswick, where the confederation conditions have been defeated.

THE LOCK-OUT AND STRIKE IN THE IRON TRADE.

THE meeting at Birmingham on Saturday, and the delegate from the workers, held yesterday week, failed to bring about any satisfactory result. The South Staffordshire men are not yet unanimously represented by the executive formed of head delegates; and in their absence the masters did not think it possible for any satisfactory arrangement to be come about. Th conference, however, was fruitless.

The meeting of delegates held on Monday last at Heyday Hill did not constitute still a tribunal of appeal, as on Tuesday the executive council summoned them to the various districts, and to the trades committee in London, the result of that meeting. In the effect that no further conference would be made by the men in order to terminate the lock-out, but that they were willing to receive any overture that the masters might make about. The North Staffordshire men on strike have delegates at the principal seats of industry throughout the country, and these delegates are being daily requested to be by the trades societies.

It appears by the statement of the Brierley Hill Executive that there are upwards of 600 members upon the funds of that association, and an equal number upon those of the Amalgamated Society. This millman will in each upon their funds, making a total of 1800 men, with their families, requiring support. Subscriptions are coming in, but not in sufficient amount to meet the expected call. Delegates are reported as about to endeavour to encourage of this deplorable struggle.

A meeting of the masters' delegates was held, on Thursday evening, at the Queen Hotel, Bouverie-street, to consider the lock-out. Mr. G. Potter again presided. Delegates from the North and South Staffordshire Iron Trades Association were present. One of the speakers did not hesitate to recommend the trade to suffocation as the only way to get out the strike, and, ultimately, at the same time, their case to arbitration. A resolution was carried recommending "that the masters generally should take immediate steps to submit to arbitration, when the matters upon their shops and allow the men now on strike to return to work at once, and that the masters in the North Staffordshire district should be invited to co-operate with the masters in the Midland Counties in carrying out the above resolution."

The prices of cotton in Sicily promises to be abundant.

The Hon. Sir Frederick Bruce has been created a Civil G.C.B. on Mr. R. de Cosson, Secretary to the New York, a C.B.

The whole of the inhabitants of Florkenham, a village in Russia, have refused to take the vaccine which have just been by the Chamber of Deputies. The subscriptions above paid his taxes.

The Rev. James Hay Stevenson, Presbyterian, Esq., her Majesty's Consul at Reading, to be Consul at Pisa; and has approved of Mr. C. Tadeau as Consul at Cologne, for the King of the Belgians.

A revolution has broken out in Peru. President Prezet had been arrested. The treaty between Spain and Peru is alleged as the cause of the outbreak.

The King of the Belgians has decided on dismantling the fortifications of new Deventall. Antwerpen, and only Anderlecht, are invited to be retained on or before March 31, 1866. The best plan fit for a warded with a prize of 1000 florins, the three next best with 2000 florins, and the four next in order of merit with 1000 florins each.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

His Imperial Highness the Prince Imperial, having arrived at an age when—although an uncommercial traveller in the vale of life—he may "take orders," has had conferred on him, by the King of Denmark, the order of the "Elephant." It is to be hoped, for his Imperial Highness's sake, that the elephant is not a white one; else might a new chapter be written to Sir Bulwer Lytton's "What will he do with it?" Under what Pelions and Ossas of nonsense they do smother little-boy princes to be sure! I have seen in Voltaire's library, preserved in the Imperial Library at St. Petersburg, the copy-book used by Louis XV. when a child, with the famous head-line:—"Les Rois font ce qu'ils veulent: il faut leur obéir"—Kings do as they please: they must be obeyed. It strikes me that the grandson of Louis Quinze had another writing-master, who set very different copies, and wrote in nothing but red ink.

I was wrong, last week, in stating that the new novel of "Half a Million of Money" was destined for the forthcoming Shilling Magazine. For the periodical just named read All the Year Round. The authoress of "Half a Million of Money" is not the authoress of "George Geith," but Miss Amelia B. Edwards.

Chang, otherwise Sing-woo-bah, the great Chinese giant, is coming. It is time. We have had rather a surfeit of dwarfs lately; and, by way of a change, it might be as well to try a course of monstrosities running large. When Captain Lemuel Gulliver was tired of Liliput he went to Brobdignag. Sing-woo-bah, is said to have been last seen abroad at Shanghai, on the night of the last full moon, looking over a wall seven feet six inches high. He is to be accompanied by a pianist, and a suite of Chinese servants, from the comprador to the shoe-sole chalker. Chang, alias Sing-woo-bah, will, doubtless, draw. A giant, however, labours under this disadvantage, that, beyond wearing a field marshal's uniform, selling photographs of himself and grinning in an idiotic manner, he is seldom able to do anything. Now a dwarf, as a rule, can be taught to sing, dance, recite, and attitudinise, and is often, as the Yankee showman called his kangaroo, "an amoozin' little cuss," and as full of tricks as a waggon-load of monkeys with their tails burnt off. I remember once, in New York, trying very hard to persuade P. T. Barnum to get up an ethnological tea-party and invite to meet the subscriber, the Irish and French giants, the Nova Scotian giantess, the Albino Family, Commodore Nutt, Minnie Warren, and the Wild Man of Tehuantepec, all of whom were at that moment among the attractions of his marvellous museum on Broadway. The great showman did not disapprove of the idea, but he pointed out to me its impracticability. The dwarfs, he explained, were so very irritable, and the giants were such fools.

The which reminds me of a little anecdote of P. T. B., who is one of the dryest humourists I ever met with, and "not half a bad fellow," as fellows go. On board the river-steamers in the States they feed you for a moderate outlay (seventy-five cents a meal) very sumptuously, but the portions supplied are usually of microscopic dimensions. Barnum had taken passage by one of these stately Noah's arks, say, from Albany to New York. He called, at tea-time, for a beefsteak. The negro brought him the usual little, shrivelled mite of broiled flesh, certainly not sufficient for more than two mouthfuls. Barnum poised the morsel on his fork, scanned it critically, as though it were a sample of steak submitted to his inspection, and then returned it to the waiter, saying, "Yes; that's what I mean. Bring me some of it."

I was dining lately in the presence of a modest, self-contained young gentleman, who, I was given to understand, was a member of the Stock Exchange. At a later period of the evening this young gentleman took from his pocket and laid on the table a small and shining pair of handcuffs. He did not, however, prove to be Inspector Tanner, and didn't "want" anybody; but I understood that he was willing to allow any one present to handcuff him, lock the manacles, take away the key, and that within a given time he engaged to extricate his wrists from the tightly-compressed "darbies." He turned out eventually to be the celebrated stockbroker who can untie more knots than the Davenports ever dreamt of, and who states that he is able to get out of a deal box, locked and corded, and having the very knots of the cord sealed. The waggish correspondent of a contemporary has inquired whether he can get into a box, similarly secured, having windows in it, and placed under the surveillance of the City police, all without detection. The answer to this question should, I opine, be "Walker." The Stock Exchange gentleman claims, however, no spiritualistic power, and attributes all the phenomena he produces to simple legerdemain. Why not? The resources of passe-passe are infinite. All our investigations have hitherto failed to detect the trickery of the serpent charmers of India, and the magicians who, in the space of ten minutes, will make a tamarind-tree grow in the middle of a barren compound; but that these feats are tricks, and nothing more, the very conjurors themselves admit. The Davenports have certainly succeeded in slipping out of the most marvellous nodes; but, happening to purchase lately an etching representing the hundred and fifty acrobatic feats of the famous "Polander," who was the delight of our great-great-grandmothers, I was fain to confess that strong men lived before Agamemnon. The Davenports can escape from knots which others tie; but the Polander—to judge from the diagrams in the engraving—could tie his own body into more knots than there are in a cat-o'-nine-tails.

Ropes, handcuffs, accordions, trombones—tutta la baracca; they are all but the "properties" and accessories of the great drama of Sensation. I was speaking of etchings. I saw one the other day, by I. B. Leprince, dated 1769, with the title, "The New Art of Dramatic Poetry." A young lady, attired partly as a ballet-girl and partly as one of the Furies—that is to say, her skirts were short and her hair long and full of snakes—was drawing a curtain before the busts of Corneille, Racine, and Voltaire, and trampling their works under foot; while from the murky distance came trooping up a gloomy crowd of shrouded phantoms, surrounded by racks, gibbets, tombstones, dungeon-bars, and whipping-posts. From all which I conjecture that the French drama was thought to be in a bad way in 1769, that the legitimate was at a discount and sensation all the rage. But is there anything new under the sun? The fashionable world of Paris are going mad over a stout lady called "Theresa," who used to sing chansons grivoises at a beershop on the Boulevards, and sings them now, at the rate of five hundred francs a stanza, in the saloons of the Faubourg St. Germain. They went just as mad, three years ago, over Le pied qui r'mue; ten years ago, over "Le Sire de Framboisy;" a hundred years ago, when they flocked to the wineshop of Ramponneau to hear the minstrelsy of the ruisseau chanted by forts de la halle. Theresa's songs are immoral; but I never heard a French song that wasn't.

And the mania for red hair! All Paris is under the influence of La lune rousse. I forget at how many pounds sterling (in francs) per ounce carroty locks are selling at Paris. I don't see why ladies shouldn't wear false red hair if they choose. The Monna Lisa had red, or rather crimson, hair. Queen Elizabeth took delight in a tremendous "front" of fiery auburn. The ladies—ces dames, I mean—of ancient Greece affected purple hair. In this country nature has been somewhat too liberal of red hair to render it likely that it will ever be considered an adornment; but the English Pyrrha seems, nevertheless, determined to be as radiant in her chevelure as her French rival. The Fair One with the Golden Locks is no longer to remain the heroine of a fairy tale. I note this advertisement:—"To Ladies.—La Grande Mode.—The fashionable diamond-and-gold powder for the hair, as used by the French Court. Sold in boxes at two-and-sixpence; or, post-free for thirty-two stamps."

"Watch this Frame!" Well, we all watched it, and there came out, at the Haymarket, Mr. Watts Phillips's "Sensation In Three Spasms." But watch any fashionable street at the West-End, any afternoon you please, between the hours of four and six, just now, and you may become aware of the symptom of the last new fashionable spasm. Wherever you see a long line of grand carriages and broughams stretching away from a grand mansion, without any apparent cause for their presence, such as a theatre, exhibition, or fancy fair in the neighbourhood, you may be certain that in the mansion aforesaid they are "beating the kettledrum." What is the kettledrum? It is an afternoon conversazione; a rout by daylight; a "breakdown" without any dancing, held between lunch and dinner time. It has been found that the lions most sought after just now—the Vámbérys, Burtons, Livingstones, Barlows, Boyds, et hoc genus omne—are so overwhelmed with invitations to breakfast, lunch, dinner, and supper, that an additional pretext for festivity has been discovered, and the Upper Ten Thousand have taken to asking the lions to tea.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The approach of spring, so full of hope and promise in the material world, is invariably looked forward to with the most ardent expectations on the turf. Each meeting in succession, generally speaking, brings out some fresh wonder or topic of conversation; and in this year of 1865 the Warwick Spring will be memorable for the removal of Breadalbane from his fictitious position in the Two Thousand to his proper place in the quotations on the great Newmarket race. It is said that his owner made no secret of his intentions anent his new purchase, and that, however deeply the public may have involved themselves in speculating at such ruinously short odds, they have nothing to charge him with in the way of breach of faith, as he has never intimated that he should run him over the Rowley mile. Blair Athol made for himself a name last year that will never be effaced from the memory of racing men; and, according to the reports of those who are allowed to be among the very best judges out, his brother, Breadalbane, is likely to even eclipse him. He is pronounced to be the most extraordinary mover ever seen on the Yorkshire wolds—that he is ever so many pounds better than "Blair" was at the same period of the season last year. The racing at Warwick has been noticeable only for its small fields, except in one instance—the Two-Year-Old race—on Wednesday, wherein fifteen ran. The model little racehorse Qui Vive again spreadeagled the lot opposed to him; in fact, he shot out like a rocket the moment the flag fell, and it may be said that he completed the three furlongs quite by himself. The weather was something frightful; ice an inch thick, and a north-east wind so bitterly cold and searching that, even in the stand, the spectators were so benumbed that articulation was difficult. Custance, who piloted Thormanby to victory in the Derby of 1860, had his first mount of the year on Qui Vive, not a bad omen for a season so pregnant with big events. This jockey ought surely to have a retainer for something at a short price for the Blue Ribbon of 1865. The scratching of Arkansas for the Great Warwickshire Handicap at two o'clock on the day of the race brought down upon the head of his noble owner such volleys of hard words that we wonder how his Lordship could have gone to sleep that night without fancying that all his limbs were comminuted. The excuse, forsooth, was that the stake was not "good enough." It was thought good enough, however, to commission men to go into the market to bring the horse to a short price; and, after an unusual quantity of "milk" had been got at, even as low a price as two to one on him, the horse was scratched. Such things invariably bring their own retribution; and, in the hands of an upright handicapper, a certain interest in Saunders's stable will not be overlooked.

We hear that, in consequence of ill-health, Mr. Davenport will retire from the mastership of the North Staffordshire Hounds after this season. The hounds will now, we believe, become a subscription pack; they will still belong to Mr. Davenport, and Colonel Buller, of Dilhorn, is spoken of as a likely master.

Five out of eleven Waterloo dogs met in the Altcar Club Cup, which was won, for the third time, by Chloe, beating Jim Mace in the run-up. Mr. Jones has owned the runner-up on each occasion. Sea Pink was beaten in the first ties; and Isaac, a very promising dog, won the Croxteth Stakes. The ground was so hard on the morning of Tuesday that the Scottish National Meeting did not begin before twelve o'clock. Calabaroono was not entered for the Douglas Cup, in which neither King Death nor Clasper won their first courses; but Rebe, Johnny Cope, Glendower, Gunboat, &c., were more fortunate. They had two courses, and then were obliged to leave off, owing to the frost.

Queen Mary, the dam of Blink Bonny, is said to have been sold to Mr. Chaplin, the owner of Breadalbane. Caller Ou is not going to the stud this season; but Mr. I'Anson has taken a subscription for her to Newminster in 1866.

WARWICK SPRING RACES.—TUESDAY.

Trial Stakes.—East Lancashire, 1. Catalogue, 2. Stockinger, 3.
Handicap Plate.—Gownsman, 1. Tragedy, 2. Eugenie, 3.
Willoughby Handicap.—Buckfoot, 1. Stanton, 2. Manchester, 3.
Stand Handicap.—Golden Dust, 1. Wild Duck, 2. Hawkshaw, 3.
Sweepstakes of 25 sovs.—Qui Vive, 1. Sweet Anne, 2.
Racing Stakes.—Bavaria f., 1. Vicksburg, 2. Princess Dagmar, 3.
Farmers' Plate.—Snowball, 1. Idle Girl, 2. Idle Boy, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Debdale Stakes.—Diana, 1. Constancy, 2.
Welter Handicap.—Gemma walked over.
Two Year Old Stakes.—Qui Vive, 1, Proserpine, 2. Variety, 3.
Great Warwickshire Handicap.—Stanton, 1. Gibraltar, 2. Buckfoot, 3.
Walton Handicap.—Tragedy, 1. Dead heat between Gemma and Belgrave for second place.
Union Hunt Cup.—Little Goy, 1. Byfield, 2. Diana, 3.
Selling Race.—Sister Mary, 1. Alvediston, 2.
Handicap Hurdle Race.—Knave of Trumps, 1. True Heart, 2. Deception, 3.

THURSDAY.

Scurry Handicap.—Regenerator, 1. Gemma, 2. Sister Mary, 3.
Handicap Plate.—Gownsman, 1. Wild Duck, 2. Godmersham, 3.
Hunt Cup.—Jessie Brown, 1. Eily O'Connor, 2. Winner objected to.
Grand Annual Steeplechase.—Emblem, 1. Alcibiades, 2. Old Squire, 3.
Handicap.—Neilgherry, 1. Catemus, 2. Vicksburg, 3.
Handicap Steeplechase.—Marble Hill, 1. Sir Bobby, 2. Strike, 3.

THE FARM.

The Hypothec Commission continues its labours in Edinburgh. So far, the evidence is pretty well balanced, with the East Lothian and Forfarshire farmers on one side, and the landlords, the factors, and the tenants of smaller holdings on the other. The former contend that if the law were abolished landlords would place their farms in the hands of men with capital, who would not be subject to competition from mere men of straw; while the latter consider that the abolition would not only reduce the price of land, but extirpate the very useful class of small farmers, to whose sons agriculture has to look for its regular supply of ploughmen and bailiffs. There is a good deal of wild speculation, as well as lack of money, among the grain-growing farmers. Not long since, the highest offer was refused by a factor for a farm because it was £80 beyond what a prudent man would give; and many farmers are so reduced that they cannot buy stock, but let out their turnips, with the use of their straw-yards, entirely to dealers in cattle and sheep.

There is not much shorthorn news in Scotland. Mitchell's Pearled (a purchase at the Towneley sale), Stirling's Vesta, and, we believe, Barclay's Englishman, are all dead or slaughtered; Lord Kinnaird's Lord Privy Seal, the sire of Great Seal, has been exchanged with Mr. Cruikshank for Windsor Augustus. Booth's Sir Samuel has succeeded Lord of the Hills (who was there only a short time) at Mitchell's of Alloa, whose bulls, Stonehenge (a son of Mistletoe) and Thane of Fife have both won first prizes at the Four Counties Show. The Duke of Montrose's Flower Girl, a first-prize heifer at Worcester, has a Fashion calf, and his Grace's May Morn seems destined for the butcher. The annual Galloway bull sale took place at Castle Douglas on Monday. Prices were still higher than last year; and the average for forty-nine bull stirks was £17 13s. The Duke of Buccleuch's factor was the highest purchaser, at £28. The head prizes in the older bull classes were won by Messrs. Shannon and Cunninghame; and that in the bull stirk class, in which there were fifty-nine entries, by Mr. Wallace. The celebrated grey horse Comet, now sixteen years old, took the gold Challenge Cup at Aberdeen last week. The General was beaten in the blood-horse competition by "Yellow Jack by Marlborough, sire of Blink Bonny, the dam of Blair Athol," as his owner at least describes him. This pedigree of the Derby and Oaks mare is certainly an original one.

The excessive cold and frost of the last fortnight has weakened the Cheviot ewes more than all their winter hardships; and flockmasters in the southern counties of Scotland are looking forward with fear and trembling to the lambing time. The ewes have to be helped along to a very great extent with hay and corn; but vegetation generally has been so much checked that even the blackfaces, in many parts, have been unable to hold their heights, and have been collected and driven down for food on to the turnips and the low-ground pastures.

A very salutary change has just been made in the Highland Society's prize list, to the effect that "fleeces must not be artificially coloured." One very great prize-winner was in the habit of ruddling all his Cheviots, and therefore many of his competitors felt bound to do so in self-defence, till the classes were full of red rather than white wools. The Society meets at Inverness this year, and the show will be open on the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd of August. In each of the shorthorn, West Highland, and polled sections £125 is given in money, along with six bronze medals; and £229, as well as one silver and eleven bronze medals, will be awarded to horses and ponies. The Southdown classes are retained, and there are four prizes for shepherds' dogs, a new feature in the society's lists. Among the prize subjects proposed for next year is "An approved Report on the Dietaries of Scotch Agriculturists, &c., stating the actual weight of each kind of food consumed in a week by the labourer and his family, with suggestions for improvements in the dietaries and mode of cooking." In many districts the present cheapness of bread is doing much to drive out oatcake.

In the Shetland Isles the show of seeds has been half as big again as it was last year, and Messrs. Bruce and Walker were the principal winners. There were no less than fifteen entries for "Green Tops."

COUNTRY NEWS.

Mr. J. Hannay has been appointed Recorder of Pontefract.

Good cider is selling in the west of England at three-halfpence a quart.

The Emperor Napoleon has sent two magnificent porcelain vases to a bazaar at Armagh in aid of the restoration of Armagh Cathedral.

The Queen has approved of M. Albéric Allon as Consul at Birmingham for the Emperor of the French; and of Mr. Henry Loftus Allen as Consul at Dublin for the Sultan.

The statues of Allan Ramsay and Professor Wilson, both by Mr. John Steell, have been placed on their pedestals at Edinburgh. We intend to give engravings of these two statues next week.

The Dublin Exhibition Palace will soon be ready for the reception of goods. The northern and western galleries have been tested as to their strength by drawing large boxes containing cannon-shot, weighing fourteen tons, over every part of the surface. The result was most satisfactory.

Mr. Watkin, M.P., addressed a meeting of his constituents, at Stockport, on Wednesday night. At the close of the address, a vote of confidence was passed to the hon. member and his colleague, Mr. J. B. Smith, who was absent through indisposition.

Her Majesty intends to contribute a number of valuable works of art to the exhibition of the oil and water colour paintings, articles of virtù, and works of special local interest, which the committee of the Windsor and Eton Literary and Scientific Institution are about to collect in the Townhall, Windsor.

The election of a member to serve for North Wilts, instead of Mr. Sothern Estcourt, resigned, took place at Devizes on Monday. Mr. Fowler was nominated in the Conservative interest, and Lord Charles Bruce in the Liberal; but, as Mr. Fowler declined to go to the poll, Lord Charles was declared to be duly elected.

The Lord Lieutenant and Lady Wodehouse gave the usual ball in honour of St. Patrick's Day, yesterday se'nnight, in Dublin Castle. An unusually large number of nobility and gentry were present. The ball was opened at half-past ten by his Excellency, who led off the Marchioness of Drogheda to the air of "St. Patrick's Day." Lady Wodehouse danced with the Hon. Henry Leeson, Chamberlain.

Six persons at York adopted a singular method of taking possession of property to which one of them considered himself entitled. They proceeded to the residence of a gentleman named Barstow, and by main force turned him out. When, later in the day, M. Barstow returned to his house armed with a warrant and assisted by the police, he found that the interlopers and a large number of villagers had examined all the rooms and regaled themselves at his expense. Plate, money, and securities to the amount of nearly £100,000 had not been touched. At the York Assizes, on Tuesday, the six men were sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

There is a case pending in the Scotch courts ("M'Leod v. Leslie and others") in which it is asserted by the plaintiff that a marriage contract of the late Mr. Leslie, of Denbigos, in Banffshire, under which he and his children, as representing Mrs. Leslie, are entitled to a sum of £20,000, has been improperly concealed or destroyed. In the pleadings it was stated that a packet which from its size and shape might have contained documents of the missing description, was buried with Mr. Leslie in his coffin. The plaintiff maintains that he has proved his case by showing the tenour of the lost writings without the necessity of disturbing the grave, but left it to the Court to determine for themselves whether such a step should be adopted. The Court decided to have the grave opened, and have accordingly ordered the Sheriff of Banffshire "to take such steps, and after such notice as he shall consider proper, to have the grave of the deceased, Hans George Leslie, opened, and to search for the parcel, and if found, to examine the contents thereof, so as to ascertain whether it does or does not contain the writs or either of them, and to report the result of the search."

The official returns of emigration from Liverpool during last month have been completed by the emigration officers, to be laid before the Board of Trade. From these returns it appears that there has been a large falling off in point of numbers in February last, as compared with the same month of last year. In the month just ended, eighteen ships, carrying in all 4956 passengers, sailed under the provisions of the Passenger Shipping Act, of whom 3842 were steerage and 214 were cabin passengers; only two classes being recognised by the Act. Besides these, ten ships, carrying 348 passengers, also sailed during the month, not under the regulations of the statute referred to. Of the eighteen ships sailing under the provisions of the Act, fourteen were cleared for the United States of America, carrying 2655 steerage and 189 cabin passengers. The steerage passengers consisted of 831 English, 93 Scotch, 137 Irish, and 424 from other countries. For New South Wales there sailed one ship, with 398 steerage passengers and one in the cabin. The steerage passengers included 52 English, 24 Scotch, and 322 Irish, but none from other countries. To Queensland, one ship was dispatched with 422 steerage and 23 cabin passengers. The steerage passengers consisted of 30 English, 3 Scotch, and 389 Irish, but none from other countries. For Victoria, two ships were dispatched, carrying 367 steerage passengers and one in the cabin. The steerage passengers numbered 172 English, 9 Scotch, 183 Irish, and three from other countries. Of short ships, as they are technically called—that is, those which do not sail under the provisions of the Passenger Shipping Act—five sailed for the United States, carrying 244 passengers; for Vancouver Island, one ship sailed, with 9 passengers; for Victoria, one ship was dispatched, with 24 passengers; and for South America, China, and Africa, three ships, with 71 passengers. The total number of passengers who left Liverpool last month, it will therefore be seen, was 4404; in February of last year the number was 7628, thus showing a decrease on the month of 3224 as compared with the same month's emigration in 1864. In January of this year the number of passengers who sailed from Liverpool was 2277.

The View of the Holyhead Breakwater, in our last Number, was engraved from a photograph taken by Mr. Thomas Brown, of Rhyl, North Wales.

The gale which visited us on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday proved destructive at various points. As usual, the north-east coast suffered severely. Hundreds of vessels made for, and succeeded in reaching, the Tyne; but several brigs and schooners were lost, and in more than one instance human life was lost. From Shields we learn that the schooner Quickstep, of Exeter, in coming into harbour, was thrown by the sea on to her broadside, and it was thought she would founder, but she was driven safely into port. Her mate was drowned and his brother badly hurt. A Yarmouth schooner, name unknown, lost her mate overboard; and a coal brig, the Burton, of Colchester, was driven on the foundation of the North Pier. The Coastguard Brigade fired a line between her masts; the crew had taken to the rigging. While a sailor lad was endeavouring to lay hold of the rocket-line, the vessel knocked her bottom out, fell to pieces and all hands were drowned, except the mate, in the presence of thousands of spectators who crowded the pier. The mate, George Hazell, was picked up, floating upon a deck-plank, by the Constance life-boat, belonging to the National Life-boat Institution. He was very much exhausted when landed, but he has recovered. As the brig Border Chieftain, of Hartlepool, coal laden, was coming in, a sea carried away her steering-wheel, injuring the man at the helm. She was then driven on the stones south of the North Pier. The Constance life-boat soon reached the vessel, and succeeded in taking off the captain, crew, and pilot, including the injured man, in all, eight men. The Lowestoft life-boat, in connection with the institution, was also the means of rescuing the crew of seven men from a Danish schooner. The Arklow life-boat of the society, in going over the bar at that place, during a hurricane, to the assistance of a vessel in distress, was driven against the pier-head, and her gallant crew had a narrow escape of their lives. The St. Ives (Cornwall) life-boat, belonging to the institution, saved two men from the brigantine Eclipse, of St. Ives, the remainder of the vessel's crew having been previously saved by a shore-boat. The Wexford life-boat, of the institution, also rescued one man from the schooner Teaser, of Goole. The remainder of the crew and two women were, unfortunately, drowned before the arrival of the life-boat. The institution's life-boat at Dundalk likewise rescued the crew of seven men from the schooner Delila, of Nantes. In the River Thames, at Blackwall, some laden coal barges, to the number of about sixty, which were anchored in the river waiting to be taken to various wharves above bridge laboured much, and finally went down at their moorings. A number of slight accidents, both to person and property, occurred in various parts of the metropolis, arising from the force of the gale. The wind blew from the steeple of St. Bride's Church, Fleet-street, one of the ornamental corners, weighing about a quarter of a hundred weight. The piece of stone fell upon the roof of the vestry-room, through which it passed to the floor and broke into three or four pieces.

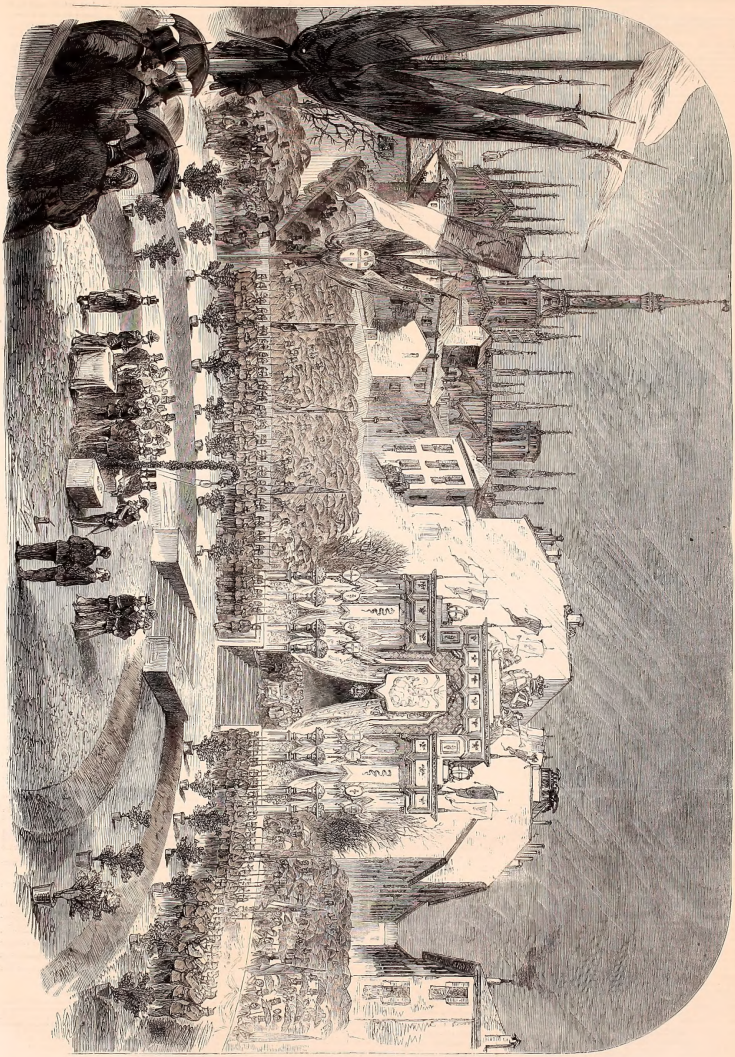
J. G. DODSON, ESQ., M.P.

THE recently-appointed Chairman of Committees of the House of Commons, Mr. Dodson, M.P. for East Sussex, whose portrait we engrave, is the only son of the late Sir John Dodson, who was Judge of the Prerogative Court until the merging of that tribunal into the present Probate Court. Mr. Dodson was born in 1825, and married, in 1856, Florence, second daughter of W. J. Campion, Esq., of Danny, Sussex. He was educated at Eton, where he obtained the Prince Consort's prize for proficiency in modern languages in 1841 and in 1842. He was a member of Christ Church, Oxford, and took honours as a first-class in classics in 1847. In 1851 he was called to the Bar, but has principally, if not altogether, devoted himself to political life. Having been a candidate, but unsuccessfully, for East Sussex in July, 1852, and again in March, 1857, he was elected for that division of the county in the April following, retaining his seat at the general election of 1859. Mr. Dodson applied himself assiduously to the duties of a member of Parliament, especially in that quiet and unostentatious but laborious section of those duties by which the technical working of both public and private business is so effectually secured; serving, as it were, an apprenticeship calculated to fit him for the office of Chairman of Committees, to which he has been advanced. He has also distinguished himself as the author of a bill for the abolition of tests in the University of Oxford, which, after undergoing various fortunes, was read a second time and passed through Committee last session, but, being opposed on the third reading, was carried through that stage only by the casting vote of the Speaker. On the question that the "Bill do pass," a vigorous effort was made by its opponents to stop its progress at this last moment, in which they succeeded by the very narrowest possible majority. Since his appointment to his present office, Mr. Dodson has resigned the charge of that measure, which is now in the hands of another member, who has given notice of its reintroduction this year. In compliance with an arrangement made last Session, Mr. Dodson supplements his function of Chairman of Committees with that of Chairman of the new Court of Referees on Private Bills, which causes a very considerable addition to his duties, and renders him the hardest worked official in the House.

Our portrait of Mr. Dodson is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins.

J. G. DODSON, ESQ., M.P., THE NEW CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEES OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE MELMERBY TROOP-SHIP IN DANGER OFF USHANT.



THE Melmerby troop-ship, conveying the headquarters of the 28th Regiment from Bombay, with the soldiers of several other corps whose term of service had expired, had arrived off Ushant on the evening of the 7th inst., when she was struck by a revolving hurricane, and had a very narrow escape of destruction. Her bowsprit, foremast, and topmast were carried away, and left her a perfect wreck, incapable of steering. She drifted in towards the shore, and was nearly lost upon the rocks of the Isle de la Vierge. A signal of distress was made, and, this being seen from the shore, a pilot-boat put off to inform the Melmerby that a steamer had already been telegraphed for from Brest to come to her assistance. This steamer made its appearance early in the morning, and towed the disabled vessel into Brest Harbour, as shown in our Engraving, which is from a sketch by Captain R. F. Angelo, of the 28th Regiment. Both the crew of the vessel and the troops on board seem to have behaved well.

THE KING OF ITALY AND THE IMPROVEMENTS OF THE CITY OF MILAN.

THE King of Italy laid the first stone, on the 7th instant, of the Victor Emmanuel Gallery, which is part of a set of magnificent buildings to be constructed around the Piazza del Duomo, or Cathedral-square, of Milan. One side of the piazza is occupied by the Royal Palace; and the façade of this, which is pierced with elaborate Lombard windows, is to be further improved by a magnificent pavilion, or Loggia del Ré, the charge of which will be undertaken by the municipality. The quadrangle will be nearly equilateral—122 metres by 118, and the edifices composing it will be all stately and palatial. Opposite the cathedral there is to be a large block of building, surrounded by porticoes; the lower part to be occupied by shops, while the upper floors may be well suited to a great hotel. On the south side of the square is to be the entrance to the new gallery, the centre arch to be 12 metres wide by 24 in height. The other buildings forming the new square will be adapted for first-class shops and large cafés, and will be of a style of architecture harmonising with the more important edifices already mentioned. The entrance of the gallery will come out at the east end of the line of houses now known as the Corsia del Duomo, which is a continuation of one side of the Corso Vittorio Emmanuele. The Galleria Vittorio Emmanuele itself will be in the form of a Latin cross, of which the four branches meet in a rotunda, or rather an octagon, thirty-six metres in diameter. Each of the two longer branches, measuring to the centre of the octagon, will be one hundred metres long, and each of the shorter ones forty-seven metres. The situation of the gallery secures its being greatly frequented, since it is to connect by the shortest line the cathedral and the La Scala theatre, while the lateral branches will communicate with other important parts of the city. The sites of the gallery, its internal decorative architecture, and the grandeur of the arches that are to form its two principal entrances, will place it far above everything of the kind now existing in Europe. All these new constructions are in the very heart of the city, where the trade of Milan is chiefly carried on, and the rents are higher than in any other part. Close at hand is the old and handsome building known as the Borsa, or Exchange, daily crowded by the representatives of Lombard commerce. This building is included in the plan of improvement to the extent of enlarging it, widening the avenues of approach, and rendering it more suitable to the requirements of the present time. The design for all these works are furnished by the architect, Signor Mengoni, of Bologna; and the capital is provided by the Milan Improvement Company (chiefly English), of which Mr. George R. Seymour is chairman, and Lord Warwick, Lord Somers, Sir James Lacaita, Mr. R. Warner, and Messrs. Digby Wyatt, James Fletcher, and F. Herbert are directors. They obtain, for less than £350,000, a piece of ground about seven acres in extent, for the purchase of which the municipality of Milan lately paid between £800,000 and £900,000, the only condition being, that their new buildings shall strictly correspond with the design of Signor Mengoni. Such is the enterprise which was honoured by his Majesty's presence on the 7th inst., at the commencement of the new buildings. In the extensive space which had been cleared by the speedy demolition of many wretched old houses between the Via del Due Muri and the Piazza della Scala, was an inclosure of octagonal form, with balconies for the spectators on four sides, and a Royal pavilion in the midst, whence a few steps led down to the intended site of the foundation-stone. The National Guards were drawn up along the sides, with an excellent band of music belonging to the civic force; the chiefs of the corporations of workmen also ranged themselves, with their beautifully embroidered banners, carefully rolled and protected in waterproof cases. Along the front of the balconies masts had been erected, and from their summits waved the banners of the principal Italian cities. Unfortunately, the weather was bad; it kept snowing all the time. The King arrived in a carriage, with General Della Marmora, the Prime Minister, at eleven o'clock, followed, in another carriage, by his sons and their uncle, Prince Carignano. His Majesty was dressed in a blue frock-coat and cocked hat, his usual uniform on occasions. He was received by Signor Beretta, Syndic of Milan, and the other civic authorities, who conducted him from the entrance of the gallery to the pavilion. The representatives of the Milan Improvement Company were then presented to his Majesty by the Syndic, as was also Signor Mengoni, who proceeded to explain to the King the plans of the works which were fixed around the walls of the pavilion. The Syndic read a brief address, and the municipal notary, Alberti, afterwards read the protocol of the proceedings. The usual octagon where ivy the stone, a mass of granite one metre and a half square and eighty centimetres thick, with a cavity in its centre adapted to receive the case, and a marble slab, bearing an inscription, to cover it. When the case had been soldered on, the King walked down to the stone; the silken cord was cut which upheld the slab, the mortar was handed to the King in a handsome silver trough, and a silver trowel and a hammer were presented to him. He spread the mortar, struck the stone, the crowd of spectators cheered heartily, and it seemed that the proceedings were finished, but for an incident which had not been comprised in the official programmes. The Provost of the cathedral, the Rev. Father Ratti, attired in his priestly garb and followed by several of the clergy, suddenly came forward and pronounced a solemn benediction upon the work of that day; then, turning to his Majesty, the reverend Provost exclaimed, with a loud and hearty voice, "God bless Italy and her King!" This demonstration, which was wholly unexpected, may have appeared the more significant from the present hostility between the Papacy and the Italian kingdom. It was evidently received with much pleasure by the King himself, who shook hands with Provost Ratti and cordially thanked him.

THE MELMERBY TROOP-SHIP TOWED INTO BREST HARBOUR AFTER A STORM.

THE KING OF ITALY LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF ONE OF THE NEW BUILDINGS IN THE PIAZZA DEL DUOMO, AT MILAN.—SEE FOREGOING PAGE.

BIRTHS.

At Harrow-on-the-Hill, the Hon. Lady D. Hay, of a son.
At Arbroath Hall, Herts, Lady Lethbridge, of a daughter.
On Jan. 19, at Uitenhage, Cape Colony, the wife of John B. Dyer, Esq., M.D., of a son.
On the 14th inst., at 65, Pentonville-road, N., the wife of Walter Smith, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 14th inst., at The Hawthorns, Edgbaston, Birmingham, Mrs. Charles B. Stepney, of a daughter.
On the 14th inst., at Newcastle, Jamaica, the wife of Colonel T. F. Hobbs, commanding 6th Royal Regiment, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

At St. Alphege, Greenwich, Dr. J. L. Smith, surgeon R.N., to Julia Maria, daughter of Sir H. M. Bromley, K.C.B.
On the 15th inst., at the Cathedral, Maritzburg, Natal, by the Very Rev. the Dean, Henry Hamilton Methuen, Esq., of Clifton, Cheltenham, son of T. W. Wyllys Methuen, Esq., of the Woodlands, Frome, Somersetshire, to Mary Ann Elizabeth, fourth daughter of the late Donald Moodie, Esq., of Pietermaritzburg, Natal.
On the 21st inst., at the parish church of St. Mary, Lambeth, by the Rev. J. Lingard, M.A., Salford, assisted by the Rev. James Mortimer Mercer, M.A., incumbent of Christ Church, Brixton, William Keeshaw, jun., Esq., of Suffolk Lodge, Denton-road, Tooting, youngest daughter of Daniel Wm. Wills, Esq., of Park-terrace, Brixton. No cards.
On Jan. 5, at Christchurch, Adelaide, South Australia, by the Very Rev. the Dean, George Anderson, Esq., of Adelaide, to Charlotte Ellen, only daughter of George Hamilton, Esq., of Hounslow, Middlesex.

DEATHS.

On the 15th inst., at Calcutta-house, near Liverpool, Joseph Neal Walker, Esq., in his 57th year.
At Windsor, Maria Elizabeth, daughter of the late Admiral Sir Edward Codrington, G.C.B., aged 66.
At Bath, Frances Elizabeth, wife of A. Poole, Esq., and daughter of Lieut.-and-General Sir W. M. G. Colebrooke, K.H., C.B., Royal Artillery.
On Tuesday last, at Ashgrove, Edinburgh, Mrs. Hall, wife of Rev. J. Sandilands, Doctor of Castes, Ludeanbridge, aged 71.
On the 14th inst., at Mudeje, Dorset, the infant wife of Mr. John Clements, aged 18.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 1.

SUNDAY, March 26.—Fourth Sunday in Lent. The Duke of Cumberland born, 1819.
MONDAY, 27.—Death of James I. of England, 1625. Agricultural Society of England founded, 1838. Dr. Parr born, 1747.
TUESDAY, 28.—The planet Pallas discovered by Olbers, of Bremen, 1802. The Zoological Society incorporated, 1829.
WEDNESDAY, 29.—Birth of Sonnia Raffaelle, 1483. Dollond, victory of Arklow, 1798. Annexation of the Ionian Islands to Greece, 1851. The planet Vesta discovered by Olbers, 1807.
THURSDAY, 30.—Battle of Vadino, military engineer, 1702. Commencement of the Sessions in the Lordships in South Kensington Gardens, 1859.
FRIDAY, 31.—Birth of Sir Isaac Newton, 1642. Astronomer-painter, 1817; and of Charlotte Brontë (Currer Bell), novelist, 1813.
SATURDAY, April 1.—Mr. Garrard resorts to Lord Stanhope's Act. Captain Bully Dawson's duel with Count Gurowski in London, 1819. Death of Reginald Heber, Bishop of Calcutta, 1826.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 1.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. | A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.	A. M.
1-31 | 2-2	2-32	3-3	3-34	4-6	4-39	5-14

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY, GREENWICH, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEB. 25.

Lat. 51° 28′ 40″ N.; Long. 0° 0′ 45″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fahr.	Dew Point.	Humidity. Saturation = 100.	Rain in Inches.	Highest Reading.	Lowest Reading.	Mean of Day.	General Direction.	Miles Observed.	Miles Recorded.
19th	Inches. 29·8	28·1	91	0·18	32·3	28·5	NNE. W.	Var.	124	93
20	30·220	24·1	77	0·0	37·2	26·1	NNE. W.	Var.	124	93
21	30·224	24·1	77·5	0	39·3	29·1	NNE. W.	Var.	124	93
22	30·183	32·7	89·5	0·1	39·2	32·1	ENE. E.	Var.	124	93
23	29·765	32·7	89·4	0·3	39·2	29·2	S.	S.	287	93
24	29·7	32·4	91	0·1	34·3	29·2	SSW.	SSW.	287	93
25	29·291	29·6	88·1	0·8	0	24·2	26·2	ESE.	3·2	93
26	29·752	24·1	77·5	0	0	24·2	26·2	ESE.	3·2	93

The following are the readings of the thermometer at intervals for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Thermometer	32·3	37·2	39·3	39·2	39·2	34·3	0
Temperature of Evaporation	30·1	32·1	36·1	36·1	36·1	32·1	0
Dimension of Evaporation	0·27	0·41	0·46	0·47	0·47	0·37	0

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Manager, Mr. AUGUSTUS HARRIS. EASTER MONDAY and during the week, the new and original Drama, entitled THE SEA OF ICE, by Messrs. Augustus Harris and Pitt Chatterton.—Arrangements for the Week.—On MONDAY, and during the week, the new and original Drama, entitled THE SEA OF ICE; or, a Crime at Sea, with the New and Original Farce, by Messrs. Brough and Halliday, entitled A DAY WELL SPENT. Characters by Mr. Augustus Harris, Mr. Pitt Chatterton, Mr. Wilkie Bancroft, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Arthur Stirling, Mr. Wilton Rosenquest, Mr. Wybert Rosenquest, Mr. Walter Lacy, Miss Helen Barry, Miss Rosina Wright, Miss Rosina Rae, Miss Ada Swanborough, Miss Annie Fraser, Miss Ada Cavendish, and Miss Augusta Dey. To conclude with the Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE FAIRY OF THE ICEBERG; or, Harlequin and the Lady who Lived in a Lump of Sugar. Harlequin, Mr. James Anderson; Columbine, Miss Annie Fraser; Clown, Mr. Harry Boleno; Pantaloon, Mr. Walter Lacy; Old Father Time, Mr. Thomas Vale. On Thursday, March 30, Benefit of Mr. Augustus Harris. On Saturday, April 1, Benefit of Mr. Pitt Chatterton. Doors open at Seven for Eight o'clock. Box-office open from Ten till Four. Commence at a Quarter to Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Four. Commence at a Quarter to Seven. Boxes may be taken from the Box-office.
The Dramatic Authors' Society will be produced.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Mr. JAMES ANDERSON has respectfully to inform his friends and the public that his BENEFIT will TAKE PLACE on MONDAY, March 27, when will be performed, for the first time, a New and Original Drama, entitled THE SEA OF ICE; or, a Crime at Sea, with Appropriate Scenery, Dresses, Properties, Machinery, and Musical Combinations of that nature, together with other Entertainments, which will be duly announced. Mr. Anderson respectfully solicits the patronage of his friends and the public.—Box-office open from Ten till Four.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Under the Sole Direction of Mr. and Mrs. HOWARD PAUL. EASTER MONDAY, and every evening during the week, at Seven, the Entertainment entitled HOME, SWEET HOME. Mr. Howard Paul, Mr. Arthur Lloyd, Mr. Harry Boleno, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Fox, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Frank Matthews, Mr. Leonard Boyne, Mr. Frederick Maccabe, Mr. Fred. W. Wallington, and Mr. Augustus M. Harris. Mr. C. Harrison, Miss M. Matinée, E. Leverett, and Miss Fanny Leigh. Box-office open daily from Ten till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, March 27, 29, and 31, at Seven, the new and original Drama, entitled THE SEA OF ICE. Mr. Webster, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Toole, Mr. Billington, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Gaston Murray, Mr. Stuart, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Hudson, Mr. Ashley, Mr. Wigan, Mr. Cooper, Miss Woolgar, Miss Fanny Wright, Miss Hughes, Miss Turner, Miss Rogers, Miss Hudson, Miss Ashley, and Miss Wigan. To conclude with THE HEIR-AT-LAW. Mr. Webster, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Toole, Mr. Billington, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Gaston Murray, Mr. Stuart, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Hudson, Mr. Ashley, Mr. Wigan, Mr. Cooper, Miss Woolgar, Miss Fanny Wright, Miss Hughes, Miss Turner, Miss Rogers, Miss Hudson, Miss Ashley, and Miss Wigan. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern in the New Sensation in Three Scenes every Evening, with Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Mr. Howe, Mr. Chippendale, Miss Reinhardt, Miss Oliver, Miss Fowler, and Miss Swanborough. EVERY EVENING at Seven, SWEETHEARTS. MARRIAGE.—Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Chippendale, and Miss Oliver. To conclude with the Farce, entitled A DAY WELL SPENT. Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Howe, Mr. Compton, Mr. Chippendale, Miss Reinhardt, Miss Oliver, Miss Fowler, and Miss Swanborough. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven precisely. Stalls, appropriate music and scenes. Concluding with EASY SEEING—Mrs Louisa Keeley.

THE GREAT FYCHOW GIANT, whose appearance in London has excited such universal curiosity, is now exhibiting daily at 209, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S-HALL, Piccadilly.—EIGHTY-NINTH NIGHT on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, MARCH 27, Mdlle. Parepa, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Signor Gardoni. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 3s., and 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, Regent-street; and Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's-hall.

THE ROYAL POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S-HALL.—Mr. Mitchell begs to announce that the NINETIETH NIGHT will be on MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 3. Mdlle. Parepa, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Signor Gardoni. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 3s., and 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, Regent-street; and Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's-hall.

EXETER HALL.—NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY.—Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—Last Concert this Season on MONDAY EVENING, March 27, Commencement at Half-past Seven. Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, and other Choral Works. Band and Chorus 500. Tickets, reserved and numbered the whole evening, 5s., 10s. 6d., 15s., 21s., and 42s.; Unreserved Seats, 1s. and 2s. Sole Agent, Mr. Austin, 28, St. James's-hall.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S-HALL.—Mr. Mitchell begs to announce that the FIRST MONDAY POPULAR CONCERT of the Season will be given on MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 3, when Mdlle. Parepa, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Signor Gardoni will appear. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 3s., and 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s, Regent-street; and Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's-hall.

EXETER HALL.—NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY.—Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—Last Concert this Season on MONDAY EVENING, March 27, Commencement at Half-past Seven. Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, and other Choral Works. Band and Chorus 500. Tickets, reserved and numbered the whole evening, 5s., 10s. 6d., 15s., 21s., and 42s.; Unreserved Seats, 1s. and 2s. Sole Agent, Mr. Austin, 28, St. James's-hall.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD,"

PRINTED IN COLOURS,
FROM A PICTURE BY J. SANT.

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been RE-ENGRAVED, and IS NOW ON SALE. PRICE SIXPENCE.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given at once to Newsagents or at the Office, 198, Strand, London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MARCH 25, 1865.

THE Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has given judgment in the case of Dr. Colenso, "Bishop of Natal." In these three last words we have indicated the result. The sentence of deprivation passed upon Dr. Colenso by the Bishop of Capetown is declared to be null and void in law, and the former may, on returning to his African diocese, resume his spiritual functions. It is stated that it is his Lordship's intention to do so forthwith.

But this victory gained by Dr. Colenso over his adversaries at the Cape is but a small part of the value of the proceedings. From the sentence of deposition pronounced by the Bishop of Capetown on the 16th of December, 1863, has proceeded the solemn and judicial decision of the highest tribunal at home that all parties have been wrong in supposing that any secular jurisdiction had been conferred by the letters patent by which Dr. Gray had been appointed Metropolitan just ten years before. These, of course, were the act of the Queen, acting in this matter of Church and State, under the separate Government, and a Parliament (of older date, moreover, than the last-mentioned Act), and inasmuch as no metropolitan or bishop, in any colony having legislative institutions can, by virtue of mere letters patent, exercise any coercive jurisdiction, or hold any court for that purpose, the proceedings of Dr. Gray and his adherents are utterly illegal. The judgment of the Council explains that pastoral or spiritual authority may be exercised in this sphere of Church and State, but that the sale or privation of office is matter of coercive legal jurisdiction. The Crown and the Parliament at home must unite, and the assent of the colonial Parliaments must be obtained for the conferring such powers as Dr. Gray has sought to exercise.

Another plea was, however, set up. It was alleged that the oath of canonical obedience which was administered by Dr. Gray to Dr. Colenso implied a contract to submit to the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan. But the oath was "of canonical obedience." But the Privy Council can see no proof of any intention on the part of Dr. Colenso to enter into any other than a legal compact, and declares that, even if such intention had existed, the Bishop could not bind himself by any oath to demand, and the Sufragan would have had no right to proffer, such irregular fealty. We need hardly say that no English clergyman, no English gentleman, can have more than one idea as to the duty of a Bishop to his clergy—that of paternal monitorial exercises, and when we swear we mean what we swear, and neither less nor more. Two learned and conscientious persons like Bishops Gray and Colenso cannot be supposed to have had any other meaning in their mutual and other of an oath without having distinctly understood its meaning, and the suggestion of an implied contract savours rather of secular advice than of the candid and high-minded conduct which we have a right to expect distinguishing the English clergyman. Technically it might be right to raise such a question, and, being raised, it was proper for the Privy Council to dispose of it; but we have too much reverence for the ministers of God's Word to entertain a serious idea for consideration the idea that there was any attempt at deceit. It may be, however, and there is reason to believe that Bishop Gray will not, on the first or any early day of the more defined notion at the Cape than in England as to the exact limit of the power of a Metropolitan. The decision of the Council has notoriously taken many at home by surprise, and was received in similar accents by the people of the province. But it is the simplest justice to Dr. Gray and to Dr. Colenso to affirm our unhesitating belief that the obligation to which reference has been made was understood by both in the sense of the decision. That the Bishop's subsequent day of due obedience should not be the same as Dr. Gray's would not surprise any one who is acquainted with those clergymen and with the history of the case; but there cannot be the slightest shadow upon the honour of the two distinguished and conscientious men. But that the decision of the Council asserts to this view of the subject, we should have been ashamed to do so.

Another point in the case requires but very brief mention. It was contended that Dr. Colenso had no right to appeal, for that, if his Metropolitan's proceedings were null, there could be no appeal from a nullity. But the Council rightly put such objection very peremptorily, and also the attempt to show that an appellate jurisdiction lay not in the Crown, but in the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Queen, as head of the Church, is declared to have, by statute, the same appellate jurisdiction, before the Reformation, was in the Pope. The law, which holds that there is no wrong without a remedy, might be expected to view with disfavour an attempt to prevent the redressal of a wrong by the plea that the number and complexity to perform an illegal act. This point happens to be trivial in this case, although it might have assumed other proportions.

The decision of the Privy Council is not only of great importance in itself, but it opens up a number of considerations which will at once occur to the friends of the Church of England, especially those who rejoice in her being a missionary Church. It is useless to combat the allegation that, in a certain sense, the sentence which has just been passed tends to a stricter and more formal limitation of the powers of the Crown than had been previously recognised. It tends to support the doctrine that the Church is—as the Privy Council declare a bishop to be—"a creature of the law." For purely spiritual purposes, the status of Episcopacy, where it shall not be created in a colony by means of an Parliamentary vote, is the same as before, but this status is based simply upon voluntary obedience. The colonist who recognises a spiritual superior, and who feels comfort and happiness in being in communion with the Church of England, is deprived of none of that comfort and happiness. But if he desire that his Bishop shall exercise actual sway, and shall be able to coerce his clergy, he, and those who wish with him, must apply to his Parliament, and must carry a Church bill by the usual agency of petitions, speeches, and divisions. Much, we will not say, displeasure, but unwelcome surprise, will be caused to many excellent persons by the new and strong light which has been suddenly thrown on our colonial ecclesiastical system; but the proceedings could hardly be avoided. This is no age in which rights and remedies, theological or secular, can be left in a haze. And we should belie our convictions did we say that we apprehend any evil to the missionary Church from the sentence that has been drawn out by Dr. Gray.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Windsor Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

Thursday week was the fourth anniversary of the death of the Duchess of Kent. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Prince Arthur, proceeded to the Duchess's mausoleum at Frogmore. The sarcophagus was strewn with wreaths of flowers, placed above it a bouquet of white heather. After the departure of her Majesty the officers and servants of the Royal household, and their families, were, by the Queen's permission, allowed to visit the tomb. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Lady Augusta Stanley, drove to Frogmore, where Princess Louisa joined the party in the Home Park. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Bull, took a drive. Her Majesty took the Queen's private road to Virginia Water, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Helena rode in the Home Park. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Bull, took a drive. Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell, Lieutenant Haig, and Dr. Bernhardi, arrived at Windsor from Portsmouth.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds of the castle. Princess Louisa rode in the Home Park. Prince Leopold, attended by Lieutenant Haig, hunted with the harriers at Datchet. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Bull, drove a pair-horse phaeton. Seventeenth anniversary of the birthday of Princess Louisa. The day was celebrated at Windsor with the customary festivities. Colonel the Hon. C. E. Cavendish was in attendance for her Majesty. The Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mauvay had the honour of dining with the Queen. Prince Alfred's ship was presented to her Majesty by the Countess of Gainsborough. The Bishop of London preached before the Queen.

On Sunday the Queen, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at the private chapel of the castle. The Lord Bishop of London officiated. Prince Alfred attended the afternoon service in St. George's Chapel.

On Monday the Queen, attended by Lady Augusta Stanley, drove in the castle grounds. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa rode in the Home Park. Her Majesty was attended by Lieutenant Haig and Dr. Bernhardi, went to London, returning to the castle in the evening. Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Bull, drove a pair-horse phaeton. Prince Arthur, attended by Mr. Sir Frederick Bruce arrived at the castle, and had the honour of dining with the Queen. Sir Frederick left for London, and took leave upon his appointment as her Majesty's Minister to Washington.

On Tuesday the Queen, attended by Lady Augusta Stanley and the Hon. Florence Seymour, drove in carriage and pair. Princess Louisa took a drive. The Earl of Lucan had an audience of her Majesty and kissed hands upon receiving the Gold Stick as Colonel of the 1st Life Guards.

On Wednesday the Queen, attended by the Hon. Florence Seymour, drove out in the carriage and pair. Princess Louisa took a drive. Prince Alfred and Princess Beatrice went out walking. Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, went out shooting.

The Queen having been pleased to create Prince Alfred an extra Knight of the Most Ancient Order of the Thistle, the investitures of his Royal Highness have now been completed. Except the Sovereign, the Prince is the only member of the Royal family who has been admitted to the distinction of the green ribbon and the St. Andrew badge.

Professor Hofmann had the honour on Monday of giving the first of a series of lectures on chemistry before the Queen and the Royal family.

The Hon. Caroline Cavendish and the Hon. Florence Seymour have received the appointment of Bedchamber and the Hon. Emily Cathcart as Maids of Honour in Waiting to her Majesty.

THE LEVÉE.

By command of the Queen a Levée was held on Wednesday, at St. James' Palace, by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty.

The Prince arrived at the palace at One. Life Guards and attended by his gentlemen in waiting, arrived from Marlborough House about Half-past One. The Prince was received by the great officers of state at the Queen's household.

The Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig; the Duke of Cambridge, attended by his Equerry, Colonel Eyrwhitt; and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Levée.

The Prince of Wales having entered the Throne-room, accompanied by his illustrious relatives led by the great officers of state, the Lord Chamberlain announced the seven first introductions in the order of precedence.

Among the more noticeable presentations in the general circle were remarked:—

The Earl of Cleveland, by Viscount Sydney.

Lieutenant-General the Earl of Lucan, on appointment to colonelcy of 1st Life Guards, by the Duke of Cambridge.

Earl Cadogan, by Viscount Sydney.

Major-General Sir Hastings Doyle, on promotion and appointment to brigadier-general in Ireland, by Her Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. C. F. Yorke, C.B., on appointment as Assistant Quartermaster-General, Ireland, by Her Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge.

Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. W. H. P. Carrington, Grenadier Guards, on appointment, by Her Majesty the Duke of Cambridge.

Lieutenant-Colonel William Cockwell, Engineer and Railway Volunteer Staff Corps, by Colonel Digby Jones.

Lieutenant-Colonel G. D. Bisher, Engineer and Railway Volunteer Staff Corps, by Colonel Digby Jones.

Lieutenant-Colonel James Allport, Engineer and Railway Volunteer Staff Corps, by Colonel Digby Jones, C.B.

Mr. Osgood Hanbury, by Lord Leigh.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

Yesterday week a deputation of the Royal Reception Committee of the Corporation of London, headed by Mr. Alderman Rose, M.P., waited upon the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House to present to their Royal Highnesses the medal struck to commemorate the public entry of the Princess into the city of London on the 7th of March, 1863. [An Engraving of the Medals given at page 281.] The Princess attended the House of Lords.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, hunted with his harriers at Datchett. His Royal Highness arrived thither at ten minutes to twelve, and was met at the station by Prince Alfred. The Princess rode through the village to Riding Court, the residence of Mr. Cantrell, where the "meet" took place. Their Royal Highnesses partook of refreshments at the house, and while in the drawing-room the attention of the Princess was directed to a table spread with the wedding gifts of Mr. Cantrell's niece, who had been married the same morning. Their Royal Highnesses partook of some wedding-cake, and afterwards rode to the "meet." The "field" numbered 150 horsemen and a large assemblage of ladies. There were several good runs. Prince Alfred left the hunt early, and returned to Windsor Castle. The Prince remained to the end, and returned to London by the Great Western Railway. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Stonor, visited the Botanical Gardens, Regent's Park. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner-party. The company included the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, the Turkish Ambassador and Mdme. Musurus, the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi, the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Duke of Somerset, the Earl of Tyrone, Captain the Hon. C. Edgcumbe, Sir William Alexander, Major-General Francis Seymour, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Lady Caroline Cust, Colonel Home Purves, Colonel Tyrwhitt, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. C. Packe, the Rev. J. R. Wood, and the Lord Bishop of Salisbury officiated.

On Monday Prince Alfred visited the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House. The Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, rode out. The Prince attended the House of Lords. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured the Duchess of Inverness with their company at dinner at Kensington Palace.

On Tuesday the Prince attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Stonor, drove out.

On Wednesday the Prince, by command of the Queen, held a Levée on behalf of her Majesty, as stated above. In the evening the Prince and Princess, with Prince Alfred, attended an amateur dramatic performance at the Bijou Theatre.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell, Lieutenant Haig, and Dr. Bernhardt, arrived at Dover yesterday week, from Bonn. The Prince embarked at Ostend in the Admiralty steam-yacht Vivid, and had a fine passage of five hours across the Channel. His Royal Highness was received upon landing at Dover by Sir Luke Smithett, Captain Buce, R.N., Lord Mark Kerr, and Mr. J. P. Knight, of the South-Eastern Railway. The Prince proceeded to the Lord Warden Hotel and partook of luncheon, and afterwards left Dover in a saloon carriage attached to the quarter-to-four express train on the South-Eastern Railway. Mr. Knight had charge of the train. Upon arriving at London Bridge the saloon-carriage was detached and taken on to the junction with the South-Western line at Waterloo, at which station the charge of the saloon was undertaken by Mr. Hill, of the South-Western Railway. The carriage was attached to the ten-minutes-to-six ordinary train, and the Prince continued his route to Windsor, arriving at five minutes to seven, the journey from Dover having occupied three hours and ten minutes without change of carriage. His Royal Highness proceeded at once to the castle. The Prince will remain in England until after Easter, when he will return to Bonn.

The Duke and Duchess de Chartres have left the Clarendon Hotel for Woodnorton, Evesham.

Lord Bloomfield, British Ambassador at Vienna, arrived at the Austrian capital on Thursday week.

Lord and Lady Napier have arrived in Berlin from England.

His Excellency the Right Hon. Sir Frederick Bruce, G.C.B., has left town, to enter on his duties as Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States Government.

The Duchess of Somerset and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur returned to the First Lord's official residence at the Admiralty, on Tuesday, from Bulstrode Park, Bucks.

The Marquis of Bowmont has left the Clarendon Hotel for Floors.

Earl and Countess Spencer have returned to town from Althorp Hall, Northamptonshire.

The Earl and Countess of Durham have arrived at Paris, on their way to visit the Earl and Countess of Mount-Edgcumbe at Cannes.

The Earl and Countess of Minto have arrived in town from a Continental tour.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Countess Apponyi had an assembly, on Monday night, at Chandos House. The réunion was attended by a numerous assemblage of the Corps Diplomatique and of the fashionable world. Previously to the reception his Excellency the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi entertained a distinguished company at dinner.

The Duchess of Inverness entertained the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge and Princess Mary, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Fernberg, and a select circle at dinner, on Monday evening, at Kensington Palace.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury entertained a select party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

Earl Granville had a dinner-party, on Monday evening, at his residence in Bruton-street.

The Countess of Fife gave a dancing-party, on Thursday week, at her residence in Grosvenor-place.

The Earl and Countess of Bessborough received a select party at dinner, on Tuesday evening, at their house in Charles-street, Berkeley-square.

Viscountess Palmerston held a reception, on Saturday evening last, at Cambridge House, Piccadilly. The réunion was attended by a numerous and distinguished company.

Lady Margaret Beaumont gave her third evening party for the season, on Tuesday, at her residence on the Terrace, Piccadilly.

The Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, M.P., received a select party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at his residence in Eaton-square.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The parish church of Stoke St. Mary, Taunton, having undergone restorations, at the cost of about £700, has been reopened.

Dr. Tischendorf, the great German scholar, has received the degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford. Cambridge made him a Doctor of Laws a few days ago.

Four handsome painted windows have been presented to the chancel of Wrotham Church, by the Rev. Charles Lane, Rector, containing the figures of the Twelve Apostles.

The Archbishop of York purposes holding a general ordination on Trinity Sunday, the 11th of June. The Bishop of London intends to hold his next ordination in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, the 11th of June; and the Bishop of Rochester on Sunday, the 9th of July.

Mr. S. Wiseman, travelling agent of the Norwich branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society, was presented last month with a testimonial consisting of 500 guineas and a bible. The presentation was made at a meeting at which the Bishop of Norwich presided.

St. Mark's Church, Dewsbury, has been consecrated by the Bishop of Ripon. It has cost about £7000, and will accommodate 750 persons. All the sittings are to be free. To Mr. J. Chadwick is due the origination of the scheme for building the church. He gave the site and land for a school-house and parsonage, of the value of £2000, besides £400 to the building fund and £600 towards the endowment. The reredos was presented by Mr. Tennant.

A meeting of the London Diocesan Home Mission was held, on Wednesday, at Willis's Rooms—the Bishop of London in the chair. After the reading of the report his Lordship adverted to the operations of the society, and showed that, though to a large extent it was of an exceptional character in order to meet the wants of a fluctuating population, yet the tendency of its work was to become permanent and to dovetail itself into our ordinary parochial system in the shape of new churches and separate parishes. The meeting was also addressed by the Duke of Marlborough, the Bishop of Ely, Canon Boyd, and others.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council gave judgment, on Monday, in the case between Bishop Colenso, of Natal, and Bishop Gray, of Capetown, who, as his Metropolitan, had deposed him for heresy. The question was whether Bishop Gray had power to do so, and the argument being one of pure law was the reason probably why there was no divine joined in the commission. The Lord Chancellor read the judgment, which was a very elaborate one, and came to this:—That the Crown had no power to confer ecclesiastical jurisdiction by letters patent simply and without act of the Legislature in a constitutional colony; that the powers assumed by Bishop Gray in virtue of these letters patent were imaginary, his deposition of Bishop Colenso without effect, and his whole proceedings in the matter from beginning to end null and void.

A letter from Naples records the fact that an English Protestant church, the first in that city, was consecrated and opened on the 14th inst. The attendance of both travellers and residents was numerous; and among the many distinguished persons present were the Prefect of the province, the Elletto (or chief magistrate of the district Chiaja), and several other Italians. Her Britannic Majesty's Consul-General and Vice-Consul, Admiral the Hon. H. Yelverton, and several of the officers of her Majesty's vessels of war were also present. The consecration having been performed by the Bishop of Gibraltar, the morning service was read by the minister, the Rev. C. P. Maitland, after which the Bishop preached. At the conclusion of the service, Sir Charles Maclean presented the church with a donation consisting of communion-plate, valued at fifty guineas. Among the other donations, which were of considerable amount, was £13 10s. for the communion-table, from Duchess San Arpino, and £52 10s. from the Bishop of Gibraltar.

The Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels, held its usual monthly meeting on Monday, at the society's house, Whitehall—the Earl of Romney in the chair. Grants of money amounting to £800 were made in aid of the following objects:—Building churches at Cane-hill, near Devizes; Hendon, near Sunderland; Neath, Glamorgan; Prickwillow, in the Isle of Ely; and Tettenhall-wood, near Wolverhampton. Re-arranging the seats and restoring the churches at Goodhurst, near Staplehurst; Mattersey, near Bawtry, Notts; Merton, near Bicester; Mursley, near Winslow; Rotherfield Greys, near Henley-on-Thames; and Whitbourne, near Worcester. A grant was also made from the School, Church, and Mission-house Fund towards building a mission-chapel in the parish of St. Philip, Stepney. The committee deeply regret that they only have it in their power to aid in such very limited degree these deserving objects. The diminished income of the society has only enabled them to expend £2440 in reply to the appeals made this session, beginning November last; whereas, had they been able to continue the scale of grants which until recently they have adopted, a sum of not less than £5566 would have been bestowed on these objects.

The following testimonials to clergymen are recorded in the Guardian:—The Rev. W. Bruce, Incumbent of Trinity Church, Dunfermline—a set of books, from the Sunday scholars. The Rev. T. A. Pope—an elegant silver tea and coffee service and salver, also a purse of £25, on his leaving the curacy of Longdon. The Rev. R. Linklater—a silver pocket communion-service, on his resigning the curacy of Illingworth. The Rev. A. Wood, on leaving the chapelry of St. Paul's, Westleigh—illuminated copy of the Holy Gospels, handsomely bound, by the working people of the district. The members of the Choral Society attached to St. Paul's School presented a handsome timepiece to the Rev. J. Kempthorne, the late conductor of the society. The Rev. W. H. Marriott, on his leaving the curacy of St. Philip and St. Jacob, Bristol—a cottage piano, valued at seventy-five guineas. The Rev. W. T. Thornhill Webber, on his resigning the curacy of Chiswick—a timepiece and purse of gold from the parishioners; also, a walnut writing-desk and book-rack from the boys and girls attending the national schools. The Rev. W. Haworth, on his resigning the senior curacy of St. Mary's, Barnsley—a set of dessert knives and forks, in walnut case. The Rev. F. Pentreath, Head Master of the De Aston School, Market Rasen—a timepiece, and also a teapot to Mrs. Pentreath, from the masters and boys.

Preferments and Appointments.—Rev. A. Joseph, Incumbent of St. John's, Chatham, to be Rural Dean of Rochester. Rev. E. Bulmer to be Minor Canon of the Cathedral Church of Norwich. Rev. H. J. Burfield, Incumbent of St. James's, Bradford, to be Surrogate for the diocese of Ripon. Rev. J. Daubeney to be Sub-Chanter of Salisbury Cathedral. Rev. R. Farquharson to be Canon of King's Tenton, in Salisbury Cathedral. Rectories: Rev. E. P. Martin to West Grinstead, Wilts; Rev. L. Tugwell, Incumbent of St. Andrew's, Lambeth, to Bermondsey. Vicarages: Rev. T. Z. Davies to Whitford, Flintshire; Rev. R. Polwhele to Treneglos-with-Warbstow, near Launceston. Incumbencies: Rev. M. J. T. Boys, late Archdeacon at Bombay, to All Saints', Clapham Park; Rev. G. S. Burns to St. Mungo's, Glasgow; Rev. J. S. Jones to Llanuwchllyn, Merionethshire. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. J. Green to St. John's Chapel, Weardale; Rev. R. Maughan to Heathery Cleugh, Durham. Curacies: Rev. H. W. Blandford to Mappowder, Dorset; Rev. J. G. Cotter to Winterbourne Whitchurch; Rev. T. H. Gregg to Winterbourne Houghton; Rev. W. H. Kemm to Haydon, Dorset; Rev. W. F. Shaw to St. John, Thanet; Rev. E. Williams to Shipston-on-Stour. Rev. J. Duke to be Principal Chaplain of Dartmoor Prisons.—Guardian.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Chessplaying has been introduced as an additional attraction in the reading-room of the Crystal Palace.

On Sunday a fire occurred at the jute and seed stores of the East India Docks, at Blackwall, destroying property valued at £30,000.

At the meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society, on Monday, the Rev. A. Tien read portions of his MS. work, entitled "The Mysteries of the Druse Religion Unveiled."

The council of the Zoological Society have determined that all the animals which die in the gardens at Regent's Park shall be dissected, the object being to discover by what diseases they were killed and how their organisation has been affected by captivity and the change of climate.

At the evening meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, on Monday next, at Burlington House, the papers to be read are:—1. "North Polar Expedition:" second letter of Dr. Petermann to Sir R. I. Murchison. 2. "Coast of Labrador," by Captain R. F. Hamilton, R.N. 3. "Account of the Mackenzie River District," by R. M'Farlane, Esq.

The friends of the Newsvenders' Benevolent and Provident Institution intend holding the annual dinner at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday, the 9th of May, on which occasion the president, Charles Dickens, Esq., will take the chair. This is one of the few societies that invite ladies to the dinner-table.

The Lords of the Treasury have, it is said, ordered the iron buildings at Brompton, popularly known as "the boilers," to be taken down, and, under proper regulations, to be given to the three quarters of London which most require the accommodation of large edifices for exhibitions and other public purposes.

The first spring exhibition took place last Saturday at the Botanic Society's Gardens, Regent's Park, and, despite the inclemency of the weather, was numerously and fashionably attended. The flowers exhibited were mostly of the earliest spring blooms, but they included some very creditable specimens.

The Metropolitan Board of Works has ordered the name of Manor-road, Hackney, to be changed to that of Spurstowe-road; Charles-street East, St. Pancras, to be included in Drummond-street; and that the subsidiary names in the following thoroughfares be abolished:—Globe-road and St. Peter-street, Mile-end Old Town, Manor-street and Leader-street, Chelsea.

The committee of the Court of Aldermen of the City appointed to inquire into the charges of inefficiency against the police in connection with the recent burglaries has made its report. This report thoroughly acquits the police, declares the charges against them to be unfounded, and urges that those who have valuable property in their places of business should take better precautions against robbery.

A full-length portrait of Mr. George Peabody, the eminent philanthropist and merchant, of Old Broad-street, has been presented by Mr. Philip Cazenove, of Threadneedle-street, to the Corporation of the city of London. The portrait, which is a very striking one, and represents M. Peabody seated at a table in an easy chair, is by M. H. W. Pickersgill, R.A. The painting is placed in a conspicuous part of the Council Chamber, close to that of the late Lord Denman as Lord Chief Justice of England.

A deputation of the advocates of jerked beef waited on Sir George Grey last Saturday to ask him to order a Government analysis of the article, since the City authorities will have it to be unwholesome. Mr. Bright, who was present at the interview, said the best test would be to get up a Cabinet dinner off the "jerked" beef. Sir George declined to order the analysis; but Mr. Lucas, the caterer of the House of Commons' Refreshment Department, promised to bring it under the notice of the members.

The accounts of the metropolitan police have been published, showing the sums received and expended for the purposes of the police, police superannuation fund, public carriages, and police courts in the year ending Dec. 31, 1864. The force consists of 22 superintendents, with salaries from £150 to £325 per year; 211 inspectors, having salaries ranging from £81 18s. to £200 a-year; 785 sergeants, with salaries from £63 14s. to £109 4s.; and 6172 constables, whose pay ranges from £49 8s. to £78 per year; the total of officers and men being 7191. The total expenditure for the year, under the several heads and departments, amounts to £560,864.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the members of the Artists' Benevolent Fund was held, on Monday, at the Freemasons' Tavern—Mr. C. Dimond in the chair. Mr. Thiselton, the secretary, read the report, which stated that her Majesty's annual donation of £105 had been paid as usual, accompanied by good wishes for the success of the institution. During the past year fifty-two widows had been relieved with £757, and ten orphans with £43. The receipts during the year were £1386, and the expenditure was £1032. During the year the fund had lost its president, Lord Ashburton, by death, and one of its most active members in the person of Mr. David Roberts. Mr. Benjamin Bond Cabbell was elected president.

The eighteenth annual festival of the Asylum for Idiots was celebrated on Wednesday at the London Tavern, under the presidency of Sir Francis H. Goldsmid, Bart., M.P. Several ladies were present, according to a custom which seems likely to become prevalent, and the total number of guests was about 170. The chairman's appeal on behalf of the asylum was followed by corresponding expressions of sentiment on the part of other gentlemen, who advocated its claims to the support of all who were interested in the cause of true philanthropy. The result of this advocacy was that subscriptions and donations were announced amounting to upwards of £2000, including 100 guineas from the chairman.

A circular memorandum has been issued by the Post Office authorities in reference to the wages of sorters, stampers, and carriers. The circular contains a table of the pay of the different classes, which the Postmaster-General wishes to be understood as forming a permanent arrangement. The highest rate of wages to be allowed to the letter-sorters is 50s. a week; the lowest, 23s. The highest to stampers, 35s.; the lowest, 21s. The highest to carriers, 30s.; the lowest, 20s.; while the supplementary letter-carriers are to have 18s. a week. The men are reminded that, in addition, they have pensions, medical advice, medicines gratis, a fortnight's holiday without deduction from their wages, and, if they are temporarily laid aside by sickness, they have two thirds of their allowances. In addition, the letter-carriers have their uniform clothing, are permitted to take Christmas gratuities, and have constant work in fixed localities.

Yesterday week, St. Patrick's Day, the eighty-second anniversary festival of the Benevolent Society of St. Patrick was celebrated in Willis's Rooms. Viscount Powerscourt presided, and a large assemblage of noblemen and gentlemen connected with Ireland attended. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given, which were respectively responded to by the Earl of Devon, the Earl of Darnley, Colonel Dunne, M.P.; Colonel Taylor, M.P.; Mr. Serjeant Burke, and Mr. Napier Higgins. From a report presented by the sub-committee, the society, now educating, clothing, and, during winter, partially dieting 300 boys and 200 girls, is in a flourishing condition. On the present occasion the subscriptions and donations announced amounted to £800, and included (besides her Majesty's annual gift of £105) £105 from the Prince of Wales as one of the patrons, and £50 from the noble chairman.

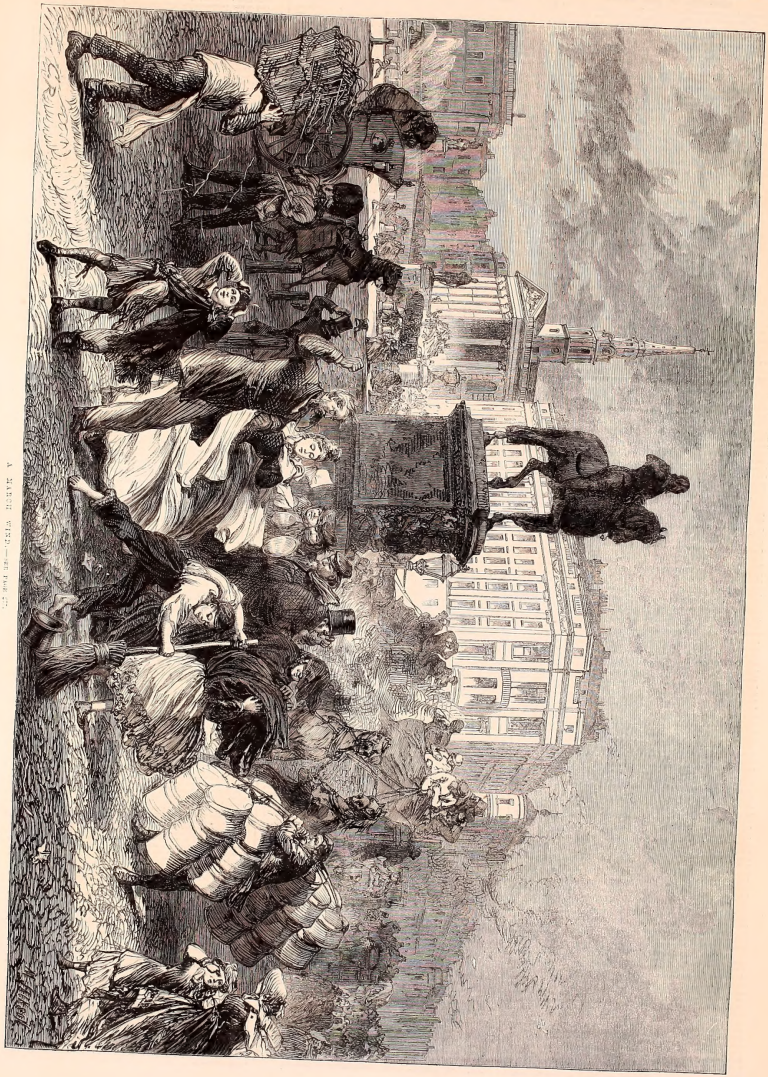
In the week that ended last Saturday the births in London and nine other cities or boroughs of the United Kingdom were 4368; the deaths 2982. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those ten large towns was twenty-eight per 1000 persons living, and was less than in the previous week, when it was twenty-nine.——In London the births of 2310 children—1185 boys, and 1125 girls—were registered in the week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years (1855-64) the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 2115.——The deaths in the same time were 1538. The average number for the eleventh week in ten years (corrected) is 1499. Whooping-cough and typhus were decidedly more fatal than any other complaint in the zymotic class, and the numbers referred to those diseases were almost equal—eighty-eight to the former and eighty-five to the latter. There were 189 deaths from phthisis, and 200 from bronchitis, both numbers being above the respective averages.

A MARCH WIND AND MARCH DUST.

In contrast to one of our late Illustrations, which represented the discomforts of mud and slush in the streets of London after a sudden thaw, we refer to the scene depicted on page 277—a dry storm, laden with the proverbial ransom of a whole dynasty of kings, whirling about the statue of King Charles, at Charing-cross. Nothing can be more seasonable, and nothing can be more disagreeable, than the combined visitation of March dust and March wind. It is true that a reverend poet and novelist, who is one of the most fervent apostles of Muscular Christianity in our age, has glorified the sharp and stern north-easter in a grateful ode or hymn, as though we Englishmen owed all the manly virtues of our race to the inspiration of that bitter Scandinavian blast. It may probably serve to aid the process of natural selection and improve the average vigour of the nation by killing off a certain number of the weaklings at the commencement of each year; and there is, perhaps, some reason for the boast of a few of the survivors, that they have felt themselves more stalwart from its bracing effect. But we may say, in general, of Mr. Kingsley's worship of the east wind, as was said of the doctrine of the Stoics, that "the human make is too tender for the rigour of such a religion;" and the majority of Londoners would rather welcome a breeze or a gale from any other point of the compass than from the ice-bound Baltic and the Russian steppes beyond. It is evident that the various groups of distressed people in our Engraving are far from a conscious enjoyment of the moral and physical benefits which this rude harbinger of an English spring is supposed to blow upon them. From the hansom cabman, who is fairly lifted off his perch and laid prone on the roof of his vehicle, to the little girl who wants to cry but cannot get the blinding dust out of her eyes, they are all suffering a greater or less degree of misery, which can do them no good unless by trial of their patience in affliction. The military gentleman who has lost his hat, though he contrives, by the force of his facial contortions, to keep his glass fast fixed in his eye, stands with raised fist in such an attitude of anger that, were it not for the lady who leans upon his arm and his little son who walks by his side, we might hear him, perhaps, mutter an oath. The hat, which seems inclined to roll away from its master as far as the Horse Guards, will be caught by the sweeper with a clean broom, whose office is a perfect sinecure in this state of the weather. After all, the hat will not fare so badly in the dust as it would have done in the mire. In these days, however, the authorities are invoked to send their water-carts through every London street and moisten the ground with an artificial rain, forgetful as we have so soon become of the intolerable plague of mud which vexed us a fortnight ago. The sagacity of a future generation may perceive that the true remedy for dust, as well as for mud, is to remove the loose particles entirely from the surface of the roads by carefully scraping up and carting away that which is detached from the macadamised floor, along with the droppings of horses and other dirt, briefly defined as "matter in the wrong place." So long as this miscellaneous pulverised deposit of the traffic of a great city is left to take its chance, where it is not washed into the sewers, the nuisance must be equally persistent in every season of the year. It is the same material, which is now sodden wet, defiling our shoes and clothes; now baked hard and dry, and ground into a fine powder by the multitude of passing feet and wheels; now raised into the air by every gust of wind, and filling our mouths, nostrils, and eyes with March dust—"worth a king's ransom," they say, if it were prudently used for manuring the fields. Here is a question, we submit, only second in practical importance to that of the London sewage.

"PHILIPPA WELSEREN AND THE EMPEROR FERDINAND I."

A few historical notes explanatory of the fine picture we have engraved may be acceptable to some of our readers. The Ferdinand I. herein represented is, then, the illustrious founder of the Viennese branch of the Imperial House of Austria—a Prince who, though in youth and when victorious, tyrannical and sometimes cruel, especially where his own ambitious designs and dynastic aggrandisement were in question, as in his conduct towards the Bohemians and his assassination of Martinuzzi, was, on the whole, wise and moderate, and won the very general love of his subjects by his placability and impartiality. He was justly called the "Pacificator of Germany." Though a paper attached to his will proved his ardent attachment to the Catholic faith, in which he was brought up, he yet braved the high displeasure of successive Popes and the distrust of his co-religionists by the boldness and constancy with which he advocated reforms in the Romish Church; and he, doubtless, spared the Austrian territories the terrors of civil war and the horrors of massacres, such as those of St. Bartholomew, by the tolerant forbearance with which he regarded the rapid spread of Protestantism in his dominions. In this respect (though inferior in genius) he presents a favourable contrast to his brother, Charles V., upon whose abdication two years previously Ferdinand was formally proclaimed Emperor of Germany early in 1558—the year when the incident here depicted took place. Of taste and scholarship Ferdinand had a larger share than usually falls to the lot of a monarch. According to the painter, he still possesses, at the age of fifty-six, much of that handsomeness of countenance and gracefulness of carriage for which, when young, he was celebrated. In his character as husband and father he appears to have been irreproachable. Such was the Emperor Ferdinand I. His three sons were Maximilian, the eldest, who succeeded his father in the archduchy of Austria and in the empire; Ferdinand, who inherited the Tyrol and the exterior provinces; and Charles, the youngest son, founder of the Styrian line, who was proposed as the husband of Mary Queen of Scots, and who was also a candidate for the hand of Queen Elizabeth.



The first wife of the second son, Ferdinand, Archduke of the Tyrol,

"PHILIPPA WELSEREN IMPLORING PARDON OF FERDINAND I. FOR HER MORGANATIC MARRIAGE TO HIS SON."
PAINTED BY G. KOLLER, IN THE WINTER EXHIBITION, 120, PALL-MALL.

was Philippa Welseren, the woman kneeling with her two children in the picture—a woman of great beauty and many accomplishments, but, being only of a patrician, not a Royal, family, the alliance was considered as degrading; and the Emperor, complacent and forgiving as he was in temper, was too jealous of the honour of his family to ratify or approve the marriage. It was, indeed, against the law of Germany, being an instance of that heartless mockery, a morganatic marriage (from morgien, to shorten or restrain), in which it is stipulated that the woman and her children shall not enjoy the rank or inherit the possessions of the man. Morganatic marriages have for centuries been common enough among the many petty Royal houses and among the very prolific "higher nobility" of Germany. Our George I. was thus married; and, later, the King of Denmark, to the Countess of Danner, Aug. 7, 1850. In such marriages the left hand is given; and it is to be noted, as probably intentional on the part of the painter, that our heroine ventures to offer the left hand only to the Emperor, but he takes her left hand with his right. Some years had elapsed since her marriage with the young Ferdinand (as is evident by the age of her children) before this interview and reconciliation took place. After, perhaps, many frustrated attempts, she found means to gain admittance to the Emperor's presence, when, throwing herself at his feet, her beauty and attractive manners won his forgiveness. The Emperor at once acknowledged her as his daughter-in-law; but even he was unable to obliterate the stigma which the German prejudice of caste has affixed to matches between persons of different rank; and her children, though deemed legitimate, were declared incapable of inheriting. She died in 1580, leaving her two sons, Andrew and Charles. Andrew obtained the margraviate of Burgau, entered the Church, became Bishop of Brixen and Constance, and was raised to the dignity of Cardinal. He was also sub-governor of the Netherlands. On his death, in 1600, the margraviate of Burgau descended to his brother Charles, who afterwards was raised to the dignity of a Prince of the Empire, and, dying without issue in 1619, the lands which had been conferred on him reverted to the Styrian line.

Little more need be added with the pen that is not better told by the pencil. The incident occurred at Prague; the date, 1558, has already been given. The Emperor is attended by nobles and ecclesiastical dignitaries of his court. The couple to the spectator's left are probably simply attendants on Philippa Welseren—the husband thinking it more discreet to keep out of the way. But we must call attention to the unaffected naturalness with which the story is told. The appealing expression of Philippa, shrinking behind her children, is irresistibly touching; and the little fellow who, not having learnt his part so well as his elder brother, stands eyeing his mother instead of kneeling before the mighty Emperor, seems to us most charmingly naive and truthful. We should say, in conclusion, that M. Koller, the painter of this picture, though of German extraction, is, we understand, Belgian by art-education. The influence of Henri Leys, but without his antiquarian affectation, seems evident in the work. This picture, and another, "The Church Porch," exhibited at the French Exhibition two years ago, and by which the artist is almost exclusively known in this country, have won golden opinions from critics of the most opposite views.

A MARCH WIND.—See page 277.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

The two most unusual features of the present Session are that the House of Commons has decidedly taken to early hours, and that Mr. Disraeli has taken to sitting out the discussions on the Estimates. Perhaps the right hon. gentleman, yielding to a suggestion of his sanguine imagination, conceives it necessary now to put himself into preliminary training for the rehabilitation in him of those powers of sedentary endurance which are indispensable to the leader of the House, but which are not so indispensable to the chief of the Opposition. At any rate, one seldom if ever knew him to be so persistent in watching the progress of the Estimates as this year. To be sure, there have been so often of late questions of high policy arising out of items in the proposed expenditure for the Army and Navy, sometimes originating with Mr. Disraeli's own followers, and, indeed, his lieutenants, that probably he is anxious not to be absent at such moments, however he may be careless of mere peddling with attempts at six-and-eightpenny reductions, which are never successful, and, if they were, would be of no value. It is notorious that in the last three Parliaments, if not in a longer period, the exact amount of diminution in all the Estimates, by means of hostile votes, has been £750. Speaking of the Estimates induces a remark as to the remarkable position occupied by the Marquis of Hartington. This noble Lord is not only the sole representative of the War Office in the house, but, for some reason or other, he never receives any amateur assistance from any member of the Government. When he is conducting the Estimates, the Treasury bench is left entirely to him and to Lord Palmerston, who does not even afford his young Under-Secretary the light of his countenance, for his face is buried beneath the shadow of his hat, as, with his head bent on his breast, he enjoys that perfect somnolent repose which long habit in the house enables him to take, and which people say is more agreeable to him than any regular sleep. When naval expenditure is in question, the Secretary to the Admiralty is carefully and efficiently supported by the Civil Lord, Mr. Childers; and occasionally Mr. Whitbread, an ex-Lord, will chime in with an aiding argument for old official feeling sake; but no one gives the least lift to Lord Hartington when the Army is the topic. This may be accounted for by the fact that, in truth, he needs very little assistance, being always ready with information, prompt in reply, exhibiting a remarkable faculty for gathering together the details of a discussion of an hour or two, and dissecting them with scarcely an omission. Much of this capability is, no doubt, owing to the extraordinary imperturbability of his temperament, which gives him what may be called an "aplomb," which stands him in good stead. He does not show a particle of impulse in his manner, impulsiveness being an unhappy quality in an official anywhere, and in Parliament especially. His delivery is slow and measured, and his statements, as a rule clear; and when, occasionally, he is a little confused and not quite intelligible one cannot help suspecting that the subject matter is such as to make it desirable that he should not be quite perspicuous. All this apropos of the Army Estimates, which have occupied much if not most of the recent Parliamentary doings.

It has been stated in the journals that, amongst other testimonies of gratitude which Poles and Polish sympathisers have accorded to that honourable and restless member for King's County, there has been one which took the shape of a musical composition entitled "The Hennessy March." It is to be hoped that, in order to be appropriate, it is in the time of a very quick step, and that it would be just the kind of music which would be used as a remedy in the cases of persons attacked by St. Vitus's Dance or suffering from the bite of a Tarantula spider. However, when a member of Parliament has got a mission, he must stick to it, even when it is most hopeless; and, no doubt, if Mr. Hennessy had undertaken to restore the Heptarchy, he would have made an annual motion on that subject. Therefore, he has again brought forward the wrongs of Poland, and, in order to be practical, he proposed to inflict a pecuniary fine upon Russia by mulcting her of some curious claim she has to some recondite and mysterious loan, payable annually, which was engrafted on the Treaty of Vienna or some convention supplementary to that treaty; it does not matter which. Certainly the sum in question never appears in the Miscellaneous Estimates, but is, of course, paid from that obscure, enigmatical, and, to Governments, comfortable source, the Consolidated Fund. Certainly, Mr. Hennessy, appreciating the temper of the House, which was not exactly adverse to the motion, but unwilling to enter on an ex post facto discussion, did his work with much tact, saving his stakes, so to speak, and not trespassing on the patience of the House; and the matter was disposed of by Lord Palmerston in one of the regular foreign-affairs speeches which are peculiar to him. To be sure, Mr. Butler-Johnstone did prolong the debate for a brief space with one of his cut-and-dried addresses, which came from him in such a snapping manner, issuing from his lips, as it were, in spite of his teeth; but one cannot help fancying that, notwithstanding a slight sensation which this hon. member made two sessions ago, he has got back into a position in which nobody minds him. If Mr. W. E. Forster's ideas with regard to the conduct of affairs connected with international trade could be carried out, the presidency of the Board of Trade will be every way worthy of his acceptance in that Radical Ministry in which Mr. Cobden is to be Chancellor of the Exchequer; Mr. Bright, Minister for War; Mr. White, the member for Brighton, Home Secretary; and perhaps Mr. George Potter, the great vindicator of the rights of the working classes, Prime Minister. If Mr. Forster's motion one night last week, about the foreign trade arrangements between the Foreign Office and the Board of Trade, meant anything, it meant that the head of the latter department should be raised to the dignity of, and receive equal emoluments with, a Secretary of State. The proclivity of Mr. Forster towards such an improved office, was, perhaps, so apparent to Mr. Lowe, who has been of late designated as the chief of the Board of Trade, in the twin eventuality of the office becoming vacant and his readmission into any Ministry, that he was roused into an ebullition of that Parliamentary Ishmaelism which he seems to have adopted, and which causes him to lay about him right and left, and to spare neither opinions, administration, nor men of any kind or sort in his sibillant denunciations. Accordingly, he proved, with his usually severe logic, that the only thing that the Board of Trade was fit for was to be abolished; doubtless with a mental addition to the effect—"rather than that Mr. Forster should rule over it."

Some member should move for a return of the number of times the "battle of the guns" has been fought in the house this Session. Again this question has been raised with a kind of dismal humour faintly reminding one of the organised witticisms of his ballot-speeches by Mr. Berkeley, and this as a sequitur to a severely accentuated palaver on English policy in the United States affairs, which Mr. Berkeley as a member of Parliament, independent in every possible sense of the term, whether applied to politics or to language, had a safe and harmless right to deliver. Probably the name of Peacocke will not convey any extraordinary notions of eminence in politics and influence in Parliament to the world in America, or the swelling talk and fussy bombast of the member for Maldon might have deserved and invoked a more pointed rebuke than was conveyed in the grim irony of Sir Henry Willoughby, when, with a sarcastic smile on his lips, he conjured Mr. Peacocke not to involve his country in a war with America. The Americans are so sensitive in their feelings towards England that they may even be roused by a voice from Little Pedlington; and therefore it behoves Mr. Peacocke to be cautious and moderate, conscious as he must be of the responsibility which lies upon him.

The annual fire-insurance motion and debate, with the regular defeat of the Government, came off, with comparatively minor effects, on Tuesday. Nothing could have been more amusing than to witness the air of conscious strength and the sniffing of coming victory which surrounded Mr. Sheridan when he made his motion, and how little covering he put over his desire to put the Chancellor of the Exchequer into a passion. On the other hand, the efforts of Mr. Gladstone to appear calm and unconcerned; to treat Mr. Sheridan with something like easy contempt; the breaking out of the latent wrath when the House mischievously pooh-poohed some of his arguments which were tinged with special pleading; and his general mixed expression of countenance, with a forced smile upon the lips, a frown struggling to keep its place on his brow, and the fire in his eye; can only be imagined by those who have seen a skilful delineation of the character of Sir Fretful Plagiary, in "The Critic." To be sure, this time he was baited by Mr. Hubbard, whom he is accustomed to twit and treat, financially, as little better than an empyric; and vehemently assailed by Mr. Malins, who is rather apt to patronise Mr. Gladstone; and it was not pleasant to be informed by Mr. Brand that he was about to be beaten, as thoroughly as ever, on a question which, if he could have been allowed to anticipate his Budget, he would probably have settled in a moment, without having to undergo the mortification which was heaped on him both by the debate and the division. However, there is, doubtless, comfort to him in the thought that this will be the last time this motion is heard of, and his bête noir, Mr. Sheridan, will be denuded of a mission which has raised him to a factitious importance.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The Industrial Exhibitions Bill was read a third time and passed.

Lord Clarendon, in answer to an appeal from Lord Derby, consented to postpone the second reading of the Public Schools Bill until Monday week. It was intimated that no opposition would be offered to the measure at that stage of its progress.

Earl Stanhope called attention to the site proposed for the new courts of justice, which, he urged, was less suitable than one which had been suggested on the Thames embankment. He hoped that the same error would not be committed as was committed in the building of St. Paul's Cathedral, in making no provision for preserving open spaces around it. He objected to the appropriation of the fund in chancery which had been devoted to the building of the courts.—The Lord Chancellor questioned whether the site on the Thames embankment was the most suitable, besides which a much greater expense would be incurred by the adoption of that site.—After some conversation, the subject dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

The Consolidated Fund (£175,650) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Mutiny Bill, the Marine Mutiny Bill, the Public Offices (Site and Approaches) Bill, and the India Office (Site and Approaches) Bill were read a second time, the latter being ordered to be referred to a Select Committee.

A bill to continue the Metropolitan Houseless Poor Act was read a first time.

Mr. Childers announced that a bill would shortly be introduced proposing various reforms in the administration of Greenwich Hospital.

Sir Charles Wood, in reply to a question from Mr. Watkin, said he was at present unable to state when he should be in a position to make his annual statement on the finances of India.

OUR COAST DEFENCES.—Mr. H. BERKELEY called attention to the probability of a war with America, and urged that our harbours and dockyards were in an almost defenceless condition.—Mr. Peacocke and Mr. Baillie followed in a similar strain, while Sir H. Willoughby and Mr. Forster condemned the use of irritating language towards the United States.—Lord HARTINGTON said our forts were armed with 110-pounder Armstrong and the old 68-pounder guns, which could resist the attack of a wooden fleet. As regarded iron-plated ships, our own ironclads could look after them, if it became necessary to do so, and next year the Government hoped to be in a better position for deciding upon the gun to be adopted for general use.—Sir F. SMITH said the plans for the fortification of Quebec and Montreal were very simple and very complete, but he must urge the Admiralty to place a flotilla of gun-boats on the Canadian lakes.—After some further conversation the subject dropped.

THE ARMY ESTIMATES.

The House then went into Committee of Supply upon the Army Estimates.

Upon the vote of £5,434,567, for the general Staff, and regimental pay, allowances, and charges, Colonel NORTH urged upon the Government the expediency of increasing the pay of subaltern officers after seven years' service.—Mr. O'REILLY referred to an alleged order issued for excluding Roman Catholics from certain branches of the Army.—Mr. P. WYNDHAM suggested whether it would not facilitate recruiting for the Army if appointments in the Civil Service, up to the value of twenty-five shillings per week, were thrown open to those soldiers who, after eighteen years' service with good character, chose to qualify themselves for the appointments.—Lord HARTINGTON gave replies and explanations upon these and other points, and ultimately the vote was agreed to.

The following votes were likewise agreed to after a brief discussion:—£1,205,800 for commissariat establishment, services, and movement of troops; £674,256 for clothing establishments, services, and supplies; £600,900 for barrack establishment, services, and supplies; £11,335 for Divine service; £26,800 for martial law; £216,544 for medical establishment, services, and supplies.

On the vote of £786,400 for the disembodied militia, a discussion took place on the subject of the appointment of adjutants and the alleged sale and purchase of the office.

The vote was agreed to, as well as the following:—£91,000 for the yeomanry cavalry; £334,900 for the volunteers (of the numbers of which force and its efficiency Lord Hartington gave a very satisfactory statement); £46,000 for Enrolled Pensioners and Army Reserve force.

On the vote of £972,900 for manufacturing departments and materials for the manufacture of warlike stores, Sir M. PETO called the attention of Lord Hartington to his statement that the cost of armament of the new forts will not exceed £3,000,000, and asked upon what calculations that statement was founded.—Lord HARTINGTON stated the elements of his calculations.—Sir M. PETO, in an estimate based upon the cost of heavy guns supplied to the Russian Government, brought out a result strangely at variance with Lord Hartington's calculations, making the whole charge for the armament of the forts upwards of £14,000,000.—Lord ELCHO complained of the course pursued by the Government with reference to small-arms.—A discussion of some length followed upon the subject of small-arms and the comparative merits of different species of rifles.—After very full and detailed replies by Lord Hartington, the vote was agreed to.

The vote of £485,000 for military-store establishments and expenditure for warlike stores for land and sea service was agreed to.

The Chairman was then ordered to report progress.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Affirmations (Scotland) Bill was read a second time.

Marquis Townshend asked whether the Government intended taking steps to rectify the omission of the Middlesex magistrates to provide for the reception of persons committed to prison on civil process from the police courts.—Earl Granville said there was a dispute with respect to the liability to provide such accommodation, which would be judicially settled next term. In the mean time, the Middlesex magistrates had been requested to provide it.

Marquis Townshend inquired if the practice of the guardians of the poor in the metropolis of turning out of the workhouse early in the morning the casual poor who had no means of employment or residence had received the direct sanction of the Poor-Law Board.—Earl Granville replied that the Poor-Law Board had taken great pains to impress on the metropolitan guardians the necessity of promptly relieving the casual poor. They were not aware of the existence of the practice alluded to, but he believed that most of these persons discharged themselves; and if any declared that they were destitute they were tranferred to the relieving officer.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

Lord C. B. Bruce took the oaths and his seat for North Wiltshire.

Mr. Layard, in answer to a question from Mr. Baines, said he hoped to be able to lay the commercial reports of our Consuls and Secretaries of Legation on the table every month, instead of at the long intervals at which they have hitherto been produced.

Mr. T. G. Baring stated, in reply to Mr. Hankey, that the Government would shortly introduce a bill for the better protection of life and property against fires in the metropolis.

Mr. A. Smith moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the Office of Works and the Office of Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues. He affirmed that the grossest abuses prevailed in those departments, and insisted that a "revolutionary reform" was required.—Mr. Neate seconded the motion, which was opposed by Mr. F. Peel, and negatived without a division.

Mr. Monsell obtained leave to bring in a bill to substitute an oath for the oath required to be taken and subscribed by the Roman Catholic Emancipation Act.

Sir J. Shelley obtained leave to bring in a bill to regulate the qualification of chemists and druggists in England and Wales.

Mr. Göschen obtained leave to bring in a bill for the abolition of certain tests in connection with academical degrees in the University of Oxford.

The Lord Advocate obtained leave to bring in a bill to amend the laws relating to procurators and to conveyancers and law agents in Scotland.

The report of Supply was brought up and agreed to.

Mr. H. B. Sheridan moved a resolution declaring it to be "expedient that the reduction of the fire insurance duty be extended to houses, household goods, and all descriptions of insurable property."—Mr. Gladstone moved the previous question; but, on a division, the Government was defeated by a majority of 137 to 65.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

A writ was ordered for the election of a member for North Devon in the room of the late Mr. Buller.

The Small Benefices (Ireland) Act (1860) Amendment Bill, and the Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill were read a second time.

In Committee of Ways and Means £15,000,000 was voted from the Consolidated Fund on account of the public service.

Sir C. O'Loghlen moved the second reading of the Railway Travelling (Ireland) Bill, the object of which was to secure to the public the privilege of travelling by railway on Sundays, and to give to third-class passengers the same advantages in that respect which are enjoyed in England.—Mr. Blake moved, as an amendment, that the bill be read a second time that day six months. He argued that, on both religious and financial grounds, the House ought not to sanction legislation in this direction. The bill, if carried, would deprive 880 persons of their ease and comfort on the Sabbath and entail an extra expenditure upon four railway companies of £5000 a year.—After a long discussion, the bill was rejected by forty-two votes to thirty-nine.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

AMERICA.—Earl RUSSELL laid upon the table of the House a letter, with an inclosure from Mr. Adams, the representative of the United States, declaring that he was commanded by the President to deliver a notice in the month of March of the desire of the Government of the United States that the reciprocity treaty between this country and the United States should terminate, and that accordingly the treaty would terminate in twelve months from the date of the delivery of the notice. The inclosure was merely a vote of the Congress, and consented to by the President, declaring that it was no longer to the interest of the United States that the treaty should be continued. The noble Earl said that the act of violence perpetrated by the so-called Confederate States on the lakes completely justified the United States in giving notice of the termination of the convention, for it was not to be expected that the United States would permit such acts of violence to be repeated, nor was it to be expected that the United States should submit passively to such acts of violence without means of retaliation. He entertained hopes, with regard to the reciprocity treaty, that a renewal of it could be arranged with modifications, which would be more advantageous to the United States, and which they might consider more just to themselves. Mr. Adams had informed him of the result of the negotiations which had taken place between the President and the so-called Confederates. The noble Earl then expressed a hope that when he should present to him a notice of the termination of the reciprocity treaty he should find that the President and the Government of the United States were ready to consider a proposition by which a small and limited armament might be kept upon the lakes for the purpose of the police on both sides, and also of a renewal of the reciprocity treaty on terms which should be agreed to by both parties, and which might be negotiated during the twelve months which would elapse before the treaty would cease to be in operation. Of course, Mr. Adams did not offer to give any assurance upon the subject, but the words which he used induced the noble Earl to trust that such would be the case. He should be extremely sorry if anything should occur in this country to bring about an opposite result. He therefore much regretted some expressions that had been used and some speeches that had been made tending to excite in the United States a disposition unfavourable to this country. He believed that in this respect this country had behaved wrongfully to the United States, and had given them just cause to complain of the unfriendly spirit shown in this country towards them. Her Majesty's Government intended to pursue the same course with regard to the United States as heretofore. A new Minister would leave London to-morrow to represent her Majesty at Washington. The noble Earl concluded by passing an encomium upon Lord Lyons, the Minister of the past, and Sir Frederick Bruce, the Minister of the future. The noble Earl then took a review of the policy pursued by her Majesty's Government towards America, and maintained that the course they had adopted was the wise and prudent one. They had appointed a new Minister from England to Washington, and had instructed him to carry out the same policy which Lord Lyons had followed with such satisfaction to both countries.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

THE DEFENCES OF CANADA.

The House went into Committee of Supply, when

The Marquis of HARTINGTON moved the vote of £50,000 for the Canadian defences, and entered into a most elaborate statement of our relations with Canada and the defenceless state of the colony. He stated that the Canadians were quite prepared to bear their share of the expense of keeping those fortifications in an efficient condition.

Mr. BENTINCK thought it was a useless expenditure, and capable of doing more harm than good; and he therefore moved that the sum of £50,000 be omitted from the votes. If we should have a war with the United States that sum would be totally inefficient for the defence of the Canadian provinces. He objected to the vote in toto, because it would be likely to draw on the evil which we were anxious to avoid; and to erect forts would be holding out a challenge to the United States which they might be induced to accept.

General PEEL considered that England was bound to protect her colonies, and, with regard to Canada, we must defend it with the whole strength of the country. He would not go into the question of whether the grant was enough or not, but the value he attached to it was, that it would convince the colony and America that we would protect Canada to the last.

Mr. BUTLER-JOHNSTONE objected to the smallness of the vote.

Major ANSON thought it would be impossible for us to hold Canada if the Americans thought proper to seize it; but there was no reason to suppose that any such attempt would ever be made by the Americans.

Mr. ADDERLEY gave his assent to the vote.

Lord BURY thought it would be necessary to form earthworks at certain points in Canada, by which an invading army must come, and by that means a comparatively small force would be able to hold at bay a numerically much stronger force.

After a discussion, in which Mr. Watkin, Mr. Haliburton, Mr. S. Lefevre and Lord R. Montagu took part,

Mr. C. FORTESCUE, on the part of the Government, admitted that they were bound to support the independence of the Canadians; but at the same time the Government felt that the colony ought to make some effort to defend itself.

Sir F. SMITH expressed his opinion that Canada could be defended.

Mr. LOWE replied to the arguments that had been used in favour of defending Canada. He denied that the Americans would be compelled to go by any particular route to invade Canada, because they could enter it by at least four or five different points. The Americans had now the largest army and the most experienced one in the world, and one that we could not oppose with any chance of success. We ought therefore to deal candidly with Canada, and let her know that, although she would find England a warm friend and ally, who would defend her to the utmost of her power, yet that she must be prepared to defend herself, for that we could not be supposed to undertake a defence that would be perfectly hopeless. He deprecated the Government of this country stirring up the Canadians to a defence that would be entirely hopeless. Nevertheless, he was not prepared to take upon himself the responsibility of refusing the vote. It was only a trifle, and the Government asked for it on its own responsibility, and he was willing to support the vote, although he still entertained the same opinion that he had previously expressed.

Mr. DISRAELI supported the vote, because to refuse it would discourage the Canadians at a most critical moment. He scouted the idea of Mr. Lowe that England should allow America quietly to take possession of Canada without a struggle because it was possible that the defence might not be successful. If it should happen that America should go to war with England, that war would be carried on in every part of the world, so as to make their victory as expensive and as difficult as possible. It was preposterous to lay down a principle that an extensive line of frontier in our own colonies should not be defended, for it was our duty to defend them to the last.

Mr. CARDWELL said that he had been informed by the American Government that the notice for the termination of the Reciprocity Treaty would be withdrawn, and that the passport system would be abolished. He defended the policy of the Government, and contended that, if necessary, we could defend Canada.

Mr. BRIGHT said there was no one in the country who would attempt effectually to defend Canada against the whole power of the United States. There was no safety for Canada in the event of a war between England and America but in the neutrality of that colony. The sum to be voted was not much for this country, but he objected to the vote on principle. It had been said that Canada was to bear the greatest portion of the expenditure, but on what ground could she be asked to do it? There was no chance of a war between Canada and America, and if we were to go to war with America the battle-field would be Canada. On what ground, then, could we ask her to bear any portion of the expenses? He objected to the vote, not because it was throwing so much money away, but because it was inaugurating a policy which we should be compelled to abandon or else that would lead to the separation of Canada from this country. He did not object to that colony separating itself from this country, but he did object to the severance taking place after a feeling of irritation. He charged the Opposition with being in collusion with the Government, and called upon the House to take the matter out of the hands of the Executive Government, and not force upon Canada a burden it could not long bear.

Lord PALMERSTON regretted he could not have the vote of the hon. gentleman, but it was clear that the vote met with the approval of the large majority of the members of the House. This was not a Canadian but an Imperial question, and he regretted that it should go forth to the world that there was a difference of opinion upon it. He denied that this defence was proposed from an anticipation of war, it was simply a matter of precaution, which every country with a large frontier adopted. He appealed to the hon. member (Mr. Bentinck) not to divide the Committee, as it would weaken the effect of the vote.

Mr. BENTINCK expressed his willingness to withdraw his amendment, but the Committee would not allow him.

The Committee then divided, when the amendment was negatived by a majority of 275 to 40.

The vote was therefore agreed to.

Intelligence has been received at Paris from Montevideo, dated the 7th of February, announcing the capitulation of that town to the Brazilians, without bloodshed.

Lord Chief Justice Cockburn has appointed Mr. Manley Smith, of the Midland Circuit, a Master in the Court of Queen's Bench, in the place of Sir Archer D. Croft, deceased.

The planet Uranus, which was discovered by Herschel on the 13th of March, 1781, completed its first revolution round the sun on Monday, March 20—that is to say, in rather more than eighty-four of our years it came back to that position in the heavens in which it was first seen.

The Gazette contains a Royal order giving to the Hon. Charles Percy and the Hon. Mrs. Emily Drummond the title and precedence of the younger children of dukes, as if their late father, the first Earl of Beverley, had lived to succeed to the dukedom of Northumberland, now held by their brother.

b

MUSIC.

The fifty-third season of the Philharmonic Society began on Monday evening. The following was the programme of the concert:—

PART I.

Sinfonia, Letter I.	Haydn.
Aria, Mr. Renwick, "Tu che sol quel dolce fiore" ("Faust")	Spohr.
Concerto, Violin (No. 9), Herr Strauss	Spohr.
Scena, Miss Louisa Pyne, "Oh! rank, thou hast thy shackles" ("Love's Triumph")	Wallace.
Overture, "Beherrscher der Geister"	Weber.

PART II.

Sinfonia in B flat (No. 4)	Beethoven
Air, Miss Louisa Pyne, "Ah! what a night" ("Domino Noir")	Auber.
Overture, "L'Alcade de la Vega"	Onslow.

Conductor—Professor Sterndale Bennett, Mus. Doc.

There was nothing new in this programme. All the pieces it contained were well known to the musical public. But this (according to the view we have always held on the subject) is no objection to the concert. It is not new works, but great works, that the Philharmonic audience desire to hear; and in regard to the class of works which form the staple of the Philharmonic concerts—namely, the orchestral symphonies—how many such works are there in existence? When we have named the symphonies of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Spohr, and Mendelssohn, we have named them all. We cannot hear those masterpieces often enough, and we do not desire to see any of them ever set aside to make room for an inferior production. When another Mendelssohn springs up and begins to give us fresh chefs-d'œuvre, the Philharmonic Society will be ready enough to produce them; and, meanwhile, our present supply is sufficient for all our wants. Notwithstanding the extreme cold of Monday night, the rooms were full, and the concert went off with a spirit that augured a brilliant season. The orchestra, under the bâton of Sterndale Bennett, displayed all its well-known power and excellence. It has gained several important accessions; especially that of Herr Strauss, one of the greatest performers of the day, who holds the place of principal violin jointly with Mr. Henry Blagrove. The symphonies and overtures were superbly played; Strauss's performance of Spohr's fine concerto was in every respect exquisite; Miss Louisa Pyne sang delightfully, as usual; and Mr. Renwick gave the beautiful scena from Spohr's "Faust" with great vocal power and in a masterly style.

The principal members of Mr. Mapleson's Italian Opera Company have been performing in Dublin with great success. The Freeman's Journal speaks in glowing language of the impression made by the appearance of Mdlle. Titiens, Mr. Santley, and M. Joulain (the new tenor), in "Lucia di Lammermoor." M. Joulain is as yet a stranger to the London public; but, if we are to believe our Irish contemporary, "he has no superior on the stage." Mdlle. Zandrina, a niece of Mdlle. Titiens, has made a highly promising début.

The concert at the Crystal Palace on Saturday last was of even more than the usual excellence. Its principal feature was the "Wedding Serenata," composed by Mr. W. G. Cusins, on the occasion of the nuptials of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and first performed at Her Majesty's Theatre soon after that happy event. It has since been more than once repeated; but never, we think, on any previous occasion, so effectively as it was now, under the able direction of Herr Manns. The principal solo vocalists were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. The chorus was full and powerful, and the orchestra was admirable. Mdme. Sherrington sang the fine song, "The lord am I of wedded love," charmingly, and was warmly applauded. The beautiful duet, "The pearl and coral of the deep," sung by this lady and Mr. Wilbye Cooper, made a great impression. Mr. Lewis Thomas had great success in the air, "Above there is a star;" and the final trio and chorus brought the work to a brilliant conclusion. The other pieces of the concert were—Haydn's seventh symphony in C; Weber's overture to "Euryanthe;" Schubert's celebrated song, "The Wanderer," sung by Mr. Lewis Thomas; the variations on "Ah, vous dirai-je, maman," sung by Mdme. Sherrington; and a song of Mr. Clay, sung by Mr. Wilbye Cooper.

A concert of more than ordinary excellence was given on Monday, last week, at the Beaumont Institution. Mr. Sims Reeves sang Handel's "Deeper and deeper still," "The Last Rose of Summer," and "The Pilgrim of Love." Miss Louisa Pyne sang "Sweet spirit, hear my prayer!" the scena from "Lurline," and the favourite Scottish songs, "Charlie is my darling" and "The Piper of Dundee"—in the two last accompanying herself on the piano. The other singers were Miss Whytock, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. Elmore, and Mr. Winn. The next concert takes place on Monday next, when it is announced that Mr. Sims Reeves will make his fifty-ninth appearance at the Beaumont Institution.

The second of the new series of Monday Popular Concerts, on Saturday morning last (something like a bull), drew an enormous audience. The hall, indeed, was full to overflowing; and no wonder, for the selection included two performances by Mdme. Arabella Goddard and two by Herr Joachim. Mdme. Goddard played Beethoven's sonata, "Les Adieux, l'Absence, et le Retour" for the piano alone; and Beethoven's trio for the piano, violin, and violoncello, in which she was accompanied by Joachim and Piatti; and Joachim played the principal violin part in Mozart's famous quintet in G minor. The vocalist was Mr. Cummings, who sang Benedict's "Lullaby," from "The Lily of Killarney, and Mozart's "Dalla sua pace," from "Don Giovanni."

Our musical readers will learn with pleasure that Mr. Vincent Wallace, who for many weeks has been so ill in Paris that his life has been despaired of, is now out of danger, and in a state of steady convalescence. Mr. Wallace went to Paris, several months ago, to superintend the production of a new work written by him for the Opéra Comique, an object which we trust he will now be able to accomplish.

Mr. Kennedy (says the Ayr Advertiser) has paid us his annual visit. The new portion of his entertainment, "The Farmer's Ingle," was well received, giving scope for illustration of the peculiarities of Scottish character, as well as the introduction of some of the choicest Scotch songs, which were given with his usual spirit and power. "Caller Herrin'," "My Nannie's awa," "My love is like the red, red rose," and, last and greatest, "Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled," were especial favourites. Mr. Kennedy, as formerly, was accompanied by Mr. Land, so long associated with Wilson—a fact which, coupled with Mr. L.'s exquisite taste in his piano accompaniments, lends additional interest to the entertainment. Mr. Land's solo on the pianoforte, "Recollections of Burns," in which some of the finest airs of Burns's songs are introduced, was much admired.

A young Englishman, Mr. Baraclough, lately a student of our Royal Academy of Music, has appeared with success at Savona, in the character of the Count di Luna, in the "Trovatore."

THE THEATRES.

Our attention was last week attracted in a peculiar manner to the proposed doings at the Haymarket, on last Saturday, by means of a "frame" on the hoardings, which the public were admonished to "watch," and which was gradually filled up with the announcement of "The Woman In Mauve: A Sensation In Three Spasms," by Mr. Watts Phillips, in which Mr. Sothern was to appear. The house, accordingly, overflowed on the occasion, and curiosity was greatly excited. The piece proved to be a satirical one, in which the incidents of certain sensation novels were introduced as part of a plot with which they had nothing to do. An artist, whose mind is excited by the perusal of modern romances, at once realises their contents in his own experience. No sooner is he prepared by the skill of the author for the entrance of the Woman in White than the Woman in Mauve appears, vehemently demanding the key; and he is led by her into a garden, where, he believes, a murder has been perpetrated, and where, to escape the notice of the police, he mounts, with his mysterious visitant, a vacant pedestal, and makes, first, a statuesque group, and, next, a single figure, on which the curtain falls. The second spasm introduces us to a jealous Count, who has wedded the Woman in Mauve, and who puts our young artist into such danger that the latter seeks refuge in a well, which the indignant husband closes with a lid. A third spasm remains, and the youth, having escaped from the well, is preparing to depart from Rome, when he is visited by the Count, who insists on satisfaction, and, finally, they arrange a "dodging fight," in the American fashion, among the ruins of the Coliseum. Jocelyn falls, but is not hurt, when the Countess enters with a Lieutenant Ferville and his twin brother, when it is explained that the former was once a lover of the Countess, and had wounded himself in the artist's garden at Chelsea, but has since recovered, and got married. A comic female character is introduced, which is supported by Mr. Buckstone, a Mrs. Mary Ann Beetles, the policeman's wife, and which serves to relieve the gloomier portions of the sensation. A rhyming tag, at the conclusion of the drama, is added to explain its meaning, and brought down the curtain with applause. There was some reason to believe, in an earlier part of the evening, that the play was misunderstood by the audience, and the dissatisfaction consequently expressed was attributed by Mr. Buckstone, who addressed the house on the subject, to "an organised conspiracy." We believe that Mr. Buckstone was mistaken, and that the new drama will be appreciated in accordance with its merits, as audiences become better acquainted with its intention and with the startling details by which the design of the piece is gradually accomplished. The part of Frank Jocelyn, the romantic young painter, is supported by Mr. Sothern with much humour and undoubted skill; but the character is nowise calculated to increase the reputation of this most popular actor, though the drama itself may derive much from his participation in its production.

Miss Faucit, on Monday, appeared in the character of Juliet, in Shakspeare's great love-play, and Drury Lane was crowded to witness her performance, which was throughout exquisite. Though profoundly studied, it was marked by extreme grace; and the chamber-scene was not only acted with power and passion but regulated by the severest taste. Mr. Walter Montgomery, as Romeo, is worthy of much commendation.

Mr. Boucicault has ensured another success, which is likely to equal that of "The Colleen Bawn." His new drama, "Arrah-na-Pogue," originally produced at Dublin last November, was performed at the Princess's on Wednesday. The story is of enthralling interest, though exceedingly simple. The heroine's name is properly Arragh Meelish, but she is called Arragh-na-Pogue (that is, "Arragh of the Kiss"), because of her having conveyed, in her mouth, a plan of escape to a rebel gentleman in prison, and delivered the paper through the medium of a kiss. That youth is one Beamish M'Coul (Mr. H. Vandenhoff), who, at the opening of the play, is concealed in Arragh's cottage, and who, having robbed the Government collector of the rents of his own confiscated estates, gives the bank-notes to Arragh (Mrs. Boucicault) as her wedding portion. Poor Arragh is arrested for the guilty possession; when her newly-made husband, Shaun-the-Post (Mr. Boucicault), takes the guilt on himself, and is tried and about to be executed for the crime. Meanwhile, Beamish surrenders himself to the Secretary of State, who is so touched with the magnanimity of the Irish character that he sends a free pardon to all concerned. The new scenery, by Mr. Telbin, is singularly beautiful; and the acting throughout so excellent that no doubt can exist of the permanence of the triumph achieved.

An amateur performance took place on Wednesday, at the Bijou Theatre, which deserves especial record. It was "in behalf of a Baronet and his family reduced to great poverty," and was patronised by the Prince and Princess of Wales and a large number of the nobility. Planché's drama of "An Old Offender" and the popular comedietta of "Law for Ladies" were respectably represented, and did great credit to the Hon. Lewis Wingfield, under whose superintendence they were got up, and who took part in the performance, as did also Mr. Temple and the Right Hon. J. W. Fitzpatrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean gave a reading, on the 20th ult., at Panama, consisting of selections from "King John," Wordsworth's "We are Seven," Aytoun's "Execution of Montrose," and Macaulay's "Horatius Cocles." On the 21st they quitted Panama for Jamaica.

In our notice of the Winter Garden and Exhibition Palace at Dublin, the name of Mr. N. Niven, of Drumcondra, the landscape gardener, who has laid out the pleasure-grounds attached to the palace, was accidentally misprinted "Riven."

Mr. W. F. Friend, who recently had the honour of showing the Prince of Wales his collection of water-colour drawings of scenes in Canada and the United States, has got a commission to execute two views of Niagara, on a large scale, for his Royal Highness.

During the last few days great inundations have taken place in and around Bucharest. One third of the town itself is under water, which in some places is more than five feet deep. The rivers have overflowed their banks, sweeping away the bridges and destroying the roads. Galatz, Jassy, and other towns have also suffered severely.

The Staffordshire Advertiser announces that the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot has placed the halls of Alton Towers at the disposal of the Wedgwood memorial committee for the purpose of an art-exhibition, to be held there in the ensuing autumn, in aid of the funds for the completion of the institute at Burslem; and that the Committee of Council on Education have passed a minute, under the authority of which valuable and attractive contributions will be furnished from the national collections at South Kensington, the department of science and art giving its indispensable co-operation, in the expectation that this "may be made the inauguration of a series of county exhibitions, to take place annually, at which many valuable works of art may be brought to light for the benefit of art-instruction." The Earl of Harrowby will contribute from the treasures of Sandon, and Mr. Beresford Hope has promised his very valuable aid and the loan of some of those art gems and specimens which form part of his famous collection; while Mr. Mayer, of Liverpool, will furnish chefs-d'œuvre from his magnificent museum. Mr. George Melly will send his collection of Sèvres pottery, and Mr. Benson Rathbone rare specimens of old Wedgwood ware.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

THE payment of £1,200,000 East India Debentures having become due, and the purchases of Stock on account of the public having been very small, the Consol Market has ruled heavy this week, at reduced quotations. The Government brokers have continued their operations for the Sinking Fund; nevertheless, there is still a full average quantity of Stock afloat.

Both at the Bank of England and in the open market there has been a steady demand for accommodation. The rates for the best paper in Lombard-street are as follow:—

Thirty days' bills .. 4¾ ½ per cent.	Four months' bills .. 4½ per cent.
Sixty days' bills .. 4½ ,,	Six months' bills .. 4¾ 5½ ,,
Three months' bills .. 4¾ ,,

The directors of the Bank of England separated, at their weekly meeting, on Thursday, without making any change in their terms of discount.

The Bank of Belgium has reduced its rate for money to 3½ per cent. The quotations in the leading Continental cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	3½	3 3½	Turin	5	5½
Vienna	5	5	Brussels	3½	3 3½
Berlin	4	3½	Madrid	9	11
Frankfort	4	3 3½	Hamburg	—	2½
Amsterdam	4	4	St. Petersburg	6½	8½

The imports of the precious metals have been only moderate. In the absence of any foreign demand, a few parcels of gold have been disposed of to the Bank of England, and bar silver has declined to 61d. per ounce. Rather large quantities of silver have recently been imported into France from Mexico.

On Monday Home Stocks were very flat, and rather drooping in price:—Consols, for Money, closed at 89⅛ ¼; Ditto, for Account, 89¼ ⅜; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅝ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 216; Ditto, Five per Cents, 101¾ to 105; Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On the following day Consols, for Transfer, marked 89⅛ ¼; Ditto, for Account, 89¼ ⅜; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅝ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 217; India Five per Cents, 101¾ to 105; Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Wednesday Consols, for Money, were 89⅛ ¼ 89; Ditto, for Account, 89¼ ⅜; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅜ ½; India Stock 214 to 217; India Five per Cents, 104¾ to 105; Rupee Paper, 100 to 102, and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday the market was flat. Consols, for Money, sold at 89 to 89⅛; for Account, 89⅛; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89¾ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 104⅞ to 105; India Bonds, 11s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 4s. to 6s. prem.

The market for nearly all Foreign Securities has ruled inactive. As regards prices, the chief fluctuations have been in Spanish, Mexican, Greek, and Confederate; but the changes from last week are unimportant:—The Confederate Loan has marked 31½ to 35½; Italian Scrip 3½ to 3 dis; Egyptian, 2¾ to 2½ prem.; Montevidean, 8½ prem.; and Danubian, 3 to 2 dis. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 81½; Ditto, 1863, 81½; Chilian Six per Cents, 103½; Egyptian Seven per Cents, Small, 91½; Ditto, 1864, 95½; Greek, 21¾; Italian Five per Cents, 1865, 74¼; Mexican Three per Cents, 25½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47½; Russian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 88⅞; Ditto Five per Cents, 1862, 89½; Ditto, 1864, 91⅛; Spanish Three per Cents, 47⅜; Ditto, Deferred, 41½; Ditto, Passive, 33¼; Ditto, Certificates, 18; Turkish Six per Cents, 1858, 71 ex div.; Ditto, 1862, 73½; Venezuela Three per Cents, 18¼; Ditto, Six per Cents, 1864, 41½; and Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 62¼.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been tolerably firm. Agra and Masterman's, New, have sold at 66½ ex div. Alliance 31; Anglo-Austrian, 7¼; Anglo-Italian, 7½; Bank of Egypt, 39½; Bank of Queensland, 21; Brazilian and Portuguese, 10¼; British and Californian, 5¼; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 53; City, 119¼; East London, 6; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 19½; European, 13¾ ex div.; Imperial, 30½; Imperial Ottoman, 17; London of Mexico and South America, 8½ ex div.; London, Buenos Ayres, and River Plate, 48; London Chartered of Australia, 21; London and County, 72½; London Joint-stock, 47; London and South African, 22; London and Westminster, 91⅝; Merchant, 29½ ex div. and ex New; Metropolitan and Provincial, 18; New South Wales, 42½; Oriental, 56; Union of Australia, 53; and Union of London, 52½.

Very little business has been done in Colonial Government Securities. Canada Six per Cents, 91½; Ditto Five per Cents, 80; Cape Five per Cents, 92½; Queensland Six per Cents, 103½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 109½.

The Miscellaneous Market has continued quiet. Australian Mortgage, Land and Finance, 5⅛; Berlin Waterworks, 9⅝; Ceylon Company, 9¾; Consolidated Discount, 5; Continental Union Gas, 11 ex div.; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 10½; Ditto, New, 8; Discount Corporation, 14; Electric Telegraph, 111½; General Credit, 6⅞; International Financial, 6¼; Joint-stock Discount, 8½; London and County Land and Building, 1½; London Financial, 21; National Discount, 14¾; National Financial, 7¾; North British-Australasian, 52; North British and Mercantile Insurance, 18½ ex div.; Oriental Commercial, 7¼; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 82¼; Ditto, New, 55; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7½.

The dealings in the Railway Share Market have been by no means numerous. Prices, however, have been well supported. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonian, 128¾ ex div.; Great Eastern, 47½; Great Northern, 128¼; Ditto, A Stock, 142; Great Western, 72¾ ex div.; Ditto, West Midland—Oxford, 50 ex div.; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 114¼; London and Blackwall, 87½; London and Brighton, 183½; London and North-Western, 116¾; London and South-Western, 95⅞; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 58; Metropolitan, 121¼; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 131; Ditto, Birmingham and Derby, 109½; North British, 54¼; North Eastern—Berwick, 106¾; Ditto, Leeds, 86½; Ditto, York, 98¼; Ditto, Stockton and Darlington, 37; Ditto, 1860 and 1861, 23¼; North Staffordshire, 76½; South-Eastern, 81¾; Vale of Neath, 108¼; West Cornwall, 47½; West Hartlepool Harbour and Railway, A, irredeemable, 76.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 102¼; Calcutta and South-Eastern, 98¼; Eastern Bengal, 101; East Indian, 102½; Grand Trunk of Canada, First Preference, 64½; Great Indian Peninsula, 102; Great Western of Canada, 8½; Ditto, New, 6.

Foreign.—Bahia and San Francisco, 14⅞; Dutch Rhenish, 21¾; Imperial Mexican, 2¾; San Paulo, 17.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending March 22 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£66,672	An increase of bullion of	£127,378
An increase of public deposits of	1,450,508	An increase of rest of	56,501
A decrease of other deposits of	231,031	An increase of reserve of	198,173
An increase of securities of	1,179,928

The total circulation is £20,628,891. Public deposits amount to £10,198,989; and private deposits to £13,554,794. Securities are £32,381,622; and the stock of bullion is £15,393,635.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, March 20.—The show of English wheat in to-day's market was only moderate. Sales progressed steadily, and in some instances prices advanced 1s. per quarter. With foreign wheat we were well supplied. Good and fine qualities moved off freely, at full quotations. In other kinds the transactions were on a limited scale, at last week's currency. Floating cargoes of grain were the turn dearer. Malting barley was steady in price; grinding and distilling sorts were dull, but not cheaper. The malt trade was in a sluggish state, at the late decline in value. Oats, though in short supply, were far from active, at late rates. Beans commanded very little attention. Peas, however, ruled steady. Both English and foreign flour commanded full prices.

March 22.—The transactions in most kinds of produce to-day were very moderate, at Monday's currency.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 33s. to 40s.; ditto, white, 39s. to 45s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 40s.; rye, 28s. to 30s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 26s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 60s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 56s. to 60s.; Chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 17s. to 22s.; potato ditto, 19s. to 24s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 16s. to 19s.; ditto, white, 17s. to 21s.; tick beans, 32s. to 34s.; grey peas, 33s. to 35s.; maple, 37s. to 40s.; white, 36s. to 39s.; boilers, 39s. to 40s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 35s. to 40s.; town households, 33s. to 35s.; country marks, 25s. to 32s. per 280 lb.; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 530; barley, 130; malt, 1030; oats, 120; flour, 710. Irish: Oats, 1940. Foreign: Wheat, 660; barley, 380; oats, 7370; flour, 630 sacks.

Seeds.—Most agricultural seeds are in fair request, at full prices. Linseed, rapeseed, and cakes are a slow inquiry, but not cheaper.

Linseed, English, crushing, 60s. to 63s.; Calcutta, 55s. to 58s.; hempseed, 41s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 9s. 0d. to 10s. 0d. per bushel; English rapeseed, 74s. to 76s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 0s.; rape cakes, £5 10s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 44s. to 50s. per quarter; red clover seed, 62s. to 120s.; white ditto, 56s. to 88s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 3d.; barley, 28s. 10d.; oats, 21s. 4d. per quarter.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 70,688; barley, 41,679; oats, 7614 quarters.

Tea.—The demand for all kinds is heavy, and the quotations have a drooping tendency. The supply on hand is very large.

Sugar.—Only moderate transactions have taken place in raw qualities, and previous rates are with difficulty supported. The stock is 97,619 tons, against 63,220 tons in 1864. Refined goods are steady, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—There is a steady sale for plantation kinds, at full prices. Otherwise, the market is heavy, and rather cheaper. Stock, 9620 tons, against 8780 tons last year.

Rice.—The trade is by no means active; nevertheless, prices are well supported. The stock consists of 48,520 tons, against 50,171 tons in 1864.

Provisions.—The transactions in Irish butter are on a moderate scale, at about previous rates. Foreign qualities move off freely, at full quotations. Bacon commands last week's currency. Most other kinds of provisions are a slow inquiry.

Tallow.—The market is firm. P.Y.C., on the spot, 40s. 9d. per cwt. Stock, 41,630 casks, against 55,579 ditto in 1864. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is steady, at £32 5s. per ton on the spot. Rape is offering at £41 10s. to £44 10s.; cocoanut, £41 10s. to £43; and fine palm, £36 10s. French turpentine, 66s. 6d. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum is firm in price, but the demand for it is by no means active. Brandy and grain spirits are unaltered.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 5s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 7s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Haswell, 21s. 6d.; Hetton, 21s. 6d.; Hotspur, 17s. 6d.; and West Hartley, 14s. 3d. per ton.

Hops.—Most kinds move off slowly, yet prices are fairly supported.

Wool.—The public sales have gone off steadily, on higher terms.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate, and the demand is steady, at from 70s. to 150s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, March 23).—There was about an average supply of beasts on sale here to-day, in but middling condition. Sales progressed slowly, at Monday's currency. The best Scots sold at 5s. 2d. per 8 lb. Sheep, the show of which was only moderate, ruled steady, at full quotations. Downs, in the wool, realised 6s. 6d. to 6s. 8d.; out of the wool, 5s. 6d. per 8 lb. Lambs were dull, at 6s. to 6s. 8d. per 8 lb. There was a fair inquiry for calves at full prices—viz., from 4s. 6d. to 5s. 8d. per 8 lb. Pigs moved off steadily, at late rates; but milch cows were a dull inquiry, at from £18 to £22 each.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 10d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 4d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 6d. to 6s. 8d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 10d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 27s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1110; cows, 135; sheep, [illegible]; calves, 112; pigs, 260. Foreign: Beasts, 440; sheep, 740; calves, 105.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—These markets are fairly supplied with meat, and the trade is steady, as follows:—Beef, from 3s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 8d. to 5s. 0d.; veal, 4s. 2d. to 5s. 2d.; pork, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 0d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

H. W. BUTLER, Merton, manufacturer.—H. COLLINS, Gower-street, land agent.—W. HODSON, Rotherham, grocer.

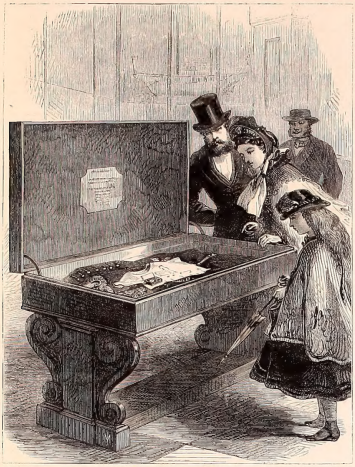
BANKRUPTS.

M. BIRD, Battersea, tailor.—G. PARSONS, Manor-place, Walworth, engineer.—G. MILLER, Pembroke-road, Kensington, grocer.—J. EDWARDS, Aldenham-terrace, Old Saint Pancras-road, shoemaker.—S. GREEN, Clarendon-terrace, Bow-road, licensed victualler.—J. HALL, Church-street, Waterloo-road.—G. COOKE, Northampton, shoe manufacturer.—F. POPE, Limehouse, coal merchant.—T. R. CUBITT, Sutherland-square, Walworth.—H. S. BINGHAM, Wilts-terrace, Rotherhithe, tailor's assistant.—R. EASTER, Snape, Suffolk, draper.—J. F. JOHNSON, Long-alley, Finsbury, bedstead maker.—W. CORBYN, Walcot-place, Kennington, musical agent.—J. EATON, Titmarsh, Northampton, butcher.—C. COOKE, Northampton, butcher.—W. TIMSON, Bardott-road, Limehouse, painter.—T. BULLEN, King's Lynn, butcher.—J. FLOOD, Brewer-street, Golden-square.—G. SCHWEND, Stoney-lane, Houndsditch, baker.—A. SMITH, Crown-court, Pall-mall.—P. H. DEAKIN, Southgate-road, Middlesex.—L. BURT, Brooklands, Lea Bridge, and Silver-street, City, warehouseman.—W. GOODMAN, Northleigh, Oxfordshire, farmer. T. HITCHIN, Birmingham, lamp manufacturer.—G. YOXALL, Greaves Farm, Shropshire, cattle-dealer.—A. BARKER, Birmingham.—T. PROCTOR, Deepfields.—J. TAYLOR, Nottingham, ale merchant.—J. H. BROWNSWORD, Nottingham, silk merchant.—H. BAILEY, Boston, plumber and painter.—D. HOSKINS, Swansea, licensed victualler.—J. SAGE, Bristol, shipbuilder.—C. AMOORE, Calne.—C. CHURCHILL, Kingswood, butcher. A. CARMICHAEL, Exeter, draper.—J. BALKWILL, Exeter, shoemaker.—J. HOLLINGS, Eggborough.—M. COOPER, Topcliffe, innkeeper.—J. S. GOODALL, Manchester, warehouseman.—J. TOWERS, Manchester, professor of music.—J. BARON, jun., Lancaster, commission agent.—R. LIPTROT, Lancaster, agent.—M. REED, Newcastle-on-Tyne, dealer. G. SMITH, Northumberland, builder.—J. PATCHETT, Birmingham, grocer.—J. SHAW, Birmingham, silversmith.—J. DALLOW, Birmingham, wheelwright.—J. OAKFORD, Exeter, fishmonger.—J. ALLEN, Chester, grocer.—W. KNOWLES, Lytham, butcher.—N. BUCKLER, Warwick, boatman.—J. TIPPER, Burton-on-Trent, carpenter.—T. DAVIES, jun., Anglesey, builder.—W. PAYNE, Leicester.—T. JACKSON, Lincoln, brickmaker.—J. NEWMAN, Hants, veterinary surgeon.—I. MULLOCK, Lancaster, beerseller.—J. WELLS, jun., Great Grimsby, fruiterer.—J. HUDSON, Leicester, victualler.—G. R. HOOPER, Isle of Wight, fishmonger.—R. THORNBOROUGH, jun., Fleetwood, sawyer.—W. SMITH, Lincoln.—W. TAIT, Northumberland, builder.—W. D. CUSHING, Norfolk, blacksmith. J. M. BAKER, Kingswinford.—R. FRANK, Leeds.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

J. M'DOWALL and SONS, Johnstone, engineers.—J. M'CALL, Edinburgh, building and iron-bedstead manufacturer.—W. GOWANS, Hamilton, innkeeper.

TUESDAY, MARCH 21.

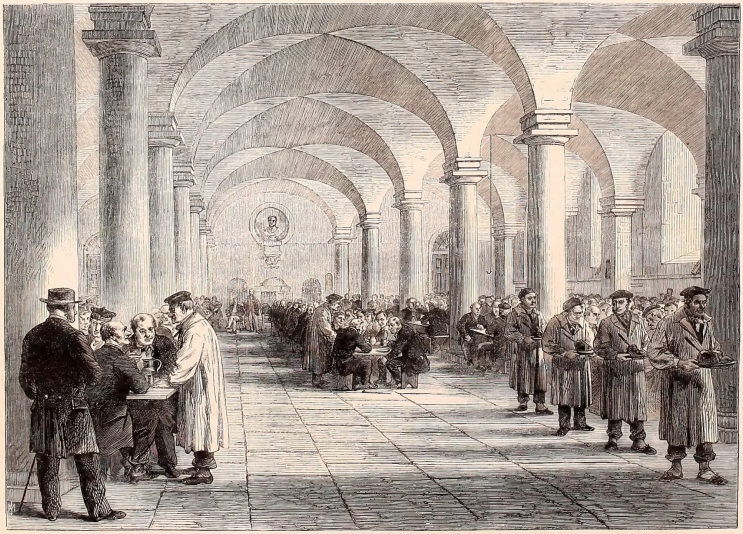


BANKRUPTS.

C. V. PUGH, Worthing, late Captain in the 99th Light Infantry.—A. VILMOT, Southwark Chambers, merchant.—T. G. FOWLER, Walworth, house-painter.—J. ELD, Cheapside, ventilator manufacturer.—T. THICK, Chelsea, tailor.—G. BAKER, Blackfriars-road, provision dealer.—A. WEBBER, Caledonian-road, bootmaker.—R. FAUCHON, Shipbourne, farmer.—T. T. BENNETT, Broad street, builder.—R. G. ALLEN, Lewisham, smith.—W. H. YOUNG, Bishopsgate-street Without, stationer.—J. EATON, Titchmarsh, bellhanger.—G. SATCHWELL, Hackney, cheesemonger.—J. LANCASTER, Shap.—C. WOODS, Ventnor, butcher.—R. SOLLEY, Preston, victualler.—J. STRANGER, Wimbledon, stonemason.—T. WHISTON, Gosport, tailor.—J. MENCE, jun., Dodderhill, farmer. J. FERDINAND and J. S. HUGHES, Wednesbury, tube manufacturers.—L. FOXWELL, Wotton-under-Edge, farmer.—J. SIBBERING, Neath, victualler.—A. G. POTTER, Warmley, butcher.—M. MARKS, Cheltenham, tailor.—W. FOWLER, Bayford, butter-dealer.—G. W. CHILCOTT, Charmouth, miller.—N. DAY, Taunton, builder.—B. WILSON, Dewsbury, ragdealer.—J. WILKINSON, Leeds, licensed victualler.—A. IBBOTSON, Sheffield, victualler.—B. J. BENNETT, Leeds, cloth-drawer.—R. J. HITCHCOCK, Liverpool, coachbuilder.—W. HOUGHTON, Kirkdale, victualler.—J. O'HARA, Liverpool, grocer.—H. POOLEY, Everton, joiner.—G. P. ROONEY, Everton, builder.—J. SIMON, Higher Tranmere, builder.—J. JONES, Festiniog, draper.—D. WILLIAMS, Llanarth, draper.—J. DONKIN, Etherley, cattle-dealer.—H. SPENCER and R. SMITH, Burnley, cotton manufacturers.—W. RICHARDSON, Huddersfield, coal merchant.—J. WARD, Leeds, stationer.—M. D. ROBINSON, Barrow-in-Furness, grocer.—W. LEWIS, Ross, Herefordshire, coachbuilder.—T. LUPTON, Bradford, wooldealer.—W. LITTLE, Wolsingham, Durham, publican.—J. GRAHAM, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—S. HENTHORN, Atherton, clogger.—W. J. HESELTINE, Bishopwearmouth, bootdealer. H. BROOKE, Dewsbury, grocer.—H. CHILTON, St. George's, blacksmith.—E. BARKER, Oldham, cotton-waste-dealer.—H. BROWN, Willenhall, tailor.—F. E. CORY, Swaffham, bootmaker.—T. EOULKES, Mold, builder.—J. HODGSON, Melling, draper.—A. D. FLIEGELTAUB, Liverpool, draper.—J. W. GRAVES, Liverpool, chemist.—E. MANN, Liverpool, coaldealer.—J. G. THOMAS, Torquay, painter.—W. SYLVESTER, Pembridge, farmer.—A. COX, North Nibley, grocer.—D. W. THOMAS, Cardiff, bookseller.—T. ROBSON, High Newton, shoemaker.—S. CLARKE, Bradwell, miller.—A. BRASNETT, Mattishall, baker.—D. FOX, Dover, stationer.—J. PIKE, Aberdare, fishmonger.—H. MORREY, Grappenhall, farmer.—H. HUME, Blandford-square, author.

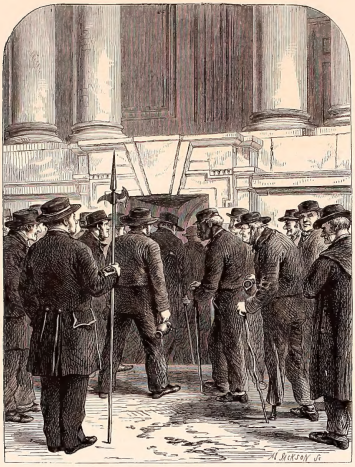
SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

T. CRAWFORD, Limefield, near Bathgate, farmer.—J. SOMERVILLE, Glasgow, auctioneer.—W. P. RICHARDSON, Annan, merchant.—R. WHITE, Glasgow, commission merchant.—W. HAY, Elgin, chief constable.—R. HAY, Inveraron, distiller.—J. HUNTER, Stirling, spirit-dealer.—A. R. GRAY, Aberdeen, merchant.



A VISIT TO GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

RELICS OF NELSON.



TEA-MAKING.

THE WEST DINING-HALL

A VISIT TO GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

ENTRANCE TO THE WEST DINING-HALL.

BEATING THE TATTOO AT SUNSET.

THE WEST KITCHEN.—SEE PAGE 299.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Wet or Dry, always Charming.—Performances by the Orchestral Band twice daily, and Great Organ Performance by Mr. Coward—Picture Galleries—Fine-Arts Courts—Shakspere House—Chimpanzee—Fish-hatching Apparatus—Armour Plates (lent by official authority)—Chinese Collection—Skating Hall—and the Thousand and One other Attractions of the Crystal Palace. Open Daily, from Ten till Dusk.
Monday to Friday, One Shilling; Children under Twelve, Sixpence. Saturday, Concert and Promenade, Half-a-Crown.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THE SPOILS OF THE SUMMER PALACE, PEKIN, exhibited THIS DAY, in the Iron Room, in front of the French Court. Admission, One Shilling in addition to the entrance charge.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY, in a New Entertainment, entitled A PECULIAR FAMILY, written by Mr. William Brough; with MRS. ROSELEAF AT THE SEASIDE. Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Opera di Camera every Tuesday and Thursday at Three; Saturday at Eight.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY, Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, every Evening during the week, at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday), Saturday Morning at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED; MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY. Box-office open from 11 to 5.

MARCH 30.—Mr. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Sacred Music.—Mdme. Parepa, Mr. Sims Reeves.—Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s.; Stall Tickets for four, 21s.—Addison Lucas, and 210, Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, 48, Cheapside; Austin, 28, Piccadilly; and all Musicsellers.

MUSICAL UNION.—Twenty-first Season. Eight TUESDAYS, at Half-past Three, ST. JAMES'S HALL, after Easter.—Members having Nominations to send Names and Addresses without delay, and to pay their Subscriptions at the usual places. Tickets not received to be had at the Institute, where a fine Portrait of Mozart, by Pompeo Battoni, Autographs and Prints of Eminent Musicians, are on View from Two to Four o'Clock, Mondays. Joachim, Piatti, Hallé, and eminent Pianists from the Continent will perform at the Matinées. The "Record" of 1864, with the Portrait and a Memoir of Meyerbeer, has been sent to Members. J. ELLA, Custodian.
Institute, 18, Hanover-square.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, Regent's Park. GENERAL EXHIBITIONS, WEDNESDAYS, MAY 24, JUNE 14, and JULY 5. AMERICAN PLANTS, MONDAYS, JUNE 5 and 12. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens, on vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price 4s. each. The SECOND SPRING EXHIBITION, SATURDAY, APRIL 8. Tickets, 2s. 6d. each.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a new piece of Extravagance, termed GOING TO COURT and Portrait of the Japanese Dandy, the Model Policeman, and other novelties, at MALVERN, TO-DAY (Saturday) at Three; Ledbury, Monday, March 27; Hereford, 28th; Ross, 29th; Stroud, 30th; Nailsworth, 31st.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens.
Full information and card of prices by post.
"The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times.
The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 32 stamps to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING INSTITUTION, 73, Great College-street, Camden Town, and you will receive 12 exact, full-size copies, post-free, with original. Six copies, 24 stamps. Tinting, three extra stamps for each carte. Address, WM. CHARLESON.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. A large assortment, comprising Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, &c. Specimen Sheets from 1s.
WM. BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

FOR 7s. 6d.—300 beautiful ILLUSTRATIONS for ALBUMS, SCREENS, PRESENTS, comprising fine steel Engravings, Picturesque Views, Rural and Domestic Scenes, Elegant Figures, Chromolithographs, &c. Post-free.
J. REYNOLDS, 174, Strand.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

HALF-GUINEA BOX of MOIST COLOURS and Materials for Illumination.
WINSOR and NEWTON, 38, Rathbone-place, London; and all local Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,
THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING-BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INKSTANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed); Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers; Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

CROQUET (improved patterns), of the best seasoned wood, in immense variety, at very moderate prices. A first-rate set, full size, for 30s., sent into the country, carriage-paid, on receipt of P. O. order.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, London, W.

COLOURED STAMPING REDUCED TO 1s. per 100. No charge for plain stamping paper and envelopes from parties own dies. Monogram, Crest, and Address Dies cut at half price.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Notepaper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

NEW BOOKS.

NEW NOVELS.
1. HEIRESS OF THE BLACKBURNFOOT. 1 vol. [Just ready.
2. GREY'S COURT. Edited by Lady CHATTERTON. 2 vols. [In April.
3. GRASP YOUR NETTLE. By E. LYNN LINTON, Author of "Azeth the Egyptian," "The Lake Country," &c. 3 vols. [In April.
4. ONCE AND AGAIN. By the Author of "Who Breaks, Pays," "Cousin Stella," &c. 3 vols. [Just published.
5. BELIAL. 2 vols. [Just published.
6. BY THE SEA. By the Author of "Hester Kirton," "Chesterford," &c. 2 vols. [Just published.
SMITH, ELDER, and CO., 65, Cornhill.

Just published, with Photographic Portrait, from the Picture in the Vatican, 2 vols., crown 8vo, 21s., LIFE OF MICHAEL ANGELO. By HERMAN GRIMM. Translated by F. E. BUNNETT.
"Full of most thoughtful and true criticism of art."—Spectator.
"An important and most valuable work."—Reader.
SMITH, ELDER, and CO., 65, Cornhill.

Just published, with Seven Coloured Illustrations, 8vo, 16s.,
OUR TROPICAL POSSESSIONS IN MALAYAN INDIA: being a Descriptive Account of Singapore, Penang, Province Wellesley, and Malacca; their Peoples, Products, Commerce, and Government. By JOHN CAMERON, Esq., F.R.G.S.
"The book is a most useful one, and fills up a void in the Anglo-Indian library very satisfactorily."—Athenæum.
"This is truly a good book, and, moreover, at the present moment, a very opportune one."—Examiner.
"There is a large and varied store of useful information concerning our dependencies in Malayan India to be derived from the perusal of this volume. At this particular conjuncture of events such reliable information will be especially valuable."—Morning Post. SMITH, ELDER, and CO., 65, Cornhill.

Just published, fcap, price 6s., cloth,
CLARIBEL, and Other Poems. By W. J. LINTON. With 100 Embellishments, drawn and engraved by the Author.—London: SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, and CO.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SERIES.
With 32 Engravings from Pictures by Popular Artists.
TALK WITH THE LITTLE ONES. Price One Shilling. (Cover printed in Colours by E. Evans. London: SEELEY, JACKSON, and HALLIDAY, 54, Fleet-street; S. W. Partridge, 9, Paternoster-row.

LEILA; or, the Island. By ANN FRASER TYTLER. Eighth Edition, fcap, cloth. 4s. 6d.

By the same Author,
LEILA IN ENGLAND: A Continuation of "Leila; or, the Island." Seventh Edition. Fcap, cloth. 4s. 6d.
LEILA AT HOME: A Sequel to "Leila in England." Fourth Edition. Fcap, cloth. 4s. 6d.
MARY AND FLORENCE; or, Grave and Gay. Eleventh Edition. Fcap, cloth. 4s. 6d.
MARY AND FLORENCE AT SIXTEEN. Fifth Edition. Fcap, cloth. 6s.

. . . "These works are excellent. Miss Tytler's writings are especially valuable for their religious spirit. She has taken a just position between the Rationalism of the past generation and the Puritanism of the present; while the perfect nature and true art with which she sketches from juvenile life show powers which might be more ambitiously displayed, but cannot be better bestowed."—Quarterly Review.
London: HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, Booksellers to H.R.H. the Princess of Wales.

Two Hundred and Seventh Thousand,
THE PEEP OF DAY; or, a Series of the Earliest Religious Instruction the Infant Mind is capable of receiving. Best edition, cloth antique, 2s.; cheap edition, cloth limp, 1s. 2d.
Works by the same Author,
MORE ABOUT JESUS: for the Last Stage of Childhood. With Illustrations. 19th Thousand. 18mo, cloth, 2s. 6d.
LINE UPON LINE; or, a Second Series of the Earliest Religious Instruction the Infant Mind is capable of receiving. Part I., 105th Thousand, Part II., 89th Thousand. 2 vols., 18mo, cloth, each 2s. 6d.
LINES LEFT OUT; or, Some of the Histories Left Out in "Line upon Line." This First Part relates events in the times of the Patriarchs and the Judges. "The time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae."—Heb. xi. 32. With Illustrations. Tenth Thousand. 18mo, cloth, 3s.
STREAKS OF LIGHT; or, Fifty-two Facts from the Bible for the Fifty-two Sundays of the Year. With 52 Illustrations. Eighth Thousand. 18mo, cloth, 3s.
READING WITHOUT TEARS; or, a Pleasant Mode of Learning to Read. With numerous Illustrations. Twelfth Thousand. Square cloth, 2s.
London: HATCHARD and CO., 187, Piccadilly, Booksellers to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

Fifth Edition, price One Guinea, post-free,
THE ART OF BREWING, FERMENTING, AND MAKING OF MALT. By JOHN LEVESQUE, late of the Anchor Brewery. Wherein will be found full directions for the prevention of acetous fermentation, correct tables of mashing heats, and all other necessary directions, the result of forty years' practice in the above art.—JAMES LEATH, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 16s., post-free,
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. No medicine is prescribed without the indications for its selection and the dose to be administered, free from all technicalities, and specially adapted to the use of clergymen, emigrants, and missionaries. Also, just published, an Epitome of the above, Twenty-fourth Edition, price 5s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the former work, price 50s.; and to the latter, price 30s. LEATH and ROSS, 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 5, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

DR. JOHN EPPS on PHTHISIS, pp. 312, large 8vo, cloth, 5s., post-free.
CONSUMPTION; its Nature and Treatment. By JOHN EPPS, M.D.
London: JAMES EPPS, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

The LATEST EXPERIENCES and APPLIANCES of HOMŒOPATHY. 678 pages, fcap 8vo, cloth, 5s., post-free,
THE HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY INSTRUCTOR. By RICHARD EPPS, Surgeon. This guide treats of the diseases of both adults and children, and is the vade-mecum of homœopathic medicine. It displays the latest experiences and appliances of the science. A chapter is devoted to each disease, which is fully described, and the remedy and dose appropriate to each phase of it that may arise prescribed. Globules, pilules, and tinctures are the forms in which homœopathic medicines are prepared. This work shows the dose in each of these, so that either the one or the other may be adopted.
An Epitome of the above, 224 pages, 32 no, limp cloth, 1s. This handbook is adapted to those commencing the practice.
A Chest of Medicines to the large work, 30s.; to the Epitome, 10s. or 18s.; or any single phial, by post, 1s.
London: J. EPPS, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and No. 48, Threadneedle-street.

For ENGLISH RESIDENTS ABROAD.—Pp. 104, fcap 8vo, cloth, 2s., post-free,
THE SPECIAL DISEASES OF THE BRITISH POSSESSIONS, and their HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT. By RICHARD EPPS, Surgeon. This handbook forms an appendix to "The Homœopathic Family Instructor," by the same author, and describes and treats the special diseases of India, China, Africa, the West Indies, South America, and Levant in the same manner as adopted in that work. The two works bound in one thick volume, 6s. 6d. An extra-sized Cabinet Medicine Chest, including book, complete, 80s.—London: J. EPPS, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

Third Edition, pp. 128, 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d., post-free,
THE DISEASES OF WOMEN. By Drs. WILLIAMSON and G. N. EPPS. Prescribes homœopathically for every affection that may call for advice during the several periods of life. Sent, secure in wrapper, for 30 stamps.
THE DISEASES OF CHILDREN. By the same Authors. Pp. 120, 8vo, limp cloth, 1s. 6d. The two works bound together, 3s. 6d.
London: J. EPPS, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

DR. HUNT ON STAMMERING.
Is published this day, price 3s. 6d., post-free,
STAMMERING AND STUTTERING: their Nature and Treatment. By JAMES HUNT, Ph.D, F.S.A., F.R.S.L., &c.
London: LONGMAN and CO.; or, of the Author, Ore House, near Hastings.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,
ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

NEW BOOKS.

CONYBEARE AND HOWSON'S WORK ON ST. PAUL.
In two vols., 4to, with numerous Maps, Plates, and Wood Engravings, price 48s., cloth,
THE LIFE and EPISTLES of ST. PAUL. By the Rev. W. J. CONYBEARE, M.A., late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and the Rev. J. S. HOWSON, D.D., Principal of Liverpool College. Library edition, with all the original Illustrations.
The original or Library Edition of this work, in quarto, with numerous Illustrations, was completed in 1852; the Intermediate Edition with fewer illustrations, but after careful revision, appeared in 1856. Both these editions have been several times reprinted. In the People's Edition, recently published, the Illustrations are somewhat fewer; the text is given without abridgment, but the notes in the narrative portion are slightly condensed, and adapted to unlearned readers. Thus each of the three editions of this standard and popular work has a distinctive character of its own.
CONYBEARE and HOWSON'S LIFE and EPISTLES of ST. PAUL; the Intermediate Edition, with a selection of Maps, Plates, and Woodcuts. 2 vols., square crown 8vo, price 31s. 6d.
CONYBEARE and HOWSON'S LIFE and EPISTLES of ST. PAUL, the People's Edition, condensed; with 46 Illustrations and Maps. 2 vols., crown 8vo, price 12s.
"This very instructive book has the great merit of laying before the general reader in an alluring form much illustrative matter which had previously been the exclusive property of the professed scholar or theologian, and thus creating an enlarged interest in, and more intelligent study of, the New Testament writings among those who before were satisfied with employing the heart only, to the neglect of the understanding. The only bar to the more general diffusion of this work, its costliness, is now removed, and we trust that this less expensive edition will have as wide a sale as it deserves."—Cambridge Journal of Classical and Sacred Philology.
Also, Second Edition, in 8vo, price 9s.
THE REV. DR. HOWSON'S FIVE LECTURES on the CHARACTER of ST. PAUL; being the Hulsean Lectures for the Year 1862.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.
London: LONGMAN and CO.

THE GRAMMAR OF ORNAMENT. By OWEN JONES. The new and cheap Edition of this magnificent work may now be subscribed for in Parts (30), fortnightly, at 2s. 6d. per part; in Divisions (5), quarterly, at 21s.; or, in the perfect volume, cloth elegant, £5 5. Part 1, Division 1, and the perfect volume, ready April 1. Prospectus on application to DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, W.C.

At all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
ODD NEIGHBOURS. By the Author of "Lord Lynn's Wife."
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

MOST POPULAR COOKERY BOOKS.
FRANCATELLI'S PRACTICAL GUIDE TO ENGLISH AND FOREIGN COOKERY IN ALL ITS BRANCHES. Fcap 8vo. 40 Illustrations. 1000 Recipes. 5s.
FRANCATELLI'S MODERN COOK. 8vo. 1500 Recipes and 60 Illustrations. 12s.
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

Just ready, 95 plates, many coloured, size folio imperial, with descriptive text, bound in cloth, price £4 4s.,
THE CAMEL: its Anatomy, Proportions, and Paces. By ELIJAH WALTON.
London: DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, W.C.

CROQUET. By JOHN JAQUES. A New Edition of its Laws for the ensuing season, enlarged and revised, with additional Diagrams and Illustrations. Cloth gilt, 1s.; in paper cover, 6d.
JAQUES and SON, Hatton-garden; and LONGMANS, Paternoster-row.

JAQUES'S CROQUET.

Now ready, price One Shilling,
THE ARTISTIC ANATOMY OF THE HORSE. By B. WATERHOUSE HAWKINS, F.L.S., F.G.S. Twenty-four Illustrations.
London: WINSOR and NEWTON; and all Booksellers and Artists Colourmen.

SHIRA. Look out for CASSELL'S PAPER, No. 12. Price One Penny.

In Weekly Numbers, price One Penny; and in Monthly Parts, price Sixpence, uniform with "Cassell's Illustrated Bunyan," CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION of FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS.
Edited by the Rev. W. BRAMLEY-MOORE, M.A.
No. 1 ready April 12.
First Monthly Part ready April 29.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London, E.C.; and all Booksellers.

THE JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES' DIRECTORY for 1865.
Post-free 21s.
CHARLES BARKER and SONS, 8, Birchin-lane, Cornhill, E.C.; and Groombridge and Sons, 5, Paternoster-row, London, E.C.

THE only correct SPRING FASHIONS and CUT-OUT PATTERNS, from PARIS, in LADIES' GAZETTE OF FASHION for APRIL. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d. Grand Novelties. Dresses, Mantles, Bonnets, Children's Dresses, Head-dresses, Millinery. Pattern of Robe Elysée cut out ready for use. Four magnificent Plates. Full descriptions.
G. BERGER, 12, Newcastle-street, Strand, W.C.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,
HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Gt. Queen-st., W.C.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,
DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

J. GILBERT respectfully invites the attention of the Public to his SHOW-ROOMS FOR BOOKS, MAPS, ATLASES, EDUCATIONAL WORKS, Bibles, Prayers, and Church Services, all arranged in the most convenient way for purchasers to select from, and supplied at the most liberal prices. Catalogues gratis and post-free.
18 and 19, Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

THE "LONDON REVIEW" CHURCH COMMISSION.—The "London Review" having sent out Special Commissioners to collect practical information as to the working and efficiency of the Church and other religious denominations throughout England and Wales, and to inquire into their respective influence and progress in the various districts, the publication of the report will be commenced on Saturday, the 8th of April, and continued weekly. The "London Review," price 4d.; stamped, 5d. Annual subscription, £1 1s.—Office, 11, Southampton-street, Strand.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of Foreign Postage-Stamps sent post-free for 2 stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London, W.C.
Warsaw Envelope Stamps, 6d. each.

THE LITTLE MODELLER.—How to Make a Model Village, 48 Coloured Engravings, post-free for 7 stamps; a Model Railway, 7 stamps; Windsor Castle, 7 stamps; a Model Farm, 7 stamps; a Wreck Ashore, 7 stamps; a Model Racecourse, 7 stamps; a Cricket Field, 7 stamps; a Watering-place, 7 stamps; Shakspeare's Birthplace, 7 stamps; Ann Hathaway's Cottage, 7 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

PUNCH ON HORSEBACK.—Roars of Laughter.—The extraordinary performance of Punch and the Clown on their Magic Horses. Daily, from Ten till Five. The pair sent free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

NEW MUSIC.

Just published, price 3s.,
MURMURES EOLIENS. Arranged by WILLIE PAPE, and performed by him before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House.
GEORGE EMERY and CO., 408, Oxford-street, W.

TRAVIS'S SACRED MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE may be had in 36 Books. Each Book contains upwards of fifteen subjects, selected from the works of the best Composers. Price 3s. each.—London: BREWER and CO.

TRAVIS'S VOLUNTARIES, for the Harmonium, may be had in 36 Books. Price, 3s. each; or in Six Volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BELISARIO.—J. ASCHER.—A brilliant Transcription for the Pianoforte on Airs from Donizetti's Opera, "Belisario." In the hands of an accomplished performer, will be found most effective. Price 4s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. By EDWIN FLOOD. Book I. contains Thirty-eight Psalms and Hymns, for Voice and Pianoforte; also, Twelve Chants. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ELLIE.—"This most successful Ballad, by J. Pridham, was sung by Miss Eleonora Wilkinson, the great Contralto, and vociferously encored, at the Assembly Room, Taunton, on March 11, 1865."—Vide Somerset County Gazette.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL PRIMER, with Selections from Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Concone. This work contains numerous Exercises, Solfeggi, and Original Songs, admirably calculated to impart all the requisite information essential to the vocalist. Price 5s.
London: BREWER and CO.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—EARLY FLOWERS. A graceful and effective arrangement for the Pianoforte of Eulenstein's favourite Ballad, "O give to me those early flowers." Price 3s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

Tenth Edition.
BRINLEY RICHARDS.—THE HUNDRED PIPERS. A charming little morceau for the Pianoforte, founded on this popular "Jacobite Air." Price 3s.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.
O YE TEARS! O YE TEARS! Ballad. Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington sang this song at the Crystal Palace on Saturday last with great success. Poetry by Dr. Mackay; Music by FRANZ ABT, Composer of the "Cuckoo Song," "Kathleen Aroon," "Good Morning," &c. Each 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
Mdme. Parepa sang, with great applause, BRINLEY RICHARDS' CLOUD OF THE SUMMER, at Leicester, on the 13th inst. 3s.
THE MUSIC OF HER VOICE. Ballad. By the Composer of "The Liquid Gem," "Her bright smile haunts me still," "Thy Voice is near," "'Twas thy loved voice," "In search of a primrose," "She sang among the flowers," &c. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
BRINLEY RICHARDS' RECOLLECTIONS OF WALES. Twelve of the most popular Welsh Airs. Arranged for Piano. Each 3s., free for 19 postage-stamps; or in 1 vol., bound, 21s., or free for 14s. in stamps.
A. F. GODFREY'S UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. For Piano (with Cornet ad lib.) Finely Illustrated. 4s.
HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS FOR PIANO. 4s. 465th Edition.
THE ORGAN: its History and Construction. By E. J. HOPKINSON, Esq., and Dr. E. F. RIMBAULT. £1 11s. 6d.; free for 23s. 8d. Indispensable to all who are concerned with the organ.
THE CUCKOO SONG. Music by FRANZ ABT; Words by Geo. Linley. First sung by Mdlle. Liebhardt. 3s.; free for 19 stamps. Also, by ABT:—KATHLEEN AROON; O YE TEARS! O YE TEARS! GOOD MORNING, &c. 2s. 6d. each; free for 16 stamps.
THE UNITED SERVICE WALTZ. For Piano. By A. F. GODFREY. Illustrated. 4s.; free for 25 stamps.
ASSEMBLEE GALOP. (Melody, F. Kücken.) For the Pianoforte (with Cornet in B flat). By DANIEL GODFREY, B. M. Grenadier Guards. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
THE UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE. For Piano (with Cornet). By A. F. GODFREY. 4s.; free for 25 stamps.
SACRED MUSIC FOR SUNDAY EVENINGS. By G. F. WEST. No. 1, 4s.; free for 25 stamps. The Second Number of this popular work is now ready, containing "Jerusalem the Golden;" "Nearer, my God, to Thee;" "Sun of my Soul;" Mendelssohn's celebrated "Christmas Hymn," and five other Hymns. Price 4s.; free for 25 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, W. Agents for Calcutta: Messrs. Burkinyoung and Co.

THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A BENEDICT, most facetiously illustrates the vicissitudes of Admiration, Flirtation, Declaration, Acceptation, Preparation, Celebration, Felicitation, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Desperation, and Separation. Post-free, 1s. 6d. The Matrimonial Polka, 1s. 6d. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING. Sacred Song. By Peter the Venerable. Composed by C. G. HAMILTON. In F and A flat. "The most interesting and beautiful sacred song ever published." Post-free, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the much admired Drawing-room Piece,
LA PRIÈRE EXAUCÉE (The Prayer Granted). Reply to "La Prière d'une Vierge." Par THECLA BADARZEWSKA. Post-free, 1s. 6d.—OETZMANN, 27, Baker-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. Oetzmann's New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, post-free, 6d. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Drawings free.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, seven octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE JEWELLERY.—A very elegant STOCK of GOLD CHAINS. 18s. to 20 gs.; Gentlemen's Albert Chains, 21s. to 18 gs.; Gold Brooches, 20s. to 15 gs.; Gold Bracelets, 55s. to £20; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s., 15s., and 20s.; Gem ditto, 12s. 6d. to 20 gs.; Gold Earrings, 12s. 6d. to 5 gs. per pair; Gold Lockets, 10s. to 16 gs.; Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 10 gs.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 148, Regent-street. Old Chains, Jewellery, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones purchased or taken in Exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds reset. List of Prices free. Shippers supplied.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	19	19	0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837), under Royal Patronage.—17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR H. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, may be secured by a payment of £3 for the year, or £1 10s. for half a year, by the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY (6, Cornhill, and 10, Regent-street).
W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

ALBERT INSURANCE COMPANY, Limited, Offices and Machine Shops—Crown Buildings, Fenchurch-street (entrance by the individual clock).
The utmost limit of risk on any one life, £2000.
MORELL THEOBALD, Manager, 81 Regent-street.
Agents wanted where not appointed.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for Three Guineas.—An ANNUAL PAYMENT of £3 3s. secures £2000 at the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, Corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. BUNN, Secretary.

LIMPLEY STOKE, NEAR BATH.
HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.
Physician—DR. DODDS, Jun., M.D.
Manager, Mr. T. SMITH, late of St. Mary's Hospital.
CHARLES JOHN SMITH, Proprietor.

MALVERN COLLEGE.—This COLLEGE is NOW OPEN.
Boarding-house Masters { Rev. CHAS. M'DOWALL, M.A.
Rev. ARTHUR WM. HOSKYNS, M.A.
There will be an examination at the end of the month for two classical scholarships, of £50 for three years, and £25 for one year respectively.
For information apply to the Head Master, Rev. ARTHUR HILL, M.A., and for any further information as to classical examinations apply to the Rev. HENRY ALLMAN, Esq., the Chaplain.

BRIGHTON.—In a LADIES' SCHOOL, where the principals are assisted by professors of eminence, the system of education is such as to combine every advantage that can be desired for YOUNG LADIES. The locality is unrivalled, and its situation known to the best families in Brighton. Applications to be made by letter, prepaid, to J. M., care of Mr. Truscott, Architect, Brighton.

PRONUNCIATION OF GREEK.—A Greek professor, master of ancient languages, author, undertakes to a few learners to make Greek Scholars Quickly, Easily, and Pronounce Correctly according to Modern Idiom.—Address, Professor, cash-account, Exchange Buildings, E.C.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION.—A nurse of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from 10 till 5 for the instruction of all ages desirous of writing a beautiful easy free-writing hand in the shortest time. Lessons at home or at the Institution. Terms, Private Lessons, Ten Guineas; Class, Two Guineas. Twelve Lady Teachers attend. Private Rooms for Ladies. Separate department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, &c., address Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the Society of Scribes and Illuminators.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Penny Printing Press, from 21s. to £4 4s., for Initiating, Amusement, or Circulating Programmes. "Set up, I print well."—Bell's Life. "Admirably," &c., at 15 stamps each.—O. G. BIELBY, Inventor and Manufacturer, 10 and 11, Her Majesty's Post Office, 91, High Holborn, London, W.C.

PICTURE-FRAMES for RED RIDING HOOD.—Handsome Gilt Frames, Glass, and Back, 3s.; for Land-girls, &c., 4s.—Gilt Maple and Gilt, 5s.—Rosewood and Gilt, 6s.—Drawing and Engravings 2 stamps, at GEORGE REES', 57, Drury-lane.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, Boudoir, Library, Dining-room, and Conservatory.—Groups, candelabras, statuettes, statuettes, busts, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by ELKINGTON and Co. (late Moore), 22, Regent-street, W.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 300 Engravings, with Prices, sent free by post. Bedsteads, Bedding, Blankets, Quilts, Carpets, Rugs, Mats, Floor-cloths, Curtains, Cornices, Brass Fenders and Fire-irons, Stoves, Kitchen Ranges, Kitchen Furniture, Culinery Utensils, Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Portable Buildings, Garden Furniture, &c., with Lists of prices and plans of the entire large House, sent at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

MYTTON & GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Address, Mr. MYTTON,
D. R. ROBERTS, 7, Russell-court, Covent-garden.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN DICKINSON and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

PATENT CORN-FLOUR.
Perfect in Quality,
for Children's Diet
and Light Suppers.

PURVEYOR TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

PETER ROBINSON
begs to call special attention to his unique and well-selected STOCK of Mourning Goods, consisting of the newest textures of French and English production.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a very Useful Silk, made expressly to new styles and now available for Ladies' Mourning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, 27 in. wide, 4s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS in Mourning, Imported many months ago, and which could not be surpassed. The new fashionable article for the season in Dress Silks, in a variety of qualities, and in the newest shades of Grey, Violet, and Purple.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR EVENING COSTUMES.
Irish Poplins in specially new colours,
at 2½ gns. the Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, in Black and Colours, at 3½ gns. the Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR EARLY SPRING, Striped Glacé Silks, Striped Checked and Shaded Silks, Checked Silks, Satin, and Brocade.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST PUBLISHED,
5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to meet the present requirements of Ladies in Mourning, at 2½ gns. each, and Fifty Thousand Yards of Rich Glacé Silks, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Many of the above have been specially set by new designs expressly for PETER ROBINSON.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORD SILKS
Cloth Side Alfred,
including the Royal Irish, Prince of Wales, Zanzer Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gns. Full Dress 14 yards.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPECIAL NOTICE !!
Non-existing Agencies.
Worked White Muslin Dresses,
Lot 1—7s. 6d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 2—10s. 6d. each, or Ten Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3—15s. 6d. each, or Fifteen Guineas for Twenty.
Being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the most extraordinary Dress Lot ever offered.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FLAID STRIPED OR BROCHE MUSLINS,
adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses,
at 1 gn. the Dress of 12 yards.
Some very choice Designs, at 1½ gns. the 12 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES of PRINTED MUSLINS.
Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new,
an entire Manufacturer's Stock, at 1s. 6d. per yard, post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS.
Now ready, all the New Patterns in
PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES,
at One Shilling per Yard.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE ARABIAN MOHAIR, 2s. 6d. per yard,
for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful Fabric for Mourning, Walking or Partiture Dresses.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST PURCHASED, upwards of 2000 CHELY-LA-PRUNE ROBES, and are now being sold at 21s. the 9½ in Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.
The Most Fashionable Colours are Double Grenadine Stripes, Double Checks, and Shaded Checks.

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE COLLECTION OF
NEW SPRING DRESSES.
Rich Brocade Silk Poplins (now coloured), 21 guineas
Rich Brocade Silk Poplins, 2½ guineas
The Newest Silk Checks, 2½ guineas
The Newest Striped Silk Checks, 2½ Full Dress.
Patterns Free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE MOST DECIDED NOVELTY FOR THIS SPRING IS THE SILK CREPE MEXICAN,
in Black and Colours, at 2½ gns. the Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A SELECTED VARIETY OF
CHEAP SPRING DRESSES.
A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth,
at 1s. 6d. per yard.
Also Striped, Checked and Shaded ditto, 6d. to 1s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SPRING PETTICOATS.
A choice assortment in Black and Coloured Alpacas.
New French and Scotch Lawns, for Morning Dresses.
In Black and Coloured Grenadines, at 1s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ROYAL CROSS BAREHOUSE,
London.
EXCEPT ONLY Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vine-street only.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that, this day, they have received an new fashionable every novelty adapted to the present season. These impressions are exclusively their own, and will be found to be of the most extensive and varied character. Also a large and choice collection of Rich and Descending Glace moire ire of the most varied and decidedly fashionable tints, in Black and White, Black and Colours, Colours of Fashion Hues, in spring, Grey, Violet, Purple, and mauve, Turkey and Flamme; also, at Velasquez-like Designs, and the new Shaded Checks, Stripes, and Brocades, suitable for Evening and Theatre Dress Materials, and Satins, in the newest and shadiest shades of Colour.—Regent-street and Cross.

MESSRS. JAY,
MOURNING WARE MERCERS
TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,
H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES,
H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge,
London General Mourning Warehouse,
247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

MESSRS. ATKINSON and CO.'S Stock, of Black Silks, Crapes, Bombazines, Cashmeres, Merinos, Shawls, &c.
PETER ROBINSON has bought this Stock at a large discount from the real price, which he will offer for sale in a few days, at prices much below the present value of goods. Due notice will be given of the commencement of the Sale.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FRENCH CASHMERE SHAWLS, at an immense reduction in price, from 12s. 6d. to 30 guineas. Do. Broché Shawls, from 2 guineas to 50 guineas. Do. Square Shawls.—PETER ROBINSON will offer for SALE a Manufacturer's Stock of beautiful French Cashmere Shawls, at a reduction of 50 per cent from the regular prices. Included in the lot are several exclusive patterns of the new Floriation Silk Shawl, price 5 guineas, manufactured expressly for PETER ROBINSON.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 171, 172, 173, 174, Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy 21 3s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks 21 15s. 6d. "
Next, useful, and exclusive Silks for Young Ladies, from 21 7s. 9d. "
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks are now 21 19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Striped Silks are now 21 19s. 6d. "
198, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS!
Rich, bright, silky, and durable, at 21 19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE Spring Silk DRESSES for the present and coming Season are the NEW STRAW SILK CORDS, in Black and colours, commencing at 21 19s. 6d. at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street.

MOHAIRS, Cashmeres, Mexican Cloths, &c.
The Spring Fashions.
The Most Elegant Spring Fabrics, at 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d.
Mexican Cloths, Parisiennes, &c., 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea, Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

WOOL EMBROIDERED MUSLINS, 8s. 9d.
The Spring Fashion, in Black and Colours, 8s. 9d. to 18s. 6d.
Mexican Cloths, Parisiennes, &c., 12s. 6d. to 1 guinea, Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW ARABIAN MOHAIRS, 1 yard and ½ yard wide, in all the new Colours for the Season.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW FIGURED MOHAIRS, 8s. 9d.
Full Dress. 50,000 pieces of these Spring Costume Goods on sale, Greenland, Hindoo, and Persian Cloths, from 8s. 9d. to 1 guinea Full Dress. The best makes. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, 14 stamps. Beautiful, to any colour in the rainbow, Hair Nets, in all Human Hair, in 4d., Ultimate Hair, in 4d., 3s. Patchwork, 1s. Invisible Hair Nets, 1s. Invisible Fringe, 1s. Patchwork, 1s.
16 GD LADIES' in Full GENTLEMEN'S, Skeleton's Alpine Kid Gloves,
Very best Quality, 1s. 6d. per pair, post-free, 14 stamps.
Patterns of Hair Nets, Gloves, &c., free on receipt of 4d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS of extraordinary brightness and durability, at 2s. 6d. per yard.
Good Black Gros de Naples (the old make), 2s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros de Naples, 3s. 6d. per yard. Full Dress 14 yards.
Lyons Black, Guinevere 3s.—3s. 9½ per yard.

BLACK SILKS MUSLINS,
Barèges, Batistes, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S CAMBRICS, Fine Cambrics, Linens, Muslins, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, and all the best Goods at the lowest prices, and half the price of the new goods. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

CURTAINS! CURTAINS! CURTAINS!
BAKER and CRISP have the cheapest stock of Muslin, Lace, and Net Curtains in London. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street, W.

THE NEW PETTICOATINGS.
Patterns free.
Comhit, Linen, and Muslin Petticoating, from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 3d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

3 YARDS WIDE, THE UNTEARABLE
BLACK GRENADINES, Barèges,
Spring Fashions, Black and White and Black Checks, Stripes, Silk, for Shawls, Mantles, or Dresses, very cheap. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

SILK GRENADINES. Patterns free.
The Most Fashionable Colours for Dresses, Mantles, Shawls, Evening, or Walking Dresses, from 2s. to 3 guineas Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS
Just Received.
Darker Month we shall sell Black Lace Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas, at 15s. 6d., 21s., and 25s. 6d.
198, Regent-street.
BAKER and CRISP.

THE NEW OTTOMAN CORDED SILKS,
at 1½ 2s. 6d. per yard.
All the New Colours for Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER AND CRISP'S
NEW CHÊNÉ MEXICAN CLOTHS.
The largest variety in the kingdom, 12s. 6d. Full Dress.

SPRING SEASON, 1865.
KING and CO. MERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that they are now showing their first delivery of RICH FIGURED and BLACK SILKS, selected before the late advance in prices, and 20 per cent under the present value. Also a large lot of Rich Black Glacé Silks, which for extreme price should make their Stock one of the most attractive in the Spring season. Patterns post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING SILKS at KINGS,
243, Regent-street.
Striped Silks, 21 15s.
Striped Silks, 21 15s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Rich Silk Poplins,
Rich Silk Poplins,
Turkey Silks,
Cord Silks,
Satin Silks,
Checked Silks,
Rich Brocade Silks,
Rich Cross-bar Silks,
Rich Striped Silks,
Rich Figured Silks,
21 15s. 6d.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KINGS,
243, Regent-street.
Black Glace Silks, £1 6s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Black Cord Silks 1 7s. 6d. "
Black Cord Silks 1 9s. 6d. "
Black Corded Silks 1 12s. 6d. "
Black Rich Brocaded Silks 1 15s. 6d. "
Black Striped Silks 1 17s. 6d. "
Black Broché Silks 1 19s. 6d. "
Black Satin Silks 2 2s. 6d. "
Richest Black Moire Antiques 2 7s. 6d. "
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS at KINGS,
243, Regent-street.
Sent to any part of the world.
Thread Normet Muslins 3s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Finest Organdie Muslins 5s. 6d. "
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING FABRICS at KINGS,
243, Regent-street.
Maple Cloths 21 8s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Chalet Cashmeres 21 8s. "
Shepherd's Plaid Orellia 21 8s. 6d. "
Shepherd's Plaid Tweeds 21 8s. "
French Lenos 21 8s. 6d. "
Chené Satin Cloth 21 8s. 6d. "
Chené Mexican Cloth 21 8s. "
French Orellias 21 8s. 6d. "
Rich Mexicans 21 8s. 6d. "
Chené Parisiennes 21 8s. "
Silk Wool Serges 21 8s. 6d. "
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street,
Black Silk Mercer, by Special Appointment,
would invite the special attention of purchasers to the unique Wear and Quality of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable Prices at which they are sold.
Good, useful Black Silks, from 2½ to 10s. the Full Dress.
Superior and more expensive Qualities in proportion.
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR FIRST or DEEP MOURNING.
Experience in
Families requiring Mourning will find it to their advantage to call at PETER ROBINSON'S, where they will be waited upon by experienced Assistants, who have had considerable practice in ATTENDING PERSONALLY at Inquiries.
Dressmakers and Milliners
Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses, to the most correct taste, are always kept ready made for immediate use, at PETER ROBINSON'S.
Good Silk and Satin Dresses are kept ready for selection, accompanied by Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses, to the most correct taste, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILK DRESSES, the Skirts made up, with cape or neck linen in readiness, to the largest variety, and
AS PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street,
Black Silk Mercer, by Special Appointment,
would invite the special attention of purchasers to the unique Wear and Quality of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable Prices at which they are sold.
Good, useful Black Silks, from 2½ to 10s. the Full Dress.
Superior and more expensive Qualities in proportion.
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR FIRST or DEEP MOURNING.
Experience in
Families requiring Mourning will find it to their advantage to call at PETER ROBINSON'S, where they will be waited upon by experienced Assistants, who have had considerable practice in ATTENDING PERSONALLY at Inquiries.
Dressmakers and Milliners
Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses, to the most correct taste, are always kept ready made for immediate use, at PETER ROBINSON'S.
Good Silk and Satin Dresses are kept ready for selection, accompanied by Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses, to the most correct taste, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

SPRING DRESSES in Black and Half Mourning.
Patterns of the new and beautiful Fabrics for Dresses will be sent, on application, free.
Address—PETER ROBINSON'S, Regent-street.

THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS in DRESS, MANTLES, and MILLINERY, combining the most suitable to Inexpensive STYLES of SPRING PURCHASES, containing the Newest Goods, at the Lowest Prices, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

RICH BLACK GLACES, CORD GRAINS, and DRAPES, of the Richest Quality.
FANCY SILKS in all the new Styles and Colours.
The Newest Shades in Violet, Purple, Grey, and Pearl Shades.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPRING SILKS, Checked, Striped, and Shaded Silks, Satin, and Brocade.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS, Manufacturers, Merchants, and Others.—Messrs. Hall and Co. are instructed to sell by JAMES PLANT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-court, on Thursday, March 30, at 12 o'clock precisely, the valuable and extensive STOCK of Mr. French Cotton Manufacturer, consisting of about 1000 pieces of Fancy Trouserings, Doeskins, Cassimeres, Vestings, Tweeds, Cloakings, Flannels, Blankets, Rugs, Shawls, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, Gloves, Braces, Ties, Scarfs, Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Dressing Gowns, Wrappers, Caps, Hats, Bonnets, Ribbons, Velvets, Silks, Satins, Crapes, Bombazines, Cashmeres, Merinos, Mantles, Millinery, and Dresses, to the most correct taste, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Regent-street, London.

SANSPAREIL CRINOLINES,
Light, Elastic, and Durable.
Every Genuine Hoop bears the Trade Mark,
ADELEY BOURNE (late Padgett), 37, Fore-hill.

EMPRESS CRINOLINES,
Manufactured on the Principle of Spring,
Beautifully Elastic, Light, and Durable.
ADELEY BOURNE (late Padgett), 37, Fore-hill.

ONDINA or WAVED CRINOLINES,
Are the most graceful Hoops.
"They form the most graceful Skirts."—Morning Post.
ADELEY BOURNE (late Padgett), 37, Fore-hill, London.

EBONITE CRINOLINE,
Or, a Celebrated Hoop.
"A celebrated maker of hoops."—Ist Journal.
ADELEY BOURNE (late Padgett), 37, Fore-hill.

CRINOLINE IN OUR PARKS AND PROMENADES.
"Superfluities (is it) to"—Queen.
"Is to be voted a nuisance."—Spectator.
By far the largest and most varied Stock
This valuable Illustrated Work gratis and post-free.
Wholesale and Retail, 248, Regent-street, London, W.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free.—Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a visit, will find this List of the greatest service to them in making their selection. Its pages contain Sketches, Descriptions, and Prices of the Useful and Fancy Articles to be found in S—N. Ford and Co., 26, Poultry, E.C.

FORD'S COLOURED EUREKA SHIRTS, Ready for Wear, Measure, or Self-measurement.—Ford's Eureka Shirts are made from a perfect system, and fit to a nicety. Patterns and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free, from stamps.—S. Ford and Co., 26, Poultry, E.C.

NOTICE.—Professor BROWNE respectfully informs the Nobility and Gentry that he has removed from 33, Basinghall-street, to No. 5, Serle-street, Lincoln's-inn, where he continues to Manufacture his Patent Self-adjusting Spectacles, which, if properly adapted, will last for many years without the slightest alteration, rendering the discomfort of the best quality. A self-measurement sent "Pearls."

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY, 110, Fleet-street, corner of Chancery-lane, 308, Regent-street, Oxford-street, and 441, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Sets, from 5 guineas. Single teeth, from 5s. Stopping, from 2s. Decayed teeth rendered serviceable, they may say produced. Consultation Free. Mr. ROBERTS, Surgeon-Dentist, 110, Fleet-street, London.
To economise, by visiting Mr. Roberts, is to practise economy.

COST'S PATENT ELASTIC CALISTHENIC CHEST EXPANDER, used by the Royal Family, produces immediate and permanent development of the chest, and is the only effectual remedy for the worst forms of weakness and tendency of weakness. List of prices, testimonials, &c., forwarded on application.—COST and SON, 194, Bishopsgate-street, London.

LADIES' ABDOMINAL BELTS, of Jacconet Waterproof Cloth, for Morning Dress, Equestrian Exercise, self-measurement and prices free by post.—ELAM, 154, New Bond-street.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss CALLOW, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, begs to inform the Ladies that she has returned to 24, Princes-street, Hanover-square, where she continues to supply the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilet, Instructions, Consultations, &c. Private Rooms. Fulfilling Engagements.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really promotes nourishing support for promoting the growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Only Proprietors, Price's Patent Candle Company, Belmont, London.
IMMEDIATE RELIEF OF THE MOST VIOLENT COUGH!

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using DR. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it is the most wonderful remedy ever discovered for weak eyes, sore eyes, &c. Sold by all Chemists, Opticians, Perfumers, &c.

DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the Faculty throughout the United Kingdom and throughout the world as the most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC COUGHS, ASTHMA, CATARRH, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, and all forms of the SCROFULOUS DISEASES, INFANTILE WASTING, and RICKETS.
Is unanimously superior to every other variety.

DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.
Manufacturer—W. MOUNTAIN, 150, Strand, City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from the observations I have no doubt of its being a pure and genuine natural article."—Vide Lancet.
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, and have found it to possess the most beneficial curative effects, and that it is manufactured exceptional in value the advantage of the invariable medicine is destroyed."—
Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled Imperial Half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his Stamp and Signature, without which none can possess the genuine article, and which is procurable of most respectable Chemists throughout the World.
ARTHUR HARFORD, and Co., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

NEW MUSIC.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA.

THE MOCK DOCTOR (Le Médecin Malgré Lui). By CH. GOUNOD (Composer of "Faust"). Performed at the Royal English Opera, Covent-garden, with the greatest success. The Opera complete, with French or English words, 16s.
The following are just published :—
THE OVERTURE. For Pianoforte. Price 4s. ; Duet, 5s.
NAVA.—FAVOURITE AIRS. For the Pianoforte. Price 5s.
KUHE.—FANTASIA. On favourite airs, including "The Faggot-binders' Chorus." Price 4s.
G. A. OSBORNE.—FAGGOT-BINDERS CHORUS. Arranged for the Pianoforte. 3s. 6d.
RICHARDS.—SERENADE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
H. W. GOODBAN.—SOFT AND LOW (Sung by Corri). Transcribed for the Pianoforte. 3s.
GO WANDER THROUGH THE WORLD. Sung by Mdme. Fanny Huddart. Price 2s. 6d.
IN YOUTH'S SEASON. Serenade. Sung by Mr. Haigh. Price 2s. 6d.
PRISON'D IN A CAGE. Sung by Mr. Haigh. Price 2s. 6d.
WOMAN'S VENGEANCE. Sung by Miss Poole. Price 2s. 6d.
SOFT AND LOW. The drinking song. Sung by Mr. Corri. Price 3s.
QUADRILLE. By Camille Schubert. Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated Guards' Waltz, by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A New Quadrille on Favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards" and "Mabel" Waltzes ; and Illustrated with a Portrait of H.R.H. Prince Alfred in Uniform. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. A new set of Waltzes on favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with a scene from "Faust," containing Portraits of Patti, Mario, Faure, &c. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's popular opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. Godfrey, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 4s. ; Septet, 2s. ; Orchestra, 3s. ; Military Band, 15s. ; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each ; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DUSSEK'S INVOCATION SONATA.—A New and Revised Edition of this celebrated Sonata, as performed by Mdme. Arabella Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts, is now published, price 6s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BELLAGIO. Morceau for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by Mrs. MURRAY GARTSHORE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S GWENDOLINE. Chanson de Bonheur for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO , 50, New Bond street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S NATHLIE (The Sleeping Syren). A Sketch for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street,

THE OLIVIA POLKA. By Miss E. BLACKWELL, Composer of "The Spirit of Kindness," Song, sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington.
BOOSEY and Co., 28, Holles-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published this day.
Also, uniform with the above,
HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini). 3s.
HENRY SMART'S TWELFTH MASS (of Mozart). 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS (Op. 41, 48, 49, 50), with English words complete, price 1s. Also, for Choral Societies, in 12 Numbers, One Penny each.—Published this day by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TWELVE HYMNS FOR GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER, for Four Voices, Organ or Piano, selected, edited, and arranged by W. H. BIRCH, price 1s. ; or, in 2 Books, 6d. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

LINDSAY SLOPER'S MIRELLA. Played by Mdme. Arabella Goddard with great success. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SIGNOR ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO. This new and already popular Song, by the Author of "Il Bacio," is published in the following various forms, to suit every taste :—
1. In Italian (C and D) .. .. 3s.
2. In English (C) .. .. 3s.
3. For the Piano .. .. 3s.
4. As a Polka .. .. 3s.
To be had everywhere.—BOOSEY and CO.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW VALSE ARIETTE may be had both in Italian and English, and for the Pianoforte, viz. :—
1. Il Messagiero d'Amore. .. .. 3s.
2. The Message of Love .. .. 3s.
3. As a Valse Brillante .. .. 3s.
To be had of all Musicsellers.—BOOSEY and CO.

FOURTH EDITION OF

CAPRERA, by FORBES. Chanson Napolitaine for Pianoforte, Mr. Forbes's most popular piece.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SECOND EDITION OF

CASTELLUCIA. By FORBES. Second Chanson Napolitaine, and companion piece to "Caprera."
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

RÉNÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE, a charming little piece of six pages. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song in the author's best style. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

FORBES'S ROSAMUNDA NOCTURNE, in the style of Cramer's "Le Desir" and "Les Regrets," is one of the best pieces of the popular author of "Rappelle toi," "Caprera," &c. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FORBES'S GIOJOSO GALOP, a very showy piece on a most attractive subject. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME OURY'S BRIGHTON GALOP. A new composition, dedicated to the Ladies of Brighton, in the Author's most brilliant style. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ADOLPH GOLLMICK'S MARGUERITE and WINIFRED. Two new and original pieces, by the Author of "Dripping Well," "A Happy Thought," &c. Published this day, price 3s. each, by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE NEW BARITONE SONG,

I ALWAYS FEARED A MARRIED LIFE. By J. L. HATTON. Sung by Mr. Weiss, Mr. Winn, and Mr. Lambert, with immense success.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL.

I DO NOT ASK TO PRESS THAT CHEEK. New Ballad. By Miss GABRIEL, Author of "The Skipper and his Boy." Price 3s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S CUJUS ANIMAM. HENRY SMART'S AGNUS DEI.
A simple and classical arrangement of these two subjects.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. — Just published, BOOSEY and CO.'S new and complete edition of Mozart's Pianoforte Sonatas, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, the same work, with Memoir and Portrait of Mozart, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, price 16s. ; or, half morocco, gilt edges, price 18s. Uniform with Boosey and Co.'s guinea edition of Beethoven's Sonatas. This edition will be found second to none in point of correctness or elegance of appearance.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Subscribers to this Library paying Two Guineas per annum have the use of twelve pieces of music at the time in town, or twenty pieces in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a Guinea Illustrated Album at Christmas, or the same amount in New Music. All the newest Music is added to the Library, which comprises also a complete collection of the best Standard Works. Particulars, post-free, from BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.

FLEETING THOUGHTS, by IUCHO, price 3s., is charming, and daily acquiring popularity.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECE.

MOUNTAIN ROSE. Reverie. By MULLER. Price 4s. This piece is exceedingly graceful, without being difficult.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. This celebrated Galop eclipses all the others, and is the reigning favourite.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost ?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. Price 4s. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the celebrated Cure Lancers by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This simple and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage of the season."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VERY DANSANTE.

COOTE'S KINGFISHER POLKA. Price 3s. The best Polka ever written.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUCCESS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful Illustration of the Game in colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
"Enthusiastically received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success."—Vide Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "So Early in de Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S FIANCÈE VALSE. Price 4s. Also, by the same Composer, LA DEBUTANTE VALSE. Price 4s. With lovely Illustrations.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO,

MY THOUGHTS ARE OF THEE ONLY, price 2s. 6d., by SHIRLEY, is greatly admired.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG,

THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 2s. 6d. "This song is full of melody, and has the most charming chorus we have ever listened to."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER ; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
Bob Simmons's Courtship . .. .. 3s.
He, She, and the Postman .. .. .. 3s.
A Norrible Tale .. .. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VANCE'S GREAT SONG.

SWEET JENNY, OH ! WHERE CAN SHE BE ? Price 2s. 6d. Is always encored.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions :—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Sung by Titiens. In A and G .. .. 3s. 0d.
" "Hero to Leander." An exquisite Song .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Lark Song." Vocal Waltz .. .. 3s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again !" .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Beauty Sleep (L'Ardita) .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Bacio) .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
V. GABRIEL—Little Golden Hair .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Breeze and the Harp .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps ! though not a star .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Ah, could I but re-live the past ! .. .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C .. .. 3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B .. 3s. 0d.
MORI—Rustic Song (River Sprite) .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Sunshine of love (ditto) .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Maid of the silver mail (ditto) .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Bright as love's dream. Duet .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys ! Yo-ho !" In C, B, and G .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Innamorata d'una stella. Aria .. .. 2s. 6d.
" La luna è bella. Aria .. .. .. 2s. 6d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo ! says the gentle dove. In G and F .. 3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier ! In A and F .. 3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and C .. .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Chieftain's Wife," .. .. 3s. 0d.
" "In the hour of my distress." Sacred Song .. .. 3s. 0d.
ADAMS—When golden eve .. .. 2s. 6d.
SMYTH, R.A.—"Frappe Fort !" .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
PERRING—Beware ! .. .. 2s. 6d.
MACFARREN—I've watched him .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Wear this flow'r .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Duet : Ne'er yield thy soul .. .. 3s. 0d.
ROBERTI—Duet : Faintly flow .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Child's Vision. Duet. S.C. .. .. 3s. 0d.
BILETTA—Duet : I Tamburi .. .. 3s. 6d.
VERDI—"Swiftly thro' the West." Boat Song. .. 3s. 0d.
CAPT. COLOMB—"Up the Alma's Height." Song. .. 3s. 0d.
LOCHIEL—The Covenanter's Bridal .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Heather Bell .. .. 3s. 0d.
FARNIE—A Happy Song .. .. 3s. 0d.

II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo .. .. .. 5s. 0d.
" Tarantelle .. .. 4s. 0d.
" Mazurka, Cracovie .. .. 3s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naïades .. .. .. 5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella .. .. 3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré .. .. 3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes .. .. 4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn) 2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s. ; Duet .. 4s. 0d.
" "Leah." Transcription .. .. 3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie .. .. .. 3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto .. .. 4s. 0d.
" Pandora. Bluette de Salon .. .. 3s. 0d.
SCHUMANN—Chanson dans le Jardin. Duet. Edited by Lindsay Sloper .. .. 5s. 0d.
SURENNE—Reverie d'Amour .. .. 4s. 0d.
MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON—Elf-Land .. .. .. 4s. 0d.
" A Dream .. .. .. 2s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

MONTGOMERY—Starry Night Mazurka .. .. 3s. 0d.
DE VILLIERS—Donato Galop .. .. 4s. 0d.
" Donato Quadrille .. .. .. 4s. 0d.
" Poppies Red Valse .. .. .. 4s. 0d.
CLARKE—Witches' Own Galop .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
COOTE—Merry Wives' Quadrille .. .. .. 4s. 0d.
" She Stoops to Conquer, ditto .. .. 4s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Helvellyn Galop .. .. 4s. 0d.
" " Waltzes .. .. 4s. 0d.
" " Quadrille .. .. 4s. 0d.
" Dark Eyes Valse .. .. 3s. 0d.
GIORZA—Limited Liability Galop .. .. .. 4s. 0d.
GODFREY—Coldstream Guards Quadrille .. .. 4s. 0d.
WARREN—River Sprite Quadrille .. .. .. 3s. 0d.
" Sleeping Queen Quadrille .. .. .. 3s. 0d.

IV.—CHAMBER OPERETTAS.

Now ready, scored for Voice and Piano, with or without Chorus, and suited for private performance.
1. BRIDE OF SONG.—BENEDICT.
2. SLEEPING QUEEN.—BALFE.
3. PUNCHINELLO.—LEVEY.
4. JESSY LEA.—MACFARREN.
5. RIVER SPRITE.—MORI.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application. All New Music sent at Half-price.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S HARMONIUMS (English) of the best description, at prices from 6 to 140 guineas, in every possible variety. The Cottage Harmonium, with full compass, 6 guineas. The School Harmonium at 10 guineas. Church Harmoniums at 20, 25, and 40 guineas. Catalogues gratis.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every modern improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos,
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S.—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments :—

	Per Month.
No. 1 and 2. One Stop ..	10s. 6d.
3. Three Stops	12s. 0d.
4. Five Stops	15s. 0d.
5. Ten Stops	21s. 0d.
6. Fourteen Stops	25s. 0d.
9. Ten Stops, Percussion Action ..	25s. 0d.
10. Fourteen Stops	31s. 6d.
11. Fourteen Stops	35s. 0d.
12. Fifteen Stops	42s. 0d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards ..	35s. 0d.
14. Twenty-two Stops	42s. 0d.
DRAWING-ROOM MODELS.
No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells ..	21s. 0d.
2. Eight Stops	31s. 6d.
3. Sixteen Stops	42s. 0d.

N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on Instruments taken by the year.
In the case of parties purchasing and paying for an Instrument within six months from the time of hiring, the amount due for hire will be given up in lieu of discount for ready money.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas ; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas ; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer :—
28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut . 10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut .. .. .. 15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut 20 guineas per annum.
Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer :—
24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut .. .. } 2 guineas per quarter.
38-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. .. } 3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. .. } 4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. .. } 5 guineas per quarter.
Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM, as above detailed, is extended to all parts of the United Kingdom.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE.—22 guineas in polished ash, 26 and 28 guineas in rosewood or walnut. Double, or Check, Action, agreeable tone, solid touch ; rendering it far superior to old instruments, loose in the key and worn in the hammer.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-st.

BROADWOODS' NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 165 in walnut. These extremely elegant and much-admired Instruments are sold at the manufacturer's prices, and are selected with the greatest care. They may be bought on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

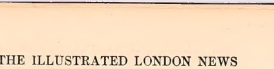
COLLARDS' NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 150 in walnut. These powerful and remarkably effective pianofortes may be bought on the three-years' system.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW SEMI-GRAND, 110 guineas. The largest selection in town at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

PLEYEL and CO., of Paris, have appointed CRAMER and CO. (Limited) their Sole Agents for England. PIANOFORTES by this eminent firm may now be had for Sale or Hire. Prices, from 50 to 200 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-st.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, 135 guineas in rosewood, 155 in walnut. Perfect specimens of these celebrated instruments—almost equal in power to the largest grand—in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES of every class and size, from the smallest pianette to the most elaborate oblique, and by all the best makers, constantly in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.



BROADWOODS' at CRAMER'S.
COLLARDS' at CRAMER'S.
ERARD'S at CRAMER'S.
KIRKMAN'S at CRAMER'S.
PLEYEL'S at CRAMER'S.
70 to 80 Grands by the above eminent makers, at prices from 105 to 280 guineas, always on stock at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTE.—A superior upright Pianoforte, in solid mahogany, especially made with metallic bracings, &c., for extreme climates, delivered free on board, packed in zinc, for 50 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates, and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

JOHN FREDERICK LEWIS, R.A.

FOLLOWING our custom on the election of an artist into the body of Royal Academicians, we engrave the Portrait of the last recipient of that honour, the eminent Oriental painter, whose life, were he himself to supply the data, would probably prove one of the most strange and adventurous among the many interesting biographies of painters. Mr. John F. Lewis was born in London, in 1805, and is the son of Mr. F. C. Lewis, the distinguished engraver and able landscape-painter. There are innumerable such instances of the genius for art being hereditary; and the pursuits of the father proving, in this instance, exactly congenial, the younger Lewis derived from his natural teacher all the direct instruction which we believe he ever received. Thus favourably circumstanced, he early became known to the public by a series of animal-studies in oil and water colours, remarkably truthful and effective, which he himself engraved. Mr. Ruskin says, in his pamphlet on "Pre-Raphaelitism" (with, however, perhaps some will think, as much fancifulness as truth), that it was because John Lewis was led to study animals, and was endowed with quite a peculiar apprehension of their most sublime characteristics, that he was prepared to accomplish his mission of portraying the comparatively animal life of the Southern and Eastern families of mankind. Be this as it may, certain it is that before he was thirty the subject of this notice had paid two visits to Spain; and subsequently, he sojourned many years in the south of Europe and in the East; indeed, the whole of his life, since he first quitted his native shores, has been devoted to portraying the life and character of the Southern and Oriental races, and delineating the picturesque customs and costumes, architecture, scenery, and climatic aspects of Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Egypt, and Syria. As the results of Mr. Lewis's visits to Spain, a selection of his drawings from Spanish life, and a series from the Alhambra, made during a residence of some months within its walls, were lithographed by himself, and published; and by these, probably, the artist was long best known. We may remark, that to his early practice with "the point," that is to say, with burin, etching-needle, and lithographic chalk, is doubtless in great measure attributable that marvellous delicacy and precision of touch so remarkable in all the painter's later works. In 1833-6 were exhibited, among other Spanish drawings, three illustrations of bull-fighting, which, for minute fidelity of execution, combined with breadth and freshness of style, were quite a novelty in water colours. One of these, the "Suburbs of a Spanish City on the Day of a Bullfight," and another, (exhibited in 1837), "A Spy of the Christino Army brought before the Carlist General-in-Chief, Zumalacarregui," formed two popular prints. In 1837 the artist left England for the long period, as it proved, of thirteen years. Two years were spent in Italy, chiefly at Rome, where he executed a noble drawing of "The Pope Blessing the People" (or, "Easter Day at Rome," as it has been called since), exhibited at the Gallery of the Old Water-Colour Society. The ten following years and upwards were passed in the East. Making Cairo his head-quarters, and performing various excursions into Asia Minor, &c., he ultimately became in knowledge of the Orientals quite one of themselves. During this lengthened period only a few of his less important sketches found their way to this country; but he returned with portfolios of sketches and studies which have hardly been approached in variety of subject, in value as accurate records, or in artistic excellence. The finished drawing which signalised his return was "The Hhareem" (1852) representing a Turkish dignitary seated on a divan with his three wives, while a newly purchased Abyssinian slave is being introduced by an Arab female. The subject was treated with perfect chastenes; technically it was nearly perfect, revealing almost undreamt-of capabilities in water colours; and it has since scarcely been surpassed by the artist himself, at least as regards richness of colour. Mr. Lewis has been claimed by the Pre-Raphaelites, simply, apparently, on the ground that he pays extraordinary attention to detail; but, unlike those self-sufficient painters, he has proved his long and careful study of the old masters by a large collection of copies, in water colours, of the works of the Venetian and Spanish schools chiefly, which collection was purchased, in 1853, by the Royal Scottish Academy, as the commencement of a gallery of copies from the chefs-d'œuvres of the old painters. Various scenes of Italian and Bedouin life followed "The Hhareem," the most memorable being "A Frank Encampment in the Desert of Mount Sinai." In 1855 the artist was elected president of the Old Society of Water-Colour Painters, and he continued to exhibit with that body two years longer, when he finally renounced water for oil painting, believing that in the latter he could realise qualities which in the former he had found unattainable, and probably feeling strongly the desirability (pressed upon him from various quarters) of the more permanent medium for works upon which he lavished his whole energies in many months of patient toil. The first oil-pictures exhibited by Mr. Lewis, after taking this resolution, seemed to betray some traces of labour and uncertainty; but he soon realised in the new vehicle all the luminousness, beauty of colour, and thoroughness of drawing, down to the minutest detail, which had made his drawings sui generis; and the Royal Academy, though it hung the first picture he sent (in 1859) below "the line," has not been slow in recognising his claims, having elected him an Associate in 1860. The latest works of the painter have been too recently reviewed to require enumeration. The place of honour in the great East Room, in the last exhibition at Trafalgar-square, and the recent promotion to the full honour of R.A., are only fitting acknowledgments of the merits—in some respects unique—of his wonderful picture of the court of the Coptic Patriarch's Caiene house. Our Portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins.

JOHN F. LEWIS, ESQ., R.A.

THE SALAMLIK, OR SULTAN'S RECEPTION, AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

THE ceremony of the "Salamlik" takes place on the first day of Bairam, after the fast of Ramazan. During the present year it fell on Feb. 27. The following is an extract from a letter with which we have been favoured by the lady whose sketch is engraved this week:—

"At sunrise the Sultan goes in procession to one of the principal mosques to prayer, attended by the Pachas, all mounted on splendid horses, their saddles and trappings covered with gold embroidery. After witnessing the procession we made our way to the Seraglio, or Sublime Porte, where the Salamlik takes place. Only those holding tickets are admitted, a certain number being given to the different Ambassadors, who again distribute them amongst their friends. Two gates are passed before you come to the outer court of the Seraglio, under the portico or grand entrance to which the reception takes place, in the open air. Those holding tickets usually gain admittance before the Sultan returns from prayer, his approach being announced by the firing of cannon and the sound of trumpet. At the second gate all dismounted except the Sultan. He rode up to the Seraglio, followed by the Pachas on foot. The latter turned off to the left to seats prepared for them; and the Sultan entered the gate, followed by his led horses, all richly caparisoned. A blue cloth was then spread on the ground under the portico, and over this was laid one of crimson satin, richly embroidered with gold. On this, exactly under the central point of the portico, was placed the throne, or, rather, a gilt divan, over which was laid a cloth of gold edged with Royal purple. The spectators had crowded round the edge of the carpet as closely as possible, each striving to obtain the best position for seeing the ceremony; but at this point the Sultan's new body-guard advanced and quietly pushed them all back, forming themselves into a half circle, in the centre of which, opposite the portico, was stationed the Imperial band, which played during the reception. This bodyguard is composed of picked youths, sons of noblemen, of all nations over which the Sultan rules—Albanians, Greeks, Arabs, Egyptians, Servians, Montenegrins, and lately have been added Circassians, each in his national costume. All the dresses were scarlet and white. The Arab costume was the most splendid—the cloak of crimson velvet, richly embroidered with gold, the hood worn over the head. The Albanians looked fine, with their white folded shirts, and scarlet jackets stiff with gold embroidery. Perhaps the Montenegrins were altogether the smartest men. Their gay dresses contrasted strongly with the Pachas' tight black coats, which were only relieved by a border of gold embroidery and their decorations. They all wore white kid gloves except the Sultan, as in his presence it is a point of etiquette to have the hands covered.

THE SALAMLIK, OR SULTAN'S RECEPTION, AT THE SERAGLIO, CONSTANTINOPLE.

"When all was prepared, the Sultan returned and took his seat on the divan. By his side stood an officer holding a crimson scarf embroidered with gold. First came the Pachas of the Osmanié Order, consisting of a broad sky-blue ribbon across the breast and a star with the Sultan's monogram in the centre. Each, advancing in turn, made a salam at the edge of the carpet; then, when near the Sultan, salamed again and kissed the scarf (the Sultan's person is too sacred for them even to touch his hand). They then retired, and formed a line on the right of the Sultan, where they made a final salam. Next came the Sheik-ul-Islam, the highest dignitary of the Church. He was dressed in a white flowing robe, edged with gold, and wore the Osmanié in diamonds. He was supported on each side by an officer (this was not on account of his age, but a mark of respect): at the edge of the carpet the officers waited. The Sheik-ul-Islam salamed, advanced to the Sultan, again salamed, but did not kiss the cloth. Retiring to his former position in front of the Sultan, the venerable old man raised his hands as in blessing, and offered up a prayer, all present holding their hands in like manner. This was the most imposing sight of the day.

"The Sultan received the Sheik-ul-Islam with the greatest respect, standing the whole time. As the Sheik retired he was again supported by the officers to his seat. Afterwards came the imaums (priests); first those dressed in green (the Prophet's colour), then those in grey. All this time the Sultan had stood. He now sat down, whilst the imaums in purple and blue were presented. They wore gold bands round the head and long flowing robes. Lastly, came about 200 pachas and beys, who salamed and kissed the cloth, as the former pachas had done, and, retiring to the left, formed a semicircle in front of the body-guard. When all had been presented, the Sultan rose, the people shouted "May the Sultan live a thousand years!" and so ended the Salamlik.

"The accompanying sketch was taken from the tribune erected for the accommodation of the Corps Diplomatique."

ILLUSTRATIONS OF GREENWICH HOSPITAL.

EVERYBODY is familiar with the noble institution founded by William and Mary on the site of the old palace where Elizabeth was born, and occupied to this day by some fifteen hundred of the veterans of the British Navy, who there find shelter and support when disabled by age or wounds from further service at sea. But as many of the visitors to Greenwich Hospital are likely to confine their inspection to the Painted Hall and the Chapel, we have thought it worth while to present a few Illustrations of the more domestic parts of the institution, which are not so generally known to the public. The subject, however, of the first Engraving in the series will at once be recognised as one which it would be unpardonable to omit in any notice of an establishment designed not only for the relief and comfort of our surviving old sailors, but also for the preservation of interesting mementoes of our departed naval heroes. There are few Englishmen, it is to be hoped, who can look without feelings of affectionate pride and gratitude upon the simple exhibition of the relics of Nelson in the Upper Hall—the coat which he wore at the Battle of the Nile, and the coat and waistcoat in which he was killed at Trafalgar—those garments, pierced by the fatal bullet and stained with his blood, which are as eloquent as the mantle of Cæsar to all who cherish a due veneration for the name of the mighty dead. This coat, with the badges of the orders of the Bath, St. Ferdinand, the Crescent, and St. Joachim, sewn upon the left breast, and with a part of the epaulette torn away by the shot which struck him above the left shoulder, is a most valuable witness to the manner in which Nelson came by his death; and several of the present inmates of the hospital can tell from their own recollection how sincerely, even in the hour of a great victory, his comrades mourned the loss of their glorious leader. But we must pass on to notice the arrangements which are made for the other object contemplated by this national institution—that of providing a comfortable home for the superannuated seamen. The wards in which they are lodged, either occupying separate cabins, as in the King Charles Ward, or several men having their berths in one cabin, as in some other parts of the building, are all that can be desired for a healthy and pleasant abode, having regard to their previous habits in a seafaring life. The dining-halls and kitchens are situated beneath the Chapel and Painted Hall, with a subterranean passage from east to west, connecting the two dining-halls with each other. We give some Views of the west dining-hall and kitchen, and of the doorway through which the hall is entered; while another of our Illustrations shows the process of wholesale tea-making in the east kitchen. All the food here supplied is of the best quality, and varied daily through the week. In summer, they are allowed for breakfast 8 oz. of bread and one pint of chocolate, with milk and sugar; and at supper the same allowance of bread with butter and a pint of tea. The dinner is thus varied:—Sunday: beef, roasted, 12 oz.; suet pudding, 5½ oz.; potatoes, 8 oz. Monday: beef, boiled, 12 oz.; a pint of rice broth, well seasoned and garnished with vegetables; potatoes, 8 oz. Tuesday: mutton, roasted, 12 oz.; potatoes, 8 oz. Wednesday, the same as Monday. Thursday, the same as Tuesday, with the addition of boiled suet pudding. Friday: beef, boiled, 12 oz.; with macaroni-broth, and potatoes. Saturday: mutton, boiled, 12 oz.; rice-broth, and potatoes. The winter diet comprises the same breakfast and supper, and the same dinner on Sundays. Monday: boiled mutton, broth, and potatoes. Tuesday: corned pork, pea-soup, and potatoes. Wednesday: roast mutton, pudding, and potatoes. Thursday: corned beef, carrots, and potatoes. Friday: boiled beef, with macaroni-broth and potatoes. And Saturday: corned pork, pea-soup, and potatoes. When potatoes cannot be had, 4 oz. of bread is substituted. Two pints of excellent beer is the daily allowance throughout the year, except on four days set apart as festival days, when each man is supplied with two quarts of strong ale. On these occasions also the pensioners are allowed, exclusive of their ordinary fare (for which a money allowance is substituted), one pound of corned pork, and pea-soup; or mutton, if pork is not in season. On Christmas Day the pensioners are regaled with plum-pudding and roast beef. Those who prefer to take their meals apart may fetch their rations and carry them to the wards; or they may get a certain allowance in money and buy for themselves, which is done by some who have wives or children living in the neighbourhood of the hospital. The clothing has been somewhat changed of late. The original dress corresponded with that in common wear at the beginning of the last century; but the knee-breeches have been exchanged for trousers, and round hats have been allowed for daily wear. Once in two years each man receives a complete suit of clothes, and annually a pair of trousers, three pairs of stockings, and four pairs of shoes. Their linen is changed when worn out, their shoes repaired at the expense of the institution, and a great-coat is allowed them, which is also changed when required. The money allowance to private pensioners is 3s., 4s., and 5s. weekly, according to classification from ratings and services; the inspecting boatswains, boatswains, and boatswains' mates receiving in addition as wages 5s. 3d., 3s. 6d., and 2s. 4d. per week. Upon the whole, these arrangements leave nothing to be desired for the comfort of the in-pensioners, but there is room for a much greater number of them, who would doubtless be obliged to seek admittance in the event of a future war with any great naval Power. Their life is, perhaps, rather a dull one, the only provision for their amusement, so far as we know, being a small library and reading-room, with unlimited opportunities of talking and "spinning yarns" as they lounge upon the spacious terrace and watch the traffic of the Thames, until evening, when the drummer and fifer, at the base of King George's statue, take their stand, as is seen in our Engraving, to sound the signal of the decline of another peaceful day.

MEDAL COMMEMORATIVE OF THE PUBLIC ENTRY OF THE PRINCESS OF WALES INTO THE CITY OF LONDON.

ON Friday week, Mr. Alderman Rose, M.P., with Deputies Holt, Snelling, and Bone, Mr. S. Gibbins, and Mr. Woodthorpe, the town clerk, forming a deputation from the Royal Entertainment Committee of the Corporation of the city of London, had an interview with the Prince and Princess of Wales, at Marlborough House, to present their Royal Highnesses with the medal struck to commemorate the public entry of the Princess on the 7th of March, 1863, three days previous to her marriage. It was not, however, till some months had elapsed after the marriage that the designs were obtained by the committee appointed for the purpose, and the commission given. The present medal is the result. It does much credit to Mr. J. S. Wyon, the sculptor. The obverse was modelled from sittings, which the Princess gave for the purpose; the reverse represents the Princess Alexandra, led by the Prince of Wales and attended by Hymen, welcomed by the city of London; the City is accompanied by Peace and Plenty, the latter carrying the diamond necklace and earrings, which the City offers to the Princess; in the background is the triumphal arch erected by the Corporation at London Bridge, where the Princess entered the City. The medals have been struck only in bronze, and have been presented to the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other Royal and distinguished persons; they have also been distributed among the members of the Corporation.

According to the Gazette de France, the volcano in Isle de la Réunion (which this Legitimist paper persists in calling Isle Bourbon), known there as Le Grand Brulé, is in a formidable state of eruption.

On the 5th inst. messages were sent direct from New York to San Francisco, a distance of nearly four thousand miles; the largest length of wire ever worked over in one circuit. The wires worked well though it rained at several points on the line.

A Canadian journal states, on information which it has reason to believe is correct, that the number of Canadians who have enlisted in the United States army since the beginning of the war is 43,000. Of this number 35,000 were French Canadians, no less than 14,000 of whom have died on the battle-field.

A society has been formed in Stockholm, under the name of the "Northern National Association," the object of which is to unite those citizens who consider it is of great importance to prepare by all legal means for the union of the three northern kingdoms into one federal constitutional State, with a common system of defence and a common direction of foreign affairs, while preserving the independence of each kingdom at home.

The Minister of Public Works attached to the Pontifical Government has recently published a list of the principal buildings that have been repaired and restored during the last five years in Rome. They are the Baths of Titus and Caracalla, the Tomb of the Scipios, the Coliseum, the Column of Trajan, the Circus Maximus, the Pantheon, the Forum of Augustus, Nero's Aqueduct; and, without the walls of Rome, the Palace of Lucullus at Frascati, the Pyramid of Cestius, Adrian's Villa at Tivoli, the Etruscan Monuments at Corneto, and the Conduit at Tivoli.

Messrs. Day and Son have just published a most useful and interesting book on the camel. It is the production of Mr. Elijah Walton, who spent some time in the East, where the original studies were made. The author justly hopes that the work may prove useful to the anatomist, naturalist, and artist. By the latter, particularly, the plates are likely to be highly valued. Mr. Walton not only represents the camel in every variety of posture, but he has dissected the animal, and gives faithful representations of the muscles and bones. The book is dedicated to Professor Owen, and is a remarkable monument of earnest labour and study.

Archæology of the Month.

IN the brief history of Savile House, in our Journal of the 11th, we omitted to explain that the original mansion was likewise called Ailesbury House, and that here Thomas, third Earl of Ailesbury, entertained Peter the Great when he visited England in 1698; and here, in all probability, the Czar enjoyed his pet tipple, "hot pepper and brandy," with his boon companion the Marquis of Carmarthen. The house passed into the Savile family through the marriage of Lord Ailesbury's son and successor, Charles, third and last Earl of Ailesbury of that creation, who married Lady Anne Savile, eldest daughter and coheir of Sir William Savile, Bart., second Marquis of Halifax. At any rate, Sir George Savile, Bart., M.P., who had Savile House in 1780, was the male heir of the Saviles and the Marquis of Halifax, and the inheritor of the baronetcy. The attack upon of Savile House by the rioters of 1780 is referred to in a letter to Richard Shackleton from Edmund Burke, who then lived in Charles-street, St. James's, telling how he spent his nights with other volunteer friends of rank in guarding Sir George Savile's house:—"For four nights" he says, "I kept watch at Lord Rockingham's, or Sir George Savile's, whose houses were garrisoned by a strong body of soldiers, together with numbers of true friends of rank, who were willing to share the danger." The attention of the First Commissioner of Works has, we perceive, been again called, in Parliament, to the present state of the inclosure in Leicester-square, and Mr. Cowper, in reply, has explained that the difficulty in regard to Leicester-square is that it is private property, and the owners are not prepared to fulfil the duties that are attached to them. The Gardens in Towns Act, intended to remedy this disgraceful state of things, will, however, shortly come into operation; and the Metropolitan Board of Works has given the necessary notice, which will expire in about four months, when the Board will have the power to step in, and, in the absence of any well-defined rights on the part of others, will repair the railings, clean the walks, and put the statue in order; all which will be a labour resembling the cleansing of the Augean stable. A correspondent suggests that the square might be improved, both as regards convenience and ornament, by converting it into a paved place, say, resembling that at Calais.

A little Parliament of senators and archæologists assembled at the last meeting of the Archæological Institute to discuss the subject of "Treasure-Trove." A most able paper, by Mr. Faussett, dealt with this intricate question "ab ovo," stated the law of the case, and suggested a mode of meeting its conditions which the writer thought free from the objections he urged against that now in operation under a circular of the late Sir G. C. Lewis. Perhaps few of our country readers are aware that they are bound to report all cases of "treasure-trove" to the police. This has often operated prejudicially, as Mr. Faussett showed. But in Scotland and Ireland the action of the police is not found to work badly. The case is full of difficulties—and curiosities. To give up all rights to the finder, as one speaker advocated, would involve that awkward fact—compensation. Lords Camden and Talbot, Sir Jervoise Jervoise, and other members of the institute, joined in a discussion which will, we hope, have some definite result. At the same meeting several interesting antiquities were introduced. Mr. E. Greaves exhibited a remarkably fine chasse of Limoges enamel of the middle of the thirteenth century, another (probably German) of the middle of the fifteenth century, and a triptych, the central panel containing a fine setting of Limoges enamel; Sir T. Winnington, a pomander of the seventeenth century; Mr. G. Scharf, a banner, early Italian, exhibiting many peculiarities of the Sienese school; Mr. Bernhard Smith, a German hunting-knife, dated 1624; Mr. W. W. King, a pewter chalice and paten, found on the site of the tower of Cheam Church, Surrey; also, some fragments of cloth of gold and a helmet, temp. James I., from the same place. It was then announced that the exhibition of the late Mr. Winston, for glass-painting, will commence on Monday next, the 27th.

The tomb of Chaucer, now a dingy and greasy recess in the wall of Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey, is (says a contemporary) to be restored, the greater part of the necessary funds being provided. The tomb was erected, in 1555, by Nicholas Brigham, a scholar of Oxford, and himself a poet. Chaucer was originally buried in this spot, Brigham removing his bones (says Cunningham) to a more honourable tomb. It is probable that he lies beneath a large slab of grey marble in the Abbey pavement, where the monument of Dryden stands, which is "before the Chapel of St. Bennet," the site stated by Caxton, in his edition of Chaucer. At the same time that the tomb is restored, it is proposed to fill the window over the recess with stained glass, in honour of the father of English poetry.

A correspondent of the Athenæum calls attention to the Elizabethan and Jacobean highly-coloured memorial busts in the Church of St. Bartholomew-the-Great, Smithfield, now being restored. These specimens of good old English bust-sculpture are worthy of careful preservation, though it is feared the restoring architects are all for the building as designed. The above correspondent saw on his recent visit to the church a number of "curling-pins for wigs, found in the grave of a perruquier of the time of William III. or Anne."

Three weeks had scarcely elapsed since the Rev. C. H. Hartshorne instanced to the Archæological Institute numerous acts of munificence on the part of the late Duke of Northumberland, as a patron of archæology; and, upon the reverend gentleman's suggestion, the council of the institute resolved to present to the Duchess an address of condolence, on behalf of the society. We now read that, on the 11th inst., eight days from the above date, the Rev. Mr. Hartshorne died suddenly, at his vicarage, Holdenby. He will long be remembered for his valuable contributions to archæology, including many elaborate memoirs and illustrations of localities and subjects of special importance and interest.

The recent researches made in the grounds of Cambuskenneth Abbey—one of the richest and most extensive abbeys in Scotland—have resulted in the discovery of the tomb of King James III., who was secretly killed near Bannockburn, in 1488, but whose body was carried off, nobody knew where (Pitscottie, 20). The Queen has signified her wish to erect a memorial stone or cross over the remains of her Royal ancestors, James III. and his Queen, Margaret of Denmark. Another welcome piece of Scottish archæological intelligence is that the south window of the Edinburgh Parliament House is to be replaced by a new one. The subject to be painted is the opening of the college, in 1552, by King James V.

The curious in calculation will be interested with this fact, stated the other day in the Court of Common Council, on the authority of Mr. Scott, the Chamberlain of London—namely, that if, from the Great Fire of London, in 1666, when the first Royal Exchange was destroyed, down to 1838, when it was a second time destroyed by fire, a sum equivalent to the fire-insurance rate of 2s. per cent and 3s. duty had been annually raised and allowed to accumulate, it would have been sufficient to defray forty-seven and a half times over the cost of £200,000 for rebuilding the Exchange as it now exists.

The sales of articles of rare art and virtù have already been important. The Pourtalès Collection, at Paris, has been dispersed, and its exquisite works of Italian and French pottery ware, carved ivory and carved wood, Byzantine and Limoges enamel, Venetian glass, and bronze medals, have passed into other cabinets. Think of a small vase of Henri Deux ware bringing 27,500f.; a Palissy salt-box, 5050f.; a Palissy dish, valued at 300f., run up to 1060f.; a square Faenza plate, 3150f.; an ivory statuette, attributed to Jean of Bologna, and its pedestal, 23,500f.; a statuette of Venus and Cupid, carved by Flammand, and said to have been left by him in pledge at the house in which he died at Leghorn, run up to 5900f.; a pair of matchless portraits, attributed to Albert Durer, 6000f.; six pieces of Limoges enamel, 16,600f.; a portrait of Henry d'Albret, King of Navarre, by Leonard the Limousin, 10,000f.; a Byzantine enamel, St. George and the Dragon, very rare, 9100f.; a piece of Venetian stained glass, 1030f. At home the autograph sales have included the Cottle Collection of Coleridge and Southey MSS. and Mr. John Taylor's autographs of Charles Lamb.

The site of the old Steelyard, in Upper Thames-street, facing the river, which is being excavated, has lately yielded many leaden signacula, several for holding the blood or other relics of martyrs, and having representations of the murder of St. Thomas à Becket; one with a figure of St. Erasmus and his emblematical windlass; and an image of St. Edmund the Confessor, found near the place of his burial. These and many other specimens have been exhibited to the British Archæological Association and ably described by Mr. Cuming.

JULIUS CÆSAR.*

ARMS give place to the toga; the master of legions retires to his study; the victor of Solferino deigns to become a competitor in the peaceful arena of literature; the arbiter of Europe's destinies invites the judgment of the critics. And to excel in letters has been pronounced to be preferable to kingly power, if there be any truth in the saying attributed to the great Scaliger, who vowed that he would rather have composed the odes commencing

Donec gratus eram tibi,

and

Quem tu Melpomene semel
Nascentem placido lumine videris, than have been "totius Tarraconensis rex." We find, accordingly, that kings, and emperors, and tyrants have, in very many instances, and not unfrequently with success, essayed to win eternal glory by the pen. Going back to times of old, our memories at once recall the minstrel-Monarch, David, and the Royal preacher, Solomon. Of later date are Caius Julius Cæsar, who if not Emperor was Imperator, and whose "Commentaries" will last till the Latin tongue is forgotten; the Emperor Claudius, the loss of whose historical works is a cause of some regret; the Emperor Nero, the non-existence of whose verses is probably not to be deplored; and several other Emperors less famous than Hadrianus. What need is there to mention our own Alfred and our own Solomon, King James I.? They are names which will readily occur to everyone; and the ghost of Voltaire would plague the writer who should forget the voluminous Frederick the Great. Of tyrants, properly so called, Dionysius the elder is a memorable example. To these literary rulers of men must now be added Napoleon III. Of the royal, imperial, and tyrannical authors, the most impatient of criticism appears to have been Dionysius of Syracuse; for Diodorus Siculus relates that Dionysius, having invited Philoxenus, the dithyrambic poet, to dinner, showed him some of the tyrannical verses and desired to have his opinion about them. Philoxenus gave a very brief but very adverse judgment; whereupon Dionysius ordered Philoxenus to the stone-quarries. The next day Dionysius repented of what he had done, sent for Philoxenus to dinner again, and once more asked him what he thought of the verses. Philoxenus made no reply, but, turning to the attendants, said, "You had better take me back to the stone-quarries." Now, certain French critics seem to have supposed that Napoleon III. would imitate Dionysius, merely substituting Cayenne for the stone-quarries. But they erred; for even Voltaire's estimate of Julius Cæsar has been quoted against the Emperor with impunity by a French reviewer. It is pretty clear, therefore, that the Imperial author desires no man to modify his opinion of the "History of Julius Cæsar."

It is not necessary to go further than the preface to discover that the author's object in writing his work was not merely to gain a prominent place in the ranks of literature; not merely to write the best biography of the greatest Roman since B.C. 100, if not since B.C. 753; but to draw a parallel, to offer an apology, to declare a policy, to make an appeal for a dynasty. He is weary of "the paltry interpretations which it has pleased people to give to the noblest actions;" he is dissatisfied with the historians who have sketched the career of Julius Cæsar, from Plutarch and Suetonius to the present day; and he is moved by the desire "to prove that, when Providence raises up such men as Cæsar, Charlemagne, and Napoleon, it is to trace out to peoples the path they ought to follow, to stamp with the seal of their genius a new era, and to accomplish in a few years the labour of many centuries." We are told that "neither the murder of Cæsar nor the captivity of St. Helena has been able to destroy irrevocably two popular causes overthrown by a league which disguised itself under the mask of liberty. Brutus, by slaying Cæsar, plunged Rome into the horrors of civil war: he did not prevent the reign of Augustus, but he rendered possible those of Nero and Caligula. The ostracism of Napoleon by confederated Europe has been no more successful in preventing the Empire from being resuscitated; and, nevertheless, how far are we from the great questions solved, the passions calmed, and the legitimate satisfactions given to peoples by the first Empire!" We pass by the profane comparison of both Cæsar and Napoleon I. with the Messiah whose "kingdom" was "not of this world," and whose "servants" did not "fight," to quote from the last page of the volume a characteristic paragraph:—"Let us not continually seek little passions in great souls. The success of superior men, and it is a consoling thought, is due rather to the loftiness of their sentiments than to the speculations of selfishness and cunning; this success depends much more on their skill in taking advantage of circumstances than on that presumption blind enough to believe itself capable of creating events, which are in the hands of God alone. Certainly, Cæsar had faith in his destiny, and confidence in his genius; but faith is an instinct, not a calculation, and genius foresees the future without understanding its mysterious progress." Genius, in fact, is a sort of Davenport-brother; it unravels difficulties and comes triumphantly to the result it had prognosticated without any idea how it is done. After reading a few of the author's dark sayings, it flashes across one's mind that if the parallelism between the Cæsars and the Napoleons may be considered to hold so far (though it is awkward to match Augustus) as the third in each case, Tiberius and Napoleon III. would correspond; and we cannot but be struck by the similarity, so far as Sphinx-like ambiguity—no farther—was attributed to Tiberius, between them. Nor is the author original in drawing the parallel so closely as he has drawn it between Julius Cæsar and Napoleon I. So long ago as the days of the French Republic, when the "exile of St. Helena" was not Napoleon but Bonaparte, there appeared a "fragment traduit de l'Anglais" entitled "Parallèle entre César, Cromwell, Monck, et Bonaparte," which Napoleon III. may or may not have seen. In that "fragment" we read:—"Il fallait pour ramener l'ordre, à cette époque mémorable, un personage digne de servir lui-même d'époque au peuple français. Ce personnage a paru. Qui ne doit reconnaître Bonaparte? . . . . Quelques observateurs superficiels ou malveillants l'ont, dit on, rapproché de Cromwell. Quelques insensés espèrent en lui un nouveau Monck. La France et l'Europe lui trouvent une conformité plus frappante avec César . . . il faut franchir deux mille ans pour trouver un homme en quelque point semblable à lui. Cet homme, c'est César. . . . . Ils sont nés l'un et l'autre au milieu des guerres civiles, et tous deux les ont terminées; mais César en accablant le parti le plus juste, et Bonaparte, en ralliant les citoyens contre le parti des brigands. . . . Heureuse République, s'il était immortel! . . . si tout-à-coup Bonaparte manquait à la patrie! où sont ses héritiers, où sont les institutions qui peuvent maintenir ses exemples et perpétuer son génie?" Napoleon III. can now answer, "Me voici—I am here; allow me to introduce my son; to show you the improvements in an architectural and other (especially military) points of view in the good city of Paris; and to draw your attention to the fact that we have as nearly as possible a reproduction of the First Empire, when there were 'passions calmed, and the legitimate satisfactions given to peoples'" (though, oddly enough, they did not seem to be aware of it). The writer of the "fragment," it will be observed, had no knowledge (though he seems to have had some apprehension, but we have not room to quote his words) of the First Empire, or he would perhaps have continued his parallel without abusing Cæsar for his conduct "en accablant le parti le plus juste." The Imperial scorn which the Emperor expresses for historians in general, and the peculiar aim which he has in view, fully account for what would otherwise be a surprising feature. Except for the purpose of fixing a date or a genealogy, &c., we find scarcely any references to the elaborate work of Drumann, or to Abeken, or to Hoeck, or to Merimée, or to Amedée Thierry, or to Duruy, or to Niebuhr, or to Arnold, or to Merivale, in whose "History of the Romans under the Empire" is to be found a "History of Cæsar," which to those who have no belief in fatalism, no hankering after parallelism, and no dynastic rights to impress upon contemporaries and upon posterity is likely to be perfectly satisfactory. He does not call Cæsar God-sent, God-stamped, or a Messiah; but he dubs him "the true captain, and lawgiver, and prophet of the age." We should have thought such titles almost enough to satisfy even Napoleon III.

There is, no doubt, a great deal of reason in the objections which the Emperor makes to those historians who ascribe to Cæsar and other great men superhuman foresight, capability of creating events, and power over futurity. But what does Mr. Merivale say? "The Sullan revolution had checked the natural progress of reform and enfranchisement, and restored the landmarks of a constitution which was no longer the legitimate exponent of the national character. Conquest and accession of wealth had filled men's minds with wildest anticipations. . . . The mind of the nation thus excited . . . seeks relief from its own want of definite aims in hailing a leader." Cicero was eloquent, but vacillating; Pompeius enjoyed but a half-hearted popularity; Cæsar alone could fill the vacant position. But Mr. Merivale tells us (and our sentiments are his) that "from an early period of his career he (Cæsar) was fully conscious of the real nature of the revolution on which he was embarked;" and he was determined to be—he knew not what exactly, and he knew not how exactly, but—by some means or other, the first man at Rome. Surely the Emperor himself allows to Cæsar something more than a blind faith and a power of moulding circumstances when he tells the story of the trial of C. Rabirius and the tale of the astuteness which was used to acquire the two Gauls as one province. In the former case, the simple-minded Messiah, who should merely have availed himself of things as they came, went back nearly forty years to find a particular crime, and revived the old law of perduellio, for the sole reason that he might terrify the Senate with a display of the popular power; and in the latter he showed that he had no lack of the "calculation" which the Emperor denies to the "genius" which "foresees the future." The fact is, to talk of Cæsar and Napoleon I. as Messiahs is not only profane but absurd. The Jews rejected their Messiah from the first; the Romans and the French accepted theirs; and we are to suppose that the Almighty was powerless to retain in their places the saviours whom He had Himself sent, and who had been freely accepted!

The Emperor appears to us to have taken unnecessary trouble to prove that Cæsar "was not a conspirator"—at any rate, in the affair of Catilina. Many arguments are used; but the last is, to our thinking, the most obvious and the most conclusive:—"If Cæsar," we read, "as will be seen afterwards, according to Plutarch, preferred being the first in a village in the Alps to being second in Rome, how could he have consented to be the second to Catilina?" Caius Julius Cæsar would no more have played second cithara to Lucius Sergius Catilina than Napoleon III. second fiddle to M. De Morny. Cæsar may have been privy to the plot, but it is very unlikely that he would play "second conspirator." Our volume brings us down to the date at which Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum and Transalpine Gaul were granted to Cæsar as his province; and we cannot help thinking that Mr. Merivale is more correct in stating that Crassus and Pompeius "extorted for him (Cæsar), from the Senate, the Transalpine province, the seat of expected war," in addition to Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum, obtained from the people, than the Emperor in attributing the additional grant to the "skilful" policy of the Senate.

The volume is interesting from the purpose which the writer evidently has in view. This purpose, we hope there is no offence in saying, appears to resemble that of a gentleman who lately published his "Life and Recollections," to the end that people might conclude his children are the rightful heirs to a certain earldom. The burden of the book is this: we are the heirs of the First Empire—"we are they who ought to rule."

For our own part, we are ready to acknowledge that Cæsar was pale and so was Napoleon I.; that Cæsar had dark eyes, and so had Napoleon I.; that Cæsar was a great general, and so was Napoleon I. (greater, indeed, than Cæsar); that Cæsar was a great man, and so (as most men count greatness) was Napoleon I.; and there may have been some other points of resemblance about the nose and other features; but, beyond this, neither in height, nor in character, nor in the circumstances of birth, nor in the political atmosphere which surrounded their early life, nor in the means whereby they first became distinguished, nor in the manner in which they used their time of power, nor in the influence they exercised upon posterity, can we see any striking similarity. "Preceding imperators," says Mr. Merivale, "had annexed provinces, Cæsar began to organise the conquests of the commonwealth. . . . Though the structure of his personal ambition perished with him, the social foundations on which it rested remained firmly rooted in the soil; and the comprehensive imperium of his successors rose majestic and secure from the lines originally drawn by the most sagacious statesman of the commonwealth. The career of Cæsar is the prelude to the history of four centuries." It may be that the French Augustus has come; that the conquests of the First Napoleon are to be miraculously restored to the Second Empire; and that the First Empire will have been, after all, "the prelude to the history of four centuries." When the four centuries have elapsed, we shall be willing to recant. There are yet three volumes to be published, and we shall hope in one of them to see a strict parallel drawn between the triumphal progress from the Rubicon to Rome and that from Grenoble to Paris.

The appearance of the book is by no means imperial; and the translation shows symptoms of having been so hurriedly accomplished that it has been impossible to do justice to the measured and pointed sentences for which Napoleon III. is remarkable. The haste was, no doubt, unavoidable; but it is none the less to be regretted.

* "History of Julius Cæsar." Vol. 1. London: Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Charles Cavendish Fulke Greville, Esq., of Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, was proved in the London Court on the 1st inst., by the executors, William Henry Greville, Esq. (his brother); Captain the Hon. Francis Egerton; and Harvie Morton Farquhar, Esq., of Brackley House, Northamptonshire. The personalty was sworn under £25,000. The testator was the eldest son of Charles Greville, Esq., and Charlotte, daughter of the third Duke of Portland, K.G., and was formerly Clerk of the Privy Council, from 1821 to 1859. He died, in January last, at the age of seventy-one, having executed his will in 1863. Amongst other bequests, he has left to the Earl of Clarendon his Emperor's cup, won at Ascot Races, 1846, by his horse Alarm. To George Payne, Esq., of John-street, Berkeley-square, he leaves all the shares he jointly held with him in racehorses and thoroughbred racing stock; and to Charles Mills, Esq., of Camelford House, some other like shares. A few other legacies are left to personal friends; and his brothers, Algernon and William Henry Greville, are appointed residuary legatees. To his valet he has left £1000; to his coachman, £200; and to his groom, £100.

The will of Edward Ward Walter Raleigh, Esq., late of Pall-mall, a retired officer of the Bengal Medical Staff, and an honorary Fellow of the College of Surgeons, London, was proved in the principal registry under £140,000 personalty. The executors and trustees nominated are Sir Edward Cholmeley Dering, Bart., M.P., his nephew, and Charles Vine, Esq., of Queen's-gardens, Hyde Park (his nephew's uncle). The testator died in January last, having executed his will in April, 1864. He has bequeathed to his sister, Mrs. Caroline Amesbury (widow of Joseph Amesbury, Esq.), and to her children, the sum of £20,000, free of duty. There are legacies to other of his relatives. He directs his property to be invested in freehold landed estates in England, and to pay therefrom to his nephew, Edward Walter Raleigh, son of his late brother, Major Frederick Raleigh, an annuity of £500, the remainder to accumulate and be laid out in the improvement of and in adding to the said landed estates, for the benefit of the male issue of his said nephew; and in failure of such issue, then to his nephew, Walter Raleigh Amesbury, the eldest son of his said sister.

The will of Mrs. Mary Wright, widow, formerly of Mauldeth Hall, Lancaster, and late of Tunbridge Wells, was proved in London under £60,000 personalty—the executors and trustees being her cousin, Henry Houldsworth, of Oak Hill, Lancaster; William Henry Houldsworth (his son), and Philip Richard Falkner, Esq., of Newark-on-Trent. The will is dated September, 1854. To her daughter, Mrs. Mary Hooper, she leaves the interest of £10,000 for life, and appoints her two children, the testatrix's grandson and granddaughter, residuary legatees. Testatrix's sister, Isabella Duffield, has the interest of £10,000 for her life. Legacies are bequeathed to others of her own family, and those of her late husband; to the Rev. Theophilus Bennett, M.A., of Wittington, and W. Richardson, M.D., of Tunbridge Wells, each £500; to the Irish Society Missions to Catholics, £50; to the Church Missionary Society and Manchester Infirmary, £200 each.

The King of Prussia has purchased of the sculptors Lazzarini and Dartha, of Carrara, a lifesize statue of Frederick the Great. The price paid was 33,750f., and the work has been placed in the park of Sans Souci.

Idaho is the largest territory in the United States yet organised. It is 700 miles long and 450 miles broad, and has an area of 326,373 square miles.

In the newly-discovered territory of North Western Australia the baobab-tree grows to an enormous size. The diameter of one in the Camden Harbour region was nearly 50 ft., and, by the number of zones in some of the branches, was estimated to be 8000 years old.

A New Zealand paper states that an egg of the gigantic extinct New Zealand bird moa has been dug up at Kaikoras, in the middle island, having been found buried with the skeleton of a Maori. The egg is ten inches long, five inches in diameter, and of a dirty white colour.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR ROBERT SCHOMBURGK.

Sir Robert Hermann Schomburgk, her Majesty's recent Consul at Bangkok, a gentleman distinguished for his knowledge of geography and natural history and for his many travels and scientific investigations in South America, was the son of the Rev. J. F. Lewis Schomburgk, Protestant minister in Thuringia, by his wife, Mdlle. Krippendorff, daughter of Herr J. Kreppendorff, councillor of the Princes of Reuss Gera. He was born in Prussia, in 1804. He was, in 1831, engaged in the survey of Anegada, one of the Virgin Islands, in the West Indies, and its dangerous surrounding coral reefs. He, in 1835, under the direction of the Royal Geographical Society and under the patronage of the British Government, proceeded to Guiana, and explored its previously unknown interior. This he did so well that the Geographical Society gave him their gold medal on his return to England, in 1839. He was, on Dec. 10, 1840, appointed commissioner for surveying and marking out the boundaries of British Guiana. This mission he successfully carried out, and he was knighted Dec. 26, 1844. He had previously, in 1840, been nominated a Knight of the Prussian Order of the Red Eagle. Sir Robert was appointed, May 25, 1848, British Consul to the Dominican Republic in St. Domingo; and, on Feb. 23 in the following year, Plenipotentiary to conclude a treaty of amity and commerce with that republic. He was made Consul at Bangkok, in Siam, May 1, 1857. He retired on a pension in December, 1864. He had, in 1859, proceeded, with Mr. Clark as interpreter, on an overland tour to Maulman, through Changmei, the capital of the tributary kingdom of Laos, and returned to the seat of his consulate on May 9, 1860. Sir Robert wrote the "History of Barbadoes" and several works on natural history and geography. He was the introducer of the Victoria Regia into Germany. He was a Knight of the Saxon Order of Merit, and of the Legion of Honour. These orders, with that of the Red Eagle, he had her British Majesty's permission to wear. He was also a Doctor of Philosophy of the University of Königsberg, an M.D. of the University of Jena, and a member of many other learned societies both in Europe and America. Sir Robert Schomburgk died, at Berlin, on the 11th inst., and his funeral took place there, on the 14th inst., at the cemetery attached to the Jerusalem Church. Amongst those who attended the ceremony were the English Ambassador, Lord Napier; the Minister for Paraguay; the Prussian Minister for the Interior, Count D'Eulenburg; and many notabilities of the scientific world of Berlin.

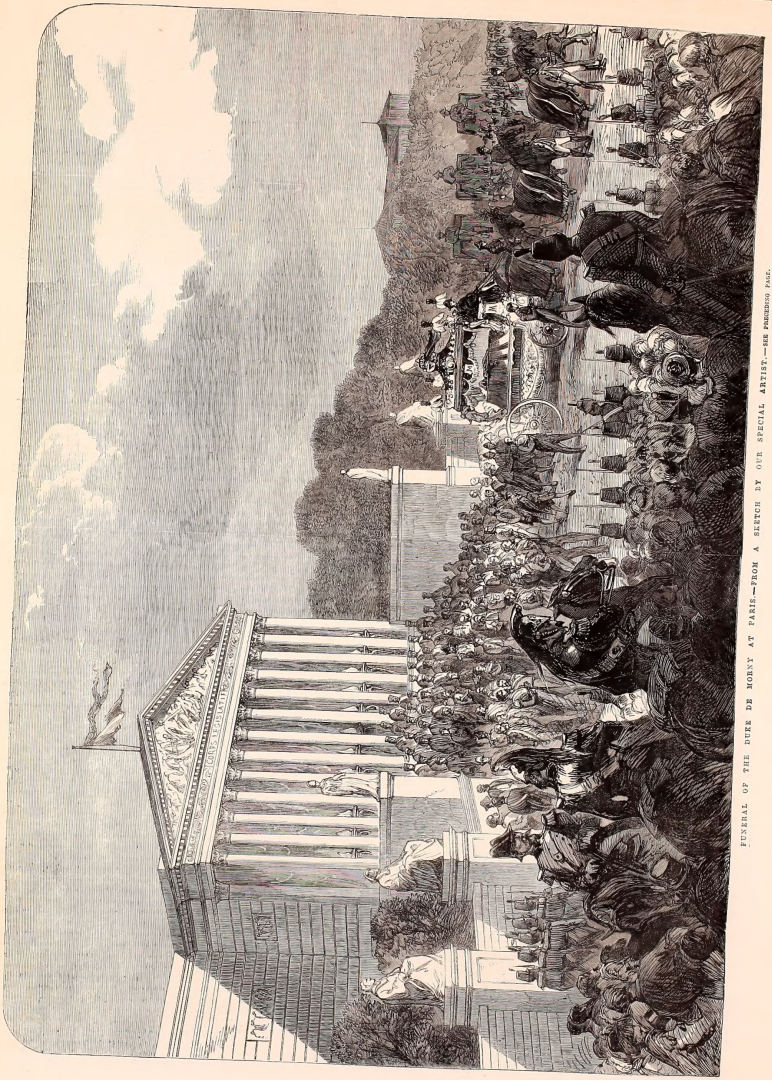
JAMES WENTWORTH BULLER, ESQ., M.P.

James Wentworth Buller, Esq., M.P. and D.C.L., of Downes, in the county of Devon, J.P. and D.L., the head and representative of the very ancient and distinguished Cornish and Devonshire family of Buller, was the only son of James Buller, Esq., of Shillingham and Downes, M.P. for Exeter upwards of twenty years, by his wife Anne, eldest daughter of the Right Rev. William Buller, D.D., Bishop of Exeter. He was born on the 1st of October, 1798, and was educated at Harrow School, and Oriel College, Oxford, where he was first class in 1819; he was a Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, and graduated D.C.L. in 1828. He was first returned to Parliament, in the Liberal interest, for Exeter in 1830, and sat for that city till January, 1835. He unsuccessfully contested North Devon in March, 1839, and was elected for it in April, 1857, and continued its representative till his demise. Mr. Buller married, on the 5th of October, 1831, Lady Charlotte Juliana Jane, third daughter of Lord Henry Molyneux Howard, and niece of Bernard Edward, twelfth Duke of Norfolk, K.G., and by her (who died on Dec. 15, 1855) had issue seven sons and four daughters. Mr. Buller died of the 13th inst., at his town residence, 109, Jermyn-street, Piccadilly; and is succeeded by his eldest son, James Howard Buller, Esq., now of Downes, who was born on June 12, 1835. The family of Buller, of which the deceased Mr. Buller was, and his son is now, the chief, settled in Cornwall in the earlier part of the sixteenth century. From the Richard Buller, of Tregarrick, of that day, to the present time, the house presents a goodly line of important gentry, some of them High Sheriffs, and most members of Parliament. Their principal seat, Downes, came to the family by the marriage of James Buller, Esq., M.P., of Morval and Shillingham, with his first wife, Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of William Gould, Esq., of Downes. The only son of this union perpetuated the senior branch, represented by Mr. Buller, just dead, while among the issue of James Buller, Esq., and his second wife, Lady Jane Bathurst were—John, who was ancestor of the present Mr. Buller, of Morval, and Francis, who was the very eminent lawyer and Judge, Sir Francis Buller, Bart., and was grandfather of the present Sir John Yarde-Buller, Lord Churston.

T. C. WHITMORE, ESQ.

Thomas Charlton Whitmore, Esq., J.P. and D.L., of Apley, Shropshire, for many years M.P. for Bridgnorth, was the eldest son of Thomas Whitmore, of Apley, J.P. and D.L., M.P. for Bridgnorth, by his wife, Catherine, only daughter and heiress of Thomas Thomason, Esq., of York. He was born on Jan. 5, 1807, and was M.P. for Bridgnorth, in the Conservative interest, from 1832 to 1852, and was High Sheriff of Shropshire in 1863. He married, on April 11, 1833, Lady Louisa Anne Douglas, eldest daughter of Charles, fifth Marquis of Queensberry, by whom he has had issue two sons and eight daughters. He died on the 13th inst., and is succeeded by his elder son, Lieutenant Thomas Charles Douglas Whitmore, Royal Horse Guards, now of Apley, who was born on May 26, 1839. The deceased Mr. Whitmore's third brother, Henry Whitmore, Esq., late a Lord of the Treasury, is now M.P. for Bridgnorth; and his two sisters are Catherine Mary, present Lady Bandon, and Emily Elizabeth, wife of Major-General Eardly Wilmot, son of Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart. This family of Whitmore, which was located in Shropshire as far back as the reign of Henry III., and which obtained its present seat there, Apley, in the sixteenth century, has represented Bridgnorth in Parliament for much above one hundred years.

T. T. HODGES, ESQ.



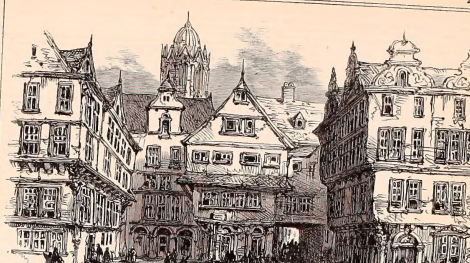
Thomas Twysden Hodges, Esq., J.P., formerly well known as the Liberal M.P. for Rochester, who died on the 12th inst., was the son of Thomas Law Hodges, Esq., of Hempsted Park, near Cranbrook, Kent (now the property of Gathorne Hardy, Esq., M.P. for Leominster), by his wife Rebecca, posthumous and only child of Sir Roger Twysden, sixth Baronet, of Bradbourn, Kent. Mr. Thomas Twysden Hodges was, in 1835, returned in the Liberal interest for Rochester. He did not stand in the elections of 1837 or 1841; but in 1847 he was again returned, and sat till 1852, and voted for all extreme Liberal measures. He did not contest the city of Rochester at the general election of 1852, but emigrated to Australia, and is said to have done well there in trade. He married, first, Mary, daughter of Thomas Chandless, Esq., of London, and, secondly, in 1854, Rosa, daughter of Major Dore and widow of the distinguished General Sir William Nott, K.C.B. Mr. Thomas Twysden Hodges was great-grand-nephew of the celebrated Reformer, Major Cartwright.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DUKE DE MORNY.

THE state funeral of the Duke de Morny, on the morning of Monday, the 13th inst., was one of those gorgeous ceremonials which are always sure to command a large concourse of spectators, animated either by a sentiment of respect or affection for the deceased personage, or by a feeling of curiosity to witness a splendid pageant. The obsequies of the late Duke, who, in the important position he occupied as President of the Legislative Body, had for many years performed his onerous and difficult duties to the satisfaction of the Emperor, were attended by an immense crowd of spectators, who were compactly ranged along the whole line of procession, from the palace of the Corps Législatif to the cemetery of Père la Chaise.

The guard-room of the palace had been fitted up as a chapelle ardente, whence, at twelve o'clock, the Duke's remains were removed, amidst a discharge of artillery, to the grand funeral car depicted in our Engraving, which represents the head of the procession leaving the palace of the Corps Législatif to cross the Place de la Concorde to the Church of the Madeleine. This distance was traversed by all the different deputations on foot; and, as the sun shone out brilliantly just as the cortége began to advance, the decorations and costumes of the members of the Corps Diplomatique, the Marshals of France, the senators, the deputies, the judges, and other public bodies, as well as distinguished deputations from the army and navy, produced a most imposing effect, enhanced by the occasional rolling of the muffled drums. A large number of troops occupied a portion of the Place de la Concorde and preceded the head of the cortége to the Madeleine, the line of procession being kept by the municipal foot guards. After the termination of the mass at the Madeleine, the procession again moved forward with the greatest order; the different deputations, however, now in carriages. The arrangements were admirably carried out; and not the slightest disorder was perceptible throughout the whole line, which extended nearly two miles. It was closed by a detachment of horse artillery, which followed several regiments of the Imperial Guard, each preceded by its band playing a funeral march.

All the mourning carriages supplied by the administration of the Pompes Funèbres bore the late Duke's arms and the initial "M," on the panel; and the car—which had a very fine appearance with its silver and black fittings—was provided with four weeping angels, the culminating point being a cushion of black velvet supporting the ducal crown veiled in crape.



FUNERAL OF THE DUKE DE MORNY AT PARIS.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

Leaves from a Sketch-Book.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, as the seat of government of the German Confederation, is continually in the foreground of the European picture. It therefore has a reputation independent alike of its natural features, its historic interest, or its commercial importance. It is now besides holding a position of its own as the chief of the four towns which still preserve the traditions of the Imperial Free Cities and of the great Hanseatic League. It thus forms one of the few connecting links between the present and the past which the electric rapidity of the nineteenth century has not yet fused and obliterated. Frankfort has an unbroken history from the time of Charlemagne, at the end of the eighth century, to the last of Reuter's telegrams. Situated on the right bank of the River Main, it received in very early times the name of the Franks's Ford, or rather the Teutonic equivalent for such a plain English, Frankenfurt. Although the river is here about half as wide as the Thames at London Bridge, yet the name, if the derivation be correct, seems to imply that the Franks easily forded it whenever they had a "difficulty" with the Saxons on the opposite bank.

Those riveles, as those who dwelt on different banks of a river were called, looked bitterly across the stream at one another without doing any serious mischief. The left bank is still occupied by a hamlet or suburb named Sachsenhausen, or the House of the Saxon, and recalls the times, though no longer the spirit, of those warlike tribes. Sometimes, however, of the old jealousy survives in the modern representatives of Frank and Saxon on the banks of a broader river than the Main, but it is the legacy of a barbaric age, and should be consigned to the oblivion it deserves. Be that as it may, the good old city of Frankfort troubles itself little now about Frank or Saxon, except in so far as the fluctuations in the political atmosphere affect the monetary barometer and interfere with the state of its share-list. Indeed, as is the case with the three other free cities of Germany—Hamburg, Bremen, and Lubeck—its very position of neutrality removes it in a great measure from the region of political intrigue, and enables it to concentrate almost all its energies upon the main chance. Yet, given up as it now is to speculation and money-getting, it has a proud history of its own, which even its oldest houses, doting and drooping with their projecting gables over the narrow streets, are still too youthful to remember, for it was here that Charlemagne built a palace and held his court ere the Heptarchy had ceased or England had become a nation. It was here, too, that the renowned Emperor Frederick II. at the Diet of Frankfort held in 1220, by granting immunities to the various electors, unconsciously gave them their independence and virtually destroyed the unity of the German empire. The Reformation, some three centuries later, still further divided these princes into opposite camps, and, though Charles V. endeavoured to effect the solidarity of his vast and heterogeneous empire, the opportunity was lost. Napoleon, in 1806, gave the coup-de-grâce both to the name and the existence of the German empire, and swept away the shadow whose substance had so long departed. Frankfort lost then the proud distinction of being the city where the Emperors were elected, though the Congress of Vienna, in 1815, administered a salve to its wounded pride by restoring to it the independence of which Napoleon had deprived it. The amende honorable was, as far as possible, made when Frankfort was fixed upon as the place of meeting of the German Diet. Thus, though it is little among the thousands of Fatherland, this city is the centre of German action

THE MARKET-PLACE.

THE ESCHENHEIMER TOWER AND GATE.

THE JUDEN-GASSE.

whenever the various States happen to pull the same way, which is not very often. Indeed, the Diet may be said to consist of two palaces de résistance, Austria and Prussia, at opposite ends of the table, with entremets and relishes of more or less piquancy from the minor Kingdoms and duchies, and a dessert à la Russe. These winds, finished with copious supplies of Rhine wine, have behind them a populous confusion of ideas, and an utter inability to remember what were the matters in discussion, which wanted what, and who was who. Such is the bewilderment of German politics.

Frankfort, which, like all medieval towns, was once strongly fortified, has accepted a more peaceable exterior, and for many years has raised its rents and filled its formidable moat with the new centres once occupied by its most sad bastions are now to be seen only parks, like gardens with pleasant walks, which have been constructed of necessity in almost every city on the Continent. Utilitarianism has been so far subordinated to picturesque effect that no railway has yet been authorised to break in upon the repose of the walks of the shades the ancient landmarks of the city. There are many memorials here which Englishmen will visit again, and which they will not find elsewhere. Among Taunus-Chatan-Neckar-Rissbahn-Gesellschaft might sweep out of existence only the Hirschgraben, which is preserved. At present the railway deposits its outside the city, and we at once enter the Judengasse, and proceed to the house where stands the Rothschild Mark, or Horse Market, where in former times the French used to purchase a large number of cuirasses for their cavalry. The trade is said to have been carried on principally by Jews. This branch of commerce, indeed, is the present day and in places much more loose than Frankfort, is not wholly unknown to those who are profanely called by the name name. The most conspicuous ornament of the Römer, as it is known, is the monument to the glorious trio, Gutenberg, Faust, and Schoeffer, whom every German party considers it a point of honour to claim as his own, probably the three fathers of printing. The general verdict supports their claim, though the Dutch as stoutly maintain, and naturally, maintain that this honour is due to Lawrence Kosiup, of Haarlem. The dispute is interesting, as it shows upon what trifles great questions rests the fame of some of the greatest benefactors of the human race. The art of printing from blocks on wooden tablets was known and loose cut, was, according to Hallam, practised in Holland as early as the year 1430. Kosiup is said to have substituted movable for fixed letters about the year 1440, and to have produced a book entitled "Speculum Humanæ Salvationis." The Dutch account states that Gutenberg, or Henne, or Gensfleisch, possessed of the secret, and set up for themselves at Mentz with materials plundered from Kosiup. The story is not improbable, and the most positive evidence. Gutenberg invented cut metal types, in 1444, which were tediously expensive in the manufacture; but the crowning achievement was the invention, by Schoeffer, in 1452, of the art of casting metal types in a mould, which inaugurated the art of printing. Faust, a rich merchant of Mentz, was Gutenberg's partner, and supplied him with the funds necessary to enable him and their assistant Schoeffer to carry out this great invention. Here stands the monument with which the city of Frankfort has honoured the three who effected so mighty a revolution in the intellectual history of the world. Could they have foreseen what their act was to become, they might well have been startled at the prospect. Doubtless, it was at first one of those unconscious inventions which, though so wonderful in their issues, are only laid open by those who first light on them. It was like striking a new sense to mankind. Henceforth the past was to be no longer a sealed book. Thought was to be coeval with the human race. The accumulated words of the wise were to step their flight and live throughout all time. And so let us reverently bow before the images of the three great printers, and pass on to the monument of one who supplied the noblest matter for their types. Goethe, a name which is never mentioned by a German without a thrill of pride, was born at Frankfort, in the Hirschgraben, a street near to the Rose Markt. The house, which is large and handsome, and evidently was the residence of one of the wealthier burghers, is preserved with almost as much religious veneration as that of our own Shakspeare at Stratford-on-Avon. Over the door is still to be seen the coat of arms adopted by Goethe's father on the occasion of his marriage with the daughter of the Senator Textor. As the grandfather of the poet was a farrier, his father would seem to have chosen three tyres, from their supposed resemblance to three horseshoes. It is as though he had then some presentiment of the fame that was to be the offspring of that union. The tyres become the shoes of Pegasus, when, on the 28th of August, 1749, Johann Wolfgang Goethe first saw the light. The statue of the poet is in modern costume. On the four sides of the pedestal are representations of the scenes which he wrote. The pose of the figure, which holds a laurel-wreath in its hand, is dignified, and the general effect of the whole is very pleasing to the object. Not far from it is the monument of Schiller, the contemporary of Goethe, and the complement of that double star which so pre-eminently illumines to the poetry of the German heaven. In the midst of herspeculations and gauze, has not been unmindful of the claims of genius, as the Archduchess, Maria Christina, daughter of Maria Zeraine, the chef-d'œuvre of the sculptor Dannecker, would alone testify.

Passing from the Rose Markt we reach the Zeil, the principal street of Frankfort, abounding in handsome houses and shops, and giving a just idea of the wealth and prosperity of the city. We turn to the right when we have reached the end of this noble street, and in a few yards come to the huge house of the Rothschilds, who are indigenous to the city, and to thoroughly identified with it that no description of Frankfort is complete which does not refer to this family. The founder of it was Meyer Anselm Rothschild, who was born in the Judengasse in 1743. He was left an orphan early as his eleventh year he is said to have gone into the bank as Hanover, and to have acquired a small fortune there. He returned to Frankfort, and there commenced business for himself as a banker and broker on the Bleichstrasse. Here his sagacity gradually raised him to great wealth, for they were combined with that rare good fortune and those uninterrupted runs of luck which so generally and so probably attend them. It is the union of those unlucky dogs who never fail through their own fault, one might be almost inclined to believe it to be a law of nature. Amschel Meyer Anselm, dying in 1812, left five sons, who became the heads of five branches of the business, which still bear the name of Anselm Anselm at Frankfort, Solomon at Vienna, Charles at Naples, James at Paris, and Nathan first at Manchester and afterwards in London. This latter was the celebrated Baron Rothschild, who is popularly supposed to have been the richest man in the world. Nathan was the related of Baron Nathan that, while engaged on the London Exchange in those calculations which shook every money market in the world, he invariably wore a stained of holey. The Baron Nathan, who has been brought in more than Peter's Pence to the coffers of the modern Medes. His eldest son is the present Baron Lionel Nathan de Rothschild, who here for the city of London, whose name will always be connected with the glorious emancipation of the Jews. The second son of the sons of a German Baron are Barons too, each of the Rothschilds is entitled to this patent, though it adds but little consequence to one who may almost be said to hold the purse-strings of Europe. At any rate, the Frankfort Rothschilds themselves do not affect nobility, and it if what is said to have occurred in his office a short time ago be authentic, it would seem that they are not ambitious of the honours true. He was writing a letter of great importance, when a servant came in, and announced that a gentleman in his own eye, came into the room and addressed him. "Pray take a chair, Sir," said the Baron politely, and go to the Baron Rothschild." The gentleman turned his eyes from his letter, and utterly unconscious of the rank of his visitor, "Sir," he exclaimed the letter, "I am not accustomed passion and gutturals struggled for the mastery, "Sir! I would have you to know that I am a Baron, a Baron of the Holy Roman Empire, Baron, and let me finish my letter." As the deponent states nothing further, it may be presumed that the letter was finished in peace and that Baron Hochnunnichtig evaporated. The original house of the Rothschilds is still to be seen in the Judengasse, or Jews' quarter. Dark, dingy, and squalid is the Judengasse, with the stories of the wretchlike houses projecting so much over the narrow lanes that they look like tunnels, or as if the inhabitants of this quarter had endeavoured to under-drain the sunlight and the sweet, fresh air. And yet, some years ago, at a window in the Judengasse, there might have been seen an aged woman, sitting with young girl by her side and purchases telling her that, though her sons were now the occupants of palaces in the proudest capitals of Europe, she would live and die where she had been Meyer Anselm's bride, and within the sight and sound of her own people. Oh! that Judengasse, with its galling oppression, worse than Egypt's bondage, to a people who yet believe that Israel's day of triumph will come! In this city of Frankfort, in the present century, the Judengasse was terminated by two gates, which were closed every evening and the whole of Europe, except the city of Frankfort, was open to the Israelites, to make his appearance in any other part of the town at those hours, if specially and sometimes a little hard upon Antonio we cannot much wonder at it.

The mention of the Rothschilds leads naturally to some mention of the Bethmanns or Bosses, which is a name celebrated of red and grey stone. Here the merchants of Frankfort are to be seen daily, inspired only not by Shylock, but by Mammon, and closing their eyes to that of "Prudence" for these are two of the statues which fill the niches immediately in front of the entrance here who is a Rothschild or a Bethman. A spirit of the most reckless speculation pervades the Frankfort Börse, and it is not to be wondered here. Indeed, no speculation seems too hopeless to engage some of the Frankforters, as the Germans call the high-pressure and other English capitalists of the like kind but too well know. There are few of the Börse who do not periodically receive circulars from some soi-disant Frankfort banker, unknown to fame, requesting the favour of a visit from who invites them to send only one pound and run the chance of gaining a fabulously large sum in the Austrian Crown Lottery. Not to throw any unmerited doubt upon these golden opportunities, which cannot be too highly prized, in the most dazzling manner, one may be permitted to question whether Austria is so flush of money as to be able to pay the sum of 50,000 thalers prize, not to speak of the remote possibility of the first prize of 400,000 florins. It is kindly rather to cry on the negotiations with that Power. It is true that the people of Austria is a great State, but, seriously interposed in Latin and German as "Austria Est Imperare Orbi Universo" and "Das Erzhaus Oesterreich Ist Ueberreich Unterthan," and signifies the claim of Austria to govern the whole world, but this consummation has not yet come to pass, one may be excused for fearing that in the event of success the prize would exhibit the device with two of its letters obliterated, and nothing more satisfactory for the favoured child of fortune than the last three vowels.

Leaving the speculations of the Börse and any surmises as to the fortunes of Austria to the Jews, who are said to be conversant some, we may direct our steps to the Römer, or Townhall. It is a building of the greatest antiquity, but of little or no

COMET SEEN AT MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA, ON THE 10TH OF JANUARY.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Dr. Hofmann gave his concluding lecture on the study of chemistry on Thursday last week. He dealt with the development of the formation and peculiar properties of the several compounds of nitrogen and oxygen produced by causing the action of the latter on nitrogen, oxygen, and zinc. He next expounded the laws according to which the elements combine in molecular proportions and by hypothesis which led to the elaborate researches on the intimate constitution of matter on which the atomic theory is based, involving especially on the results of experiments respecting the molecular constitution of simple and compound matter. In conclusion, he showed why hydrogen, chlorine, oxygen, nitrogen, and carbon, should each be considered as distinct types of elements, since other elements have been proved to exist in the molecules of each of these gases. The lecturer then explained the principle which would enable us to get rid of compounds by substituting iodine for chlorine in hydrochloric acid, he showed that hydriodic acid was produced; when sulphur replaced oxygen in water, sulphuretted hydrogen appeared; phosphoretted hydrogen was formed when phosphorus was substituted for nitrogen in ammonia; and in these instances body attained hydrogen was generated when silica replaced the carbon in hydrocarbons, marsh gas.

Mr. Balfour Stewart, F.R.S., in the evening discourse on Friday, the 19th inst., gave a lecture on the Sun, in which he spoke concerning the surface of the sun, illustrated by experiments, diagrams, and models, and explained the phenomena connected with the sun's spots. Professor Dewar, F.R.S., takes by Mr. Warren De la Rue, and others, magnified by a lens and illuminated by the electric light, was exhibited on the screen in the theatre. The region above the luminous envelope, termed the photosphere, the photosphere itself, and the region below the photosphere. The phenomena connected with the region above the photosphere were stated to be—1. Dark lines in the spectrum, arising from the presence of metallic vapours such as iron, nickel, copper, and of other elements above the photosphere and of a lower temperature than it. 2. A detached envelope of incandescent gas, which is supposed to be the cause of the reversing layer and of an atmosphere of a lower temperature than the photosphere. This envelope is known as the chromosphere, and can be seen at a total eclipse, which has been proved to extend to a height of 10,000 miles or more. The red flames, by the light they emit, are considered to denote the presence of the lighter elements existing in the layer lying above the photosphere. The phenomena connected with the photosphere are—

1. The masses of incandescent matter, known as the luminous envelope, and by Mr. Stone to rice-grains, when seen by good telescopes of a high power; and, 2. The spots, which are considered to be depressions in the photosphere accompanied by rents when seen near the border, and appearing much brighter than the surrounding photosphere. The spots are also of a lower temperature than the matter when viewed electroscopically. As they remain for days together in the same position on the sun's surface, it is concluded that the sun's body neither solid nor liquid, but consists of a gaseous nucleus, which is surrounded by a liquid envelope, consisting of an ambra or dark centre and a penumbra, or less dark portion surrounding it. The lecturer then explained the cause of the sun's rotation, and the law of its rotation, and concluded by mentioning that the centre is of a lower elevation. These spots are probably caused by the cooling of the photosphere, which is then precipitated in the form of a heavy powder, which sinks down into the sun's body, and which is said to be very remarkable that their maximum period corresponds with that of the magnetic disturbances of the earth, viz., 11 years, and that they follow the equatorial region, and recent observation has shown that they are influenced by the position of Venus, and probably of other planets. Major General Sabine, President R.S., vice president, was in the chair.

Professor Marshall, in his ninth lecture on the nervous system, delivered on Saturday last, the 13th inst., considered in detail the functions of particular nerves and nerve centres, which exemplify in a most striking manner the great law conserved in all creation—the combination of variety in structure with unity in plan. All sensations were considered to be modifications of touch, since all the peculiarities of the extremities of nerves refer to action by contact, whether mechanical, as in touch, vibration, or chemical action, or electricity, all which are realizable into modes of motion. The nervous system is the great regulator of movement; and its varieties—reflex, sensori-motor, ideational, emotional, and volitional—are shown to be the results of the peculiar laws of nervous reaction. The great principle is that the great motions and regulator of all intercourse between animals and the entire world. Like the vascular system, its vitality depends upon nutrition, wholesome food, good air, and rest, that of the brain being nature's sweet restorative, sleep. Each part of the brain is become centres. Referring to diagrams, Professor Marshall pointed out the peculiar functions of various parts of the brain, and explained the difference between the voluntary, involuntary, and semi-voluntary, distinguishing those parts the seat of which was still uncertain.

Professor David Masson, of University College, London, commenced a course of three lectures "On Modern British Philosophy," on Tuesday last. He began by dilating on the great importance and interest of the study of the moral sciences, which had been reduced to a new rib, but which had been developed in a remarkable manner by Bacon, Hobbes, Locke, Berkeley, Hume, Mr. Carlyle, and many others. He referred to the great influence exercised by Hume (about 1710), by Kant (about 1800), and by Hegel (about 1830); and expressed his conviction that this time had arrived for the advent of another great leader. He defined the distinction between individual minds to be "the preponderance of the power of consolidated conception"—the different ideas which different minds possess of the present and future world. He described the leading principles of the empirical school of philosophy, which refers our ideas and notions, the source of all our knowledge, solely to experience, derived from sensation, and modified by our senses; and contrasted them with those of the transcendental school, which recognizes the existence of innate ideas and the presence of a law of thought independent of and beyond our finite experience. The great leader of the empirical school in England was Locke, whose opinions, much modified, are now maintained by Mr. Stuart Mill, Mr. Bailey, and others. The most distinguished supporters of the transcendental philosophy, in various degrees, are Hamilton, Whewell, Carlyle, and Thompson. Our intellectual progress would be retarded for the most interesting copiesis in the lecture.

In the Friday evening, the 26th inst., Mr. C. T. Newton, Keeper of Greek and Roman Antiquities in the British Museum, will begin a course of three lectures on Recent Excavations and Discoveries in the British Museum from Budget, and on the statues from the Parnese Palace."

The evening discourse on Friday, the 31st, will be given by Mr. James Glaisher, "On his Aerial Researches."

The ship Comodoore Perry, 5000 tons burden, belonging to Messrs. T. H. Brocklebank and Co., sailed in the 1863 line, from London, for Queensland, Captain Daniel Owen Commander; Surgeon-superintendent Dr. J. Lee, to convey a number of Government emigrants. The Commodore Perry, the fifty-second vessel that has sailed on the land-order system of emigration, and the thirty-second that has sailed on the Queensland Government account, carried 629 souls, divided into paying, assisted, and free passengers, and 71 single females. The number of cabin passengers was seven, and 71 single females.

A brief correspondence has been presented to Parliament respecting the recognition of the Confederate States. The duchies seceded to them by Austria and Prussia. Commissioners from England, notify the conclusion of the Treaty of Peace, and announce that it is intended to be recognized; and the flag to the duchies, and therefore enjoy all the privileges they had before their separation from the United States. Under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government are "prepared to recognise the flag provisionally, saving the rights of the United States of America and those of the Northern Confederation, and only till the definitive constitution of the duchies concerned."

Mr. B. H. Paul suggests in a letter to the Times that "beneath the terry pools of Zante, from which Herodotus described the dipping out of the mineral oil with myrtle boughs, there is a rich source of petroleum to be developed the same as in Americs, where, upon the site of the oil-wells from which enormous wealth has been derived, the Indians formerly collected petroleum for medical purposes, as it gathered in scanty flow from springs on the water, by spreading their blankets upon the surface, little dreaming of the rich resources it was to yield to the white man. Similar wells exist in rich resources it was to yield to the white man. Similar wells exist in Austria, and it is expected that the American improvements in the process of refining will cause a great increase of the present quantity. Till now only the region of Galicia have produced 14,000 tons yearly, the majority of them are in Galicia, and run parallel with the Carpathians.

THE STRIKE AND LOCK-OUT IN THE IRON DISTRICTS.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

"WHERE reason is against a man," says Hobbes, "he will be against reason." This aphorism may explain the continuance of the strike in North Staffordshire, and the general lock-out throughout the iron districts. While there is reason in the demand of a workman no employer of labour can resist it. Self-interest induces him to yield a rise in the price of labour where, with prudence, it can be conceded. Numerous instances have occurred of late years in which, with or without the interference of trades unions, wages have been raised. But there have been instances in which the demand of the operative would have so shorn away the margin of profit and trenched upon capital that employers have met them with an imperative negative. In the cases where men have been unreasonable they have always been disastrously beaten. It could not be otherwise. Wages cannot be paid out of capital: if they were, the trade and commerce of the country must soon collapse.

But Foolishness, like Wisdom, is justified of her children. Another glance at the facts of the case proves that she is so in Staffordshire. Some twenty years ago it was thought desirable by men and masters to put an end to conflicts which were always disturbing the labour market by adopting some settled principle of remuneration. It was then suggested that wages should rise and fall with the standard price of Staffordshire bar iron, as fixed, quarterly, by the Association of Ironmasters, which comprises men of North and South Staffordshire, of Yorkshire, and Northumberland, and exists for this purpose alone. Puddlers were never to be paid less than 7s., nor more than 10s., per ton. Between these limits, the wage was to vary 1s. for every 20s. in the price of a ton of iron, up and down. When the price is below £7 a ton, as for long seasons it has been, the puddler gains an advantage, to which the master, by virtue of his agreement, accedes. When the price is above £10 a ton, as it never has been for long together, the masters gain a turn, not by means complacently regarded by the men. The men, delighted with this arrangement, broke up their unions (we are informed), burnt the books, and announced the millennium of labour. Between this period and 1863 there came a fall in the price of iron of 20s. a ton. The men declined to be bound by the agreement. They therefore struck; and, as masters are oftener defeated in an attempt to reduce than to resist the rise of wages, they compromised the matter, so that the men were only let down 6d. a ton, and not 1s. In 1863 they obtained a further advance of 6d., so that, when bars stood at £7 10s., puddlers received 8s. 6d. for their work. In January, 1864, the price of iron bars was £9 10s., and of puddlers' labour per ton 10s. 6d. This high price so stimulated foreign trade and checked the demand for British iron as to necessitate a reduction of prices to £8 10s. The workman's wages, however, remained at 10s. 6d. Here was a state of things that could not continue. Labour was living on capital, and masters must either reduce wages, stop, or go on and be ruined. Before the first alternative was adopted, the latter one was widely accepted. When the proposal to reduce wages 1s. a ton was made, the great body of the work-people acknowledged its justice, and turned in upon it. Had it not been for the gadflies of the unions, resuscitated in 1863, they would all have obeyed the voice of reason. But the puddlers of North Staffordshire obeyed the voice rather of the delegate, and said to the masters, "The reduction may be fair enough, but we won't submit to it. If you can't pay us, we're off to America." The puddler on strike does, however, make some pretence to a grievance; but what does it amount to? He says he has to pay higher wages than he did formerly to his under-hands. It may be so; but his own wages have advanced in a greater ratio. He forgets the numerous little advantages, once accorded as occasional privileges, now claimed as constant rights, which, taken altogether, swell the shilling column of the weekly wage. For instance, once he paid the master 1s. a ton for the removal of ashes, which are now removed free of charge. Puddlers work in night and day relays. The week begins on Monday evening and ends on Saturday. Formerly he divided the week thus:—Saturday, pay day; Sunday, drinking day; Monday, in bed; Tuesday, got awake; Wednesday, made an excursion; Thursday and Friday, worked. Now he works five days; but, though his day is nominally of twelve hours, his attention and skill are only demanded during half that time, the under-hands being answerable for the rest. This labour enables him to turn out 1 ton 2 cwt. of iron a day, and out of the resultant wages, 11s., he must pay from 2s. 4d. to 3s. to underlings. He is therefore receiving 40s. a week clear for five days' work; and as he objects to commence earlier on Monday, and to work over time at odd seasons, it is not to be supposed he considers himself wanting money. The contemplated change will reduce him to 34s. 9d. We sympathise with him under the loss of 5s. 3d. a week, but bid him remember that it is better to take less than to stop altogether. His case is not singular—fluctuations of price cause fluctuations of income; and it is part of the discipline of life to take the good with the bad.

But, as we have before said, this is not a contest between the workman and the masters, but between the unions and the masters. In the various meetings that have recently been held this fact has shone out conspicuously. It has been confessed that, as the contest was inevitable, the occasion for it could not be allowed to slip away. We have clear evidence that the North Staffordshire men were ordered out on strike by the unions; that levies have been made on workmen in other districts of 3s. and 4s. a week for their support. One Hobson, of the Brierly Hill executive, at the London meeting, said, "It is true we have contributed to the support of the North Staffordshire men as long as our funds lasted; but, when the lock-out came, we wanted those funds for ourselves; and now we come to solicit the sympathy of the metropolitan unions!" The tactics are clear enough. Having beaten the half dozen masters in the north of the country by means drawn from those of the south, a few firms in the south would have been attacked by means drawn from masters in other fields, and so on, till the rate of wages conformed to the desires of the men. These hopes, however, are defeated by the lock-out, about the policy of which, in cases like this, should any one doubt, let him read the following admission, made by Mr. Mark Noble, in a defence of his conduct of the building strike in 1859-60, before a body of unionists in Surrey Gardens: "If the masters had not shut their shops and locked the men out, we should have had ample money to carry out the nine-hours' movement; but, as the masters have locked out many thousands of men, how do you suppose that we can guarantee you anything like tangible support."

It would be a bad day for England when wages came to be regulated by law. The skill and character of the British workmen depend upon his power to say, "I shall not work for such a wage, but will wait till things improve." If provident habits prevailed amongst workmen they would be able oftener to fall back upon their savings for a time, and, by thus withdrawing, help to relieve and right the over-weighted ship themselves. The co-operators were able to do this extensively during the cotton famine. Instead of this manly mode of defence trades' unions are resorted to. These are instituted by men who prey on the necessities of the needy people supporting them. Obliged to keep the game alive for their own benefit, the delegate stands between the master and his servant, and would dictate terms to both. A little time ago three men were deputed to wait upon an ironmaster to confer about a little dispute concerning remuneration. "Are you all my workmen?" inquired the master. One of the men hesitatingly admitted himself to be a trades' union delegate. He was allowed to remain. The two workmen heard the proposal of their employer, and considered it fair. They wished to accept it, but looked nervously at the delegate. "Do you advise them to accept it," said the master to the delegate? "Sir," replied the man, "I'd see you damned first!" Such is the spirit of the unions which allure the working man with fair promises, wheedle him out of his money and render no account of it, lead him into the deepest depths of misery, and leave him there. Who can point to any good they have secured him? The shipwrights of Liverpool struck for an advance, and, after standing idle twenty-one weeks, turned in again at 5 per cent. reduction on their previous wages. The hatters of London struck for an advance of a shilling per dozen hats, but eventually went back to work at a shilling decrease, having forfeited four months' wages. The journeymen tailors of London struck in 1834 for an advance of wages and a reduction in the hours of labour. Thirteen thousand men remained out of work for several months; they sacrificed about £100,000 in wages alone, and, after enduring great privations and being reduced to utter destitution, went back to work at masters' terms, agreeing also to renounce the unions. What occurred in the colliers' strike in 1844, when the union had a fund of £40,000, and 34,000 pitmen lost their wages for three months? Did not the men resume work at masters' terms? How has it fared with the obstinately-contested strikes in the building trade? The strikes of the engineers, cotton operatives, the Glasgow strikes, &c., have they not entailed serious suffering and defeat upon the workmen? Where is the record of any extensive strike ending otherwise? Is there not before the puddlers' eyes the result of the colliers' strike last summer? Were these men to work 120 weeks they could not replace the loss they then sustained! What, then, with all these instances of failure, are the probabilities of success in the present case? The late strike has left the union boxes very empty. The people have barely recovered their furniture, to place it again in pawn. Hundreds, we hear, are begging bread, and knocking at the door of the workhouse for relief. The shopkeepers, to whom they are still deeply indebted, deny them credit, and the law is severe against vagrants. The unions have sent adrift 70,000 people and their families, all accustomed to good wages. Can they maintain them? They neither can do so, nor are doing so, nor desire to do so. They thought to draw the sinews of war from the parties attacked, and, finding themselves foiled, they will, after a fair show of fight, "permit" their victims to return to work. They have aroused a power they did not expect to face in mass. The associated masters of the northern and midland counties, even though they be not perfectly united, are quite sufficiently so to resist successfully a demand that would send them into the Bankruptcy Court.

As to arbitration, there seems nothing to arbitrate about; the men acknowledge the justice of the reduction. What more can be said? We confess to have read, with some surprise, the letter of a celebrated political economist in the Times, wherein he seems to excuse the workmen by implying that they have not shared in our commercial progress. We consider it could easily be shown that no class has shared it so fully. The generality of working men in our towns, who like to do so, can earn wages that throw into the shade the meagre incomes obtained by hard-working men in what are called the liberal or learned professions. Such remarks are likely to mislead. It would have been better to commend to them a study of the causes and results of the great strikes that have occurred in this country within the last thirty years.

It is the delegate who now stands between the workmen of the iron districts and the employers of labour; it is he who locks them out from the workshops, and again and again he will do it until the day arrives when they shall discover that his designs are not so much directed against the tyranny of capital as against the unfettered industry of the people themselves.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. L. C., Farmwood; I. B., Finsbury; TUBBS, H. R., DEREVON, W., A. M. B., THEO. ELLIS, T. Q., R. M., and Others.—The composer of Problem No. 1098, in pursuit of a very beautiful mate, has evidently overlooked a very ordinary one; and Mr. Pavitt, in No. 1099, has followed his example.

I. M. C.—It will involve considerable research; but we will obtain the information you desire, if it be obtainable.

W. BOSBING.—Such an innovation would find no favour with anyone. We need not, therefore, devote our limited space to its discussion.

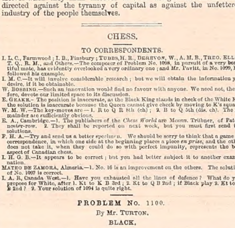
E. GEAKE.—The position is inaccurate, as the Black King stands in check of the White Kt; the solution is inaccurate because the Queen cannot give check by moving to K's square.

W. M. W.—The key-moves are—1. R to Q R 8th (ch); 2. B to Q 5th (dis. ch). The remainder are sufficiently obvious.

E. A., Cambridge.—1. The publishers of the Chess World are Messrs. Trübner, of Paternoster-row. 2. They shall be reported on next week, but you must first send the solutions.

F. H. A.—Try and send us a better specimen. We should be sorry to think that a game by correspondence, in which one side at the beginning places a piece en prise, and the other does not take it, when they could do so with perfect impunity, represents the best aspect of Canadian chess.

I. H. G. B.—It appears to be correct; but you had better subject it to another examination.



MATEO DE ZAMORA, Almeria.—1. No. 16 is an improvement on the others. The solution of No. 1097 is correct.

I. A. R, Canada West.—1. Have you exhausted all the lines of defence? What do you propose for White, after 1. Kt to K B 3rd; 2. Kt to Q B 2nd; if Black play 2. Kt to K B 2nd? 2. Your solution of 1094 is quite right.

PROBLEM No. 1100.

By Mr. TURTON.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1099.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. B to Q R 3rd	B to K Kt 6th, or (a)	2. B to Q B sq (ch)	B to K B 5th
		3. R takes B	Any move
		4. R mates.
(a) 1.	K takes Kt	3. R to K B 4th	Any move
2. B to Q B sq (ch)	B to K Kt 4th	4. R mates.

CHESS IN LONDON.

An amusing little Skirmish, in which Dr. WILSON gave the odds of the Q Rook to Mr. G.—(Remove Black's Q Rook from the Board.)

(K's Bishop's Gambit.)

WHITE (Dr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. B to Q B 4th	Q to K R 5th (ch)
4. K to B sq	Kt to K B 3rd
5. P to K 5th

(This is very hazardous, and, if properly answered, would have cost White the game.)

WHITE (Dr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
5.	Kt to K 5th
6. Q to K B 3rd	Kt to K Kt 6th (ch)

(He should rather have played B to Q B 4th.)

WHITE (Dr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
7. P takes Kt	Q takes R
8. Q takes K B P	B to Q B 4th

(The object of thus sacrificing the K B Pawn is ingenious, but somewhat too transparent.)

WHITE (Dr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
9. Q takes P (ch)	K to Q sq
10. P to Q 4th	B to K 2nd
11. P to K 6th

(A subtle trap, into which Black luckily jumps, and thus affords us a very pretty end-game.)

WHITE (Dr. W.)	BLACK (Mr. G.)
11.	R to K B sq
12. B to K Kt 5th	R takes Q (ch)
13. P takes R	P to Q 4th
14. P "Queens" (ch)	K to Q 2nd
15. Q takes B (ch) and wins.

A Parma journal mentions that a M. Bavestrelli has recently died in that city, leaving by will 2000f. each to Garibaldi and Mazzini. This was all he possessed.——Tidings from the isle of Caprera comprise the household incident of a grandson being born unto Garibaldi, who has expressed a wish that the first born of his daughter Teresita should bear the name of Lincoln in honour of the President of the United States.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

1st Dragoon Guards: W. N. Sadlier to be Cornet. 2nd: Lieut. F. O'Beirne to be Captain; Cornet B. Edmonds to be Lieutenant; C. A. de Neufville Lucas to be Cornet.

5th Lancers: Quartermaster C. Wooden to be Quartermaster. 9th: Cornet W. A. Saville to be Lieutenant; F. De la Garde Grissell to be Cornet.

8th Hussars: C. H. C. Knox to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Lieut.-Col. E. K. Money to be Colonel; Capt. and Brevet Major H. Francis to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capt. A. D. Denniss to be Captain; Lieuts. M. Fraser and H. W. Stockley to be Second Captains; Cadets A. G. Walker, W. Hunter, J. T. Bury, G. T. Pretyman, and J. D. E. Huddart to be Lieutenants; Assist. Surg. A. F. Bradshaw to be Assistant Surgeon.

Royal Engineers: Capt. F. J. Moberly to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capt. W. H. Edgcome to be Captain; Lieut. H. R. Mead to be Second Captain; Cadet W. G. Nicholson to be Lieutenant.

24th Foot: J. J. Harvey to be Ensign. 25th: E. J. Christian to be Ensign. 30th: Capt. W. J. Brook to be Major; Lieut. W. Glascott to be Captain; Ensign T. B. Stewart to be Lieutenant; Ensign H. Kemble to be Ensign. 44th: Lieut. M. S. Smith to be Captain; Ensign H. H. Tabb to be Lieutenant; Cadet G. Gosselin, to be Ensign. 50th: Lieut. C. F. Young to be Captain; Ensign G. J. C. Allardice to be Lieutenant; C. L. W. Reade to be Ensign. 68th: Quartermaster T. Lawrence to be Quartermaster. 98th: Lieut. T. F. Swinford to be Captain; Ensigns A. G. Raper and J. A. Corballis to be Lieutenants; D. D. M'Causland and E. T. B. Sparks to be Ensigns.

BREVET.

Brevet Cols. C. H. Burnaby and J. G. Walker to be Major-Generals.

Lieut.-Cols. O. W. S. Chambers, W. H. Kirby, and A. W. Murray to be Colonels.

Majors H. Butler, G. A. Ryan, F. M. Colvile, and C. U. Shuttleworth to be Lieutenant-Colonels.

Capts. H. W. J. Trent and F. A. Smith to be Majors.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge held a levée on Monday at the Horse Guards. Above 130 officers attended on the occasion.

Colonel George Jackson Carey has been made a Companion of the Bath.

Major M'Queen has been appointed Military Knight of Windsor.

The Royal Commissioners of the Patriotic Fund have appointed Dr. Armstrong, Deputy Inspector-General Royal Navy, to be a member of the executive and finance committee of the fund.

The Admiralty having decided on introducing female labour in Chatham Dockyard, orders have been received for the immediate admission of between ninety and one hundred young women, who are to be employed in tending the spinning-jennies recently erected in the ropemaking department by Messrs. Fairbairn and Co., of Leeds, for preparing the hemp.

The Royal Sovereign is ordered to undergo an ordeal of some twelve or fourteen days' experimental work outside the Isle of Wight, under the direction of Captain A. C. Key, C.B., of her Majesty's ship Excellent, when her gunnery capabilities will be fully and practically developed under every possible condition.

Colonel Henry Madox, K.H., died on Saturday last, at his residence at Bath, in the 82nd year of his age.—Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick Macbean, K.H., of Lumley Lodge, Richmond, died on the 15th inst.—Major Charles Moore, the Governor of the Military Knights, died on Sunday, at his residence in the castle-yard, Windsor, aged ninety years.

The iron-clad ram Scorpion, built by Messrs. Laird and purchased by the Government, left the Mersey on Saturday, commanded by Captain Paynter, R.N. In the run to Holyhead, on the way to Devonport, she made seven knots an hour against tide. Her behaviour is stated by those on board to have given great satisfaction. The Scorpion is 225 ft. long, 42½ ft. broad, and 20 ft. deep; her tonnage is 1890; horse-power (nominal), 350; and she is clad with 4½-in. plates and ten inches teak. She has two Cole's turrets, each pierced for two 300-pounder Armstrongs.

THE MILITIA.

The arrangements for the training of the militia of Great Britain are now nearly completed for 1865. Each regiment assembles at its county head-quarters on the day specified in the following list. There will be twenty-seven days' training, with seven days' preliminary drill for recruits in each case:—

1st Cheshire, April 10; 2nd Cheshire, May 1; Cumberland, May 1; Denbigh Rifles, May 8; 1st and 2nd Derby, May 1; 1st Durham, May 29; 2nd or North Durham, May 15; Durham Artillery, May 1; Flint Rifles, May 1; East Kent, at Canterbury, May 1; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th Lancashire and Lancashire Artillery, May 1; Leicester, May 5; North Lincoln, May 15; South Lincoln, May 1; Merioneth Rifles, May 1; First East Middlesex, at Hampstead, May 1; Northumberland Light Infantry and Artillery, May 15; Nottingham (Sherwood Foresters), April 17; Oxfordshire, at Oxford, May 1; 1st Somerset, at Taunton, May 1; 1st (King's Own), 2nd, and 3rd Stafford, May 1; 1st Warwick, May 12; 2nd Warwick, May 15; Westmorland Light Infantry, May 1; Worcester, May 17; North York Rifles and East and North Artillery, May 1; 1st West York Rifles, April 24; 2nd York Light Infantry, April 17; 3rd York Light Infantry, May 1; 4th York, April 17; 5th York, April 24; 6th York, May 1.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The Secretary of State for War has approved of a review of volunteers taking place at Brighton on Easter Monday, the 17th of April. Applications from corps desirous of attending must be made on the prescribed form (War Office form 1629) through the Lords Lieutenant of their respective counties, and delivered at the War Office on or before Wednesday, the 5th of April, after which date no further applications will be received.

An Enfield rifle-shooting match came off last Saturday between ten representatives of No. 1 and ten of No. 4 companies of the 56th (Salford) Lancashire, on the ground of the regiment at Clifton Moss. The match was closely contested throughout, and there was some very good shooting displayed on both sides, although the weather was unfavourable. No. 1 Company won by 11 marks.

The second contest for the challenge cup among the members of No. 3 Company of the 1st Manchester took place last Saturday, on the ground of the 2nd Manchester, at Astley. Lance-Corporal M'Vittie made the highest score with 23 marks, and Sergeant Allison and Corporal Shaw made 22 marks each; but, according to a new rule, the London Armoury and Wimbledon rifles were handicapped one point for each five shots, and, M'Vittie and Shaw being armed with these weapons, Sergeant Allison was declared the winner for the first time.

The members of the Hon. Artillery Company assembled at their head-quarters, City-road, on Thursday week, for the purpose of witnessing the distribution of prizes to the successful competitors, the presentation being made by Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Colville. The principal winners were—Monthly challenge cup, fifteen guineas, final winner, T. W. Reilly, second company; monthly long-range challenge cup, for Enfield rifles, thirty guineas, final winner, Captain Field; officers' prize, six guineas, Gunner Meggy, Foot Artillery; rifle, seven guineas, R. Parker, second company; field-glass, five guineas, Corporal Blanks; Court of Assistants' classing prize, £10, Private C. Rook; Court of Assistants' challenge vase, fifty guineas, final possession, Gunner T. Meggy; Captain-General and Colonel his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's prize, twenty-five guineas, final winner, Corporal Hunt, second company. When the Prince offered the regiment a prize it was undetermined what form it should take; but, after some consideration, it was unanimously agreed that it should be a bronze statuette of his Royal Highness in the uniform of the Artillery Company.

The surgeons and physicians to the guardians of the poor will be the medical referees employed by the Government for life insurers and annuitants.

An oil-well in Jackson, Michigan, has been sunk 2000 ft. It is intended to sink it to the depth of 3000 ft. The deepest oil-well at present is 2600 ft.

Royal Commissioners have been nominated to inquire into the laws of Great Britain and Ireland with respect to the constitution and proof of contract of marriage, and also into the laws relating to marriages of British subjects in India and foreign countries.

It was lately stated at a Bible association anniversary that a calculation had been made respecting the proportionate value of the services of gentlemen and ladies as collectors for charitable and religious purposes, when it was found that one lady is worth 135 gentlemen.

The Postmaster-General has announced a reduction in the rates of inland postage. Hitherto, if a letter exceeded, by ever so little, the weight of an ounce, it was charged 4d., and so in proportion, all charges after the first being made by the ounce. The reduction, which will come into operation on the 1st of next month, consists in charging the rate all through by the half ounce, so that an ounce and a half will be 3d. instead of 4d., and so on at the rate of an additional penny for every half ounce. It is high time that such a meaningless rule should be abolished. One wonders how the Post Office authorities could have adopted a system by which two letters may be transmitted through the post at a less charge than if they were packed in one envelope. Why is not the book post, in which a like anomaly exists, also brought to one uniform rate?

The concluding volumes of "The History of Frederick the Great," by Mr. Thomas Carlyle, were issued on Monday. The work closes with the following paragraph:—"I define him to myself as hitherto the Last of the Kings; when the next will be, is a very long question. But it seems to me as if Nations, probably all Nations, by-and-by, in their despair—blinded, swallowed like Jonah, in such a whale's belly of things brutish, waste, abominable (for is not Anarchy, as the Rule of what is Baser over what is Nobler, the one life's misery worth complaining of, and, in fact, the abomination of abominations, springing from and producing all others whatsoever?)—as if the Nations universally, and England too if it hold on, may more and more bethink themselves of such a Man and his Function and Performance, with feelings far other than are possible at present. Meanwhile, all I had to say of him is finished; that too, it seems, was a bit of work appointed to be done. Adieu, good readers; bad also, adieu."

NEW MUSIC.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.—IT'S ABOUT TO-DAY. WE SHALL ALL BE MARRIED. and THE SEAMAN BANJO. Illustrated in the style of Leech. Every one must have crossed a perfect furrow.—D'ALCORN, 9, Baldwin-place, E.C.

£40 A YEAR. By J. E. ROE. Price 2s. 6d. An elegant drawing-room Comic Song. Easy, telling, and extremely funny. Sung at the Polytechnic.
D'ALCORN, 9, Baldwin-place, W.

THEY'VE LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. By R. COOTE. Sung by the Christy Minstrels. Price 2s. 6d. Illustrated in colours.
D'ALCORN, 9, Baldwin-place, W.

R. COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. By R. Founded on the most popular melodies of the day, and played by the military band at Hengler's Circus. Price 2s. net; or Duet, 3s.—D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

R. COOTE'S ORPHEUS GALOP. By R. Founded on Offenbach in Children's celebrated Opera Bouffe. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.
D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre, and encored every night. Illustrated in colours by the Charley-cature Sketcher, Mr. Valentine.—D'ALCORN, Baldwin-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An original new Convivial Song, sung by the great Vocal and Musical Farce and the Great Mania Ball. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 9, Baldwin-place.

LARA.—THE ARAB SONG. Sung by Miss Rose Leclerq. "The airs of the entire work."—Daily Telegraph. "In the greatest vein in the opera."—Times. Price 2s. net. Illustrated.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Transcription of the celebrated "Arab Song," for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. net. Illustrated.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—The Favourite Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, by FRANZ NAVA, in Two Books, price 2s. each, containing all the best melodies in the Opera. Post-free for 24 stamps.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA QUADRILLES. By COOTE. Price 4s. Illustrated in colours, by CHARLEY VALENTINE. Price 4s. With Brinley Richards's Transcription, 5s.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—H. W. GOODBAN'S Transcription of the popular Song. "The merry bells shall ring." Price 3s. Post-free for 18 stamps.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—LANCASHIRE PIECES. "Lara" arranged as a fantasia and "Lara" as a dance-movement, post.
Mons. Coote, Fantasia, 4s.
Kuhn's Transcription, 4s.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by LEVEY, 4s.; Arrah-na-pogue Valse, 4s.; and Arrah-na-pogue Galop, 4s. Illustrated in colours of the new Irish drama, by Boot-full.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE LATEST COMIC SONG.
SENSATION MAID. Sung by Mr. Sothern, Mr. Toole, in "The Woman in Mauve." Written by H. J. Byron. Illustrated in colours. Price 2s. net.
METTLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

DARFAIT AMOUR. Romance. Composed by E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 18 stamps. Duff and Hodgson, 65, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME. Composer to the Royal Choral Society. "Quick, Quick," "Harold," "Le Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.—Duff and Hodgson, 65, Oxford-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad. Sung by S. GLOVER. "In this very beautiful song is now established the reputation of a composer."—Vide Morning Post. The ballad made a furore, and it is the Favourite Song of all which are now ready for delivery. Sent by post for 18 stamps each.—Duff and Hodgson, 65, Oxford-street.

ROSE LEAVES.—Ballad without Words. By E. L. HIME Composer of "Parfait Amour" (sent free for 18 stamps), "The Brook," "Le Salon," "Quick, Quick," "Harold," &c. Post-free for 18 stamps.—Duff and Hodgson, 65, Oxford-street.

TO LEARN TO PLAY THE CONCERTINA EASILY AND THOROUGHLY.
MARR'S CONCERTINA TUTOR. A new and greatly-improved Instruction-book. Price 4s., post-free for 24 stamps.
Composer—JOHN S. MARR, 191, Richmond-street.

In music-folio, price 6d., post-free for 7 stamps.
MARR'S CONCERTINA COMPANION. Containing New and Popular Airs.
Composer—JOHN S. MARR, 191, Richmond-street.

In music folio, price 6d., post-free for 7 stamps.
140 TUNES FOR THE CONCERTINA.
Composer—JOHN S. MARR, 191, Richmond-street.

Just published, price 1s., post-free for 13 stamps,
MARR'S CONCERTINA TUTOR. A New and Greatly-improved Instruction-book. "Mr. Marr's Concertina Tutor is the best we have seen. It contains the best rules for a Concertina-player and thoroughly it also contains 37 popular Tunes, progressively arranged for beginners. Glasgow Citizen.—JOHN S. MARR, 191, Richmond-street.

DIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great Makers, for SALE or HIRE at MILLICAN and SON'S Depôt, 6, Finsbury-circus, Bank. Pianofortes by all the Manufacturers. Lowest discounts for cash.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, to larger commodious premises, from thence, his services. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS, of Many Microscopes, Telescopes, and Opera Glasses, suitable for Presents. Improved Achromatic Lenses, prepared Slides, Transparencies, Dissolving-view apparatus, Photographic Lenses, Stereoscopes, Stereoscopic Slides, Chemicals, Frames, and every description of Optical Instruments. Illustrated Catalogues, 1s. each, containing forty subjects; sixty microscopic objects; and twenty-four views. Sent for 14 stamps each. Lists gratis and post-free. Microscopes, with view and reversing apparatus, complete, 3l. 3s. and 5l. 5s. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by the Naked Eye, Telescope, and Microscope, with Diagrams of the Motions of a Comet, a Solar System, and Lines by a Church Organ which Forces are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and again cannot be procured from scientific and optical instrument makers, including Lord Rosse. Sent freely post-paid. S. and H. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly, and Organ-builders' Depôt, Opera House, Covent-garden.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Price 2l. 2s. Sent free by post on receipt of Post-office order. See Times, Dec. 20, 1864. This glass is capable of showing clearly the occultation of the moon, the rings, and principal outlier moons. S. and H. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES. — TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including the Queen, Prince Consort, and Princess of Wales, for their soft and distinctive vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is indeed, of vital importance. One of the firm will be in London daily for consultation. Pamphlet, with full branch only.—S. and H. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, restores singing under the deepest affliction. Sound patency is now distinctly at church and in public assemblies.—S. and H. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

IMPORTANT FIRST-CLASS ENGRAVINGS, by Artists of the highest celebrity, on SALE, at reduced prices, splendid, suitable for Giving or Drawing rooms; or unframed, for folios. The most varied and complete selection in London. Catalogues sent for 6 stamps. Proofs before letters, 21s. each. Fine Line engravings added lately, an unrivalled Landseer's Engravings from 4s. each.—PAUL FERRARD and SON, 199, Piccadilly, E.C.

CHROMOLITHOGRAPHS.—The best example of the most celebrated artists—Stanfield, Richardson, Rowbotham, &c. (cheap).—Summer-interlaced. 60 subjects kept in stock, from 2s. each. Catalogues sent for 6 stamps.—PAUL FERRARD and SON, 199, Piccadilly, E.C., Print Gallery, 27, Haymarket, S.W.

CHEAP FRAMES (Gold Bead), 2s. 6d. each, including glass, size 14 by 11. Frames for Red Riding Hood, Rebecca at the Well, and other subjects in stock or made to order, any size. Engravings in stock at manufacturing prices. PAUL FERRARD and SON, 199, Piccadilly, E.C.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE'S New Catalogues, containing Designs and Estimates, may be had on application. Their New Show-Rooms, at 27, Baker-street, also Church Decoration, Mural Painting, Memorial Brasses, Monumental Sculpture, and Ecclesiastical Metal-work.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by ELKINGTON and CO.,
77 and 78, Regent-street, W. Their Electro-plate, especially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and in a very superior manner for presents. Full price-lists on application. Catalogues post-free.
Manufactory, Newhall-street, Birmingham.
Show-rooms, 77 and 78, Regent-street.
Old Change, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Gallery Works, Sheffield.

MAPPIN and CO.'S
Table-cutting Knives,
Fish Carvers and Forks.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. Large and Choice Selection, including, among other articles, Dresden, Sèvres, Chelsea, Derby, and English and Foreign Porcelain; Clocks (bronze, marble, and gilt), first-class Bronzes, Statuettes, Groups, Vases, Candelabra, &c.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 97, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, Bronze, and Wrought Iron. Large assortment always in stock—Every article marked with plain figures.
WILLIAM S. BURTON, General Furnishing Ironmonger, W.C.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHIMNEY-GLASSES, in best French Plates and double gilt. The following is a list of prices:—
Size of Plate. Double Mounted Frames. Handsome Frames.
42 by 30 inches .. 36 inches wide by 28 inches high .. £12 12s.
48 by 30 inches .. 42 inches wide by 28 inches high .. 15 15s.
54 by 30 inches .. 48 inches wide by 28 inches high .. 18 18s.
60 by 30 inches .. 54 inches high by 30 inches wide .. 6 6s.
Each of the above sizes can be had in a variety of handsome patterns, from 12s. to 25l. 10s. Pictures, 21s. to 21 guineas each; girandoles, from 2l. 2s. to 10l. 10s. per pair.
Tottenham-court-road, 145, Piccadilly, and 143, Regent-street, W.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE.
Facilities who study economy, durability and elegance should visit the Show-rooms before purchasing elsewhere. They are replete with the most useful and elegant articles of utility, from the smallest trifle, useful and expensive. A ten-roomed house furnished throughout in one day. Estimates and Plans submitted free. Illustrated post-free on application.
J. MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.
Near Pantheon, although in the same line of business.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS!
CARPETS!!
Stout Brussels for Bed-rooms, 1s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Hearthrug Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard.
Best Brussels for Dining-rooms, 3s. 9d. per yard.
500 pieces of Kidderminster, 2s. 3d. per yard.
Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.
Tottenham-court-road, 145, Piccadilly, and 143, Regent-street, W.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requires no calendering, is both elegant and serviceable.—T. MAPLE and CO. have now in stock a large assortment of this article, suitable for Curtains or Covering for Sofas, Chairs, &c., at moderate prices.

THE FURNISHING OF BED-ROOMS.
T. MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.
T. MAPLE, having greatly enlarged their premises, for the purpose of fitting up Bed-rooms, have now completed the whole of the alterations. They have now Ten separate Rooms, each completely furnished with Bedsteads, Bedding, Carpets, Curtains, Chintz Furniture, Dressing-tables, Glasses, Toilet Ware, &c., which they invite the public to view. Two large ground-floor Show-rooms; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete display of Bed-room Furniture ever submitted to the public.
Head and Sons, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have always in Stock from Six to Eight Suites of Bed-room Furniture, ready for immediate use, but each one different in style and price.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

GOTHIC BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, having been frequently asked for Bed-room Furniture in accordance with the Mediæval Revival, have much pleasure in now so frequently stated, have manufactured complete suites of Bed-room Furniture in the Gothic style, and have now on view a large selection of the leading patterns, in Polished Pine and Pine stained, of Bedsteads and Pine large ground-floor Show-rooms; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete display of Bed-room Furniture ever submitted to the public.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

IRON AND BRASS BEDSTEADS.
HEAL and SON have now on Show 130 Bedsteads, in their Ground-floor Show-rooms, and the stock exists of 500 Bedsteads, so that they can supply, at a short notice, the shortest notice—Heal and Son, Bed-room Furniture Manufactory, 196, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of BEDDING, sent by post, free. All the Bedding manufactured at Heal and Son's Factories, together with Mattresses, Quilts, Blankets, Sheets, &c., is marked in plain figures at the lowest possible price for Cash.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE.
Tottenham-court-road, W. Cottages, Parlours, Chintzes, &c., of Tottenham-court-road, W. Curtains, Portières, Chintzes, &c., of Tottenham-court-road, W. Dining-room Carpets, &c., of Tottenham-court-road, W.

PATENT SPRING PILLOWS.—These Pillows are strongly recommended by the Medical Profession as the best remedy for sleeplessness. Sold by all Bedding Manufacturers. Wholesale only of the Patentee, 3, Bridge-street, Blackfriars. To be had of W. M. HAYDON and CO., 1, Maddox-street, Regent-street, Manufacturers of Spring Mattresses and Bedding.

TO LADIES. — GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES for ornamenting flower glasses, 18 stamps per set of 12 LEAVES; or 2 sets for 30 stamps. Sold by all Stationers.—W. F. THOMAS and CO., Patentees, 2, Seymour-street, W.

SEWING-MACHINES.—Price Model 1865.—These Machines are the best and cheapest now offered. For Family Use or Trade and Manufacturers, they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. Hemming, hem, frill, hem, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, fell, and embroider, are only some of the many uses to which they are unsurpassed. Complete with all the latest improvements, and Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
Bankers to the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, &c.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £100,000.
Head Office—Auckland.
Auckland | Dunedin | Napier | Queenstown
Akaroa | Nelson | Wellington | Queenstown
Blenheim | New Plymouth | Picton | Tokomairiro
Christchurch | Ngaruawahia | Preston Creek | Waikouaiti
Clyde | Onehunga | Russell | Wanganui
Coromandel | Opotiki | Sale | Wellington
Eskdale | Riverton | Manchuria | Whitestone
Gisborne | Taranaki | Shortland | Woodville
This Bank grants drafts on any of the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with the Colonies. The Bank receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be ascertained on application.
F. LARKWORTHY,
No. 30, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. Managing Director.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the pure juice of the grape. Very delicate, rich, and much superior to our ordinary Sherry. Can be drunk at a guinea the gallon. A genuine fine old Wine, recommended by Dr. Lyon Playfair, M.P., Dr. Hassall, Dr. Normandy, &c. Sold only in bottles, at 36s. per dozen, by the Sole Importer, Henry Brett, Grand Hotel Chambers, Charing-cross, London, W.C. Established 1841.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. V. COGNAC BRANDY.—The Extraordinary Merits of these Wines have at last found Royalty. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very old. Sold in bottles at 42s. per dozen, and in cases containing two gallons, 21s. each, by Wine Merchants in England; or wholesale at 2, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, cork, and wrapper. Kinahan's LL Whisky.

ALSOPP'S PALE ALE.—THE OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in Hogsheads, Barrels, Kilderkins, and Bottles, by ALSOPP, ALLSOPP, ALSOPP, and CO., 61, Pall-mall, London, S.W.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
The best aliment for Breakfast.
Yellow wrapper ..... 1s. 6d. per lb.
Brown dittо ..... 2s. 0d. „
Blue dittо ..... 2s. 6d. „
Red dittо ..... 3s. 0d. „
Flavoured with Vanilla.
Green wrapper ..... 2s. 6d. per lb.
Yellow dittо ..... 3s. 0d. „
Brown dittо ..... 4s. 0d. „
Blue dittо ..... 5s. 0d. „
Sold in ½ lb. packets, by all respectable Dealers.
Chocolat-Menier, 19, Rue Caumartin, Paris.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S ROCK COCOA, or PREPARATIVE COCOA,
in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is prepared, have rendered it a favourite with Invalids and those suffering from Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Breakfast or Supper Cups, and is highly recommended by Medical Men.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAM DRAWS, an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, prepared according to public fancy.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing demand for FRY'S Pure and Soluble Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of manufactured Cocoa.
Few articles of confectionery embrace so many attributes of excellence as Chocolate and eating, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who appreciate the delicate and the perfection and nourishing.

BROWN AND POLSON'S PATENT CORN FLOUR
FOR PUDDINGS, BLANCMANGE, &c.
Light Suppers,
OSWEGO
PREPARED CORN
Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.,
Are pronounced Perfection. Vide Medical Testimonials.
T. KINGSFORD and SON,
Oswego Mills, Jersey City, New York.
It is the original proposition from the farina of maize, established its value in the estimation of the public, and is now the only article made in the manufacture of which the public can rely.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
It is the only one that received golden stage, and not the chalk white produced by deleterious processes.
KEEN, ROBINSON, DELVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1862. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation of oats for making gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and highly nutritious.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli, Her Majesty's late Maître-d'Hôtel, and which is excellent for mothers nursing and has long been used with great success in cases of infantile disorders.
KEEN, ROBINSON, DELVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742.
Prize Medal, 1862.
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for upwards of a century, and is the only Mustard manufactured for the purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that have obtained for it the favour of the public for so long a period are guaranteed to be preserved under the most Family dressing in canisters of 1 lb., and 4 lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, DELVILLE, and CO., London.

PURITY and EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMAN'S PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD
Is pronounced by the Lancet, Medical Times, and Gazette to be the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition of 1851.
Purveyors to H.M. the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. They "groates" and "desire negatives" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town and village in the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 96, Cannon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained
International Exhibition, 1862, 1844.
Reports—"Excellent," "Pure," "Very Productive."
PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or, pure in use," writes Mr. Bisley, Schoolmaster, Ramsey, Isle of Man, of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL. It is the purest and most pleasant to take ever used. Sold in Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Druggists. Wholesale, by Barclay, Sons, and Edwards, 95, Farringdon-street.

BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING-INK is by far the best for marking household linen, wearing apparel, &c. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, and Perfumers. Manufactory, 33, Southampton-row, Russell-square. Trade mark, Signature, and Address, "Bond's Marking-ink, 33, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London," engraved on the Stamp. Sold wholesale, 33, Southampton-row, Russell-square, and retail by all Chemists, Stationers, and Perfumers.

DEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE and LOZENGES.—Pepsine is the digestive principle of the gastric juice, and is extracted from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the pig. Pepsine is identical with the digestive principle of the human stomach. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s. 6d., 6s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 5s. each.

A GREAT REMEDY.—All Diseases of the Skin, Scrofula, Scurvy, Ulcers, Boils, ROWLAND'S KALYDOR. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers, price 4s. 6d., 8s. 6d., and 21s. per 32 ounces.—ALEX. ROWLAND, 105, High Holborn, London.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Somatic Disorders of every kind, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—74, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT in ARTIFICIAL TEETH, and great Reduction in Price.—Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon Dentist, 3, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole Inventor and Patentee of the Self-Adhesive Atmospheric Upper Set, requiring no fastening whatever. The value of this invention will be appreciated by every one naturally sensitive, and who has suffered from the ordinary method of fastening. They are self-adhesive, and render support to the adjoining teeth. Consultations Free. Observe—No connection with anyone of the name.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
now opened.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.
STEEL, FIRESIDE, FENDERS, and the LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Silks, 14 yards, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Silks, 14 yards, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Gros de Suez, all the new colours.
Patterns for Inspection.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Best Spitalfields Make, 42 in. wide, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns of Rich Black Silks, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS
A large assortment of Useful Patterns, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s. 6d.
Black Gros Grain Silks, 42 in. wide, for 1l. 1s. 6d.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DRESSES.—PATTERNS FREE.
Double Mohairs, Checked and Plain.
Very useful Fabrics, suitable for the year.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Linen Damasks, Diapers, Towels, Doylies.
Huckaback Towels, Linen and Cotton, and Waterproof for Wear.

SEWELL and CO.
beg to inform LADIES that their made-up Linen is now replete with all the Novelties for the coming Season.
Chemises, 4s. 6d.
THE NEW FLEUR DE LYS SHIRT.
Warranted to wear.
GENAPPES in all widths, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
Plain and Fancy Cambrics, and Glace Cloths in great variety.
S. and Co. beg to call special attention to their Tailor-made
COMPTOIR SHIRTS, Prize-medal, Sole-square.

COMPTOIR MOIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of these Fashionable Fabrics in London, from 1s. 6d. per yard. Patterns sent free.
Prize-medal Stock, Sole-square, Knightsbridge.

NEW GLASS, DRESS FABRICS, &c.
GRANT and GASK invite the inspection of their large collection of new French Fancy SILKS, rich Antiques, Satin Striped Glacés, Checked and Striped Poplins, Mantilla Cloths, Shawls, Evening Dresses, Organdie Muslins, &c.
Patterns sent free of rich Silk Dresses, and Dress Lengths, from 1l. to 2l. 10s. Full Dress of 14 yards; greatly under value.
The Model Dress, 1l. 1s. Patterns free.
The Model Mantle, 1l. 1s. Illustrations sketches of Novelties of Novelties for the Season.
Grant and Gask, 134, 136, 138, and 140, Oxford-street, W.

SPECIAL.—Purchasers of French Millinery, every shop, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d., should visit the Show-rooms.
Several hundred pieces of French Brilliantines and Printed Cambrics, from 6½d. per yard, worth 1s.
PATTERNS FORWARDED FREE.
58, 59, 60, 61, and 62, Chancery-lane, Holborn-street, London.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Prince of Wales,
Have always in Stock
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Travelling Jackets, Shawls, and Hose, Scotch Tweeds of every description, Lambs' Wool Shirts, and Hose, Scarfs, Plaid Ties, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Dresses, Flannels, and Blankets.
James Locke and Co., 18, Dorrgall-place, Belfast.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
Patterns free.
Fish Napkins, 2s. 6d. per dozen.
soft forward, and good, 3s. 6d. per dozen.
Double Damask Table Cloths, 2 yards square, 3s. 6d. each.
Double Damask Table Cloths, 2½ yards square, 4s. 11d. each.
Strong Huckaback Towels, 1s. per pair.
Fine Huckaback Towels, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Linen, Lace, Cambrics, Handkerchiefs, &c.
Patterns free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make and finish, ready-made, or made from stock dimensions. Nightdresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Prize-books by post on application.—"PARISIENNE," WHITELEY'S, Queen's-road, Bayswater, W.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 8s. 6d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, and guaranteed to wear well. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., 61, Ludgate-hill, Manufacturers of Silks, Velvets, and most newly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Ludgate-hill, Manufacturers of Silks, Velvets, and Satins.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865.
A large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Oxford Shirtings, 3s. 6d. each, or 6 for 20s. Patterns free.—R. FORD and CO., 38, Poultry, and 67, Cornhill, E.C.; 11, Old Bond-street, W.; London.

SMITH'S PATENT ROYAL SYMMETRICAL STAYS (Patent No. 1,228, dated May 24, 1864).—The enlarged newly give Notice that on the 31st day of February, 1865, they will cease to manufacture Stays on the old principle. The Royal Symmetrical Stays will be made only at the Old Stand, the manufacture of Hagg, and lately used by Mr. Aaron Solomons, of Hanover-square, Mr. Hutchinson, of Bond-street, Messrs. Jones, London, and elsewhere; and that legal proceedings will be taken against any one infringing the Patent, or using the name of the trade mark. Dated this 13th day of March, 1865.
(Signed) JAMES SMITH.
(Signed) JAMES SMITH.

MADAME RACHEL'S CIRCASSIAN BEAUTY POWDER, and CIRCASSIAN GOLDEN HAIR WASH, can only be had genuine of MADAME RACHEL.

DIAMOND HAIR DUST. PIESSE and LUBIN. Price 9s. 6d. free; by post, 4d. extra. Sprinkling Diamond Hair Dust on the hair produces a beautiful and fascinating effect.
Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street.

THE CONGRESS OF FLOWERS, PIESSE and LUBIN'S, 2, New Bond-street, leads all at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL.—This Oil is the most effectual remedy for Restoring, Preserving, Beautifying, and Promoting the Growth of the Human Hair, and beautifying the Human Hair. Its invaluable properties have been fully proved by the test of many years, and it is now in universal and deserved favour. Price 3s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d. (equal to four small), per bottle. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for "ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL," and see that the name of "ROWLAND and SON" is on the wrapper.

LUXURIANT WHISKERS or MOUSTACHES.—My Formula, or useful calendar for the Toilet, containing Hints on the Growth, Preservation, and Restoration of the Hair, Whiskers, and Moustache, sent free for half-a-dozen stamps.—Mr. FOX, Chemist, Macclesfield, Cheshire.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Ladies and Gentlemen desirous of disposing of their Wardrobes, Jewellery, Furniture, &c., are informed that Mr. and Mrs. DAVIS, of Hertford-street, Oxford-street, W., attend personally for that purpose. Letters promptly attended to.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Parcels Business waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. DAVIS, 46, Hertford-street, Oxford-street, W. Parents being sent, their Sons taken remitted. Established 1760.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. H. STAR, 30, Bank-street, Bayswater, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value to each instantly remitted. Established 1808.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY MARCH 25, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1308. — VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, APRIL 1, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

POOR-LAW REFORMS.

WHEN the doctrine that "property has its duties as well as its rights" was first announced to the world as a practical political principle, it created quite a startling sensation amongst the owners of real estate. They stood aghast as though they had seen a "wraith." Within considerably less than a generation the principle has come to be looked upon as self-evident, and many a princely proprietor has smiled at his former spasm of apprehension. The whole matter has been better understood since the extreme penalty of the law was executed upon the system of protection. To do the landowners justice, it must be admitted that the maxim by which they were so much affrighted was but a palpable embodiment of an abstraction, the force of which they had long felt and largely yielded to without caring to ascertain its exact nature. They had not altogether neglected the duties which their possession of property devolved upon them, although they had discharged them as of choice rather than of obligation. The law of good feeling moved them long before they had a notion that they were under law to justice. Some of them, rejoicing to yield obedience to that "law unto themselves" whose authority with regard to doing what they would with their own they exclusively recognised, were really the best de facto exemplars of the principle which they repudiated de jure. Others, constituting, perhaps, the large majority, did, by inclination, enough of what would have been required of them by duty to be regarded as an unconscious recognition of the claims of the latter, but also left undone enough to bring under suspicion of inadequacy the voluntary motive upon which they professed to act. A few, pushing their rights to the extremest limits, held themselves at liberty to receive their rents and spend them, without the remotest reference to the well-being of those who produced or who paid them, and acted consistently with the views they held. Public opinion almost instantly ratified the validity of the principle which, in effect, gave outward and visible form to an already widely-diffused, although latent, feeling, and the legislation of the present day proceeds upon this reasonable basis.

As was to have been expected, the application of the above-stated principle touches most directly and closely the interests of the labouring poor, manufacturing as well as agricultural. It has already placed the former in a much more favourable position, in several particulars, than that which they occupied five-and-twenty years ago; it has also, to a slight extent, ameliorated the lot of the latter. It is slowly working out advantageous results for both, against obstructions more powerful in the case of the peasant than of the operative. But the inherent energy of the doctrine promises, little by little, to force for itself a full development, and, finally, to snap asunder all those artificial restrictions by which the agricultural labourer is confined within a circumscribed area of employment, has needless additions made to his daily toil which was sufficiently severe without them, and is exposed to perhaps the most potent cause of demoralisation, crime, and irreligion.

The Law of Settlement—somewhat relaxed a comparatively short time since, and no doubt deemed, although we think mistakenly deemed, a breakwater against the encroachments of pauperism upon property—operates with fearful effect upon the condition of the agricultural poor. The law, as it stands, charges the maintenance of such persons as cannot maintain themselves by their own labour upon the parish wherein they were born, unless they have resided in some other parish during a period of three years. In many ways, men as honest as the day and as industrious as the laws of Nature will admit of, but standing upon the very verge of pauperism all their lives, and, unless prematurely cut off, almost certain of being forced, at some time or other, temporarily or permanently, across the line which separates it from independence, suffer constant disadvantage in consequence of this law. They are looked upon by the parochial ratepayers and officers much in the same light as that in which indirect pecuniary liabilities are regarded by all who are subject to them. Legal security, as it were, has been taken of the parish pledging it to prevent any of its parishioners from perishing of want. Of course, every parish will aim at having as few liabilities of this kind as possible. It will in numerous instances contrive that births of the class out of which pauperism may be expected shall not take place within its bounds. It will take every precaution against settlements being acquired therein by three years' residence. It will have no more cottage accommodation than it can help, and will rather diminish what it has than allow it to keep pace with the growth of population. It will look with jealous discouragement upon all new comers, and, if called upon to give support to casual poor, will shift them, without much regard to the suffering which removal may entail, as quickly as circumstances will allow to their own parish.

REMAINS OF H.M.S. RACEHORSE, WRECKED IN THE GULF OF PE-CHE-LI, NORTH CHINA.—SEE PAGE 321.

The grievous hardships inflicted upon the labourers themselves by the Law of Settlement are even more conspicuous than the ill effects it has a tendency to produce in the disposition of landowners, ratepayers, and overseers. Wherever the parish is close—that is, wherever the property it comprises is held by a single proprietor, or by so small a number of proprietors as can be bound by unity of purpose—the possibility exists of getting the whole agricultural labour of the parish done without housing a single labourer. And an approach to this result is made in practice. The men who hold the plough, and sow the grain, and mend the fences, and reap the crops, and thrash the corn, in any given area, may be, and in many cases are, obliged to walk daily to and from the spot which they work a distance of four, five, or even six miles, because no cottage residence is allowed within the parish. In the neighbouring parish to which the poor drudges are driven for house-shelter every available hut and cabin and outhouse is similarly compelled to herd together promiscuously, men, women, and children. Parishioners thrown out of work by causes for which they may or may not be responsible dread to seek it at any considerable distance from the parish upon which they have a claim, lest they should fall into pauperism where they have no legal right to assistance.

Mr. Villiers, President of the Poor-Law Board, has justly deemed the matter one which cried aloud for remedial legislation. By the provisions in his Union Chargeability Bill, read a second time on Monday last, after an exhaustive debate, he seeks to apply a simple but effective remedy to the evils we have recorded. By the law, as it now stands, each new administration of relief to the poor is managed by a board of guardians acting on behalf of a number of parishes comprised in a union; and all the establishment charges, as well as those incurred by the maintenance of the able-bodied poor resident, belong to about half the entire sum expended under the poor law—are borne by the union fund, which is created by equitable rates upon taxable property within the area of the union. Upon this common fund, instead of upon separate parishes, Mr. Villiers proposes to fix the whole charge of relief; or, in other words, to make the area of relief coincide with the area of management. If the bill becomes law, the entire burden of providing for the destitute within the limits of the union will bear in equal proportion upon the whole rateable property in the union, and will not, as heretofore, be distributed unequally over separate parishes according to the number of resident paupers, or recipients of relief, in each parish.

The measure will get rid of a large amount of litigation between parish and parish. It will open a much wider sphere to the labouring poor within which to seek employment without endangering their claim to support in case of necessity. It will do away with the chief motive for making close parishes. It will operate towards the distribution of cottage accommodation in proportion to the labour required in each locality. It will tend to scare for industry and sobriety the pre-eminence which is their natural reward, and will enable the farmer to select his workpeople on account of their ability to do his work, instead of with the view of keeping down the poor-rate assessment. It strikes us as a just, simple, practical, and statesman-like measure of poor-law reform; and, so regarding it, we are glad that its principle was affirmed in the House of Commons by a large majority.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Marquis de Lavalette has been created Minister of the Interior in the place of M. Boudet, who has resigned, and who has been made a Senator.

On Monday M. Emile Ollivier, who was so long one of the famous Opposition of five, made a speech in the Corps Législatif which may be accepted as a final resignation of his old position. Speaking of the late elections, he said that he saw in them the expression of the wishes of the whole country, which could not be mistaken. He does not, however, wish for revolution, but for peace and liberty. The speaker had resigned with the Left, but he had resigned as they were identical with his own. M. Ollivier preferred social and individual liberty to political liberty, and desired greater freedom for the press, for parliament, for meetings. He also expressed that the Ministers should be held responsible, and entreated the Government not to remain in its present position, but to prepare men capable of succeeding those now in power by surrounding itself with the youth of the nation—men who were neither soured, embittered and perverted by idleness and bad passions. M. Ollivier maintained that Governments fell, not because they were weak, but because they do not know how to yield at the right moment, and said what I ask be granted," he said, in conclusion, "I shall support the Government, whatever wish being in the interest of France."

In Tuesday's sitting M. Gouzeau eulogised the speech of M. Emile Ollivier and said he wished with all his heart that the Government would accept it, which he said that political should precede administrative liberty. He would not refuse freedom to Poland and Italy if it were possible to give it to them; but he wished, before all, for liberty in France. He demanded political liberty, upon which all others depend; and said that in all affairs of State the country should be consulted before and not after, matters had been settled. M. Thiers also asked that the press should be made dependent upon justice only, and demanded Ministerial responsibility. He concluded by saying that a nation which gives liberty to the world cannot always be deprived of it. Providence was too just for such to be the case. M. Thuillier, on behalf of the Government, commented on the speech of M. Thiers, and said, "The word liberty has several significations, it signifies also the opposition. There exists a liberty which fructifies and a liberty which destroys. The present form of government is better than a Parliamentary administration. Some would have an English king—a king who does not govern, France, however, does not wish this. She desires a Sovereign who can wield the sword while reigning over and governing France. Let us pray to God long to preserve his life." M. Thuillier's speech was received with applause.

A pamphlet appeared recently in Paris, under the title of "Les Propos de Labienus," the subject being a conversation between two Romans, Gallienus and Labienus, the latter of whom, after a long exile, passed to have just appeared. The cloak under which the personality of the Emperor was veiled rather deceived the vigilance of espionage, and the satire too biting not to be put a stop to. The author, M. Rogeard, commenced his attack by a bitter denunciation of the spirit of appeasance, to five years' imprisonment and 5000f. fine. The printer, in whose house the incriminating circumstance occurred, was condemned to one month's imprisonment and 500f. fine.

The Moniteur has published a very warning on account of its recent statement about a sharp interchange of words between the Pope and the French ambassador.

The Moniteur publishes a revised tariff of the price to be paid for substitutes in case of reluctance to serve in the ranks when drawn for conscription. The current figure for which is fixed at 2300f., while soldiers already under arms can redeem their period of service by payment of 500f. for every year yet remaining unexpired of their regulation term.

The Emperor has decided that the building for the Exhibition of 1867 is to be raised on the ground belonging to the MM. Perrier, at the top of the Boulevard Lafayette.

The most sumptuous public café, probably, which exists in the world was opened last Saturday evening to the multitudes who waited to flock into it, under the handsome roofs of iron constructed by the French Jockey Club at the corner of the Rue Scribe and the Boulevard des Italiens. It is called the Grand Café, and its proprietors far exceed in style and costliness anything which has been before attempted in a similar establishment. The whole of the ground floor has been executed on the circular ceilings and elsewhere, by artists of celebrity—M. Baudry, Lenepveu, Jalabert, Yvon, and Giraud, it is stated that in this and other establishments about £40,000 has been expended. The prices are to be moderate, and certain privileges are to be given to ladies and for eating ices; and in another saloon an American buffet is specially provided. Such a luxurious description ace to be had. The establishment is called Le Grand Café, and it is to be open for some both as regards dimensions and decorations.

The Moniteur of yesterday published the text of the treaties of commerce and navigation concluded between France and Sweden.

ITALY.

M. Truy, Vice-Consul of France at Callao, has been appointed Chevalier of the Legion of Honour, in recognition of his courageous conduct during a popular rising against the Spaniards.

ITALY.

The majority of the financial committee of the Chamber of Deputies have declared in favour of the loan and the other Ministerial projects. The only opposition will be given to the proposed modification of the existing stamp and registration laws.

The Senate on Monday rejected all the amendments proposed to the new civil code. It appears that the 1000 millions of francs worth of taxes until the Budget for 1865 shall have been voted.

Massimo d'Azeglio has written a letter to the Gazzetta Italiana, in which he affirms that "There exists in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs a scroll of Italian origin, which, if published, would cover Italy with blood and filth." This scroll contains a secret protocol appended to the convention of September, 1864, and is signed by Minghetti. The Italian Government undertakes to abstain from any enterprise upon Venetia, and to exercise a vigilance which, if necessary, might be attempted by the party of action or others. If unforeseen events should arise which would compel the Government to give either Rome or Venice to Italy, restitution of frontiers will be made to France, and Savoy and Nice will be separated from the River Sesia, which would be considered as the frontier of Piedmont. The protocol was signed on behalf of the Minister Visconti Venosta and another person." None will require to be told that the publication of this scroll would be a most valuable information. But he asks Italians to recollect that he revealed, a year before the fact, the existence of a secret article in the treaty annexed to the Gazzetta Italiana the substance of the convention of Sept. 15" has been known even to the most ignorant for a year.

In the Chamber of Deputies, on Thursday week, a question was put to the Ministry by Signor Ferrari, Germana respecting the alleged secret treaty. The General, in reply, expressed surprise at seeing even at the present given to these absurd rumours, and energetically denied them. Signor Ferrari declared himself satisfied with the explanation of the accusation. The assertion that it was intended to cede to France Nice and Savoy was a calumny, and he thanked the Minister for what he was "an absurd calumny."

In a Consistory, held in Rome on Monday, the Pope approved the nomination of twenty-four Bishops.

A grand banquet given to General M'Clellan has been given at Rome by the Russian representative in that city. All the foreign Generals visiting Rome on leave were present at the entertainment. Many friendly relations between Russia and the United States.

Two bands of Neapolitan brigands, wearing uniforms and supplied with arms and ammunition, have crossed into Sicily from the interior. They have carried desolation into the provinces of Palermo and Vallelo. A considerable force has been sent after them. Prefect Pica de Prossicone, having fallen into the hands of the marauders, was compelled to pay 50,000f. ransom. The Neapolitan Press, in connection with the Italian soldiers, have adopted vigorous measures to extirpate the brigands.

SPAIN.

The Epoca of Wednesday says the Minister of War has tendered his resignation. It is asserted that Marshal Concha will be forced to replace him. Marshal Narvaez will probably retain the portfolio of the various Ministries.

The Congress of yesterday week passed, by a considerable majority, the bill relating to the conversion of several millions of reals by the anticipatory payment of taxes.

PRUSSIA.

On Thursday week the War Minister spoke menacingly. He declared that until now the Government had held fast to the Constitution, and that it would continue to do so still, even under the most disturbed state of things. For that purpose you must co-operate with the Government, and by your votes on the Budget show that you no longer be one of rights but of existence. Make your choice."

On Tuesday the Chamber resumed the debate on the general proposals of the Finance Committee, and also the additional motions brought forward by the Left. The Budget of millions of reals by the anticipatory payment of taxes.

PRUSSIA.

On Thursday week the War Minister spoke menacingly. He declared that until now the Government had held fast to the Constitution, and that it would continue to do so still, even under the most disturbed state of things. For that purpose you must co-operate with the Government, and by your votes on the Budget show that you no longer be one of rights but of existence. Make your choice."

On Tuesday the Chamber resumed the debate on the general proposals of the Finance Committee, and also the additional motions brought forward by the Left. The Budget of millions of reals by the anticipatory payment of taxes.

AUSTRIA.

A conference took place, on Tuesday week, between the majority of the Lower House of the Reichsrath and Baron von Schmerling, the Minister of Interior, for the purpose of ascertaining if the majority could not make any further reduction in the Budget. Should, however, the Reichsrath reject the proposed reductions, the Ministry would leave it to the Emperor to take what steps he deemed fit for the welfare of his realm.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Lower House, Herr von Plener, the Minister of Finance, and Herr von Schmerling, the Minister of State, answered the attacks directed by the Opposition against the Government. Herr von Plener assured the House that he would submit to the Reichsrath the statement of the whole deficit as soon as he should have provided for the deficits of 1865 and 1866. He also announced financial operations by which he would be enabled to meet, not only the general necessities of the State, but also its obligations towards the Austrian National Bank during both years (1865 and 1866). Herr von Schmerling said:—"The assertion of the Opposition that our army maintains peace because we possess a real power and have no credit cannot in my opinion be accepted. Even in Prussia, where a conflict exists between the Government and the Chambers, nobody would advise the Government to relinquish the position of the country as a great Power." Herr von Schmerling further stated that the convocation of the Hungarian Diet depended upon the acceleration of the labours of the Reichsrath. He asked the members to tweak the convocation of the lesser Reichsrath, in order that they might be convinced how much the Government intended to develope the constitutional institutions of the country. In conclusion, he said, "Let us be faithful to the Emperor and to the Constitution, but also faithful to our duty."

In Wednesday's sitting several members of the Lower House severely condemned the policy of alliance with Prussia. Some speakers even accused the Government to establish from thy relations with Italy.

The following proclamation has been issued in Lemberg, in Polish and German:—"I command the troops of the Imperial Institute of Artillery, to be ordered—1. That on and after the 18th of April next the state of siege in the province of Galicia and Cracow shall be raised, and that the exceptional measures taken to carry out such a state of siege shall cease from that day. 2. That proceedings against civilians pending on the said 18th of April next shall be transferred to the competent civil courts. Those of the sentences passed upon civilians by the military courts prior to that date shall, however, be referred to the consideration of the chief military tribunals."

GERMANY.

An extraordinary sitting of the Federal Diet was held on Monday, at which it was resolved by nine against six votes that the discussion of the proposal of Bavaria in favour of the claims of the Duke of Augustenburg should take place on Thursday next, the 6th inst.

AMERICA.

We have intelligence from New York to the 19th ult.

President Davis has sent to the Confederate Congress a message in which he stated that further and more energetic legislation was required, as the country was environed with perils, and Richmond in greater danger than it had been during the war. The militia have needed mobilization, and a suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act and martial law would be necessary. The measures recommended by him were adopted, and if the Congress and people co-operated, the South would enter upon the campaign with elsewhere good prospects. Lee is the result. General Grant, the message said, had refused to meet General Lee in the capacity of a military commissioner for peace. The North would accept only abject and unconditional submission, and the South had no choice but to continue the contest to its final issue. With 2,000,000 lbs. of cotton annual export Georgia and South Carolina could be supplied for the remainder of the year; and President Davis recommended measures for making all coin within the Confederacy available for the uses of the Treasury, and for the suspension of all other taxation for repleishment of the Confederate Treasury; and for the impressment of provisions and stores. The Habeas Corpus Act had been temporarily sojourned; and it may be presumed that the bills required by President Davis had been passed.

General Lee, in an order to the army commanding an observance of the 4th of March (the day of President Davis's inauguration for a fast) as a day of fasting and prayer, tells his soldiers that God had given victory to them, and appears of the present time as one of trouble, contrasting it with the days when God delivered Israel from their enemies.

The James River canal is being repaired, and President Davis has called upon the farmers to aid in the work. Vigorous efforts are being made at Richmond to collect additional troops, and all slaves able to bear arms have been draughted into the service. President Lincoln has made a speech in which he declared that the Government would stand out as long as they could draw upon the last branch of their resources, and would be replaced in power for a year.

General Sherman was gradually continuing his forward movement. After occupying Fayetteville, he crossed Cape Fayetteville, which he reached and took possession of on the 12th ult. General Slocum reached Cheraw, and Sherman, having in his front at a moderate distance, General Sherman's advance was only encountered by a few cavalry. For the latter cavalry under Hampton attacked Kilpatrick inflicting on him great loss in men, horses, and ammunition. According to Sherman's official account, Kilpatrick in his turn attacked Hampton, and recovered all he had lost. Fort Anderson, commanding the approaches to Wilmington had been opened, so that Sherman at the former place had a secure base.

While Sherman was thus marching through the centre of the Carolinas, General Schofield was making his way from Wilmington to Kinston. In front of the latter place his advance seems to have been checked by Hoke's division, which had some loss in prisoners. Next day, however, Schofield's main body came up, and Hoke's forces actually were repulsed with great loss to him. He retreated on Kinston and afterwards to Goldsboro. At Kinston the Federals took a ton and a large quantity of stores. The place was occupied by the Federals.

General Sheridan reports his arrival at Fredericksburg Railway, crossing the South Anna River on the 14th ult. He encountered no damage the Junna River Canal to Goodland, whence he turned northward and destroyed the railroad to Richmond. At Ashland Central Railway Bridge the Confederates attempted resistance, but were driven off, losing 200 prisoners.

Mobile despatches of the 14th ult. state that the city was strongly menaced; twenty miles of the enemy's vessels were in sight. Great activity prevailed among the troops in the Lower Bay. Martial law commands the inhabitants to prepare for an attack, and has ordered a non-combatants to leave.

Baton Rouge despatches of the 8th report the Confederate General Forrest at Macon, Georgia, with 15,000 cavalry, by which he was daily receiving additions.

The Jersey Senate has rejected the constitutional amendment.

Gold, on the 18th ult., was quoted at New York at 165.

The breakage of the dam on the Susquehanna and other rivers by sudden thaw has caused the inundation of the districts along their courses, and millions of dollars' worth of property is estimated to have been destroyed. The petroleum districts in Pennsylvania have suffered to the greatest extent.

The Finance Minister announces that the Government must maintain the peace at all hazards, and is prepared to see the war last, and fulfil their obligations as good neighbours to the United States.

INDIA.

Bhootan has broken out afresh, and our troops have suffered at Dewangiri. The force was compelled to retire from it after severe fighting, and with considerable loss on our side. Strong reinforcements, including an entire British regiment, have been ordered up to the seat of war. Brigadier-General Tombs commanding at Gwalior, is appointed to the command, and in the Bhootan District, and ordered to join without delay.

Major-General Sir Hugh Chambbtain, at home on sick leave, has tendered his resignation of the command of the Punjaub Irregular Force. The Government of India has placed on the public record an expression of "the highest appreciation of his services."

The Waghees are giving considerable trouble in Kattiawar, plundering, murdering, and defying all authority to subdue them.

The Government of India has sanctioned a grant of two lacs and sixty-five thousand rupees for repairing the damages of the part of Calcutta caused by the cyclone.

His Excellency the Governor of Bombay is still at the Presidency, and the legislative Council is holding its sittings. His Excellency presided at the laying of the foundation-stone of the new Custom-house of the Bombay Cathedral on Feb. 22.

The Bachante Sir Walter Mansfield, with 2218, landed at Kurrachee on Feb. 16, en route for Simla.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The South London Working Classes Industrial Exhibition was closed on Thursday week by the Earl of Shaftesbury.

Arrangements have been made for the unique collection of coins belonging to the Bank of England to be transferred to the care of the British Museum, subject to the right of the Bank, to which they will still belong, to recall them at any time.

The roof of the Ludgate station of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, which has been in the course of construction for some time, fell in on Sunday morning without any warning. Though a good deal of damage was done, no one was hurt.

The first election of twelve infants for the Alexandra Orphanage for Infants took place, at the London Coffee House, on Thursday week, when the Lord Mayor presided. This new charity is under the patronage of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, and promises to be very successful. Among the donors on the day of election was Daniel Sutton, Esq., of Kensington, 100 guineas.

The Committee on Open Spaces and Places of Recreation sat again on Monday. Mr. Locke presided. The evidence taken related exclusively to Wimbledon-common. Mr. Foster, steward of the manor of Wimbledon, was examined, and expressed his approval of Earl Spencer's scheme for the inclosure of the common. The Hon. E. B. Wrottesley said the inhabitants of Putney were unanimous against the scheme. Lord Elcho gave evidence as to the visits of the National Rifle Association to the common, and stated that it was the only place in England suitable for the meetings of the association.

A conversazione of the Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts was held, on Thursday week, at the Dudley Gallery, Piccadilly, which is occupied by the General Exhibition of Water-Colour Drawings. The musical arrangements, conducted by Mr. Alfred Gilbert, were extensive and varied, beginning with a selection from Handel's "Acis and Galatea," and comprising a variety of songs and pieces, which were ably rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Miss Palmer, Mdme. Andrea, Miss Jenny Herbert, and several others. There were also solos on the harp by Herr Oberthur, and on the piano by Mdme. Percy and Mr. Semler. The company was numerous and fashionable.

The treasurer of Guy's Hospital held a conversazione on Tuesday evening, at which a large number of persons eminent in the literary and scientific world were present. Several of the large rooms in the new wing were thrown open and filled with well-selected objects of interest. The magnesium light was shown at intervals, and a photograph of the assembly was taken by its assistance in the course of the evening. A large collection of microscopes and scientific instruments was exhibited. One room was filled with the celebrated anatomical models made for the hospital by Mr. Towne. Brilliant electrical experiments were shown by Mr. Atkinson, and also by Mr. Browning. The photo-micrographs of Dr. Maddox were exhibited on a screen by Mr. How, and the process of photo-micrography by the magnesium light was practically illustrated. About 1500 persons were present, including many ladies and most of the students.

The one hundred and seventh anniversary of the Orphan Working School, Maitland Park, Haverstock-hill, was celebrated, on Wednesday night, at the London Tavern — the Lord Mayor in the chair. About 100 ladies and gentlemen sat down to dinner. The toast of the evening was practically proposed by one of the boys, who recited an ode setting forth the claims of the institution upon public support — claims which were sharply accentuated by the presence of upwards of 300 children, whom it brings up and fits for a life of honest and useful industry. The building is large enough to receive 400 pupils, but additional funds are required before the family can be materially increased. The balance-sheet of last year showed receipts amounting to £9567, out of which a small balance remained in hand. The Lord Mayor expressed his gratification at the good order which he had always found prevailing in the school, the good health of the children, and the valuable results which were found to accrue in most instances from the training they received in the establishment. Subscriptions and donations to the amount of about £1250 were announced.

The births of 2101 children—1091 boys and 1010 girls—were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years 1855-64 the average number (corrected for increase of population) was 2073.—— The deaths in London in the same period were 1634. The average number for the twelfth week in ten years (corrected) is 1471. From zymotic diseases 299 persons died, smallpox proved fatal in ten cases, thirty-four deaths occurred from scarlatina, and twelve from diphtheria. Ninety-three children died from whooping-cough. Typhus was not so fatal as in the previous week, the number declining from eighty-five to fifty-three. The deaths during the week from diseases of the respiratory organs (exclusive of phthisis) were 417. From bronchitis 265 deaths occurred. Eighty-three persons died from pneumonia and twenty-nine from asthma. Phthisis proved fatal to 160 persons.—— In the week that ended last Saturday the births in London and nine other cities of the United Kingdom were 3930; the deaths, 3091. The annual rate of mortality in the week in those ten towns was twenty-nine per 1000 persons living, and greater than in the previous week, when it was twenty-eight.

THE ISLAND OF HAYTI, WEST INDIES.

In our Impression of the 11th ult. we published a view of the port of Jacmel, in Hayti, and also one of the landing-place at Jacmel, with two or three quaint-looking figures in military costume, who were the non-commissioned officer and soldiers on guard. These Illustrations were sent us, with a brief descriptive account, by a gentleman well known both to ourselves and to the public, who happened to have visited Jacmel, as well as other parts of the West Indies, towards the end of last year, on his way to take the superintendence of an important public work in Central America. We stated this at the time; but we have since received a very long letter, with the signature of "An Haytian," insinuating a denial of the authenticity of our Illustrations, and disputing the accuracy of our correspondent's account of Haytian affairs. As nine tenths of the statements in the "Haytian's" letter have no direct bearing upon the matters referred to in our descriptive notice, we do not see the necessity for printing his letter in these columns. The only matter in which, so far as the "Haytian" has yet informed us, it must perhaps be admitted that our correspondent has fallen into an error, relates to the value of Haytian coffee, which seems not to be of so poor a quality as our correspondent believed, since "it is quoted generally immediately after those of Ceylon and Java, and sells in the French market for near 100f. (£4) the fifty kilogrammes." Our correspondent further remarked, that the port of Jacmel, formerly a place of much importance and still the centre of the trade of a large district, is now "in a very dilapidated condition." This statement is confirmed by the "Haytian," who says that, "if the port of Jacmel has no longer the flourishing aspect which it formerly had, it is owing to numerous fires, which have destroyed its most wealthy quarters." Again, our correspondent regretted the existence of some restrictions upon foreign commerce. In answer to this, we are assured by the "Haytian," that "the laws on customs and foreign patents are more liberal than ever, and natives are quite as much subject to them as foreigners." It is impossible for us to say, in the absence of more specific information, how far the actual administration of the Government of Hayti is guided by a liberal commercial policy. The allegation that "no white man is allowed to possess real property" is not denied; and this, we presume, is one cause which must prevent the investment of foreign capital in the cultivation of Haytian produce. We need not follow the "Haytian" through his narrative of the history of the island since the establishment of its political independence under Dessalines, in 1804. It is remarkable that he does not even mention the name of a far greater man than Dessalines—the true hero and martyr of Haytian patriotism, Toussaint L'Ouverture, whose memory, beyond all others of the negro race, is esteemed by us in England as the fairest pledge of a higher destiny for that portion of mankind. In our notice of Hayti, the other day, the determined bravery of its inhabitants, as shown in their contests with the French and Spaniards, was fully acknowledged; and we have not withheld our sympathy from the cause, though we might enjoy the humorous aspect of such incongruities of military attire as appeared in the Jacmel sketch.

The Empress of Mexico drives a neat little phaeton drawn by six mules—two in the shafts and four abreast in front.

During the year 1864 the amount of the sums in gold, silver, bank notes, and bills payable to bearer restored by the coachmen of Paris reached 115,005f., independently of a large quantity of jewellery, and other things more or less valuable.

According to the Milan Gazette, the snow has been so deep in the mountains of the canton of St. Gall that in several places tunnels, 13 ft. or 14 ft. high have been cut in the snow for the passage of the cattle to and from the fountain.

The people of Bolton, in Lancashire, have given a very gratifying and well-deserved testimonial of their esteem to Mr. Richard Herweed, the Mayor of that borough for last year. A portrait of that gentleman, with an address signed by five thousand subscribers, was presented to him a few days ago.

The 10-ton 8-inch Mackay gun, made for Government by the Mersey Steel and Iron Works Company, underwent proof successfully at Woolwich on Tuesday, and will now be put on board the Excellent for experiments. The gun was charged with 50 lb. of powder and a 350-pound shot, and bore the shock without the slightest apparent injury.

The Agincourt, a splendid iron-clad frigate, of 6680 tons and 1350-horse power, was floated on Monday from one of the Messrs. Laird's docks at Birkenhead. [We intend to give an Illustration of this vessel next week.] Another iron-clad vessel, of about 5000 tons, has been laid down in the dry dock at Birkenhead from which the Agincourt was floated; and we learn that the Government has completed a contract with another well-known Liverpool shipbuilder for the construction of several light-draught iron gun-boats.

THE STRIKE AND LOCK-OUT IN THE IRON DISTRICTS.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

STAFFORD, Thursday.

In my last letter I dealt merely with the principle of the strike, and took occasion to refer to the past experience of workmen as to the futility of combinations as carried out under the organisation of trades unions. I now proceed to narrate the immediate facts of the case as they have transpired during the past week.

At a meeting of the trades delegates held in London on the 22nd, Mr. Baker, a delegate from North Staffordshire, said—"If the masters would consent to open their works to the men of South Staffordshire, then the men of North Staffordshire were willing to resume their work and leave the question of wages to be settled by arbitration." Captain Roden, chairman to the North Staffordshire committee of ironmasters, recognising this as a conciliatory step on the part of the men, sent a letter to the leading daily journals, in which he said, "assuming that the delegate spoke with authority from the puddlers, I will, upon receiving an official information to that effect, bring the proposal before the ironmasters, and use my influence to endeavour to have it accepted." Baker, on reading this letter, at once telegraphed to his committee to place themselves in communication with Captain Roden, and to inform him that the North Staffordshire men were prepared at once to resume work and submit the wages question to arbitration, provided the ironmasters would at the same time reopen their works and terminate the lock-out. Mr. Potter, chairman of the London trades delegates meeting, telegraphed to Captain Roden assuring him of the unanimous readiness of the men to resume work on the terms offered. At the very time all this was going on, however, the puddlers of North Staffordshire were sending a deputation to Lord Lichfield, who had offered his services to mediate between the masters and their workpeople, to inform his Lordship of their dissent from the language used by their representative. They repudiated his statements and pledges, and denied his authority to make the offer to which he desired to commit them. Lord Lichfield, who, as Lord Lieutenant, is the highest authority in the county of Stafford, received their message, and found, or supposed that in the course of conversation he discovered, that although their words negatived Baker's proposal, their hearts accepted it. He therefore subsequently saw the masters, told them the state of the case, and found them willing to agree to a meeting with the men, under his presidency, though by no means sanguine as to its results. On the 28th ult. a meeting was held at Tunstall, North Staffordshire, from which the following telegram reached Mr. Potter in London:—"The men are appointed to meet the masters to request them to withdraw the lock-out, and then they will submit their case to arbitration." On the same day the following appeared from Captain Roden:—"The North Staffordshire masters met to-day (27th) and confirmed my letter published on Friday last." So far, then, the preliminary arrangements appeared favourable to an amicable termination of this dispute.

Good news arrived concurrently from the north of England. The ironmasters met on the 28th ult. at Darlington. They discussed a resolution passed by the delegates of the men, pledging themselves not to support, either directly or indirectly, the North Staffordshire men during the continuance of the present dispute, and also to sever all connection between their union and those of North and South Staffordshire. This act on the part of the men "was accepted as a solution of the difficulty; but, as they were anxious not to prejudice the Staffordshire masters, they appointed a committee to communicate with them to endeavour to arrange for a simultaneous settlement. Failing this, the Northern masters pledged themselves to reopen their mills on Thursday, the 30th, on the conditions above named."

Those who had an opportunity of ascertaining what transpired at the district committee meeting at Tunstall, called by the men, for the purpose of arranging preliminaries for an interview with the masters in North Staffordshire, entertained less hope than was generally felt of the result of the meeting appointed to be held at Stoke-upon-Trent yesterday, and to which I shall presently come. The principal part of the time was occupied in discussing the mode of and the points for arbitration. This discussion displayed a very strong—nay, decisive—feeling against a return to puddling at wages below 10s. a ton. It was stated, indeed, "that the life of the man would not be safe who should propose such a thing." It is further to be noticed that this spirit is shown in a district where the homes of the people have already been invaded by the terrors of starvation; but, at the same time, it must be said that the men are constantly buoyed up by rumours that one and another of the masters are forsaking their brethren and re-opening their works under pressure of "special circumstances," which in time it is expected will affect them all. So far as I have ascertained their feelings, I find that this period of repose accorded to the iron trade is regarded by the majority of masters as a great relief. They consider it of advantage to them; and, though I can find no heartless disposition to prolong the lock-out on their side, it is probable that they will make no desperate effort to overcome the difficulties that lie in the way of their recommencement just at present. In North Staffordshire there are nine local committees. Three men from each of these bodies met on Tuesday to draw up a statement of their case, to be laid before the masters on Wednesday. It was decided that, if this statement of their case did not induce masters to abstain from the reduction and produce a settlement, an appeal would then be made to arbitration; but that, in this case, a termination of the lock-out in the south would be insisted on as preceding any further step towards negotiation.

Yesterday Lord Lichfield took the chair, in the board-room of the railway station, at Stoke-on-Trent, at twelve o'clock. There were six masters and twenty-four delegates (all workmen) present. Every foreign element having been eliminated from the meeting, the presence of reporters was next rather warmly discussed; and his Lordship, finding that the men were likely to prejudice themselves by an avoidance of publicity, decided in favour of published reports. The case for the men was opened by Elias Samuel, who stated that though it might suit the puddlers of the south to work at 1s. a ton reduction, they were differently circumstanced, and possessed good grounds for standing out. Rents and rates, he affirmed, were higher; their payment to underhands was greater by 4d. a turn, and their "garden privileges" were less. He spoke, too, of a reduction in the quality of Shelton bar-iron, as sent to the puddler, equivalent to a loss of 1s. or 1s. 3d. a turn. Captain Roden, in reply, stated that iron was 20 per cent better than of yore—that it was so much more easy to puddle, that a man who made five heats a turn now makes six. The statements about higher rents and rates were simply denied. Then followed the speeches of several delegates, all attesting to the inferiority of the iron of late years and the much greater time required to puddle it, amongst whom appeared men of considerable age and great experience. The masters, however, confined themselves to showing that, nevertheless, the day's work was frequently finished in nine hours; and one of the masters produced a statement from his books showing the wages of several of the men then present, one of whom in the ninety-six days immediately preceding the strike had received, after all deductions, an average wage of 11s. 6d. a day, and another 13s. 2d., the latter having received £61 in eighty-nine days. This long meeting, which was throughout conducted with the greatest propriety, terminated with the following proposal being placed in the hands of the chairman by the masters and distributed amongst the men. It was made in reply to the announcement of the spokesman of the delegates, who stated that the men were not prepared to return to work for less than they had turned out for:—

> With regard to the details of any minor grievances alleged by the men, the masters are prepared to give the men free means of communication with them, and undertake to fairly consider and deal with any just cause of dispute. The masters are not aware that there are any special circumstances in North Staffordshire which entitle the puddler to a higher rate of wages than in the other ironmaking districts of England. On the contrary, the masters believe that the puddlers have many advantages in this district which are not possessed by the puddlers in other districts. With regard, however, to the question of wages, in which the strike originated, the masters propose that the men resume work at the rate of wages accepted by the men of South Staffordshire, and that the question of whether there are any special circumstances in North Staffordshire which entitle the men to a higher rate of wages than in the other districts be left to arbitration.

The trades delegates were waiting in London to receive, consider, and advise upon the result of this important conference. The report of that meeting having reached me, I am able to add the commentary of the delegates on the proceedings just sketched, and to close my letter, therefore, with the latest particulars of this troublesome dispute. Mr. Potter, who took the chair, expressed himself "sorry to find the parties in dispute had not agreed, and that the masters had not consented to submit to arbitration. He had learned by telegraph that the masters refused to arbitrate unless the men went in on a reduction. A full meeting of the men would be held on Friday, at Tunstall, to discuss the proposal of the masters. It was not fair to ask the men to resume work on a reduction. Either they should do so on the terms they had left it, or remain out until the question was settled." He concluded by stating that they would be supported in this just cause by the trades of England, and that 1s. per man would raise funds sufficient for the occasion. Resolutions were therefore passed in strict conformity with this key-note.

Instead, therefore, of an escape from the difficulties in which the iron trade is plunged, here is a dead lock. The men will only allow of arbitration on condition that they are permitted to go to work on the terms from which they were to be reduced; the masters will not unclose their gates unless the men submit to the rate of wages accepted by the workmen of the south till future terms shall be settled by arbitration. One party or another must make an advance from this position; and although little, perhaps, is to be expected from arbitration, it cannot even be tried unless this is done. It must be remembered that labour is not the only element in the price of iron, and that, if the masters cannot with consistency be required to pay higher wages, a little pressure may be applied higher up the scale. I am persuaded that—though an appeal to a third party, removed from all personal interest in the issue, who can calmly balance the interests of both sides and frame a decision which shall be respected, may be a valuable alternative in these disputes—there is nothing like their settlement by the masters and the men themselves within their own little spheres. Combination leads to combination, and the result is that masters, men, and country all suffer, while other countries reap the benefit. It is to be hoped that before the close of next week some conciliatory measures may be proposed. The unions throughout the country are falling back in earnest now upon emigration. The general voice is in favour of the Northern States of America; but it appears that the unions, who are advancing £5 and £6 to their members for the purpose of sending them forth, advise New Zealand and Australia. A considerable number have already gone to both destinations, and meetings are now commonly held to provide for a larger movement from the shores of this country. The American agents (one in particular) are specially busy spreading delightful reports. Mr. Gemmell, who advertised in the Mining Journal so early as Nov. 19 last, enticed men to the mines of Maryland and West Virginia by the statement that more money could be obtained for less work. As usual, all the sweets were paraded, and the men were left to find out the bitters. The same game is now going on, and it is necessary that those who hope to better their position look with care at what they are about. The Eden to which Martin Chuzzlewit was introduced on paper turned out to be a very different thing in reality; and so, it seems, from letters that have reached this country from colliers who were tempted abroad during the past twenty years, have been the wages they were offered as compared with those they have received.

COUNTRY NEWS.

An industrial exhibition will be held at Preston in September next.

On Monday the Town Council of Nottingham, by a majority of twenty-one to nine, adopted the Public-house Closing Act.

Mr. W. Ewart, M.P., cut the first turf of the Solway Junction Railway, at Annan, on Tuesday, in the presence of a vast assemblage.

At the Birmingham Bankruptcy Court, on Monday, it was arranged to take Attwoods' bank out of the court and to wind up the concern by private arrangement.

The Irish papers announce that Mr. Bellew, M.P., brother of Lord Bellew, is to be the new Poor-Law Commissioner for Ireland, in the place of Mr. Senior.

The foundation-stone of the Hull Seamen's and General Orphan Asylum was laid, on Wednesday, at the Spring bank, Hull, by Mr. John Torr, of Liverpool, in the presence of the Mayor, the Sheriff, the Corporation, the Hull Trinity House, the Hull Dock Company, and a large number of spectators.

A presentation was made, on Saturday last, to Major Festing, of the Royal Marine Artillery, at his house at Hayling Island, of the Board of Trade medal, for his distinguished bravery in saving part of the crew of the schooner Ocean, which vessel had been driven ashore on the Woolseners, a dangerous bank at the entrance of Langstone Harbour, in the fearful gale of the 20th of January last.

The Davenport brothers are getting the worst of it every way. On Monday the liability of their agents to return the sums received in connection with the séance which was broken up at Liverpool was decided in the local county court. The Judge considered that "the manifestations" were an indispensable part of the contract, and as these had not been produced the money must be returned.

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.—A shipwreck took place, on Sunday, about fifteen miles off Scarborough, by which five men and two boys lost their lives. The vessel, a brig, was labouring in a heavy sea, when some of her timbers started, and, as she was fast settling, the crew took to one of the boats. The master, with a boy in his arms, leaped into the water, and was drawn down by the sinking ship; on coming to the surface, he had lost hold of the boy, but was drifted to another boat floating on the water, into which he got. He then saw the boat upset into which the rest of the crew had got, and, as he had no oars, he could make no effort to save them. His own boat was carried by the current through the surf to the shore, where he was rescued.——Another vessel, a schooner, was struck by lightning the same day, and was dismasted; but, as she was drifting ashore, the crew were taken off and safely brought to land by the Filey life-boat.

The swindler John Morgan, who played such a clever trick at Shrewsbury a short time ago, was tried at the assizes in that city yesterday week. It will be remembered that he professed to be a detective, and took Mr. Charles Ashworth, of Manchester, into custody on a charge of having robbed an hotel at Carmarthen. He succeeded in hoodwinking the magistrates of Shrewsbury, and got off with a quantity of Mr. Ashworth's property of which he had taken possession. The defence was that the whole affair was got up for a wager, to obtain possession of a ring which had been given by a lady to Mr. Ashworth. The jury did not credit the defence, but found the prisoner guilty, and he was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

William Archer Jenner, a town councillor of Salford and a man of wealth, convicted of perjury, was, on Thursday week, at the Manchester Assizes, sentenced to imprisonment for eighteen calendar months, with hard labour.

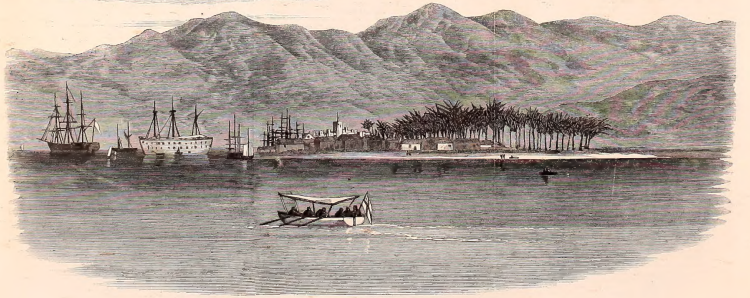
A dreadful accident, arising from an incautious use of gunpowder, occurred at Marske, near Redcar, on Sunday night. One man named Holmes was killed, and three of his children were so frightfully burnt that there was no hope of their recovery.

The convict Hamilton, who was sentenced to death at the late Manchester Assizes, has been respited.

Stephen Burke was executed at Lancaster, on Saturday, for the murder of his wife, at Preston, in January last.

A Confederate ram, the Stonewall (late Olinda) is in great straits cruising about the Spanish and Portuguese coast. The first we heard of her was that she had put into Corunna for repairs, and that the Federal ships Niagara (frigate) and Sacramento (frigate) had taken up their stations outside the port. The Stonewall left last week; but, instead of a fight coming off, we have the following telegram from Lisbon, dated Monday:—"The Confederate ram Stonewall has arrived here from Ferrol, where she left the Federal war-steamers Niagara and Sacramento. The Portuguese authorities have ordered the Stonewall to leave the harbour, and have manned the forts." By a later telegram from Lisbon we learn that the Stonewall quitted the Tagus on Tuesday; and that the Federal cruisers, which had arrived that morning, attempted also to leave the Tagus before the expiration of the term of twenty-four hours required to elapse between the sailing of a vessel of one belligerent and the subsequent departure of an armed ship belonging to the other belligerent. The forts at Belem consequently opened fire on the Federal steamers, and a shot struck the Niagara on the poop and killed a seaman. Both the Niagara and the Sacramento, it is added, then anchored. The Confederate ram Stonewall was built at Bordeaux ostensibly for the Danish Government. She is about 1000 tons burden, has a 12-foot prow, is iron-clad, and is armed with three guns—viz., a 300-pounder forward, and two 200-pounders aft. Her speed is about ten knots, and she has a crew of about eighty hands. The Niagara is of 4582 tons. She has a crew of 450 hands. Her armament consists of fifteen 200-pounders. The Sacramento's tonnage is 1367. She has a crew of about 180 hands. Her armament consists of two 120-pounders and eight 68-pounders. The speed of the Niagara and Sacramento is about twelve knots.

MR. JUSTICE O'HAGAN.



THE Right Hon. Thomas O'Hagan, recently appointed a Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in Ireland, whose portrait we annex, is the descendant of the family of the O'Hagans of Tullohogue, in the county of Tyrone, who were the hereditary Brehons and chief justiciaries of the ancient kingdom of Ulster. Mr. O'Hagan is the only son of a merchant of Belfast, and was born in that city in the year 1812. He was educated in the Belfast Academical Institution, where he was particularly distinguished in the classes of metaphysics, ethics, and belles lettres, and obtained a gold medal for a history of "Eloquence Ancient and Modern;" and he also took a prize in poetry for a poem entitled "Greece Restored." In 1832 he commenced the study of the law, with a view to being called to the Bar, and was several years a pupil of the well-known special pleader, Mr. Thomas Chitty, varying his legal studies by a little coquetry with periodical literature, being a contributor to a journal in Ulster which was an organ of the Roman Catholics of that province. In 1836 he was called to the Bar in Ireland, and joined the North-Eastern Circuit, where he soon obtained a good practice; Mr. Napier and Mr. Whiteside being then the leading members of the circuit. In 1841, a prosecution having been instituted against Mr. Gavan Duffy, then editor of the Belfast Vindicator, Mr. O'Hagan, who was one of the junior counsel for the defendant, by the accident of his leader, Mr. O'Connell, being detained in London, had the conduct of the case left in his hands, and so distinguished himself, that from that time his position at the Bar was secured, and he was thenceforth engaged in almost every case of public importance which was tried in Ireland. In the State prosecution of 1844 he was one of the counsel engaged for the traversers, and in the proceedings on the motion for a new trial, on the conviction of Mr. O'Connell, he delivered a most able and remarkable argument. When the State prosecutions were instituted in 1848, he, as was offered to Mr. O'Hagan for the Crown, which he declined, and for this reason he did not think it proper to accept a retainer for the defence. In 1849 he was created a Queen's Counsel, having previously, in 1847, been appointed to the chairmanship of Quarter Sessions of the county of Longford. In 1857 he was transferred to the chairmanship of Kilmainham; and, in 1859 he was created a Serjeant-at-Law. In 1860 he accepted the office of Solicitor-General, and, on his consequent resignation of the chairmanship of Kilmainham, there was a universal testimony on the part of the magistrates, of all parties and religions, with whom he had been associated, as to their regret at his removal and their congratulations on his promotion. In the course of his practice at the Bar, Mr. O'Hagan had especially brought himself into notice for the defence of Father Patcherine, who was indicted for burning Protestant bibles at Kingston, which resulted in an acquittal; and in the defence of some of the persons implicated in the Phœnix conspiracy, at Tralee, and against whom Mr. Whiteside, then Attorney-General, instituted a prosecution. In 1861, on the advancement of Mr. Deasy to the Bench, he succeeded to the attorney-generalship; but it was not until 1863 that he obtained a seat in Parliament, having been elected in that year for the borough of Tralee. Mr. O'Hagan came into Parliament with a great reputation; but, still better for the purposes of his function in connection with Irish business and his intercourse with Irish members, with a character for amiability, temper, and impartiality which stood him in good stead; and, though his career in the House of Commons was but brief, enough was shown of his capability and adaptability to have assured him as high a position in that assembly as has been held by an Attorney-General for Ireland for many years. His usefulness to the Government in his special department was such that it is understood that it was considered to be no small exercise on their part to award the judicial promotion to which he was entitled; and it is believed that Mr. O'Hagan's own inclination was to continue in a position in which he was unquestionably distinguished, and which was in itself more satisfactory to a laudable ambition than the quasi-retirement from public life which was involved in the acceptance of a puisne judgeship in Ireland. Other considerations, however, prevailed, and, as he is possessed of an eminently judicial mind, and has had the advantage of judicial training, although in a subordinate function, there is every probability that the phase of Mr. O'Hagan's career on which he has now entered will be equally well illustrated with those through which he has already passed.

THE RIGHT HON. THOMAS O'HAGAN, THE NEW JUSTICE OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS IN IRELAND.

PORT ROYAL, JAMAICA.

We present a view of Port Royal, Jamaica, which is the naval dockyard of Great Britain in the West Indies. It is situated at the extreme end off a sandspit called "The Palisadoes." There are no docks, no careening accommodation, no means of repairing engines or boilers—in short, nothing to justify this place being called a dockyard; and the authorities are obliged to send any of her Majesty's ships which come to grief to the Havannah, there to be repaired in a Spanish dock. All the water for the use of the inhabitants has to be brought from Kingston, distant four miles, but there is plenty of rum instead. Altogether, Port Royal is not an alluring place; and those sailors, soldiers, and civilians deemed to remain there are not over contented with their lot. In a military point of view, the place is capable of being made impregnable, but the present fortifications could not defend the entrance for twenty-four hours.

PORT ROYAL, JAMAICA.

THE LATE GALE AT TYNEMOUTH.

THE Illustration on this page is from a sketch taken on Sunday week at Tynemouth, on the coast of Northumberland, during the tremendous gale which blew from the south-east with the greatest possible fury all that day. Hundreds of vessels, in the course of the day, run for shelter to the mouth of the Tyne. Step, of Exeter, while running for the bar, lost her mate and a seaman, who were washed overboard. About the same time a copper-bottomed schooner, belonging to Yarmouth, was struck by an immense wave, and her mate was washed overboard and drowned. As the brig Border Chieftain, of Hartlepool, coal-laden, was coming in, about nine o'clock in the morning, in charge of a pilot, a sea struck her and carried away her steering-wheel, injuring the man at the helm. She was then driven on the stones south of the north pier. The Constance life-boat of the National Institution, stationed at Tynemouth, was at once manned and launched in a very heavy sea. She soon reached the vessel, and succeeded in taking off the captain, crew, and pilot, including the injured man, all eight men. The Shields boats came down to the inside of the bar shortly after. At four o'clock in the afternoon a coal-laden brig, the Burton, hailing from Colchester, which had sailed from Shields on Wednesday for London, was seen putting back to the port for shelter. As she came to the bar a light brig, and a light barque got to the windward of her and sent her too far to the northward. While she was in this predicament a tremendous sea caught her. She ran upon it, and in a moment she was hurled upon the seaward end of the rubble-stone of the north pier. The crew immediately took to the rigging, four of the hands upon the foremast and the boy to the mainstop. With great alacrity the life-guards had their apparatus in position and fired, the line going right between the masts. A lad on board the ship scrambled up the foremast and twice clutched the line and twice it evaded his grasp. During the time the poor fellows were trying to catch the line the vessel had bumped her bottom out, and the cargo of Tynemouth coals was washed from her, the coal-dust giving the sea around her an inky appearance. In less than five minutes after she struck, the vessel was "like an empty hat-box," and within seven minutes she was entirely crumpled up by the sea, and her wreck was floating about in fragments. Three of the hands—viz., the master, Mr. Henry Turney, and the two lads—appear to have got fastened with the rigging, and were not seen after the vessel broke up; but the mate, George Hazell, and the able-bodied seaman, Henry Pullen, were thrown clear of the wreck. Pullen was a swimmer, and made a desperate struggle for his life. He got well into the haven; but the life-boat, while making to his assistance, was impeded by the wreck that was floating in, and before the crew could reach him he sank. Hazell had hold of the ship's-boat bottom, and managed to shift himself and catch hold of a dock plank, which floated him until the men of the life-boat caught hold of and pulled him into the boat. He was very much exhausted when landed, but he has recovered. The body of Miss Jane Ferguson, who was lost in the Stanley steam-ship four months ago, was picked up on the same day. It has been identified by a ticket issued to her at Aberdeen.

THE WRECK OF H.M.S. RACEHORSE IN THE GULF OF PE-CHE-LI.

IN our Impression of Jan. 14 we published an Engraving of H.M. screw gun-boat, the Racehorse, which was wrecked upon the coast of China, in Lang-Mun Bay, at the entrance to the Gulf of Pe-che-Li, on the 6th of November last, with the loss of a hundred lives of the officers and men, nine only being saved. We have now received from Lieutenant C. M. Johnson, of H.M.S. Leopard, at Shanghai, a sketch taken by him on New-Year's Day, which is engraved on our front page this week. It shows the aspect of that part of the shore at the time Lieutenant Johnson visited the place, when the remains of the unfortunate Racehorse were lying, partly submerged, at the distance of about sixty yards from land. There are two or three pieces of her deck, with some of her masts and other timbers, which have been cast upon the sand and are in the foreground. Near this spot are the graves of Lieutenant Farquhar and the other men whose bodies were found shortly after the disaster.

The annual inspection of the Oxford University Rifle Regiment, which took place on Wednesday week, was the first that has been held by Colonel Erskine since his appointment as Inspector-General of Volunteers. The regiment paraded at two p.m., 273 strong, for the inspection of arms and accoutrements, and marched to its battalion parade-ground. Arrived there, it wheeled into line, and received the inspecting officer with a general salute. It broke into open column right in front, and marched past in open and quarter distance columns; formed battalion square, reformed column, deployed into line, changed front on the right company, left thrown back, commenced file-firing from the right of companies, advanced in direct echelon of companies from the right, formed company squares, re-formed echelon, wheeled to the left, and re-formed line on the rear company, changed front on the left company, right thrown back, fired volleys by companies from right to left, retired by companies from the left in rear of right, fronted and deployed into line on the leading company, advanced in double column of subdivisions from the centre, formed line to the right, retired in echelon from the left, re-formed line, and again advanced in double column of subdivisions from the centre, re-formed line to the front on the two centre subdivisions, formed quarter-distance column on No. 8, skirmished. Three companies extended, and a new line of skirmishers were thrown out on the right flank, the old skirmishers forming the new supports. The skirmishers were then strengthened, and, after retiring and keeping up a steady fire, they closed on their coverers and formed quarter-distance column. Colonel Erskine at the close of the evolutions said that, on the whole, he had been very well pleased with what he had seen. He could not say they were perfect. He was glad to see that their officers and sergeants knew their work. He knew that they had many disadvantages to contend with—the shortness of their time and their many other pursuits, which left few opportunities for drill. He should have great pleasure in making a favourable report to the Secretary for War.

BIRTHS.

On the 24th ult., at 105, Eaton square, the wife of Captain Reeles, of a daughter.

On the 28th ult., the wife of J. T. Terry, Esq., Shrubb's-hill, Junningdale, of a son, still-born.

On the 30th ult., at Moor Pitsley, Jersey, the wife of R. C. Mabe de Carteret, Esq., Seigneur of St. Ouen, Twyi Berderiers, of a son and heir.

On the 30th ult., at 31, Harmer-street, Hackney-road, the wife of Henry William Green, of a son.

On the 31st ult., the wife of G. Burney, Esq., of Blenheim House, Bow, and Millwall, of a daughter.

On the 31st ult., at Locksley, Surbiton, Surrey, the wife of Frederick Wright, Esq., late of Adelaide, S.A., of a daughter.

At Gretton, Rugby Athenæum, of a son.

At Kirby Underdale Rectory, Yorkshire, the Hon. Mrs. T. Meason, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 22nd ult., at Cruickshold, Dyce, Berwickshire, by the Rev. John M'Leod, incumbent of that parish, Anthony Oliver Molesworth, lieutenant Royal Artillery, son of the late the Rev. Anthony Oliver and Mrs. Molesworth, and nephew of Viscount Molesworth, to Annie, youngest daughter of Major Hope Grant, late of the retired list Madras Army.

On the 25th ult., at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, by the Rev. B. G. Bridges, Derbyshire, Rev. Charles Pyndar Bridges, Rector of Bolingbroke, William Rackett Pyndar-Bree, Esq., of Tyringham, Bucks, and Trevethow, Cornwall, to Fanny Adela, second daughter of Colonel Wilkinson, commanding the Royal Artillery (Cork Division).

On the 30th ult., at St. James's, Paddington, by the Hon. and Rev. A. Byron, the Right Hon. William Earl of Lovelace, to Ada Constance Countess of Lovelace, of the Isle of Wight.

On the 30th ult., at Cawnpore, Bengal, by the Rev. Joseph Caldecott, M.A., Archdeacon of Calcutta, Mr. Charles Edward Buckland, of the Bengal Civil Service, to Ellen Jemima, fourth daughter of Mr. Thomas Hall, of Cawnpore.

DEATHS.

On the 18th ult., at Crowle, Lincolnshire, the Rev. William Daniel Tyson, M.A., incumbent of Millborne, Penrith, youngest son of the late Rev. Isaac Tyson, Vicar of Allingstreet and Remingtonshire.

On the 25th ult., at Avenue House, Upper Clapton, John Poole, Esq., aged 68, friends will kindly accept this intimation.

In Hyde Park-street, Sir G. Nicholls, K.C.B., aged 81.

Frances Elizabeth, widow of the Rev. G. Robertson, Bart., of Ardagh, Long Co., aged 72.

On the 28th ult., at Caledonia, St. Ann's, Island of Trinidad, Alexander Stewart Esq., of the firm of Purvis, Stewart, and Co., formerly of Leith, Scotland. Mr. Stewart leaves a widow and nine children to mourn their irreparable loss.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each entry.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 8.

SUNDAY, April 2.—Fifth Sunday in Lent. The National Gallery founded, 1824.

MONDAY, 3.—St. Richard, Bishop of Cirencester, fl. 1245. Napier, of Murchiston, inventor of logarithms, died, 1617. Morillo, the Spanish painter, died, 1682. Moon's first quarter 1h. 19m. a.m.

TUESDAY, 4.—St. Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, died, 397. Death of Ludovico, musical composer.

WEDNESDAY, 5.—Battle of Cremona: Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, totally defeated by the Swiss, 1476. Election of Margaret Beaufort, 1455.

THURSDAY, 6.—Old Lady Day. Death of Albert Dürer, celebrated painter, 1528.

FRIDAY, 7.—St. Perpetua's Chantry, suppressed, 1548. Prince Leopold born, 1813. Cambridge Lent Term ends.

SATURDAY, 8.—Royal Geographical Society founded, 1854. Oxford Lent Term ends.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 8.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
3 11	3 57	4 41	5 25	6 9	6 53	7 37
4 0	4 46	5 30	6 14	6 58	7 42	8 26

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN
	Barometer reduced to 32°	Dew Point	Relative Humidity	Ozone	Highest	Lowest	General Direction.	Horary Velocity	Amount	Duration
	Inches	°	%	0–6	°	°		Miles	Inches	hours
22	29·722	39·2	75·3	5	51·3	42·7	NNW. SW.	10·1	·000	0·0
23	29·639	36·2	67·5	6	52·4	41·7	WSW. S. NW.	12·3	·000	0·0
24	29·673	34·9	72·0	6	51·8	41·6	NNW. SW.	9·5	·000	0·0
25	29·623	34·9	69·9	6	51·9	42·3	SW.	10·5	·000	0·0
26	29·747	37·1	77·2	7	52·0	42·7	SW.	10·6	·000	0·0
27	29·812	36·1	72·1	6	51·9	40·4	NNW. SW.	9·0	·000	0·0
28	30·038	32·2	72·7	7	52·0	42·3	SSE. NW. SSE.	4·1	·000	0·0

* Rain and melted snow.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine o'clock in the morning:—

Barometer (corrected)	29·722	29·639	29·673	29·623	29·747	29·812
Temperature of Air	34·8°	34·6°	34·7°	37·2°	34·3°	34·9°
Temperature of Evaporation	33·8°	33·4°	33·7°	36·2°	33·4°	33·9°
Direction of Wind	WSW.	WSW.	SSW.	SW.	NNW.	NNE.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Managers, MESSRS. AUGUSTUS HARRIS and H. J. BYRON. Every evening at Seven o'clock the performing pyrotechnic feats of the Baker Brothers. Last Three Nights of Miss Helen Faucit's Engagement. On Monday, April 3, and during the week, Shakspeare's Tragedy of MACBETH. Macbeth, Mr. Charles Dillon; Lady Macbeth, Miss Helen Faucit. Concluding with the Grand Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE LADY FROM THE COUNTRY. After which, at Half-past Seven, Monday, April 3, it is respectfully announced that Shakspeare's Tragedy of MACBETH. Macbeth, Mr. Charles Dillon; Lady Macbeth, Miss Helen Faucit. Concluding with the Grand Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE LADY FROM THE COUNTRY. Harlequin, Mr. Walter Munro; Clown, Mr. Hughes; Pantaloon, Mr. Vance; Columbine, Miss Rose Leclercq. Every Evening, during the Engagement, Miss Helen Faucit (being her last appearance but two) will appear. On Tuesday, April 4, Shakspeare's Tragedy of KING LEAR. King Lear, Mr. Charles Dillon. On Thursday, April 6 (for the last time this season), Shakspeare's Tragedy of MACBETH. Macbeth, Mr. Charles Dillon; Lady Macbeth, Miss Helen Faucit. On Friday, April 7, Shakspeare's Tragedy of JULIUS CÆSAR. Brutus, Mr. Phelps; Cassius, Mr. Walter Montgomery; Mark Antony, Mr. Charles Dillon; Julius Cæsar, Mr. Ryder; Portia, Miss Helen Faucit. On Saturday, April 8, Shakspeare's Tragedy of JULIUS CÆSAR. Brutus, Mr. Phelps; Cassius, Mr. Walter Montgomery; Julius Cæsar, Mr. Ryder; Portia, Miss Helen Faucit. On Monday, April 10, and during the week, Shakspeare's Tragedy of MACBETH. Macbeth, Mr. Charles Dillon; Lady Macbeth, Miss Helen Faucit. Concluding with the Grand Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE LADY FROM THE COUNTRY. To conclude with, on Good Friday, Milton's COMUS will be produced, as a mark of great splendour.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern in the New Play, entitled OUR AMERICAN COUSIN, EVERY EVENING at Seven. Mr. Sothern as Mr. Asa Trenchard. On Saturday next, MONDAY, APRIL 3, and seven, THREE WEEKS AFTER MARRIAGE.—Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Rae, Miss Oliver, Miss Reinhardt, &c. After which, at Half-past Seven, a New Farce, entitled THE WOMAN IN MAUVE, with new and magnificent scenery, appropriate music and dresses. Characters by Mrs. Sara, Miss Fowler, and Mr. Compton.

LYCEUM.—EASTER MONDAY, APRIL 17, will be produced a Drama entitled THE MERCHANT AND THE BROKER with performe the principal characters. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, MR. B. WEBSTER. EVERY EVENING, during the PERIOD OF PARIS FRANCAIS.—On Monday next, THE LOVE CHASE.—Mr. B. Webster, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. Wigan, Mr. Paulton, Mr. Toole, Mr. Billington, Miss Woolgar, Miss Emery, Miss Reynolds, Miss Mackay, Miss Bateman. To conclude every Evening with THE BURGLARIOUS, or, a Night in a Police Station. Doors open at Seven. Commence at Seven.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, in a New Entertainment, entitled A PECULIAR FAMILY, written by Mr. Arthur Sketchley, and Mr. John Parry's Musical Sketch, entitled THE ANCIENT BRITON. Saturday (in lieu of Monday) at Three, ENGLISH ILLUSTRATION, 19, Regent-street. Open 12 Noon every Tuesday and Thursday at Three.

TUBERTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a new piece of Character Drawing, entitled "GOING TO CHURCH," EVERY EVENING, at the Hotel Belleveue, and other novelties, at GLOUCESTER, MONDAY, APRIL 3; Hereford, 4; Worcester, 5; Newport, 6; Cardiff, 7; Bristol, 8; Bath, 10; Salisbury, 11.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S-HALL. Morning Performances on SATURDAY, APRIL 8, to commence at Three and finish at Five. The programme will include Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata, for pianoforte and violin; Mozart's Quartet in D minor, and the Occasional Sonata, by Handel, for pianoforte and violoncello. Vocalists, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 7s.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 1s.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S-HALL. BEETHOVEN NIGHT on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, APRIL 3.—The Programme will include the sitting Quartet in F minor, No. 11; the grand Trio in B flat, op. 97, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello; the Sonata in F, for pianoforte and violoncello, op. 5, No. 1; and the Sonata in A flat, for pianoforte and violin, op. 47 (Kreutzer sonata). Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Vocalist, Miss Banks. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 7s.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes of the Season, 10s. 6d. Now Ready—Vol. 2, Analytical Book, Words, Prices, and Opinions, 1s.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Wet or Dry, always Charming.—Performances by the Orchestral Band twice daily, and Great Organ Performances by Mr. Lawrence. Picture Galleries. Fine Arts Courts. Shakspeare House.—Diorama of Jerusalem. Handel Festival.—Tenor Prizes (first by official authority).—Chinese Collection.—Saturday, April 1, Performance of the three Adventures of the Original Clarinet, and Promenade, Half-a-Crown.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GOOD FRIDAY.—MESSIAH. RESERVED and GRAND SACRED CONCERT.—ONE SHILLING.

THE MESSIAH.—PASSION WEEK. MONDAY, APRIL 10, at EXETER HALL (First Floor).

THE MESSIAH.—PASSION WEEK. MONDAY, APRIL 10. Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Palmer, Mr. Sims Reeves. At 11, EXETER HALL.

THE MESSIAH.—PASSION WEEK. MONDAY, APRIL 10. Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Palmer, Mr. Sims Reeves. At 11, EXETER HALL (First Floor).

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. MONDAY NEXT, Mr. Costa.—WEDNESDAY, April 12, Mr. Costa.—GOOD FRIDAY, Passion Week Performance of Handel's MESSIAH. Principal Vocalists—Madame Parepa, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley. Conductor, Mr. Costa. Every description of Sacred Music performed. Tickets, 1s., 2s., 3s., 5s., and 10s. 6d. Every Subscriber has a right to a Transferable Ticket. Subscription, £1 1s. per annum, at the Hall; and of Messrs. Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, Regent-street.

MR. CHARLES JOSEPH, Jonathan, Arabella Goddard, Louisa Pyne, Mr. Parepa, Sainton-Dolby, &c., at Miss HELEN HOGARTH'S (Hon. R. C. Grosvenor) MORNING CONCERT, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, on TUESDAY NEXT, APRIL 4, to commence at Half-past Eight precisely. Vocalists—Mdme. Parepa, Mdlle. Titiens, Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Palmer, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Charles Joseph; Miss Arabella Goddard, Miss Helen Hogarth, Mr. Charles Hallé, Herr Louis Ries, Herr Henri Ries, Miss Susan Pyne, and Miss Louisa Pyne. Mr. Weiss, Mr. Patey, Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. Lazarus, Mr. Aguilar, and Mr. Lindsay Sloper. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Violin, Herr Joachim. Conductors—Sir Julius Benedict, Mr. Edward Russell, Signor Arditi, Mr. Lindsay Sloper, Herr Ries, and Mr. Richard Mudie. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 7s.; Admission, 3s. Tickets may be obtained at Mr. Ross's, No. 26, Gracechurch-street; Mr. Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; at the Hall; and of Messrs. Chappell, New Bond-street.

THE GREAT FYCHOW GIANT, whose appearance in Shanghai and Hong-Kong has created such wonder, is expected in England by an early mail from China.

EXHIBITION of the SOCIETY of BRITISH ARTISTS (Incorporated by Royal Charter). THE FORTY-SECOND ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PICTURES IN WATER COLOURS IS NOW OPEN at their GALLERY, 5A, Pall-mall East, from Nine till Dusk. THOS. ROBERTS, Sec.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK.—The SECOND SPRING EXHIBITION this Season will take place on SATURDAY NEXT, April 8, when a Band will perform from Two till Five o'clock. Admission to the Gardens of the society, prior to 6d. each. The Band will play from half-past Two to half-past Five.

MR. SYDNEY SMITH begs to announce to his friends and pupils that he has removed from 4A, Upper Berners-street, Portland-square.

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

AUGUSTIN THIERRY, of 77, Newgate-street, London, and 3, Rue Bonaparte, Paris, Publisher of "The Last Days of the Great Rebellion" sues an INFRINGEMENT of the COPYRIGHT of Mr. ALEXANDER DUMAS'S "Last Days of the Great Rebellion" and obtains an INJUNCTION to restrain the sale of the work now in course of publication in Paris. It is hereby understood that Mr. Lassell has no connection or privity with, or authority to refer to this notice.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of 5 Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of either sex taught in Twelve Lessons, Private Lessons, Twenty-four Lessons. Separate Classes for Ladies, Gentlemen, Clerks, Merchants, and Professional Men. Separate Classes for Ladies, in which department Mr. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

AMUSEMENTS IN EXPERIMENTAL SCIENCE.—A Lecture on Electricity, Magnetism, Optics, Hydrostatics, Pneumatics, Chemical Photographic Apparatus, Microscopes, Telescopes, Educational Toys. Illustrated Catalog, post free. Newcastle-street, Strand, 111, Strand, Somerset-house.

SUPERB FLOWER-SEEDS, post-free, at the annexed prices. Collections of 12 Packets, 2s. 6d.; 24 Packets, 5s.; 36 Packets, 7s. 6d. Catalogues, with sample packet, 2d. From W. E. RIBSLEY, Florist, High-street, Bedale, Yorkshire.

THE NEW SHUTTER WARDROBES.—Ladies should see these before deciding. 2, SEDLEY and CO.'S, Patentees of the Equilibrium Chairs and Wardrobes, 2, Upper Rathbone-place, Oxford-street, London, W.

THE Kensington Furniture Gallery, 36, Cockhill-street, Ratcliff, E.

KENSINGTON FURNITURE.—The best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouse, 46, King William-street, London-bridge. Deane's Catalogue, illustrated with 400 Engravings, and Price List, post-free. Deane and Co. (opening to the Monument), London-bridge.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W.; 59, Cheapside, London, E.C.; and 135, Church-street, Liverpool.—SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use, with the Under-feed, Reversible Feed, Self-regulating Tension, and Patent Stitch Fastening, which will unsew if required, but cannot ravel, pucker, break, split, soil, or hurt the finest or coarsest fabric, are very easily managed, and are fully guaranteed for seven years. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free. Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, London, W.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—Prize Medal 1862.—These machines, made by the original Florence inventors, are the best for all kinds of family sewing, and work the celebrated twisted stitch, which is the strongest, most elastic, and durable. They are easily learned, regularly, and durably, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is formed by a single thread, and is incapable of unravelling.—64, Regent-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

£2000 on ACCIDENT and DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENT DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY'S Office, 64, Cornhill, and 10, Regent-street, London.

JAMES CHILDS, Secretary.

J. W. OLIVE, Secretary.

SIX PER CENT DEBENTURES.—RECIFE and SAN FRANCISCO RAILWAY COMPANY (LIMITED).—The Directors are now prepared to RECEIVE APPLICATIONS for a limited amount of DEBENTURES bearing interest at the rate of £6 per cent. per annum, for the term of five years, payable half-yearly.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Company's Offices, 9, 15, Old Jewry Chambers, London, Feb. 28, 1865. By order of the Board, W. R. DRUMMOND, Secretary.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD,"

PRINTED IN COLOURS,

FROM A PICTURE BY J. SANT.

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been re-ENGRAVED, and is NOW ON SALE, PRICE SIXPENCE.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given at once to Newsagents or at the Office, 198, Strand, London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS,

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 1, 1865.

THE question between the Duke of Wellington and Lord Robert Montagu, in regard to the right of the latter to dispose of certain letters written by the great Duke to Lady Olivia Sparrow, might as well have been kept out of court. Commonsense and good feeling, having been allowed their turn, appear to have dictated a private arrangement of the dispute; and, had they been listened to at first, a rather unpleasant notoriety might have been spared to both parties. Lord R. Montagu had clearly no intention of going beyond his supposed rights, or of annoying anybody. We should be glad to believe, however, that the raising the question will induce some legal authority, who has leisure and literary taste, to take up the subject of the "rights of letters," and, even if legislative action be deemed superfluous, to favour the world with a short treatise, like Lord St. Leonards' "Handy-book," which may serve as a guide to all possessors of manuscript epistles, to booksellers, curators, executors, executors' widows, and the public generally, as to what may, can, or ought to, be done with the letters of the dead. The question is by no means a small one.

Dr. Johnson remarked, "An odd thought strikes me. We shall receive no letters in the grave." This is indisputable; but were it possible for those who have departed to be troubled with the affairs of the world they have left, it is certain that many a ghost would come back and intimate that the contents of ghost's desk and bureau should be committed to the flames. This conviction is so strong with many eminent persons that they wisely take time by the forelock, and burn their letters at once, stipulating also that any friends to whom they write in return shall do the same. It is almost an act of treachery to a friend to intrust a letter, in which he may have spoken as he would have spoken on your hearthstone, to the insecurity of a drawer, the curiosity of domestics, or the chances of your abrupt departure from the world. We know that it is the practice of several of the most distinguished literary men of the day (a class which, being ready at the pen, notorious people's correspondence is snapped at by a certain class of periodicals and gossip-mongers. We can easily imagine the troubled phantom of a man who has had a large correspondence, and has kept it, from motives which his friends have indiscriminately watching his stupid executor as he looks through letters, grins with satisfaction at lighting upon a bit of scandal, and lays it aside to be chuckled over. What a harvest of annoyance that self-regarding ghost perceives to be in store for his friends and acquaintance! what avarge things he feels they will say about him for his negligence, and how he would like to appear suddenly, in some ugly form, to that prying executor and frighten down his knuckle-bones from his pumping, and thus consuming the whole armoury of mischief! But this cannot be, and the ghost's only hope is in Lord Westbury.

Between this practice—which daily becomes more common—and the discovery of letters in letter-company by the new postal system, there will, we suspect, be comparatively few letters for the Dukes of Wellington and Lord Roberts of A.D. 1900 to struggle over. The old art of writing letters is vanishing. You say what you have to say on a post-card or a telegraph. That miserable sum excites, somehow, an effect upon the pen. We heard of a sailor who had written to a shipmate and went to post his letter, but, on the way, remembered that he had to pay, he was, of course, told a penny. He flew into a rage and declared that he was not going to send his friend Jack a letter with only a penny on it: he would sooner tear it up. After some discussion, he was induced to soothe the irritation of the warm-hearted tar by telling him that he might affix a shilling stamp if he liked, and this arrangement was highly approved of by the honest sailor, and the dignity of friendship was felt to be maintained. Now, with unimaginably, have some such an influence at work when we write. At any rate, it is matter of remark when a Queen's head covers more than a four-side note. In the days of high postage what letters we used to compile, rewrite, and crowd in the margins, crossed, from damage by the seal, and even crossed, when the cacoethes scribendi made us careless of the duty of avoiding inhumanity! How we went through our friend's letter point by point before reply! How much we were sorry he had been ill, glad that he was better, pleased that he had enjoyed Brighton, agreed with him that the beach-mendicants were a nuisance, rejoiced that his property had got a prize, hoped his gold would be as musical as was expected, deplored the demise of his great-aunt, congratulated him on the legacy, dissented from his views as to Catholic emancipation, compromised with him his views as to the end of the world; and, having treated him with special greetings to all his family, intimated, at a considerable distance from the end of the paper, that it was now time to bring this long letter to a close, but that, if we left much unsaid, we hoped to be told, it was not from want of space, for that we begged him to believe us as sincerely as ever his very faithful, &c.! That is all over, but there are many myriads of such compositions in existence, and some of them have good names at the bottom, and many more at this moment hungering and thirsting to print them, but do not understand the ownership question.

A man of good sense and good feeling can never be at a loss to know what to do with a letter. There are many letters which it would be a wrong thing to destroy. Very old epistles, illustrative of the manners of times gone by, almost become national property. Later letters, in which public subjects are discussed only, have to be more carefully considered. If the writer avows other views than those he set forth in life, we have no right to injure his reputation for consistency, and there are other circumstances which must be weighed. If such writings can, without breach of duty to one who can protect or vindicate himself no longer, be given to the public, there can be no reason for withholding them. All personal and private matters demand, again, another rule, which no gentleman will break through. But, unhappily, all who obtain letters are not gentlemen. It would therefore be an exceedingly good thing if a code in reference to letters could be devised and adopted, and anyone who should depart from it should be visited with all legal and literary vengeance.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Windsor Castle, in good health.

On Thursday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the Great Park. Princess Louisa took a drive.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out. The King of the Belgians arrived at the castle on a visit to her Majesty. The Prince of Wales accompanied the King from London and returned in the afternoon to Marlborough House.

On Saturday last the Queen, attended by the Countess of Gainsborough and the Hon. Florence Seymour, drove out. Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, Lord Alfred Paget, Major Cowell, and Lieutenant Haig, went to London, and were present at the Drawingroom at St. James's Palace, returning to the castle in the evening. The Earl of Clarendon and the Bishop of St. David's arrived at the castle. The Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer and the Earl of Clarendon had the honour of dining with her Majesty and the King of the Belgians.

On Sunday the Queen, the King of the Belgians, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Bishop of St. David's officiated. The King of the Belgians, attended by General Count de Moerkerke, drove to Claremont and visited Queen Marie Amélie. The Bishop of St. David's had the honour of dining with her Majesty and the King of the Belgians.

On Monday the Queen, attended by the Hon. Florence Seymour, drove in the Great Park. Princess Helena rode in the Home Park. Princess Louisa took a drive. Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, hunted with the harriers. The Earl of Clarendon and the Bishop of St. David's left the castle.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by the King of the Belgians, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, left the castle at twenty minutes before twelve for London, for the purpose of holding a Court, an account of which is given below. Her Majesty drove to the station of the Great Western Railway, and proceeded by special train to Paddington. The suite in attendance consisted of the Countess of Gainsborough, Lady Augusta Stanley, General Count de Moerkerke, Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge. Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell, left Windsor by an earlier train for London. The Queen honoured Mr. Frith with a visit, at his studio, to see his picture of the "Marriage of the Prince of Wales." Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louisa, also honoured Mr. Armstead and Mr. Philip with visits, at their studios, to inspect their models for the bas-reliefs to be placed on the Prince Consort's memorial. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, returned to Windsor Castle at a quarter before seven o'clock from London. The King of the Belgians remained at Buckingham Palace. Princess Helena, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, honoured the Olympic Theatre with her presence, returning to Windsor Castle at night.

On Wednesday the Queen, attended by Lady Augusta Stanley, walked and drove in the castle grounds.

The Queen has been pleased to approve that the address painted in water colours for the Queen's Institute, and presented to her Majesty, should be placed in the Dublin International Exhibition.

Professor Hofmann has, during the week, given two lectures on chemistry before the Queen and the Royal family, at Windsor Castle.

Viscountess Jocelyn has succeeded the Countess of Gainsborough as Lady in Waiting to her Majesty.

Viscount Torrington and Lieutenant-General Sir H. Bentinck have succeeded the Earl of Caithness and Lieutenant-Colonel H. Cavendish as Lord and Groom in Waiting to the Queen.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

The Queen held a third Court at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday.

Her Majesty, accompanied by the King of the Belgians, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, arrived at Buckingham Palace at a quarter past one from Windsor Castle.

The Prince of Wales, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by Earl Spencer, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and the Hon. R. Meade, arrived at the palace at three o'clock.

Prince Alfred arrived, attended by Major Cowell.

Her Majesty's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty at the Court, under the command of Major Harmar.

The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Colonel O. P. Bourke.

A guard of honour of the Coldstream Guards was mounted in the court of the palace.

The Queen, accompanied by the King of the Belgians and the members of the Royal family, entered the White Drawing-room shortly after three o'clock. In attendance upon her Majesty were the Duchess of Wellington, Lady Caroline Barrington, Viscountess Jocelyn, Viscountess Chewton, the Hon. Caroline Cavendish, the Hon. Florence Seymour, Viscount Sydney, the Earl of St. Germans, the Marquis of Ailesbury, Earl Spencer, Viscount Castlerosse, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby; Colonel Sir Thomas Biddulph, K.C.B.; Viscount Torrington; Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Bentinck, K.C.B.; General the Marquis of Tweeddale, Lord Foley, Colonel Hepburn; Colonel the Hon. Sir Charles B. Phipps, K.C.B.; Lord Alfred Paget, and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge.

The Queen wore a black silk dress with train trimmed with crape and jet, and a Mary Queen of Scots cap, with long veil, the cap ornamented with a fringe of diamonds. Her Majesty wore a necklace and brooch of opals and diamonds, the ribbon and star of the Garter, the Victoria and Albert order, and the order of Louise of Prussia.

Princess Helena wore a dress of white grenadine over glacé silk, ruches of grenadine, and bows of white satin ribbon: train of rich white rep. Head-dress, snowdrops, feathers, and veil; onyx and gold ornaments; Victoria and Albert order.

Princess Louisa wore a similar dress and similar ornaments.

The following distinguished personages had the honour of receiving invitations to attend the Court:—

Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg, the Duchess (Dowager) of Norfolk, the Duke and Duchess of Beaufort, the Duchess of St. Albans, Viscount Falkland and Lady Diana Beauclerk, the Duke of Rutland, the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch and Lady Margaret Scott, the Duke of Leinster, the Marquis and Marchioness of Abercorn and Lady Georgiana Hamilton, the Marchioness (Dowager) of Waterford, the Marquis and Marchioness of Donegall, Marquis and Marchioness Cholmondeley, the Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde, the Marquis of Hartington, the Earl and Countess of Dalkeith, the Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury and Talbot and Lady Gertrude Talbot, the Earl and Countess of Chesterfield, the Earl of Sandwich and Lady Emily Montagu, the Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury and Lady Victoria Ashley, the Earl and Countess of Albemarle and Lady Augusta Keppel; Earl Cowper, Countess (Dowager) Cowper, and Lady Florence Cowper; the Earl and Countess of Fife and Lady Anne Duff; the Earl of Sefton, the Countess (Dowager) of Sefton, and Lady Cecilia Molyneux; the Earl of Clanwilliam, the Earl of Rosslyn and Lady Harriet St. Clair, the Earl and Countess of Chichester, the Earl of Lonsdale, Earl and Countess Howe, the Earl of Ellenborough, Earl and Lady Constance Grosvenor, Lord and Lady Edward Howard, Lord and Lady John Manners, Viscountess Torrington, Viscount and Viscountess Stratford de Redcliffe and the Hon. Miss Canning, Viscount and Viscountess Newport, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Worcester and Mrs. Philpott, Lord and Lady Colville, Lord and Lady Belhaven, Lord and Lady Bagot, Lord Redesdale and the Hon. Miss Mitford, Lord Lyons, Lord and Lady Ebury and the Hon. Miss Grosvenor, Lord and Lady Llanover, Major-General Lord William Paulet, Lord and Lady Claud Hamilton and Miss Hamilton, Captain the Hon. F. and Lady Constance Stanley, the Hon. Charles Gore and the Countess of Kerry, Field Marshal the Right Hon. Sir Edward and Lady Blakeney and Miss Blakeney, the Right Hon. R. C. and Lady Mary Nisbet Hamilton and Miss Hamilton, the Right Hon. Edward and Mrs. Bouverie and Miss Bouverie, the Right Hon. Frederick and Mrs. Peel, the Right Hon. Edward Bulwer Lytton, the Hon. Mrs. Hardinge, the Dean of Westminster and Lady Augusta Stanley, Admiral Sir Francis Austen; Admiral Sir Lucius Curtis, Bart.; Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, G.C.B., and Lady Seymour and Miss Seymour; General Sir George Bowles, K.C.B.; Lieutenant-General and Lady Catherine Buckley and Miss Buckley, Major-General Sabine, Sir Charles and Lady Eastlake, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, Mr. and Lady Elizabeth Hastings Russell, Lieutenant-Colonel and Lady Louisa Douglas Pennant and Miss Douglas Pennant, Captain and the Hon. Mrs. Blundell, Mr. and the Hon. Mrs. Welby, Mrs. and Miss Knollys.

Some of the above were prevented, by unavoidable circumstances, from attending the Court.

THE QUEEN'S DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen, a Drawingroom was held on Saturday last, at St. James's Palace, by the Princess of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty. Presentations at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, to be considered as equivalent to presentations made to her Majesty. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by their ladies and gentlemen in waiting and escorted by a squadron of Life Guards, arrived at St. James's Palace, from Marlborough House, at two o'clock, and were received by the Mistress of the Robes and the great officers of state of the Queen's household. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Lord Alfred Paget, arrived from Buckingham Palace. Prince Alfred arrived, attended by Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig. The Duke of Cambridge and Princess Mary, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, were present at the Drawingroom. Her Majesty's body-guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty in the state saloons, under the command of the Lieutenant. The Royal body-guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Colonel O. P. Bourke.

The Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Prince and the members of the Royal family, took her station in front of the throne. In attendance upon the Princess were the Duchess of Wellington, the Duchess of Roxburghe, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Churchill, Viscountess Chewton, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, the Hon. Mrs. Alexander Gordon, Lady Sarah Lindsay, the Marchioness of Carmarthen, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Lucy Kerr, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Emily Cathcart, the Hon. Harriet Phipps, the Hon. Eleanor Stanley, the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Ailesbury, the Earl of Caithness, Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. F. Cavendish, Earl Spencer, Lord Harris, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Lord Alfred Paget, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, Viscount Castlerosse, the Hon. Robert Meade, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and the two pages of honour in waiting to the Queen.

The Princess of Wales wore a train of violet velvet trimmed with rich white blonde; the petticoat of white satin, trimmed with bouillons of tulle and white satin ribbon. Head-dress, a tiara of diamonds, feathers, and veil. Ornaments, a corsage of diamonds, necklace, and earrings of pearls and diamonds; orders of Victoria and Albert and Donna Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Helena wore a petticoat of tulle over rich white glacé silk, trimmed with bouillons of tulle and white satin ribbons; train of rich white silk, trimmed with tulle and white satin bows. Head-dress, hyacinths, feathers, and veil; diamond and jet ornaments, Victoria and Albert order and order of St. Isabella.

Princess Louisa wore a petticoat of tulle over rich white glacé silk, trimmed with bouillons of tulle and white satin ribbons; train of rich white silk, trimmed with tulle and white satin bows. Head-dress, hyacinths, feathers, and veil; ornaments, diamonds and Victoria and Albert order.

Princess Mary of Cambridge wore a black silk train, trimmed with ruches of silk and tulle, point d'Alençon, and bunches of poppies; a petticoat of black tulle over glacé silk, richly trimmed with point to match. Head-dress, a diadem of diamonds mounted with poppies, feathers, and silver tulle veil; ornaments, pearls and diamonds.

The foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced in the order of their precedence, several presentations in the Diplomatic Circle took place; Viscount Palmerston and Lady Mary Wood officiated, in the unavoidable absence of Earl and Countess Russell. The Circle Diplomatique was attended by the Turkish Ambassador and Mdme. Musurus, the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi, the Russian Ambassador and Baroness Brunnow, the Prussian Ambassador, the French Ambassador and Baroness Baude, the Marquis and Marchioness d'Audigné, the Belgian Minister, the Bavarian Minister and Baroness de Cetto, the Italian Minister, the Netherlands Minister, the Portuguese Minister, the Saxon Minister, the Honduras Minister, the United States Minister, the Swedish and Norwegian Minister, the Spanish Minister and Mdme. Comyn, M. and Mdme. Merry del Val, the Hanseatic Minister, the Mexican Minister, the Persian Chargé d'Affaires, the Danish Chargé d'Affaires, M. C. A. Gosch and Mdme. Gosch, the Hanoverian Chargé d'Affaires and Baroness Blome, the Haytian Chargé d'Affaires, Lady Mary Wood, and Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust, K.C.H.

The following were among the more noticeable presentations in the general circle, which was well attended:—

The Duchess of Cleveland, by the Duchess of Roxburghe; the Countess of Coventry, on her marriage, by Lady Maria Ponsonby; the Countess of Mexborough, by Lady Sarah Lindsay; Viscountess Strangford, by the Marchioness of Clanricarde; Lady Susan Milbank, on her marriage, by the Marchioness of Carmarthen; Lady Barbara Chetwynd Stapylton, on her marriage, by Lady Cecilia Brinckman; Mrs. Crichton Stuart, on her marriage, by the Marchioness (Dowager) of Waterford; Mrs. George Grant Gordon, on her marriage, by Lady Francis Gordon; Mrs. A. L. Ricardo, on her marriage, by Lady Catharine Ricardo; Mrs. Sieveking, by the Marchioness of Carmarthen.

THE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

The King of the Belgians, attended by Count de Moerkerke, arrived at Dover, at seven o'clock on Thursday evening week, in the Belgique. The King was met, upon landing, by M. Van de Weyer, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Torrington, Colonel Pettit, and Mr. Latham. A Royal salute was fired from the castle battery. A guard of honour of the 37th Regiment lined the pier and the approach to the Lord Warden Hotel, where his Majesty passed the night. The King was loudly cheered by a large assemblage of spectators. His Majesty left Dover in a special train at ten o'clock the next morning. The King was conducted to the station by the Hon. James Byng, Mr. Teulon, and Mr. J. P. Knight, representing the South-Eastern Railway Company. The 60th Rifles, in garrison at Dover, furnished a guard of honour, by whom arms were presented on the appearance of his Majesty, the band playing the English National Anthem. Upon the departure of the King a Royal salute was fired from the heights, and the venerable Monarch graciously acknowledged the greetings of the numerous assemblage of spectators. The train, which was in the charge of Mr. J. P. Knight, arrived at London Bridge at twelve o'clock, and passed on to the junction at Waterloo. At this station the King was received by the Prince of Wales and by Major-General the Hon. Sir E. Cust. The Prince accompanied his Majesty to Windsor. The charge of the train was, at Waterloo station, undertaken by Mr. Goodson, the traffic superintendent, and Mr. Williams, general superintendent, of the South-Western Railway. The King was met at the Windsor station by Prince Alfred and Princess Helena. His Majesty proceeded at once to the castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

On Thursday week the Prince hunted with his harriers near Windsor. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses were present at a ball given by the French Ambassador at Albert-gate.

Yesterday week the Prince attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses dined with the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House.

On Saturday last the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, honoured Mr. Window, of Baker-street, with sittings for their portraits. The Princes afterwards visited Mr. Theed's studio and Mr. Barraud's picture of "Hyde Park in 1864." The Princess held a Drawingroom on behalf of the Queen at St. James's Palace, an account of which is given above.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service in the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. C. Packe, the Rev. F. Tarver, and the Lord Bishop of Ely officiated.

On Monday the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, hunted with his harriers near Staines. His Royal Highness arrived at Staines junction at a quarter to twelve o'clock, and was met at the station by Prince Alfred. The Princes rode through the village of Laleham to Littleton, the seat of Lieutenant-General T. Wood, where they were received by the General and Mrs. Wood. Their Royal Highnesses shortly after, accompanied by Lieutenant-General Wood, rode to the "meet." The Princes had a good day's sport. The Prince of Wales returned to London by the eleven minutes past five train from Reading. Prince Alfred returned to Windsor Castle. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, drove out. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured the Haymarket Theatre with their presence.

On Tuesday the Prince presided at a meeting of the Council of the Duchy of Cornwall, held at Marlborough House. There were present at the Council Lord Portman, Sir Wm. Dunbar, Sir Wm. John Alexander, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Lieutenant-General Knollys. Mr. Bateman, the secretary, attended as Clerk of the Council. The Prince afterwards attended the Queen's Court at Buckingham Palace. In the evening his Royal Highness, accompanied by Prince Alfred, honoured the Princess's Theatre with his presence.

On Wednesday the Prince visited the King of the Belgians at Buckingham Palace. The Princess, attended by Countess De Grey, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner-party. The company included Prince Alfred, the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe, the Earl of Hardwicke, the Earl of Malmesbury, Earl and Countess De Grey and Ripon, Lord Llanover, the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. H. and Mrs. Byng, Sir Edmund and Lady Head, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, Major Cowell, Lieutenant Haig, the Rev. C. T. Tarver, Dr. Bernhardt, and Mr. Holzmann. After dinner Mr. Thomas Gryffudd performed a selection of music on the Welsh triple-stringed harp.

Mr. Shepard has had the honour of submitting his new rifle to the Prince.

Countess De Grey has succeeded the Hon. Mrs. Bruce as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duke of Cambridge entertained the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Mary, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and the Countess of Dornberg, and a distinguished circle at dinner, yesterday evening week, at Gloucester House, Piccadilly.

His Excellency the French Ambassador gave his first ball for the season, on Thursday week, at the French Embassy, Albert-gate, and was honoured by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, Princess Mary, Prince Lucien Bonaparte, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Countess of Dornberg, Prince Tour and Taxis, Prince Furstenburg, the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, and a numerous circle of the élite of society. Dancing commenced at eleven o'clock. His Excellency the Prince de la Tour d'Auvergne was the partner of the Princess of Wales; the Duke of Cambridge took the hand of the Hon. Miss Jocelyn; Princess Mary was the partner of Baron de Baude; and the Prince of Wales took the hand of Baroness de Baude.

His Excellency the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi entertained a distinguished party at dinner, on Monday evening, at Chandos House. Later in the evening the Countess had an assembly.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff received a select party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at the Prussian Embassy, on Carlton House-terrace.

The Duchess of Somerset gave the last of the series of early dancing parties, on Wednesday, at the residence of the First Lord of the Admiralty, in Whitehall.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury gave a dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Arlington-street.

Viscountess Palmerston had a reception, on Saturday evening last, at Cambridge House. The reunion was attended by nearly 400 members of the diplomatic body and of the aristocracy.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

A marriage is arranged to take place between Major George Longley, R.E., second son of his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Mrs. Dawson, widow of the late Rev. Jonathan Dawson, of Leamington, and daughter of the Rev. G. Pearce, Vicar of Martham, Norfolk.

A marriage is arranged between Lady Anna Melville and Mr. Stirling, M.P.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishop of Ely purposes holding his next ordination in Ely Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, June 11.

The Earl of Durham is about to erect a church for the benefit of the pitmen of his Lordship's collieries; and it is stated that Mr. Bass, M.P., will erect a church at Burton-on-Trent, and another at Range Moor.

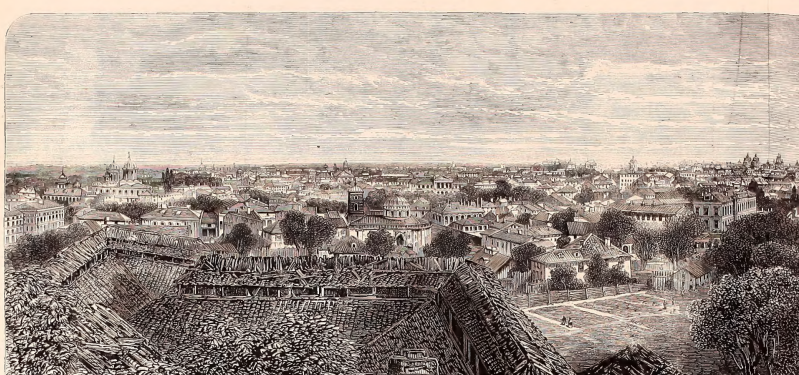
Saul Church, Gloucestershire, was consecrated on Tuesday week, after an expenditure of £1000 on its reconstruction, with the exception of the tower, south wall, and nave roof.

A new church recently built at Reddish, near Stockport, at a cost of about £2000, was consecrated by the Bishop of Manchester on Thursday week. The site of the church was given by the Messrs. Greig, who also subscribed to the funds.

The Church of St. Stephen, in the parish of St. Giles, Reading, was consecrated, on Thursday week, by the Bishop of Oxford. This is the second church which the energetic Vicar, the Rev. T. V. Fosbery, has carried to completion within a short time. The new church, which cost a little over £2000, is at the extreme north-east corner of the town.

The following is the list of preachers at the special services in St. Paul's for the month of April until Easter Sunday, when the Sunday-evening services will close:—April 2, the Rev. Charles Merivale, Chaplain to the House of Commons; April 9, Rev. A. B. Suter, Incumbent of All Saints', Spitalfields; April 16, Easter Sunday, Rev. W. Selwyn, Margaret Professor of Divinity, Cambridge.

In a convocation held at Oxford, yesterday week, the new examination statutes received the final approval of the House. In the same convocation the Vice-Chancellor was authorised to apply to Parliament for an Act enabling the University to vary and regulate by statute from time to time the application of the funds held under the will of Mr. Viner, notwithstanding the directions of the will, in such manner as may appear best calculated to promote the teaching and study of law in the University, provided that part of the income of such funds be always applied to the teaching of law, and the residue to the encouraging of the study of law by means of a scholarship or scholarships; and that the founder's name be retained in connection with his foundation.



A testimonial consisting of a pocket communion service and a purse containing one hundred guineas has been presented to the Rev. Henry Poole Marriott, B.A., by the congregation of St. Thomas's Church, Bendleton, near Manchester, on his resigning the curacy of that district. The children and others connected with the Sunday schools of that church have also presented him with a handsome timepiece.——The Rev. A. D'Arblay Burney, on his resigning the curacy of Walmersley, has received a handsome communion service from the teachers and scholars of Christ Church schools.

A public meeting was held in Huddersfield, on Thursday week, in behalf of the Church Extension Fund for that deanery. The Bishop of Ripon presided, and, in the course of his opening address, stated the following facts:—We have in Huddersfield a population of 58,215, eleven districts, twenty-two clergymen, and church accommodation for 11,454; Aldmonbury, 30,440 population, seven districts, nine clergymen, and 6358 church accommodation; Kirburton, 15,728 population, two districts, four clergymen, and 3000 church accommodation; Kirkheaton, 13,423 population, two districts, four clergymen, and only 1280 church accommodation. The grand total is 117,806 population, twenty-two districts, thirty-nine clergymen, and 22,092 church accommodation. The meeting was afterwards addressed by the Revs. Canon Holmes, R. Collins, and Lewis Jones; Messrs. C. Brook, G. Armitage, and J. Kaye. Resolutions were passed approving of the formation of a society with the object of promoting a large scheme of church extension. The following subscriptions were announced at the close of the meeting:—Mr. C. Brook, jun., £2000; Mr. J. Hirst, £1000; M. G. Armitage, £500; Mr. J. Kaye, £500; Mr. J. Haigh, Mayor of Scarborough, £500; Mr. J. W. Crosland, £500; Lieutenant-Colonel Crosland, £300; Mr. J. C. Laycock, £250; Mr. J. Hinchliffe, £100; Rev. C. Alderson, £100; Mr. F. R. Jones, sen., £200; Mr. T. Brook, £150; Bishop of Ripon, £50; Mr. H. Barker, £50; Mr. J. P. Dowse, £50: total, £6050.——At an earlier period of the day his Lordship delivered an address to between 500 and 600 of the workpeople of Messrs. Starkey, of Longroyd Bridge, in a new school which has been erected by the firm for the use of the workpeople and their children.

The newly-erected church in Down-street, Piccadilly, for the accommodation of the neighbourhood of Mayfair, was consecrated, on Monday, by the Bishop of London. An ecclesiastical district has been assigned to Christ Church out of St. George's, Hanover-square, and the Rev. William Cardwell, M.A., of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, formerly Vicar of Budbrook, Warwickshire, has been appointed Incumbent of the district. The portion of the building complete, which is in the French decorative Gothic style of architecture, has been erected by Mr. Fish, of Pimlico, from the designs of Messrs. Francis, at a cost of about £4500, which sum, with the exception of £500, has been already raised. There is now accommodation for 400 persons, which will be increased to about double that number upon the completion of the church, the total cost of which will be about £11,000.

A public meeting was held in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House on Tuesday, in aid of Church missionary exertions in Ireland. The Bishop of Kilmore moved the first resolution, to the effect that the meeting, acknowledging with gratitude the blessings of the great Scriptural truths set forth again at the Reformation, recognised the duty of extending the Gospel to the Roman Catholics of Ireland, and cordially supported the Society for Irish Church Missions as a valuable agency for that purpose. The motion was seconded by the Earl of Harrowby, and carried unanimously; and on the motion of Mr. R. N. Fowler, the banker, seconded by the Rev. Alexander Dallas, it was resolved to form an auxiliary branch in London of the parent society, with the Lord Mayor at its head. A subscription in aid of the funds of the society was made at the close of the meeting, the sum collected being £117, of which the Lord Mayor subscribed 20 guineas.

BUCHAREST, IN WALLACHIA, THE S

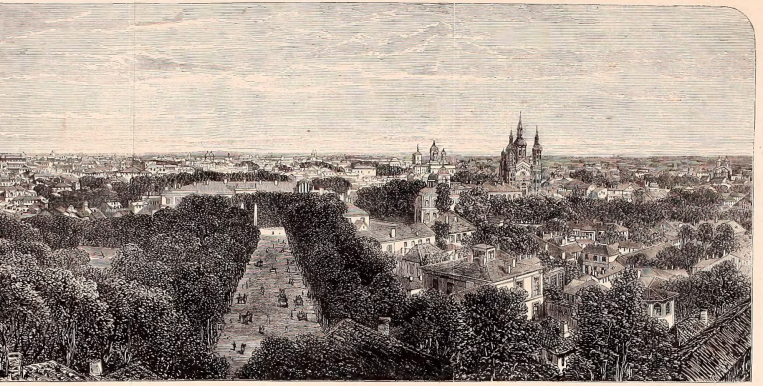
THE CITY OF

BUCHAREST, THE SCENE OF THE LATE DESTRUCTIVE FLOODS.

The city of Bucharest, the capital of the United Danubian Principalities of Wallachia and Moldavia, has just been visited by a great misfortune. The Dambowitza, a rivulet so unimportant in size that it can easily be forded in summer at almost any part, has been swollen by the enormous masses of snow which fell in February to such incredible proportions that the city now appears situated, not upon the banks lost in the centre of a mighty stream like the Danube itself. Nearly one half of the straggling extent of Bucharest is submerged, and the houses seem ranged less in streets than upon the borders of canals. Many of these houses continue to fall, as the waves wash huge bergs of ice and half-melted snow against the yielding walls. The disaster has chiefly overtaken the poorer class of the population, whose wretched huts border the banks of the river and constitute the low-lying quarters of the town, while the palaces and massive houses of the wealthy in the upper districts are comparatively safe. All the bridges are submerged, and intercourse with the sufferers (who have taken refuge in the upper stories of their houses, or, where these do not exist, have fled to the roofs) is only possible by means of boats and rafts. It is to be regretted that no precautions were taken by the Government to avert this misfortune. The unusual quantities of snow which fell last month rendered inundation certain, provided, as actually happened, the snow was succeeded by rapid thaw, with warm showers of rain. Nevertheless, when the first flood took place, upon the evening of the 15th, there was not a single boat or even a raft in readiness; but these means of escape had first to be hurriedly fetched from the dykes at Mogwrelli and Magoschoi. On the other hand, it seems that after the disaster every possible means were taken by the Government, the military, and the whole population to render assistance. Prince Couza, with an Aide-de-Camp, rode in person through the streets, to see where help was most required. M. Mauglionne, the Prefect of Police, has exhibited an indefatigable activity in organising measures for the rescue of the sufferers. The troops, especially the artillery and engineers, are employed upon rafts roughly put together, under the orders of their officers, in saving lives and property, and also in bringing provisions to those who cannot or will not leave their homes. Bread, meat, wine, and spirits are readily and voluntarily furnished by the wealthier inhabitants of the upper districts, and the unfortunate people who have been dislodged are received into the houses and palaces of the richer classes. Men of all classes and parties vie in the benevolent task of assisting their fellows. This is the only relief in the gloomy picture which presents itself to the observer who stands upon the brink of the torrent and sees ruins of houses, furniture, property, the corpses of men, and the dead bodies of animals borne rapidly past him by the flood.

We publish on this occasion a View of the city of Bucharest in its ordinary aspect and a few illustrations of the costumes of different classes of the population. They are engraved from photographs by M. Szathmari, of that city, for which we are indebted to an English resident, Dr. Mawer.

Bucharest itself—which name, in the Roumun language, means the City of Joy—is situated about forty miles from the banks of the Danube. It is built in a hollow, surrounded on every side by hills, and has at a distance a very pretty appearance, the houses being nearly all detached and having large courts and gardens belonging to them. The visitor must descend before he can realise the wretched state of the ill-paved streets, the dust, and the noxious odours but too often prevalent in an Eastern city. The public gardens, of which there are two, are exceedingly pretty, tastefully laid out, and well kept. The Chaussée garden, which is about half a mile beyond the barrier, is the public drive and promenade of the aristocracy, and on a summer's evening there are few capitals which can vie with this in the elegance of the equipages and the dress of the ladies: indeed, their dress rather exceeds what good taste would warrant. The Wallachians, as a nation, are quick, lively, and joyous. They are well educated, and, generally, good linguists, speaking French, German, and Greek with equal facility; but French is the language of the Court and upper classes. The Roumun or native language very much resembles the Italian, and evidently has the same Latin origin. The Wallachians claim to be an ancient Dacian colony of Rome. Their religion is the Greek faith, and there are said to be in Bucharest alone 363 churches. One of the greatest attractions is a pretty opera-house, and a tolerable troupe of Italian singers during the winter months; there is also a Wallachian and German theatre. The climate is in winter very severe, and there is often three months' continuous sledging; but the summer is warm, marking 85 deg. in the shade; this heat is compensated for by the quantity of fine melons and delicious grapes, which are to be had at a very moderate price. It is contemplated to introduce railways, English machinery, and many other improvements into the country; so that we may hope the day is not far distant when the streets will be tolerable for pedestrians, and the daily wants of a city numbering more than 150,000 inhabitants more quickly and easily supplied. The chief public buildings of Bucharest are—the palace of the ruler, Prince Couza, which is situated, with the metropolitan church, in a spacious square in the centre of the town—the "Fire Tower," which commands a view of the whole city, and where a watchman is continually stationed to give warning of the outbreak of any conflagra-



VINEGAR-SELLER.

A HOUSE AT BUCHAREST.

ENE OF THE LATE INUNDATION.

HAREST

tion—the churches, hospitals, monasteries, and a college of five hundred students. The picturesque and half-Oriental appearance of the figures shown in our smaller illustrations will not escape the reader's eye.

FINE ARTS.

A head of Apollo, said to be in the best style of Greek art, has been purchased for this country from the Pourtalès Collection.

The Art-Union of London, whose recent proceedings have been marked with such enterprising liberality, has undertaken to engrave Mr. Maclise's immense picture of the "Meeting between Wellington and Blucher after Waterloo," in the Westminster Palace.

During the alterations which are converting the Wolsey Chapel of St. George's, Windsor, into a memorial chapel to the late Prince Consort, three full-length portraits of Knights of the Garter were found behind as many stone slabs; and probably at least twenty more will be discovered behind the remaining slabs.

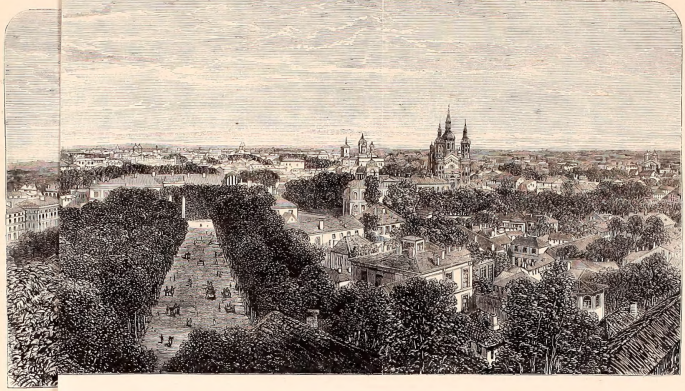
The building of the northern tower of the Cathedral of Cologne is steadily progressing; the nave (as we have already announced) has been opened up its entire length; seven very fine stained-glass windows have lately been inserted; and some of the houses which greatly impeded the view of the splendid pile have been removed or are in course of removal.

The disagreement between the Council of the Royal Horticultural Society and the Sculptors' Institute, to which we adverted last year, and which is understood to have caused some discords within those bodies respectively, will, we trust, no longer subsist. The subject of dispute was, it will be remembered, a condition attached to the exhibition of sculpture and competition for the prize purchase or purchases at the Horticultural Society's Gardens. The condition seemed to intimate an intention on the part of the council to take the reproduction of a model that might be purchased out of the hands of the sculptor of that model. If such was the intention, it was considered by the Sculptors' Institute to indicate a trading and unfair spirit, and, if acted upon, that it would be probably injurious to the reputation as well as the pecuniary interests of the contributors. In the announcement of the arrangements, according to which the Council of the Horticultural Society will receive sculpture (on or before the 15th day of April) for the exhibition of the approaching season, it must be admitted that there appears a desire to conciliate the sculptors and make all reasonable concessions. A portion of the invitation runs thus:—"Out of the exhibition of 1865 the council will make purchases to the value of £500, provided that new and original works of sufficient merit are exhibited under the conditions hereafter stated. As a general rule, it is desirable that all works should be finished works in plaster. But works in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, and other materials than bronze may be sent; the price of a separate plaster copy must be stated. The society especially desires that all works sent in should be distinctly labelled with the name of the subject and the artist's name and address, together with the price at which copies may be sold to the public in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, and plaster. When a plaster model is purchased by the council, they desire to be informed at what price the artist will supply another copy in marble, or bronze, or terra-cotta, or any other material. The copyright of making and disposing of other copies in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, &c., will remain with the artist. Artists of all nations are invited to send works." We hope to find this prospectus will prove satisfactory to sculptors. On comparing the facilities for the exhibition of sculpture at the Royal Academy with those presented by the terraces, glazed arches, and arcades of the Horticultural Society's Gardens, it seems very much to be deplored that the advantages offered by the latter should be neglected through any misunderstanding. Moreover, the desire of the council to diffuse and popularise the works they might purchase is creditable in itself, though the means of doing so at first proposed may have been ill-advised. Surely no better opportunity is likely to present itself for illustrating a most legitimate and delightfully tasteful employment of sculpture, its combination with the architecture and lovely natural products of the conservatory, the terraces, and parterres of the "dressed" or geometrical garden. But the scheme of an exhibition of sculpture at the South Kensington Horticultural Gardens is a legacy of the late Prince Consort, and the Queen has testified her interest in the gardens generally by commanding them to be opened free to all on the Prince's birthday. It is not likely, therefore, that the scheme will be suffered to become abortive.

At the meeting of the Society of British Artists for the election of members, held on Monday last, Messrs. Wyke Bayliss, T. C. Barnes, and E. Hayes were elected members.

The Queen's gold medal of the Institute of Architects has been given to Mr. Pennethorne, builder of the Record Office in Chancery-lane and architect to the Office of Works.

The sculptor Carl Rise, so well known by his statue of "The Amazon," in the Exhibition of 1862, was found dead in his bed at his residence at Berlin yesterday week. He had suffered for some time from congestion of blood to the head, and had long been resident at Karlsbad in order to obtain the benefit of the medicinal waters. The deceased professor, who was a Silesian by birth, was a member of the Berlin Academy of Arts.



GROUP OF CUSIGANS, OR GIPSIES.

ICED WATER AND SWEETMEAT SELLER.

HE LATE INUNDATION.

BUCHAREST, TH

The city of Buchar
palities of Wallachia
misfortune. The D
it can easily be fig swollen by the enorm such incredible pro upon the banks but itself. Nearly one merged, and the re borders of canals. M dash huge bergs of walls. The disaster
lation, whose wretch
the low-lying quart houses of the wealt
All the bridges are have taken refuge
do not exist, have and ruins. It is to Government to avert snow which fell las actually happened, showers of rain. T
the evening of the readiness; but thes from the dykes at it seems that after ls, monasteries, and a college of five resque and half-Oriental appearance of Smaller Illustrations will not escape the NE ARTS.

e in the best style of Greek art, has been m the Fountains Collection.
n, whose recent proceedings have been ing liberality, has undertaken to engrave re of the "Meeting between Wellington in the Westminster Palace. which are converting the Wolsey Chapel of a memorial chapel to the late Prince portraits of Knights of the Garter were stored; and probably at least twenty more remaining slabs.
ern tower of the Cathedral of Cologne is ve (as we have already announced) has arth; seven very fine stained-glass win-
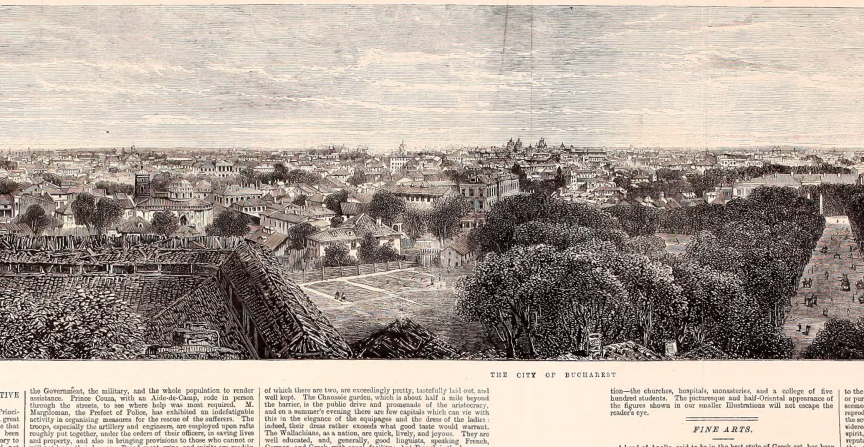
; and some of the houses which greatly ended pile have been removed or are in h the Council of the Royal Horticultural Institute, to which we adverted last year, to have caused some discords within will, we trust, no longer subsist. The ll be remembered, a condition attached to the exhibition of sculpture and competition for the prize purchase or purchases at the Horticultural Society's Gardens. The condition seemed to intimate an intention on the part of the council to take the reproduction of a model that might be purchased out of the hands of the sculptor of that model. If such was the intention, it was considered by the Sculptors' Institute to indicate a trading and unfair spirit, and, if acted upon, that it would be probably injurious to the reputation as well as the pecuniary interests of the contributors. In the announcement of the arrangements, according to which the Council of the Horticultural Society will receive sculpture (on or before the 15th day of April) for the exhibition of the approaching season, it must be admitted that there appears a desire to conciliate the sculptors and make all reasonable concessions. A portion of the invitation runs thus:—"Out of the exhibition of 1862 the council will make purchases to the value of £500, provided that new and original works of sufficient merit are exhibited under the conditions hereafter stated. As a general rule, it is desirable that all works should be finished works in plaster. But works in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, and other materials than bronze may be sent; the price of a separate plaster copy must be stated. The society especially desires that all works sent in should be distinctly labelled with the name of the subject and the artist's name and address, together with the price at which copies may be sold to the public in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, and plaster. When a plaster model is purchased by the council, they desire to be informed at what price the artist will supply another copy in marble, or bronze, or terra-cotta, or any other material. The copyright of making and disposing of other copies in marble, bronze, terra-cotta, &c., will remain with the artist. Artists of all nations are invited to send works." We hope to find this prospectus will prove satisfactory to sculptors. On comparing the facilities for the exhibition of sculpture at the Royal Academy with those presented by the terraces, glazed arches, and arcades of the Horticultural Society's Gardens, it seems very much to be deplored that the advantages offered by the latter should be neglected through any misunderstanding. Moreover, the desire of the council to diffuse and popularise the works they might purchase is creditable in itself, though the means of doing so at first proposed may have been ill-advised. Surely no better opportunity is likely to present itself for illustrating a most legitimate and delightfully tasteful employment of sculpture, its combination with the architecture and lovely natural products of the conservatory, the terraces, and parterres of the "dressed" or geometrical garden. But the scheme of an exhibition of sculpture at the South Kensington Horticultural Gardens is a legacy of the late Prince Consort, and the Queen has testified her interest in the gardens generally by commanding them to be opened free to all on the Prince's birthday. It is not likely, therefore, that the scheme will be suffered to become abortive.

At the meeting of the Society of British Artists for the election of members, held on Monday last, Messrs. Wyke Bayliss, S. C. Barnes, and E. Hayes were elected members.

The Queen's gold medal of the Institute of Architects has been given to Mr. Pennethorne, builder of the Record Office in Chancery-lane and architect to the Office of Works.

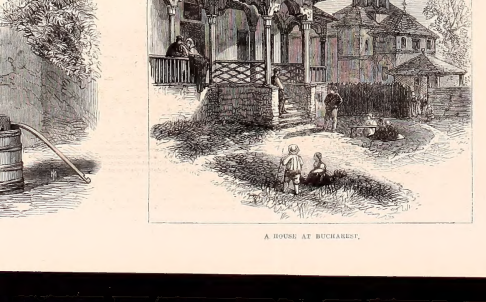


The sculptor Carl Kiss, so well known by his statue of "The Amazon," in the Exhibition of 1862, was found dead in his bed at his residence at Berlin yesterday week. He had suffered for some time from congestion of blood to the head, and had long been resident at Karlsbad in order to obtain the benefit of the medicinal waters. The deceased professor, who was a Silesian by birth, was a member of the Berlin Academy of Arts.

GROUP OF CHIGANS, OR GIPSIES.

ICED WATER AND SWEETMEAT SELLER.

BUCHAREST, IN WALLACHIA, THE SCENE OF THE LATE IN



THE CITY OF BUCHAREST

TIVE
rincigreat e that been ery to , not asable e sub-on the waves elding popu-ntitute nsive
y safe,
(who those hours by the tion of ful, as warm upon rsuit in ercised hand, ten by the Government, the military, and the whole population to render assistance. Prince Couza, with an Aide-de-Camp, rode in person through the streets, to see where help was most required. M. Macgilcoan, the Prefect of Police, has exhibited an indefatigable activity in organising measures for the rescue of the sufferers. The troops, especially the artillery and engineers, are employed upon rafts roughly put together, under the orders of their officers, in saving lives and property, and also in bringing provisions to those who cannot or will not leave their houses. Bread, meat, wine, and spirits are readily and voluntarily furnished by the wealthier inhabitants of the upper districts, and the unfortunate people who have been dislodged are received into the houses and palaces of the richer classes. Men of all classes and parties vie in the benevolent task of assisting their fellows. This is the only relief in the gloomy picture which presents itself to the observer who stands upon the brink of the torrent and sees ruins of houses, furniture, property, the corpses of men, and the dead bodies of animals borne rapidly past him by the flood.

We publish on this occasion a View of the city of Bucharest in its ordinary aspect and a few Illustrations of the costumes of different classes of the population. They are engraved from photographs by M. Szathmari, of that city, for which we are indebted to an English resident, Dr. Mover.

Bucharest itself—which name, in the Roumen language, means the City of Joy—is situated about forty miles from the banks of the Danube. It is built in a hollow, surrounded on every side by hills, and has at a distance a very pretty appearance, the houses being nearly all detached and having large courts and gardens belonging to them. The visitor must disregard before he can realise the wretched state of the ill-paved streets, the dust, and the noxious odours but too often prevalent in an Eastern city. The public gardens, of which there are two, are exceedingly pretty, tastefully laid out, and well kept. The Chaussée garden, which is about half a mile beyond the barrier, is the public drive and promenade of the aristocracy, and on a summer's evening there are few capitals which can vie with this in the elegance of the equipages and the dress of the ladies: indeed, their dress rather exceeds what good taste would warrant. The Wallachians, as a nation, are quick, lively, and joyous. They are well educated, and, generally, good linguists, speaking French, German, and Greek with equal facility; but French is the language of the Court and upper classes. The Roumen or native language very much resembles the Italian, and evidently has the same Latin origin. The Wallachians claim to be an ancient Dacian colony of Rome. Their religion is the Greek faith, and there are said to be in Bucharest alone 365 churches. One of the greatest attractions is a pretty opera-house, and a tolerable troupe of Italian singers during the winter months; there is also a Wallachian and German theatre. The climate is in winter very severe, and there is often three months' continuous sledging; but the summer is warm, marking 85 deg. in the shade; this heat is compensated for by the quantity of fine melons and delicious grapes, which are to be had at a very moderate price. It is contemplated to introduce railways, English machinery, and many other improvements into the country; so that we may hope the day is not far distant when the streets will be tolerable for pedestrians, and the daily wants of a city numbering more than 180,000 inhabitants more quickly and easily supplied. The chief public buildings of Bucharest are—the palace of the ruler, Prince Couza, which is situated, with the metropolitan church, in a spacious square in the centre of the town—the "Fire Tower," which commands a view of the whole city, and where a watchman is continually stationed to give warning of the outbreak of any conflagration—the churches, hospitals, monasteries, and a college of five hundred students. The picturesque and half-Oriental appearance of the figure shown in our smaller Illustrations will not escape the reader's eye.

A HOUSE AT BUCHAREST.

GROUP OF CIGEANS, OR GIPSIES.

FINE ARTS.

A head of Apollo, said to be in the best style of Greek art, has been purchased for this country from the Fountaine Collection.

The Art-Union of London, whose recent proceedings have been marked with much enterprising liberality, has undertaken to engrave Mr. Maclise's immense picture of the "Meeting between Wellington and Blucher after Waterloo," in the Westminster Palace.

During the alterations which are converting the Welsey Chapel of St. George's, Windsor, into a memorial chapel to the late Prince Consort, three full-length portraits of Knights of the Garter were found behind as many stone slabs; and probably at least twenty more will be discovered behind the remaining slabs.

The building of the northern tower of the Cathedral of Cologne is steadily progressing; the nave (as we have already announced) has been opened up its entire length; seven very fine stained-glass windows have lately been inserted; and some of the houses which greatly impeded the view of the splendid pile have been removed or are in course of removal.

The disagreement between the Council of the Royal Horticultural Society and the Sculptors' Institute, to which we adverted last year, and which is understood to have caused some discords within those bodies respectively, will, we trust, no longer subsist. The subject of dispute was, it will be remembered, a condition attached to the or pur sculpt reprod
the sc widers spirit,
reputa
This Cousin before season
the of th
the c that under it is d works may societ libelle addre public model prize cente of ob
the ar hope

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

Almost at the moment at which some remarks were penned for publication in this column last week purporting to exhibit Sir Henry Willoughby, member for the borough of Evesham, in a new and unwonted vein, that gentleman had ceased to live. Holding a peculiar position in the house—that of a really well-informed guardian of the public purse—and being completely versed in all the details of finance, his death will be a loss which it will not be easy to repair. There was a directness and simplicity in his action as a member of Parliament, and a knowledge of the subjects of which he treated, which gained for him a sober and respectful attention; and assuredly if anyone ever was entitled to the designation of an independent member it was he. Although no notice was publicly taken of his decease on the evening after it occurred, yet, by a tacit, universal assent, the particular seat which by prescriptive courtesy he always occupied was not taken by any other member; once and again, when anyone unthinkingly approached it, a sudden recollection caused him to check himself, and it was left altogether vacant.

Both Houses have now thoroughly relapsed into their normal characters. The Lords register the little that there is to register, and adjourn in ample time to afford the most elaborate preparation for dinner; and the Commons resume their old fitful habits, and dabble with business in the intervals of their clubbism, which is now in full play. Probably since the time of Wolfe the city of Quebec has not been so familiar in the mouths of Parliament men as it has been of late. Three several debates on the question of the defences of Canada, apropos of the funny little vote of £50,000 to render Quebec a place sufficiently dignified for a small British force to surrender to 200,000 Yankees, have followed each other with intervals of a day or two; and it will not be Lord Elcho's fault if there be not a fourth next week. The one with which we have now to do was initiated by Mr. Bentinck, who, unconsciously and perhaps unwillingly, was the instrument of eliciting still more emphatically than ever the doctrine that England is no longer in a position to enter into a war with any nation stronger than Brazil, Greece, or Hayti. The House of Commons has again rung with this singular manifesto; and Mr. Lowe's notions of the power of this country have once more been illustrated by the most energetic eloquence, rising to unwonted declamation, which burst out of a mass of satire and irony, mingled with that sort of logical argument by which a great master of this kind of ratiocination was able to prove to demonstration that no such person as Napoleon Bonaparte ever existed. Again, after a long struggle with himself, the signs of which were palpable all the evening, Mr. Bright was at length obliged to give way to the triumph which was kindling within him, when he found that his principles and ideas on this question were openly avowed by many and tacitly adopted by the great majority. So far as England is concerned, that millennial period would seem, in the opinion of most of the members of the House of Commons, to be nigh, when swords are to be turned, not into reaping-hooks, but into spindles, shuttles, and cranks, and when the conventional British lion is really to lie down with any lamb which he may find uneaten by a population which, tremendously strong to work, has no faculty for fighting. The surprise of Mr. Bentinck when he found that he was the author of a motion which was used actually to indorse such sentiments was most amusing; and his start which followed Mr. Bright's chuckling announcement that they would be in the same lobby together was dramatic. In vain did Mr. Bentinck try to flounder out of the trap into which he had fallen; in vain did he endeavour to withdraw his motion; his betrayers had him in their toils, and it was only by a mighty physical effort—that is, by walking out of the house and not voting at all—that he extricated himself from a situation in which he began to look a trifle ludicrous. This time Mr. Disraeli did not receive the enforced commendations of Mr. Bright; for, though he, too, yielded to the prevailing influence and declined to dare all for England, and agreed that Canada could not be defended—in Canada—he took the plucky line and spoke brave words, quite enough to bring out a declaration of renewed want of confidence by the member for Birmingham. In this debate there was a Parliamentary resurrection. Six or seven years ago a certain Viscount Bury was one of the most rising debaters in the house, and used to bring forward embarrassing motions, argue them fluently and with point, and carry them to divisions. When the present Government came into office, instead of becoming at least an Under Secretary, he was splendidly entombed in blue and gold in an office in the Royal household, and since then has scarcely, if at all, opened his mouth until the other night, when he made a speech in which his personal experiences as a military man in Canada were developed, but which showed how much disuse had marred his powers of debate.

There seemed to be some doubt in Mr. Villiers's mind on Monday night, when he was bringing forward the second reading of the Union Chargeability Bill, whether he was not leading a Parliamentary forlorn hope. The country members mustered so strongly and looked so ominous that he was justified in any fear he might have experienced of a defeat. As it turned out, any apprehension he might have felt was groundless, for amongst the squirearchy there were a number of members who played just the part which Lord Stanley did at the Battle of Bosworth Field—siding at critical moments of the debate, and still more efficiently in the division, with the Ministerial project. These defections were palpably annoying to some of the ruling spirits of boards of guardians, and such quiet respectabilities as Sir John Trollope and Sir William Miles really got into such passions as they may be supposed to give way to when a medical officer of a union asks for an increase of £10 a year to his salary—one of the highest crimes and misdemeanours known to poor-law administration. On this occasion, as on a subsequent one on the next night, when Mr. Baillie Cochrane, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Roebuck got to loggerheads, and bounced about in defiance of all order and regularity, the Speaker seemed to have taken occasion to vindicate his position and authority, which had been seriously assailed and impugned—of course, by Mr. Hennessy, at one of those late moments of the sittings of the House when he is most mischievous, not to say elvish. If, as it appears, the Speaker has come to a determination to stand upon his dignity, and to rely less on his good-nature and forbearance than he has been accustomed to do, the right hon. gentleman may be congratulated. It was time.

Another phase of Mr. Gladstone's scheme of political ambition has been developed. He has declared himself against the Established Church in Ireland as an institution—in the abstract. If that carefully measured and modulated speech which he delivered on Mr. Dillwyn's motion means anything, it means that, in that fulness of time when the Palmerston drag is no longer put upon the Gladstone coach, he will drive straight over the Irish Church. A more decided invitation to the people of this country to get rid of any tender leaning or prejudice in favour of that establishment which may at present impede the free action of Government towards it could not have been invented. Emphatic was the declaration that the policy towards the Irish Church was a policy not of the present, but of the future—a future more or less proximate, and of which Gladstone is to be the arbiter. Speaking, as he did, in the presence of the Primate of All Ireland (the Archbishop of Armagh was sitting under the gallery), nothing could be more distinct than his warning to that Prelate to set his house in order. The cheers of the Liberals on the seats below one gangway, and of the Irish members on those below the other, must have helped to drive Mr. Whiteside into that frenzy to which, after an ineffectual struggle with it, he gave way, and which caused him to deliver a speech accompanied by such physical demonstration that he seemed to be striving to free himself from one of those "tomfool's knots" into which the Davenport Brothers decline to be tied. The sense of the House that the question is practically settled may be gathered from an exclamation which was made when it was proposed to adjourn the debate to the 2nd of May, to the effect that the 2nd of September would be a more appropriate day.

Anyone who is accustomed to examine the notice-papers of the House of Commons must be convinced of the tendency to over-legislate for Ireland. It seems to be a belief that the minutest concern of life in that country should be regulated by Act of Parliament. Not long ago there was actually a notice for leave to bring in a bill "to discourage the growth of certain weeds in Ireland." What became of it no one knows. Well, on Wednesday there was as solemn and serious a debate as one could be, in which Sir Robert Peel and Mr. Scully took active parts, on a bill the object of which is to protect the three million of sheep which pasture in Ireland against the million and a half of dogs that run half wild, and yelp, and madden through the land. To be sure, there seems to be some justification for the measure when it is gravely asserted that a county in Ireland was about to be brought under a rigid penal enactment, on the supposition that what was in reality only the ravages and depredation of the dogs was an organised system of agrarian outrage. Any way, judging from the tone of the debate alluded to, there seems to be a determination to let loose the Irish constabulary on the Irish dogs, if that splendid force can find time for such an undignified crusade.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

The Royal assent was given by commission to the Consolidated Fund (£175,650) Bill, the Game Licenses (Ireland) Bill, the Industrial Exhibitions Bill, the Dublin International Exhibition (1865) Bill, and the British Kaffraria Bill.

The Westminster Improvements Bill and the Waterford and Passage Railway and Ferry Bill were read a second time.

The Wexford Harbour Embankment Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Marquis of Westmeath called attention to the case of a girl named Catherine Gauchran, who, he said, had been beaten by her friends because she refused to renounce Protestantism. He moved for papers on the subject. The motion was agreed to.

The Colonial Naval Defence Bill—a measure providing for the formation in the colonies of a force somewhat resembling our Royal Naval Reserve—was read a second time.

The Private Bill Costs Bill passed through Committee.

The Affirmation (Scotland) Bill and the Perth Provisional Order Confirmation Bill were read a third time and passed.

On the report of amendments to the Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill, the Earl of Longford moved the re-insertion of a clause which had been struck out by the Select Committee to whom the bill had been referred, on the ground that the bill as it stood would be prejudicial to the interests of small Irish railways; but upon a division the motion was negatived by 21 to 18, and the report was received.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

The Hastings and St. Leonards Gas Bill, the Oswestry Local Board Bill, the Ross Improvement Bill, and the Shrewsbury and North Wales Railway Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Lyme Regis Junction Railway Bill was withdrawn.

An animated discussion arose on the report of Supply in consequence of Lord Elcho's endeavouring to get a time fixed for bringing on a discussion on the feeling of the Canadian Parliament on the subject of the defence of the colony, in which Mr. Bentinck, Mr. Hennessy, Lord Palmerston, and the Speaker took part, the point involved being one of order and regularity of proceeding. Ultimately the resolution was agreed to.

Another discussion arose on the Mutiny Bill, originated by Lord Hotham, in reference to courts-martial; but eventually the bill passed through Committee.

The Marine Mutiny Bill also passed through Committee.

The Isle of Man Disafforestation (Compensation) Bill was read a second time.

The Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) Provisional Orders Confirmation Bill passed through Committee.

The Herring Fisheries (Scotland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Consolidated Fund (£15,000,000) Bill was read a second time.

Leave was given to Mr. Blake to introduce a bill to amend the laws relating to grand juries in Ireland.

Mr. Peel obtained leave to bring in a bill to enable her Majesty's Postmaster-General to acquire a site for the extension of the General Post Office in St. Martin's-le-Grand, in the city of London.

THE UNION CHARGEABILITY BILL.

Mr. Villiers moved the second reading of this bill, the object of which is to make the poor rates on all parishes in a union uniform. The measure was in the direction of recent legislation. The approved scheme of the new poor law was to have a larger area than the parish as a basis for the management of the poor. The evils of the parochial system were manifold, and required amendment. At some length he sketched the course of legislation in reference to the law of settlement and union rating, and stated the result of all inquiry into the matter. That result was wholly in favour of extending the area of rating. He believed this bill would be a benefit to the poor and put the parochial system into a more healthy state. It did not propose to reduce the rates, but to change a system which must be changed. He condemned a proposition which had been made by Sir R. Knightley in a circular sent to guardians of the poor that £2,000,000 should be voted out of the Consolidated Fund to relieve close parishes. He knew it was said that this measure was intended to benefit the towns at the expense of the rural districts. He denied that. The object was to benefit the poor and change a bad system. He concluded by urging the House to discuss the bill as one of great importance.

Sir R. Knightley moved that, "Considering the little knowledge this House possesses as to the practical working of the Irremovable Poor Act of 1861, it is inexpedient, without further information, to legislate on the subject of union rating during the present Session." He opposed the bill because it mulcted the proprietors in thinly-populated parishes for the benefit of distant parishes. What they heard about labourers walking a long way to their work was all twaddle. The money of the men was spent in the parish where they resided, and there they ought to be supported should they become paupers. The bill would also injure the labourer himself, and he believed its effect would be to fill workhouses and gaols, to increase poor rates, and diminish the few remaining comforts of the people.

Mr. J. B. Stanhope urged further inquiry before proceeding with the bill. Its effect would be to change the condition of the poor and to redistribute the charge upon land. Neither would be done satisfactorily, and he should support the amendment.

Sir E. Dering contended the House should have more information before it read the bill a second time. He believed some of its provisions were of a very doubtful character.

Mr. Staniland supported the bill as an extension of the Act of 1861. He believed it would do much good.

Mr. Bentinck opposed it as being too favourable for towns.

Mr. Hodgkinson believed the measure to be absolutely necessary to remedy the injustice of the present system.

Sir W. Jolliffe approved of the principle of the bill, and therefore should not vote for the amendment. The present system encouraged the unskilled, the idle, and the drunken labourer. This would be changed by the bill, and it would distribute more justly the burdens borne by the country for the maintenance of the poor.

Lord Henley supported the bill as a most necessary extension of the Act of 1861. He believed the bill would be of great benefit to the agricultural parishes.

Mr. Scourfield did not wholly approve of the bill. He would not vote against the second reading directly, but he was inclined to support the amendment.

Mr. Tollemache, though it would bring him into great unpopularity in the district which he represented, should support the bill.

Mr. Scully and Mr. Pugh supported the bill.

Mr. Floyer believed it would diminish the local and personal supervision by the guardians. He thought more consideration was required before passing the bill.

Mr. Thompson also urged the postponement of the measure.

Mr. Bernard strongly supported the bill, as calculated to confer great benefits on the poor.

Sir J. Trollope, Mr. Adderley, and Sir W. Miles opposed the bill; which was supported by Mr. Neate, Mr. Warner, and Mr. Walter.

After a few words from Mr. Sclater-Booth and Sir R. Clifton, Mr. Henley strongly opposed the bill, as did Mr. Newdegate and Mr. Ferrand.

The adjournment of the debate was moved and negatived, and the bill was read a second time by 203 votes to 131.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

The Herring Fisheries (Scotland) Bill was read a first time.

The Colonial Naval Defence Bill passed through Committee.

The Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Ireland) Act (1848) Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed; as also were the Liverpool United Gas Bill, the Great Southern and Western Railway Bill, the Kington and Eardisley Railway Bill, and the Carmarthen and Cardigan Railway Bill.

Some returns were, on the motion of the Earl of Donoughmore, ordered relating to the status and promotion of officers in the Indian Army.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

On the motion of Mr. Hennessy, leave was given to introduce a bill to repeal the Act of the 6th of Anne, chap. 11 (Irish Act).

The Married Woman's Property (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee.

The Union Officers (Ireland) Superannuation Bill was considered as amended.

The Marine Mutiny Bill and the Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) Provisional Orders Confirmation Bill were read a third time and passed.

The East India (Governor-General's Powers, &c.) Bill, the East India High Courts Bill, and the Consolidated Fund (£1,500,000) Bill passed through Committee.

After some "personal explanations," in which Mr. Baillie Cochrane, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Roebuck were concerned, Mr. Darby Griffith moved for a Select Committee to inquire whether any legal enactment or the interests of the public service required that the office of Postmaster-General should be exclusively held by a peer. The motion was opposed by Mr. F. Peel; and, without further discussion, was withdrawn.

THE IRISH CHURCH.

Mr. Dillwyn then moved his resolution affirming that the position of the Irish Church Establishment is unsatisfactory, and calls for the early attention of her Majesty's Government.

The O'Donoghue seconded the resolution.

It was opposed by Sir G. Grey, who said that the Government were not prepared to submit to Parliament a measure for carrying out what was the real object of the members for Swansea and Tralee—the entire abolition of the Irish Establishment. In the abstract, a national church which represented only a minority of the people was indefensible; but the Irish Church was an institution resting on the unbroken prescription of centuries, and its dismemberment would entail upon the country "all the horrors of a revolution."

Mr. Hardy having spoken against the motion,

Mr. Gladstone entered into the whole question of the Irish Church. He admitted the first of Mr. Dillwyn's propositions—that the state of the Irish Establishment is unsatisfactory; but, having regard to the difficulties which stand in the way of the removal of the anomalies, which he could not help recognising, he was not prepared to give his assent to the declaration that the question calls for the early attention of the Government.

Mr. Whiteside denied that the Roman Catholics of Ireland had any just reason to complain of the Established Church in that country; because, although it enjoyed all the endowments, they had £30,000 a year for the College of Maynooth, £240,000 for secular education, in addition to chaplains of their own faith in the Army and Navy, in workhouses, gaols, and reformatories. The Protestants of Ireland supported the Crown and the power of England, and the day that witnessed the overthrow of their Church Establishment would also witness the dissolution of the union between the two countries.

After some observations from Mr. Grant Duff, Mr. Cogan, Mr. Pollard Urquhart, and Sir F. Heygate,

Mr. Göschen moved the adjournment of the debate, which, on a division, was carried in the affirmative by 221 to 106.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Wednesday.

The Small Benefices (Ireland) Act, 1860, Amendment Bill passed through Committee.

The Mutiny Bill was read a third time and passed, as was the Consolidated Fund, £15,000,000, Bill.

The Married Women's Property (Ireland) Bill, as amended, was considered.

The Lords' amendments in the Affirmations (Scotland) Bill were considered and agreed to.

The Sheep and Cattle Bill, the object of which is to assimilate the law relating to the protection of animals against the attacks of dogs in England to that of Ireland and Scotland, was, after considerable discussion, read a second time.

Chemists and Druggists Bill.—Sir F. Kelly moved the second reading of this bill, the object of which is to provide against the danger of unqualified persons adopting the trade of chemists and druggists. It was proposed that persons undertaking to dispense medicines and make up prescriptions should be subjected to an examination, and on a certificate of fitness be registered by the Pharmaceutical Society, the examination to be conducted by that society.—Sir J. Shelley, who had a bill with a like title on the paper for second reading, which, besides establishing a council of chemists to appoint examiners by whom aspirants to the trade should be tested, also proposed to regulate the sale of poisons, said it was not proposed to interfere with the sale of ordinary drugs. He urged that the ramifications of the Pharmaceutical Society were not sufficiently wide to entitle it to the position it would occupy under Sir F. Kelly's bill; while the examination proposed was calculated to exclude many persons from the trade.—In a debate which ensued, Sir G. Grey said that it was desirable that both bills should be referred to a Select Committee, with a view to making one complete measure out of them.—Both bills were read a second time and referred to a Select Committee.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

The Colonial Naval Defence Bill was read a third time and passed.

Metalliferous Mines.—Lord Kinnaird, moving the first reading of a bill having reference to the regulation of mines, drew attention to the great mortality existing among metal-miners, owing to the want of ventilation and the habitual wetness of their clothes. This bill was for the purpose of putting a stop to the fearful state of things now existing. He brought in the bill on his own responsibility. He suggested that there should be a board or a department and a Secretary of State. At present the mines are under the Home Office. He suggested that they should be under something similar to the railway board of the Board of Trade, and that the board should have opportunity of inquiring into the state of the mines, and have power to enforce what was necessary for the health and safety of the miners.—The bill was read a first time.

The Saffron-hill Murder.—Lord Houghton asked whether, if Serafino Pelizzioni, now lying in prison, respited by her Majesty, were arraigned for a new offence, care would be taken that he should have all the opportunities and advantages of defence, just in the same way as he would have if at liberty.—After a few remarks from Earl Granville, which were inaudible in the reporters' gallery, the Lord Chancellor said that the prisoner would have ample means of defending himself.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

Mr. Brand moved for a new writ for the election of a member for the county of Louth, in the room of Mr. Bellew, who has been appointed a commissioner for the relief of the poor in Ireland; and Colonel Taylor moved for a new writ for the election of a member for the borough of Evesham, in the room of Sir H. P. Willoughby, deceased. Both motions were agreed to.

Sir J. Shelley asked the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his attention had been directed to the report of an inquest held at the Strand Union on the body of Mr. George Drake, from which report it appears that this gentleman, in an apoplectic condition, was taken there by the police, supposed by them to be of unsound mind from drink, and left without any information by what means he came into their hands; and whether he would cause a communication to be forwarded to the police authorities requiring that, in future, when any sick person, incapable of giving any explanation of his or her condition, be taken to a union infirmary, all the facts bearing on the case which the police could furnish should be forwarded in writing with the patient for the guidance and information of the medical officer.—Sir G. Grey said he had communicated with the magistrate, and found that the police only did what they were bound to do under the circumstances. He would consider the other points.

Mr. H. Tracy asked the Secretary to the Admiralty whether it was true that the chaplains' quarterly reports had been abolished; and, if so, what had been substituted in lieu thereof.—Mr. Childers said the chaplains' quarterly reports had been abolished; but all the information hitherto attainable was contained in the annual reports, and in the inspectors' returns.

Courts of Justice Concentration (Site) Bill.—Mr. Lygon resumed the debate on going into Committee on this bill, and moved that the bill be recommitted, with instructions to the Committee that they inquire into the capability of the Thames Embankment as the site for the proposed law courts. The Government, he said, proposed to expend £670,000 on a site which was entirely inadequate for the purpose.—Sir H. Cairns expressed a hope that the House would not assent to Mr. Lygon's motion, which would be to defeat the motion for the present Session.—Mr. Malins also objected to Mr. Lygon's proposal.—Mr. H. Seymour supported it.—Mr. Cowper thought the opposition to the bill was of the weakest possible description, and that anyone who fairly inquired into the matter would be convinced of the necessity of adopting the Carey-street site.—After some remarks from Mr. A. Mills and Mr. Crawford, the amendment was negatived without a division, and the House went into Committee on the bill.—The clauses were agreed to after very little discussion.

The Court of Chancery (Ireland) Bill, which was a measure to recast the Irish Court of Chancery according to the recommendations of the Commission appointed to inquire into the subject, was next considered in Committee. The discussion of its provisions occupied nearly the remainder of the night.

Mr. Baxter, M.P., is at present in Spain, with a view, it is stated, to improve the commercial relations between that country and this.

A new china egg-cup has been introduced into France. The cup is half of a hollow sphere, resting on a thin square entablature which is supported by caryatides representing Julius Cæsar, Charlemagne, and Napoleons I. and III. When the egg is in the cup the figures appear to be supporting a globe.

In the biographic notice of Mr. John Hawkshaw, C.E., which appeared in our Journal of Saturday week, the visit he paid two years ago to Egypt, for the purpose of reporting on the Suez Canal, was overlooked. In his published report relative to that great project, Mr. Hawkshaw strongly advocated its practicability in an engineering sense, and his views are now almost universally adopted by the profession, and have turned the current of opinion in favour of a measure previously so much discussed and ridiculed, even in what were deemed the highest engineering quarters.

The abstract for the year 1863 of the returns made of the wrecks and casualties which occurred on the coasts of the United Kingdom has been issued. It shows that the number of wrecks and casualties on the coasts of the United Kingdom in 1863 was 1664. The annual average number of casualties during the eight years ending 1862 was 1298. The corrected annual average for the nine years ending December, 1863, is 1339. This increase is attributed to the more perfect machinery now in existence for collecting wreck statistics, and to a comparatively steady increase in the number of coasting vessels. Of the total number of casualties, 331 were casualties arising by collision, and 1333 from other causes. Of the 1333 casualties, 503 resulted in total losses, and 830 in damage more or less serious. Of the 503 total losses from causes other than collision, 332 only were caused by stress of weather; sixty-one were caused by carelessness, incompetency, and neglect; thirty-one from unseaworthiness or defects in the ship or her equipments; and sixty-five from various accidental causes. Of the partial losses other than collision, 550 were caused by stress of weather; 115 by carelessness, incompetency, and neglect; thirty from unseaworthiness; and 126 from accidental causes. Half the ships meeting with casualties were colliers. As usual, by far the greater number of casualties occurred on the east coast. The tables accompanying the report show that, during the year, 620 lives were lost, but that there had been only six cases in which casualties had been attended with a loss of ten or more lives. Of lives saved here were 5096—a large increase upon that of any former year.

THE FARM.

The Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society begins a second series with this year, and begins it well. Its first article is on the Agricultural College at Cirencester, which originated, it seems, in an address by the late Mr. Robert Jeffries Brown to the Cirencester and Fairford Farmers' Club in the November of '42. It was duly incorporated in 1845, and at present upwards of £50,000 has been expended on it. A farm of 400 acres is attached to it, on which Fowler's steam engine, plough, and cultivator, and all the most improved implements are at work, and there is accommodation within the walls for eighty-five students. Mr. Cadle gives a very exhaustive essay on the management of orchards, and states, among a number of other facts, that where apples are grown on a limestone soil the cider is pale in colour and of inferior quality; and that if orchards cannot have a southern they should have a western aspect. Cleft-grafting is recommended; and, as far as the choice of varieties permits, the trees should be grafted in rows, so that one row is assigned to a wide-spreading sort, and the next to one of more upright growth. They should be pruned every year when they are young, and every third year afterwards, at the very least. The orchards should be manured once in five or six years, and washing the body and limbs of the tree with a mixture of lime and cowdung has been found efficacious in preventing the growth of moss. The most elaborate paper is by Professor Simonds, "On Parasites and Parasitic Diseases as affecting Domesticated Animals." Lois Weedon wheat with horse or steam tillage finds an historian in Mr. Clarke; and Mr. Scott Skirving gives his experience of Ten Years of East Lothian Farming. The Rev. J. L. Brereton observes, with respect to agricultural education, "There can be no greater difficulty about exercising a class of young men in estimating the weight of animals than in training a squad of riflemen to judge distance." In a letter to the editor, Mr. H. S. Thompson gives it as his opinion that manure made under cover is improved in value one third, and thus deals with the question of cost, which varies to some extent with the kind of roof adopted. "I have ascertained by trial that a substantial roof, covered with ordinary roofing tiles, may be erected for 5s. per superficial yard of ground roofed over. Each superficial yard of covered space will on a well-stocked farm produce annually a cubic yard of well-made manure, worth, if the animals be well fed, at least 5s.; consequently, if manure made under cover be one third better than that made in the open air, the outlay of every 5s. in roof will produce 1s. 8d. per annum—in other words, will leave interest at the rate of thirty-three per cent—independently of the improved condition of the stock and the saving in the cartage of manure."

Mr. Hugh Aylmer has caught Mr. Stearn very neatly respecting the assertion in his pig lecture that he had never yet seen a good pig bred in Norfolk. He reminds him that they showed pens of breeding sows against each other at Lynn last year and that Mr. Stearn's two pens were beaten by his pen, which was bred in that county. The Shropshire men have also assumed an attitude of protest against the New Smithfield Club rule which excludes "Shrops" above two years old from competition. They consider that this resolution bears hardly upon those farmers who have been carrying on their sheep for show, and that much earlier notice should have been given. Bury and Ipswich are biting their glove at each other on the subject of the Royal Agricultural venue in 1866. Norwich also relies in a measure on the dubious Newcastle precedent of last year, and "the pleasant town of Lynn" has determined to show fight, and has gathered up the £2000 with an ease which is truly surprising. Two rival makers continue their prize-ploughing polemics, but have now to pay for the luxury of such long-range fighting.

The Fawsley shorthorn herd of twenty head was sold by Mr. Strafford on Tuesday last, and averaged a trifle under £40. The cow Polytint (62 gs., Sir G. Philips) and the heifer Maidenhair (61 gs., Mr. Freeman), both of them daughters of Cornbind, made the highest prices. Sir George gave 52 gs. for Lactea, another daughter of Cornbind, and Mr. Freeman 51 gs. for Nymphalin, a daughter of Sylphide; and the ten months' calf Columbia, of the London Pride tribe, was knocked down at 52 gs. to Lord Exeter's agent. The dozen of the Cornbind tribe (one of them a thirteen days' bull-calf) averaged £38 18s. 9d.; four of the London Pride, £37 10s. 9d.; and four of the Pintail, £44 7s. 3d. None of them were reserved, and when we mentioned five a fortnight since, we really meant to refer to the previous sale. Captain Spencer was, we regret to hear, so dangerously ill that he was unable to officiate in his maiden sale at Althorpe on Wednesday. However, he found a most loyal friend in Mr. Carr, of Stackhouse, who took out a license and acted as his proxy. There was a severe snowstorm during part of the time, which was against the sale, and the average was a little over 30 gs. for the thirty-three head. Colonel Lindsay, and Messrs. J. N. Beasley, Hemmings, and Hughes were the chief buyers. A large gathering is expected at Childwick Hall, near St. Albans, on Wednesday, when Mr. Fawcett's herd of sixty strong will be put up by Mr. Strafford. Mr. Atherton's herd has received several additions—to wit, "Atherton's Oxford" by Lord Oxford 2nd from Annette, a pure Bates cow. He is going on, we believe, for Plymouth. There is also "British Cherry" from Southwicke Cherry (own sister to Southwicke Cherry Flower, which cost 100 gs. at the last Southwicke sale), "Lord Cherry" from Cherry Empress, and "Duke of Sunderland" from Wild Flower, of the Wild Eyes sort. The two last named have been sold into Cumberland and Durham respectively. The heifer-calf additions are "Fennel 5th" from Fennel 3rd, and "Lord Oxford's Princess" from Princess Alice; and the herd now numbers twenty females. With the exception of Fennel 5th by Cherry Duke 2nd, we believe that all the above calves are by Lord Oxford 2nd.

The Sheep Protection Bill for Ireland brought out some strange disclosures as to the number of dogs in the country. The police killed 7324 in '63; but this is a mere fraction of these "modern wolves," of which Sir F. Heygate considers that there are fully a million; while Sir Robert Peel sets them at twice or thrice that amount. Taking the Chief Secretary and Mr. Donnelly's returns as correct, there are fully two to every sheep. The bill was read a second time; but it is to be withdrawn in case the Chief Secretary's bill on the subject is approved. Some members objected to the license being set so low as half a crown for one dog. Mr. Fenwick's Sheep and Cattle Worrying Bill, which dispenses with proof of the scienter in England, was also read a second time; so that the owners of "dogs with tickets of leave," as Mr. Justice Crompton puts it, had rather a bad night in Parliament on Tuesday.

The Grand National Steeplechase—in which "farmers or farmers' sons" are all qualified to ride, and farmers occupying 100 acres or more in the United Kingdom only pay half entrance for horses their own property—held its second anniversary, at Wetherby, on Wednesday. Thirty horses came to the post, being two more than started last year; and the owner of Breadalbane won this his first race with Emperor by Orpheus, ridden by the well-known Northamptonshire farmer, Mr. Alick Goodman. Cooksboro', the disqualified winner of last year, was fifth; and twelve out of the lot passed the winning-post. The members of the Bramham Hunt went heart and pocket into the matter. There was no casualty of any kind, and the general arrangements and selection of the line did great credit to Captain Gunter and the rest of the county gentlemen who specially looked after them.

RUGBY HUNT AND GRAND MILITARY MEETING.—Monday.

Challenge Cup.—Remedy, 1. Jerusalem, 2. Peeping Tom, 3.
Rugby Open Handicap Steeplechase.—Rattlesnake, 1. Ladbrooke Lass, 2. Blackrock, 3.
Farmers' Plate.—Fugleman, 1. Lord of the Manor, 2. Darkie, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Bachelor of Arts, 1. Who Dare Say Boo, 2. Perfect Cure, 3.
Welter Stakes.—Remedy, 1. Kate, 2. Winnifred, 3.
Scurry Steeplechase.—Mary Ann, 1. Vanity, 2.

CHELMSFORD SPRING MEETING.—Tuesday.

Trial Stakes.—Troublesome, 1. Lytham, 2. Regina, 3.
Two-Year-Old Plate.—Miss Bowyer, f., 1. Ambition, 2. Fickle, 3.
Belhus Selling Stakes.—Neilgherry, 1. Thais, 2. Gauntlet, 3.
Chelmer Handicap.—Greenland, 1. Grace Darling, 2. Jevington, 3.
Hyde Plate.—Fickle, 1. Frileuse, 2.
Abbot's Stakes.—Kangaroo, 1. Forester, 2. His Royal Highness, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Boreham Plate.—Miss Bouzer, f., 1. Herald, 2. Maid of Usk, 3.
Stand Handicap Plate.—Bittern, 1. Lady Kinghorne, 2. Gauntlet, 3.
Springfield Selling Stakes.—Kingmaker, 1. Thais, 2. Pam be Civil, 3.
Essex Stakes.—Troublesome, 1. Lytham, 2. Brother to Rubini, 3.
Roding Stakes.—Canzonetta walked over.
Fairlands Handicap.—Brother to Rubini, 1. Goldylocks, 2. Bittern, 3.

YORK STEEPLECHASES AND FLAT RACES.—Tuesday.

Sweepstakes of 3 sovs.—Dead heat between Star of the Evening and Guitar. Star of the Evening walked over, and the stakes were divided.
Great Yorkshire Handicap.—Cortolvin, 1. Portland, 2. Skirlaugh Squire, 3.
Hunters' Selling Stakes.—Esca, 1. Mark Tapley, 2. Bendigo, 3.
Hunters' Steeplechase.—The Beau, 1. Mr. Vyner's Kathleen, 2. Mr. Wilkinson's Kathleen, 3.

GRAND NATIONAL HUNT (WETHERBY) STEEPLECHASES.

WEDNESDAY.

Bramham Moor and York and Ainsty Hunt Cup.—The Verger, 1. Wildrake, 2. Mystery, 3.
Grand National Hunt Steeplechase.—Emperor, 1. Lord George, 2. Mount Gifford, 3.
Handicap Selling Steeplechase Plate.—Miss Active, 1. Champagne, 2.
Steeplechase Cup.—Bridegroom, 1. Bell's Life, 2. Skirlaugh Squire, 3.

THURSDAY.

Bramham Moor Cup.—Bryan, 1. Hinda, 2.
Great Yorkshire Steeplechase.—King of Hearts, 1. Creole, 2. R. M. D., 3.
Dealers' Stakes.—Miss Joyce, 1. Miss Active, 2.
Farmers' Plate.—Bridegroom, 1. Express, 2.

READING RACES.—Wednesday.

14th (King's) Hussars Sweepstakes.—Bravo, 1.
Wellington Open Handicap.—The Old Squire, 1. Blackrock, 2. Attaman, 3.
Scots Greys Challenge Cup.—Badger, 1. Greyling, 2. Grey Friar, 3.
Royal Dragoons Challenge Cup.—Remedy, 1. Bantam, 2. Miss Arthur, 3.
14th Hussars Challenge Cup.—Dragoon, 1.
Anglesey Plate.—Bristles, 1. Waterman, 2. Sinite, 3.

LEWES RACES.—Thursday.

Welter Cup.—Llangollen, 1. Warwick, 2. Walpole, 3.
Castle Stakes.—Birague, 1. Master Shutt, 2. Indian Star, 3.
Two-Year-Old Stakes.—Alberta, 1. William Pitt, 2. Fickle, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Confusion, 1. Anadyomene, 2. Corinthian Tom, 3.
Craven Handicap.—Kangaroo, 1. Surney, 2. Pegasus, 3.
Town Plate.—Queen Bee, 1. Hawkshaw, 2. Diploma, 2.

On Wednesday another magnificent addition, as far as size, strength, and speed are concerned, was made to our iron-clad fleet by the formal delivery to the Admiralty authorities of the iron-plated ship Minotaur, which, it is believed, will in some respects equal the renowned Warrior.

The mail steam-packets under contract with the Swedish Government recommence their voyages between Hull and Gothenburg to-day (Saturday). Mails for conveyance by these packets will therefore be made up in London on the evenings of Friday, until further notice. All letters and newspapers addressed to Gothenburg and Uddevalla will be forwarded by these packets, unless directed to be otherwise sent; but letters and newspapers for other parts of Sweden, intended to be transmitted by these packets, must be specially addressed "by Swedish packet." All book packets for Sweden will be forwarded by these packets.

The War Office authorities and Mr. Hawkins, of the Brighton Railway, were engaged last Saturday in making arrangements for the volunteer demonstration at Brighton on Easter Monday. It was settled that the Queen's, South Middlesex, St. George's, Civil Service, Inns of Court, West Middlesex, North Middlesex, London Scottish, the 19th, the 20th, the 36th, the 37th, the 46th Middlesex, the 1st Middlesex Artillery, and the 1st Middlesex Engineers, with all other corps in the west or north-west of the metropolitan district, shall start from the Victoria station. The London Rifle Brigade, the 2nd and 3rd London, the 39th and the 40th Middlesex, the Hon. Artillery Company, the City of London Engineers and Artillery, the whole of the Tower Hamlets regiments, the 2nd Administrative Battalion of Middlesex, the 5th Essex Battalion, the 7th and 19th Surrey, and those corps lying south and east, will fall in at the London Bridge station. Other corps will fall in at suburban stations. The whole of the metropolitan corps are to be in Brighton by nine a.m. Either General Pennefather or General Rumley will probably take the command, unless, indeed, a body of regular troops take part in the review, when, it is stated, the Commander-in-Chief may assume the position.

On Thursday week the Armstrong and Whitworth Committee met at Woolwich to test the endurance of the three 12-pounder guns which had stood the 3000 rounds with regular charges. The guns were fired with an "air space," which is the severest trial to which they could be subjected. For some of the rounds the shot was jammed into the barrel with pieces of metal. The committee met again on Monday to continue the trial with the following charge:—Double charge of powder, six solid shot instead of one, and six inches of air space between the powder and shot. The Armstrong breech-loader yielded at the forty-second round, the steel tube splitting from the muzzle to the trunnion. The Armstrong shunt muzzle-loading gun burst at the sixtieth round, splitting in a similar manner to the breech-loader, and bursting the trunnion hoop. The Whitworth muzzle-loader continued for the rest of the day, and completed eighty-nine rounds. The firing was continued on Tuesday with the Whitworth muzzle-loader, which yielded at the ninety-second round, giving the following as a result of the endurance trials:—Armstrong breech-loader, forty-two rounds; ditto shunt muzzle-loader, sixty rounds; Whitworth muzzle-loader, ninety-two rounds.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

The Government brokers have now completed their purchases of Stock on account of the Sinking Fund, the total amount invested during the quarter being £646,891. Home Securities have continued in a very inactive state, and, in the early part of the week, prices were rather drooping. In the Unfunded Debt very little has been passing; but Indian Stocks, &c., have ruled very firm.

The Money Market is abundantly supplied with capital, and the demand for accommodation has fallen off considerably. In the open market the best commercial bills are done as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	3½ per cent.	Four months' bills	4½ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4 "	Six months' bills	4½ 5 "
Three months' bills	4½ "

On Thursday the directors of the Bank of England reduced their minimum rate of discount to 4 per cent.

The imports of the precious metals have been on a moderate scale, and the quantity of gold disposed of to the Bank has been limited. The silver market is heavy, at drooping prices. Bar silver has sold at 60⅝d., and Mexican dollars have realised 59¾d. per ounce.

The transactions in the Consol Market on Monday were limited. Consols, for Money, marked 89⅝ ¾; Ditto, for Account, 89⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅞ ¾; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.; India Stock, 214 to 217; India Five per Cents, 105; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem. On Tuesday Consols, for Transfer, were done at 89⅞ ¾; Ditto, for Time, 89⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅞ ¾; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; India Four per Cents, 98⅞; India Stock was 211; Ditto, New, 105½ ¾. On the following day, Consols, for Money, closed at 89⅞ ¾; Ditto, for the 9th of May, 89⅞ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 87⅞ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 217; Ditto, Five per Cents, 105½; Rupee Paper, 101 to 102 and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday the market was steady:—Consols, for Money, sold at 89⅞ ¾; for the present Account, 89⅞ ¾; Reduced Three per Cents, 87⅞ ¾; New Three per Cents, 87⅞ ¾; Old India Stock, 211½; Ditto Five per Cents, 105½ ¾; Ditto Four per Cent Debentures, 99½; Ditto Bonds, 15s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem.

American (Federal) Securities have been in improved request, on rather higher terms. United States 5-20 years have been done at 56½ to 57; Erie Shares, 35 to 36; and Illinois Central, 59½.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Attwoods, Spooner, and Co., an offer made by the Birmingham Joint-stock Bank to take the assets and pay the creditors 11s. 3d. in the pound was unanimously accepted.

The market for most Foreign Securities has ruled quiet. In prices, however, few changes of importance have taken place. Columbian Six per Cents have been done at 82; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 94½; Ditto, 1864, 96; Greek, 21½; Mexican Three per Cents, 23½; Ditto, 1864, 25⅝; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 80½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47½; Russian Three per Cents, 54½; Ditto Five per Cents, 1862, 89½; Spanish Three per Cents, 48; Ditto, Passive, 32½; Ditto, Certificates, 17¾; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 91; Ditto, 1858, 71; Ditto, 1862, 73¾; Venezuela Six per Cents, 1852, 41; Ditto, 1864, 41½; Dutch Two-and-a-Half per Cents, 62¾; and Italian Five per Cents, 64. The Confederate Loan has marked 32½ to 33½. Montevidean Scrip, 9½ prem.; and Italian Scrip, 3⅝ ½ dis.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been dealt in to a limited extent, and, in some instances, the quotations have slightly declined. Agra and Masterman's have realised 122½; Albion, 7; Alliance, 34½; Bank of Egypt, 30½; Bank of Queensland, 22; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 32; Consolidated, 10½; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 25¾; Imperial, 31; Imperial Ottoman, 17¾; London and Brazilian, 43; London, Buenos Ayres, and River Plate, 49; London and County, 71¾; London Joint-stock, 46¾; London and South-Western, 20½; London and Westminster, 94½; Oriental, 56½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 11½; South Australia, 35; and Union of London, 51⅜.

Colonial Government Securities have continued quiet. Canada Six per Cents have sold at 91½; Ditto Five per Cents, 81½; Cape Five per Cents, 93; New South Wales Five per Cents, 93½; Queensland Six per Cents, 103½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 110.

In the market for Miscellaneous Securities a limited business has been transacted. Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance, 3½; Berlin Waterworks, 9½; Ceylon Company, 9½; Continental Union Gas, 10¾; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 10; Ditto, New, 7½; East Indian Financial, 4½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 4¾; Financial Corporation, ¾; Fore-street Warehouse, 8¾; General Credit, 6¼; Humber Ironworks, 1¼; International Financial, 6¼; Italian Irrigation, 11¾; Joint-stock Discount, 8; London Financial, 21½; Millwall Ironworks, 6; National Discount, 15; Oriental Commercial, 7½; Peel River Land and Mineral, 44; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 82¾; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7; and Universal Marine, 5⅞.

The Railway Share Market has shown signs of improvement, and prices have been on the advance. The "calls" for the present month amount to £521,086. The following are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonian, 130; Great Eastern, 47⅞; Great Northern, 131; Ditto, A Stock, 145¾; Great Western, 75; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 117¼ ex new; London and Blackwall, 87; London and Brighton, 107; London, Chatham, and Dover, 39; London and North-Western, 119⅞; London and South-Western, 95⅞; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 60; Metropolitan, 128½; Metropolitan District, 100; Midland, 133¾; Ditto, Birmingham and Derby, 104; North British, 52¾; North-Eastern—Berwick, 110; Ditto, Leeds, 69½; Ditto, York, 102½; Ditto, Stockton and Darlington, 37; North Staffordshire, 78½; South Devon, 59; South-Eastern, 847.

British Possessions.—Atlantic and St. Lawrence, 53; Eastern Bengal, 101¾; East Indian, 102¾; Grand Trunk of Canada, 17¾; Ditto, First Preference, 56; Ditto, Deferred, 55; Ditto, Second Preference, 58½; Ditto, Third Pref., 48; Ditto, Deferred, 42; Ditto, Fourth Pref., 25½; Ditto, Deferred, 23½; Great Indian Peninsula, 12⅞; Great Western of Canada, 9¾; Ditto, New, 6¾; Madras Five per Cent, 100¾; Scinde, 100¾.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 10¼; Bahia and San Francisco, 14¾; Dutch-Rhenish, 23½; Great Luxembourg, 12½; Ottoman, 10; Recife and San Francisco, 13¾; South Austrian, 21⅝.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending March 29 shows the following results when compared with the previous statement:—

An increase of circulation of	£359,853	An increase of bullion of	£50,353
A decrease of public deposits of ..	359,559	An increase of rest of	10,053
A decrease of other deposits of	73,552	A decrease of reserve of	327,462
A decrease of securities of	113,568

The total circulation is £20,388,741. Public deposits amount to £9,939,430; and private deposits to £13,478,242. Securities are £32,271,054; and the stock of bullion is £16,358,99?. The reserve of notes and coin is £10,057,679.

THE MARKETS.

Corn Exchange, March 27.—Very little English wheat was on sale in our market to-day, and all kinds moved off steadily, at 1s. per quarter more money. Fine foreign wheats commanded extreme rates, but other kinds were much neglected. Floating cargoes of grain were held for higher terms. Malting and grinding barley was quite as dear as last week. In distilling sorts very little was passing. Malt was in full average supply and sluggish request, at late rates. The oat trade was firm, and, in some instances, the quotations had an upward tendency. Beans advanced 1s. per quarter. Peas and flour realised very full prices.

March 29.—The demand for all kinds of produce was by no means active to-day; nevertheless, Monday's prices were well supported.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 40s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 42s.; rye, 26s. to 27s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 27s. to 34s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 51s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; Chevalier, 58s. to 63s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 19s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 23s. to 27s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 23s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 24s.; tick beans, 33s. to 35s.; grey peas, 34s. to 36s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 34s. to 36s.; boilers, 37s. to 38s. per quarter.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 420; barley, 810; malt, 1210; oats, 200; flour, 110. Irish: Oats, 650. Foreign: Barley, 3250; oats, 2000; flour, 360 sacks.

Seeds.—Clover seed and trefoil have changed hands somewhat freely, at full quotations. Other seeds are steady in price. Cakes command very little attention.

Linseed, English, crushing, 56s. to 62s.; Calcutta, 57s. to 58s.; hempseed, 42s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. to 10s.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 64s. to 72s. per quarter; Linseed cakes, English, £10 15s. to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £11 0s. to £11 5s.; rape cakes, £6 0s. to £6 10s. per ton; red clover seed, 64s. to 120s.; white ditto, 66s. to 84s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 4d.; barley, 28s. 8d.; oats, 21s. 1d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 71,222; barley, 32,863; oats, 8162 quarters.

Tea.—The inquiry for most kinds is restricted, and late rates are with difficulty supported.

Sugar.—Prices have given way 6d. per cwt., with a dull market. The stock of raw sugar is 95,062 tons, against 61,865 tons last year. Refined goods are dull, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—The quotations have ruled somewhat lower, and the market, generally, is somewhat heavy. Stock, 10,013 tons, against 8150 tons in 1864.

Rice.—The demand is steady, and prices are tolerably firm. Stock, 47,330 tons, against 46,080 tons last year.

Provisions.—All kinds of butter are in fair request, at about stationary prices. The best Dutch is selling at 126s. per cwt. Bacon moves off slowly, at 61s. to 65s. per cwt. for Waterford on board. Hams, lard, and most other provisions rule about stationary.

Tallow.—The demand is quiet, at 40s. 6d. per cwt. for P.Y.C. on the spot. The stock is reduced to 40,267 casks, against 54,528 casks in 1864. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £32; rape, £41 15s. to £44; olive, £47 10s. to £52; cocoanut, £40 to £43; and fine palm, £36 to £35 10s. French turpentine, 67s. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum is steady, at full prices. Brandy and grain spirits command very little attention.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 5s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 7s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Hetton, 22s.; Haswell, 22s.; Lambton, 21s. 6d.; Braddyll's, 20s. 3d.; Walker Primrose, 13s.; Holywell, 14s.; Hartley's, 15s. per ton.

Hops.—The show of samples is moderate, yet the demand for most kinds of hops is inactive, at from 100s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—The market is heavy. In prices, however, no change has taken place.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate and the demand is steady, at from 55s. to 150s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, March 30).—There was a fair average supply of beasts on sale here to-day, in but middling condition. The demand for most breeds was inactive, and in some instances prices were a shade lower. The supply of sheep was moderate. Downs and half-breds were steady, at previous currencies. Otherwise, the mutton trade was in a sluggish state, at barely Monday's decline in the quotations. Lambs moved off slowly, at from 6s. to 7s. per 8 lb. Calves were dull, on former terms—viz., from 4s. 6d. to 5s. 8d. per 8 lb. The pork trade was steady, at previous rates. Milch cows produced from £16 to £22 each.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 10d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 4d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 6d. to 6s. 8d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 10d.; lambs, 6s. to 7s.; suckling calves, 18s. to 21s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 21s. to 27s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1126; cows, 130; sheep and lambs, 5940; calves, 121; pigs, 370. Foreign: Beasts, 510; sheep, 1200; calves, 119.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 6d. to 5s. 0d.; veal, 4s. 2d. to 5s. 2d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 5s. 0d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. Trade dull.

Robert Herbert.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, MARCH 24.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

H. DESPLAN, Bristol, surgeon.—W. L. HAYDEN, Bishop's Stortford, tailor.

BANKRUPTS.

T. GARDNER, Towcester, shoe manufacturer.—R. WILKINSON, Southwark, publican.—H. B. G. HARDY, Bentinck-street.—H. WINDIBANK, Southampton, furniture warehouseman.—J. STEAD, Watford, bellhanger.—W. A. PHILLIPS, Greenwich, beer-engine manufacturer.—W. E. GAINE, Parliament-street, Westminster, civil engineer.—J. CANELA, Chenies-street, merchant.—J. HAYTON, Kentish Town, sub-contractor.—B. BENNETT, Islington, commission agent.—T. SADLER, Mile-end, victualler.—O. A. LEIGH, Bethnal-green, cabinetmaker.—J. WHITEHOUSE, Dudley, timber-dealer.—E. G. COLES, Acton-street, fretcutter.—R. JONES, Abingdon-villas west.—E. PITMAN, Bayswater.—J. BRAIN, Tring, leather-seller.—J. W. BROWN, Brompton, builder.—J. FIELLER, Houndsditch, clothier.—R. S. PAXMAN, Mile-end-road, coachmaker.—T. TANNER, Upper Charlton-street.—E. LODER, Lawrence Pountney-lane, merchant.—G. GOLDING, Great Marylebone-street, greengrocer.—J. STRINGER, Wimbledon, stonemason.—R. G. DUNBAR, G. ALDERSON, and R. GARMAN, Budge-row, merchants.—J. HAWKINS, Hatcham Park-road, commission agent.—T. CLARK, Southampton, butcher.—J. CHALE, Kingsland, general dealer.—E. H. RODE, Newgate-street, commission agent.—J. H. BEDFORD, Euston-road, coachbuilder.—S. CRANE, Love-lane, grocer.—J. PARKES, Birmingham, iron-screw manufacturer.—J. MANNING, Kingswinford, tailor.—W. WALTER, Stowford, farmer.—W. H. ROWE, Great Torrington, innkeeper.—H. COCKROFT, Mayroyd, venetian-blind maker.—J. FINKELL, Yarm, innkeeper.—J. WILSON, Cleckheaton, shoddy manufacturer.—J. PEARSON, Leeds, machine-maker.—J. MIDDLETON, Collingham, publican.—J. ANDERSON, Kingston-on-Hull, joiner.—W. O. FITZGERALD, Liverpool, merchant.—J. POWNALL, Mold, confectioner.—J. SMITH, Willenhall, greengrocer.—S. BERRISFORD, Stockport, ironfounder.—T. CHADWICK, Darlington, builder.—E. FITCHETT, Hulme, butcher.—H. CARTER, Birstal, shoddy manufacturer.—T. M. STAGG, Walkley, file manufacturer.—C. A. BAIGENT, Bosworth, victualler.—J. LOCKER, Derby, fishmonger.—E. LEVIOURS, Derby, dyer.—J. SPRING, jun., Sandy, hairdresser.—T. WOOD, Ipswich, tar-distiller.—J. H. SMITH, Yeovil, baker.—A. JONES, Liverpool, teadealer.—W. W. WILLIAMS, Liverpool, grocer.—E. MARCUSSY, Liverpool, boot-top maker.—P. MAGEE, Kingston-on-Hull, draper.—J. HATTON, Wharton, grocer.—W. JOHN, Swansea, licensed victualler.—E. FROGGATT, Birmingham, coaldealer.—J. HEBBLETHWAITE, Kirkburton, blacksmith.—J. SYDENHAM, Newport, harness-maker.—G. RICHARDS, Christchurch, butcher.—J. NOTT, Bampton, mason.—J. EDMONDS, Egremont, commission agent.—W. HITCHEN, Newmarket All Saints, licensed victualler.—J. HARCOURT, Milton-next-Gravesend, general dealer.—G. BROWN, Worcester, innkeeper.

TUESDAY, MARCH 28.

BANKRUPTS.

J. T. ANDERSON, City, sackmaker.—A. G. HOGARTH, Grafton-street, commission agent.—J. PRICE, Pentonville.—P. SMITH, East India Dock-road, clothier.—D. GREEN, jun., Kensington, brick agent.—D. P. NEALE, Kennington-road, attorney.—J. CURRELL, sen., Wimbledon, blockcutter.—W. B. CHATWIN, Finsbury, horsedealer.—J. PARTRIDGE, Clerkenwell, schoolmaster.—H. HOLMES, Great Coram-street, clergyman.—G. MORRIS and C. T. PURSLOW, Upper King-street, tailors.—F. V. H. WITTE, Myddelton-square, commission agent.—G. THOMAS, Borough, auctioneer.—J. MORTON, Woolwich, grocer.—S. COOPER, Woolwich, grocer.—H. ATKINS, Sutton, limeburner.—E. HOLDERNESS, Aldershott.—J. W. HUNT, Frimley, innkeeper.—J. READ, Yalding, carpenter.—A. M. NORMANBY, Bexley, licensed victualler.—T. CUCKNEY, Cobham, tailor.—T. BRYANT, Beckenham, builder.—H. COOMBER, Mottingham, grocer.—W. COKER, Bromley, bootmaker.—E. SOPP, Croydon, general dealer.—J. B. FOSTER, Loughton, farmer.—C. HOLT, St. Albans, tailor.—J. BRAIM, Tring, leatherseller.—E. TEATHER, Lincoln, cordwainer.—H. BLOWER, Bushey, baker.—R. BELL, Norwich, watchmaker.—W. WILLIAMS, Cheriton, tailor.—J. S. PEED, Peterborough, builder.—H. HARDING, Salisbury, baker.—G. POWERS, Westbromwich, tailor.—W. A. LANFEAR, Newport, grocer.—J. ROWE, Devonport, shirt manufacturer.—A. H. ROOKE, Probus, brewer.—J. STEPHENS, Tregony, miller.—W. SMALLCOMBE, Weymouth, timber merchant.—H. CLOUGH, Bradford, bookseller.—E. P. ROGERS, Pontefract, printer.—G. JOHNSTON, Plas Isa Penmaenmawr, commission agent.—A. M'CULLOCH and R. DARLEY, Liverpool, ship-store merchants.—J. HOBSON, Blue Pits, builder.—W. HEALEY and T. FEARNLEY, Dewsbury, Yorkshire.—B. SHEPPARD, Manchester, bricklayer.—J. RATCLIFFE, Manchester, braid manufacturer.—J. H. PENNY, Manchester, hairdresser.—J. W. UPTON, Salford, provision dealer.—J. WILLIAMS, Bishton, tailor.—T. KEARSLEY, Kilnhurst, miller.—R. JORDAN, Truro, tailor.—J. LAYCOCK, Otley, plasterer.—G. BARNARD, Wymondham, saddler.—E. HOOSON, grocer.—S. BATTEN, Leicester, clipper.—J. TURTLE, Totterdown, trader.—W. REDMAN, Luddenden.—D. DAVIES, Merthyr Tydfil, cabinetmaker.—J. SMITH, Lozells, carpenter.—J. TREWOLLA, Birmingham.—S. H. CRUICKSHANK, Liverpool.—G. T. WATKINS, St. George.—T. HALL, Bristol, baker.—S. TAYLOR, Wolverhampton, baker.—J. PLUMPTON, Lincoln, coal-porter.—M. HALLORAN, Elton, smallware-dealer.—C. BELLAMY, Fakring, bootmaker.—G. PENN, Northampton, shopkeeper.—O. MAYBR, Yoxall, cattle-dealer.—J. PHILLIPS, Stockton-on-Tees, shoemaker.—F. MORRIS, Claverley.—J. D. WILLIAMS, Plymouth.—J. HUGHES, St. Asaph, joiner.—T. JONES, Rhyle.—J. CHATE, Kingsland, general dealer.—W. BURNS, Aldershott, military outfitter.

THE STATUES OF PROFESSOR WILSON AND ALLAN RAMSAY AT EDINBURGH.

An interesting ceremony took place at Edinburgh on Saturday last. The colossal statues of the late Professor John Wilson, almost better known by his nom de plume of "Christopher North," and that of Allan Ramsay, the Scottish poet, were publicly unveiled and presented to the Lord Provost and municipality of the city. We borrow from the Evening Courant some particulars of the report of these proceedings. The ceremony of presentation took place within the rails of the Royal Institution, which is situated immediately between the two sites selected for the statues—namely, East Princes-street Garden, in the north-west corner of which the Wilson statue is placed; and West Princes-street Garden, of which the Ramsay statue occupies the north-east corner. In the East Garden the band of the 15th Hussars, and in the West Garden the band of the 74th Highlanders, performed; and under both statues there was a crowded assemblage within the rails. The windows in the middle part of Princes-street, and even the housetops commanding a view of both statues, were also thronged with spectators. A flag bearing "The Red Lion" of Scotland was hoisted over the house in which Allan Ramsay lived, near the Castle Rock, and over a house in the High-street, where "The Gentle Shepherd" was published. Among the gentlemen present were the Right Hon. the Lord Provost, the magistrates and councillors of the city; the Right Hon. Duncan M'Neill, Lord Justice-General and Lord President of the Court of Session, chairman of the committee of subscribers of the Wilson statue; the Right Hon. Sir John M'Neill, G.C.B., representing the executors of the late Lord Murray, who was the donor of the Allan Ramsay statue; the Earl of Stair; Sir John Stuart Forbes, Bart.; the Hon. Lord Neaves, the Hon. Bouverie F. Primrose; Mr. John Steell, R.S.A., and H.M. Sculptor for Scotland, who is the artist of both the statues; the Provost and magistrates of Paisley, in which town Professor Wilson was born; and many other persons of local distinction. The presentation of the Wilson statue took place first. The Lord Justice-General, addressing the Lord Provost and his colleagues, briefly explained the motives of the committee of subscribers in having the statue prepared, and delivered it over to the municipal authorities of the city. The trumpet then sounded the signal for the uncovering, and in an instant the statue was exposed to view, the band of the hussars playing the National Anthem, and the crowd loudly cheering. The Lord Provost replied, on behalf of the Corporation and citizens of Edinburgh, thanking the gentlemen of the committee and all the subscribers to this memorial for their noble gift. He spoke also of the genius and character of Professor Wilson in terms of the warmest admiration. A procession was then formed by the High Constables and the Lord Provost, magistrates, and council, with their retinue. On reaching the north-west angle they were met by Sir John M'Neill, one of the executors appointed by the late Lady Murray to fulfil the intentions of Lord Murray to erect a public statue of Allan Ramsay, who was a kinsman of Lord Murray. The whole company gathered around the pedestal of the statue, which is of Binny stone, and, from the upper walk, is about 10 ft. high. At the level of the walk a graceful balcony is carried round the pillar to enable people to inspect the medallions on the four sides of the pedestal. These medallions represent—on the front, Lord Murray; on the east side, Lady Campbell and Mrs. Malcolm, granddaughters of the poet; at the back (south side), General Ramsay, his grandson; and on the west side, Mrs. Ramsay, wife of the younger Allan Ramsay, the painter. The pedestal is the work of Mr. David Bryce, R.S.A., while the statue itself, as well as that of Wilson, is the work of Mr. Steell. In his short address to the Lord Provost, Sir John M'Neill referred to the merits of this artist in terms of high commendation, and remarked that his design had just been selected by the Queen as the best produced in open competition for the Scottish national memorial to the Prince Consort. The gift of the Ramsay statue to the city of Edinburgh, in the names of Lord and Lady Murray, was then formally proclaimed; the trumpet again sounded, and the second statue was uncovered, the band of the 74th Highlanders striking up "Auld Lang Syne," and the crowd joining in a most enthusiastic cheer. The Lord Provost, as in the former instance, made a brief reply, touching upon the subject of the glories of Scottish literature, and congratulating the representatives of the family of Lord Murray upon their having added another fair monument to those which adorn the most picturesque of British cities.

THE NEW CORN EXCHANGE, BASINGSTOKE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

This concluded the proceedings, and the company, which by this time densely crowded the wide thoroughfare of Princes-street, extending also a good way up the Mound and Hanover-street, now began to disperse, though great numbers lingered around the statues to get a good view of them; and till dusk there was a constant succession of visitors.

The Wilson statue, a noble work in bronze, is the result of a subscription instituted at a public meeting held shortly after the death of the learned Professor, in April, 1854. It was fortunate that in choosing Mr. John Steell to execute this commission the committee of subscribers could obtain the services of an artist to whom Wilson had on several occasions sat—one who knew him well, and could not only keenly retain his image in the mind's eye, but give to it form, substance, and reality. As to the fidelity of the statue there can be but one opinion—in that quality it could not be surpassed. Rarely, indeed, has the still figure conveyed so much of the fire, the dash, the fervour of the living subject. The artist has taken John Wilson in the magnificence of his best days—in the fulness of his prime. He has caught him at the full tide of poetical inspiration, with the "words that burn" about to issue from his tongue or to find record in the scroll in his hand. The whole figure is 11 ft. 8 in., set on a pedestal of almost equal height, which, like the pedestal of Allan Ramsay's statue, is from a design of Mr. Bryce. The attitude is animated and free, with the left limb slightly in advance. The right grasps his plaid and also the quill between his first and second fingers. The left rests on the stump of a palm, which symbolises his greatest poem, and holds the parchment on which he is about to write. The costume is identical with that worn by him during life, although the sculptor has shown that even modern fashions may be poetically treated. While his neck is almost bare, and the laid-over collar seems thrown back by the flowing hair, the plaid hangs in deep folds behind his left shoulder, adding, as it were, the rich drapery of the "toga" to the massive and stately figure. And, working in bronze, the sculptor s been enabled to give a fulness to the skirts which he could not have attempted in the fragile marble. Upon the whole, the Wilson statue is worthy of Scotland as commemorating one of her most distinguished sons.

BRONZE STATUE OF PROFESSOR WILSON, AT EDINBURGH, BY JOHN STEELL, R.S.A.

MARBLE STATUE OF ALLAN RAMSAY, AT EDINBURGH, BY JOHN STEELL, R.S.A.

The marble statue of Allan Ramsay is nearly eleven feet high, the attitude being erect. The poet is represented in somewhat contemplative mood, with pencil or "leeklvine" in his right hand, the fore-finger of his left keeping his place in the book in which he is about to inscribe the reflection of the moment. He has described himself as

Five feet five inches high,
A black-a-vicot, mod, dapper fellow."

The sculptor has, we should think, hit the happy medium, and has made him, not squat, but a little burly. His broad, quaint, kindly, and peculiarly Scotch face is admirably portrayed by the sculptor. The fine open forehead and the beaming countenance are indicative of poetic sensibility, if not of poetic power, and the air of content and geniality and the humorous smile playing about the mouth are all indicative of the mind which is "mair to mirth than grief inclined." The costume is a representation of the home-fashions of the first part of last century. The poet wears a big coat coming to the knee, and hanging open in front, with great lapelled and buttoned pockets, and turned-up and buttoned wrists, showing the shirt frills; a waistcoat rivalling the dimensions of the coat above; trunk hose and breeches, buckled shoes, Scotch plaid hanging over the left arm, and cowl on the head. The drapery of the whole costume is in admirable neglect; the lying over, but not laid-over, collar, and the big unbuttoned buttons of the coat, and even waistcoat, showing a characteristic abandon of attire. The figure is full of animation, vigour, and humour. Whether as a work of art or as a memorial of the poet, the Ramsay statue cannot fail to be a welcome gift to the Scottish capital.

AMERICAN VETERANS OF THE WAR OF 1812.

OUR New York Correspondent has furnished the sketch of a couple of the old soldiers of the war of 1812 who may still be met with, occasionally, in the streets and at the public-houses of New York, Boston, and other American cities. These worthy veterans are fond of wearing a cocked hat, with tricolor plume, and a sword, with a white scarf about the breast, upon such occasions as the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the appointed day of thanksgiving for national victories, or that of the inauguration of a President of the Federal Union. They are, however, now becoming rare, since forty years and more have elapsed from the date of their military achievements, and the conflict in which they were engaged, though its recollection may be furbished by American patriotism, has been quite thrown into the shade by the enormous battles of the present civil war.

VETERANS OF THE WAR OF 1812 IN THE STREETS OF NEW YORK.

THE NEW CORN EXCHANGE AT BASINGSTOKE.

OUR Engraving represents the interior of the new Corn Exchange, which was opened on the 22nd ult., in the town of Basingstoke, where the want of such accommodation had been greatly felt, since the rapid increase of the corn trade in that district, for some time past. During Mr. Wallis's mayoralty last year steps were taken for the erection of a new corn exchange. The architects selected were Messrs. Stephen Salter and Matthew Wyatt, of London; and the building is one which the town is justly proud of. The market-hall itself is a large room, 90 ft. long by 57 ft. wide, and 33 ft. high. It is surrounded by iron columns, and has a gallery for musicians and other purposes, while the basement is used for corn stores. This building is the largest corn exchange in Hampshire. It is in the Italian style of architecture, and its internal decoration, being coloured in chocolate and gold, has a rich and pleasing effect. On the day of the inauguration there was a public dinner in the market-hall, where covers were laid for about 400 persons. The chair was filled by Lord Bolton, and the company included many influential gentlemen of the district.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR APRIL.

THE latest novelty worthy of remark among the Modes Parisiennes is the introduction of a new style of dress, shown upon two of the figures in our present Illustration; but the dresses must be seen and examined to be thoroughly understood, as they may be said to be wardrobes in themselves—the same garment being capable of presenting two, or even three, different aspects. The dresses depicted in our Engraving are readily transformed by folding lappets, buttoned or looped according to the formation of the pattern. The first figure is a simple design on the body and skirt, merely to explain the principle; the second figure is the complete transformation of an almost plain dress into one of ample style and effect. The variety of application of this happy idea is endless; a walking-dress may in a few instants be converted into a dinner-dress, and vice versâ, and thus save considerable time and trouble by avoiding the inconvenience of re-dressing. This invention, patented by Messrs. Jay, of Regent-street, has found favour with many of the Parisian houses. It is not necessarily much more expensive than ordinary dress; and, when the advantages of a double or triple robe are taken into consideration, it is reasonable to suppose that the innovation will be well patronised. Although we have only signalised the invention as applied to dresses which we have seen and admired in Paris, it is susceptible of application to mantles and other garments, for which the fashion of the day encourages originality and variety of design rather than the adoption of a special taste.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Morning Dress.—A simple light-grey foulard robe, with violet lappets on the body and skirt. These violet lappets may be either fastened down or remain open, as indicated in the Illustration by way of explanation. Of course, in wear the lappets would be either all open or all closed. The few ornaments on this dress are of white steel.

Fig. 2. Dinner Dress and Walking Dress.—The dinner-dress here depicted is the handsome transformation of a plain but elegant grey pouit de soie walking-dress, ornamented with jet buttons and narrow black lace. The dinner-dress is of the same material, but provided with a blue ground and grey stripes down the front of the corsage and skirt when the lappets are opened. The black jet buttons on the walking-dress serve to ornament and fasten back the lappets in question, which thus give an entirely new aspect to this robe when required for wear in the dining-room.

Fig. 3. Evening Dress.—Ample training rose-coloured silk under-skirt, edged with ruching. The tunic is of a pale-coloured muslin, apparently looped up by long bands of ribbon commencing at the waist and terminating with bows and ends. The corsage is décolleté, and ornamented with a bertha composed of muslin and lace. The coiffure is arranged in the Asiatic style, the hair being rolled in front and curled behind, with an abundance of ringlets fastened by a golden comb.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR APRIL.

NEW MUSIC.

BOOKS ON NATURAL SCIENCE.
Published by MACMILLAN and Co.

STRAY NOTES on FISHING and NATURAL HISTORY. By CORNWALL SIMEON. With Illustrations, 7s. 6d.

THE STORY of a BOULDER: Gleanings by a Field Geologist. By ARCHIBALD GEIKIE, of the Geological Survey. With Illustrations, 5s.

By the same Author,
THE SCENERY of SCOTLAND in CONNECTION with its PHYSICAL GEOLOGY. By ARCHIBALD GEIKIE. With Illustrations, and a new Geological Map of Scotland, by Sir Roderick I. Murchison and A. Geikie. [In the press. 4to

FOOT-NOTES from the PAGE of NATURE; or, First Forms of Vegetation. By HUGH MACMILLAN, F.R.S.E. With Illustrations, 5s.

LESSONS IN ELEMENTARY BOTANY. By D. OLIVER, F.R.S. With Illustrations, 4s. 6d.

THE GREAT STONE BOOK OF NATURE. By D. T. ANSTED, F.R.S. With Illustrations, 5s.

GLAUCUS: Wonders of the Seashore. By CHARLES KINGSLEY. With Coloured Illustrations, 5s.

A TREATISE ON THE FISHERY LAWS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM, including the Laws of Angling. By JAMES PATERSON, Barrister-at-Law. Crown 8vo, cloth, 10s.

MACMILLAN and CO., London and Cambridge.

THE PORTRAIT GALLERY of DISTINGUISHED NATIVES of INDIA, a National Work, dedicated by permission to his Excellency Sir BARTLE FRERE, K.C.B., Governor of Bombay.

Arrangements are in progress for the publication of a National Work, to be called the PORTRAIT GALLERY of DISTINGUISHED NATIVES of INDIA. The Plates are to be executed on Steel (from photographs) by the first European Artists, and issued monthly, accompanied by brief memoirs of the individuals represented. About 50 Gentlemen from all India will form the subjects of the work, which it is intended should be a conspectus of Eminent Natives of India.

Subscription Rs. 200, exclusive of postage, to be paid in advance into the Central Bank of Western India, Bombay.

Communications to be addressed to
Mr. SORABJEE JEHANGHEER PARUCK,
No. 9, Church-street, Bombay. 10th Dec., 1864.

For further information apply to Messrs. DADABHAI NAO ROJI and Co., 32, Great St. Helens, London, E.C.

On Wednesday, April 5, price 5s.,
DEDICATED, BY SPECIAL PERMISSION,
TO THE RIGHT HON. SIR EDWARD BULWER LYTTON, BART., M.P.

SONGS OF LOVE AND DEATH.
By
GEORGE ERIC MACKAY.
CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SERIES.
With 30 Engravings from Pictures by Popular Artists.

TALK WITH THE LITTLE ONES. Price One Shilling. (Cover printed in Colours by E. Evans.
London: SEELEY, JACKSON, and HALLIDAY, 54, Fleet-street; S. W. Partridge, 9, Paternoster-row.

Just ready, 95 plates, many coloured, size folio imperial, with descriptive text, bound in cloth, price £4 4s.,

THE CAMEL: its Anatomy, Proportions, and Paces. By ELIJAH WALTON.
London: DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, W.C.

Now ready, price One Shilling,

THE ARTISTIC ANATOMY OF THE HORSE. By B. WATERHOUSE HAWKINS, F.L.S., F.G.S. Twenty-four Illustrations.
London: WINSOR and NEWTON; and all Booksellers and Artists' Colourmen.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.
London: LONGMAN and Co.

Price 1s., Monthly,

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—Contents of No. 4, Vol. I., New Series (APRIL):—1. Gilmour's Ward. Chaps. XVI. to XIX.—2. What We have Lost in Literature.—3. The Little Grey Cat in the Garret; or, The Miser's Legacy. By the Author of "The Kiddle-a-Wink." Part III.: The Fire. Chaps. VI., VII.—4. Familiar Lines. "She's all my fancy painted her, she's lovely, she's divine." With Full-page Illustration.—5. A Chat With Daley; or, the Troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Shepe. Chaps. X. to XII.—6. History of Julius Cæsar.—7. The Fashions.—8. The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—9. La Mode.—10. Operas and Musical Entertainments.—11. "For Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. VII., VIII.—12. "Marie's Beau-Ideal." A True Story, dedicated to all Pretty Young Maidens who may chance to read it, by their Friend and Wellwisher, the Author. II., III.—13. "The Countess's Coiffure." By a New Author. In Fifteen Brief but Emotional Chapters. Chap. XV.—14. Our Paris News-Letter.—15. Music of the Month.—16. Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding. Pages 433 to 448.

FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.—A Coloured Fashion Plate. A Coloured Patchwork Pattern, called "The Dagmar Star." A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework. The full-sized patterns for cutting out the Lady's Dressing-gown, Outdoor Dress for a Little Girl, Gentleman's Smoking Cap, and Drawers for a Little Girl. A large Coloured Fashion Plate. A magnificent Coloured Design, painted by hand, for a Floral Wreath, suited for a Music Stool, Ottoman, and many purposes. Illustrations of a walking toilet—bird-cage stand, with cover—a square pattern in darned netting (5 illustrations); a foot-mat made with strips of cloth (2 illustrations)—watch-stand with chenille flowers (2 illustrations)—ladies' curling nets (4 illustrations)—muslin bodice à la Suisse—in-door cap—the colibri coiffure—cap for dinner toilet—muslin bodice—evening head-dress—bonnet of white gros de Naples—the cordylla jacket (2 illustrations)—ball toilet—boudoir or drawing-room chair (3 illustrations)—round cushion in crochet à tricoter (3 illustrations), &c. A Specimen Number sent post-free for twelve stamps.—London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

THE LADIES' TREASURY for APRIL, price Sixpence,
Contains a Crocus Mat, Plover-egg Basket, Collar in Tatting, Butterfly Shapes, all suitable for fancy fairs. Also, large Patterns for the New Jacket and Vest.
65, Paternoster-row; and all Booksellers.

Fifth Edition, price One Guinea, post-free,

THE ART OF BREWING, FERMENTING, AND MAKING OF MALT. By JOHN LEVESQUE, late of the Anchor Brewery. Wherein will be found full directions for the prevention of acetous fermentation, correct tables of mashing heats, and all other necessary directions, the result of forty years' practice in the above art.—JAMES LEATH, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard.

THE "LONDON REVIEW" CHURCH COMMISSION.—The "London Review" having sent out Special Commissioners to collect practical information as to the working and efficiency of the Church and other religious denominations throughout England and Wales, and to inquire into their respective influence and progress in the various districts, the publication of the report will be commenced on Saturday, the 8th of April, and continued weekly. The "London Review," price 4d.; stamped, 5d. Annual subscription, £1 1s.—Office, 11, Southampton-street, Strand.

A cheap edition, 1s.; post, 13 stamps,

PRESCRIPTIONS FOR THE CURE OF EVERY DISEASE. By Sir ASTLEY COOPER, Sir BENJAMIN BRODIE, &c. All Booksellers; or ALLARDYCE and Co., Tunbridge Wells.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,

DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 16s., post-free,

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. No medicine is prescribed without the indications for its selection and the dose to be administered, free from all technicalities, and specially adapted to the use of clergymen, emigrants, and missionaries. Also, just published, an Epitome of the above, Twenty-fourth Edition, price 5s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the former work, price 50s.; and to the latter, price 30s. LEATH and ROSS, 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 5, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

DR. HUNT ON STAMMERING.
Is published this day, price 3s. 6d., post-free,

STAMMERING AND STUTTERING: their Nature and Treatment. By JAMES HUNT, Ph.D, F.S.A., F.R.S.L., &c.—London: LONGMAN and Co.; or, of the Author, Ore House, near Hastings.

CONSULT Mr. A. ESKELL'S popular and reliable TREATISE ON THE TEETH before having recourse to the Dentist. "The expense is not great, and it will well repay perusal." Published by JOHN CLEMENTS, Little Pulteney-street; and may be had of any Bookseller; from Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., Stationers' Hall-court. Price 7d.; in cloth, 1s. 1d.

NEW BOOKS.

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS.
With Portraits and Illustrations, 2 vols. 8vo, 42s.,

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS; with Notices of his Contemporaries. Commenced by the late C. R. LESLIE, R.A.; continued and concluded by TOM TAYLOR.
JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle-street.

NOTICE.—Viscount BURY'S New Work, THE EXODUS of the WESTERN NATIONS, will be ready early in APRIL, in two vols., 8vo, 30s.
RICHARD BENTLEY, Publisher in Ordinary to her Majesty.

Immediately, in 1 vol., post 8vo,

OUR CHARLIE. A Novel. By VERE HALDANE.
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

LISABEE'S LOVE STORY. By the Author of "John and I," "Dr. Jacob," &c. 3 vols.

CARRY'S CONFESSION. By the Author of "High Church," "Owen," "Mattie," &c. 3 vols.

BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANAGH. 3 vols.
"A very interesting story, admirably constructed."—Post.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By Author of John Halifax.
"A more charming story has rarely been written."—Times.

SHATTERED IDOLS. Second Edition.
"A remarkable and original novel."—Athenæum.

Third Edition of BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. M. BELLEW. 3 vols.

THE CURATE OF SADBROOKE. 3 vols.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

THE GRAMMAR OF ORNAMENT. By OWEN JONES. The new and cheap Edition of this magnificent work may now be subscribed for in Parts (30), fortnightly, at 3s. 6d. per part; in Divisions (5), quarterly, at 21s.; or, in the perfect volume, cloth elegant, £5 5s. Part 1, Division 1, and the perfect volume, ready April 1. Prospectus on application to DAY and SON (Limited), 6, Gate-street, W.C.

Now ready, 24mo. cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d., post-free,

ACROSTICS IN PROSE AND VERSE: A Sequel to "Double Acrostics by Various Authors." Edited by A. E. H.
London: THOMAS BOSWORTH, 215, Regent-street, W.

FAMILY HERALD, Part 263, Price Sixpence, contains NOVELS—

The Mystery of Monk's Hollow.—Chapters I., II., and III.
Lily Lindsay.—Chapters IX. to XIX. And other Tales.
"Its novels and tales are quite as well written as the best circulating library stories."—Saturday Review.

ESSAYS—
Artificial People.
The Folly of Crime.
Parliaments and the People.
Weeds, Human and otherwise.
"There is a well-considered essay every week upon some subject of an instructive or thoughtful character."—British Quarterly Review.

CORRESPONDENTS—
Answers to.
"The Answers to Correspondents cannot be fictitious, a romance and a life history being embodied in almost each of them. The editor is the confidant and confessor in every station of life."—Saturday Review.

Together with Poetry, Family Matters, Statistics, Scientific and Useful Information, Varieties, Random Readings, &c.
London: W. STEVENS, 421, Strand.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,

STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Facsimiles of Drawings in Colour and numerous Diagrams, price 2s. 6d.; postage-free, 2s. 10d.,

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A., Head Master of King Henry the Eighth's Grammar School, Chester.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,

ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorative Artists, by F. C. WOOD.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,

PHOTOCHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs, producing a beautifully enamelled appearance, which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,

PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Concise Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

THE FIVE-SHILLING ILLUMINATING COLOUR BOX contains twelve superfine Colours, body, white, gold, and aluminium, and brushes.—J. BARNARD and SON, Makers, 339, Oxford-street, London; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE PHOTOCHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to colour photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with twelve colours, all requisite materials, specimen, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of Foreign Postage-Stamps sent post-free for 2 stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London, W.C.
Warsaw Envelope Stamps, 6d. each.

THE DAILY WEATHER IN 1864 AT A GLANCE.
Just published, price 5s.,

A COLOURED LITHOGRAPH, 48 in. by 20 in., showing the Daily Fluctuation of the Barometer, Thermometer, Wind, &c.; also, Rain, Deaths in London, Lunations of the Moon, &c. By C. O. F. CATOR, M.A., &c. Also, corresponding Blank Forms for any Statistics, Meteorological, Medical, or otherwise.
London: E. STANFORD, 6, Charing-cross.

THE LITTLE MODELLER.—How to Make a Model Village, 48 Coloured Engravings, post-free for 7 stamps; a Model Railway, 7 stamps; Windsor Castle, 7 stamps; a Model Farm, 7 stamps; a Wreck Ashore, 7 stamps; a Model Racecourse, 7 stamps; a Cricket Field, 7 stamps; a Watering-place, 7 stamps; Shakspeare's Birthplace, 7 stamps; Ann Hathaway's Cottage, 7 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 252, Strand.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

PUNCH ON HORSEBACK.—Roars of Laughter.—The extraordinary performance of Punch and the Clown on their Magic Horses. Daily, from Ten till Five. The pair sent free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and Co., 252, Strand.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c. A great variety of Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, &c. Specimen Sheets from 1s.; or one doz. sheets assorted, post-free, 10s. 6d. WILLIAM BARNARD, 59, Connaught-terrace, London, W.

C R O Q U E T, with Treatise on the Game.
complete,
from 15s. the Set.
Sent to the country,
carriage-paid,
on receipt of
Post-office order.
Illustrated Catalogues
free by post.
ASSER and SHERWIN,
81, Strand,
London.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post. "The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times. The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF

HARVEY'S CELEBRATED IRISH AIRS Fantasia, for Piano, containing three of Moore's Melodies. Free for 25 stamps, from EVANS and Co., 77, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

MISS GABRIEL'S LATEST SONG.

THE GARDEN OF ROSES, by VIRGINIA GABRIEL, is the most popular of all her compositions. Free for 19 stamps, from EVANS and Co., 77, Baker-st., Portman-sq., W.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SACRED PIANOFORTE PIECES.
Jerusalem the Golden. Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
Nearer, my God, to Thee. Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
What Bells are These, so soft and clear? Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), Musical Library, 214, Regent-st.

BRADBURY TURNER'S SACRED PIANOFORTE PIECES.
My God, my Father, while I stray. Price 3s.
Sun of my Soul. Price 3s.
A. HAMMOND and Co. (Jullien's), Musical Library, 214, Regent-st.

W. BRADFORD'S SACRED SONGS.
My God, my Father (Thy Will be Done). Price 2s. 6d.
Abide with me, fast falls the Eventide. Price 2s. 6d.
Sun of my Soul. Price 2s. 6d.
Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning. Price 2s. 6d.
A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), Musical Library, 214, Regent-st.

CAUTION.—The Elegant and Beautiful WALTZ Danced by Donato at Covent Garden Theatre, and nightly encored, is the Soldaten Lieder, by Josef Gung'l, published by A. HAMMOND and Co. (Jullien's), 214, Regent-street. Price, Solo and Duet, 4s. each; Full Orchestra, 5s.; Military Band, 15s. Publishers of all the new compositions of this celebrated Dance Writer.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—THE PILOT. A brilliant and most effective transcription for the Pianoforte of Nelson's popular Song, "Fear not, but trust in Providence." Price 3s.
BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

THERE IS NO LOVE LIKE A MOTHER'S. New Song. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d.
"There is no love like a mother's,
We may seek for it in vain;
Tho' we may be loved by others,
Love like hers ne'er comes again."
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—RULE BRITANNIA. Just published. A new Arrangement of the National Air for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S SACRED MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE may be had in 36 Books. Each Book contains upwards of fifteen subjects, selected from the works of the best Composers. Price 3s. each.—London: BREWER and Co.

TRAVIS'S VOLUNTARIES, for the Harmonium, may be had in 36 Books. Price, 3s. each; or in Six Volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BELISARIO.—J. ASCHER.—A brilliant Transcription for the Pianoforte on Airs from Donizetti's Opera, "Belisario." In the hands of an accomplished performer, will be found most effective. Price 4s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. By EDWIN FLOOD. Book I. contains Thirty-eight Psalms and Hymns, for Voice and Pianoforte; also, Twelve Chants. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ELLIE.—"This most successful Ballad, by J. Pridham, was sung by Miss Eleonora Wilkinson, the great Contralto, and vociferously encored, at the Assembly Room, Taunton, on March 11, 1865."—Vide Somerset County Gazette.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL PRIMER, with Selections from Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Concone. This work contains numerous Exercises, Solfeggi, and Original Songs, admirably calculated to impart all the requisite information essential to the vocalist. Price 5s.
London: BREWER and CO.

HENRY FARMER'S OPERATIC GEMS for the VIOLIN, with Accompaniments for the Pianoforte, Second Violin, and Violoncello, selected from the following popular Operas:—Sonnambula, Lucia di Lammermoor, Trovatore, Rigoletto, Linda di Chamouni, Puritani, Traviata, Huguenots, Ernani, Fra Diavolo, and Luisa Miller. Nett price, 6d. each; accompaniments, 3d. each. To be had of all Musicsellers.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STANDARD WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST. Notwithstanding numerous imitations, this Work still holds its position in the estimation of the Public. The demand increases daily, and the Publishers beg to announce that Volume 7 is now in course of publication. Price 12s.
London: BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

THE ODE, composed for the North London Industrial Exhibition by Dr. S. S. WESLEY, contains:—1. Introduction. Bass. "When from the great." 2. Song. Tenor. "And strong in heart." 3. Terzetto. Two Soprani and Alto. "The wise, the wealthy." 4. Chorale and Fugue. "And when at last." 5. Song. "Silently, silently." Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne and Mdme. Vinning. 6. Chorus, or Part-Song. "All honour to the working man." Vocal Score, price 7s. 6d.; Chorus Parts, 3d. each. Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, and 6 issued separately.—Sold by NOVELLO, Dean-street; and VIRTUE, 1, Amen-corner, St. Paul's, of whom all Dr. Wesley's compositions can be had.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Drawings free.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, seven octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

ENGLISH CONCERTINA, 48 keys £2 2s.; Mahogany screwed notes, double action, covered box. Rosewood, in Mahogany box, £3 3s. Catalogues of other qualities gratis.
JONES and SON, 6, Cross-street, Hatton-garden.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOTS, 32, Ludgate-street, and 56, Cheapside.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, £1 per air; Snuffboxes, 7s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.
12 Table Spoons	30	.. 11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	40	.. 15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	.. 7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	.. 9 7 6
12 Table Forks	30	.. 11 0 0	12 Table Forks	40	.. 15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	.. 7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	.. 9 7 6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	.. 3 13 4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	.. 4 0 0
1 Soup Ladle	10	.. 3 13 4	1 Soup Ladle	11	.. 4 2 6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	.. 3 18 4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	.. 4 16 0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		.. 1 0 0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		.. 2 2 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		.. 2 10 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		.. 3 5 0
12 Tea Spoons	10	.. 3 18 4	12 Tea Spoons	14	.. 5 12 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		.. 0 15 0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		.. 1 5 0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.

For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in wear to sterling silver.

	Per Dozen.		Strong.	Ivory Table Knives, full size, Balance Handles, First Quality.	Per Doz.
	£ s. d.		£ s. d.		£ s. d.
Table Forks	1 10 0	to	1 18 0	Table Knives	1 2 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0	Dessert Knives	0 15 6
Table Spoons	1 10 0	,,	1 18 0	Carvers (per pair)	0 6 9
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0	Kitchen Knives & Forks	0 8 6
Tea Spoons	0 12 0	,,	0 18 0

Catalogues gratis or post-free. Orders carriage-free by rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London. Established 1818.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.
West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO.'S Fish-eating Knives. Fish Carvers for Lent.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.
First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' DINNER-SERVICES, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

THE FURNISHING OF BED-ROOMS.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have greatly enlarged their premises, for the purpose of making a more complete arrangement of their Stock.
They have now Ten separate Rooms, each completely furnished with a different Suite of Bed-room Furniture; these are irrespective of their general Stock, displayed in Six Galleries and Two large ground-floor Ware-rooms; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete stock of Bed-room Furniture in the Kingdom.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have always in Stock from Six to Eight Suites of Deal Bed-room Furniture, each set apart in a separate room, and different in colour and style.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

GOTHIC BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, having been frequently asked for Bed-room Furniture to correspond in design with the Mediæval and Gothic houses now so frequently erected, have manufactured complete suites of Bed-room Furniture, both in solid oak and stained deal, to which they invite the attention of the clergy and gentlemen furnishing country houses. They are plain and simple in character, and moderate in price.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

IRON AND BRASS BEDSTEADS.

HEAL and SON have now on Show 130 patterns of Iron and Brass Bedsteads, ready fixed for inspection, in their extensive Show-rooms; and their stock consists of 2000 Bedsteads, so that they can readily supply orders at the shortest notice.—Heal and Son, Bed-room Furniture Manufactory, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, containing 300 Illustrations, with prices attached, of Bedsteads and Bed-room Furniture, together with Priced List of Bedding, sent free by post, on application to Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

OAK FURNITURE, at R. GREEN and CO.'S, 24, Mortimer-street, Regent-street, W.—To Clergymen and Professional Gentlemen.—A complete SUITE of DARK OAK DINING-ROOM FURNITURE, consisting of a handsome 6 ft. Gothic sideboard, with plate-glass back, eight handsome and massive chairs, a telescope dining-table with patent screw, to dine ten or twelve. The price only 34 guineas. N.B. Also a very massive and Antique Suite of Carved Oak Dining-room Furniture, suitable for a nobleman's or gentleman's mansion, much under its value.

DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.—The BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square, have for disposal a Complete Suite for Drawing-room, highly finished and covered in the elegant and new Regina Blue Silk Reps. Several beautiful specimens of Cabinet Furniture are also included, and, together with the above, form an entire suite of a most elegant description, and can be had for a considerable sum under the original cost.
N.B. Illustrations of the Silver-fir and Marqueterie 25-guinea Bed-room Suites forwarded gratis.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 Engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete Guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage free.

THE PATENT CARRIAGE-SPRING MATTRESS.—This novel invention is perfectly elastic, portable, easily adjusted, and economical.—Price-lists free by post. THE GENERAL FURNISHING AND UPHOLSTERY COMPANY, LIMITED (F. J. ACRES, Manager), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.—N.B. Shippers and the Trade supplied.

CARPETS, CURTAINS, &c.—The GENERAL FURNISHING UPHOLSTERY COMPANY are now exhibiting all the most approved novelties of the season in Carpets, Chintzes, Muslin Curtains, and every variety of textile fabric for upholstery purposes, constituting the most recherché selection in the trade. Special attention is solicited to a lot of first-class French Chintzes (last year's), reduced to one half their original price.—The General Furnishing and Upholstery Company (Limited). F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, best quality. Upwards of 300 shapes constantly on view, or made to any shape.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

ATKINSON and CO., CABINETMAKERS, CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, UPHOLSTERERS, &c.
Every style of Drawing-room, Dining, and Bed room Furniture.
Walnut Drawing-room Suites, elegant and moderate in price.
Dining-room Sets in Oak and Mahogany. Polished Deal, every colour of painted Furniture, and Mahogany for Bed-rooms.
All Bedding made on the premises, and especial care is given to this important Department.
The Newest Patterns of Carpets, in Velvets, Brussels, Kidderminster, &c.
Blankets, Sheetings, Damask, Rep, and Pekin Cloths, and all other materials for Curtains.
Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post, or to be had by personal application.
Estimates given for every form of Furnishing Contracts for Public Establishments, Offices, &c.
Address, 198 to 210, Westminster Bridge-road, S.

EVANS'S PRIZE KITCHENER.—This matchless Kitchener obtained a prize at the Exhibition of 1862. It is adapted for the cottage or mansion, from £5 5s. to £30; also larger sizes, for hotels, taverns, private and public schools, and hospitals, with steam apparatus, from £50 to £100 and upwards. Show-rooms—33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge; Manufactory, 10, Arthur-street West, adjoining.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

NOTICE.—THOMAS TAPLING, BEALL, and CO., formerly "Thomas Tapling and Co.," Carpet Warehousemen, &c., have REMOVED from 44A, Gresham-street, and 74, Aldermanbury, to their restored Premises, 1 to 8, GRESHAM-STREET WEST, City.

PICTURE-FRAMES for RED RIDING HOOD.—Handsome Silk Frames, Glass, and Back, to bread Grate, 6s. 6d.; with Maple and Gilt, 9s. 6d. Catalogues of Mouldings and Pictures, 2 stamps.—S. GOSNELL BERRY, 37, Berners-street, London, W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Le Typica Printing Press, from £1 1s. to £5 5s.; for Letterpress, Copperplate, or Lithographic Printing. Specimens, 2 stamps.—A. BERRY, Manufacturer and Engraver to her Majesty's Post Office, 30, High Holborn, London, W.C.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £2 2s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. Class 2, Object 2, Division 4-inch.

Catalogues, containing an extract of six pages more, sent on receipt of six postage stamps.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 33, Strand (adjoining Coutts' Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

WATCHES AND CLOCKS.—FREDC. W. HAWLEY (successor to Thomas Hawley), many years chief Worker to the late and present Astronomer Royal, Mr. Airy, etc., who respectfully invites the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, and Public generally to his Stock of Watches, Clocks, Chronometers, Chronographs, Transit Instruments, Astronomical Clocks, Compasses, &c. All clocks warranted and kept in repair. 22, Old Bond-street, Piccadilly, W. Established nearly a century.—Manufactory and Observatory, Enfield.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £12 12s. Forwarded to the Exhibition and Great Industrial Institution, Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. RETURNED from the Continent, Mr. HENRY CLARKE, Hairdresser, Chemist, Jeweller, Optician, Fancy Goods Dealer, &c., begs to inform the nobility and gentry that he has taken the same premises he formerly occupied for many years, 2, Arundel-street, Strand, where he has on hand a large assortment of Jet in every variety. An illustrated Book sent post-free.—HENRY CLARKE, 2, Arundel-street, London.

A FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, Prince Albert, and Royal Family, 24, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 3s. each; Hair Bracelets, 5s.; Gold Albums, from 30s. each.—No. 2, Bedford-street Chairing-cross and Strand.—1851, Exhibition, London.

FOR LADIES' ARMS.—Most important to Everyone.—Just completed, a valuable Balm, for curing the Gout, Chronic Rheumatism, and Sciatica, after having undergone a Scientific Test, at Paris, the result of thirty years' labour, extracted from the Vegetable Kingdom, and which, when used, will prove a Treasure, and a true Benefit to Mankind. Further particulars of knowing their correct cost at 48 and 49, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, W.C., Colleges, &c., Lamb, Dyer, and Wool Merchants, and fully painted, 12s. Postpaid. Also, the origin of family Crests, Mottoes, Arms, Pedigrees, &c., by Mr. Lower, Author of "Curiosities of Heraldry," 2 vols., 21s. cloth; post-free, 24s. Genealogist, Lecturer on Heraldry, 25, Charlemont-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CREST ENGRAVED on SEALS or RINGS, 7s. 6d. or 10s. 6d.—No. 2, Newgate-st., and 14, Regent-st., Quadrant. Best Seal, with Crest, 10s.; Electro-silver Inkstand, 21s.; Electro-silver Dessert Knives, 10s. per dozen. Illustrated Price List, Gratis, by post. Observe the Name and Address.—WILLIAM SMITH, 22, Charlemont-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Gold Wedding Rings, 18-carat, Hall-marked, 2 dwts. 10 grs., £2 2s.; 3 dwts., £2 12s. 6d.; 4 dwts., £3 3s. Fine gold. Gold Seals engraved with Crest, 10s.—J. CULLEDGE, Gold Engraver, 12, Aldermanbury, W.C.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, &c. Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged for by other houses) on Steel Dies, Brass Stamps, Rings, Seals, Plates, Presses, Embossing Tools, &c.—T. COLLEDGE, Stationer, 25, Charlemont-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

A WRITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards for 3s., post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 20 for 10s. 6d.—J. CULLEDGE, 25, Charlemont-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK your LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours, with a set of Steel Stamps, 5s. 6d. Initial Plate, 1s. 6d. Name Plate, 3s.; with Crest, 5s. Directions for Marking sent free.—H. CULLETON, 25, Charlemont-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

TABLE LANGUAGES.—GREEN TISSUE VIV ACE LEAVES, for Translating Copies, 6d. per packet; post-free, 7d. Also, Foolscap Copying Specimens and prizes 2 stamps.—R. PLEVEN, Devil, Maidstone.

MYTHON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON is the Description for Prizeology reading.

D. S. BOSSOM, 24, Bishopsgate-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
Pronounced by Connoisseurs
"THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
Most genuine when purchased with their Name on wrapper, label, and stopper, bear, by Appointment, to the Queen, MACKENZIE, Beveridge and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED CANDLES is the very article that combines the most perfect virtues for promoting a luxurious growth of the human hair. Beware of spurious imitations. The genuine is sold only in Packets, Price 6d., 9d., 1s., 1s. 6d., 2s., 2s. 6d., and 10s.

THE GREAT IMPROVEMENT in LIGHT.—PRICE'S PATENT CANDLE COMPANY, Sir Edward Hamilton, Bart., Chairman. The Directors, with the Government sanction, now introduce a MATERIAL LIGHT, as a soft, pure, and beautiful substitute for Candles. The Price is moderate, the quality unrivalled; it is free from any taint, cleanly, reliable, and comfortable; they are all of the same size, and will burn in any candlestick, and require no alteration in the adjusting screw. Recommended from Observe—No connection with anyone of the same name.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY, 57, Fleet-street, London, and 134, Duke-street, Liverpool. Established 1828. Royal Appointments Chloroform, Ether, Gas, and Electricity. Consultations Gratis. Established upwards of a century, mutually, and sources of life system, vide "Lancet," 1857. Observe—Only one address in London.

DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the Faculty as the most efficacious remedy for the relief and cure of the cough, shortness of breath, and general debility, and the only remedy for
CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.
It is unquestionably superior to every other variety.
SOLE CONSIGNEES,
ANSAR, HANBURY, and CO.,
77, Upper Thames-street, London, E.C.
Wholesale Office, Blackfriars, for the Trade of London.
DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil alone possesses the full curative properties of the drug, and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and wonderful natural article."
DR. LAYRANCE,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
I hereby prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, and as a remedy of unquestionable power in pulmonary complaints, and as a nutritive medicine unequalled in which the efficacy of the invaluable medicine is dependent."
DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled Imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9d.; and labelled with his Stamp and Signature, without which none can possess the genuine properties, protected by respective Consuls and Druggists.
ANSAR, HANBURY, and CO., 77, Upper Thames-street, London, E.C.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS give instant relief of Asthma, Consumptive, Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, and all Disorders of the Breath, Lungs, and Chest. Sold in Tins, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per Box, of all Druggists.

WANTED, LEFT OFF CLOTHING, Uniforms, Jewellery, Musical Instruments, Plate, Linen, Furniture, Pictures, and Miscellaneous Property, which will be PAID FOR IMMEDIATELY, by Mr. and Mrs. BENJAMIN, of No. 8, Duke-street, Bloomsbury, W. (3 doors from the British Museum). Ladies waited upon at their own residences. Letters punctually attended to.

SPRING SEASON, 1858.
KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that their extensive showing for the Spring delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered before the late advance in prices, and 25 per cent under the present market value, is NOW READY. Also, a Purchase of the extensive price selected make their Spring purchases (to-day).
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
243, Regent-street, and 1, Verigo-street.

Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks,
Plaid Silks,
Corded Silks,
Figured Silks,
Gros Grains,
Broché Glacé and Satin Silks,
Rich Moires,
New Crossbar Silks,
Poult de Soies,
Corded Drap de France,
Plain Silks,
Watered Silks,
Richest Black Moire Antiques £3 3s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£25,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 1s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Rich Gros Grains, " 1 5s. 6d. "
Black Corded Silks, " 1 15s. 6d. "
Black Striped Brocaded Silks, " 1 15s. 6d. "
Black Drap de France, " 2 2s. 6d. "
Black Plain Silks, " 2 2s. 6d. "
Widows' Silks, " 2 2s. 6d. "
Richest Black Moire Antiques £3 3s. 6d. "
Patterns sent post-free. Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Half to Any remaining Dress.
Flocad Zeenet Muslins 5s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Printed Organdie Muslins 7s. 6d. "
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING FABRICS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Moiré Checks 8s. 9d. the Full Dress.
Shepherd's Plaid Checks 10s. 6d. "
Shepherd's Check Cloths 12s. 6d. "
Chené Mixtures Cloth 12s. 6d. "
Fancy Checks 12s. 6d. "
Fancy Stripes 12s. 6d. "
French Poplettes 12s. 6d. "
French Mohairs 12s. 6d. "
Moiré Poplettes 12s. 6d. "
Moiré Antique 12s. 6d. "
Silk Warp Reps £1 1s. "
Patterns post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy } £1 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
Silks, reduced from
The New Spring Silks, £1 15s. 6d. "
The Rich Striped French Silks, £2 2s. 0d. "
The Rich Striped and Checked Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks (the present mode), £1 19s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS!
Rich, bright, wide, and durable,
from 1s. 9d. per yard.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SPRING MOHAIRS, 9s. 9d. the Full Dress of 14 yards, in all the New Colours for the Season, are NOW READY, and may be had in 7 gained Full Dress. The best makes. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

A SFINE as HUMAN HAIR. Three for 1s. Any lady sending a lock of hair may select 3 other (the finest) from 500 Sorts in 64 Shades. Sent, 1s. 6d. Sc. Post-free. Wholesale and Retail.—CHARLES BERRY, 2, Wellington-street, Strand.

IS. 6D. LADIES', 1s. 11½d. GENTLEMEN'S, Delaherie's Alpine Kid Gloves.
Very best Paris Kid Gloves, 2s. 6d. Gentlemen's, 2s. 3d. Every Glove Stamped with the Name and Address.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS of extraordinary brightness and durability. Patterns free.
Good Black Gros de Naples, 1s. 9d. the 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Gros de Naples, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d., Bright Lyons Glacés, 2 guineas to 3½—198, Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS.
Barèges, Organdies, and Muslins, reduced to half the original cost. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S Spring Fabrics for Dresses will be sent, Patterns free, Chalet, Lilac, and Mulberry Mixtures, Checks, ranging from 1s. 6d. to 3s. 3d. a yard, at BAKER and CRISP'S.

5 YARDS FLOUNCING REQUIRED.
BLACK GRENADINES, Barèges, Barèges, Tarnlatan; also the New Striped Black Muslins, 5 yards wide, for Shawls, Mantles, or Dresses, very cheap. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street, London.

SILK GRENADINES. Patterns free.
50 Pairs, Striped, Checked, and Embroidered, for Dinner, Evening, and Dancing Dresses, 1s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. a yard. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street, London.

1500 BLACK LACE SHAWLS at Half Price.
Bridal Veils of all Lengths. Black Shawls that are worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas for 12s. 6d., 18s. 6d., and 25s. 6d.
198, Regent-street.
BAKER and CRISP.

THE NEW OTTOMAN CORDED SILKS, both sides alike,
at 2½ per Full Dress.
£1 12s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BAKER AND CRISPS
NEW CHECKED MUSLIN CLOTHS.
Patterns free.
The largest variety in the Kingdom, 12s. 6d. Full Dress.

PETER ROBINSON
Invites special attention to his unfurnished Stock of SILKS, of the present season, comprising the greatest novelties of French and Foreign manufacture.
Patterns free.—103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS LEVANTINE,
Lyons Poult de Soie, and Lyons Gros de Rhin, in every variety of Colour, Moiré Checks, Striped Silks, Checked Silks, and very suitable for Young Ladies, 17s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 2 in. wide, or any Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS
In all the most approved Colours, Checks, Stripes, and Spots, not to be surpassed. The most fashionable Material for the present season for Ladies' morning suits, including great variety of styles.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR SPRING COSTUMES,
Irish Poplins in perfectly new colours
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES,
in 24 and 42 produces the Full Dress of 14 yards. 36 inches wide.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR EARLY SPRING.
A New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known makes of Lyons Glacés, Gros Grains, and Poult de Soies.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW IMPORTED.
5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for Young Ladies, Ladies in Mourning, and Widows' Dresses, from Many of the Dresses are Flounced, and require no Crape for Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS
including the Royal Purples, Grass Greens, Jasmer Blue, and the New Colours for the Season, 21s. the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPECIAL NOVELTIES !!
Now selling, upwards of 3000
WORKED MUSLIN MUSLIN DRESSES,
in Three Lots,
Lot 1.—5s. 6d., each, Full Dress for Twenty.
Lot 2.—9s. 9d. " Eight Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3.—12s. 6d. " Ten Guineas for Twenty.
Each Dress is Trimmed and Flounced the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES,
selected in Paris for Evening Dress, 1 guinea the Full Dress.
5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 8s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very handsome Striped Grenadines, 2 guineas, 2½ guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS.
Lyons Poult de Soie, 14 yards wide, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns in the reduced prices post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

New ready, all the New Patterns in PRINTS, PERCALES, SATINS, and PIQUES,
for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A RABIAN GLACÉS,
Rich Striped and Checked Jacket Silks.
A most useful and desirable fashion silk for Walking or Morning Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

2000 RICHLY-BRAIDED ROBES,
Reduced from 2 guineas and 3 guineas to 1 guinea the Full Dress, being less than half their value.
These Robes are Trimmed with Velvet, and are in the most fashionable Colours.
A set of Engravings, showing the principal Costumes made in the Establishment, sent free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE NEW AND LARGE COLLECTION of
NEW SPRING DRESSES,
Rich Brocade Silk Poplins, Rich Moire coloured, 21 guineas
Full Dress.
Rich Striped Satin Poplins, Rich Plain, Full Dress.
The Honiton-silk Petticoats, 5s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE MOST DESIRED NOVELTY FOR THIS SEASON IS THE SILK CHECK MEXICAN,
in a most elegant and useful fabric.
In Black and White, Blue and White, Green and White.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHEAP SPRING DRESSES.
A Large and Choice Variety of Patterns sent free.
Full Dress, 14 yards wide, 1s. 9d. to 10s. 6d.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SPRING SILKS.
A choice assortment just received, and for the past
Striped, Checked, and Plaid Silks, 1 guinea.
In Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Striped Lyons Glacés, 1 guinea to 2 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A NEW FABRIC.—A Great Success has attended the introduction of the NEW SPRING DRESSES by PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street.
And it requires but a glance at the Fabrics to account for the success. They are composed of the finest BLACK CASHMERE, and are from the finest wool which the Cashmere goat produces, and are as soft as a cobweb, and as light as gossamer. The Dresses are made in a fashion which never blinds from choice. It is beautifully made, and is Trimmed with Velvet, and is in the most elegant style. The BLACK CASHMERE DRESSES are sold at 1 guinea the Full Dress. Patterns free to Peter Robinson, the Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THOS. FORD and CO. respectfully intimate to their patrons and the public that in consequence of the great reduction in the duty on Foreign Silks, they have purchased, for cash, the entire Stock of Messrs. Hamilton and Co., of London, W.

FORD'S JACKETS FOR INDOOR WEAR.
A large assortment, of decidedly new choice fabrics, from 10s. 6d. to 42s. Also, a large assortment of Ladies' Dressing Gowns. On our opposite Pantheon, in all colours, 10s. 6d.
Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S VELVET WALKING JACKETS, at 5, 6, and 7 guineas, are especially worthy of ladies' notice as new and elegant. Also, Velveteen Jackets, 21s. to 42s.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S NEW SILK MANTLES for the SPRING, are now ready. Also, Waterproof Cloaks, warranted to resist rain, 21s. and upwards.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S GLACÉ SILK SKIRTS, in various styles, ready for immediate wear. A full Dressmaker Skirt for 7 guineas.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas.
Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding Costumes, the perfection of comfort and elegance. Also, Petticoats of Cloth and Flannel, Jackets, Trousers, &c.
T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their extensive importations of new Fabrics will be ready and ticketed in the present season. Their inspection of HEMLEY'S SILKS, Fancy Dress Materials, and Costumes, are unusually large, and the Fashions in their Mantle Costume, for the Spring Season, are unrivalled for elegance and novelty. Their Stock of Shawls, Scarfs, Mantles, Dress Materials, and Costumes, in every variety of Fashion, Lace, in opaque, half opaque, and transparent, Muslins, Barèges, Grenadines, Organdies, Jaconets, Swiss, Cambrics, Linens, Ginghams, Piques, Percales, Chintzes, Furniture Moreens, Moire Antiques and Satins, in the newest and richest shades of colour, are of very large extent.
Address for Patterns, Regent-circus, Piccadilly.

MESSRS. JAY,
MOURNING SILK MERCERS
TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN,
H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES,
H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge,
London General Mourning Warehouse,
247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

MILLINERY.—MESSRS. JAY have the honour to announce that a Large and Choice Stock of their Spring Millinery is now ready.

MANTLES.—MESSRS. JAY, having received their Mantles from Paris, beg to invite their patrons to inspect the novelties of the season.

JAY'S,
DRESSES FOR THE CHANGE OF SEASON.
MESSRS. JAY have received some elegant Dresses for Spring, and invite Ladies to visit their rooms to submit for inspection in their numerous patterns and the public.

JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, 253, Regent-street.

SANSPLECTUM JUPONS,
"Wear elastically, well."—Court Journal.
"Admirably adapted."—Queen.
ARMEY BROTHERS (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

EMPRESS JUPONS,
5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.
"Beautiful."—Queen.
"Invented to the art of perfection."—Le Follet.
ARMEY BROTHERS (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS,
5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
"Admirably adapted."—Queen.
ARMEY BROTHERS (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

FRENCH CASHMERE SHAWLS, at an immense reduction in price, from 1l. 6d. to 3l. 3s.; a FLEMISH SHAWL, 2 yards square, 1l. 1s.; Embroidered Cashmere Shawls, at a reduction of 50 per cent from former prices; Real Thibet Shawls, 10 guineas, usually sold at 15 guineas; Real Cashmere Shawls, 5 guineas, usually obtained only for the present season.
Address—No. 247, 249, 251, 253, Regent-street.

MESSRS. ATKINSON and CO.'S Stock, of Fancy Dress Goods, Silks, Shawls, Mantles, and Furs, at 5, Wellington-street, Strand, is at present unusually large and attractive. Many of the Silks are 2 yards wide, and are sold at 2 and 3 guineas the Dress. The Mantles are made in the newest and most elegant shapes, and are sold at 2 and 3 guineas.

MESSRS. ROBINSON has bought this Stock at a large discount for Cash, and will sell the whole at 198, Regent-street, on Monday, April 5, and following days, at prices much below the present value.

Peter Robinson, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LADIES' DRESSMAKING of first make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Night Dresses, Petticoats, Stays, Riding Habits, and Underclothing. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

NEW SILKS, in COLOURS and
BLACK, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 16s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 21s., 25s., 30s., 35s., 40s., 45s., 50s., 55s., 60s., 65s., 70s., 75s., 80s., 85s., 90s., 95s., 100s., 105s., 110s., 115s., 120s., 125s., 130s., 135s., 140s., 145s., 150s. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most fashionable Silks of the season, at 198, Regent-street, 1, Verigo-street, Westbourne-terrace, W.

THE LATEST FASHIONS in DRESS.
LADIES and the PUBLIC visiting London are respectfully invited to the Show Rooms of MESSRS. PETER ROBINSON, for inspection of all the LATEST NOVELTIES in BRIDAL, or BALL DRESSES, MANTLES, CIRCASSIANS, and FAMILY MOURNING.
FANCY SILKS, in Checks, Stripes, and Colours.
BONNETS, CAPS, and MILLINERY, in the newest Shapes and Styles.
ALL the LATEST FASHIONS in JACKETS and MANTLES for Spring.
Tucker, Collarette, and Lace Mantlets in all the latest Designs.
NEW PATTERNS in SILKS, in all the Colours, and in Checks, suited to the usual period.
Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, and Fancy Goods.
FAMILY AND CONFIDENTIAL MOURNING.
Draper, Silkmercer, Milliner, Dressmaker, and Mantle Maker to the Queen and Royal Family.
Matching Orders executed and promptly attended to.
Observe the Address—
"Close on but not open at Nos. 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W."
JAMES THOMAS, Manager. Established A.D. 1810.

BLACK SILKS.—SPECIAL NOTICE.
PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street,
Would invite the Nobility and Gentry to an inspection of his Superior Make and Qualities of his Black Silks, and the very reasonable Prices at which they are now selling.
Good, useful Black Silks, from 2s. 6d. to 3s. the Full Dress.
Rich Corded Black Silks, from 2 guineas to 3 guineas.
Rich Striped and Checked Black Silks, from 2 guineas.
THE COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FOR FIRST or DEEP MOURNING.
PETER ROBINSON
Handles exclusively supplies of First or Deep Mourning without delay, at the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms, at the Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
the largest and most economical
MOURNING ESTABLISHMENT in LONDON.
Silks, Merino, Mohairs, and Bombazines, in the most correct taste, and at the lowest prices, for Mourning Dresses, Mantles, and Millinery of every description.
Goods are sent to any part of the country free for selection, accompanied by a Dressmaker, Milliner, or Mantle Maker.
Address PETER ROBINSON, Court and General Mourning Warehouse, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

BLACK SILK DRESSES, the Skirts made up, with shape or skirt ready to tack on, in the largest variety, and at the lowest prices.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPRING NOVELTIES, in Black and Half Mourning.
Patterns of the new and fashionable fabrics for Dresses will be sent, Address—PETER ROBINSON, Regent-street.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY
MATERIALS, for Ladies' Dresses, are now in use throughout the Nobility and Gentry, and are sold by J. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street,
Embraces the Choicest of Tartan Plaids.

THE EQUITONIC ELDER-DOWN
COMFORTABLE, the most delightful to the feet, unconditional, the most beautiful, and, by all physicians whose opinions have been taken, the most healthful article ever invented. Sold by the Manufacturers, and by all Drapers, Hosiers, and Shoemakers. Illustrated circulars (extracts), Crystal Palace Bazaar), and at Mr. Weare, 14, Cornhill, E.C.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL returned from Paris with the Newest Shapes for the Spring Season, in Silk, Crape, French Straw, &c. Ribbons (one inch wide), 6d. Regent-street, and 4, Cornhill.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting without wrinkle, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
T. and C. HOWELL, 4, Cornhill, London, E.C.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865.
No. 2 large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Oxford Shirts, with Linen Fronts, Collars, and Wristbands, 30s. the half-dozen; Patterns and Self-measure sent free.—HARVEY and CO., 11 and 12, Southampton-street, E.C.; 11, Old Broadstreet, E.C., London.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for Nursing, Dressing, Walking, Riding, Dancing, Bathing, and Sea-sickness. Prospectus forwarded. Experienced Female Attendants at Mrs. Hall's Private Apartments.—Address, 2, Vere-street, Oxford-street.

COST'S PATENT ELASTIC CALISTHENIC
CHEST EXPANDER.—THE MODEL CHEST worn to have the Chest developed, the Shoulders thrown back, and the Figure which no standard is to grow large to those that are less, instead of producing the natural result frequently from the use of Stays, which no standard is to grow large to those that are less.
81, 1857, Inventor, &c., Fakenham, Norfolk.

COST'S PATENT ELASTIC CALISTHENIC
CHEST EXPANDER, and by the Royal Family, produces the most beautiful development of the Chest and Shoulders, and the general health of the body, without the slightest inconvenience. List of prices, testimonials, &c., forwarded on application to Messrs. COST, 65, Fakenham, Piccadilly, W.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A now and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltz," by the same Composer. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. Illustrated by Lynch. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on favourite Nautical Melodies. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new Waltz by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. On favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a new Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.

THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A selection of opening and concluding voluntaries, by the most celebrated composers, ancient and modern. Adapted chiefly for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite voluntaries, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 3s. each; or the six numbers in one volume, bound in cloth, 12s. A thematic list of contents may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DUSSEK'S INVOCATION SONATA.—A New and Revised Edition of this celebrated Sonata, as performed by Mdme. Arabella Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts, is now published, price 6s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BELLAGIO. Morceau for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Now ready, a Fantasia on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by Mrs. MURRAY GARTSHORE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte, Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S GWENDOLINE. Chanson de Bonheur for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S NATHLIE (The Sleeping Syren). A Sketch for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.—IT'S A SORT OF THING WE READ ABOUT, and THE GERMAN BAND. Illustrated. 15 stamps each. The above have created a perfect furore.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place, W.

£40 A YEAR. By J. E. ROE. Free for 15 stamps. An elegant drawing-room Comic Song. Easy, telling, and extremely funny. Sung at the Polytechnic.
D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place, W.

THEY'VE LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. By R. COOTE. Sung by the Christy Minstrels. Free for 15 stamps. A beautiful plaintive ballad.
D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place, W.

R. COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and played at the nobility's balls. Illustrated in colours. Solo, Duet, or Septet, 24 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

R. COOTE'S ORPHEUS GALOP. Founded on Melodies in Offenbach's celebrated Opera. Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 18 stamps.
D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Convivial Song, sung by the great Vance at the Crystal Palace and the Strand Musick Hall. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

NEW MUSIC.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS, Complete. Price One Shilling. Contents:—In the Forest. O fly with me! The hoar frost fell. Over the Grave. On the Sea. May Song. Song of the Lark. Morning Prayer. Autumn Song. Presage of Spring. The Primrose. Festival of Spring. The Nightingale. Wandering Song. Love and Wine. Early Spring. Farewell to the Forest. Resting Place. Hunting Song. Remembrance. Praise of Spring. In the Country. Turkish Drinking Song. Huntsman's Farewell. Summer Song. The Voyage.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published this day.
Also, uniform with the above,
HENRY SMART'S STABAT MATER (of Rossini). 3s.
HENRY SMART'S TWELFTH MASS (of Mozart). 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TWELVE HYMNS FOR GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER, for Four Voices, Organ or Piano, selected, edited, and arranged by W. H. BIRCH, price 1s.; or, in 2 Books, 6d. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

LINDSAY SLOPER'S MIRELLA. Played by Mdme. Arabella Goddard with great success. Price 5s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SIGNOR ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO. This new and already popular Song, by the Author of "Il Bacio," is published in the following various forms, to suit every taste:—
1. In Italian (C and D) .. .. 3s.
2. In English (C) .. .. 3s.
3. For the Piano .. .. 3s.
4. As a Polka .. .. 3s.
To be had everywhere.—BOOSEY and Co.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW VALSE ARIETTE may be had both in Italian and English, and for the Pianoforte, viz.:—
1. Il Messagera d'Amore .. .. 3s.
2. The Message of Love .. .. 3s.
3. As a Valse Brillante .. .. 3s.
To be had of all Musicsellers.—BOOSEY and Co.

ADOLPH GOLLMICK'S MARGUERITE and WINIFRED. Two new and original pieces, by the Author of "Dripping Well," "A Happy Thought," &c. Published this day, price 3s. each, by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE NEW BARITONE SONG,

I ALWAYS FEARED A MARRIED LIFE. By J. L. HATTON. Sung by Mr. Weiss, Mr. Winn, and Mr. Lambert, with immense success.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL.

I DO NOT ASK TO PRESS THAT CHEEK. New Ballad. By Miss GABRIEL, Author of "The Skipper and his Boy." Price 3s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

RÉNÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE, a charming little piece of six pages. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG.

TAKE BACK THE HEART THAT THOU GAVEST. Another great success, by the Author of "Maggie's Secret." Third edition, 3s. Also, by the same popular Composer, the following new ballads:—"Do you remember?" (in the style of "You and I"), price 3s. "Golden Days," 3s. "The Bells' Whisper," 3s. These are all excellent specimens of this celebrated author. Also new editions of "You and I," "Dreamland," "Susan's Story," "Milly's Faith," "The Blue Ribbon," "The Broken Sixpence," "Five o'clock in the morning," "Won't you tell me why, Robin?" &c. All 3s. each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and every Musicseller in town and country.

Fourth Edition of

CAPRERA. By GEORGE FORBES, Chanson Napolitaine. A piece whose popularity promises to surpass that of "Ecoutez Moi" or "A Maiden's Prayer." Price 3s. Mr. Forbes, whose charming little pieces are now played everywhere, has lately published the following compositions:—"Castellucia." Second Chanson Napolitaine (companion to "Caprera"). 3s. "Giojoso." Galop brillante. 3s. "Rossmunda." Nocturne. 3s. "Rappelle Toi." Romance. 2s. "A String of Pearls." Valse brillante. 3s. "Maryland." Confederate March. 3s. "Mirella." 3s. "Jenny Jones." Transcription. 3s. "Polonaise." 3s. These pieces may be had of every Musicseller in town and country.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MOZART'S SONATAS, 10s. 6d. — Just published, BOOSEY and CO.'S new and complete edition of Mozart's Pianoforte Sonatas, printed from newly-engraved plates, and edited by W. Dorrell, Esq., of the Royal Academy of Music. In one vol., paper cover, price 10s. 6d. Also, the same work, with Memoir and Portrait of Mozart, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt, price 16s.; or, half morocco, gilt edges, price 18s. Uniform with Boosey and Co.'s guinea edition of Beethoven's Sonatas. This edition will be found second to none in point of correctness or elegance of appearance.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Subscribers to this Library paying Two Guineas per annum have the use of twelve pieces of music at the time in town, or twenty pieces in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a Guinea Illustrated Album at Christmas, or the same amount in New Music. All the newest Music is added to the Library, which comprises also a complete collection of the best Standard Works. Particulars, post-free, from BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.

FLEETING THOUGHTS, by IUCHO, price 3s., is charming, and daily acquiring popularity.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECE.

MOUNTAIN ROSE. Reverie. By MULLER, Price 4s. This piece is exceedingly graceful, without being difficult.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. This celebrated Galop eclipses all the others, and is the reigning favourite.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE.

COOTE'S ORPHÉE VALSE, price 4s., on Airs from Offenbach's beautiful Opera.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. Price 4s. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the celebrated Cure Lancers by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This simple and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage of the season."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VERY DANSANTE.

COOTE'S KINGFISHER POLKA. Price 3s. The best Polka ever written.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUCCESS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful Illustration of the Game in colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
"Enthusiastically received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success."—Vide Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "So Early in de Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO,

MY THOUGHTS ARE OF THEE ONLY, price 2s. 6d., by SHIRLEY, is greatly admired.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG,

THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 2s. 6d. "This song is full of melody, and has the most charming chorus we have ever listened to."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG,

THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 2s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Albert Steele.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.

J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
Bob Simmons's Courtship .. .. 3s.
He, She, and the Postman .. .. 3s.
A Norrible Tale .. .. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

VANCE'S GREAT SONG.

SWEET JENNY, OH! WHERE CAN SHE BE? Price 2s. 6d. Is always encored.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions:—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Sung by Titiens. In A and G .. 3s. 0d.
" "Hero to Leander." An exquisite Song .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Lark Song." Vocal Waltz .. 3s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again!" .. 3s. 0d.
" Beauty Sleep (L'Ardita) .. 3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Bacio) .. 3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night .. 3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing .. 3s. 0d.
V. GABRIEL—Little Golden Hair .. 3s. 0d.
Breeze and the Harp .. 3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps! though not a star .. 3s. 0d.
" Ah, could I but re-live the past! .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C .. 3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B .. 3s. 0d.
MORI—Rustic Song (River Sprite) .. 3s. 0d.
" Sunshine of love (ditto) .. 3s. 0d.
" Maid of the silver mail (ditto) .. 3s. 0d.
" Bright as love's dream. Duet .. 3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day .. 3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys! Yo-ho!" In C, B, and G .. 3s. 0d.
" Innamorata d'una stella. Aria .. 2s. 6d.
" La luna è bella. Aria .. 2s. 6d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove .. 3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo! says the gentle dove. In G and F .. 3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier! In A and F .. 3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and G .. 3s. 0d.
" "The Chieftain's Wife," .. 3s. 0d.
" "In the hour of my distress." Sacred Song .. 3s. 0d.
ADAMS—When golden eve .. 2s. 6d.
SMYTH, R.A.—"Frappe Fort!" .. 3s. 0d.
PERRING—Beware! .. 2s. 6d.
MACFARREN—I've watched him .. 3s. 0d.
" Wear this flow'r .. 3s. 0d.
" Duet: Ne'er yield thy soul .. 3s. 0d.
ROBERTI—Duet: Faintly flow .. 3s. 0d.
" Child's Vision. Duet. S.C. .. 3s. 0d.
BILETTA—Duet: I Tamburi .. 3s. 6d.
VERDI—"Swiftly thro' the West." Boat Song .. 3s. 0d.
CAPT. COLOMB—"Up the Alma's Height." Song .. 3s. 0d.
LOCHIEL—The Covenanter's Bridal .. 3s. 0d.
" Heather Bell .. 3s. 0d.
FARNIE—A Happy Song .. 3s. 0d.
ARTHUR SKETCHLEY (as sung by)—The Twin Brothers. A Song of Mystery. With Portrait. .. 3s. 0d.
MAGAZZARI—Taci non d'ormi. Arietta .. 2s. 6d.

II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo .. 5s. 0d.
" Tarantelle .. 4s. 0d.
" Mazurka, Cracovie .. 3s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each .. 3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naiades .. 5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella .. 3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré .. 3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes .. 4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn) .. 2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s.; Duet .. 4s. 0d.
" "Leah." Transcription .. 3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie .. 3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto .. 4s. 0d.
" Pandora. Bluette de Salon .. 3s. 0d.
SCHUMANN—Chanson dans le Jardin. Duet. Edited by Lindsay Sloper .. 5s. 0d.
SURENNE—Reverie d'Amour .. 4s. 0d.
MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON—Elf-Land .. 4s. 0d.
" A Dream .. 3s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

MONTGOMERY—Starry Night Mazurka .. 3s. 0d.
DE VILLIERS—Donato Galop .. 4s. 0d.
Donato Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
" Poppies Red Valse .. 4s. 0d.
CLARKE—Witches' Own Galop .. 3s. 0d.
COOTE—Merry Wives' Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
She Stoops to Conquer, ditto .. 4s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Helvellyn Galop .. 4s. 0d.
" Waltzes .. 4s. 0d.
" Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
" Dark Eyes Valse .. 3s. 0d.
GIORZA—Limited Liability Galop .. 4s. 0d.
GODFREY—Coldstream Guards Quadrille .. 4s. 0d.
WARREN—River Sprite Quadrille .. 3s. 0d.
Sleeping Queen Quadrille .. 3s. 0d.
D'ALEMBERT—Woman in Mauve. Waltz .. 4s. 0d.
" Wild Irish Girl. Galop .. 4s. 0d.

IV.—CHAMBER OPERETTAS.

Now ready, scored for Voice and Piano, with or without Chorus, and suited for private performance.
1. BRIDE OF SONG.—BENEDICT.
2. SLEEPING QUEEN.—BALFE.
3. PUNCHINELLO.—LEVEY.
4. JESSY LEA.—MACFARREN.
5. RIVER SPRITE.—MORI.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application. All New Music sent at Half-price.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut .. 10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut .. 15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut 20 guineas per annum.
Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut .. 5 guineas per quarter.
Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM, as above detailed, is extended to all parts of the United Kingdom.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE.—22 guineas in polished ash, 26 and 28 guineas in rosewood or walnut. Double, or Check, Action, agreeable tone, solid touch; rendering it far superior to old instruments, loose in the key and worn in the hammer.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-st.

BROADWOODS' NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 165 in walnut. These extremely elegant and much-admired instruments are sold at the manufacturer's prices, and are selected with the greatest care. They may be bought on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, 135 guineas in rosewood, and 150 in walnut. These powerful and remarkably effective pianofortes may be bought on the three-years' system.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW SEMI-GRAND, 110 guineas. The largest selection in town at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

PLEYEL and CO., of Paris, have appointed CRAMER and CO. (Limited) their Sole Agents for England. PIANOFORTES by this eminent firm may now be had for Sale or Hire. Prices, from 50 to 200 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-st.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, 135 guineas in rosewood, 155 in walnut. Perfect specimens of these celebrated instruments—almost equal in power to the largest grand—in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES of every class and size, from the smallest pianette to the most elaborate oblique, and by all the best makers, constantly in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

BROADWOODS' at CRAMER'S.

COLLARDS' at CRAMER'S.

ERARD'S at CRAMER'S.

KIRKMAN'S at CRAMER'S.

PLEYEL'S at CRAMER'S.

70 TO 80 GRANDS by the above eminent makers, at prices from 105 to 280 guineas, always on stock at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTE.—A superior upright Pianoforte, in solid mahogany, especially made with metallic bracings, &c., for extreme climates, delivered free on board, packed in zinc, for 50 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S.—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments:—

No.		Per Month.
1 and 2.	One Stop	10s. 6d.
3.	Three Stops	12s. 0d.
4.	Five Stops	15s. 0d.
5.	Ten Stops	21s. 0d.
6.	Fourteen Stops	25s. 0d.
9.	Ten Stops, Percussion Action	25s. 0d.
10.	Fourteen Stops	31s. 6d.
11.	Fourteen Stops	35s. 0d.
12.	Fifteen Stops	42s. 0d.
13.	Eight Stops, Two Keyboards	35s. 0d.
14.	Twenty-two Stops	42s. 0d.
	DRAWING-ROOM MODELS.
1.	Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells	31s. 0d.
2.	Eight Stops	31s. 6d.
3.	Sixteen Stops	42s. 0d.

N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on Instruments taken by the year.
In the case of parties purchasing and paying for an Instrument within six months from the time of hiring, the amount due for hire will be given up in lieu of discount for ready money.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

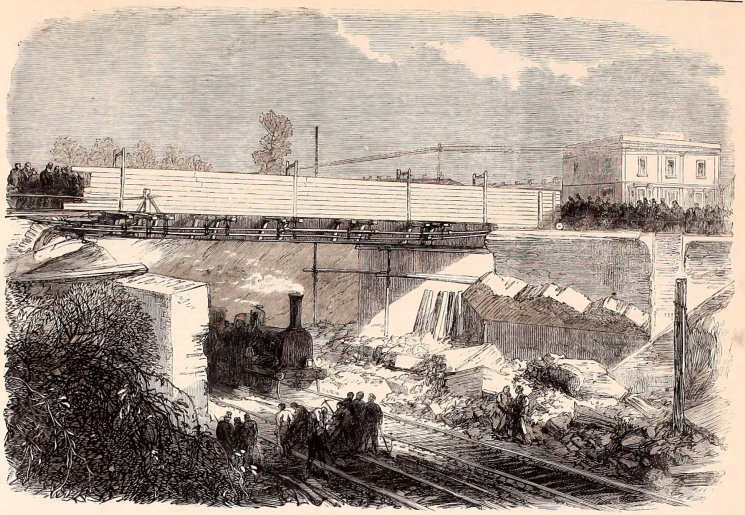
ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

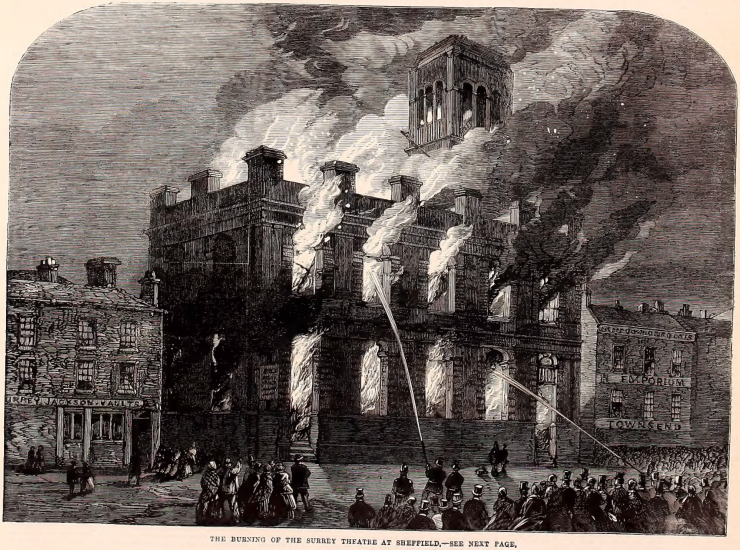
ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak case, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S HARMONIUMS (English) of the best description, at prices from 6 to 140 guineas, in every possible variety. The Cottage Harmonium, with full compass, 6 guineas. The School Harmonium at 10 guineas. Church Harmoniums at 20, 25, and 40 guineas. Catalogues gratis.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, W.



BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every modern improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that pure rich quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.



BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated Nicole, of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular music of the day, including selections from "Faust," "Mirella," &c. Lists upon application.—24, Holles-street, W.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates, and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SCENE OF THE LATE ACCIDENT NEAR CROYDON.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE BURNING OF THE SURREY THEATRE AT SHEFFIELD,—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT WEST CROYDON.

An accident, by which several men were killed and others seriously hurt, took place at Croydon last Sunday. The London and Brighton Railway Company are constructing a short loop line from Gloucester-road Bridge, on the Croydon Railway, to join the West-End and Crystal Palace Railway at Dagnall's Park, near Balham. The Gloucester-road Bridge, which is near West Croydon, is to be replaced by a wider and more commodious one; and in order to expedite this work and accomplish the removal without stopping the traffic, Sunday morning, when few trains run, was fixed on for the work. At half-past eight o'clock a locomotive, with a chain attached, was employed to pull down the brickwork, which consisted of two small arches, used as abutments to the centre arch, which was also brickwork. Preparations for a grand haul had been made, and a number of men were employed in weakening the supports of the bridge, on the supposition that the power of the locomotive was scarcely sufficient for its destruction. On a sudden, without any warning, the whole fabric gave way, and six poor fellows were burried under the mass of brickwork. Two were as soon as possible taken out, quite dead; one of them, George Mills, literally smashed to a pulp. The other man's name was William Edwards. Four others were extricated alive, and three of them were conveyed to Guy's Hospital, where one of them, named Bigley, has since died. We give an Engraving which shows the appearance of the ruins of the bridge after the men were removed.

BURNING OF THE SURREY MUSIC HALL, OR THEATRE, AT SHEFFIELD.

It is rather curious that the destruction by fire of the well-known original Surrey Theatre, in the Blackfriars-road, should have been followed so soon by that of its namesake at Sheffield. This building, or cluster of buildings, called a music-hall when it was first opened about fifteen years ago, had been greatly enlarged by Mr. Youdan, the proprietor, and fitted up for theatrical entertainments. Extensive alterations were made last year; the stage was widened, and extended backwards a clear space of sixty feet, while the gallery was made to accommodate 1500 persons. This gallery was of immense strength; and an additional tier of boxes was built, resting upon ranges of hollow iron columns; but, unfortunately, from the very nature of the case, the employment of a vast quantity of wood was inevitable. Scarcely anything more inflammable in the way of buildings can be conceived than the Surrey Theatre was at its reopening. Row upon row of wooden seats in the pit; tier upon tier of wooden "boxes," covered with light curtains and drapery of various kinds; and the spacious galleries, all of wood, with innumerable jets of gas and great chandeliers, rendered it a matter of certainty that if a fire did break out it would set every effort to extinguish it at defiance. Beneath the stage was a "mezzanine" floor, and here again was an amazing accumulation of inflammable material; and above the stage, in the "flies," were the usual mechanical appliances for working the scenes. Mr. Youdan had added to the other attractions of the place a museum, which was in the basement story near the theatre, and was well stocked with a collection of curious and valuable articles. On the same floor was a large and handsome room for dancing. The entrance-hall, when it ceased to be used as a bar for the sale of beer, was converted into a picture gallery, and was lighted by several very handsome glass chandeliers of the same description as the much larger one that was suspended from the centre of the roof of the main building. The alterations completed, the theatre was confessedly one of the largest and handsomest in the country, and its reopening drew immense audiences for a time. The fire broke out last Saturday morning at half-past two o'clock. The performance of Friday evening had finished about eleven, and at midnight all the gaslights were extinguished, but it is surmised that some part of the woodwork, probably in the "flies," had been ignited during the performance of the grand fire scene in the play of "The Streets of London," which had been performed there every night for a fortnight past. In less than five minutes the flames burst out of the roof at the rear of the building, and began to spread with such rapidity that the neighbouring houses in Westbar, Spring-street, and Hick's-lane were in great danger. Many of the people living in these houses fled in haste, without even staying to put on their clothes or attempting to save any portion of their furniture. The police and fire-engines were promptly at hand; but, though the fire was prevented from extending beyond the theatre itself, it was impossible to do more. The external walls being solidly built, no such disaster as that which cost the life of Mr. Lorimer, at Edinburgh, is to be recorded on this occasion. The fire burnt itself out between four and five o'clock, leaving a mere carcass of the building. Our Illustration, from a sketch taken at the bottom of Westbar-green, will give some idea of the scene at the time of the conflagration.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Sir Joseph Sawle Graves-Sawle, Bart., of Penrice, near St. Austell, Cornwall, and of Ashfield, Devon, was proved in the London Court on the 17th ult.—the executors appointed being Charles Glynn Prideaux Brune, Esq., and the testator's sons, Sir Charles Brune Graves-Sawle, Bart. (late M.P. for Bodmin), and Thomas Graves-Sawle, Esq. The personalty was sworn under £20,000. The testator was the eldest son of the late Admiral Graves, and was twice married. He was Deputy Lieutenant for Cornwall and Special Deputy Warden of the Stannaries. He died on the 13th of January last, at the age of seventy-two, having executed his will in 1861, and added four codicils, the last dated Jan. 12, the day preceding his death, to which he made a cross. Provision under two marriage settlements is made for his wife, Lady Sawle. His son, the present Baronet, who succeeds to the family estates, is also residuary legatee of the personalty. A charge, by way of annuity, is made on the estates in favour of his son Thomas, to whom some estates are bequeathed. There are legacies, contingent and reversionary, to his grandchildren.

The will of Richard Barrow, Esq., of Ringwood Hall, Derbyshire, was proved in London, under £500,000 personalty. The executors are his brothers, John Barrow, Esq., and the Rev. James Barrow. The will bears date the 4th of February, 1864, and he died on the 10th of January last. The bequests are liberal. To his brother John he has devised his estates in the counties of Derby and Notts, and has appointed him residuary legatee; to his brother James he leaves the advowson to the rectory of North Wingfield, Derby; to his brother William and two sisters £10,000 each; to his niece, Juana, wife of the Rev. D. Alexander, M.A., £20,000; and to his niece Mary Ann, wife of the Rev. G. Darby, M.A., £20,000; to two other nieces, £5000 each; and to his housekeeper, butler, and housemaid, £100 each.

The will of Wright Ingle, Esq., of Chapel-street, Grosvenor-square, was proved in London on the 1st ult. The personalty was sworn under £100,000. The executors and trustees nominated are Haylock Watson, John Russell Sowray, and David Owen, Esqrs. To each of them he has bequeathed a legacy of 150gs. and £10 for a ring, and to have the free use of his wines, &c., and of his residence, for the next two years, whilst engaged upon his property. His estates are held in trust for his great-nephew, George Wright Ingle (the son of his nephew, George Ingle, of Cambridge, miller), now in his infancy, and in the care of the testator's niece, Mrs. Ann Watson, an annuity being left to him, increasing in amount from £100 to £500 per annum, till he comes into possession. To his said niece, Mrs. Ann Watson (the wife of his executor and the daughter of his late brother James Ingle), he leaves an annuity of £150 and the selection of plate and furniture; £2000 to his great-nephew Wright Ingle, son of his nephew Holden Ingle. Legacies and annuities are left to his brother, nephews, nieces, and their children; also to his servants. The interest of £200 is to be given to four poor widows of St Ives, and the like to four poor widows of Fenstanton, Hunts.

About 2000 bales of cotton a month have recently been shipped on board the mail-steamers at Bombay for England viâ Egypt.

Mr. Cobden has had a relapse of his illness, bronchial asthma, but is somewhat better.

A dinner to commemorate the siege of Sebastopol lately took place at St. Petersburg. It was attended by the Grand Duke Nicholas and a great number of officers. Before the company separated, it was decided that a similar dinner should be held every year on Feb. 23, the anniversary of the day on which the Russian Council of War resolved to make counter-approaches to defend themselves against the Anglo-French armies.

The accounts of the Commissioners of Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues for the year ending March, 1864, has been presented to Parliament. Commencing with a balance of £15,746 in cash, and £140,645 in stock and securities, the Commissioners have received a sum of £96,004 from various sales; and, deducting the payments made during the year, the balance left is £19,116 in cash and £200,854 in securities and stock.

MR. MACLISE'S "DEATH OF NELSON."

The great picture of "The Death of Nelson," in the Royal Gallery of the Westminster Palace, the companion to "The Meeting between Wellington and Blucher after Waterloo," on the opposite wall, is on the point of completion. Like its vis-à-vis, it is a water-glass, or stereo-chrome painting, Mr. Maclise having, it appears, found no reason to withdraw his confidence in a medium which he was practically the first to introduce into this country, and which presents much greater facilities of execution than fresco. With all the painter's unrivalled power, facility, and experience in dealing with large and elaborate subjects, this work has only been achieved by four years of most close and unremitted toil; and it may safely be said that this period would have sufficed to produce a similar result to no other living painter. Some eighteen months were consumed in arranging the design and executing the preliminary oil study; the remaining time has been spent on the wall. The study (though the artist has deviated from many of its details in the large work) is in reality a highly finished picture, and will, we understand, probably be sent to the forthcoming Royal Academy Exhibition.

It is interesting to know that the vastness of the surface to be covered (measuring 46 ft. in breadth by 12 ft. in height) has enabled the painter to reproduce to exact perspective scale a large section of that portion of the quarter-deck, poop, &c., of the Victory near where Nelson received his death wound (now marked on the ship with a brass plate) with every object in its proper relative position. The section presents the view to starboard, with the long line of the French Redoubtable's bulwarks showing above those of the Victory.

At first sight of the picture the eye settles naturally on Nelson lying mortally wounded in its centre amidst anxious attendants. The body, with its one arm and piteous empty sleeve, is propped up in the arms of Hardy, the faithful Captain, by whose side he fell. The hero's pale, thin face is touchingly expressive of intense suffering—borne, however, with noblest fortitude. The eyes (one, alas! blind) roll upwards towards a space of blue, serene sky—a rift though the chaos of shattered and falling masts, and above the volumes of smoke from a newly-discharged cannon. The gesture befits that Nelson who went to his last battle only after solemn prayer, and also recalls the dying words, "Thank God, I have done my duty;" and the expression of the whole face is characteristic of one who, whatever his errors, is endeared to England above all her heroes for his chivalric bravery and steadfast devotion to his country. We may mention that to paint Nelson's coat Mr. Maclise was allowed to borrow the actual relic from Greenwich Hospital, with its blood-stains, and those embroidered orders the wearing which perhaps cost him his life, and over which, on being carried to the cockpit, he, with sublime abnegation, spread a handkerchief in order to conceal the fact of his having been wounded! The quaintly-shaped cocked hat of the Admiral, with its green eyeshade, has fallen in front close to some papers, a pool of blood marking the spot where his secretary, Scot, was killed, and near where lies the "signal-slate," with its for-ever-memorable signal (conveyed by numerals, but with the words also given on the slate), "England expects that every man will do his duty." The hat, like the coat, was painted from one doubtless worn by Nelson, and which the artist found on his waxen effigies, preserved, with the rest of the "Ragged Regiment," over Abbot Islip's Chapel in Westminster Abbey, though withdrawn from public exhibition since 1839. Prominent among the group about Nelson is Dr. Beattie, who, stooping, feels cautiously the Admiral's left shoulder for the wound made by the bullet. Gathered about him are Captain Adair and Sergeant Secker, of the Marines (the former afterwards killed); Lieutenant Ram; and two seamen, all of whom came up on seeing the Admiral fall. The sorrowful emotions of all these are admirably rendered. But what strikes as a peculiarly genuine touch of nature is the almost imploring sympathy of a sturdy seaman, who, forgetting the glorious spoil—a tricolor—he is bringing to his great captain, kneels, wringing his hands, in the foreground. All the figures on the same near plane as this are somewhat larger than life.

A sea-fight—such as that off Cape Trafalgar—must, of all things human, be the most tremendous imaginable. Yet we can realise it so far as to understand that amidst the roar of thousands of cannon, the crash of shot, the shouts of combatants, the shrieks of wounded, and the consciousness that precious lives hang on every moment, there would be little chance for news of any kind to be diffused, or for any but the voice of command to be heard. In fact, not until the end of the action was it known throughout the Victory that Nelson had been struck down. Accordingly, the painter has represented Nelson's fall as being noticed by, with one exception, only a few sailors and marines in the immediate vicinity. Some of these cast a furtive look towards their stricken chief, and one speaks behind his hand to a messmate, as if fearful of disclosing such intelligence above a whisper, even in this din. All the seamen, however, stand steadfastly to their guns, and strenuously, collectedly, or even stolidly engage in their grim work. Such a breach of discipline as leaving their post without word of command would indeed be punished with little short of death. But a black is at liberty to direct the attention of a marine towards the Redoubtable's mizen-top, whence the fatal bullet came, and at that lodgment for sharpshooters the man takes aim. The exception just referred to is that of a sailor away on the poop-deck, who, pointing towards the wounded Nelson, is telling two young midshipmen, armed with muskets, whence Nelson received his death-wound; and one of these points a finger towards the same top of the enemy's ship, signifying that he knows his duty in that direction. This is the midshipman, then a boy of twelve, who is credited with the historic deed of having killed the man who shot Nelson; and it is the same whom Mr. Maclise found as simple Lieutenant Pollard, an old pensioner at Greenwich! The reader will remember it is recorded that no man came down alive from the Redoutable's mizentop. Returning to the quarter-deck, we must say generally—seeing that particular description of approaching one hundred figures is not possible—that a large proportion of the seamen are distributed the length of the ship's side in crews of six (except where some of the number are killled or wounded), three on each side of the long twelve-pounder carronades, with which alone the upper-deck of the Victory was armed; and with the captain of the gun, with his priming-horn, to each. One captain takes deliberate aim, another fires a piece by a pull at the string or lanyard of its old-fashioned flint-lock; a third, with his thumb on the touchhole, critically notes the course and effects of the last shot; the crews prepare to load, or sponge out, stand ready to run the gun forward through the porthole, or draw it back after the discharge. Too great praise could scarcely be given the painter for the varied, yet natural, unexaggerated character, action, and expression of all these men, though similar in class and dress, and similarly engaged. Hardly less commendation is due in regard to the marines scattered in various parts, loading and firing. Many of the A.B.'s are stripped to the waist; and the nude torsos of the living, the wounded, and the dead have afforded the artist an opportunity for displaying his anatomical knowledge and his astonishing power of drawing the human figure in action or quiescence, and in every position or degree of foreshortening.

A few more incidents, figures, and details claim special notice. To the (spectator's) left of Nelson, then, is a group of two weather-beaten tars carrying, with commiserating gentleness, a young sailor, apparently in the last agony, down the hatchway leading to the cockpit. The elder of the two is a grey-haired veteran, old enough to be the young one's father. Near these, a woman squeezes into a bowl of water held by another woman a sponge with which she has been wiping the bleeding brow of a seaman, while a black cook hands the wounded man a glass of brandy from the keg slung at his side. It was the custom to allow a few women of good character to accompany their husbands in men-of-war to prepare the flannel cartridges for the guns and assist the surgeons. Opportunely enough, at the very time Mr. Maclise was painting these female figures, the story of Ann Perriam, a heroine who had been present with Nelson at the Nile, was given in our columns and those of our contemporaries, and we also engraved the worthy old lady's portrait. The painter, though at first doubtful of the propriety of introducing women on board the Victory, has learnt, from living authorities and well-authenticated anecdotes, that there really were five or six in the ship. Close to this last group is an officer of marines holding a speaking-trumpet, and conferring with one of the Lieutenants upon the signals of a distant ship which the latter observes through his telescope. At the extreme left are three sailors pulling vigorously in their sing-song chorus on a halyard passing upwards towards the maintopsail.

Returning aft, past the Nelson group, we come to the "companion ladder" (leading up to the poop), and which is crowded with seamen and marines, and down which the wounded are being borne. Two men carrying buckets up this ladder are plainly intended to recall a remarkable proof of coolness on the part of the Victory's men. The two ships being closely locked together, some of our seamen dashed buckets of water on to a portion of the Redoubtable's timbers which had been ignited by grenades, that the enemy's ship might not, by catching fire, involve the Victory in a common destruction. To the right of the foot of this ladder two sailors, the elder with a wooden leg (retained probably for good conduct in the culinary department of the ship's crew), are assisting, as best they may, a wounded, swooning young officer. In the foreground a ruddy young "powder-monkey" trips, heedless of danger, over the dead with a charge in its wooden box of "4lb. of powder" for the gun on the extreme right—the only one seen on the larboard side. Nautical people will observe that this gun comes in view on this side from having broken its breeching and snapped its stanchions in the recoil, and thus run much further back on to the deck. Above, on the poop, is the captured ensign of a Spanish ship. A drawing made by Turner, who went to see the Victory on her return from Trafalgar, was useful in painting the portion of the ship near the poop. The dead, lying as they fell, some still retaining their hold on rope or weapon, are strewn along the decks among or near gun-carriages, ram and sponging rods, marlinespikes, cutlasses, the great copper grog-can, a water-tub used for extinguishing the fuse which was used when the flint-lock of a cannon missed fire (as it often did), double-headed shot, and shot neatly tied up in leather, forming the formidable grape. The reader will recollect that fifty men were struck down before the Victory fired a shot, and that forty more were killed or wounded within a few minutes of Nelson's fall.

The foregoing description only gives a faint indication of the pains taken to secure accuracy in all the thousand details of this marvellous picture. Existing portraits have been referred to for the faithful representation of the men engaged—their arms, accoutrements, costumes, down to their very pigtails. Naval officers and authorities of the dockyards have supplied the painter with models of or authorities for his guns and their fittings, his masts, yards, rigging, tackle, and many contrivances no longer in use. It may be an anachronism to represent two enemies' flags as having been struck before Nelson was carried below; but, if so, it is a very excusable one, bearing in mind their pictorial value. But everything else appears to us to be depicted with the exactitude of a contemporaneous record, and with a scrupulous care which, while descending to the very strands of a cable, and furnishing what might be the working pattern for a pulley, yet preserves the telling breadth and simplicity befitting a decorative painting designed to harmonise with large architectural masses. From the composition, however, the work chiefly derives its eminently architectonic character. The lines of the great gallery and its window-piers are continued or repeated by the bulwarks and masts, while the centre is emphasised by the converging action of the figures round Nelson, by the space of the blue sky above, and still further by the obliquely falling entangled masses of the Redoubtable's boom and mizentop, which, as it were, frame in the space of blue on each side. Forms which might be too rectilinear are elsewhere knowingly relieved by diagonal objects or groups of figures. Of the consummate draughtsmanship of the picture we have already spoken. In his early works, Mr. Maclise seldom seemed to strive for the charms of colour; but few would assert that the colouring of this work is not of adequate excellence; the artist has indeed displayed rare skill in dealing with the difficulty of painting so many "blue jackets." To sum up, we give it as our sincere conviction that Mr. Maclise has achieved a triumph in art worthy of the great victory Nelson sealed with his blood. Among the few examples of strictly national character, the two vast commemorative pictures now in the Royal Gallery of the People's Palace, Westminster, are, beyond all question, the noblest monuments of mural painting this country has hitherto produced. We wait to see whether, after engaging Mr. Maclise to paint the remaining smaller as well as the large compartments of the gallery, and then cancelling that engagement, on account, confessedly, of no fault of the painter, Mr. Maclise will be permitted—or, rather, solicited—by Government to proceed with the execution of designs which he had actually prepared and for which he has not been paid.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

A New Atmosphere. By Gail Hamilton. (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) An importation from the other side of the Atlantic, where she-doctors, and she-lecturers, and she-clerks, and she-nondescripts receive more encouragement than they have yet met with amongst us, and where the independence of women has broken out in the form of Bloomerism and other extravagances. Our author deals with the "woman question." It appears that the moral and social atmosphere of our age is extremely corrupt, and that we want a new one. Upon that point there will probably be little difference of opinion, but upon the means whereby the required purification is to be effected there will be great diversity of sentiment. Whether the "oak-and-vine" relationship between men and women should be confined simply to poetry, and women from girlhood upward should be instructed in such trades, callings, arts, and sciences as will enable them to gain a livelihood in competition with and independently of men, is a serious question; but our author seems to think it ought to be unhesitatingly answered in the affirmative. Man, if we read our author correctly, is a selfish, grasping, cowardly, double-faced oppressor; woman is, by force of circumstances, a sly, designing, over-worked, suffering slave. And this is the result of existing laws and customs—especially so far as marriage is concerned. Our author by no means blasphemes marriage in the abstract, but scoffs at the preliminaries which precede and the conditions which follow the actual practice. Husbands have all the sweets, wives have all the bitters, of connubial life. If husbands would suckle the baby, and take their turn at the perambulator, and put the children to bed, and wash the linen, and make the caps, there would be some chance of a fair adjustment of domestic duties; but, as things are, selfish man "goeth forth to his work and to his labour until the evening," and expects his harassed wife to perform the household drudgery, have his lordship's refection prepared, and bring his offspring in apple-pie order to receive the rare paternal caress. No doubt there is more of the spirit of traffic than there should be in many a marriage; no doubt there is too much selfishness in many husbands; no doubt there is too much labour imposed on many wives; no doubt there is too little chance of profitable employment for many unmarried women; but whether a general withdrawal of the "restrictions of existing customs" would be the best cure for the evils we beg leave to doubt. Readers of Aristophanes do not need to be told that "woman's rights" have been advocated before our day, and that the consequence of woman's complete independence have been described by a master-hand. Gail Hamilton's views are put forward in a very earnest, very dogmatical, sometimes sensible, and occasionally rhapsodical, style; but we do not think they will be generally adopted on this side of the Atlantic. It will be long before we cease to associate the idea of independence with inexpressibles, and of protection with petticoats; nor is it by any means certain that, because a great difficulty is co-existent with certain restrictions, the difficulty is traceable merely to the restrictions; there may be collateral causes which might be found, if sought for, and which might be more safely removed than the restrictions.

Railway Reform. By William Galt. (Longman.) If we ask the solemn question, "Where is the Railway Act of 1844?" scoffers will probably retort by inquiring, "Where's Eliza?" or, "Avez-vous vu Lambert?" And yet mighty men—men of renown—to wit, Sir Robert Peel and Mr. Gladstone—moved, if not heaven and earth, the difficult House of Commons to such purpose that a bill for making that Act of effect "passed the third reading without a dissentient voice." How long did wisdom advertise in the corners of the newspapers bidding us to "reform" our "tailors' bills"? And how long must wisdom call upon us to reform our railway bills? It is believed that, if the reform projected in the Railway Act of 1844 were accomplished, we might travel at one third of the average rate now demanded by monopolising companies. There is a cry for reform of many kinds in railways: some unreasonable persons are loud in their desire for punctuality; some want hot-water bottles; some would like to be able to inform the guard that they are being murdered, or that their carriage is on fire, or that a fellow-traveller is a raving madman, or that a would-be gallant is behaving rudely. Such reforms, perhaps, are scarcely to be hoped for; but an Act which deals with the important subject of economical reform is suffered to fall into oblivion. The Act of 1844 "was passed for the purpose of enabling Government to purchase, on certain specified terms, all railways in the United Kingdom that from that time should be constructed. To protect, however, the interests of the shareholders, and give ample time to the nation and the Legislature to have full experience of the management of our railways by companies, it was enacted that twenty-one years should elapse before our present system should become subject to any change, or the rights of proprietorship or management of the directors be in any way interfered with." The space of twenty-one years has elapsed, the time has come for operation, and yet no movement has been made to carry out the provision of the Act. Let all, then, who take an interest in the subject, and can stomach 405 pages of railway statistics and cognate matter, consult Mr. Galt's elaborate, timely, and earnest treatise.

Sea and Land. By Philip Henry Gosse, F.R.S. (Nisbet and Co.) It is good to read such a book as this. You may skip the little bits of sermons, and all besides you will find charming. You seem to feel the fresh breeze from the sea, to inhale its tonic salt, to be sprinkled by its creeping foam as you search amongst the stones for curiosities of natural history. You study the habits of funny fishes—of the goby, and the gunnet, and the tompot, and many another. Nor have you less cheerful sport in following Mr. Gosse on land. Birds, and insects, and mosses, and ferns, are brought before you, and discussed and described. Ferns are becoming more and more popular; and one learns with pleasure all that horticulturists can tell about the creeping fern, and the filmy fern, and the flowering fern, and the golden fern, and the silvern fern, and the elegant maiden-hair. Mr. Gosse discourses of such things, and to read his discourses brings much content.

Strive and Wait. By John Rose Butlin, F.S.A. (William Freeman.) A quiet, unambitious little book, without pretence of plot or stirring incident. The author's object was "to give a description of thoughts, sentiments, and feelings, which have been familiar to those who, within the last fifteen years, have grown up to manhood." He may be said to have attained his object in the case of three ordinary college friends, of whose careers he gives an outline. He evidently recommends patience and perseverance, but we fail to see the connection between his title and the conduct of his hero, who appears to us neither to have striven much nor to have waited with intent, and to have been indebted to fortune for what success he attained. "Rest and be thankful" would have been more appropriate. The author seems, from page 259, to be under the error of supposing that Burford could not have held his fellowship without remaining at the university, and, from pp. 97—101, to imagine that it makes no difference whether a young lady be called Lucy Wilson or Lucy Simpson; and perhaps it really is of no consequence, except so far as the carelessness of the author and the identity of the character are concerned.

Elsie, &c. By J. Crawford Wilson. (Moxon and Co.) This volume of poems is externally elegant and internally meritorious. "Elsie" is a melancholy tale of everyday life (for, unfortunately, bigamy is becoming an everyday offence), and is written with some spirit, much grace, and no little pathos. Those who are fond of comparisons will trace occasionally a resemblance to Goldsmith and sometimes a likeness to Crabbe. "Flights to Fairyland" are fantastic, playful, musical stories in metre which reminds one slightly of "Tom Ingoldsby;" and "Occasional Pieces" remind one forcibly of occasional pieces in general.

The Englishwoman in India. By a Lady Resident. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) Seeing how many Englishwomen find every year, if not a home, a bungalow in India, this little volume deserves kindly welcome and respectful notice. It is likely to be of great service, for it contains a detailed account of what a lady's (and, to some extent, a gentleman's) outfit should be; what furniture is desirable; what should be the regulations of housekeeping; what course should be adopted in rearing children; and what one should "eat, drink, and avoid." In fact, a considerable portion of the volume is neither more nor less than an "Indian Cookery-book."

Life's Paths. By the Author of "Gentle Influence," &c. (Saunders, Otley, and Co.) An unpretending little book, of which the purpose is to teach Christians to show their faith by their works. It has nothing original or thrilling to recommend it; but it describes pretty accurately the habits of action and of thought which characterise the well-to-do ladies of society who make it their business to minister to the bodily and spiritual wants of the poor, the sick, and the irreligious. The negligent shepherd is rebuked, and the invalid spinster who spends her time in the works which Dorcas loved is depicted with sympathetic fidelity. The ease with which the consumptive naughty boy is converted is contrary to experience, but highly encouraging. It is distressing to find that a man may be "an excellent clergyman" (p. 20) and a mean hound; for the latter term is not too strong to apply to the Rev. Charles Lumley, who, when engaged to be married to Grace Milton, writes a note to Clara Layton expressing "his regret that he had not sought the hand of Clara Layton while he was free, coupled with very sentimental words of farewell." The Christianity is rather of the kid-glove, muffetee, blanket-club, and choral-service order than of the muscular kind; and the importance attached to trifles may be inferred from p. 57, where the heinousness of an ungrateful Irish girl's offence in running away from her benefactress is supposed to be heightened by the fact that she set out upon her Hegira "clothes and all." The clothes had been given to her without, so far as we can understand, conditions; and had she departed without them, there is reason to suppose she would have appeared in the costume of Queen Godiva; and one can hardly suppose her benefactress would have considered that a palliation of the base ingratitude.

A Splendid Fortune. By the Author of "The Gentle Life." (Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) The title of this three-volume novel is a happy one, and will no doubt attract attention. The idea of being able to "obtain 'a splendid fortune' at any library" is one especially adapted to the yearnings of those who read fiction. It would be most agreeable to our feelings to say that the story is more attractive even than the title; but, if we said so, we should run a risk of misleading the public. The fact is, the author has by no means done himself justice. Beyond a few gleams of humour and a few tolerably amusing and tolerably correct (we should imagine) descriptions of Bohemian life, there is little to enliven the tameness of the many pages. The plot is neither new, nor ingenious, nor curious; the incidents are few and common-place; and the characters, when they have not as little to do with the main business of the story as the ornaments on the outside with the machinery in the inside of a watch, are, for the most part, uninteresting. Lord Broadacres, Dr. Keith Morton, Dr. Juniper, Lotty Morton, Miss Nightley, Lady Amethyst, Safta, and some others, display a few traits of which advantage is taken to rouse the reader into attention, but the attention soon flags and is succeeded by torpor. It is much to be regretted, also, that the author should have taken so little pains as he has apparently taken to be accurate in his dates and consistent in his statements. It would seem from comparing pp. 31, 34, 40 (vol. i.) that Dr. Sangrado was in full practice at the early age of twelve years. A comparison of pp. 112, 115 with pp. 296, 300 (vol. ii.) will reveal a singular discrepancy in the accounts given of Lady Amethyst's and Miss Nightley's proceedings after Dr. Morton's departure from "the Palladian parlour." One comfort the low-born commoner may derive from the book—the members of the aristocracy to whom he is introduced are, for the most part, so mean and vulgar that he may fairly rejoice he is not of them.

The Cromlech on Howth. A Poem. Illustrated. By Samuel Ferguson, Q.C., &c. (Day and Son.) This work should properly have been included in our list of illustrated Christmas books, but its merits are quite sufficient to recommend it at any season. The poem is smoothly and pleasantly written, and the illuminated initial letters and borders possess a quaint beauty which is very charming. The title-page points to the books of Kells and of Durrow as the source whence these illuminations are taken. The colours are most harmonious, though the forms are not always pleasing; but the effect of the whole is striking and original. At the end of the volume there is a learned disquisition on Celtic ornamental art, which will doubtless interest the student and antiquary.

MUSIC.

The Royal Italian Opera season began, on Tuesday last, with the most popular opera of the day, Gounod's "Faust." Mario reappeared in the character of the hero, which he performed with unrivalled excellence. It was gratifying to observe that our great tenor has taken the field this season with renewed health and strength. His beautiful voice has regained its wonted powers. It has recovered the freshness, fulness, and sweetness of its tones, and that sympathetic quality from which it derives its unbounded command over the feelings of every listener. His whole performance of the character of Faust has been already pronounced a consummate piece of vocal as well as dramatic art; and on this occasion it was more powerful, if possible, and more beautiful than ever. The character of Margaret was sustained by Mdlle. Berini, who made her first appearance before an English audience. In his prospectus of the season Mr. Gye has announced the appearance of three Magarets, and this lady is not one of them. The three are—Miolan-Carvalho, Patti, and Lucca, none of whom, we believe, has yet arrived. Mdlle. Berini has thus been brought forward under unfavourable circumstances, but was, nevertheless, able to gain a considerable degree of favour. Her voice is somewhat thin; and in this respect, as well as in her execution and style, she seems to belong to the French school of singing; but she sings like an accomplished musician. She looked the character well, and acted, as well as sang, with judgment and feeling. The pleasing and interesting part of Siebel was performed by another débutante on our Italian stage—Mdlle. Honoré, who promises to be an acquisition. She has a sweet, if not a powerful, contralto voice; a prepossessing appearance, and an unpretending manner—qualities which were justly appreciated by the audience. Signor Attri was an excellent Mephistophiles; and Graziani and Tagliafico did justice to the characters of Valentine and Wagner. The opera was put upon the stage with even more than the care and splendour of last season. The kermesse, or fair, in the market-place, which forms the finale of the second act, was a spectacle of extraordinary brilliancy and beauty; and the scene of Margaret's garden, with its walks, trees, shrubs, and flowers, was a consummate specimen of decorative art. The theatre has been repainted; and its appearance on the opening night—fresh, brilliant, and filled by a fashionable audience—was bright and exhilarating.

Mr. Mapleson, the lessee of Her Majesty's Theatre, has published his prospectus of the season. We learn from it that his company will retain all its principal members of the last and preceding years, including Titiens, Bettelheim, Trebelli, Giuglini, Santley, Gardoni, Junca, Bossi, &c., together with several stars new to our horizon. Among these the most remarkable seems to be Mdlle. Ilma von Murska, respecting whom the German (especially the Vienna) journals are at present speaking in the most enthusiastic language. Her performance of the Queen of Night in the "Zauberflöte (the part in which she is to make her début in London) is described as a marvellous display of vocal power and execution. Three operas of the highest celebrity, Mozart's "Zauberflöte," Cherubini's "Medea," and Wagner's "Tannhauser," are to be brought forward for the first time in England; and the most favourite pieces belonging to the répertoire of the theatre will be reproduced. Signor Arditi, the admirable chef-d'orchestre, will continue to wield the bâton of command, and the orchestra and chorus will be more complete and stronger than ever. Such are the prospects held out to us by the lessee of her Majesty's Theatre, and experience has shown that his promises are to be depended upon.

There is to be a great musical festival at Brunswick on the 10th, 11th, and 12th of June. Among the performers engaged are Herren Joachim, Walter, and Hill; and Mesdames Bettelheim and Dustmann.

At the recent sale of the stock in trade of Messrs. Cock and Hutchins, the eminent music-publishing firm now dissolved, the copyright of Sterndale Bennett's cantata, "The May Queen," was sold for £519 8s. 6d.

The first performance of Meyerbeer's posthumous work, "L'Africaine, is expected to take place at the Grand Opéra, about the 21st inst., after which we may look for its immediate production at Covent Garden.

There are Sunday Popular Concerts in Paris, suggested by the success of the Monday Popular Concerts in London. At the last of these concerts the programme consisted of Beethoven's "Sinfonia Eroica;" an andante of Haydn; fragments from Beethoven's septetto; "Adelaida," arranged for the contrabasso by Bottesini; a polonaise from Meyerbeer's "Struensee;" another solo on the contrabasso; and the overture to "Euryanthe." What would be thought of such a concert if announced by any of our leading musical societies in London—a concert composed of one symphony, one overture, a couple of fragments, and two solos on the double bass?

THE THEATRES.

A new farce, by Mr. J. M. Morton, has been produced at the Adelphi, entitled "The Steeplechase; or, In the Pigskin." The basis for the action of the piece is very slight; but Mr. J. L. Toole makes much of the character, which is, besides, marked with some originality both in its circumstances and its conception. It is that of a Cockney clerk placed in a peculiar situation, and triumphantly carried through it by the force of accident. His name is Tittums, and the scene of his adventures is Southampton, whither he has arrived to meet his wife, whom he expects from Havre. He has stopped at the hotel all night, but in the morning misses his clothes. The steam-boat being in sight, he is impatient to repair his loss, and makes free with a stranger's portmanteau, which contains a jockey's dress, the owner having visited Southampton to take part in the steeplechase. Dr. Clipper (Mr. Billington), however, to whom the dress belongs, is in fear of being arrested for debt, and permits Tittums to retain the costume on condition that he will bear his name for the day. The sporting authorities, as a matter of course, place Tittums in "the pigskin," and, notwithstanding his remonstrances, he is carried to the front by his horse, and thus wins for the doctor a large sum, which sets them both free from their liabilities. Mr. Toole's abundant humour gave probability to the incidents. Moreover, he was well assisted by Mr. Paul Bedford, as Alderman Slowcoach; and by Mr. C. H. Stephenson, as a bailiff, of whom both the clerk and the doctor are equally in dread. The farce is, in fact, very funny, and will have a run.

At the Strand, on Monday, a new comedietta was produced, entitled "Cross Purposes." It is written by Mr. Parselle, and the author himself performs the principal character. Edward Hartright is the confidential clerk of a wealthy Liverpool merchant, Mr. Goodman (Mr. H. J. Turner), and has been so for about a dozen years, during which time he has been the constant companion of the merchant's daughter, Laura (Miss M. Palmer). The young lady, having arrived at a marriageable age, feels an incipient passion for Hartright, and, in the perplexity of her early feelings, begins to act capriciously towards him, interrupting him in his business and provoking petty quarrels; all of which strange conduct Hartright persists in misunderstanding. Goodman, wishing to get his daughter wed, and loving her devotedly, is ready to accept anyone for her husband whom she may select—in this, very much unlike stage heroes in general; and of this unlikeness, indeed, a special point is made, and from it much comic humour elicited. It is long before the lovers come to understand one another. In the mean time, the Hon. Poynton Lascelles (Mr. Collier) turns up, with whom Laura has had a previous acquaintance, and Goodman is induced to believe that he is the happy man. An interview with the lady, however, soon informs Lascelles of the true condition of things, and he resigns her to Hartright, whose jealously has impelled him to a declaration of love, all that was wanted to ensure the happiness of Laura. This little drama, which is from the French, depends on its dialogue, which is, perhaps, somewhat redundant, but interesting, since much of it touches the feelings. Miss Palmer was charming in the loving and anxious girl; and Mr. Parselle, as her taciturn lover, acted with discrimination and delicacy. Mr. Turner, as the goodnatured father, played with admirable effect. This piece will become a favourite.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

There has been a very pretty little controversy this week between the Bishop of Oxford and a French Abbé relating to an assertion imputed to the Right Rev. Samuel Oxon that there were no less than 750 deprived or interdicted priests now driving cabs in Paris. The Abbé indignantly denies the accuracy of the statement, and would have the public believe that the number of cashiered ecclesiastics to be found in the Parisian "rank" might be counted on the fingers. Does it so very much matter? or, haply, is not this rather a subject for congratulation that there should exist such a refugium peccatorum as the cabstand for unfrocked priests? They might go farther and fare worse. I do not know a more curious study than to sit on the roof of an omnibus driving rapidly through the great thoroughfares of London and watching the hundreds of cabmen's faces flitting by—to strive to imagine what manner of men these may have been before they took to driving cabs. You meet with every variety of physiognomy, complexion, and expression. There are cabbies verging upon three score and ten; there are cabbies with all the gawkiness and beardlessness of extreme youth. How came they to this pass? When did they first go down a yard? When did they first apply for a license? and what considerations first moved them to give preference to a four-wheeler over a hansom, or vice versâ?

Many years ago, when Mr. Henry Mayhew wrote an account of the economy of the London Docks, he found among the famished and poverty-stricken crowd besieging the gate in hopes of obtaining a day's work and bread deprived clergymen, attorneys stricken off the rolls, barristers debarred, expelled undergraduates, uncertificated bankrupts, cashiered army officers, incorrigible drunkards, soldiers discharged without a pension, schoolless schoolmasters, teachers of languages without any pupils, pauperised artists, booksellers' hacks, and Polish refugees mingled with the common herd of toilers and moilers. The London Docks are the refugium peccatorum of the "sticket stibblers" of London civilisation. But in Paris there are no docks, save the "Docks de la Toilette"—a tailor's shop—to give employment to the cankers of a calm world and a long peace. It is fortunate that the cabstand remains. It is better than the Maison centrale, better than the galleys. There must be between forty and fifty thousand priests in France—the majority, as the vast majority of the Roman Catholic clergy are everywhere, persons of exemplary piety and stainless morals; but in the ranks of this great church militant there must necessarily be some black sheep, some "bad eggs." Let them drive cabs and make themselves well forgotten. For my part, I always thought it a desideratum in our society that there should be some such refuge or Lethean graving-dock where our erring brother could hide his head, repent of his sins, and earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. Dock labour may absorb some, the colonies a few, and the Army many more of those who have come to grief in the Battle of Life; but there are many too weak for hard labour, too poor to emigrate, and too nervous to enlist, and who, in default of finding employment, often drift into criminality, and turn up at the Old Bailey or the Middlesex Sessions for "smashing" or swindling.

Private letters from New York bring me two or three echoes. First, the great sensation in the Empire City at present is the Rev. Dr. Bellows, who, Sunday after Sunday, is uttering thundering philippics against the reigning luxury and extravagance in ladies' dress. An old, old text. Did not the Hebrew prophet of old inveigh against the sumptuary follies of his countrywomen—their bracelets and their bangles, and their "round tires like the moon?" Dr. Bellows is a Unitarian clergyman, a most learned, pious, and eloquent divine, who first attracted public notice by standing up boldly in defence of Shakspeare and the drama, and has recently been doing the good work of the American Sanitary Commission at San Francisco. As a preacher, he is worth a hundred Beechers and Cheevers, for it is a peculiarity with Dr. Bellows that he always preaches charity, and peace, and brotherhood among all men. I fear, however, that the Doctor will take but little by his motion in re ladies' dresses. The fair ones of Gotham flock to him by hundreds and listen complacently while he denounces "cataract" curls, small bonnets, hoop skirts, and draggling trains; but they have not the slightest intention of abating the excess in their apparel. Withal, let me hasten to remark that the American ladies, in their wildest exuberances of dress, have always been moderate in their patronage of crinoline. An American hoop, in comparison with the shocking hen-coop worn here, is as a wineglass to a diving-bell.

Another New York echo tells me of a curious reform meditated by Mr. Hiram Cranston, the proprietor of the New York Hotel, and which, if properly carried out, will effect a thorough revolution in the eating and drinking customs of our cousins. Mr. Cranston is about to abolish the monster table-d'hôte, formerly held in his hotel, and where from five to six hundred guests could be fed at one time, very much after the fashion of wild animals, at scrambling, uncomfortable meals, delusively termed breakfast, dinner, and supper. For this wolfish system of arrangement is about to be substituted a coffee-room, arranged on the European principle—that is to say, a quiet and well-ordered salle à manger, where, at your own table, you may order your own meal, and breakfast, dine, or sup à la carte, in peace and tranquillity. The New York Hotel is mainly frequented by ladies and gentlemen who have lived in Europe, and who have enjoyed comfort and luxury enough there to be disgusted with the roaring, jostling "feeds" at the St. Nicholas and the Fifth Avenue.

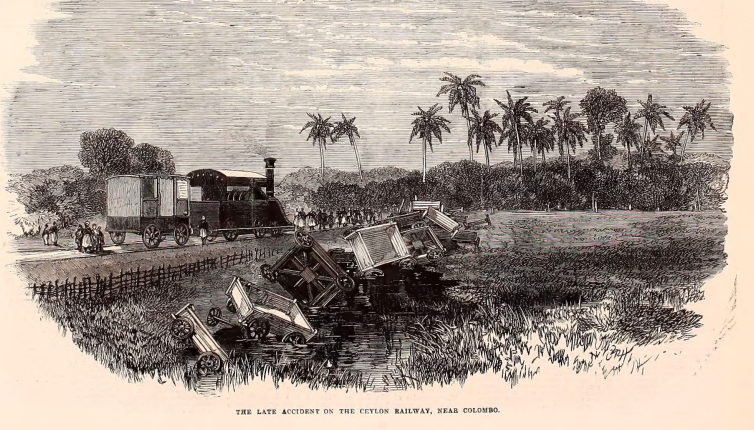
The subscriber's compliments to the Saturday Review. In that pungent periodical there appeared last Saturday an article, four columns long (and of which a continuation is threatened), apparently written with the sole purpose of disparaging the city of Mexico. According to the writer, that wonderful old capital is dull, uninteresting, dusty, and filthy, scorching hot in the sun and icy cold in the shade, and the natural home of typhus and dysentery. "There never was a city," continues the writer, "where there was so little to do for the idler. There are no objects of interest, no galleries, museums, or churches." The Alameda is a "wretched concern," and the Pasco—the Bois de Boulogne of Mexico—a broad, dusty road, a mile or more long (it is three), where everybody comes to see everybody else. It strikes me that the same objection might be urged against Hyde Park at the height of the season. Now, there is so much local colour about the remainder of this long article that I am convinced the writer has been a resident in the city he describes. I think, too, that, without being invidious, I can hit upon his name. He can be none other than Sir Charles Coldstream, Bart. He went to Mexico, and "saw nothing in it."

Nothing to do in la siempre leal ciudad de Mejico—no galleries, museums, or churches in the sumptuous and picturesque Tenostitlan! Here is the briefest abstract of the subscriber's diary of a week passed in Mexico:—"Monday—To the Palace (built by Cortes, and containing eleven hundred rooms), had an audience with General Almonte, Regent of the Empire; to the club, or "Lonja," in the Portal; to the Academy of Painting of San Carlos; in the afternoon to the Pasco, in an English mail phaeton. Tuesday—To go through the Alameda, on horseback, and thence to the Palace of Chapultepec; thence to a beautiful English country house at Tacubaya. To the Government School of Mines, one of the most splendid specimens of architecture on the American continent; to the collection of Mexican antiquities formed by Senor Ramicez; to the National Museum. Wednesday—To dine at La Casa del Emperador Sturbide; to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe; to San Augustin de las Cuevas; at night, picnic by moonlight in the courtyard of a ruined convent, and a stroll on the beautiful Pasco de las Cadenas, 'in una noche de luna,' in front of the Cathedral. Thursday—Shopping, buying toys, wax figures, and embroidered leather-work, under the arches of the Portal; to the Convent of San Francisco; in the afternoon to the Grand Pasco de la Viga, to see the procession of Indians on the canal, with their canoes smothered in flowers; at night—it was Holy Thursday—to see Judas Iscariot hung to the lamp-posts amidst feux de joie of squibs and crackers. Friday—it was Good Friday—the round of at least twenty gorgeous churches; and at night to the Sagrario of the cathedral to hear the 'Stabat Mater' sung by three hundred lady amateurs." Nothing to see in Mexico! Why, I saw enough in five weeks to fill five folio volumes and bore a new tunnel through the Alps. Moral—it is with Mexico as it is with Venice. Some fall in love at first sight with the Queen of the Adriatic; but I never heard many respectable householders speak of Venizia la Bella as a "beast of a place."

The admirers—and their name is legion—of Captain Richard Burton will entertain that intrepid African, Asiatic, and American traveller and good writer at a public complimentary dinner on Tuesday next. Lord Stanley will be in the chair.

SCENE ON THE RIVER THAMES DURING THE GALE ON SUNDAY, MARCH 19.

THE NEW SECRETARY TO THE POOR-LAW BOARD.



VISCOUNT ENFIELD, M.P. for Middlesex, has recently been appointed to the office of Parliamentary Secretary to the Poor-Law Board, on the resignation of Mr. Charles Gilpin, M.P. for the borough of Northampton. Lord Enfield is the Parliamentary representative of the Whig family of Byng, and on that account has always occupied a certain position in the House of Commons. He has on more than one occasion been selected to make motions when the vindication of the Government by a vote of the House has been deemed necessary. Lord Enfield, as the lineal descendant of that Mr. George Byng who for many years was held to be a personage of no ordinary consequence in the Whig party, sits for the county of Middlesex, which was represented for nearly half a century by his ancestor just alluded to, to whom he stands in the relation of great-nephew. He was first returned for the county in 1857, and was returned unopposed at the last general election in 1859. He had previously sat for the borough of Tavistock from 1852. His Lordship is the eldest son of the second Earl of Strafford (the peerage was conferred on General Sir John Byng, a distinguished Lieutenant of the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsular War), by a daughter of the first Marquis of Anglesey. He was born in 1830, and married, in 1859, to the eldest daughter of the first Earl of Ellesmere. He was educated at Eton and at Oxford, was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the West Middlesex Militia in 1853, honorary Colonel of the West Middlesex Rifle Volunteers in 1862, and Deputy Lieutenant of Middlesex in 1864. Lord Enfield professes Liberal politics, in the sense comprehended in the support of vote by ballot, extension of the franchise, and the abolition of church rates. His Lordship has never held office before now, and there was a floating impression that, though he was in a position to have given him some title to consideration in the formation of Liberal Governments in the last few years, he has not been hitherto inclined to take on himself the burden and responsibility attached to office. As his appointment is not one of those which the Statute of Anne requires to be vacated on its acceptance, there was no necessity for his making an appeal to his constituents.

VISCOUNT ENFIELD, M.P., THE NEW SECRETARY TO THE POOR-LAW BOARD.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE CEYLON RAILWAY.

THE Ceylon Railway, to connect the town and port of Colombo with Kandy, the ancient capital of the island, and with the most productive coffee-growing district, is now in process of construction. In June the first section of the line, about thirty-six miles from Colombo, will probably be open for traffic. The country is almost level as far as Ambepusse, the rise in 84½ miles being only 180 ft. It is not till the line arrives at Allagalla, fifty-two miles from Colombo, that there is a rapid ascent, which reaches an elevation of no less than 1700 ft. above the sea. Nevertheless, it is hoped that the entire length of the railway to Kandy, about eighty miles, will be completed in 1867. His Royal Highness the Duke of Brabant, in his late visit to Ceylon, was gratified with a special trip along the line from Colombo to Henerat-goddi and Veangodді, places distant some twenty miles from the town. He was accompanied by the Governor of Ceylon, the Colonial Secretary, the Auditor-General, the Government agent for the Western Province, and Colonel Layard, with their families. The engine was driven by Mr. Molesworth, of the contractor's engineering staff, and this first trip was performed with success, to the astonishment of thousands of the natives, who watched the train as it swept gracefully along the shore of the lake, beneath the pretty bridge at Maradhana, across the grand iron bridge which spans the River Kalamy, and over the green fields beyond, till it plunged into groves rich with tropical vegetation, and was lost to sight. The pleasure of the excursion was not interrupted by the slightest check; but a few days later, on Jan. 14, there was a terrible accident, with great loss of life, on the same portion of the line. Owing to the carelessness of a native clerk, something had been left upon the rails when a train of trucks, filled with labourers, was about to pass. The train was thrown off the line and the trucks were overturned into the adjoining rice-field, which was partly under water. One European and thirty-six natives thus lost their lives, being either crushed by the trucks falling upon them, or perhaps smothered in the water and mud beneath. We have engraved a sketch of the scene of this disaster taken by M. Hyppolite Silvaf, a local artist, on the day after the accident. We have to thank the editor of the Colombo Observer for communicating these particulars.

THE LATE ACCIDENT ON THE CEYLON RAILWAY, NEAR COLOMBO.

EFFECTS OF THE LATE GALE IN THE RIVER THAMES.

THE extremely violent gale which prevailed for so many hours on Sunday week occasioned a serious loss of property in that part of the river Thames known as Bugsby's Hole, between Blackwall Point and Charlton. A large derrick, commonly used for discharging screw colliers and other vessels laden with coals from the north, was moored about the middle of Bugsby's Hole, near the south shore. As the coal is put into lighters for the purpose of conveying it to the different wharves above bridge, the craft lie there attached to moorings in the roadstead, near the derrick. It is stated that about sixty loaded barges were so moored when the storm set in on Saturday evening, some of the craft being lashed together. On Sunday morning, when the gale had considerably increased, the barges were seen to be labouring severely. As the wind blew in fearful gusts with the force of almost a hurricane, the water dashed over into the barges in large quantities, and it was evident that they were fast settling down. At length they began to disappear. At times two or three would go down together; some dragging others more loaded. The crews of the colliership which were lying in that part of the river could see the barges founder one after another, but could render no aid with a view to relieving them. By nightfall the whole of the fifty or sixty barges had disappeared. Fortunately, the barges had gone down in a spot rather out of the navigation; but the steamboat of the Thames Conservancy, and a steamer, with the harbour-masters, were early at the scene, with a view to preventing any accident to the passing shipping and to see to the early lifting of the barges. As soon as the wind moderated the divers were sent down to ascertain where the barges lay and to unshackle their head-chains. Those which lay fair on their keel could be raised without much difficulty; but some of them had tilted over and lost a great portion of their cargo, besides much damage to the barges themselves. Our Illustration represents the state of affairs at low water, when attempts were made to raise the sunken barges, many of which lay one above the other. The store for some distance above the derrick was covered with barges which had been driven up high and dry by the violence of the gale, while boats of every description were busily employed in dredging for and adopting the coal they recovered from the wrecked craft. The roadstead near the derrick, in consequence of its somewhat exposed position, is not adapted for the mooring of laden barges for any length of time at this season of the year, and when they are filled they should at once be got away higher up the river to the different coal-wharves. The gale of Sunday week also proved destructive to the small vessels in other parts of the river. A barge laden with tar sank off Blackwall, near the entrance of the Victoria Docks. Other barges are reported to have sunk in the lower reaches of the Thames.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

BREADALBANE still continues to puzzle the Two Thousand prophets, as well as the men at The Corner. First, he is "fishy;" then, there is a "furore" about him; and so it goes on; but, at all events, we have now the fact before our eyes of a dark horse being first favourite for the Derby. George Stevens had such a bad cold that he was "weak to ride Bedlam at Leamington, on Thursday; but Mr. Edwards elected her admirably, and the old mare gave 13 lb. and a very clever beating to the Liverpool winner, Alcrabat. The African was level with the latter in the betting at 3 to 1; but he went stiff after his accident, and only finished sixth. Mr. Merry's Sunbeam was decisively in the Hunt Cup that even if Acrobat had got off Liverpool the result would have been the same. There was a good deal of fun at the Grand Military and Rugby Hunt Steeplechases, Wednesday week last Monday. Despite two dispersals of Jack Mytton's (1794 Lancers) Gloucester (owner) overhauled and beat everything for the Military Gold Cup. The Grand Military Steeplechase was won by Mr. Percival winning by a head on Bebopsicle. Rural Dean (4st. 5lb.) was in for the Open Handicap, but fell at the first fence.

The Oxford and Cambridge athletic games were held, on Saturday, at Fenner's Ground. Cambridge beat Oxford in every event, and Oxford, three and three. Last year the winning events were even; but Cambridge had seven second events to Oxford's one. Although they did not admire his style, even the professionals present could not help acknowledging the fine speed, endurance, and judgement of Mr. R. E. Webster, the winner of the one and two miles races. The latter was run, over heavy ground, in 4 min. 36½ secs. Mr. F. H. Gooch, of Merton College, Oxford, won the high jump with a leap of 5 ft. 7 in.; and Mr. E. A. Grey, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, threw the cricket ball 93 yards 2 ft. 6 in.

It is stated that there are already no less than twenty-five mares on Mr. Allsopp's list for 1865, at the "Stage" at Hare Hall, so we may hear that Mr. Fisher Smith, of Boston, has lost his horse Augur. This well known chestnut distinguished himself in 1851 by winning the Champagne Stakes; but his trainer was not able to get him to stay a mile, and never ran again. He was a fine horse, of which he only finished about seventh, and never ran again. He was a fine horse, of which he only finished about seventh, and never ran again. He was a fine horse, of which he only finished about seventh, and never ran again. It was considered a great feather in Mr. Isaac Nicholson's cap when he secured so much renown to the Midland counties, and some of the best breeders in Lincolnshire never passed Augur by. The Lincolnshire Handicap the most perfect hunter that ever entered a show-yard—not a "standstill horse," but a most beautiful mover—was sold, at the Fair, on Monday by Beechwood at Islington, for 650gs. to the Emperor of Austria. Nicholson's property, another of Mr. Allsopp's, was the very good son of Augur was very much wed by the owners of blood stock in 1856-7, and fifty-five mares were credited to the list for those two seasons. So far, there have been 103 blood foals by him, and nineteen of these are colts, of which fifteen are to the hunt have scored seventy-one races and a half. Macaroni's dam has gone to be published in Baily's Stud Book, by whom she had a filly in '64. Last year she had no foal to Knight of Kars.

After a good deal of difficulty with the frost, which totalled waiting till the end of July for a start at some meetings, Goodwood, and till Thursday, the Scottish National was brought off. Owing to the hard ground the horses had very dirty legs, and the mud clogs worked very wide. Patent was the Douglas Cup last year, and old Bob Booth whose "pen and a bottle" seems to have been all in her favour, carried it back this year over the border to Hexham. Mr. Ord's Cheviot, by Cossack, was drawn lame at last, and as Rebe also came in for a lay-by, she was left to Mr. Allsopp's, Kilmarnock, to Mr. Gladstone's Dalkeith, whom she had covered from the severe bite which kept him out of the running. Mr. Gladstone, ran well, as he always does, and his party attended him, and, after getting a bye, he was beaten by Gipsy King in the final heat. The Scotch Cup was run for on the hard good face, as Stumpy, of the Sourocks litter, won one stake, and Romping Rep-putter ran up for another.

The weather has made hunting quite a lottery during the last six weeks. The Pinkley met at Marlborough, and ran their fox to ground on Saturday, when there was no possibility of finding him in steeplechases at Rugby. On two occasions the Brocklebury have got down away on their fox, and have been unable to get him on for more than a couple of fields. The Quorn have had as good uniform sport as any: on Friday they met at Loseby Park, and had a good and capital forty-five minutes, and then had an equally good fifty minutes from Scraptoft to Billesdon Coplow. Their second whip, Edwin Summers, leaves at the end of the season.

ROYAL LONDON YACHT CLUB.

We subjoin the sailing programme of the Royal London Yacht Club for 1865, which has been determined upon by the Sailing Committee :—

Opening Match, Saturday, 13th of April. To start from Erith at 1.30 at Erith, re-passed on a cruise, and return to Erith. Dinner at the Pier Hotel. Prize, 50 sovs.

Thames Match, Monday, June 5.—Course : Erith to the Nore Light and back. Prizes: 70 guineas in plate and £30 in money. Entrance, £3 3s. Afterwards half a minute per ton for difference of tonnage. Entries close Tuesday, May 30. Yachts to be at Erith for measurement on Saturday, June 3.

Second and Third Class Matches, Monday, June 19.—Course from Erith to the Nore and return; third class, Erith to the Chapman and return. Prizes: first class, 40 guineas in plate; second class, 30 guineas in plate and £5. Time allowance: Second class half a minute and third class a minute and ten for difference of tonnage. Entries to close Wednesday, 14th of June. Yachts to be at Erith on Saturday, July 1, for measurement.

Ocean Match, in addition to the above programme, will be given, by voluntary subscription of the members of the club, headed by Mr. Edward Wilkins, Rear-Vice-Commodore, who heads the list with 10 guineas, and other members, and other officers, for an Ocean Match from the Thames to Dunwich. Subject to co-operation of the Harwich Yacht Club, and also to sailing rules in furtherance of the object; and Mr. James Goodson, the Commodore of the Royal London Yacht Club, has promised to preside over the race, view the start, and communicate them at the earliest possible moment, with a view of producing the most satisfactory arrangements for the race, which gave every general satisfaction.

Mr. G. W. Churchward, owner of the Glance, has also signified his intention of presenting a valuable piece of plate for a return match from Harwich to the Thames.

A son of the Swiss Colonel Salis having died of a wound received in a duel with another pupil of the Federal Polytechnic Institution at Berne, the ecclesiastical Senate has ordered that no duels are to be fought seconds and ordered proceedings to be taken against the adversary.

Dr. Livingstone has been gazetted by Earl Russell Consul in the territories of all kings and chiefs in the interior of Africa that are not subject to the authority of the King of Portugal. The Doctor is the first of the Viceroy of Egypt.

A lot of treasure-trove has turned up in Alsace, at a village called Bil, ascertained to have been the site of Helvetus and of a Roman camp. Under a village of nearly 400 souls, forming the commune of Bilsheim, during cellar containing 7500 bronze coins from the mint of the Emperor Constantine. The money—Pro Aris Bus-ctue-rumque—was found in a vase that bear on this aggregate of small change, weighing fully twelve kilogrammes, that we have here the military chest of the Fifth Legion. The Romans to have been quartered at this spot to keep in check the Alemanni, whose pressure on the Rhine coincides with the date of the coins, 307-37. Some already made a retrograde move for the usual strategic reasons; but, continued the report of the president, the payments of the troops were suspended by the workmen to pay for his rank and file, to be dug up on their return. The "unreturned" are the coins found. M. Fabre, the correspondent, has requested the surgery of Julius Caesar, and the Commentaries of Caesar, to speak into the interiors from the Gallic side of the river. All trace of the cash-box was, of course, lost with the fifth battalion of the 5th. The current value of the coins would have been about £70.

A curious discovery has recently been made in attempting to repair the basement of Pompey's Pillar. Mr. Alexander Thomson, a French engineer, having been employed by the Viceroy of Egypt to direct the work of consolidation, first of all cleared away the rubbish which covered the base, and then proceeded with all proper precaution; but it was soon found that these stones had nothing to do with the support of the pillar, and that the latter rested entirely on a cube of very hard quartzose conglomerate within the basement. Upon further examination it was discovered that this cube was an inscription in hieroglyphics turned upside down, and was, in fact, the capital of a column belonging to one of the temples of Upper Egypt, which had been taken hither for the express purpose of serving for the base of the column. M. Mariette has deciphered the inscription, and found the name of Sesostris (R. II., 1388-1322), the Egyptian conqueror mentioned in it; so that Pompey's Pillar, now 1800 years old, rests on the fragment of a monument erected at least seventeen centuries before the Christian era. The stone has been reconstructed, with a passage all round the shaft, so that visitors may inspect the hieroglyphics; and the whole has been raised so as to protect the monument from deterioration.

"THE GENTLE CRAFT." FISHING.

No matter what may be the diversity our several tastes indicate, and we therefore follow—whether we hunt, shoot, course, or fish—the same noble principle actuates all who delight in the pleasures of the field,—a deep, unquenchable love of natural scenery (often ill understood, it is true, and but dimly perceived by those who nevertheless acutely feel it) and a consequent enjoyment of every circumstance that form the chief constituents of the sporting character. One man has a passion for the horse, another for the gun, a third for the gentle craft of angling, all having the same motives to action. Hence arises the diversity of opinion in the discussion that here naturally presents itself. The answer is brief and simple. It was the circumstances under which we respectively lived, and the facilities for the indulgence of one in particular of these tastes that the latter acts were forming that determined in each his particular bias. Such are the reasons why we find the Nimrod, the Jehu, and the numerous others above mentioned, and who, having summered their hunters and laid down their guns, take to the rod. Then, for the second period, hearts, or rack the pleasure of yachting. As the yachting season cannot be said to begin before May, we shall pass over this consideration confine ourselves to that gentle pursuit which has been the delight of so many generations of men, both professional and philosophical.

Fishing, like most other pursuits after food, originated in necessity; and it is only within the last few centuries that the art has since acquired to the civilisation of the human race. The accompanying sketch may recommend to make a good fisherman are more numerous, and, in our opinion, more difficult of attainment than those which, in any other line, a sportsman can possibly require. By practice almost every one may become a fair shot, a tolerable horseman, a bold rider, and experience a careful one; so that, with these two requisites, a man may form on a tolerable hack become a fair sportsman. Not so, however, are trifling compared with those which should be possessed by the complete angler. Patience, for instance, is one so nicely blended that each without the other is a superfluous acquisition; for, whilst the former constitutes you to the task, the latter is the essential operations. We will now proceed to the subject and endeavour to explain the disposition of the tackle. There are of these two kinds—the double and single handed, each, of course, adapted to the water in which you fish; the former is generally of the length of 17 ft., and the latter 10 ft., the former weighing 14 lb., the latter from 4 lb. to 6 lb.

But much depends upon the proper choice of your rod. Be sure that it tapers regularly from the butt to the point; nor should there, on any account, be a "dead" place in the middle, which is the fault of most fair usage it always happens from this cause. In general, each rod is composed of three pieces, the butt, the second, and the top, each varying, which either screw into a socket or are simply fixed in. Neither of these kinds is to be recommend; our advice is to have one of two joints only—the butt and top. To all single rods a ring is fixed, attached by a splice, and fastened to a small leather thong, previously fixed to the rod. Next comes the line to be selected and cast from a tighter bandage. The superiority of a two-jointed rod of this description is at once apparent, as the tackle can be kept in order unincumbered by a quantity of useless brass, the spring is much more perfect and the chance of the top breaking in the likelihood of its breaking. The trouble, too, which frequently attends the changing of the tackle when you are fishing a fading is thus got rid of; for the ends, which go into the sockets, are made very nearly alike, and it is exceedingly difficult, indeed sometimes impossible, to replace the top exactly in the same socket as it was before. A jointed rod is the most suitable in a dry situation. A brass loop is commonly fixed at the bottom of the handle, which is of no other use than advantage, for, besides adding to the weight and stiffening the joint, it takes off much of the spring of the rod. Cane is the best wood, perhaps which might spoil a good hour's diversion. About six years ago a new description of rod, called the Malacca Cane protested against this as being totally useless, and too heavy and stiff altogether. Its lightness and elasticity are the only convenience compensates for all, which is, that, as the top is always more liable to meet with accidents from the interruption of trees and branches, especially in boundary yards, and where self-preservation is the principal care, the substitution of a Malacca top becomes a matter of ease, however, which are made in Edinburgh are entirely of wood; but in Scotland the rivers are not so much in want of preservation.

With proper care a rod will last a considerable time; and Walton tells of one he had for twenty years. Nevertheless, some particular attention should be paid to the dryness of their situation when laid up for the winter, and occasionally during the season. It is necessary to rub over a piece of channel previously dipped in sweet oil, never forgetting to clean thoroughly with a linen cloth before they are again put aside. The butt should be particularly attended to, as the ferrule attached to it may be obliged to make in throwing a long line, and the rings should be kept in good order, as twelve inches is much depends, and they are and not be incommoded by any chance obstacle.

Lines for angling purposes are of two ways to be met with at tackle-makers of repute in London, Edinburgh, Inverness, and Dublin, and they differ according to the nature of the water in which the selection of them, so as to suit the waters and the fish the disciple of old Izaak Walton is about to visit. The best and most fine, for trout, should never be less than twenty yards; and, where heavy fish and extensive waters are fished, five-and-thirty or forty yards will not be found to be too long. A line may be divided into three lengths, of twelve yards in length, according to the size of the fish. The hook, upon which the success of the day depends, should be made of steel of a proper temper, and thoroughly tested before it is appended to the line. It is a common practice to whet the point with a file or a clumsy cork float, or an over-obstinet one of quill, will alarm the finny tribe, to use the gut affectingly in the last-quoted instance the strength of the fish must be expended to the utmost, and, when brought within reach, the gaff must be passed under the fish struggling and exhausted, with the point directed downwards, which having been done, the hook must be loosened from the mouth, and the fish thrown into the body. Angling and flytching pocket-books are made of every form and size, to suit the various fancies that may exist. The slightest difficulty in procuring whatever is requisite either for the tame amusement of catching trout here, or for the more exciting sport of salmon-fishing in Scotland or Ireland.

We have not referred to angling bait or to flies, because they are influenced by seasons, by the character of the waters, and by the nature of the fish. The best way to obtain a knowledge of this matter in pond, lake, or river, is to call in the aid of some experienced local fisherman, who will supply you with all requisite information, but will procure such natural and artificial baubles as will allure every species of fish, from the magnificent salmon down to the humble barbel, to take the fatal hook.

Much has been said with respect to the cruelty of fishing, which has been denounced as a most inhuman amusement. Walton, the father of angling, has replied to these critics, which was soundly applied by Byron's severe pen; and others have laid themselves open to a charge of want of feeling. Many able writers of natural history assert—and we, we trust, with truth—that fish are not sensitive to pain, giving as their grounds for such opinions that many a hooked fish has again and again taken a second bait, the former hook remaining in the mouth.

The portraits of Mr. Justice O'Hagan and Lord Enfield, which we have engraved for this Number, are from photographs taken by Mount, J. and G. Walker, of Parliament-street.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF BRADFORD.

The Right Hon. Sir George Augustus Frederick Bridgeman, second Earl of Bradford, and Viscount Newport, in the county of Salop, Baron Bradford, of Bradford, in the Shropshire county, and a Baronet, was the eldest son of Orlando, first Earl of and second Baron Bradford, by Lady Elizabeth Byng, daughter of the Right Hon. George, fourth Viscount Torrington, and was born in May, 1789, and was educated at Christ Church College, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A. in 1810. He succeeded his father, March 3, 1818. Georgina Elizabeth, the only daughter of Sir Thomas Mostyn Owen Mostyn, Bart., of Mostyn Hall, county of Flint, by whom (who died Oct. 12, 1842) he had three sons and seven daughters, whom the same and one daughter survive—viz., Viscount Newport; the Hon. and Rev. George Thomas Orlando Bridgeman, Rector of Wigan, Lancashire; the Hon. and Rev. John Robert Orlando Bridgeman, M.A., Rector of Quatt-Fitz, under-Lizard, Staffordshire; and Lady Mary, widow of the Hon. Robert Chandos Clive. Two of the late Earl's daughters, Lady Lucy Caroline and Lady Charlotte Anne Bridgeman, perished, in 1848, by the same lamentable railway accident which deprived Lord Granville Somerset of his life. Frances, married, secondly (Oct. 26, 1839), Henry, son of Sir David Moncrieff, Bart., and daughter of Jessie Mackay of Ballone, Perthshire, which gentleman died in 1859. Caroline, married, in 1837, to Sir Henry Wellesley, K.C.B., Preston Park, Sussex, Georgina Augusta Frederica, married, in 1838, to Sir Thomas Mostyn Owen Mostyn, Bart., of Mostyn Hall, county of Flint, and Torpichen, and was the second son of James, tenth Lord Torpichen; by his wife, Margaret Lucy, second daughter of the late Sir Robert Abercrombie of Kippendavie, and was brother and heir presumptive of Robert, eleventh and present Lord Torpichen. Sir Thomas, born May 24, 1814, was educated at Westminster School, and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A. in 1836. He succeeded his father in 1838, he was appointed a Deputy-Lieutenant for Lancashire, in 1841. He married, July 24, 1843, Helen, second surviving daughter of Sir Robert Peel, Bart., by whom he has several surviving children. His eldest son, James Wedge Sandilands, Esq., now in his nineteenth year, inherits the honours and estates of the family of Torpichen.

SIR HENRY P. WILLOUGHBY, BART., M.P.

Sir Henry Pelham Willoughby, second Baronet, of Baston House, in the county of Oxford, M.P., was the eldest son of Sir Henry Willoughby, the first Baronet, by his wife, Rebecca, daughter of Mr. Bevis Bevis, of Bexley-street, Hanover-square, was the second son of Sir Christopher Willoughby, Bart., of Parham Park, by his second wife, Martha, daughter of Maurice Berkeley, Esq. He was born on the 17th of October, 1796, and succeeded to the baronetcy on the death of his father, in 1856. He married, first, Sarah Willoughby, the second Baronet, on the 5th of June, 1823, to Mr. Henry, who, during the early part of his life, sat in the House of Commons, displayed a great interest in the welfare of the county in which he resided, and was a zealous supporter of the Army and Navy estimates and on the 1st of March, 1855, moved, but in a full House, by 141, for Yarmouth, he was a supporter of the Reform Bill. He was in 1832, returned for Yarmouth, and successfully contested, in 1837, the borough of Poole; and, in 1841, the town of Northampton. He was returned for Evesham in 1847, and continued to represent that borough till his demise. Sir Henry married, secondly, Isabella, the second daughter of the late Sir John Pollard Willoughby, the fourth Baronet, and sister of the present Baronet, who was born in 1791, and died, first, in 1822, Elizabeth, only daughter of Colonel Kennedy, which lady died in 1824, and secondly, in 1827, Mary, daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Bacon, Esq., and has left issue by both wives. Sir Henry succeeded, as Commissioner in April, 1837, but resigned his seat on being appointed, in 1838, Chief Ranger of Windsor Park. The eldest son of Willoughby, Henry Pelham Willoughby de Broke, springing from Robert, the fourth Baron Willoughby's fourth son John, who was created a Baronet on the 29th of January, 1764, and who was father of the Baronet just dead of the present Baronet.

SIR GEORGE NICHOLLS, K.C.B.

Sir George Nicholls, K.C.B., so celebrated in connection with the modern improvements in the Poor Laws, died, on the 5th inst., at his late home, 24, Parkstreet, and of whose life nearly sixty years were spent in active public service, was the son of the Rev. Matthew Nicholls, and was one of Solomon Nicholls, Esq., of St. Severn, Cornwall. He was educated at Hickson Grammar School, Rochdale, and at Trinity College, Oxford, and entered the maritime service of the East India Company, and, after a successful career in that service, he left it, and became a partner in the firm of Messrs. Nicholls, Worthington, and Co., of Manchester, which he joined in 1819 to 1834, superintended the management of the branch Bank of England at Manchester. He was then appointed by the Government to take charge of the poor laws and the remedy for their misuse, he relinquished his employment at Birmingham, and commenced the duties of his new appointment by carrying out the amended law, including the changes he had been instrumental in suggesting as a member of the Board to Ireland to frame a measure for new poor law into that country, having previously been engaged in the preparation of the Act of Parliament for the purpose. On the formation of the Poor Law Commission being dissolved, in 1847, he became Secretary to the new Commission, which was then established, and which superseded the old Board of Guardians. In 1854, for his numerous services he was created a K.C.B.; and, in 1851, a Knight of the Legion of Honour. He married, in 1819, Jane, the daughter of the Rev. Matthew Wilkinson, of Sandwell, Staffordshire, by whom he had letters and pamphlets on poor-law subjects. He married, in 1813, Harriet, daughter of Edward Wilkinson, of Sandwell, Staffs.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL FREDERICK MACBEAN, K.H.

Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick Macbean, K.H., late of her Majesty's 84th Regiment, died, on the 15th inst., at his residence, Bolton-street, Bolton, Richmond, Surrey, belonged to a family which has been in the military service for the last century. His father, Lieutenant-General and Colonel of Artillery, and his father, a Colonel, commanded for many years her Majesty's 4th Royal Regiment of Dragoons. Colonel Frederick Macbean was, personally, the well-known and distinguished officer, Sir William Macbean, K.C.B., who died in 1853; Captain Alexander Macbean, who died from jungle-fever while employed in the Commissariat Department in the Burmese war, in 1825; and John, who died in 1863, Captain Alexander Macbean, who died from jungle-fever while employed with his regiment, the 91st, in the West Indies. Of Colonel Frederick Macbean's sons the eldest, Captain Frederick Macbean, now holds an Lieutenant in her Majesty's 84th Regiment, the other a Captain in her Majesty's 91st Regiment. Lieutenant-Colonel Macbean first entered the British Army, in 1803, as Ensign in his father's regiment (the 4th), and was present at the bombardment of Copenhagen. He accompanied his regiment to Walcheren in Monkey Bay, Aug. 9, 1808. He shared in the glories and toils of the Peninsular War, and was present at the battles of Talavera and Busaco for John Moore's funeral, made universally known by a poetic chief's surrender, and commanded the 84th Regiment at the battle of Albuera, where he was present at the siege of Badajoz, and was severely wounded in the attack on the various operations in the Pyrenees. He shared in the attack of the Heights of Barbazar, on Aug. 2, 1813, declared by Wellington, in the order issued, to be "the most gallant and finest thing he had ever witnessed." Macbean, then a Captain, served with the 6th Regiment in the Belgian campaign of 1814, when the gallantry of the regiment procured for them the Royal permission to bear the word "Niagara" on their colours. In 1821 Captain Macbean, having exchanged into the 7th (Royal Fusiliers), served with them in the Mediterranean. He afterwards commanded the 84th Regiment, as Major and Lieutenant-Colonel, for short seventeen years in the West Indies, Ceylon, and India. He was made a Companion of the Bath as a Brigadier, commanding the Terranean Provinces, Bermuda Group, and Commandant of Port St. George, Madras. He was made a K.H. in 1837, and he received the Peninsular medal, with five clasps, for Rolica, Vimiera, Corunna, Vittoria, and Pyrenees. He retired in 1847, and lived latterly at Richmond, much respected and esteemed. The Colonel was interred at Ham, near Richmond, with military honours, on the 18th ult. Colonel Frederick Macbean married, in 1821, Amelia Harriotte, daughter of the late General Benson, for many years attached to the Court of her Majesty Queen Charlotte, in attendance on her Royal Highness Princess Amelia. By this lady, who survives him, the Colonel leaves a son and a daughter.

MAJOR-GENERAL CLARK, K.H.

Major-General John Clark, K.H., Colonel of the 59th Regiment of Foot, whose death occurred on the 23rd ult., entered the British Army in 1814, and the following year served with his regiment in the Netherlands, and was present at the Battle of Waterloo and at the storming of Cambray. He afterwards proceeded to India, and was there in the campaigns of 1824 and 1825 in Ava, and was at the taking of Rangoon, Kimendine, Karnaroot, and Mahattee. He led the attack on the fortified heights at Aracan, where he was severely wounded in the neck, arm, and left side. Clark became a Captain in 1826; a Colonel in 1854, and Major-General, Oct. 26, 1858. In recognition of his military conduct, he was made a Knight of the Royal Hanoverian Guelphic Order in 1837.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor David Masson, of University College, gave his second lecture on recent British philosophy, on Thursday, March 23. He began with the consideration of the great effect which recent scientific conceptions had exercised on speculative philosophy, especially since 1848, by the progress of the sciences of physiology and psychology, geology and palæontology, and physics, which has given rise to the most profound speculations in regard to the antiquity of man, and the creation, development, and ultimate destiny of the universe. These speculations have greatly disturbed the relations of the two main systems of mental philosophy—the transcendental and empirical—as represented hitherto by Hamilton and Mill. In France the empirical philosophy has given way to the eclecticism upheld by Cousin and his disciples, and to the positive philosophy enunciated by Auguste Comte, which latter sets aside theology and metaphysics as mere preliminary stages in life, and proclaims a new system of sociology, based upon the study of mathematics and the observation and classification of natural phenomena. Professor Masson, after referring to the painful tendency of these doctrines, concluded with a quotation, in which the poet, after depicting the melancholy prospect of the destiny of the universe, foretold by some philosophers, concludes by saying that the solving of the problem is "behind the veil, behind the veil!"

Professor Westmacott, R.A., in the evening discourse on Friday, March 24, considered the question—"How works of art should be looked at." He began by stating that the perception of beauty existed in all intelligent minds; and that, though all might not be able to create works of art, all might learn to appreciate them. While the good attendance at exhibitions proves the great public interest in art, yet good taste does not advance in proportion; this is due, in all classes, to the want of elementary education in the principles of art. Schools only teach students the mechanical use of their pencil or chisel, and the language of art. Ignorance of principles leads to bad criticism, and thus lowers the standard of excellence. Michael Angelo, Raphael, and their contemporaries lived amongst great men (such as Leo X.) who understood and appreciated, and thus raised the tone of their creations. In this country many lose the enjoyment of pictures and statues by not knowing how to use their eyes; and the consciousness of this leads people to desire "marked catalogues." Art is universal as appealing to the eye instead of to the educated mind, and thus is not so limited as literature; and artists should appeal to all classes, and not to the rich and refined only. When they neglect this, true art decays, and a too great tendency to elaboration (drawing-room art) ensues. Broad art is opposed to too minute a view of things. The Greeks esteemed beauty to be the normal mark of nature, and avoided the deformed as unnatural. They carried out their love of beauty in their literature and in their art, which are still our models. Plato says, "The beautiful is the expression of the good." In this sense even ugliness becomes morally beautiful. Mere imitation is only "tradesman's art," however useful. Professor Westmacott referred to a chapter in Mdme. De Staël's "Corinne" as setting forth the way in which a work of art should be looked at, and then stated as rules—1, That we should consider its intention—if it had no object, and could not fix our attention, it was a failure; 2, That we should examine the mode of treatment, whether it was refined or bad taste; and, 3, The quality of form in which it is presented to us. He strongly advocated instruction in the principles of art in our universities and public schools, whereby the national taste would be elevated, a source of high enjoyment greatly enlarged, and our artists, being surrounded by an atmosphere of intelligent minds, would have their standard of excellence raised, since that must greatly depend upon public opinion. If an intelligent public keep our artists up to their work, they will not disgrace their nation. John P. Gassiot, Esq., F.R.S., vice-president, was in the chair.

Professor Marshall, in his tenth lecture, delivered on Saturday last, began the consideration of the psychical functions of the nervous system. He explained the two views of the conduct and actions of animals as supposing them to be either mere moving machines, or, like man, as feeling within themselves a working agent or cause—either life itself or mind (psyché) of some kind; hence the sciences regarding these actions are termed psycho-physiology and physio-psychology. Commencing with psycho-physiology, the Professor referred to familiar examples of psychical endowments of different animals—shown in feeling, instinct, intelligence, and will—pointing out the difficulties of the inquiry, due to exaggeration in anecdotes, to our humanising animals, by presuming them to possess mental powers resembling our own; by confusion and misinterpretation of terms, such as instinct; by inattention to anatomical classification, such as comparing the habits of insects and the higher animals, such as the bee and beaver, and birds; and by the spiritualistic and materialistic theories. He stated that instinct cannot be admitted as a separate entity, but a mere term of definition or generalisation, and not a causative principle, as is often assumed; many acts attributed to instinct being rather habits acquired and cultivated. Having, then, the psycho-physiological method in view, Professor Marshall considered animals—first, in the simple or non-cerebral category—the invertebrate or instinctive group—pointing out their possession of regulated motion with simple feeling or sensation (consensual acts), having for their ends food, self-defence, migration, construction of nests, with division of labour, &c.; all being pure instincts, varying in kind and degree, rising up in proportion with the development of the nervous system. They must "do or die." In the vertebrate animals, or mixed group, we find a complex or cerebral category—the possession of the faculties of regulating motion, complex feeling (sensation and emotion), intelligence, ideation, understanding, and, finally, will; all exhibited in the highest degree in man himself.

Professor Masson, in his concluding lecture on British philosophy, given on Tuesday, considered its present state and tendencies, as manifested by eminent modern writers. Among these, he most especially commented on the great influence of Carlyle and Mill on the past and present generation of thinking men; on the peculiar cosmological conceptions of Dr. Newman, as modified by his theology; on the positive philosophy and "religion of humanity" of Comte, introduced to us by Howitt and Martineau; on the remarkable system of psychology enunciated by Alexander Bain, in which empiricism and transcendentalism appear to overlap; and on the new and expansive scheme of systematic philosophy, embracing all natural, moral, and political science, propounded by Herbert Spencer and not yet completed. The professor next considered the modified forms of transcendentalism put forth by the followers of Sir William Hamilton, such as Fraser, Cairn, Spencer Baynes, Ferrier, and others; and also noticed the recent publication by Hutchison Stirling of versions of part of the writings of the "brain-benumbing" Hegel. In conclusion, Professor Masson said that the quantity of speculative writing shows that philosophy will last among us—that there will be a "perpetuity of metaphysics." Although empiricism may seem to be in the ascendant, yet, as easily seen, it never totally satisfies its votaries; but, under all circumstances, the advocates of truth should ever welcome the utmost freedom of discussion.

On Friday, the 7th inst., Dr. A. W. Hofmann, F.R.S., will give the evening discourse, "On the Combining Power of the Atoms of the Elements."

A new city, to be called Palmerston, is in course of formation at North Western Australia.

An Australian paper states that pheasants, partridges, and hares are multiplying fast in the woods around Geelong, in Victoria.

Lady W— has forwarded, through Sir Edward Armstrong, £600 to the National Life-boat Institution, for the purpose of completely renovating the Holy Island (Northumberland) Life-boat station. Miss S. Robertson, of Lowndes-square, has also sent to the institution, through Mr. Stephen Cave, M.P., £300, to place a new life-boat at Shoreham, on the Sussex coast; and Mrs. Anstree, of Tynemouth, Northumberland, has forwarded the institution £400 through Mr. A. S. Stephenson, for the purpose of replacing the life-boat and transporting-carriage at North Sunderland—the new life-boat to be named after the late Mr. Joseph Anstree. The Rev. J. Malcolmson, of Ratcliff, has transmitted to the society 5s. in farthings, being the saving of a sailor's widow, in aid of the life-boat cause.

The Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, in their twelfth report, recently issued, say:—"The aggregate amount of various stocks transferred to 'the official trustees of charitable funds' during the past year is £459,162 10s. 8d., being a large excess over the amount transferred to them in any previous year. Sums of stock amounting together to £7927 4s. 9d. only have been transferred or sold by the official trustees during the year, principally for purposes of reinvestment in land. At the close of the year the total amount of various stocks vested in the official trustees was £2,085,281 3s. 7d., held by them upon 3586 accounts for the separate charities to which they belong. Three hundred and seventy-seven charitable foundations, either newly created or not previously recorded, have been brought under our observation during the past year, the particulars of which are in the course of registration in our office. We have received during the year 14,207 returns of account of the receipts and exdenditure of charities."

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. W.—We are obliged by your kind attention in copying the games, which are very interesting.

I. H. G. B.—1. Next week. 2. The initials of the men on your diagram are not sufficiently distinct. To prevent mistake between "K" and "Kt," correspondents should always write "King" in full.

S. A. HARRISON, TINEY.—It shall be reported on shortly.

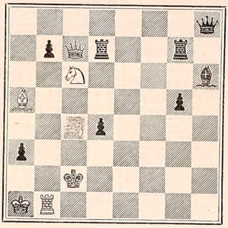
E. K.—We are too much pressed for room to answer so many questions at once. They must of necessity stand over, but shall not be forgotten.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1100 by A. B. C., Cosmo, D. C. L., Annie, Tiney; R. S., Malines; W. Peters, Q. E. D., Box and Cox, F. V., Iota, W. S. D., Ellen, M.P., Ernest, P. P., Query, Oxoniensis, F. A. S., E. M., Derevon, E. B., Larry, Sigma, True-blue, Fergus, Medicus, D. D., Percy, W. M. E., Auld Lang Syne, Tredwell, S. P. Q. B., F. C. S., C. Seeley, B. N., Julio, A. M.; H. W., Oxford; Dr. Fould, Ll Calsi, C. M. B., W. F., Edmund, Leopold, G. Vincent, Histrion, E. K., Marcus, C. T., Spalding, Boz; I. M., of Sherburn; Try-again, Civis, G. Wood, Leo, Nimrod, T. K. Sadler, Sim, B. T. G., R. B., Willy, Old Joe, W. E. R., Tom, Topsey, D. T. I.; E., of Winchester; Von R., Mrs. Gamp, E. R. K., Jessy, B. D. S., I. H. G. B., are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1100.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. R to Q 4th	B takes R, or (a)	2. B takes P (ch)	Any move
		3. Q mates.

(If the King take the Rook, White evidently gives mate next move.)



(a) 1. — B takes Kt, or (b)
2. Q takes B (ch) — K to K B 3rd
3. B to K R 4th. — Mate

(b) 1. — P takes B
2. R to Q 5th (ch) — Any move
3. Q mates.

PROBLEM No. 1101.

By W. GRIMSHAW.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, gives mate in three moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A stubborn Fight between Mr. G. MAC-DONNELL and Dr. LINDEHN, one of the best players in Sweden.—(Centre Gambit.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. M'D.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to Q 4th	P takes P
3. P to Q B 3rd

(A pardonable deviation from the routine course in ordinary play, though hardly commendable in a match game.)

3.	P takes P
4. B to Q B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
5. Kt to K 2nd	P to Q 4th
6. P takes P	P takes Q Kt P
7. Q B takes P	B to Q Kt 5th (ch)
8. Q Kt to Q B 3rd	Castles
9. Castles	B to K B 4th
10. Kt to Q 4th	B to K Kt 3rd
11. Q Kt to K 2nd	Q Kt to Q 2nd
12. Kt to K 6th

(A move good in style and conception.)

12.	P takes Kt
13. P takes P	K to R sq
14. P takes Kt	Q takes P
15. Q to Q Kt 3rd

(He could have won a Pawn here by capturing the Kt; but perhaps the move in the text is preferable.)

15.	B to Q 3rd
16. B to K 6th	Q to K 2nd
17. Kt to Q 4th	B to Q B 4th
18. Kt to K B 3rd	Q R to K sq
19. Q R to K sq	Q to Q 3rd
20. Kt to K 5th

(The position now is highly interesting, and the play on both sides very clever.)

20.	B to Q B 7th
21. Q takes B	R takes B
22. Kt to K Kt 6th (ch)	P takes Kt
23. R takes R	Q takes R
24. Q takes B	Q to Q 3rd
25. Q takes Q R P	Kt to Kt 5th
26. P to K Kt 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd
27. Q to Q R 4th	Q to K 3rd
28. B to Q B 3rd

(To prevent the capture of his K B Pawn by Rook or Kt. For this purpose, however, playing Queen to Q 4th appears to be equally effective and more expeditious.)

28.	Q to K B 4th
29. Q to Q 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
30. R to K sq	P to Q B 4th
31. Q to K R 4th (ch)

(Had he played the Queen to Q 6th, Black might have taken the K B Pawn, checking, and, when his Queen had been captured, have given double check, by Kt to K 5th, &c.)

31.	Q to K R 4th
32. Q to K B 4th	Q to K B 4th
33. Q takes Q	P takes Q
34. R to K 6th	Kt to Q 4th
35. B to K 5th	P to Q Kt 4th
36. R to Q 6th	Kt to Q Kt 5th
37. P to Q R 3rd	Kt to Q B 7th
38. R to Q B 6th	P to Q B 5th
39. R to Q B 7th	R to K sq
40. B takes P (ch)	K to Kt sq
41. B to Q Kt 2nd	R to K 8th (ch)
42. K to Kt 2nd	R to Q Kt 8th
43. B to K 5th	Kt takes P
44. R to K Kt 7th (ch)	K to B sq
45. R to Q B 7th	P to Q Kt 5th
46. P to K R 4th	P to Q B 6th
47. P to K R 5th	Kt to Q B 7th
48. P to K R 6th	Kt to K 8th (ch)
49. K to K R 3rd	Kt to K B 6th
50. B to K B 4th	K to Kt sq
51. P to K Kt 4th	R to K Kt 8th
52. P takes P	P to Q Kt 6th
53. R takes Q B P

(A fatal mistake; at the very instant, too, if we are not deceived in our calculation, when he might have drawn the game at least: e. g.:—

53. P to K R 7th (ch)	K to R sq (best)
54. P to K B 6th	Kt to K Kt 4th (ch)
55. B takes Kt	R takes B
56. R takes Q B P	R to K B 4th

(Any other move would lose Black the game.)

57. R takes P — R takes either P and the game must be drawn).

53.	P to Q Kt 7th
54. R to Q B 8th (ch)	K to B 2nd
55. R to B 7th (ch)	K to B 3rd
56. P to K R 7th	R to K R 8th (ch)
57. K to Kt 4th	P to Q Kt 8th, "Queens" and White resigned.

CHESS ENIGMAS.

No. 1447.—By F. ZACKE (New Berlin Schachzeitung).

White: K at K 7th, Q at K 3rd; Ps at K R 4th, K Kt 4th, and K 5th.
Black: K at K Kt 2nd, Ps at K R 2nd and K Kt 3rd.
White to play, and mate in three moves.

No. 1448.—By I. H. G. B.

White: K at Q B 6th, Q at K 7th, R at Q Kt 4th, Bs at K R 7th and Q B 7th, Kts at K B 8th and Q sq, P at K 2nd.
Black: K at Q 5th, Q at K Kt 5th, B at K B 5th, Kts at K R 4th and Q B 8th; Ps at K 3rd, Q 4th, Q B 5th, Q Kt 3rd, and Q R 2nd.
White to play, and mate in three moves.

1449.—By MATEO DE ZAMORA.

White: K at K R 5th, Q at Q B 2nd, B at K Kt 7th, Kts at Q 4th and Q B 6th, P at K B 3rd.
Black: K at Q 4th, Rs at Q Kt 8th and Q R 3rd, Bs at Q sq and Q R 7th, Kts at K Kt 8th and Q R sq; Ps at K B 5th, Q 3rd, Q Kt 4th, and Q R 5th.
White, playing first, to mate in three moves.

No. 1450.—By Mr. D. RABEY.

White: K at K Kt 2nd, Q at Q Kt 2nd, R at K R 4th, Bs at K Kt 4th and Q B 3rd, Ps at K B 3rd and Q Kt 4th.
Black: K at Q 4th, Rs at Q Kt sq and Q R 3rd, B at K B 5th; Ps at K Kt 4th, K 6th, Q 2nd, Q Kt 2nd and 3rd, and Q R 7th,
White to play, and mate in four moves.

A CRYSTAL PALACE CHESS CLUB.—There is a movement on foot among some of the habitués of the Crystal Palace to establish a chess club there, and Mr. Staunton has been solicited to become its president. We trust Messieurs the habitués will not suffer so laudable a project to subside. It would be impossible to name a place so admirably adapted for a chess club as this delightful building. Of course, a private room, overlooking the gardens and the lovely expanse of country beyond, open, too, in summer to the "delicate and nimble air" of Sydenham, is indispensable; and this, we understand, the directors are quite willing to appropriate to the purpose.

Mr. Gerhard Rolphs, the African traveller, who passed through Malta a few weeks ago on his way to Germany, returned to that island on the 18th ult. Starting from Tripoli, he intends to go over part of the same route already traversed by him in Central Africa, and push onwards towards Timbuctoo. He has received liberal support in Germany, and has obtained another grant from the Royal Geographical Society of London.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

The evening stars during April will be Mercury (in Pisces and Aries) and Venus (in Aries). On the 15th Mars (in Gemini) passes the meridian at 5h. 1m. p.m.; Jupiter (in Scorpio) is stationary at 9h. 5m. a.m.; Saturn (in Virgo) passes the meridian at 0h. 12m. a.m.; and Uranus (in Taurus) passes the meridian at 4h. 8m. p.m. On the 11th the Moon will be partially eclipsed, partially visible at Greenwich. The Moon's changes will be:—First quarter, April 3rd, 1h. 19m. a.m.; Full Moon, April 11, 4h. 27m. a.m; Last Quarter, April 18, 11h. 20m. p.m.; New Moon, April 25, 2h. 13m. p.m. The constellations Virgo and Centaurus, and part of Ursa Major, will be on the meridian about midnight near the middle of the month.

Mr. Glaisher has communicated to the British Meteorological Society a paper on the secular increase of mean temperature, including various records of observations and tables, from which he derives the following remarkable results, and which he states he has tested in various methods in order to prove their accuracy:—1, That our climate in the last hundred years has altered; 2, That the temperature of the year is two degrees warmer now than it was then; 3, That the month of January is three degrees warmer; and, 4, That the winter months are all much warmer, and every month in the year seems to be somewhat warmer than before." He considers that the effect will be to influence agricultural produce and cause the introduction of new fruits. He hopes that the series of observations now in progress all over the world will be patiently continued, in order to ascertain whether any part of the world has become two degrees colder in its mean annual temperature in the last one hundred years, or the world itself has increased generally two degrees in warmth.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris M. Charles Ste. Claire Deville read a letter from M. Fouquié, who had been charged with the mission of collecting observations of the phenomena attending the new eruption of Mount Etna. M. Fouquié states that the most elevated of the new craters is at the altitude of 1700 metres above the level of the sea. Immediately after the eruption (on the night of Jan. 30-1 last) the principal stream of lava descended the mountain, and in two days it attained a distance of six kilometres. On Feb. 6 this stream of lava stopped its course, and several secondary streams spread themselves in other directions. M. Fouquié counted seven new craters, all of which are situated on the same line, which seems to be the radius of a circle of which the culminating point of the mountain is the centre. He especially remarked the absence of sulphur and its compounds in the lava, which appeared to be contradictory to the opinion of M. Charles Ste. Claire Deville, who, however, explained this anomaly by stating that Etna was really sulphurous, but that the presence of sulphur could not be affirmed till after the lava was completely cooled.——M. Flourens laid before the meeting two goat's bones which had been entirely reproduced by the periosteum. The old dead bones having been removed, and the periosteum left to its regenerative work, it supplied larger bones, with their medullary membranes, &c.——At the same meeting, M. Henri Ste. Claire read a note on a new process for manufacturing steel, by M. Cailletet, in which cast iron is heated below the fusion point, and which is stated to be successful and economical.

Mr. George Busk, F.R.S., at a recent meeting of the Geological Society communicated a letter which had been addressed by himself and the late Dr. Falconer to the Governor of Gibraltar, Sir Wm. Codrington, containing the results of their examination of the Genista Cave, one of the numerous caverns in which the rock of Gibraltar abounds. This cave has been traced to a depth of 200 ft.; but the external aperture has not yet been discovered. It was stated to be full of the remains of quadrupeds and birds; some of the former being wholly extinct; others extinct in Europe, and repelled to distant regions of Africa; while others live again either on the rock or on the Spanish peninsula. A list of the species was given, and it was inferred that there had been a connection beween Europe and Africa at no very distant geological period, and that the wild animals lived upon the rock during a long series of ages. The authors strongly recommend the formation of a local collection of the specimens and the appointment of a geologist to make a survey of the rock.

Dr. E. Fournié has availed himself of the magnesium light as a means of investigating the interior of the throat by means of the laryngoscope. The rays of the lamp constructed by M. Mathieu-Plessy are projected on the small mirror placed at the base of the throat, which throws them upon the trachea and larynx, which parts are reflected in the mirror. By placing a double convex lens with a long focus before the mouth of the person, the image is greatly magnified, and a perfect knowledge of the state of the throat is obtained. By this means Dr. Fournié was enabled to examine a small tumour on one of the vocal cords with perfect accuracy.

Opaque glass contains generally from 20 to 30 per cent of phosphate of lime, which gives it the opaline aspect and translucidity. The phosphate employed is usually obtained from bones, especially those of sheep. As the preparation of fine bone powder is somewhat difficult, M. Schur, of Stettin, has aimed at procuring phosphates in a fine state of division from guano. The opaline glass which he has manufactured with these phosphates is described as of an irreproachable milky whiteness and of excellent quality.

At a recent meeting of the Philosophical Society of Manchester Professor Roscoe described a method of preparing sealed bulbs required for containing exactly equal volumes of chlorine and hydrogen, to be employed for exhibiting the chemical combination of those gases by the action of light. He stated that Mr. Dancer, of Manchester, had undertaken to prepare the bulbs for chemists who were unwilling to make them for their own use.

The Royal Academy of Sciences of Belgium has awarded the gold medal proposed to be given to the author of the best work on the Constitution of Steel to Captain Caron, so well known for his researches on this subject, which have so frequently been noticed in our pages. M. Stas, the principal of the persons appointed to examine the essays, in commenting on Captain Caron's work, expresses his own entire concurrence in his opinion that iron in passing into the condition of steel does not take up any nitrogen in addition to that which it originally contained. Steel, he says, is essentially composed of iron and carbon, and owes its qualities or its defects to two different causes—the state of the carbon in the metal, or the nature of the foreign bodies which debase it. Whenever steel is good its carbon can, under the influence of tempering, combine with the metal, and give us a hard, brittle metal which further tempering renders supple and elastic. When steel becomes bad after several heatings it is due to its carbon having been burnt or separated from the iron, and tempering will not then regenerate the combination. This separation is due to the presence of foreign bodies, more especially silicium. These bodies also give to the metal defects varying with their nature and the impurities they contain. M. Stas further adds that Captain Caron's essay is "undoubtedly the resumé of long and glorious labours, put forth with a simplicity and lucidity which greatly enhance their merits."

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris a letter from Father Secchi to M. Faye was read, relating to the important paper of the latter on the physical constitution of the sun. The Father is yet far from convinced of the existence of the phenomena likened to grains of rice or to willow leaves, and considers that they require more profound study at a period when the sun's surface will be more devoid of spots and faculæ, which will be the case in 1865 and 1866, and when it may be ascertained whether their relative positions are maintained. In conclusion, he submits to the able observers at Kew a list of precautions which may tend to eliminate causes of error in their observations. At the same meeting was read part of a letter from M. Montani, stating that by examining the beautiful photographs of the moon by Mr. Warren De la Rue, he had recognised the operation of the law of M. Elie de Beaumont, which seems to rule the configuration of the relief of our satellite in regard to the direction of the chain of mountains. Another communication showed that the evidence of the antiquity of organic life is continually increasing. M. A. Sismonda has reported to the Academy that he has discovered in gneiss, a very ancient rock, impressions of a species of plant very analogous to the equisetum, so abundant in the coal measures. He sees in this vegetable plant a peremptory proof of the metamorphic origin of the fundamental gneiss of the Alps, and a new element for the still-pending discussion as to the geological age of the vegetable impressions which are contained in the anthraciferous strata of the Western Alps. At the succeeding meeting of the Academy, M. Lequesne communicated a note respecting a new electric commutator, which he had invented for the purpose of obviating in some degree the necessity of continually changing the disposition of the pile and the grouping of the elements, in order to vary the surfaces according to the effects to be produced. The details of the apparatus are given in the Comptes Rendus. It is said to be already employed in several laboratories with good effect, and to be equally applicable for voltaic batteries and magneto-electric machines. At the same meeting M. Chevreul read a note on the history of oxygen gas, and ended by claiming its discovery for Lavoisier, since that chemist first observed that the oxydation of a body did not take place at the expense of air, but only of an integral part of it—oxygen. Our illustrious countryman Joseph Priestley obtained the gas from the red oxide of mercury on Aug. 1, 1775, a memorable day in the annals of chemistry.

Specimens of new Cornish minerals (hydrated oxychlorides of copper) were laid before the Chemical Society, at a recent meeting, by Professor Church, of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester. They are named lyellite, langite, brochantite, and a new species of atacamite, remarkable for its beautiful turquoise-blue colour. All contain water, varying from three to five parts. Green atacamite, formed artificially by Sir Robert Kane, contains only two parts of water, while the natural mineral contains four.

The French Academy of Sciences, at its last sitting, nominated M. Braun, of Berlin, one of its correspondents for the botanical section, in the place of M. Blume.

At a meeting of the Commissioners of Sewers, held on Tuesday, Dr. Letheby, the medical officer of health, in answer to a question put by one of the members of the court in respect to the qualities of the dried beef which is being brought from South America and sold in London as food, said he had carefully examined the dried beef, and found that all the fat it contained was rancid, but, with regard to the lean portion of the meat, he had eaten some of it himself, and he considered it was perfectly wholesome.

NEW MUSIC.

MURMURES EOLIENS. Arranged by WILLIE PAPE, and performed by him before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. Price 3s.
GEORGE EMERY and Co., 408, Oxford-street, W.

LARA.—THE ARAB SONG. Sung by Miss Louisa Pyne. "The gem of the entire work."—Daily Telegraph. "The prettiest solo in the opera."—Times. Price 3s. Post-free for half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Transcription of the celebrated "Arab Song," for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Post-free half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—The Favourite Airs, arranged for the Pianoforte, by FRANZ NAVA, in Two Books, price 5s. each, containing all the best subjects in the Opera; post-free half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA QUADRILLES. By COOTE. Price 4s. Also, by the same, LARA VALSES. Price 4s. With Illustrations from the new Opera.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—H. W. GOODBAN'S Transcription of the popular Song, "The merry bells shall ring." Price 3s. Post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LARA.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.
G. A. Osborne's "To a far distant past." 3s.
Mdme. Oury's Fantasia. 4s.
Kuhe's Transcription. 4s.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ARRAH-NA-POGUE QUADRILLE, by LEVEY, 4s.; Arrah-na-pogue Valses, 4s.; and Arrah-na-pogue Galop, 3s. All with Illustrations of the new Drama. Half price, post-free.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE LATEST COMIC SONG.

SENSATION MAD. Sung by Mr. Sothern, in "The Woman in Mauve." Written by H. J. Byron. Illustrated. Post-free for 16 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

HENRY SMART'S

BRIDE OF DUNKERRON.—A New Edition, corrected and revised, of the Pianoforte Score is now ready. Price 18s., bound and illustrated.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

BRIDE OF DUNKERRON.—Favourite Songs:—"The full moon is beaming," 2s. 6d.; "The sea rules all," 3s.; "Our home shall be on this bright isle," 2s. 6d.; and the popular "Sea-maidens' chorus," arranged as a Trio, 3s. All sent post-free at half price.
METZLER and Co., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF POPULAR SONGS.
O YE TEARS! O YE TEARS! Ballad. 2s. 6d.
JENNY OF THE MILL. Song. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
THE LIQUID GEM. Ballad. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington has sung the above three songs with wonderful success.
THE CUCKOO SONG. 3s.; free for 19 stamps.
GOOD MORNING. Song. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps. Both sung by Mdlle. Liebhart with great applause.
THE MUSIC OF HER VOICE. Ballad. Free for 16 stamps.
THE MOUNTAIN WANDERER. Song. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.
The CHRISTIAN SOLDIER. Sacred Song. Free for 19 stamps.
DANIEL GODFREY'S ASSEMBLY GALOP. For Piano (Melody by Kücken), with Cornet. Free for 19 stamps.
The TIMES and TELEGRAPH GALOP. For Piano. Composed by E. E. Armstrong. 3s.; free for 19 stamps. Finely Illustrated.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, W., Publishers to the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Emperor Napoleon III. Agents for India: Messrs. BURKINYOUNG and Co., Calcutta.

ROSE LEAVES.—Ballad without Words. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour" (sent for fifteen stamps). A melody full of beauty and refinement.—Vide Press.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR. Ballad by S. GLOVER.—This truly beautiful song is now established as one of the leading favourites of the season. Mr. Glover has lately made a transcription of it for the Pianoforte, copies of which are now ready for delivery. Sent by post for 18 stamps each.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK.—Nocturne for Piano. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Rose Leaves," "Reverie in F," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW GRAND MARCH,

JULIUS CÆSAR. By CALLCOTT.
Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
LAMBORN, COCK, and Co., 63, New Bond street.

TO LEARN TO PLAY THE CONCERTINA EASILY AND THOROUGHLY, USE

MARR'S CONCERTINA TUTOR.
A new and greatly-improved Instruction-book.
In royal 8vo, price 6d.; post-free for 7 stamps.
Glasgow: JOHN S. MARR, 194, Buchanan-street.

In music folio, price 6d., post-free for 7 stamps,

MARR'S CONCERTINA COMPANION.
Contains above 100 New and Popular Airs.
Glasgow: JOHN S. MARR, 194, Buchanan-street.

In music folio, price 6d., post-free for 7 stamps,
MARR'S SELECTION OF

140 TUNES FOR THE CONCERTINA.
Glasgow: JOHN S. MARR, 194, Buchanan-street.

Just published, price 1s., post-free for 14 stamps,

MARR'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR: a New and Simple Instruction Book, containing complete Lessons to enable the Learner to Play the Pianoforte easily and thoroughly. It also contains 27 popular Tunes, progressively arranged for beginners. Glasgow: JOHN S. MARR, 194, Buchanan-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All full-price Music of every publisher forwarded immediately on publication to any part of the kingdom, on receipt of stamps to half the price. Catalogues gratis. The profession and trade supplied to sell at half price.
OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S NEW PIANETTE is acknowledged the best and cheapest in Europe, about two thirds the price of the much-advertised French pianos, and can be had for 12 months on trial. These pianos are as powerful and sweet-toned as the pocket grand, and highly-finished in rich Italian walnut-wood. One in the window, marked with price. Patentees, 151, Regent-street; the only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB LET on HIRE for three years, after which the instrument will become the hirer's. Thus—
New Pianette .. .. £2 5s. per quarter.
Elegant Drawing-room Piano (7 octaves) .. £3 3s. "
More expensive instruments equally moderate. These pianofortes will be found to excel anything yet offered to the public.
151, Regent-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB manufacture a PIANOFORTE which, for its strength, portability, and small cost, is excellent for India, officers going abroad, ship board, practising rooms, and all places where space and cost are considerations. Can be had on trial. Warranted.—151, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's. 5-octaves, in oak case, hire at 6s. per month; 4-octaves, suitable for schools, £4 purchase. 5, 7, 9, 11, 16 stops can be had at either on hire for a number of years or purchase at moderate prices.—151, Regent-street.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS of all descriptions, at very reduced prices. OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street; the only address.

INAUGURATION OF THE NEW TATTERSALLS'.

THE Friends of Messrs. TATTERSALL having determined on giving them a DINNER to celebrate the above event and to mark the general estimation in which they are held, the same will take place at WILLIS'S ROOMS, King-street, St. James's, on TUESDAY, APRIL 11, 1865, at Six o'Clock precisely, the Hon. Admiral ROUS in the chair.
Tickets, Two Guineas each, to be had at Willis's Rooms; at Mr. Bubb's Library, 167, New Bond-street; and at Tattersalls' Subscription Rooms, Hyde Park-corner, on application to Mr. Thomas.

ALBERT INSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED. (Fire and Marine). Capital, One Million.
Premiums charged estimated by the individual risk.
The utmost liberality in every transaction.
Offices:—8, Finch-lane, and 7, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall.
MORELL THEOBALD, Manager, Fire Department.
Agents wanted where none appointed.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

BRIGHTON.—In a LADIES' SCHOOL, where the principals are assisted by professors of eminence in their several departments and by highly accomplished governesses, there are THREE VACANCIES. The house accommodation is excellent, and its situation is one of the best in Brighton. Applications to be made by letter, prepaid, to J. M., care of Mr. Treacher, North-street, Brighton.

MALVERN COLLEGE.—This COLLEGE is NOW OPEN.
Boarding-house Masters { Rev. CHAS. M'DOWALL, M.A. / Rev. F. R. DREW, M.A.
There will be an examination at the end of the summer term for two classical scholarships, of £30 for three years, and £30 for one year respectively.
For information apply to the Head Master, Rev. Arthur Faber, M.A.; and for any further information as to shares and nominations apply to HENRY ALDRICH, Esq., the Secretary.

LIMPLEY STOKE, NEAR BATH.

HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT.
Physician, D. B. Dalzell, Esq., M.D.
Manager, Mr. T. Preston. Terms, £2 2s. per week.
CHARLES JUPE and SON, Proprietors.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity.
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

SALOM'S NEW OPERA and FIELD GLASS, and THE RECONNOITERER GLASS, price 10s. 10d., sent free. This "Tourist's Favourite," through extraordinary division of labour, distinctly shows small windows 10 miles off, landscape at 30 miles, Jupiter's Moons, &c.—The Marquis of Carmarthen: "The reconnoiterer is very good."—Rev. Lord Scarsdale "approves of it."—Lord Gifford, of Ampney: "Most useful."—Lord Garvagh: "Remarkably good."—Sir Digby Cayley, of Brompton: "It gives me complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good."—Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall, Nantwich: "Quite as powerful as that for which I gave £5 5s."—Capt. Sidney, Royal Small Arms Factory, Enfield Lock, "Presents his compliments to Messrs. Salom and Co., and begs to inclose 10s. 10d. for a reconnoiterer glass, having just tried that sent to Lieut. Hopkins, and found it effective at the 1000-yards range."—F. H. Fawkes, of Farnley Hall, Esq.: "I never before met an article that so completely answered the recommendation of its maker, nor, although I have tried many a glass, combining so much power for its size with so much clearness."—"The Field": "We have carefully tried it at an 800-yard rifle range against all the glasses possessed by members of the corps, and found it fully equal to any of those present, although they had cost more than four times its price."—"Notes and Queries": "What intending tourist will now start without such an indispensable companion to a pleasure trip?" The celebrated "HYTHE" GLASS shows bullet marks at 1200 yards, a man at 3½ miles, price 31s. 6d. All the above Glasses, respectively bearing the registered trade marks, "Salom," "Reconnoiterer," and "Hythe," are only to be had direct from Salom and Co., 98, Princes-street, Edinburgh.
No Agents of any kind anywhere.

HALF-GUINEA BOX of MOIST COLOURS and Materials for Illumination.
WINSOR and NEWTON, 38, Rathbone-place, London; and all local Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

A FACT.—An ELEGANT POCKET- DIAL, with Gold Appendages, in Gilt Case, warranted to denote correct time, One Shilling; by post 14 stamps.—PAUL RANSOM, 14, Brunswick-square, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,

THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

WHAT WILL THIS COST TO PRINT? is a question often occurring to literary men, public characters, and persons of benevolent intentions. An immediate answer to the inquiry may be obtained. A Specimen Book of Types and information for authors sent, on application, by RICHARD BARRETT, 13, Mark-lane, London.

---

120 SHEETS OF NOTE-PAPER for 6d.; 120 thick ditto for 1s.; 120 sheets ditto, black-bordered, for 1s.; 250 useful Envelopes for 9d.; 1000 extra large ditto for 4s. 6d.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, W.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PURSES, pocket-books, cigar-cases, card-cases, wallets, opera-glasses, scent-bottles (double and single); pencil-cases; fans, note-cases, &c., the largest Stock in London. N.B. Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for presenta.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

---

500 DRESSING-CASES and DRESSING- BAGS, of the best manufacture, and fitted in the most complete manner for ladies or gentlemen. DESPATCH-BOXES, INK-STANDS, ENVELOPE-CASES, BOOK-SLIDES, RETICULES, PURSES, BLOTTING-BOOKS, &c. The public supplied at TRADE PRICES.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-st., London.

2S. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

DANCE PROGRAMMES (Perfumed); Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers; Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

CROQUET (improved patterns), of the best seasoned wood, in immense variety, at very moderate prices. A first-rate set, full size, for 30s., sent into the country, carriage-paid, on receipt of P. O. order.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, London. W.

COLOURED STAMPING REDUCED TO 1s. per 100. No charge for plain stamping paper and envelopes from parties own dies. Monogram, Crest, and Address Dies cut at half price.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, 27, and 28, Oxford-street, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormolu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monograms, plain. Rodrigues' Cream-laid Envelopes, 4d. per 100; Cream-laid Note, full size, five quires for 6d. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

OLD MARSALA WINE, guaranteed the finest imported, free from acidity or heat, and much superior to low-priced Sherry. One guinea per dozen. A genuine, really fine old Port, 36s. per dozen. Terms cash. Three dozen, rail paid. W. D. WATSON, Wine Merchant, 73, Great Russell-street (corner of Bloomsbury-square), London, W.C. Established 1841.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, and CO., 33, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

2280 AGENTS.—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This tea therefore secures general preference.

THE

ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862,
awarded to any English Manufacturers of
CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA,
in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

CHOCOLAT-MENIER.
The best aliment for Breakfast.

Yellow wrapper	.. .. ..	2s. 0d. per lb.
Chamois ditto	.. .. ..	2s. 6d. "
Pink ditto	.. .. ..	3s. 0d. "
Blue ditto	.. .. ..	3s. 6d. "
Flavoured with Vanille.
Green wrapper	.. .. ..	2s. 6d. per lb.
Lilac ditto	.. .. ..	3s. 0d. "
Bronze ditto	.. .. ..	3s. 6d. "
White ditto	.. .. ..	4s. 0d. "

Sold, in ½ lb. packets, by all respectable Houses.
Wholesale, 23, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden.

FISON'S PEARL SEMOULE is Delicious, Wholesome, Economical, and Extremely Nutritious.
For the Dinner Table it gives a variety of choice dishes.
For Invalids it is very delicate, light, and digestible.
For Children, prepared with milk, it is a perfect diet.
For Infants it is much prized; they will often thrive upon it when everything else fails.
Sold in Packets by Grocers, Chemists, &c. London Wholesale Agents: HICKS BROS., Maiden-lane, E.C. Works Ipswich.

BROWN and POLSON'S

PATENT CORN FLOUR.
"JOHN BROWN"
"JOHN POLSON"
is signed by the Makers on each Packet.

OSWEGO

PREPARED CORN
for
Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.,
Manufactured and Perfected by
T. KINGSFORD and SON,
of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original preparation from the farina of maize, established 1848, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the consumer.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by artificial process.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1823. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.

ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation for making pure and delicate gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard-pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli. It is appreciated as a non-inflammatory drink, is excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success for rearing children by hand.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742,
or more than
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for more than a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that are recommended for family use are the Double Superfine and the Genuine, both of which can be obtained from most Family Grocers, in canisters of 1 lb. and ½ lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER. Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and for Pastry. Sold everywhere.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Manufactured for Laundry purposes.
26, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYOR TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE-POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers; Wholesale, by Crosse and Blackwell, 21, Soho-square, W.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to personal attraction, and to health and longevity, by the proper mastication of food.
ROWLANDS' ODONTO, OR PEARL DENTIFRICE, preserves and imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the Teeth, eradicates tartar and spots of incipient decay, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 9d. per box. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
Ask for ROWLANDS' ODONTO.

DIAMOND HAIR DUST. PIESSE and LUBIN'S. Price 3s. 6d. box; by post, 6d. extra. Sprinkling Diamond Dust on the hair is now la mode. It produces the most charming effect.
Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

THE CONGRESS OF FLOWERS. PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME, made only at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, an excellent remedy for Gout and Stomachic Disorders of every kind, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that they have just received their NEW SILKS for SPRING. Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought in Lyons several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices. 300 Patterns post-free. Established 22 years. No connection with any other firm.

OWING to the facilities now afforded by the Postmaster-General, Messrs. NICHOLSON beg to state that they have greatly improved their system of sending patterns of Silks, &c., by post. Instead of the small pieces and necessarily limited variety which, from the expense of postage, could formerly be sent, they now undertake to forward, post-free, 300 PATTERNS of SILKS, each piece 3½ in. by 2½ in. in size.
These patterns comprise every colour and design now fashionable in London and Paris, and represent a stock of £20,000 in value.
NICHOLSONS',
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Coloured Glacés, 30 shades, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress. Reversible. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Broché and Chéné Silks, from 1½ guinea. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Moire Antiques and Corded Silks, from 2 guineas. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS.
Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyon, Drap de Paris, &c., from 1 guinea a Dress. 300 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boys' Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 15s. 9d. Useful School Suits, from 12s. 9d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 45 Engravings of New Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S REGISTERED SHREWS- BURY WATERPROOF CLOAKS, unlike many sold, are really waterproof. Circulars, with hoods, 1 guinea; ditto, with hood and sleeves, £1 5s. 6d. Patterns of the new tweeds of which they are made sent post-free.
NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

---

56 pages, gratis and post-free.

D. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to invite the attention of their foreign and colonial correspondents to their NEW PRICE-LIST, containing full particulars of every description of Silks, Dress Fabrics, Mantles, Shawls, Woollen Goods, Muslins, Calicoes, Prints, Ladies' Underclothing, Babylinen, &c.; in short, all necessary information for ordering this class of goods from their London Warehouse, 50, 51, and 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY
(now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Gros de Suez, all the new colours.
£3 9s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Best Spitalfields Ducapes, warranted to wear,
2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 6d., 4s. 11d. per yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

BLACK FIGURED SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
A large assortment of New Patterns, £2 5s. 6d. for 14 yards.
Black Gros Grains, Black Gros de Suez.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DRESSES.—PATTERNS FREE.
Double Mohairs, Challis, Checked and Plain.
A large variety of useful Dresses cut by the yard.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips.
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

SEWELL and CO.
beg to inform LADIES that their made-up
ROBE DEPARTMENT is now replete with all the Novelties for the coming Season, including
THE NEW SILK WARP CORAIL CLOTH
(Warranted to wear),
GENAPPES in all the new shades, both plain and fancy.
"Mexicaino" Lustre, and Glacé Cloths in great variety.
S. and Co. beg to call special attention to their new "Takon Morning Wrapper."
COMPTON HOUSE, Frith-street, Soho-square.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES,
by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

NEW SILKS, DRESS FABRICS, &c.

GRANT and GASK invite an inspection of their large collection of new French Fancy SILKS, rich Silk Robes, Court Trains, Satins in all the new colours, Moire Antiques, made-up Skirts, Mantles, Shawls, Evening Dresses, Organdie Muslins, &c.
Several very cheap lots of rich Silk Robes and Fancy Silks, from 2½ to 4½ guineas Full Dress of 14 yards; greatly under value.
Richest Moire Antiques, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
The Made-up Skirt Department contains a beautiful collection of Novelties for the Season.
Odd dress lengths of rich French Silks, very cheap, from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard, full width.
Several hundred pieces of French Brilliantines and Printed Cambrics much below the usual prices.
PATTERNS FORWARDED FREE.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted. Established 1800.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY APRIL 1 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1309.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

DEATH OF MR. COBDEN.

ANOTHER man has joined the illustrious dead and bequeathed to his country a name which will henceforth be cherished as a sacred inheritance. Richard Cobden has passed from among us. On Sunday forenoon, after several months' unavailing efforts to fence off the incursions of the disease to whose ravages he had laid himself open by a too incautious devotion to his public duty, he breathed his last. For some years past he had been compelled to exercise a watchful outlook against occasional attacks of asthma, which seemed ever ready to take advantage of the least imprudence into which his patriotism might betray him. His visit and speech to his constituents at the latter end of November last year, rendered doubly arduous to him by the absence of Mr. Bright, in consequence of a domestic bereavement, from the vast meeting he was called upon to address, fearfully exhausted him. Throughout the winter he was kept by the state of his health a close prisoner at Midhurst. He had so far recovered, however, that he ventured to come up to town in the hope of being able to take part in the recent debate on the Canadian defences, in which question he was deeply interested, and on which his intimate acquaintance with that colony and with its various relations specially qualified him to offer valuable counsel. The bitter weather was too much for his yet imperfectly recruited strength. His old foe was upon him in an instant, reinforced by bronchitis, and, after a few days' contest, put an end to his earthly career. He died before he had completed his sixty-first year.

Richard Cobden was, in several respects, one of the most remarkable men of his country and his age, and the triumphs of his genius may claim to be considered the richest and most fruitful of good which have been given to mankind in modern times. No one man, perhaps, at any period of English history ever achieved such an immense and beneficial change in the material well-being of the United Kingdom as he has been the principal instrument in achieving. To the Legislative adoption of those principles of political economy which Adam Smith had, nearly three quarters of a century before, pointed out as constituting the true source of the Wealth of Nations, the present unexampled development of commercial enterprise and prosperity is unquestionably due. It was Mr. Cobden's self-chosen mission to exhume those principles from the grave in which they had long been buried, and plant them in the convictions of his countrymen. From the moment of its conception to that of its success, he was the foremost of that small band of men who, in season and out of season, in evil as well as in good report, laboured incessantly, unflaggingly, and, in the face of the most formidable opposition, not merely to indoctrinate the people, their legislators, and their statesmen with sound views of questions as to which the vast majority were unenlightened, but also to create and organise an adequate political force for overcoming the repugnance of the great landed magnates, the apprehensions of tenant-farmers, and the comparative indifference of the masses, in reference to the proposed economical reforms. The splendid success to which Richard Cobden led the way, and the marvellous results of his victory, are matters of history. It has been his privilege for nearly twenty years to witness the gathering in by the nation of the ample harvest of blessings the seed of which he and his colleagues had sown in troublous days; and upon him devolved more recently the good fortune of negotiating the commercial treaty with France which has laid the foundations of free trade on the continent of Europe. Few men have accomplished so much within the compass of so short a life. Of him it may be said with perfect propriety, "Si quæris monumentum, circumspice."

THE WAR IN AMERICA: THE CONSCRIPTION IN NEW YORK.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The most conspicuous feature of Mr. Cobden's character, and that by the influence of which, perhaps, he produced the deepest impression upon others, was the rare simplicity of his character. He never appeared to have a motive apart from the object to which, for the time being, he devoted himself. His thoughts, his cares, his ambition were all and altogether absorbed by the matter he chose to take in hand. It never seems to have occurred to him to calculate how far the course which he took, the speeches which he made, or the acts which he performed, might affect his personal interests or serve his political reputation. He was transparently unselfish. In all things, even in his faults, he was disinterested. Truthfulness at least governed all his movements. What he professed to love, he loved; and what he professed to abhor, he abhorred, up to the furthest limits of his words. You might look down into the very depths of his soul, and see his motives as clearly as most others can see those at the surface. His conversation was the medium through which his character displayed itself, that, like pools of pellucid water, it seemed at first sight to be measurable by a much shorter line than would be required to reach half way to the bottom. In the small part of his public life he was appraised according to the common standard applied by society to those who set at naught its traditional maxims. Towards its close, whatever may have been thought of his opinions, there were few who had not come to look upon the man as one who combined the ability of a statesman with the purity of a patriot; and the tribute of respect spontaneously offered to his memory in the House of Commons on Monday evening, attested the completeness of that conquest which his genius and character had won for him over the judgment and heart of the most critical and fastidious assembly in the world.

His style of oratory harmonised with his character. It was terse in its diction, massive-not ornate-in its form, logical, practical, thoroughly English appeal to the commonsense of his auditory—calm in its tone, clear in its arrangement, artless in its diction, weighty with the facts it presented, vitalised by earnestness, and by the consciousness of spirit. His speeches were not often unpremeditated, but always unwritten. Eloquence—even his own "unadorned eloquence"—was, in his view, a very secondary thing—a mere instrument for photographing his own thoughts upon the minds of others. Accordingly, he never cared to speak unless when there were thoughts within him that craved utterance, and such thoughts, for the most part, had grown to maturity in his own mind before he had massive perfect distinctness of form, long before he felt any impulse to introduce them to the world. He mastered his subjects for the interest he took in them, never with a view of parading his power. He could not have remained silent under any of his gifts; but he valued them only as they helped him to do what he wished to do. He had no tricks of rhetoric, followed no rules but those suggested to him by his own good taste, and by unaffected sense. Hence there was nothing artificial in his effusions, nothing laid out with the intention of extorting admiration. He poured out his thoughts as water gushing from a spring—clear, cool, sparkling—and they took that natural course to his expression which was the temporary force and direction only by the nature of the ground over which they flowed, calmly and quietly when unimpeded, and with redoubled impetus when formidable obstacles had to be encountered, but always tending, by the most convenient available channel, towards their destined object. It was probably this characteristic of his oratory which enabled him to address with equal success turbulent and ill-informed crowds of opponents, and the staid, polished, and, as far as his doctrines were concerned, half-sceptical, House of Commons.

It is impossible to estimate the sum of indebtedness which this country owes to the memory of this patriotic statesman, not alone for what he accomplished, but for his manner of accomplishing it. Had the question for the repeal of the corn laws been under the guidance of an ambitious and fiery spirit, there is too much reason to think it would have ended in a violent revolution. Popular discontent was deep, and growing desperate. All the lower strata of society were plunged into a highly inflammable condition. Crippled commerce, declining means of employment, scant wages, and insufficient food, had begun to tell unpleasantly upon the physical and moral powers. If the great appetite of free trade, instead of addressing himself to the reason of his countrymen, had applied the torch to their passions, and, by appealing to the fears rather than to the reason of the agricultural interest, had enlisted their pride as well as their supposed interests against the change he proposed, the year of revolutions (1848) might have overtaken the nation when ripe for revolt, and irreparable damage to our institutions might have ensued. His conviction, happily, was the wiser one. Not to fire the passions of the populace, but to carry the convictions of the statesman, was his aim; and, aided by events which lent irresistible force to his arguments, he succeeded. His mightiest antagonist—the late Sir Robert Peel—did full justice to Mr. Cobden's merits, and, with his memorable words, on resigning office after carrying the repeal of the corn laws, we close our observations:—"In proposing our measures of commercial policy, I had no wish to rob others of the credit due to them. The name which ought to be and will be associated with these measures is not the name of the noble Lord, the organ of the party of which he is the leader, nor is it mine. The name which ought to be and will be associated with those measures is that of one who, acting as I believe from pure and disinterested motives, has with untiring energy made appeals to our reason, and has enforced those appeals with an eloquence the more to be admired because it was unaffected and unadorned: the name which ought to be chiefly associated with those measures is that of RICHARD COBDEN."

THE CONSCRIPTION IN NEW YORK.

Our New York correspondent, by whom we are supplied with the illustration on our front page, writes as follows:—"On Wednesday, the 16th of March, the long-expected draught was put into operation in this city. For a day or two previously it had been very generally stated in the newspapers that this most disagreeable "military necessity" had been indefinitely postponed; but volunteering has been thus far slack of late to give much hope that, without conscription, New York could furnish the twenty-six thousand men due from her to the Federal army. Consequently, on unexpectedly the announcement that the draughts was actually going on caused a great deal of consternation in the city. The mode in which the 'wheel' is turning, and the names are being drawn at the offices of the several provost marshals. These places are thronged all day long with anxious crowds. Irish fume has prevailed among the crowd. There is no disturbance; but, as a precautionary measure, the draughting is carried on under the guard of a large force of police. I send a sketch of the interior of one of these places, which the writer has seen. The 'wheel' stands on a table, a slip of paper from the wheel and hands it to an official on the platform below him, who reads the name, and then passes it to another, and then passes it to another person, who transfers it to the table where the registering officials are sitting. The names are then announced to the crowd at the expanse of the luckless individuals whose names are read out. Many, indeed, of the names drawn are the most needless of the jokers finds himself next on the list of the conscripts. Lots of the names drawn are published in all the morning papers, which are eagerly scanned by anxious mothers, wives, and sweethearts of those in life. Several prominent citizens already figure in the lists—among others, Mr. H. J. Raymond, editor of the New York Times."

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress dined last week together on Sunday, in the Bois de Boulogne, in an open carriage. The weather for the first time bore a resemblance to spring, and the people eagerly sought to enjoy the change of temperature, after a six months' winter. The Emperor reviewed three regiments of the Imperial Guard, in the Place du Carrousel, on Monday, and the troops performed their ordinary decorations. The regiments reviewed are to quit Paris and to be replaced by regiments of the line from the provinces.

The Emperor has decided that a bust of Mr. Cobden shall be placed in the Salle des Pas Perdus. Thanks to the speech of the Corps Législatif on Monday the Vice-President of the Council of State announced, in the name of the Chamber and of France, a panegyric on the lamented Mr. Cobden, the author of the treaty with England. M. Auguste Chevalier (brother of M. Michel Chevalier, the distinguished free-trader), M. Garnier-Pagès, and M. Glais-Bizoin likewise paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Cobden. The applause of the entire Chamber indorsed their sentiments. All the French papers contain tributes to the memory of Mr. Cobden. The Constitutionnel says with a black border round its front page. The official Moniteur concludes a long article on the same subject with the following remarks:—"Cobden was able to understand France, and he loved her. She will never forget him."

The general discussion on the Address in the Corps Législatif was brought to a close on Wednesday night. The Address is now engaged in considering the paragraphs. Some of the Opposition orators have taken considerable license of speech.

The Government has expressed its sympathy into the conduct of those who aided the armament of the Stonewall, or Lorient.

Monday's Moniteur publishes several Governments, among which are those of England, Prussia, Bavaria, and Switzerland, have already issued their invitations to participate in the Exhibition in the Paris International Exhibition of 1867.

At a sale, at the Hôtel Drouot, lately, belonging to M. Alexandre Dumas jun., "Tasso in Prison," by Delacroix, brought 14,000f.; "Turkish Women," by Decamps, 10,000f.; and "Arabs Skirmishing," by Meissonier, 7000f. The whole amount received was 100,000f.

The Exhibition of Fine Arts in Paris is to be opened on the 25th inst.

The Imperial gunpowder manufactory at Bouchet, in Seine-et-Oise, blew up on Saturday morning. Only two persons were killed, but a dozen others were severely injured.

SPAIN.

The debate in the Congress on the bill for the abandonment of San Domingo was closed on Saturday. The bill was adopted by 153 against 68 votes.

The Minister of War introduced a bill in the Congress on Tuesday fixing the number of troops in the army at 100,000.

A conference was lately held between Admiral Narvaez and the Papal Nuncio on the Italian question. Marshal Narvaez declared that Spain respected the rights of the Pope, but that it was necessary to adopt a policy of conciliation.

AUSTRIA.

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Reichsrath yesterday week, Herr von Schmerling stated that the Government maintained the principle of equal rights for all the nationalities in the constitution of the whole empire. The Government was prepared to come to an understanding with the Liberal party in Hungary, but the so-called old Conservative party were its most persistent adversaries.

It is reported that the Austrian army will undergo a reduction of 70,000 "if things should remain quiet."

PRUSSIA.

The Military Committee of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday week rejected the Navy Estimates, as well as all amendments, thus rejecting the whole of the military and naval proposals of the Government.

On Saturday last the Chamber of Deputies rejected the first article of the Government bill for the establishment of Joint-Stock Companies for the establishment of branches of the Bank of Prussia beyond Prussian territory. The Government bill, which subsequently to this branch establishments should be limited to Hamburg and the Rhine Duchies, was also rejected. Prince Charles Anton, Hereditary Prince of Hesse Michelstein limiting the issue of bank notes to sixty million thalers.

The War Minister on Wednesday laid before the Lower Chamber a bill calling for sixteen millions of thalers to be expended during the next six years in the construction of harbours and men-of-war. The Minister declared that Prussia was resolved to keep possession of Kiel, and that the fortification of that place and the building of harbours would require the sum demanded. The Ministerial proposition was received by a general murmur.

DENMARK.

The crisis in the Ministry appears to have been settled by the King relieving Mr. Hellsen, the Minister of Justice, of his functions. The latter represented the alliance between the reactionary and the extreme democratic party.

The Danish transit duties were abolished on the 1st inst.

RUSSIA.

On Tuesday week the Emperor of Russia gave a state banquet in honour of the Ambassadors of England and France, Lady Buchanan and the Baroness de Talleyrand. The wives of the Ambassadors were also invited. In the absence of the Empress at Nice, the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna represented her Majesty.

The plague which has made its appearance in Russia is stated to be still committing great ravages at Ufa in St. Petersburg. As, however, the authorities have ceased to allow any official returns to be published, there is no way of forming any correct estimate of the actual extent and force of the epidemic. It is advancing westward, as usual, and has already made its appearance in Königsberg, Jurisdic, and other towns on the eastern borders of Prussia. Here, however, it is represented as showing itself in a milder form. It is indeed probable that in the accounts which reach us from Russia there is exaggeration. Indeed, the semi-official Northern Post of St. Petersburg asserts that the reports of the appearance of the Siberian plague in that city are unfounded. The illness which prevails at present is described as having no epidemic character; and it is stated that only the poor people who neglect sanitary regulations are suffering from any unusual attacks.

TURKEY.

A modification has taken place in the Ministry, which is now constituted as follows:—M. Conseondounos, President of the Council and Minister of Finance; M. Kreetzulis, Minister of Justice; M. Lombardes, Minister of Public Worship; M. Bralias, Minister of Foreign Affairs; M. Aneyrgyros, Minister of the Interior; M. Boudouris, Minister of Marine; M. Canaris, Minister of War.

The Kirje proposes the following reforms:—

The elections are appointed to take place on the 26th of May.

AMERICA.

The Peruvian has brought news from New York to the 25th ult.

The advance of General Sherman had been checked by the Confederate generals Johnston and Hardee. The Northern and Confederate General reports that he engaged and defeated one of Sherman's columns on the 17th ult., near Dalton, Georgia, and that Sherman only saved himself by intrenching. Hardee defeated the other column, which attacked his position near the junction of the Black and South Rivers. The Federal papers state that Sherman attacked Hardee in his intrenched position and made three desperate charges, and was each time repulsed with heavy loss. General Sherman, however, has that in this engagement Bragg's troops were driven back, compelling Hardee likewise to retire. To prevent his being flanked, that Hardee, in withdrawing, abandoned two guns for want of transportation. Other papers say that Hardee abandoned nothing, and that the Federals were fairly and completely beaten. Northern papers report that Sherman occupied Goldsborough on the 10th, and regard the successes claimed by Johnston and Hardee as unimportant. They think the result will prove favourable to the Federals. Richmond papers of the 23rd state that Goldsborough had been evacuated, but was not occupied by Sherman. General Schofield is said to have occupied it instead. General Sherman, his force forming the right wing of Sherman's army.

Sherman's cavalry, 6000 strong, have left Knoxville, and are moving towards Western Virginia. Ten thousand Federal cavalry have left Rappahannock Station, Virginia, for the remaining railroads in Alabama and Mississippi.

Sheridan had arrived at White House, after doing a great deal of damage to the railways. A cavalry force sent out to form a junction with him had been attacked by the Confederates in much which, if true, is of great importance. It is that a Federal cavalry force was at Burkesville, the junction of the Richmond, Danville, Petersburg, and Lynchburg railroads.

The Confederates claim successes in Florida and Louisiana.

A report reached Mobile on the 21st ult. from Selma, stating that Mobile had been evacuated, and that the city, with an immense quantity of war material, had been given up to the enemy.

Two negro companies have been paraded at Richmond, and the impression was that these would be good soldiers.

President Lincoln has visited General Grant at City Point, for the benefit of his health.

The Confederate Congress has replied to President Davis's message, stating that they will defend their action on all legislative questions. They blame him for his unwise magnanimity in making known the wants of the country, and censure the admonitions contained in his message as being calculated to create discord and disunion. The Congress has issued an encouraging address to the people declaring that the conquest of the Confederacy is impossible. Unconquerable, Confederacy is expressed for the achievement of their independence and maintenance as a separate nation. A bill was also passed authorising the Secretary of the Treasury to borrow three millions in coin for the army supplies. A bill has also been passed that the export of raw gold dust and foreign bullion will be taxed 25 per cent.

The New York Times says that the Confederate Congress, prior to its adjournment, empowered President Davis to seize the funds in the banks for supplies, and also empowered the Secretary of the Treasury to procure specie from the Southern States upon account upon with the State authorities. The writ of habeas corpus has also been suspended.

Two British subjects have been arrested in New York, charged with insulting the Federal flag.

The floods in the north are subsiding, but they have done an immense amount of damage.

The citizens of New York have offered to build a courthouse, at an expense of 1,000,000 dollars, if they made the capital of the State of New York.

The Americans built on the lakes last year eighty-one steamers and two hundred sailing-ships, the aggregate burden of which was 67,804 tons. Sixty-seven were built at Cleveland, forty-one at Buffalo, and fifteen at Detroit.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Canadian Parliament was prorogued on Saturday, the 19th ult., after a short Session. In the Governor-General's speech, in addressing which he congratulated the two Houses upon having laid the foundation for a new intimate union of all the Province's possessions in British North America.

The freshets have caused considerable destruction of property in Western Canada. At Belleville, Port Hope, and other places, they have been nearly as disastrous as that on the opposite side of the lake.

It is reported from Halifax that the Nova Scotian Government, abandoning the hope of an early union of the provinces, will submit the federation scheme to the Imperial authorities early.

The Government of Newfoundland have requested the Nova Scotian Executive to grant a pecuniary aid to enable them to establish a steamship-line a steamer to make bi-monthly trips between St. John's and Pictou, and other ports of the eastern provinces.

INDIA.

We have intelligence from Bombay to the 4th inst.

Sir Charles Trevelyan had left Calcutta on the 1st instant. The deficit this year amounts to £144,000. The Estimates for the year ending April, 1866, show a surplus of £1,500,000. The total exports, as a rate, an export duty of 5 per cent is to be levied on jute, wool, tea, and coffee, and 2 per cent on indigo, grain, and silk. The import duty on hops is reduced to 1 per cent. The financial condition of the country is declared to be prosperous.

Mr. Muir, the new Lieutenant-Governor, has come to Bengal.

Mr. Muir, the new Lieutenant-Governor, has come to Bengal.

Lieutenant-Colonel Tombs has left Calcutta to take the chief command of the Abyssinian Expedition. The last was thirteen killed and thirty-three wounded. Mr. Hewitt, a member of the Provincial Council, of Behar, has been murdered by the natives. William Jones, one of the Maori leaders, is reported to have surrendered to General Carey.

The Panama mail contract has been signed by the Australian authorities.

From Mexico we learn that the Emperor Maximilian's Minister of Finance has arrived at Matamoros. Leyes has succeeded Mejia, who has left for the city of Mexico on leave of absence for six months.

The director of the Central Observatory in St. Petersburg, M. Kupfer, has published a report on the system of weights and measures in Russia, which recommends the introduction of the French decimal system.

A war with Uruguay, or rather, perhaps, with one of the marauding armies which exist in this unhappy republic as the followers of pretenders to the dictatorship, has ended in Montevideo being occupied by Brazilian forces, who have temporarily installed Flores in the presidency.

It is reported from Malta that shocks of earthquake have been lately felt at Corfu. It is said that a mountain near Arta has thrown out smoke and flame. It is also reported that a village in the neighbourhood has been destroyed with twenty-three hundred of its inhabitants.

THE STRIKE AND LOCK-OUT IN THE IRON DISTRICTS.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

WOLVERHAMPTON, Thursday.

In former letter I attempted to show that the combination of masters is sure to succeed against the combinations of workmen, provided it be united—for the simple reason that the forces of capital are capable of greater concentration, and, consequently, more wieldy. At the same time I was stated that certain difficulties peculiar to the circumstances surrounding the operations of capital make such associations exceedingly rare, and generally of short continuance. The events in the iron districts within the last week illustrate the truth of this observation. There several localities are stimulated by industrial rivalry: each strives to make use of its special advantages to outstrip its neighbours in the competitive race. An obstacle to one is seized upon as an advantage to the other. Newcastle, we have seen, actuated by this spirit, has made arrangements with the men which have now been at work a full week. The Staffordshire masters have been left to deal with their own people. The lock-out in the Cleveland district has also terminated, and the men are accordingly getting up volumes of smoke to darken the sky! Between the ironmasters of that district and those of the Staffordshire iron-fields there is and must be a strong competition. They mutually strive to obtain the priority. Staffordshire will not yield the position she has gained, and Cleveland shows a disposition to use the immense resources at command to follow up the advantages that have produced victory in the war. They, too, have have to contest with the active competition of their Continental neighbours. Belgium also has seceded from the union. The Belgians have never a party to it, has profited largely by the check sustained by trade elsewhere.

The week's epoke have thus witnessed the falling to pieces of the great organisation which was formed to bring them to terms and to reason. The game is clearly thrown into the hands of the men. It has been very evident throughout this struggle that the men had a secret impression that the masters would not be unanimous. In speaking to one and another as to the duration of the affair, the inquiry was always met with a self-confident air, and the assurance that "the lock-out would soon cease." This assurance was only confirmed by the efforts of Lord Lichfield to get the Staffordshire masters and by the very conciliatory attitude adopted by the masters. It will be remembered that the meeting between Lord Lichfield and the Workmen's Trust, on Wednesday, ended in a deal lock; and his Lordship appeared in the awkward dilemma of having to report to the men that it "The Crisis." On the Friday, however, he hit upon a method of escaping from the embarrassment of the situation by obtaining from the masters a pledge to sign a agreement to submit the question to "unconditional arbitration," and, pending the result of this, to the payment of the puddlers in work at the rate of wages in 1866-7, and what more might be awarded. The men, flushed with an anticipation of an easy victory, withdrew at once from Sandwell Park. Lord Lichfield met 900 puddlers at Hanley the same day, save, with this agreement in his hand, of something like a triumph to report. The witness given to his Lordship was such as he deserved for the great judgment and kindness he has shown in endeavouring to settle the dispute, which but to the agreement he brought the men opposed a unanimous negative. They would agree to nothing till the lock-out was abandoned, and they were not willing to go to work on the terms offered there for which they had struck. Of course, this little stroke of politic manœuvring was immediately seen by the Staffordshire masters, as evidenced by the tone of the resolutions passed at Wolverhampton and elsewhere during the week. Sandwell Park was not a meeting under a condition not to support their northern brethren. It included them, moreover, to resolve that if Lord Lichfield's report introduced before Thursday, the 6th, they would turn it into a strike, and, instead of returning to work at 9s. 6d. per ton, would demand the rate of the northern puddlers and demand 10s. 6d. Under the influence of Mr. Griffiths, an ironmaster, who stands well with the men, a resolution was passed at Bilston pledging a large body of men to disavow all connection with the ironworkers in North Staffordshire provided the lock-up was abandoned, the men consenting to the arbitration as to their various works on Tuesday morning, the 14th. But those who agreed to this course soon repudiated it. The men's delegates sent and request us to go in; they drove us out, let them fetch us in. These were their words.

Such was the position of affairs, such the state of feeling, when the Ironmasters' Association met on Wednesday last, the 1st inst., at Wolverhampton, under the presidency of Mr. Foster, M.P. It was known that the proceedings would commence pretty close to definitely prolong the struggle. After a long and stormy debate, the following report, which was announced by the Mayor of the borough from the balcony of the Swan Inn, to a dense crowd of people who confronted him below :—

That the masters of North Staffordshire having, by their trade resolution of the 3rd of April, 1865, released this district from the undertaking entered into with them on the 16th of February, 1864, to submit to arbitration any question by the men of South Staffordshire that they disapprove the conduct of the masters in the latter district, and having received no intimation that it is hereby resolved that the works in the south of Stafford be re-opened this day of April, 1868.

The conduct of the North Staffordshire masters in thus releasing their brethren from a compact which, owing to the unexpected action of the Tyneside masters, is no longer effective, is much to be admired. They intend to put an end to useless meetings, and to endeavour to take the consequence.

The lock-out is therefore at an end. It remains to be seen what use the trades unions will make of this victory. The masters of North Staffordshire say the ball set left to each district to manage its own affairs on strike. Things are as they were before the lock-out therefore, only with this difference, that the puddlers of North Staffordshire will have gathered to them a larger amount of sympathy than they had before. The puddlers' employment of 1867 will probably enable them to support their opposition to a reduction of wages, and the masters being compelled to re-employ them at 10s. 6d. a ton, the will become the standard of wages to which all the other trades will immediately be obliged to conform. The men of South Staffordshire are bound by a resolution of the meeting held last, passed in favour of 10s. 6d. a ton, whatever terms might be offered, till after Saturday; and attempts are now being made by delegates from the men in the north to induce them to stand out for the 10s. 6d. The gates are unlocked. It is now to be seen whether the men will lift the latch.

The history of the present dispute between capital and labour goes far to prove that masters must come to the front with some more open combination to keep the demands of labour within the limits of reason. That it is desirable to defend the rights of capital against encroachers by strikes, and that no strike of any magnitude has been carried to a successful issue by the men, is most be admitted: that every attempt hitherto attempted of the kind has immensely increased the power of the trades unions. These unions are embarrassing capital at every turn, and when they have become perfectly careless as to their effect to trip up the trade of the country. The masters have been slow to unavailing themselves of the fact. It is manifest be told that the colliers' strike last autumn reduced the capital of Staffordshire for this quarter of a century by a million sterling, it is regarded as a remark totally beside the question. If he had shut the present strikers up in a room for a month, and left with its attendant lock-out of four weeks, he cost slumbry about half a million sterling, and immeasurably widened the gulf that divides the two as nothing. Some means must be resorted to to bring about a different state of feeling. If the old relationship of master and servant sad remunerative wages in the shape of wages to the one, and a contented state of society, some plan must be devised by which workmen may co-operate with capitalists, by which they may be made to feel their interests identical, and beneath which the necessity for combinations as either side will fade away. Already the shadows of such new relationships are creeping around us. We are not without instances of men being allowed by some old-established firms to participate more largely and immediately in the profits of business. If would be well if such a course could be more generally adopted; and profits the men could be called upon to share the liabilities as well as the profits of trade, the best results are likely to flow from it. Depending as we do, for our supremacy in the markets of the world upon the superior skill of our workmen, it should certainly be our care to see him well paid and favourably situated for the exercise of that skill. It should be his own care to see to this. Probably were his wages to depend more immediately than they do upon the success of trade he could not be better paid than he now is; but, were the means for these operations struggles which he supposes himself now obliged to maintain done away with, his position would be materially improved. Co-operation may solve the difficulty so far as a limited number of careful men are concerned; but some more feasible and wider scheme must be adopted if the relations of capital and labour are to improve. If in the unions of the men are to be broken up, it must henceforth be by such means.

If the North Staffordshire men submit their case to arbitration, of course the whole question for and against the masters' action will be patiently sifted. At Stoke the masters clearly showed reason on their side. The Bilston men, however, since their meeting have published a letter, in which their case appears at great length. They state that the ironmasters had by which the wages were regulated by the price of iron twenty years ago, ceases to suit them now. Circumstances have changed, and they wish the masters to take upon them the payment of under-hands.

The London Ladies delegates met last night to receive the result of the Wolverhampton conference, and to report progress. The latter, by whom, by his own party, the epithet "strike-jobber" has lately been applied, gives evident satisfaction at the termination of the conference of the lock-out. He also spoke of the sympathy displayed by Manchester with the Staffordshire men. Nevertheless, to whom they seat £100. The meeting closed by expressing "the hope that the masters of North Staffordshire will put an end to the dispute by allowing the men now on strike to resume work on the old terms, and will allow the question of wages to be settled by arbitration."

Intelligence has just reached me that, on Monday last, the workmen met at Glasgow to consider the propriety of recommending to the Scotch masters on the 15th of March, to place their workpeople on the same footing as those of South Staffordshire. It was then agreed to refer the matter to arbitration. I am unable to state the sentence of the masters. It is to be hoped that another strike may thus be avoided.

METROPOLITAN NEWS

The splendid collection of pictures known as the Bridgewater Gallery is now open to the public.

The National Portrait Gallery, 29, Great George-street, Westminster, will be open to the public on Easter Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday from Ten to Five o'Clock.

The annual meeting of the members of the Royal Institute of Notre Dame was held on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms, the Earl of Arte, John-street, Adelphi—Sir J. S. Pakington, M.P., the president, in the chair.

Mr. Kirkman D. Hodgson, M.P., terminated on Tuesday his mayoralty of Liverpool, and was succeeded by Mr. Alderman Bushell, Mr. Holland, the late Deputy-Governor; Mr. Thomas Newman Hunt succeeding Mr. Bushell.

The Select Committee on Commons and Open Spaces have agreed to recommend that no public money be appropriated to be inclosed, or sold, or dealt with in any manner that may interfere with its free use and enjoyment by the public.

A farewell dinner to Captain Burton, the well-known African traveller, was given on Wednesday evening at Hull, by the council and members of the Anthropological Society. The chair was taken by lord Houghton.

At a meeting of the Common Council, on Thursday afternoon, Mr. J. Turner proposed a resolution expressing the sympathy of the court with the Lord Mayor in the loss he had sustained by the serious injury he had experienced in his death. Mr. Richardson seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

An old man named Isaac Sclider, who died in Bethlehem Hospital on Wednesday, is one of the last survivors of the battle of Waterloo. He was admitted on July 28, 1804, at the age of twenty-nine, when he began to show symptoms of mental disorder. He was in the 1st Royal Scots Greys.

The London Diocesan committee of the fund for the distress in Lancashire met on Tuesday at the Mansion House, and it was decided that instead of subscriptions being called in at once, they should be spread over months, the meetings should, until the committee cease to act, take place once in every month. The next meeting will be held on May 5.

The musical arrangements of the forthcoming banquet of the Corporation of London to the Prince and Princess of Wales, on the 7th inst., are of unusual interest. Mr. Benedict has most kindly promised their valuable assistance, and will conduct the band.

The police committee of the Corporation of the city of London have determined to increase the establishment of the City Police Force until a new scale of wages for all constables, sergeants, and inspectors of the force shall be agreed upon. The increase will be small for the present, but ultimately the force, with rates of pay ranging from a minimum of 21s. a week up to 30s., may number 1,000 men, with a proportionate increase of all ranks, and inspectors an additional 10s. per week.

The Lord Mayor of the City will give their first aquatic entertainment of the season, on Monday, at the Metropolitan Bath. Prizes were competed for by a team of the best watermen of the Thames Police Force, the champion of England; there was a grotesque floating performance by the Fantoccini Company, and a variety of other amusements. Among those present were Mr. John Clabman, gunner of the Thames training-ship Worcester, for saving the life of a boatman who fell overboard from a steamer; and Mr. Lewis Goldsmith, a young Russian.

The special report of the Select Committee on the Metropolis Sewage and Essex Reclamation Bill is entirely in favour of the scheme proposed by the Board of Works. The report, in fact, recommends that that plan provides for the complete removal from the River Thames of the sewage matter now polluting the river, and that the scheme of the Bill provides for the irrigation, by the sewage, of a considerable area the soil of which, if properly treated, is capable of being made to yield large crops; that the sewage to be applied with very little mechanical aid; and that, lastly, the scheme is not open to the objections which have been urged against the irrigation of land by sewage in other places.

On Tuesday evening a numerously-attended public meeting was held at the Literary Institution, High-street, Deptford, to adopt measures for the purpose of petitioning the House of Commons against the Government not to sell for the south-eastern district of the metropolis, comprising the parishes of Deptford, Greenwich, Lewisham, and Woolwich, the right of the Crown to the navigation of the River Thames, and the rights of the borough and inhabitants of the district. The chair was occupied by Mr. Augustus, M.P. Resolutions were carried unanimously, and the unsuccessful candidates for the Several addresses were delivered, and resolutions of a practical nature were carried unanimously, on the motion of Mr. Augustus, M.P.

A public meeting was held at Burlington House, Piccadilly, on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of forming a society to promote the Cambridge local examinations in the London centre. The Bishop of Ely, formerly a distinguished member of the University of Cambridge, presided and elected to be the result of the late examination :—Juniors: Honours—in class, 2; out of class, 1. Total passed, 3. Seniors: Honours—in class, 1; out of class, 1. Total passed, 67. Total under examination, 75. Session: Honours—1st class, 1; 2nd class, 1. Total passed, 23. Total under examination, 37. Three were given certificates.

The number of births registered in London during the week ending last Saturday the births in London and nine other towns of the United Kingdom were 2261; the deaths 1577.

The distribution of the prizes awarded by the judges to the successful competitors in the Operative Cockmakers' Industrial Exhibition took place, on Monday evening, in the great room of the Society of Arts, John-street, Adelphi. Lord Taunton presided on the occasion. The proceedings commenced by the reading of an address from the exhibition committee setting forth the great success which had attended the exhibition, far exceeding the most sanguine expectations of its promoters, and bringing out a large amount of valuable new and exceedingly skilful workmanship, which, without this little turn-round for want of opportunity to develop itself. One great element of success had been that both employers and employed had co-operated heartily together throughout the whole of the proceedings. The noble chairman then distributed the prizes, which consisted of four medals—one given by the Society of Arts for the best specimen of cleaning, and three by the Cordwainers' Company for the best designs for an open and close carriage combined; eighteen money prizes, varying from half-a-guinea to three guineas, for excellence in bread-painting, carving, decoration, drawing, &c.; and thirty certificates of merit for excellence in departments of the trade.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held, on Thursday, at its house, John-street, Adelphi, Rewards, amounting to £59 12s., were granted to the crews of the life-boats of the Institution for the saving of shore-boats, for saving the following ship-wrecked crews during the month:—Sloop Eagle—Cley, Norfolk; Yachtsman, of Harlingen, eight; brigantine Dorion, of Colchester, one; Danish schooner Phil, of Blankenaese, seven; schooner Ann, of Sunderland, three; schooner Ann, of Dover, two; schooner Fair of Lynn, four; Schoop-boat of Walmer, three; schooner Despatch, of Whitby, four; schooner Ann, of Sunderland, three; schooner Hannah, eight; fishing-boat Providence, of Yarmouth, and schooner Tranby, of Hartlepool, forty-eight. The second-service clasp of the institution was voted to Mr. Mark Hewett, coxswain of the Eastbourne life-boat, for his gallant conduct in the Resolute life-boat of the institution, on a recent occasion. Rewards, amounting to £21, were also granted to the crews of the life-boats of the institution at New Brighton, Scarborough, Filey, Great Yarmouth, Portrush, and Arklow, for services rendered during the past month. During the last three months the life-boats of the society had been the means of rescuing 122 lives. The expenditure for the month amounted to £1,000, exclusive of £1,000 were ordered to be made on various life-boat establishments.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has approved of Mr. Thomas Bynon as Consul at Norway, Massanderam, for the Kingdom of Hanover.

The Cork and Youghal Railway has been transferred to the corporate of Messrs. Chambers and Western Railway.

The Government has sanctioned a succeful coal search and in the New Forest, and scientific men are prospecting over that domain.

A goods train from Cork to Dublin, on the Cork and Bandon line, on Thursday, at Tozzes. The fisher was killed and the driver injured.

A silver cruible has been presented by the ladies of Northampton to Sir Charles Knightley, on the occasion of his wife, upon whom was during Mr. Dorman's year of office.

The Belfast Police.—The Belfast riots occupied twenty-two days, and the proceedings fill a volume of 800 folio pages. No less than 13,584 recognizances and bail bonds were taken in the process.

At a meeting held at Birmingham on Thursday week, over which Mr. Scholefield presided, it was resolved to erect a public memorial to James Watt. The sum of £400 was subscribed in the room.

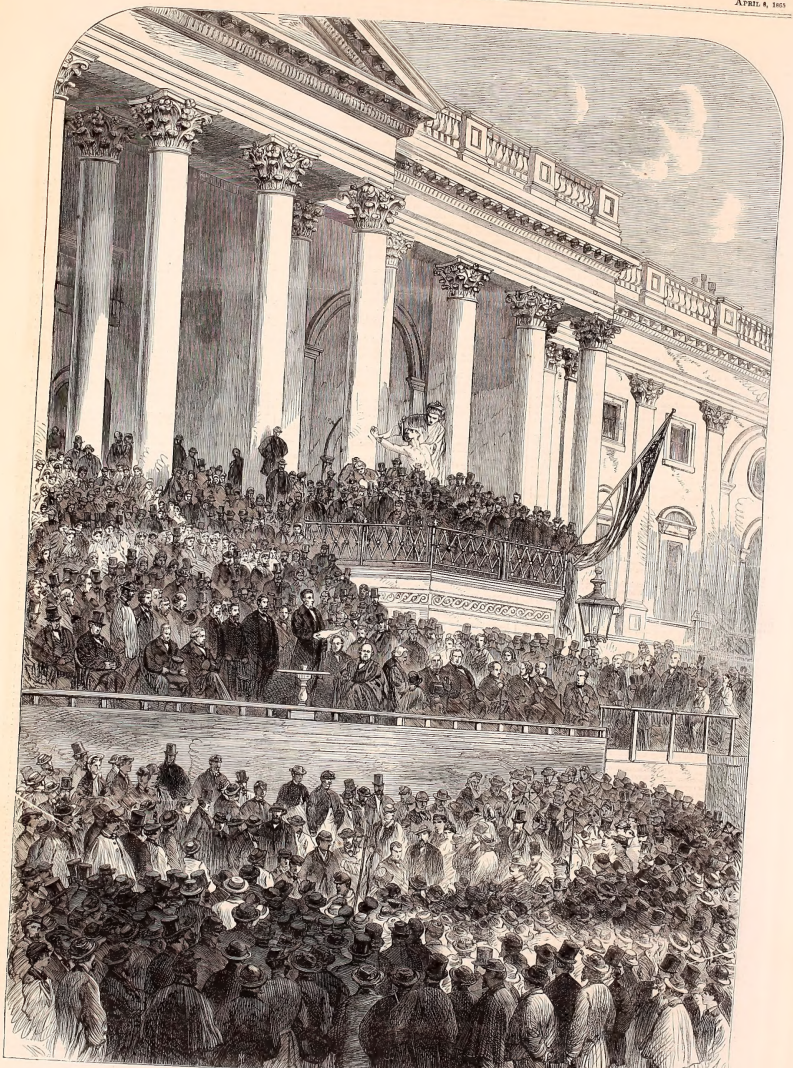
The King of Italy has appointed the Chevalier C. Cattanea his Consul for the Italian Republic at Swansea and Aberystwyth, vice Mr. J. A. Rue, who remains with the rank of honorary Consul at his Majesty.

A Wet Journey.—Mr. Thomas Hall, of Leeds, was seriously injured by the collision in the Blackhouth tunnel in December last, brought an action against the company for £5,000 damages. The Leeds Mercury reports that the Kingston Assizes, yesterday week, and the jury awarded him £1500.

On occasion of the annual meeting of the Court of Lucchese, the noble owner of East Horsley Towers, to Jane Crawford, widow of Mr. Edward Crawford, of Westwood, Surrey, and East Horsley—were read. Numerous letters and Bulloks were received which, and read beef, kernel, and beer were distributed in abundance.

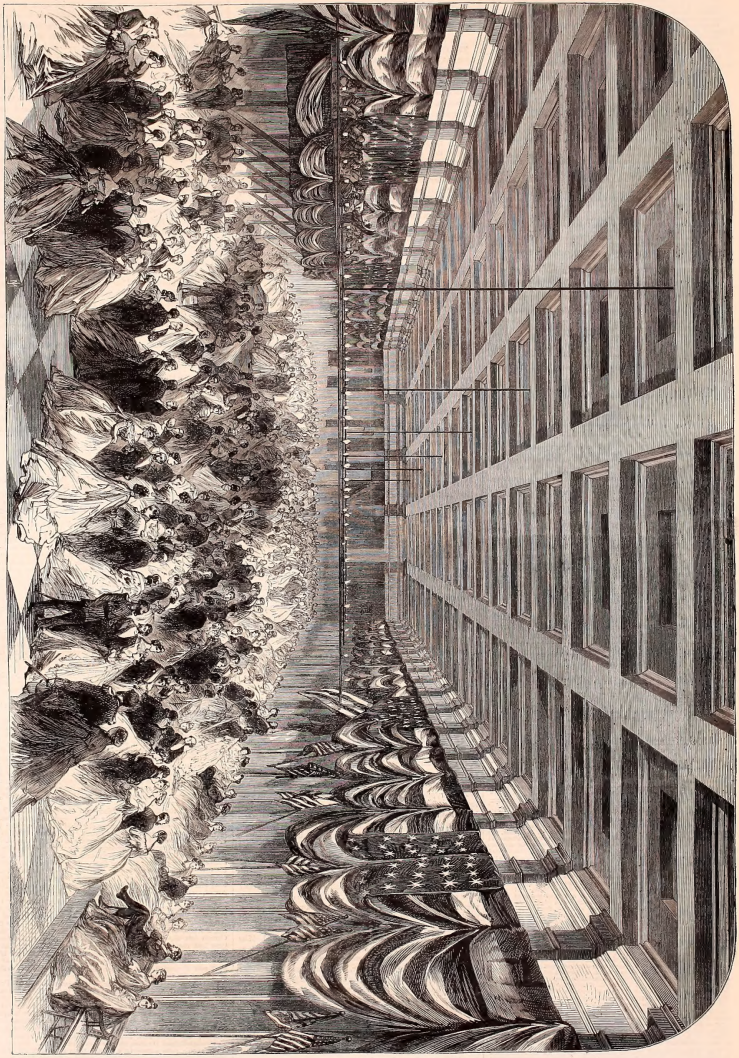
Various public bodies, including the Municipal Councils of Manchester, Salford, and Birmingham, the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, have given formal expression to the sorrow with which the announcement of Mr. Cobden's death was received. Resolutions to the same effect from Manchester, Salford, and other places attended the funeral.

The Birmingham Bank.—The directors of Messrs. Attwood, Spooner, and Co.'s Bank was held at Birmingham on Thursday, when it was resolved to proceed from the business of banking, and to close the seats, and pay the creditors at the rate of 11s. 6d. in the pound. Messrs. Spooner, Attwood, and Co. have resolved to carry on business; the business was reopened as a branch by the Birmingham Joint-stock Bank (Limited).



At the Quarter Sessions for the borough of Bolton, on Thursday week, before the recorder, Mr. Armitage, the honorary secretary of a fishing stream, was accepted. On Wednesday a meeting of the Town Council was held, when Mr. Thomas Barrow was elected to fill the vacancy. A very great majority of the members of the Council will therefore be required to appoint him.—The Bolton Town Council has resolved that steps be taken to petition Parliament for the borough for that borough.

The election of a member of Parliament for the northern division of Essex, in the room of the late Mr. Beller, took place at Southmillon, on Saturday last, when Mr. Thomas Brand, the Liberal candidate, was returned by a majority of 1,000. The result will give an unqualified support to the present Government.—Colonel Bourne, of Liverpool, was on Tuesday elected for Evesham in the Conservative interest, by a majority of 19 votes. Previously Colonel Bourne is a Liberal Conservative.—Mr. W. Augerstein, M.P. for Sandwich, has issued his address to constituents stating that his holding of his resign his trust at the close of the Session, when he proposes to stand for the county of Kent.—Mr. Alderman Cubitt has announced his intention to be a candidate for South Essex, Mr. T. W. Brunson and Mr. J. W. Perry-Watlington, retiring, and that member of Parliament will not re-election. Failing health was the cause assigned in both cases.



We hear that Mr. Macline has not sent in for the forthcoming exhibition of the Royal Academy the elaborate oil study (in reality a finished picture) for the picture of the first grand review held in the great western park in the Westminster Palace which we described last week.

THE POLYTECHNIC.—On Tuesday an exhibition was made of some models and drawings of inventions calculated to promote the saving of life at sea. Considerable interest and confusion is arranged in the picture gallery behind the diving-bell. We need not say that the subject to which the models have reference is of the most importance. Many of the inventions are, doubtless, most salutary, yet the inventors meet with almost insuperable difficulties in the way of introducing them to the notice of the public. Reasons for their non-adoption are always forthcoming in the most ingenious. Delay, prostrations, and disinclination to incur expense are inevitable, and the result is that the lives of those for whom the public owes an opportunity of deciding on the value of these inventions they are now exhibited. Prejudice has to be overcome, and the fact that a large pecuniary improvement will be submitted. Meantime, skill and talent proceed in the path of invention, and out of the numerous contributions which are to the public service there must be some of great value. Let the public, therefore, visit the exhibition, and if a sufficient audience is arranged to judge the merit it possesses, that the practical use of it may be pressed upon the attention of the proper public authorities. The models are too numerous to be fully described, but some examples may be given. Here, now is a model of a life-preserving boat. It is 30 feet long, and is intended to be attached as a tender to the ordinary life-boat of the Royal National Life-boat Institution. The signal has been used on the Swiss railway, and found conducive to safety. Mr. Hipp's invention is an electric distance signal, consisting of a column surmounted by a disc, which is to be placed at the side of the railway for danger. By means of this contrivance the station-master, by simply pressing a button, can convey the signal almost in a flash. The use of the apparatus is much less than that of the ordinary signal. Here, too, is a model of a life-preserving apparatus, invented by Mr. Greenwood. It is stated to be a cheaper and more effective contrivance than any yet in use. Ship illuminated by night by a bull's-eye lantern, visible to guard, driver, and passengers in the next compartment by effecting an opening between the compartments. Mr. Greenwood's plan is to place a light, which can be seen from either side of the train and followed by the eye at all times exhibits the fire and rings the bell, both in the carriage and in the guard's van. Mr. Greenwood's plan is to place a light on the top of the carriages. Attention should also be paid to Mr. R. B. Greenwood's improved means of preventing collisions on railways. Mr. Greenwood's plan is to put in operation a description. Our feature his plan possesses which distinguishes it from all others is the simplicity of the means adopted for bringing the train to a stop and going over an object without running off the line. The invention consists in the application of a pair of wheels, constructed with a flange on the inside for preventing them from leaving the rail, and following the same in all their changes in the inside, as usual. Mr. Haggit also suggests improvements in railway signals, which, he says, are defective, the object of which is to increase the safety of railway trains travelling at high or moderate speeds, principally by providing a means of communicating signals to the drivers of approaching up them within short distances, as may be required, preventing the carriages going off the rails, and providing communications between the engine-driver and guards, as well as between them and the passengers generally. The inventor considers that his patent breaks from the greatest power for stopping, and can be applied without injury to the wheels or requiring any alteration in the present form of carriage wheels. Mr. Haggit exhibits also the patent. Next to these, Tyer's patent train-signalling telegraphs deserve serious attention, as depriving the signal-man of the power of altering his own instrument. Mr. Tyer's patent is in use on the South-Eastern Railway, and therefore can be tested. But it is recommended that the telegraphic system of signalling should be continued to Kew. Mr. Frederick Hovenden commends to attention an explanation of the principles of the indispensable rules of the road, which, if generally known, would be the means of preventing accidents. Mr. Hovenden's explanation is by the aid of diagrams.

Printed and Published at the Office, No. 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Mary-le-Strand, in the County of Middlesex, by HERBERT ROBINSON INGRAM, of No. 198, Strand aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 1868.

THE SECOND INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN IN FRONT OF THE CAPITOL AT WASHINGTON.—SEE PAGE 331.

LIED IN HONOUR OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN IN THE GREAT HALL OF THE PATENT OFFICE AT WASHINGTON.—SEE PAGE 324.

BIRTHS.

On the 22nd ult., at the Priory, the wife of W. B. Neale, Esq., her Majesty's Consul for Continental Greece, of a daughter.

On the 24th ult., the wife of J. B. Terry, Esq., Strubb's-hill, Sunningdale, of a son, stillborn.

On the 2nd inst., at 32, Cambridge-square, Hyde Park, the wife of George Hooper, of a daughter.

On the 2nd inst., at 40, Torrington-square, London, the wife of James Chester Lansdown, of a son.

On the 3rd inst., at Paddington, the wife of W. Goddard Jackson, jun., Esq., of a son.

On the 4th inst., at St. James's-square, Lady C. Stanley, of a son.

At the Rectory, Lodge, Hyde Park, the Hon. Mrs. Lyttelton, of a daughter.

At St. George's-road, Eccleston-square, the wife of the Hon. W. F. Byng, of a daughter.

At Rock Ferry, Berkeley, the Hon. Mrs. H. Curzon, of a son.

At Queen's-gate, Aberdeen, Lady Ness, of a daughter.

On the 30th ult., at Grosvenor-square, Lady A. Paget, of a daughter.

On the 4th inst., at Belgrave-square, Lady L. Stewart, of a daughter.

At the British Legation, Buenos Ayres, the wife of Rear-Admiral the Hon. C. Elliot, C.B., of a son.

At Dublin, Lady K. E. Robertson, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 29th ult., at the parish church, Wrexham, by the Rev. James Dixon, assisted by the Rev. Canon Morris, Incumbent of Gresford, Edward Davies, Esq., M.D., to Alison Paxton, eldest daughter of William Low, Esq., Aberleven, near Wrexham. No cards.

On the 27th ult., at the Protestant church, Nieuhuisli, by the Rev. L. v. de Beilenbaume, Pastor, G. W. Griffith, Esq., of Machynlleth, Montgomeryshire, to Jane, youngest daughter of William Griffiths, Esq., of the same place.

On the 4th inst., at Clifton parish church, by the Right Rev. Bishop Anderson, Marcus Samuel Cox Rickards, son of Robert Hillier Rickards, Esq., to Edith Blanche, eldest daughter of the late Charles Alexander, Esq., Cox-walk.

On the 30th inst., at the church of St. Stephen the Martyr, Liverpool, by the Rev. Percy Bate, Rector of Kilmersdon, assisted by the Rev. Edward P. Ridgeon, D.D., Bonded T. Bate, Esq., of Kilmersdon, in the county of Cork, to Mary Ellen, only child of the late Thomas Bate, Esq.

On the 4th inst., at St. Mary's Church, Hackney, by the Rev. T. Vesey M.A., James Caird, of Cressoway, Kirkcudbrightshire, Esq., M.P., to Blanche Jane, widow of Charles P. Dickson, Esq., of Gosforth-park, and daughter of the late Robert Dudgeon, Esq., of Cleveland-square.

On the 27th ult., at St. George's, Hanover-square, by J. G. S. Sotheby, Bart., and Miss O. A. D. Fitzpatrick, youngest daughter of the Right Hon. J. W. Fitzpatrick, of Upper Grosvenor-street.

DEATHS.

On the 12th ult., at Corricklonecrue, Ireland, Major Wm. Moore, late of the 76th Regiment, at the advanced age of 93 years.

On the 31st ult., Georgina Jane Abercrombie, the wife of Christopher Craddock Esq., of Harrington, Hall, near Richmond, Yorkshire.

On the 29th ult., at his residence, Vale Cottage, Tufnel Park-road, Upper Holloway, Mr. Thomas Frederick Halliday, aged 74 years, deeply regretted.

On the 5th inst., at Jedburgh, near Cuxwilford, Edwin Ley, Esq., in the 63rd year of his age.

On the 26th ult., at Westbrook Hay, Great Berkhamsted, Herts, third daughter of the sixth Duke of Beaufort, and wife of the Hon. Granville Dudley Ryder, aged 44.

On the 29th ult., at Birdsgrove, near Aberystwith, South Wales, Lady Vaughan.

On the 28th ult., the Baroness Lady Dufferin, aged 92.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 15.

SUNDAY, April 9.—Palm Sunday. The National Gallery, in Trafalgar square, opened, 1838.

MONDAY, 11.—Death of Prince Eugene of Savoy, a great general, 1736. The Grand Chess Tournament commenced, 1851.

TUESDAY, 12.—The North American city of Washington incorporated, 1802. Fort Sumter, near Charleston, 1861. Full Moon, 1h. 37m. a.m. Religion of the Mormons, founded by Joseph Smith, 1830. Died, Sir Isaac Newton, 1727.

WEDNESDAY, 13.—Death of Bossuet, bishop of Meaux, historian and philosopher, 1704. Battle of Ivry, 1590. Edict of Nantes, 1598. Died, Tasso, 1595.

THURSDAY, 14.—Maundy Thursday. "The Redcliffe Library, Oxford, opened, 1748. Battle of Pharsalia, fought between Cæsar and Pompey, 48 B.C.

FRIDAY, 14.—Good Friday. Princess Beatrice born, 1857. The Lancastrians defeated at Barnet by Edward IV.; the Earl of Warwick, the King-maker, slain, 1471.

SATURDAY, 15.—Theatre term begins. Death of the Italian painter Domenichino, 1641.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

AND THE WEST INDIA DOCK ENTRANCE.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.
3 29 3 46	4 13 4 31	4 58 5 16	5 43 6 1	6 28 6 46	7 13 7 31	7 58 8 16

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE

KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		Miles Inches
	Temperature of Evaporation.	Temperature of Dew Point.	Elastic Force or Tension of Vapour.	Humidity.	Highest.	Lowest.	General Direction.	Mean Velocity in Miles per Hour.	Amount of Rain in Inches.
	Inches.	°	Inches.	°	°	°		Miles	Inches
29	39·040	37·1	28·7	·83	49	29·3	S.S.E.	8·85	·165
30	39·264	37·0	28·7	·87	47	29·0	S.S.E.	8·85	·000
31	39·161	45·0	29·3	·92	57	30·0	S.S.W.	14·7	·203
1	39·959	46·9	30·1	·74	64·2	34·3	N.N.W.	12·4	·048
2					51	31·1	S.S.E.	5·0
3	39·871	44·2	30·0	·77	59	34·0	S.S.E.	18·7	·000
4	39·205	40·2	29·5	·93	52	33·1	W.S.W.	24·2	·000

* Rain and melted snow.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer in inches	29·961	29·877	29·881	30·069	29·941	29·931	30·109
Temperature of Air	40·2°	42·0°	46·0°	49·0°	46·0°	44·0°	47·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	39·0°	39·5°	41·9°	44·0°	42·0°	42·0°	43·0°
Direction of Wind	ESE.	W.	W.S.W.	W.S.W.	E.N.E.	E.	E.S.E.

On Tuesday evening the art-exhibition in connection with the Worshipful Company of Clockmakers' Technical Institute, in the Prince of Wales, the Council of the South Kensington Museum, and the residents at and near Wimbledon have been continued. There was a visit by Mr. W. H. Harris, the Mayor, at the Townhall in that borough, in the prose not of a distinguished township, but of the poet and ready-made rhymester. Mr. Harris saw over a group of Indian gods and goddesses, carved in ivory, and an elephant's head in the same material, a model of the Taj Mahal, and a Chinese ivory carving of a group in blue and white Wedgwood, representing the Emperor Kien Lung and his Empress. Mr. Harris also saw a number of pictures, chiefly of Wimbledon Common, and Wimbledon Park, by Mr. Arthur Gaskin, and Charles Holloway, R.I. Spain, &c.; a model of a caravan and gun-carriage worn in 1400; several rare Indian armlets and Chain armour. Mr. Harris also saw a richly embroidered with gold and silver thread; a bonnet statuette of the late Prince Consort, in Highland costume; and a very large pouch containing four curiously painted tobacco from the history of St. George and the Dragon; a case of knives, with handles of gold, silver, rubies, and crystals, with shanks of gold and silver; a series of ancient weapons, including a Japanese sword, a Persian dagger, and a curiously-shaped Highland dagger. Mr. Harris also saw a number of enamels from the time of the Stuarts, and a collection of the coats-of-arms of the City of London, the Fishmongers' and Mercers' Companies, the Duke of York, Edward VII., and New South Wales. Mr. Harris also saw a model of the, and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor was an object of great interest. In connection with the loan and bequest of the late Mr. Read, the late Lord Elizabeth Woodville, in addition to some minor objects, such as the state of Charles I., now in the possession of the South Kensington Museum, exhibited a series of large photographs of the Raphael cartoons, which, with oil paintings and water-colour drawings, from the same source, adorn the walls of the room. There was also a case, from the same source, of electrolyte specimens, including necklaces, jackets, candelabra, &c. The opening of the exhibition was appropriately celebrated with a conversazione, the musical programme embracing some choice numbers. On Wednesday the Princess Helena and Louise, attended by their suite, visited the exhibition, staying nearly with the company that at the time thronged the rooms, evidently much pleased with all they saw.

The Misses Gonzyl, whose flattering reception at Barcelona and Madrid has from time to time been noticed in this Journal, have returned to England. On their way hither they paid a visit to Paris, where they gave several concerts, and were most favourably received.

OPENING OF THE LONDON MAIN DRAINAGE WORKS BY THE PRINCE OF WALES.

PORTRAIT OF MR. COBDEN.—HIS FUNERAL.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of SATURDAY NEXT, APRIL 15, will contain several Engravings illustrating the OPENING, by the PRINCE OF WALES, of the SOUTHERN OUTFALL WORKS OF the LONDON MAIN DRAINAGE.

The same Number will contain a PORTRAIT OF THE LATE RICHARD COBDEN; a View of his Residence, DUNFORD HOUSE, SUSSEX; and ILLUSTRATIONS OF HIS FUNERAL.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.—THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS for Saturday next, April 15, will be put to press a day earlier than usual, in order to avoid printing and publishing on Good Friday. It is requested, therefore, that Advertisements for next week's Number be sent in not later than SIX o'Clock on Wednesday next, April 12.

198, Strand.

A DOUBLE NUMBER of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS will be issued on SATURDAY, the 29th inst., consisting of a PICTURE PRINTED IN COLOURS, entitled

HAPPINESS,

FROM A PAINTING BY F. J. BILS.;

a Large Bird's-eye View of

LIVERPOOL FROM THE MERSEY;

and Two Sheets of News and Fine-Art Illustrations.

Price of the Coloured Picture and Three Sheets, Twopence; Stamped, to go free through the Post, One Shilling.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1910.

THE leagues have occupied, from date to date, no inconsiderable portion of public attention. We need not say that in old times they were not only not regarded as a nuisance, but were almost honoured as practical aids to piety. Archbishop Whately is said to have declared that, among all his mistakes, he never committed the error of relieving a street beggar; but humble be of preceding Archbishops, to say nothing of saints, rest their claims to the respect of posterity upon traditions of their charity, either at their own expense or somebody else's, to mendicants. Even now, in Roman Catholic countries, the priests always propose plans for distributing alms to the poor; and why not? and those who believe in what the priests tell them, imagine that, in bestowing money upon anyone who solicits it, they are making an advantageous investment as regards their spiritual prospects. In fact, priests and beggars are almost invariably found together. In Ireland to this day there is a superstition of the same kind, and the peasantry look with awe at the wicked Saxon who would lay hands on the bawling, ragged mendicant, and make him perform some real work for his bread instead of whining for it. But in England the professional beggar had long taken his place among the nuisances to be abated some day or other, and his last and most enduring patron and friend has been the artist.

We have tolerated the beggar, generally speaking; but there have been occasions when his simple scheme of taxation has been so oppressive that the taxpayer has risen in wrath and requested to the law. Nor has he appealed in vain. Queen Elizabeth, who had no idea of allowing her respectable subjects to be robbed, except when she herself appropriated their property for the public good, issued a rather a rather strong measure to be passed, in 1572, for the purpose of suppressing mendicancy. Beggars were ordered to be "grievously whipped and burnt through the right ear." This gentle treatment was accompanied by the infliction of the stocks, and Mr. Charles Knight gives in his admirable history an engraving of a couple of mendicants detained in that ingenious and economical prison—the man a swaggerer, who has evidently practised to the doctrine of the New Testament, was enforced; but the right of an Englishman to live, if he had done or were willing to do his duty, was also confirmed. We need not enter into the history of the poor law, or tell how it gradually became an engine for impoverishing the honest and encouraging vice and indolence; but let those who would understand from what we have been rescued read Miss Martineau's Illustrations of Political Economy, Miss Martineau's Illustrations of Political Economy, are nouvelletes of the most delightful character. The beggar, however, had been previously cared for once more, for we had long left off flogging and branding him, and he had again become a nuisance, with which the humanity of modern days did not care to deal, in Elizabethan fashion. So, in 1824, the Vagrant Act made all public beggars liable to a month's imprisonment. The Act has been a good deal enforced in certain parts of the country, especially in watering-places, which it was the interest of the authorities to make pleasant; but the streets of London show how little has been done in the metropolis to stop "stately beggary."

It is not in the crowded thoroughfares, the rapid arteries of life, that the beggar is seen. Men at work have no time for sentiment, and are by no means in the humour to be tormented. A beggar importuning a stockbroker hurrying to his exchange, or a merchant in grave talk with a brother merchant in the City, would probably run an extreme risk of being referred to one of the stalwart City police. But go into the stately suburbs when all the gentlemen are away, and the wives, daughters, and children are out on the terraces or the quiet roads. Then you will see the beggar and his victims. He fastens on them, and they cannot escape. He follows them for a quarter of a mile, sometimes groaning, sometimes, though more rarely, menacing, or at least wishing them evil. The invalid in the Bath chair cannot get away, and at length buys him off, and is wheeled on to confront his accomplice a few yards further. The children are persecuted until their pocket-money is extorted. Or more artistic devices are adopted, and beggars carefully "made up" and simulating misery shake and shudder, or look up with silent appeal. Some are, but for the wrong they do, they would deserve their gains, for they are better actors than many who are applauded in the theatre. Ladies who are not in a position enabling them to keep a male attendant to protect them from the grasping cunning of the "sturdy beggar;" and it is satisfactory to think that our wives and daughters are at last to be delivered from his tyranny.

The necessity of making new provision for the really deserving and wretched has also induced the Legislature to make provision of another kind for those who abuse the freedom of England. Mr. Vivian has inserted in his bill for dealing with the houseless poor clauses prescribing treatment of the beggar. Henceforth, if this bill be passed, there ought never to be a beggar in the street. The simple act of demanding relief, or of exhibiting an appearance of distress, is to be a policeman's warrant for taking the person so offending into custody. If shown to be in distress, that person is to be relieved, but if a professional beggar, he is to be treated as a vagrant and punished. That is the common-sense compromise between the whip and brand and indiscriminating toleration for mendicancy; and our streets will be cleared of a reproach, our wives and daughters will be freed from a pest, and that "log of halfpence" which is to pay bland-will, we are very sure, be applied for wiser and kindlier ends than the encouragement of idle vagabonds.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Windsor Castle. Her Majesty is in excellent health.

On Thursday week her Majesty, accompanied by Prince Leopold, drove in the Great Park. The Queen walked in the afternoon in the Home Park. Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, returned to Malta on board the Lion.

Yesterday week the Queen held a council at the castle, at which were present Earl Granville, Earl De Grey and Ripon, Earl Russell, and the Right Hon. A. E. Gathorne-Hardy. Earl Granville and Earl Russell had audiences of her Majesty. The Duke of Newcastle and Earl Percy had audiences of the Queen, and presented the Order of the Garter worn by the late Dukes of Newcastle and Northumberland. Viscount Esher, Major-General Ingall, and Sir F. Ottawa also had audiences, and delivered the insignia of the Star of India worn by the late Earl Mayo, Sir Bartle Frere, and Sir Jas. Jones Outram. General Tomas O. de Mosquera, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States of Columbia, had audience of her Majesty to deliver his credentials. The Queen also received by her Consul, H.S. Mr. Arthur Helps, the Clerk of the Council, was in attendance. Viscount Torrington and Lieutenant-General Sir H. Bentinck were the Lord and General in Waiting. After the council the Ministers returned to town. Subsequently the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise and attended by Lady Jocelyn, drove in the Great Park. Princess Helena rode in the Home Park. Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, went hunting with the harriers. The King of the Belgians, attended by Count de Moerkerke and Dr. Kropf, arrived at the castle from Buckingham Palace. His Majesty travelled in a state saloon by a special train from Paddington, via Southall and Slough, to Windsor, arriving at a quarter before six o'clock. The train was under the charge of Mr. A. Higgins, superintendent, and Mr. Charles Church.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise and Princess Beatrice, walked and drove in the grounds of the castle. Princess Victoria of Battenberg arrived, attended by Lieutenant Haig, drove to Claremont on a visit to Queen Marie Amelie. His Royal Highness afterwards rode, and walked in the grounds at Oatlands. The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Albert Victor, attended by Countess De Gray and Major Byng, arrived at the castle, from Marlborough House, on a visit to the Queen. The Duke and Duchess of Argyll arrived at the castle on a visit to the Queen, attended by her Majesty, the King of the Belgians, and the Royal family. The Dean of Christ Church also arrived at the castle. General Sir Dighton Probyn left the castle for London.

On Sunday the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, Princess Louise, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor officiated. The Prince of Wales and Prince Alfred attended the afternoon service at George's Chapel.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princesses Beatrice and attended by the Hon. Florence Seymour, drove in the Great Park. Princess Louise rode in the Home Park. Prince Alfred, attended by the Hon. Caroline Cavendish, took a drive. The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Albert Victor, attended by Countess De Grey and Major Grey, left the castle for Marlborough House. Prince Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, continued his drive. Dr. Bernhardt, went to London. Princess Helena, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington and Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, went to London, and was present at the Philharmonic Society's Concert at the Hanover-square Rooms. Princess Louise was present at Miss Braddon's new volume, "The Lives of the Warriors of the Thirty Years' War," which is shortly to be published. The presentation copy of the work was illustrated with photographic portraits from the galleries of Vienna and Munich.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise and Prince Leopold, drove in the Great Park. Princess Louise rode in the Home Park. Prince Alfred, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the Great Park. Princess Louise took a drive. The Earl of Derby arrived at the castle and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, and Princess Beatrice, and attended by Viscountess Jocelyn, the Hon. Mrs. Brand, Major-General F. Seymour, and Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, left the castle for London. Her Majesty travelled in a state saloon by a special train on the Great Western Railway, via Slough, to Paddington, arriving at twenty-seven minutes past four. The train was under the charge of Mr. A. Higgins, superintendent. The Queen was received at the terminus by several of the directors of the railway company. Her Majesty graciously acknowledged the tokens of loyal respect of those assembled to witness her arrival. The Queen drove to Buckingham Palace. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, honoured the Duchess Dowager of Sutherland with a visit at Stafford House. The Princess of Wales dined with the Queen at Buckingham Palace. Prince Leopold, attended by M. Bruff, arrived at Buckingham Palace from Windsor Castle. In the morning Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, attended by Major-General Seymour and the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, visited the exhibition of fine arts at Windsor Townhall. The Earl of Derby left Windsor Castle.

On Thursday the Queen held a Court at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty afterwards returned to Windsor Castle.

The Queen, upon hearing of the accident to the Earl of Desart, made frequent inquiries concerning the state of his Lordship; and, upon learning the melancholy termination of the accident, her Majesty wrote a most affectionate letter of condolence to the widowed Countess.

The Queen has honoured Mr. Desanges by inspecting his portrait of the Princess of Wales.

Prince Alfred honoured Mr. Brierly with a visit at his studio on Tuesday.

The Queen's birthday will be kept on Wednesday, the 24th of May next.

Major-General Seymour and Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat have succeeded Lord Alfred Paget and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge as Equerries in Waiting to her Majesty.

THE QUEEN'S LEVÉE.

By command of the Queen, a Levée was held on Wednesday, at St. James's Palace, by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty. Presentations to his Royal Highness at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. The Prince, escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards and attended by his gentlemen in waiting, arrived at the Palace at two o'clock from Marlborough House, and was received by the great officers of state of the Queen's household. Prince Alfred, the Duke of Cambridge, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Levée. Her Majesty's body guard of the hon. corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms was on duty in the state saloons, under the command of the Lieutenant. The Royal body guard of the Yeomen of the Guard was on duty, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Todd. The Prince of Wales entered the Throne-room, accompanied by Prince Alfred, the Duke of Cambridge, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and attended by the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, Viscount Torrington, Lord Alfred Hervey, Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Bentinck, Mr. C. L. Wood, Colonel A. Hardinge, Major Grey, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, Viscount Bury, Lord Proby, and Viscount Castlerosse. The foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced in order of their precedence, several presentations in the diplomatic circle took place. The circle diplomatique was attended by the Turkish, Austrian, Russian, Prussian, and French Ambassadors, with the secretaries and attachés; by the Ministers of Belgium, Bavaria, Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal, Saxony, Honduras, the United States, Sweden and Norway, Peru, Spain, Salvador, the Hanse Towns, Mexico, and Columbia, with their secretaries and attachés; by the chargés-d'affaires of Denmark, Hanover, and Hayti; by Viscount Palmerston, who officiated in the unavoidable absence of Earl Russell; and by Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust, K.C.H. The general circle was numerously attended. The following were among the more noticeable presentations in the general circle:—

Earl Beauchamp, by the Earl of St. Germans; Sir Charles Lyell, on being created a Baronet, by Earl Granville; Lieutenant-Colonel Charles G. Gordon, C.B., Royal Engineers, on promotion and return from China, by the Duke of Cambridge; Major Grey, on appointment to the Northumberland Militia, by the Right Hon. Sir George Grey; Colonel Laye, Deputy Judge-Advocate, on appointment, by the Duke of Cambridge; Captain Walrond Clarke, on appointment to her Majesty's Hon. Corps of Gentlemen at Arms, by Lord Foley; Lieutenant H. W. Pitcher, Bengal Staff Corps, on receiving the Victoria Cross, by the Secretary of State for India; Lieutenant-Colonel C. W. Elorall, Volunteer Staff Corps, by Colonel M'Murdo; Lieutenant-Colonel J. Grierson, Volunteer Staff Corps, by Colonel M'Murdo; Ven. William Emery, Archdeacon of Ely, on appointment, by Viscount Palmerston; The Right Hon. John Barrington, Lord Mayor of Dublin, by the Lord Chamberlain; Dr. Priestley, by Sir Charles Locock; Dr. Th. Bernhardt, by the Lord Chamberlain; Mr. Robert W. Keate, on his return from the government of Trinidad, by the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Albert Victor are expected to leave Marlborough House to-day (Saturday) for Sandringham House, where their Royal Highnesses will remain for the Easter holidays.

On Thursday week the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. The Princess, attended by the Countess De Grey, took a drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses gave a dinner in honour of the King of the Belgians. The following were invited to meet his Majesty:—Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg, the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer, Earl Granville, Earl Russell, the Earl of Clarendon, the Earl of Sefton, Countess De Grey and Ripon, Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston, Viscount Hamilton, Lieutenant-General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust, Sir George Grey, Sir Charles Wood, the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, General Count de Moerkerke and Dr. Koëpl, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel.

Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Sutherland, Earl Granville, and Colonel Kingscote, and attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, hunted with his harriers near Slough. His Royal Highness travelled by the half-past ten train from Paddington to Slough, and rode thence to the meet, which took place at Mr. Chater's farm, at Chippenham. The Prince had good sport, and afterwards returned to town. The Princess, attended by the Countess De Grey, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured the St. James's Theatre with their presence.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. Later in the day the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor and attended by the Countess De Grey and Major Grey, left Marlborough House for Windsor Castle, on a visit to the Queen.

On Monday the Prince and Princess, with Prince Albert Victor, returned to Marlborough House from Windsor Castle. Subsequently the prince presided at a meeting of the Governors of Wellington College, at the New Palace of Westminster. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the studio of Sir Edwin Landseer. The Prince attended the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Countess De Grey, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Alfred, honoured the Philharmonic Society's concert with their presence at the Hanover-square Rooms.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, the Duke of Cambridge, the Marquis of Hartington, Lord Alfred Paget, and the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, and attended by Lieutenant-General Knollys, Major Grey, Mr. Fisher, Major Cowell, Lieutenant Haig, and Dr. Bernhardt, inaugurated the great works of the Southern Outfall Sewer of the Main Drainage at Crossness Point. His Royal Highness embarked from Westminster Palace at eleven o'clock on board the Oread. The Prince was received on board by Mr. Thwaites, chairman, Mr. Bazalgette, engineer-in-chief, and by various members of the Metropolitan Board of Works. The Oread stood down the river to Barking, where his Royal Highness inspected one of the main culverts to the reservoirs and one of the reservoirs. The Prince afterwards re-embarked, and crossed to the Erith marshes, where a large and distinguished company had assembled to celebrate the inauguration of this stupendous work. The Prince made a long inspection of every part of the reservoir, and expressed his admiration of the great work. His Royal Highness performed the ceremonial of starting the two pairs of engines, after which the Prince partook of a déjeûner, and returned to town at four o'clock. The Princess, attended by the Countess De Grey, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Alfred, honoured the Princess's Theatre with their presence.

On Wednesday the Prince held a Levée, an account of which is given above. His Royal Highness, accompanied by Prince Alfred, afterwards visited the Queen at Buckingham Palace. The Princes visited the studio of M. Carl Haag, in New Burlington-street. In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured Drury Lane Theatre with their presence. The Princess dined with the Queen at Buckingham Palace.

Sir Robert Montgomery waited upon the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House on Tuesday week and presented to their Royal Highnesses some costly presents from the north-western provinces of India.

Mr. John Parry has had the honour of performing upon the piano and singing at Marlborough House.

Major Grey has succeeded Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

Their Royal Highnesses the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary have left their residence at St. James's Palace for Belvoir Castle, on a visit to the Duke of Rutland.

The Count and Countess d'Eu and the Count de Paris, attended by Baron and Baroness De Leges and by M. Joaquim M. R. Lisboa, arrived on Monday at the Hen and Chickens Hotel, Birmingham.

The Princess de la Tour d'Auvergne, mother of the French Ambassador, has left the French Embassy on her return to Paris.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester have joined the circle visiting Earl and Countess Spencer at Althorp Hall, Northamptonshire.

The Duchess of Somerset and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur will pass the Easter recess at Bulstrode, Buckinghamshire.

Louisa Marchioness of Waterford has left Farrance's Hotel for Ford Castle, Coldstream, N.B.

The Earl and Countess of Derby have left town for Knowsley Park.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston are expected to leave town to-day (Saturday) for Brocket Hall, Herts.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Viscount Chelsea with Lady Beatrice Craven will take place on May 10.

A marriage is arranged between Miss Florence Hogg, daughter of Sir James Weir Hogg, and Mr. George Campbell.

A marriage is also arranged between Miss Florence Pearse and Mr. Charles Stephenson, eldest son of the chairman of the Board of Inland Revenue.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge entertained a select party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at Gloucester House, Piccadilly.

The Duchess of Somerset gave an evening party, on Thursday week, at the residence of the First Lord of the Admiralty, Whitehall.

His Excellency the Turkish Ambassador and Mdme. Musurus had a banquet, on Monday evening, at the Turkish Embassy, in Bryanston-square.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury entertained a distinguished company at dinner, yesterday week, at their residence in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

Viscountess Holmesdale gave her second assembly, yesterday week, at the family residence in Upper Brook-street, Park-lane. The reunion was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Right Hon. Benjamin and Mrs. Disraeli entertained the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale and a distinguished circle at dinner, on Thursday week, at Grosvenor-gate. After dinner, Mrs. Disraeli had an early party, which was attended by various members of the Corps Diplomatique and by a large assemblage of the fashionable world.

The Right Hon. Frederick and Mrs. Peel entertained a select circle at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Chesham-place.

Baron and Baroness Lionel de Rothschild entertained a distinguished party at dinner, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Piccadilly.

Sir Edward Kerrison, Bart., M.P., and Lady Caroline Kerrison entertained a select party at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Piccadilly.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishop of Grahamstown arrived in England on Wednesday week.

The eighth annual festival of parochial choirs in Southwell Minster will take place on Thursday, the 27th inst. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Sir H. W. Baker, Bart.

The Ven. Sir George Prevost, Bart., the new Archdeacon of Gloucester, was formally installed in his cathedral on Saturday week.

Last Saturday the Bishop of Ely preached on the occasion of the opening of a new school at North Benfleet, Essex. The school, which includes a teacher's residence, has been erected, at a cost of near £650, by the exertions of the Rector, the Rev. A. B. Chalker, warmly supported by the parishioners and landowners.

A new ecclesiastical district is being formed in Maidenhead, Berks. It contains a population of about 3000. A handsome church is to be erected; and the Bishop of Oxford has appointed the Rev. J. Climenson, LL.B., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Curate of Wargrave, to the incumbency.

Rennington Church, Alnwick, was opened on Saturday week, after having been restored and enlarged at a cost of more than £600. The money has been entirely raised by voluntary contributions, chiefly through the energy of the Rector, the Rev. W. Cooley.

A silver salver has been presented to the Rev. R. Espinasse, on resigning the curacy of Wickham Bishop, Essex, by the parishioners. The Rev. C. H. Steward has received a silver épergne and candelabrum from the parishioners of Berkswich, on his resigning the curacy.

The long-contemplated new bishopric for New South Wales has been formed, and is to be called the Bishopric of Grafton and Armadale, forming part of the present diocese of Newcastle. The Secretary of State for the Colonies having placed the nomination of a bishop in the hands of the Archbishop of Canterbury, his Grace recommended for the appointment the Rev. John Hodgson Iles, late Fellow of Lincoln College, Oxford. The Oxford Herald states that Mr. Iles has declined the bishopric.

The following preferments and appointments have recently taken place:—Rectories: Rev. E. J. Boyce, Vicar of Godalming, to Houghton, Hants; Rev. T. Campbell, Incumbent of Trinity Church, Belfast, to Finvoy; Rev. J. Davenport to Welford; Rev. W. G. Greene to Holy Trinity, Minories; Rev. J. C. Harkness to Horsemonden; Rev. A. D. C. Thompson to Wormley, Hertfordshire; Rev. C. W. E. Tothill to Tedburn St. Mary, Devon; Rev. R. Harkness, Rector of Sternfield, Suffolk, to St. Giles's, Wimborne. Vicarages: Rev. J. Ellis to St. Eval, Cornwall; Rev. C. Croft Hill to Paull-cum-Thorngumbald, Yorkshire; Rev. H. G. Randall to St. Mary Redcliff, Bristol; Rev. T. Williams to Northop. Incumbencies: Rev. R. J. Adams to Sebergham; Rev. W. Cordall to the new district church, Christ Church, Mayfair; Rev. R. Davies to St. James, Llawry Bettws, Corwen; Rev. E. Ford to King Sterndale, Buxton; G. S. Karney to Christ Church, Carlisle; Rev. W. G. Green, Curate of Staplegrove, Taunton, to St. Trinity, Minories; Rev. N. F. Y. Kemble, Perpetual Curate of Sebergham, to Hesket in the Forest; Rev. W. H. Lewis to Bodelwyddan; Rev. Dr. Stevenson, Vicar of Patrixbourne, to Belgrave Chapel. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. W. Ogden to St. Peter's, Ashton-under-Lyne; Rev. J. T. Walters to Ide, Devon; Rev. C. Tooth to Falfield. Curacies: Rev. A. D'Arblay Burney to St. Luke's, Heywood; Rev. S. Mills to the Albert Memorial Church, Manchester; Rev. J. J. Pickford to Great Gaddesden, Herts; Rev. T. James to Rhosllanerchrugog; Rev. W. W. Martin to St. Mary Magdalene, Taunton; Rev. J. R. Vernon to Cheriton, Kent.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—At Oxford the election to the vacant scholarships at Trinity (for which there were seventeen candidates) has terminated in favour of Mr. M. O. Fitzgerald, commoner of Balliol, and Messrs. Pelham and Fayer. While the Cambridge Senate passed the proposition to include an examination for girls in the local examination scheme by a majority of 56 to 51, the Hebdomadal Board at Oxford have rejected it by a majority of 10 to 8.

At Cambridge, on Saturday, a grace passed the Senate adopting the recommendations of the Syndicate appointed with a view to making the best provision for the convenience of the Professors of Anatomy and Chemistry, by certain alterations in the building known as the Anatomical Schools, at an expense of £925. The University seal was ordered to be affixed to a contract with Messrs. Gray, builders, of Cambridge. Two other graces passed, authorising the construction of hydrants in the vicinity of the Senate House, the Arts-Schools, and the University Library, as a prevention of danger from fire, there being a plentiful supply of water in the neighbourhood by the Cambridge Waterworks Company. The Rev. Churchill Babington, of St. John's, has been elected to the Disneian Professorship of Archæology. The subject for the Adam's prize, for the best essay on some subject of pure mathematics, astronomy, or other branch of natural philosophy, to be adjudged in 1867, is, "A new or improved method of finding by approximation the imaginary roots of a numerical equation of any degree."

Lord Ardmillan was installed, on Tuesday week, as President of the Associated Societies of Edinburgh University, and delivered an address on the occasion. The Lord Advocate occupied the chair, and Professor Aytoun moved the vote of thanks.

The annual examination of candidates for scholarships and exhibitions in Winchester College will commence on Tuesday, July 11, at nine o'clock a.m. Applications for the form of declaration must be made to J. D. Walford, M.A., College-street, Winchester; and to him the required certificates must be sent on or before the 1st of June. The subjects of examination are elementary religious knowledge, English dictation, arithmetic, Latin composition in verse and prose, construing and parsing in Greek and Latin. The scholarships are open to the competition of all boys who have reached their tenth and not completed their fourteenth year. The exhibitions, of annual value of £50, held by commoners, are open to all boys who are under the age of fifteen years, and are tenable during their stay at the school. The probable number of scholarships to be competed for is twelve, that of the exhibitions two.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

WHO would not give something to see a sight which can never be seen again? It is like drinking one glass from the last bottle of "comet" port (how many "last" bottles of that rare old stuff are there?) and emptying the remainder into the Serpentine. It is like getting hold of the last tenore robusto with an ut de poitrine in him, paying him £10,000 to deliver said ut, and then causing him to be bowstrung. It is like commissioning a picture from Sir Edwin, having it engraved by Cousins and photographed by John Watkins, and then burning your picture and your negative, tearing up your print, and smashing your plate. It is like stealing the Koh-i-noor and then grinding it to dust to temper your razors withal.

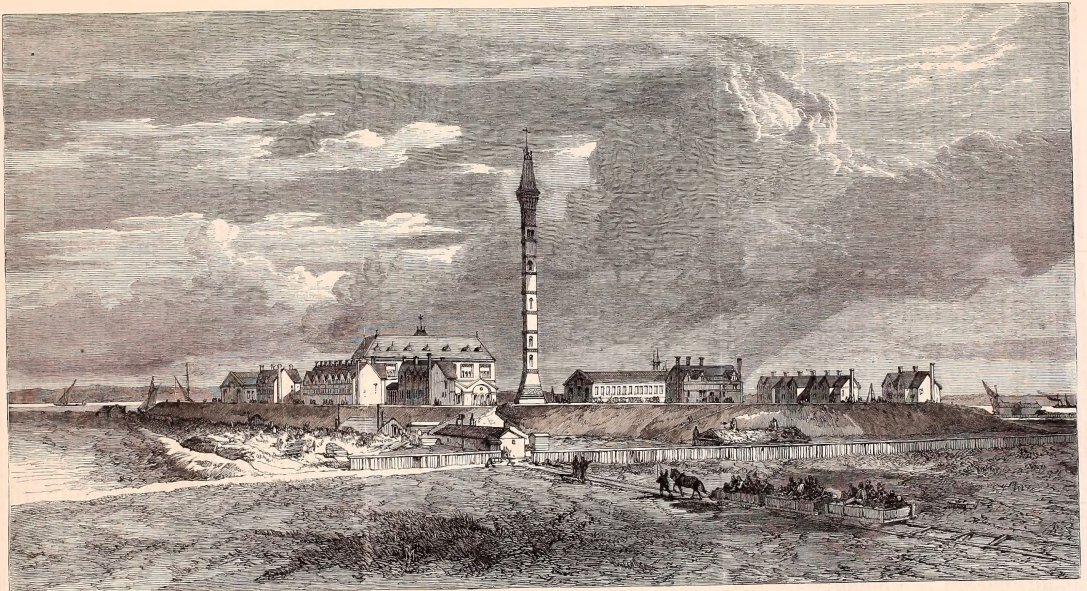
A thousand noblemen and gentlemen—more or less—saw, on Tuesday, at Plumstead, a spectacle which can never be repeated in this age. The very place where they held high festival must remain for aye invisible to all eyes, save those of the mudlark and the sewer-rat. It has been given up to the Malebolgian deities. It beamed for a few short hours in radiance and beauty, and is now all Cimmerian blackness and unutterable nastiness. I saw, on Tuesday, the Duke of Sutherland and Sir Roderick Murchison, Mr. Layard and Mr. Ayrton, Mr. Beresford Hope and Mr. Samuel Smiles, and a throng of peers, bishops, engineers, fellows of the learned societies, aldermen, sheriffs, and common councilmen, walking, dry-footed, over a clean brick parquet which is now the bed of a gigantic lake of sewage.

The Prince of Wales did it all. I don't mean that his Royal Highness found the four millions of money requisite for carrying out the Main Drainage. We, the profane vulgar, did that. I don't mean that he designed it. Mr. Bazalgette was the engineer-in-chief. I don't mean that he built it. Mr. Webster was the contractor, and the work done by his firm alone is said to amount to a million sterling. I don't mean that he organised and superintended the scheme. Mr. Thwaites and the Metropolitan Board of Works looked after those little matters. But I mean that a pressure from his Royal Highness's hand moved certain levers which set the gigantic pumping-engines in motion. It was Albert Edward who, in Yankee parlance, commenced to "run the machine."

I don't think that, since the marriage of the Prince at Windsor, I ever saw so many distinguished men gathered together at one time as at Crossness Point on Tuesday. A most brilliant chapter from the contemporary history of England, with illustrations from living examples, might have been read in the brick shed used as a lecture-hall at the conclusion of Mr. Bazalgette's discourse. Nor should one unconspicuous but very significant personage there present be forgotten. I was standing in one of the Vauxhall-lamp lit crypts of the southern reservoir, scanning a whole Boyle's Court Guide in the flesh strolling by, when I became aware of a man in a clay-soiled jacket, with a crowbar over his shoulder and a pipe in his mouth. He asked me courteously for a light wherewith to kindle his calumet. He was going to do something to a valve or a trap with that crowbar. "Oh, man with the crowbar!" I thought, "you are an entity. Oh, man with the short pipe! you are master of the situation. From your strong hands this marvel came. You did it all." The contractors had on this occasion very gracefully acknowledged the claims of the "proletarians"—the honest sons of hard labour. A tribune had been erected specially for their accommodation on the wharf. There they were, thick as peas, in fustian, and canvas, and corduroy; and, as the Prince landed, they greeted him with round after round of the heartiest British cheers. The Lords and Commons beneath have a gallery; and it is a very good thing that we cannot get on them were the boxes and pit; they were the gallery. We must without it.

The Prince looked very happy and handsome on Tuesday; but Prince Alfred was somewhat pale, and did not appear altogether at his ease. The Duke of Cambridge was, as usual, robust and jovial; but so very unstudied was his dress that, if the expression be not disloyal, it might be said that H.R.H. the Commander-in-Chief was rather "seedy" in apparel. It was a sight for sore eyes to see the expression of resigned boredom which came over Lord Alfred Paget's good-humoured countenance as he leant his head on his hand and listened to Mr. Bazalgette dilating over the drainage diagrams, and to watch how the burly Clerk Marshal brightened up at luncheon-time. It was a very capital luncheon. There was much turtle, and Messrs. Ring and Brymer did their very best. The Bishop of Oxford looked in remarkably good case; his Grace of Canterbury was quite lively and chirping; his Grace of York looked solid and somewhat awful, as a logician should do; and the Bishop of London looked in pain, as that good prelate always does.

Here are five paragraphs about the main drainage, mais cela n'en vaut il pas la peine? as Citizen Danton remarked when he bade the executioner hold his head up to the people after decapitation. I will bid good-by, however, to the sewers proper, to touch on a somewhat cognate subject: a pestilence aggravated, if not altogether induced, by the absence of a good system of drainage. An awful epidemic has been slowly but surely travelling, like Eugene Sue's Wandering Jew, from the far end of Siberia, through the huge Russian empire. The destroyer has decimated Moscow, where the hospitals have been found all too few, and the people have died off like sheep with the rot, and is now ravaging St. Petersburg. The north and the west of Europe may look tremblingly for the terrible visitor; but the well-drained cities may defy him. Woe betide the dirty ones! Is this epidemic the plague—the old original enemy? The doctors are disagreeing thereanent. Some say it is Asiatic cholera; others, a malignant form of typhus, and that, I take it, is the correct hypothesis. Given a malarious condition of the atmosphere, and foster it with bad drainage, filthy houses, filthier personal habits, and a miserably low diet—the Russian peasantry live chiefly on rye-bread, cabbage-soup, and salted cucumbers—and you have your pestilence ready to your hand.



I am glad to see that in the approaching exhibition of the Academy there will be a picture by Mr. Brooks, called "The Parson's Work"—the parish clergyman announcing (as it is the custom in the eastern counties to do) to a poor woman the death of her husband by drowning. He who makes the sad announcement is thus most fitted to administer consolation. Mr. Brooks is, doubtless, indebted for his subject to a very beautiful poem, under the same title, by the late Robert B. Brough, who has left, by-the-way, many more exquisite lyrics, in every way suited to pictorial illustration. I may mention, among others, "Dr. Johnson, a Fairy Tale;" the "Story from Boccaccio," and "The Tentmaker's Story." But when I see coupled with the on dit about Mr. Brooks's picture another to the effect that we are to have, from Mr. Marcus Stone, a picture called "The Auto da Fé"—a young lady burning love-letters, I am, I confess, puzzled. There must be some mistake. Why, a photograph from a French picture, with the self-same title, and representing a young lady engaged in the same occupation, has been common in all the London print shops these twenty months past. Mr. Marcus Stone is one of the most promising painters of the age. He can surely have no need to translate his picture, as our dramatists do their pieces, from the French.

Messrs. Day and Son have republished their sumptuous "Grammar of Ornament," that glowing volume of gold and gems which, with the "Alhambra," will form the two grand quarterings in Mr. Owen Jones's achievement of arms. I mention this, because I think that to Owen Jones the country owes in matters of taste and harmony an almost incalculable debt. There is not a music-hall, a railway station, there is scarcely a shop-window or a washhand jug and basin, but is in some measure suggestive of the reform brought about in decorative art by this good master, when he first applied a few streaks of colour to the trusses and girders of the Great Exhibition. In a score of sumptuous edifices since erected we see how his principles have been applied; in the "Grammar of Ornament" we have the immutable principles, with countless examples, laid down.

Where, a' goodness name, is the deluge of novel-writing to stop? Mr. Anthony Trollope seems to be bringing out a three-volume fiction about once a month; and Miss Annie Thomas has positively published two novels in one week—the present one. Messrs. Tinsley have published "Theo Leigh," and Messrs. Chapman and Hall emit "On Guard" simultaneously. After all, we are glad to see the ladies writing more and more novels, even if they write rubbish—an accusation I am very far from bringing against dashing and sparkling Miss Thomas. The world of fiction is the El Dorado of clever and well-educated women of the middle classes. It has saved many from the grim Siberia of governessing.

OUR IRON-CLAD FLEET: H.M.S. MINOTAUR, BUILT ON THE THAMES.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE METROPOLITAN MAIN DRAINAGE: GENERAL VIEW OF THE SOUTHERN OUTFALL WORKS AT CROSSNESS.—SEE PAGE 335.

OUR IRON-CLAD FLEET.—THE MINOTAUR AND AGINCOURT.

THE new ship Minotaur, built by the Thames Ironworks Company at Blackwall, was delivered complete into the possession of the Lords of the Admiralty a few days ago. This ship is one of a class larger than the Warrior, and carrying thirty-six instead of twenty-six protected guns, with armour-plates 5½ in. thick instead of 4½ in. like those of the Warrior, but with only 10 in. of teak backing, whereas the Warrior has a backing of 18 in. The Agincourt, which was floated on Monday week from the building-yard of Messrs. Laird, at Birkenhead, is another of the same class. These vessels are of 6621 tons burden; they are no less than 400 ft. long by 59 ft. beam, and are propelled by screw-engines of 1350 (nominal) horse power.

The Minotaur is built on the ram system, having what is termed the swan-breasted beak protruding under water. The stem of this portion, which would have to resist the first blow of the shock, is a most gigantic forging, as is also the stern frame. Every part of the vessel is of iron, even to the spar deck, though the planking here, which is about three quarters of an inch thick is, of course, covered with wood. Every part of the hull is divided into longitudinal and transverse water-tight compartments, which not only ensure her safety in case of accident from below the water-line, but add immensely to the stiffness of the whole hull, which is virtually made by these means one huge hollow wrought-iron girder of immense strength. There is also a riveted wrought-iron skin within the backing behind the armour-plates, and this, being continued over the inner keel, forms a double bottom, which, in case of a vessel of such great weight taking the ground, would be of the greatest service. The armour-plates along all parts of the broadside, from the edge of the spar deck to 5 ft. below the water-line, are all of ¼ in. thickness, of the best rolled iron, made by the Thames Ironworks Company. For about 30 ft., at the extreme ends of the ship, the thickness of the plating is reduced, to give the buoyancy which she will assuredly much need. At the stern the thickness is little more than 2 in., while under the counter at the stern it is no more than ½ in. The number of ports on each side is eighteen, of which two on each side amidships are for Armstrong 300-pounders. All the portholes are made on the improved principle, and are very narrow, while the clear height of the midship portsill from the water is no less than 10 ft.—a foot higher than in the Warrior. An important addition has been made to the ship since she was laid down, in the shape of a poop and topgallant forecastle. The poop gives ample space for the cabins necessary for an admiral and staff, thus fitting the ship for a flagship, which the arrangements of the earlier ironclads did not admit of. The forecastle, being plated in front with armour-plates, forms a kind of breastwork, to prevent the upper deck being raked by an enemy's fire, and also gives room for two large guns, which can be trained in a line with the keel, and will be most useful as bow-chasers. The ship is to have five instead of three masts. All these masts are of iron, and of nearly the same height, which detracts somewhat from the beauty of the vessel's "rig" upon the water. Four of the masts are square-rigged, the aftermost mizen having fore-and-aft sails only. The engines, by Mr. Penn, are of 1300-horse power (nominal) and are capable of working up to an indicated power more than 8000 horses. The armament will be put on board at Sheerness. The trial of the ship will take place very shortly, when her speed will be fully tested.

The launch of the Agincourt at Birkenhead took place in the presence of about 30,000 spectators, who crowded every available site. The ceremony of naming was performed by Mrs. John Laird; and, punctual to a minute, the immense hull of the Agincourt, with nearly all the machinery on board, the immense hull of the Agincourt, with nearly all the machinery on board, was slowly but surely undocked, with the assistance of six powerful steam-tugs—viz., the Cruiser, Sea King, Iron King, Blazer, Hercules, and Emperor. The scene, as the Agincourt emerged from the dock, was one of great animation; and a round of cheers, mingled with a thundering salute of twenty-one guns by Laird's Artillery Volunteers, from the esplanade in front of the works, welcomed the floating of one of the most powerful vessels of war ever constructed. The vessel was hauled out stern foremost, and, as soon as she was clear of the dock and pier, she was taken in tow by the head by the tugs Emperor and Hercules; the other tugs lying respectively on the starboard and larboard quarters. The vessel was then towed safely round to the south side of the Morpeth Dock, where she will be completely equipped, and, it is expected, will be ready for sea in about two months.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

In a popular assembly constituted as is the House of Commons it is not easy to manage a mournful ceremonial. The very best and most significant device which has been conceived to mark the sense of the House of any sad event in which it is concerned is an adjournment; a proceeding which, though it is intended to indicate that members as a body are unequal, from emotion, to carry on ordinary business, is yet in itself wholly without outward and visible sign. It will often happen, too, that the motion for adjournment is postponed until after some formal business has been disposed of, and things go on in their normal sing-song fashion at a time when everyone is wishing for still solemnity. Thus it was on Monday evening, when those who assembled in the House of Commons knew that notice would be taken of the passing away of one of its foremost members. It was felt to be an impossibility that the death of Mr. Cobden should pass without formal and peculiar notice, and it was supposed that the House would pay to his memory the most immediate and, in a certain sense, its highest tribute, by adjourning for that evening. It was singular to observe that the House was almost left alone to a small group of gentlemen collected below the gangway, on the Ministerial side, of whom Mr. Bright was the centre, and who looked pale and sad, but also anxious, as if they were doubtful of the course which would be pursued in regard to the event which to them was all-absorbing. It seemed as if there was a desire to spare them the murmur and the subdued hubbub which always goes on between four and half-past, and, as it were, to leave them alone with their sorrow. Still, however, the monotonous interchange of technicalities went on between the Speaker and the clerks at the table, disturbing the comparatively silent atmosphere of the house by its recurrence and vexing the ears of those whose faculties were wrought up by expectation of something of deep interest. Almost at once, but yet very quietly, the house was quite filled at half-past four, by which time a few questions had still to be asked and some returns to be moved for; and it seemed as if the Speaker dallied with what he had to do, and delayed as long as possible from calling on the orders of the day, as after they had been launched, unless by some very violent infringement of rule, no extraordinary proceeding could have been allowed to interfere with the normal business of the House. The reason of this was, that although all the leaders of the Opposition, and all the most notable members of the Government were in their places, and showing by their demeanour a sympathy with that for which the House was waiting, Lord Palmerston was absent. Murmurs might have been heard, perhaps; and certainly there was many a thought that on such an occasion he might have contrived to have spared ten minutes, so as to have been in his seat at the time when public business commences. When he entered there was a ghost, a phantom, of a cheer, which might have been interpreted into a slight expression of impatience. When he sat down, the very last matter which interposed between the orders of the day was being disposed of; and everyone expected that he would at once, and with alacrity, have presented himself to the House; but there was a pause, during which Mr. Gladstone poured an earnest whisper into his ear, at the close of which he rose. In the main, no fault could be found with his speech; though it did sound odd that, in his very first sentences, he should, as it were, enter a "caveat" against any supposition that he had ceased to think of Mr. Cobden as an opponent—almost a personal opponent. It is impossible, however, for Lord Palmerston to do anything of this kind without doing it well; his faculty of seizing and exhibiting the salient points of any subject would not be likely to fail him at a moment when a hushed and interested audience, in some sense representing the listening civilised world, was in rapt attention before him. Accordingly, he sketched well the character and merits of him whose loss he was calling on mankind to deplore; and though it would be difficult to say that he was at any time spontaneous or emotional, yet he warmed up towards the end of his speech, and left little to be desired when he sat down, except that he did not move the adjournment of the House.

On those occasions, hitherto, when Mr. Disraeli has had to take part in mortuary tributes, his failure has been most conspicuous. Now, however, he was equal to the situation; he did not put his voice into mourning, by adopting that subdued whine which on former occasions he has thought appropriate; but in manly and impressive tones, and in language which, if a thought too nicely balanced, was yet sufficiently free and flowing, and, with a demeanour marked by gravity and exactly such an amount of feeling as he might well be supposed to experience, he delivered a speech which was most fitting and effective to the occasion, and which, coming as it did from a political opponent, was welcomed most heartily by Mr. Cobden's more immediate friends about the gangway, and received with loud approval by the rest of the House. Here a word may be said of the incongruity which was apparent when the most mournful expressions were followed by loud cheers. There is no help for it; there is no other mode of pronouncing emotion by the House as a body. If it is angry, it cheers; if it is pleased, it cheers; if it is saddened, it cheers. A word or two only on the part which Mr. Bright took in this matter. He had nerved himself for what, no doubt, he felt to be a great duty—that of witnessing the mode in which the House of Commons received the formal intelligence of Mr. Cobden's death. He could not but feel that all had been done which even he could have wished; and the impulse to acknowledge that he was satisfied caused him to rise and attempt to speak at a moment when he was utterly unfit for anything but sorrowful communing with his own heart and stillness in his own chamber; so he sunk beneath his passionate emotion, and, in the bitterness of his sorrow, wept aloud. The first sentences of Sir Morton Peto's speech, who followed, carried a supposition that he was about to prolong a scene which had become too painful and reached a point at which it was very desirable that it should cease; but, happily, he diverged immediately into the subject of the constitution of the Board of Admiralty, on which he had a motion, and in a few minutes a dozen or so of members were left to keep up the form of proceeding with the ordinary business of the evening.

The end of that night was in curious contrast to its beginning. All through a long dreary sitting the naval reformers went jangling on, delighting themselves individually, but probably not each other, and endeavouring to overcome the indomitable patience of Lord Clarence Paget and the imperturbable good humour and good sense of Mr. Childers; having everything their own way; lording it supremely over a world of empty benches, and stopping the votes in Committee at their good pleasure; the period of the year being the first week in April; the time when the Navy Estimates are usually passed being the first week in March. At the hour that Mr. Peel adventured to slip in a little demand for a couple of millions or so on account of the Civil Service Estimates, in order to keep the clerks in the public offices going until the next quarter day, there had been attained a slight infusion of the gentlemen who had been out to dinner. When this admixture takes place it is to be observed that a certain combination of colours, arising from redness of face and whiteness of cravat, is to be taken as the signal for close action. At that juncture gentlemen want particularly to know what is going on, and why, and are rather inept to understand Ministerial explanations, and, consequently, they get very angry and personal, and there is a row. This time, among others, Lord Robert Cecil was particularly indisposed to let any sum be taken on account unless he was assured that the whole vote might hereafter be challenged and, if necessary, eliminated from the Estimates. The noble Lord, the member for Stamford, is always peremptory, but now he was despotic; he flavoured the usual "Sauce Robert" peculiarly high, and thought to crush the quiet and soft-looking Mr. Dodson, the chairman of Committees, with little or no trouble. But he caught a Tartar, for Mr. Dodson showed blood, and pluckily stood upon his dignity, backing it up by prompt production and emphatic reading of standing orders, which had the effect of reducing the loud, imperative tones of his aggressor to a low, defiant murmur of his intention to assert the power of a minority to obstruct the progress of any business. There was a peculiarly appreciative chuckle in the way in which Lord Palmerston, having first rebuked the spirit of mutiny—to an official neophyte whose position entitled him to consideration—which had been displayed, said, in effect, he was too experienced in cases like the present to be so injudicious as to attempt to reason with the obstructives, and he would be content to wait until they had slept off their ill humour. It was the advice of a conscript father, and probably those to whom it was addressed winced under it.

North Warwickshire is in an unpleasant position in the House. Hitherto, the ultra-Protestantism of Mr. Newdegate has been received with gentle consideration, on account of his high personal character and palpable honesty of purpose. Recent circumstances have, however, tended rather to weaken the position which he occupied, and to cause some withdrawal of the forbearance with which he has always been treated. One night, when he brought forward, in a controversial form, a question as to whether the Pope had been invited to, or could be allowed to, take up his residence in England, there was a positive demonstration, half jocular half indignant, against Mr. Newdegate; and, in its peculiar way, the House signified that it would not for the future be so patient with him as has been its wont. The warning was most significant. The other member for North Warwickshire, the successor of Mr. Spooner, seems to think that it is necessary that a member for that county should have a mission. Accordingly, Mr. Davenport Bromley has taken up the subject of refuges for the houseless poor; and, at an impossible hour of the morning a little while since, delivered himself of his ideas on that question. With singular perversion, he seems to have conceived his opinions and marshalled his facts from a comic point of view, and he contrived to state the woes and sufferings and hardships and injuries of the class for whom he was pleading, amidst continuous laughter, not unconsciously elicited, but produced from what sounded very much like prepared comicalities of expression. It would seem also that this hon. member, in adapting himself for his senatorial duties, has gone through a severe study of the Parliamentary orations of Burke, and with curious infelicity seized on probably the single attempt at illustration of that statesman which was ridiculous. Forgetting the bathos which was the result of the sudden production of a dagger at a climax of declamation, Mr. Bromley copied this "coup" of Mr. Burke, at a ludicrous distance, by taking out of his pocket, at what he conceived was a critical moment, a piece of bread, alleging it to be a facsimile of that which composed the supper of the guests of the refuges. Apart from the singularity, not to say absurdity, of the action, it was not quite fair as an illustration, because, as the piece of bread had probably been lurking in the hon. member's pocket from five o'clock in the evening till half-past one the next morning, it could hardly be taken to be then an accurate representation of the mild dietary of the refuges. Again it may be said North Warwickshire is not in the ascendant in the house just now.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Monday.

The Private Bill Costs Bill and the Consolidated Fund (£15,000,000) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The East India High Court Bill and the Drainage and Improvement of Lands (Ireland) Provisional Orders Confirmation Bill were read a second time.

The Marine Mutiny Bill and the Mutiny Bill passed through Committee.

The sitting was principally occupied by a discussion of the Public Schools Bill, the object of which is to carry out the recommendations of the Royal Commission which had inquired into the state of our public schools. The bill met with a strong opposition, but was ultimately read a second time, the Committee being appointed for the 2nd of May.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Monday.

Mr. Acland took the oaths and his seat for North Devon, in the room of Mr. Buller, deceased.

The Prisons (Scotland) Act Amendment Bill was read a second time.

The Small Benefices Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed.

Lord Elcho obtained leave to bring in a bill to provide for the management and maintenance of turnpike and statute-labour roads and bridges in Scotland.

Sir M. Peto called the attention of the House to the constitution and administration of the Board of Admiralty, which he contended were defective in many important respects, and suggested various alterations. Lord C. Paget replied to the hon. member, and a long debate, in which Sir J. Pakington and Sir J. Elphinstone took part, ensued.

THE DEATH OF MR. COBDEN.

On the motion for going into Committee of Supply, Lord Palmerston said, it was impossible for the House to have this motion put and to dwell upon it without being conscious of the great loss which they and the country had sustained by the death of Mr. Cobden. However anyone might have differed from him, no one ever doubted the sincerity and honesty of his purpose, which was directed only to the good of his country. Now it was only his great services which could be thought of, and all difference of opinion must sink into oblivion. The theory of free trade, which had been established by Adam Smith, had been reduced to practice by the untiring industry, the indomitable energy of mind, and by the forcible, Demosthenic eloquence of Mr. Cobden, aided by a band of able associates, amongst whom must be included Mr. Villiers and the late Sir Robert Peel. He conferred an inestimable benefit on his country by his labours; but, great as was his ability and success, the disinterestedness of his character was still more conspicuous. He was a man of great ambition; but his ambition was to do good to his country. When the present Government was formed Mr. Cobden was offered office, but he declined, on the ground that all his opinions were not in unison with those of its head. No one could come in contact with Mr. Cobden without feeling for him the greatest respect and esteem. After the transaction of the Treaty of Commerce, it was his (Lord Palmerston's) duty to offer to Mr. Cobden, as a mark of the sense entertained of his services, a baronetcy and the rank of Privy Councillor; but still, with his invariable disinterestedness, he declined. The country had sustained a loss which it would be difficult to repair; for Mr. Cobden was a public man singularly emblematical of the working of the Constitution of the country, and his name would ever be engraved on the most interesting pages of history, and it was certain that the country would feel that it had lost one of its brightest ornaments.

Mr. Disraeli, having been a member of the House during Mr. Cobden's Parliamentary career, could not reconcile it to himself to be silent when a name so distinguished was before the House. Though it was Mr. Cobden's lot to enter public life when passions ran high, yet when the strife was over the gentler qualities of his character asserted themselves, and he ever seemed to be influenced by feelings which sprang unconsciously from a reverence for the past. What his powers were as a member of Parliament were well known; they presented a combination of logical clearness and apt illustration, while his imagination pervading all enabled him to address himself to the sympathies of those to whom he spoke. In the transaction of great affairs—especially in the conducting of the commercial treaty with France—he displayed all the higher qualities of a statesman. The present Parliament had been peculiarly marked by the loss of some of its greatest members; but, although they were in a sense lost, their influence would always remain with the House; and amongst them the name of Mr. Cobden would be remembered as the purest specimen of statesmanship which the middle class had produced, while he must always be held to have been an ornament to the House and an honour to the country.

Mr. Bright, with much emotion, said that the present moment was too near to that scene in which he had witnessed the passing away of one of the kindest and purest spirits that ever breathed for him to be able to express what he felt; but he hoped to have some other opportunity of pointing out to some portion of his countrymen the lesson which was to be gathered from the life of him who had passed away. After a close friendship of many years, he never knew how much he loved him until he had lost him.

THE NAVY ESTIMATES.

The House went into Committee of Supply on the Navy Estimates, beginning with £175,957 for the Admiralty office, which was agreed to; as were £284,395 for Coastguard Naval Reserve and Naval Coast Volunteers; £7062 for scientific branch, and £37,332 for establishments abroad.

Mr. Peel moved a vote of £1,748,000 on account of Civil Service Estimates. A protracted discussion ensued, in which the proceeding with the vote was seriously contested, ending in a motion to report progress being agreed to.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Tuesday.

The Lord Chancellor gave notice that he should proceed with the Bill for the Concentration of Courts of Justice on Friday, the 28th inst.

Lord Granville, in reply to a question from the Bishop of Oxford, said our agents in Russia had been instructed to collect and publish all the information they could obtain respecting the terrible plague which is now travelling westward.

The Bank of Ireland Bill was read a second time.

The East India High Courts Bill passed through Committee.

The Marine Mutiny Bill and the Mutiny Bill were read a third time and passed, as also was the Drainage and Land Improvement (Ireland) Provisional Orders Confirmation Bill.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Tuesday.

The Speaker took the chair at four o'clock; but, forty members not being present, an adjournment immediately took place.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Wednesday.

The Land Debentures (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee with some alterations and omissions.

The bill to repeal an Act of Anne relating to tories, robbers, and rapparees in Ireland was, after a short discussion, read a second time.

The Inclosure Bill was read a third time and passed without debate.

The Criminal Cases Evidence Bill, second reading, was postponed.

The Court of Chancery (Ireland) Bill, to provide for salaries, retired allowances, and stamps, passed through Committee.

The following private bills were read a third time and passed:—Bath Gas, Folkestone Gas, Gosport Gas, Great Eastern Railway (Capital, &c.), Great Northern Railway (Hornsey and Hertford Branch); London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway (St. Leonards Line and Deviations); Newport Pagnell Railway, Winchester Water and Gas.

The Lords' amendments on the Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill were considered, and ultimately the decision was postponed.

The report of Supply was brought up and agreed to.

The Locomotives on Roads Bill was read a second time.

The Metropolitan Houseless Poor Bill passed through Committee. The measure was, however, amended, after some discussion, by the introduction of a fresh clause to enable the police to provide temporary relief for "any destitute wayfarer, wanderer, foundling, or other destitute person not having committed or being charged with any offence punishable by law within the knowledge of a constable." To this Mr. Bromley wished to make the following addition:—"That from the passing of this Act every police-station within the metropolitan district shall be constituted an office for the issuing of orders of admission for persons requiring the same into the casual ward of the workhouse of the district in which the said police station is situated." The proposition was negatived without a division. The bill was also made permanent in its operation, instead of being limited to one year.

A new writ was ordered for the election of a member for South Shropshire, in the place of Lord Newport, now Earl of Bradford.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Thursday.

The Whitechapel and Holborn Improvement Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Lord Chancellor introduced a bill for the amendment of the law regulating the registration of land in Ireland. The bill proposed to give the Landed Estates Court in Ireland the same power as the English Courts possessed so far as they were enabled to continue the record. The noble Lord promised to explain the provisions of the bill more particularly on the motion for the second reading. The bill was read a first time.

The Bank of Ireland Bill and the East India High Courts Bill were read a third time and passed.

Lord Redesdale moved that no private bill brought from the House of Commons should be read a second time after Thursday, the 29th of June next.—Agreed to.

Private Bill Costs Bill.—Lord Houghton moved the third reading of this bill.—The Duke of Cleveland moved an amendment to the bill, providing that, in case a landowner opposed a bill for the protection of his own interests, he should not be liable to pay costs.—The Lord Chancellor approved of such an amendment, but thought an addition to it should be made providing that, if the landowner was found to be simply the cover of a rival railway company, the opposition should be deemed vexatious and the opposer liable to costs.—The Duke of Cleveland adopted the proposal made by the Lord Chancellor.—Lord Houghton saw no objection to the amendment.—After some conversation, it was agreed that the amendment be made, with the addition as proposed by the Lord Chancellor. The bill as amended was then read a third time and passed.

The East India (Governor General's Powers, &c.) Bill was read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—Thursday.

Colonel Bourne took the oaths and his seat for Evesham, in the room of Sir H. Willoughby, deceased.

Wimbledon-common Bill.—Lord Bury moved the second reading of this bill, the object of which was to inclose a portion of the 1000 acres comprising Wimbledon-common, with a view of dedicating 688 acres to the use of the public, including the Rifle Association and the volunteers generally. Lord Spencer, who was the lord of the manor, was the chief promoter of this scheme.—In the course of a discussion which ensued, Mr. Cox moved, as an amendment, that the bill be read a second time that day six months.—Mr. Drax seconded the amendment.—Mr. Lowe thought there was danger of injustice being done in this matter. Earl Spencer was the owner in fee simple of Wimbledon-common, subject to certain common law rights. There was no doubt that he could shut up the whole space to-morrow, but the noble Lord proposed voluntarily to surrender 688 acres to the public benefit, with a view to inclosing the rest.—Mr. Alderman Rose said the rights of Earl Spencer were very questionable. All the rights proved before the Committee which sat to inquire into the open spaces of the metropolis and its neighbourhood were the taking of gravel, feeding cattle, and cutting turf. The noble Earl however, now proposed by the present bill to inclose, build, and absolutely to appropriate 300 acres of the land of Wimbledon-common.—Mr. Cowper supported the motion for a second reading, although not on the principle of "never looking a gift-horse in the mouth;" but he thought the more the proposal of Earl Spencer was investigated the better it appeared.—The amendment was negatived without a division, and the bill was read a second time.

Colonial Bishops.—Mr. Cardwell, in reply to Mr. H. Seymour, said that the patents of the Colonial Bishops were undergoing a careful examination with a view to a case being submitted to the law officers of the Crown on the subject of their jurisdiction.

The New Disease in Russia.—Sir J. Pakington inquired whether the attention of her Majesty's Government has been directed to the disease now prevailing in Russia, and some parts of Prussia, and whether the Government propose to take any steps to ascertain the true nature of the disease and to avert its introduction into this country?—Sir G. Grey said, on receiving the first intimation of the existence of the disease referred to, the Government immediately sent out instructions to Sir A. Buchanan to make strict inquiries and to report at once on its origin, nature, and progress. The right hon. gentleman read telegrams, some of them received that very day, from St. Petersburg, Berlin, Copenhagen, Dantzic, Königsberg, and other places, from which it appeared that there was not so much danger as was at first apprehended, either from a spreading of the pestilence or from its virulence and operation.

THE DEFENCES OF CANADA.

Lord Elcho moved for copies of papers and extracts of correspondence relative to the proposed Canadian defences, and the share of the total cost which was to be respectively borne by Canada and the United Kingdom. The noble Lord urged the importance of some precise understanding being arrived at on so important a subject, out of which so much ill-feeling might arise. He quoted from the Canadian newspapers and from speeches made in the Parliament of that colony to show the ideas entertained by the people of Canada as to the extent of aid which they should receive from the Imperial Government, and from which it appeared that much more was anticipated than England had hitherto thought of doing. The general opinion entertained by the people was that the utmost they could raise was ten millions of dollars, which would be equivalent, in proportion to our resources, to our raising at home £100,000,000 for war purposes. It was, therefore, important to ascertain and decide precisely what this country could and could not do. The defence of Canada was not so much a question of military tactics as of common-sense. It was evident that England could not defend 2,500,000 of the Canadian population at a distance of 4000 miles against a nation with great resources, whose territory abutted on the unprotected country. The best thing for us to do was to defend Quebec and Halifax, the former as a spot to retire to if necessary. He could not think that England would enter into any works of elaborate defence, the result of which it was impossible to foresee. Nothing could be more disastrous than to allow the Canadians to imagine that this country would defend them entirely against oppression, and thus make their own soil the battle-field.

Sir J. Hay, in seconding the motion, said he thought it useless for us to attempt anything in Canada unless it was gone about at once, with energy and determination.

In the course of the debate which ensued, Mr. Cardwell said he objected to the production of the papers asked for, seeing that a deputation of four members of the Canadian Legislature were now on their way to this country to confer with the Home Government. He deprecated the continuance of the discussion under these circumstances. The deputation from Canada would, of course, be received by her Majesty's Government in the same spirit as that in which their mission was designed.

The debate, however, was continued some time longer.

Lord Elcho, having explained, withdrew his motion.

Supply.—The House then went into Committee of Supply upon the Army Estimates, which occupied the consideration of the hon. members from eleven o'clock until the adjournment.

The Confederate cruiser Shenandoah has been in Australian waters. On the 23rd of February she was anchored off King's Island, not far from Melbourne.

The total expenses of the county courts in England and Wales in the year ending March 31, 1864, were £250,643. Of this sum the salaries of the judges, amounting to £75,633, were paid out of the Consolidated Fund, as was also a sum of £9000 for compensations. The remainder was met by a grant from Parliament.

We learn by telegram from Lisbon that the American Minister has demanded satisfaction for the firing upon the Niagara and Sacramento by the Portuguese forts after the Federal vessels had signalled that they understood the first signal from the fort. He also requests the dismissal of the Governor of Fort Belem, and a salute of twenty-one guns to the American flag. Madrid papers state that the Portuguese Government has complied with these demands.

The following is the programme of the Prince of Wales Yacht Club for the season of 1865:—Opening trip, Thursday, April 13—Blackwall, 3 p.m.; dinner at the Pier Hotel, Erith, at 6 p.m. First match, Saturday, May 20, for yachts of fifteen tons and under; open to all yacht clubs; prizes, £25 and £10 in plate; one minute time allowance; course, Erith to the Chapman and back; entries close May 16, at the Freemasons' Tavern. Second match, Tuesday, July 18, for yachts belonging to the club.——The ocean race of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, from Sheerness to Harwich, has been altered from June 14 to Monday, June 12, the former date clashing with Ascot race meeting.

THE MAGAZINES.

The Cornhill of this month has enjoyed the singular honour of being seized at Paris, on account of a review of the "Life of Cæsar" which has offended august susceptibilities. It is unnecessary to dilate on the shabbiness of this proceeding, or the undignified irritability it betrays. To silence discussion while affecting to invite it is a measure which Cæsar would have disdained, but which is quite in the spirit of that degenerate successor who descended into the arena to fight with those gladiators only whose swords had been blunted for the occasion. The article that has called forth this arbitrary proceeding is by no means unfavourable; indeed, there is so little for Imperial vanity to quarrel with that it is difficult to conjecture the cause of the prohibition. Possibly the Emperor feels by this time a little ashamed of having indirectly compared himself to Julius Cæsar, and is annoyed at the indiscreet prominence given here to this breach of modesty and good taste. "A Reminiscence of Cardinal Wiseman" is very disappointing, containing nothing new except a solitary venture of the Cardinal into the regions of poetry. It is strange how little the acquaintances of remarkable men are usually able to recollect concerning them. "The Devils of Morzine" is a very interesting account of an extraordinary outbreak of imaginary demoniacal possession which has for the last eight years raged in a Savoyard valley. Isolated cases of this malady are not very uncommon in ignorant and superstitious countries, particularly Abyssinia. Kerner has described two or three cases which have fallen under his own observation, all among peasants of the Roman Catholic religion. In this case, however, the complaint is epidemic, as witchcraft was in Sweden in the seventeenth century. Half the inhabitants seem to have been prostrated, exorcism has been utterly powerless, and even medical science effected little for their relief till the worst cases were removed to asylums, and soldiers brought up for the double purpose of enlivening and overawing the inhabitants. This had the effect of checking the epidemic. The writer fully accepts the facts, but offers no solution. When it is considered that the first sufferer was a girl preparing for her communion, and that the demons (inconsistently enough) reviled the Liberals, and recommended spiritual measures for their own expulsion, we think there can be little doubt that the affair was, in the first instance, got up by the priests. It was intended to repeat the La Salette comedy, mutatis mutandis; but the inhabitants took the matter seriously, and their abject terror soon got beyond the control of the contrivers of the juggle. "Nurses Wanted" is a vigorous essay on a subject of great public concern, in which we seem to recognise the elastic pen of Miss Martineau. "Hearts of Oak" is a pleasing sketch of the ways of those who go down to the deep in colliers; and "Shop," a light, discursive paper of a kind familiar to the readers of this miscellany. "Armadale" is much better this month—an improvement doubly welcome as token of a corresponding recovery on the author's part. "Wives and Daughters" continues sunny, amusing, and distinguished by the nicest feminine observation. We only hope that it will not be allowed to run to too great a length.

Excessive length has been so much a characteristic of the stories in Macmillan that we are by no means sorry to chronicle the termination of both, excellent as each has been of its kind. Their places are to be occupied by the authoress of "The Heir of Redclyffe,"—whom we shall be glad to see attempting a higher flight of composition than habitual with her—and Mr. R. D. Blackmore, a name hitherto unknown to us. The most interesting paper is that called forth by the Hon. Grantley Berkeley's recent detail of his electioneering experiences; and no wonder, seeing that it is chiefly made up of extracts from his book. More credit redounds to the periodical from Mr. Horace Waller's notes of his African travels with Bishop Mackenzie's mission. They are picturesque, distinguished by deep and right feeling, and painfully interesting where there is any reference to the slave trade. Professor Goldwin Smith's remarks on the probabilities of war with America are sound, but have mostly been anticipated by the press. Miss Rossetti's verses on Spring have her usual originality of thought and richness of colouring.

The most remarkable paper in a very good number of Fraser is that entitled "The Court of Rome, its Parties and its Men," evidently written by some one having access to special sources of information. It professes to disclose the secret history of the late encyclical, which, according to the writer, was neither a bonâ fide condemnation of the heresies specified, nor yet a public defiance of the convention between France and Italy; but was really intended as a rebuke to the Roman Catholic Powers on which the Pope had relied for assistance, but which had disappointed his expectations by pleading the modern political doctrine of non-intervention. It is certainly true that the principle in question figures among the errors denounced in the encyclical; and, if we may believe the writer, the entire imposing edifice was constructed for the accommodation of this single proposition. The article also contains some interesting remarks on the present influence of the Jesuits on the Court of Rome. This famous order would appear to have in some degree parted with its old characteristics, and, while still as unscrupulous and adroit as ever in acquiring and exerting personal influence, to be now as much distinguished by the austere fanaticism as formerly by the laxity of its theology. The Roman ecclesiastics of the old school hate while they dread it, and predict that its sinister influence will yet be the ruin of the Papacy. "A Visit to the Army of the James" is another very interesting paper, giving a fair insight into the management of an American army on active service. The very favourable estimate of General Butler's character will surprise most readers. It is, of course, pretty well understood by this time that the General was most unfairly vituperated for his conduct in New Orleans to serve the ends of those who were desirous of involving us in a war with America, but certainly few will be prepared to meet with so many traits of real magnanimity as are here recorded of him. An article on "Regulars and Volunteers" is also full of allusions to the American war, viewed as a huge experiment of the working of a volunteer army. It is highly interesting. "Gilbert Rugge" has reached a critical point in the narrative, and is full of spirit and animation.

Blackwood lets off another election squib in the shape of a biographical notice of Earl Russell, called forth by his recent republication of a forgotten essay. The comparative tenderness with which his Lordship is treated seems to indicate that he is not regarded as a very formidable adversary. The number is, in general, rather a poor one, "Cornelius O'Dowd" being unusually dull, and Mrs. Oliphant's story offering little to compensate for the mannerism which seems to have become inveterate with this observant and pathetic authoress. The reviewer of Lord Derby's version of the "Iliad," however, has shown great taste in bringing forward all the finest passages. Strict impartiality is hardly to be looked for under the circumstances, or he would probably have said something about the occasional flatness of the versification. The most readable portion of the number is the second part of "Piccadilly," one of those exuberant extravaganzas that we only encounter in Blackwood. It is a glorious medley of sense, absurdity, and grotesque fun, as, for example, when Lady Broadbrim is endeavouring to make her daughter marry the rich Hindoo:—"I suppose some absurd prejudice about his colour has influenced you in refusing a fortune that few girls have placed at their feet. He is a man of remarkable ability. In some lights, there is a decided richness in his hue."

Mr. Gilbert, so well known as a delineator of the life of the poor, is trying his hand at a resuscitation of the past in the Victoria Magazine. He does not succeed nearly so well. "Trouble at Thornhill" is a better story, graphic, and full of incident. The most important paper, however, is that descriptive of "A Training-school for Servants," devoted to the same good end as that for some time carried on by Miss F. Martineau, at Norwich, but differing, for the better, in being a boarding-school, which allows the instruction in domestic operations to be much more thorough, and the moral influence exerted to be more extensive and durable. It would be difficult to originate a movement more truly philanthropic as regards the class it is primarily sought to benefit, or more likely to yield a tangible return for such support as it may receive. "Letters addressed to the superintendent of the Industrial Home, Victoria Press, Princes-street, Hanover-square, W., will be gratefully acknowledged and answered."

The Dublin University has a good number, commencing with a reasonable and sensible article on Irish grievances. The writer does not say enough about the shameful neglect of their duties by too many landlords, nor the intolerant spirit still rampant among too many Protestants. It is painful to see social distinctions so markedly the correlatives of mere sectarian differences as is generally the case in Ireland. "Who is the Heir?" is very amusing, though as pretentious and coxcombical as of old. Affected familiarity with high life is a device which answered very well thirty years ago, but now only renders the novelist ridiculous. Mr. Lefanu's story seems to us an improvement on his previous efforts. It is fully as provocative of curiosity, without being ghastly or repulsive, and displays a faculty, new in this writer, of depicting the surface of social life. A strange disquisition on Prometheus identifies the demigod—whether seriously or jocosely we are puzzled to conjecture—with Noah's ark!

Temple Bar is very strong this month with three excellent novels. Miss Braddon's is as clever as ever; but, somehow, gives us the idea of beautifully-finished work turned out by an ingenious machine equal to producing any quantity on demand. Mr. Wills's shows ability of a much higher order. It is brilliant and sparkling all through, quite unlike anything Mr. Wills has written before. The situations are like those of a comedy of the old school—humorous, but charged with an element of deep feeling, which holds the reader in suspense between laughter and emotion. We are glad to welcome Mr. Yates back with his new story, "Land at Last." His forte consists in his wonderfully-graphic reproductions of the phases of London life with which he is familiar. The description of the "Titian Sketching Club" in the present instalment is a case in point, pencil or graver could hardly have brought the scene more vividly before the eye. Mr. Sala's sketch of New York is in his best style. "A Loveless Story" seems to be suggested by the Matlock will case; but the dénoûment is different, borrowed, we fancy, from Miss Edgeworth.

The St. James's has a sensible paper on American affairs, and an excellent story, "The Torn Glove." London Society is as wonderfully clever in its own department as ever, and the Churchman's Monthly is a fair number. The new semi-religious magazine, the Watch Tower, seems to be carefully adapted to the intellectual calibre of the lower section of the middle class. The conductors evidently know very well what they are about, and are likely to be rewarded by the species of success they desire.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. 12. (Chapman and Hall.) The present deserves to be ranked among the best numbers of this unequal serial. Mr. Boffin is introduced in a new light, and the effect of sudden wealth in perverting a generous character is shown with great psychologic truth. The misfortune is that the change is not graduated, and comes too suddenly upon us. In the latter part of the number the strange figures of Wegg and Venus flit grotesquely, like distorted shadows from a lantern, among scenes in keeping with their repulsive yet comical character. Here Mr. Dickens is in his element, and affects us with a sense of real creative power as his penetrating genius reveals the poetry lurking in every crevice of the Ugly and the Odd. Wegg's confidence in Venus is, indeed, entirely out of keeping with his character, but, we suppose, was necessary to the progress of the story.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Northampton still held its lead among the two-day meetings, and is, to all intents and purposes, the opening of the racing season. For the last time, Charles Payne, of the Pytchley, kept the course in his scarlet; and he carries, after eighteen seasons, the hearty good wishes of the hunt to his new home at Wynnstay. The easy defeat of Ackworth at 23 lb. for the year by Wild Charley brought Liddington from shade to sunshine once more; and as Caller Ou went down before Ackworth (who requires a distance), Stanton, the steeplechaser, and Sir Roger, in the Queen's Plate, Breadalbane did not hear of any "thing to his advantage." No line can be drawn about him through the mare. She does not lead him in his work, and she was so lusty that a Ringman was heard to say, "If she were my pig, I'd kill her to save her life." The staying Voltigeurs thrive over this course, and Marlow, the old rider of The Dutchman and Van Tromp, and now in Mr. Cartwright's stable, floored all the prophets save "Actæon," when he begged hard that Scamander might come for the Stakes. The "Mail Train" proved at last to be one of those "corpses" which are interred so often during the season at Woodyeates and other sylvan sepulchres, and then rise again whenever "the money's on." As usual, the start for the Spencer Plate occupied about 1h. 20m., and then Paris, who lost his temper at the post, won cleverly enough. Qui Vive was coughing; but "Mr. Pardoe" had another winning string in Macdonald, who has thirty engagements, and beat, among fifteen others, Gladiator, who has forty. In vain does a practised "commissioner" declare that Chattanooga is not a roarer, as, with all his fine looks and his public running, the million so far believe in the touts, and will not touch him at 14 to 1 for the Two Thousand, for which "Argus" states that Breadalbane will go.

The days of "The Corner" were finally numbered on Monday. For the last time The Ring met there for the transaction of business, and, appropriately enough, the last horse sold under the ninety-nine years' lease was "No. 99, a brown mare, quiet to ride, and carries a lady" (Mr. Carter, 55 gs.). The last entry of all in the catalogue aptly described the past and the future of the firm—"A double harness, in good condition." The subscription-room will only be used in future to exhibit Mr. Joy's pictures of "The Yard" and "The Ring," to which keys are being prepared by two well-known sporting writers. On Wednesday night the two partners gave a private view of the new premises to their friends, and champagne and refreshments from Gunter were dispensed most liberally in the carriage-gallery. The new room was brilliantly lighted up, and Mr. Freeman received most hearty congratulations from his brother architects and the company generally on the success of his labours. These premises will be opened for business on Monday, but the real inauguration will be on Tuesday, at Willis's Rooms, when a splendid banquet will be given to the Messrs. Tattersall, with Admiral Rous in the chair. Such a public recognition of the sterling character of the firm, ever since "Old Tat," in his red waistcoat, knocked down his first horse and stoutly maintained the supremacy of his Highflyer against the Herod blood, is at once graceful and well timed.

The objection which was raised against Mr. Chaplin's claim to the Great National Stakes has been decided in that gentleman's favour. It was a very flimsy one, and only taken up, it is said, by the owner of Lord George to satisfy the backers of the horse. Considering the strong four-mile course it was run over, the steeplechase time, 8 min. 33 sec., was excellent; but it is a strong pull in favour of any horse to have Mr. Goodman up. Sir George Strickland, now Sir George Cholmely, bred The Emperor, and sold him, for 300 gs., to Mr. Hall, who sold him in the winter, at the hammer, to Mr. Chaplin for 100 gs. advance. He was beaten for the Thirsk Cup, by Sir George's own horse, Adonis, and also by Lord Middleton's Vandal. Sir George has quite a specialty for hunter breeding; and we can only trust that his Doncaster purchase, Hubert (by Stockwell from Newminster's own sister), may tread in the steps of Orpheus. The Emperor was ridden at Weatherby in all rose, which are to be the Breadalbane colours. There are already about seventy-two subscriptions to the steeplechase of next year, which will come off, we believe, in "the west countrie." Dundee's subscription is full, and no wonder, after the specimen of his '64 yearlings; and Orlando has been presented under Mr. Greville's will to Colonel Maude. On Stockwell's paddock list of forty, there are no less than four winners of Oaks, as well the dams of The Duke, Qui Vive, Paste, Liddington, Zambesi, St. Albans, Queen Bertha, Fantastic, Gamester, Camerino, &c. Sixteen of them belong to Mr. Naylor, who has sent nineteen of his mares to Macaroni.

Ireland rejoices in April coursing, but Great Britain is content to close accounts with the hares on the last day of March, at the "Fourth South Lancashire," where Mr. Spinks, who has had a great season with his "Seas," won the Scarisbrick Cup. Canaradzo has been sold to Mr. Knowles for £100 and a couple of pigs, &c. Mr. Warwick judged ninety days this season, and holds already seven retainers for the next; and Mr. Westropp has made very steady progress with the coursing public, as his Waterloo votes went far to prove.

A much closer match than usual is anticipated between the two Universities, as Oxford does not consider its crew so good as it has been for two or three years past, and the Cambridge one is acknowledged on all hands to be better. Still, Oxford has the call in the betting. The Cambridge men average 11 st. 12¼ lb., or 2½ lb. more than their opponents. Beebee, who pulls No. 2 oar in their boat, was the eighteenth wrangler this year, and was also bracketed fourth in the first class of the Classical Tripos.

NORTHAMPTON.—Tuesday.

Whittlebury Stakes.—Brahma, 1. Thalassius, 2. Mirliflor, 3.
Her Majesty's Plate.—Ackworth, 1. Stanton, 2. Sir Roger, 3.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Vigilant, 1. Roarer, 2. Nabob, 3.
Delapre Handicap.—Dawdle, 1. Eugenie, 2. Lady Abbess, 3.
Trial Stakes.—Wild Charley, 1. Ackworth, 2. Birch Broom, 3.
Nene Handicap.—Balornock, 1. Fisherman's Daughter, 2. Gay Deceiver, 3.
Pytchley Stakes.—St. Eulalie, 1. Belle of the Ball, 2. Alvediston, 3.
Stand Plate.—Danaus, 1. Golden Dust, 2. Black Rock, 3.
Great Northamptonshire Stakes.—Scamander, 1. Planet, 2. John Davis, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Racing Stakes.—Brahma, 1. Volunteer's dam c., 2. Thalassius, 3.
Selling Plate.—Emma, 1. Costrel f., 2. Bavaria f., 3.
Earl Spencer's Plate.—Paris, 1. Queen of Trumps, 2. Menaco, 3.
Selling Stakes.—Reindeer, 1. Troublesome, 2. Roarer, 3.
St. Liz Handicap.—Stockinger, 1. Connection, 2. Merry Wife, 3.
Handicap Plate.—Crytheia, 1. Medicis, 2. Yellow Jack f., 3.
Althorp Park Stakes.—Macdonald, 1. Osiris, 2. Janitor, 3.
Northamptonshire Cup Stakes.—Dunkeld, 1. Aikenside, 2. Fisherman's Daughter, 3.
Sweepstakes of 20 sovs.—Grey Stocking walked over.

THE MARKETS.

Corn Exchange, April 3.—The supply of English wheat on sale in our market to-day was on the increase. For all kinds, the demand was in a sluggish state, and, in some instances, prices had a drooping tendency. Foreign wheat—the show of which was seasonably good—moved off slowly, at late rates. Floating cargoes of grain were firm in price. Malting barley was in request, at full quotations. In grinding and distilling sorts very little was doing. Malt ruled heavy, at the 1s to decline in value. The few oats on offer moved off freely, at extreme currencies. Both beans and peas realised former terms. The flour trade was healthy.

April 5.—Most kinds of produce met a slow inquiry; nevertheless, Monday's prices were fairly supported.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 43s.; ditto, white, 40s. to 48s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 38s. to 42s.; rye, 26s. to 27s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 27s. to 31s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 51s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 58s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 19s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 23s. to 27s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 23s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 21s.; tick beans, 31s. to 35s.; grey peas, 34s. to 36s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 34s. to 36s.; boilers, 37s. to 38s. per quarter.

Seeds.—Agricultural seeds are steady in price; but linseed, rapeseed, and cakes command very little attention, at barely stationary prices.

Linseed, English, crushing, 56s. to 62s.; Calcutta, 57s. to 58s.; hempseed, 42s. to 43s. per quarter; coriander, 22s. to 24s. per cwt; brown mustard seed, 10s. to 12s.; white ditto, 8s. 0d. to 10s. 0d.; tares, 9s. to 10s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 61s. to 72s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 15s. to £11 0s.; ditto, foreign, £11 0s. to £11 5d.; rape cakes, £6 0s. to £6 10s. per ton; red clover seed, 64s. to 120s.; white ditto, 66s. to 84s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 11d.; barley, 28s. 11d.; oats, 21s. 2d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 73,921; barley, 37,425; oats, 6213 quarters.

Tea.—The demand for all kinds continues very inactive, and the quotations are barely supported.

Sugar.—The market is steady, at very full prices. The stock consists of 91,461 tons, against 61,865 tons last year. Refined goods are firm, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—Sales have progressed slowly, and the quotations have ruled in favour of buyers. Stock, 10,720 tons, against 8216 tons in 1864.

Rice.—The transactions are only to a moderate extent, at late rates. Stock, 46,317 tons, against 47,939 tons last year.

Provisions.—The demand for most kinds of butter is steady, at about stationary prices. Bacon is firm, at 66s. to 67s. per cwt. for Waterford landed, and 59s. to 61s. for Hambro'. Hams and lard are steady. In other provisions, very little is doing.

Tallow.—The demand is very inactive, at 40s. per cwt, for P.Y.C. on the spot. Stock, 39,682 casks, against 51,065 casks in 1864. Rough fat, 2s. 1d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £31 15s.; rape, £41 10s. to £44; olive, £44 to £47 10s.; cocoanut, £33 to £43 10s.; and fine palm, £35. French turpentine, 66s. 6d. to 67s. per cwt.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 10s. to £5 8s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Hetton, 21s.; Haswell, 21s.; Hartlepool, 20s. 9d.; Braddyll's, 20s.; Harton, 18s. 9d.; and Hartley's, 16s. per ton.

Hops.—Really fine hops are in moderate request, at full prices. In all other kinds very little is doing, at barely late rates.

Wool.—Most descriptions are a dull inquiry, at barely stationary prices.

Potatoes.—The supplies are only moderate, and the trade is steady, at from 60s. to 140s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, April 6).—There was a fair average supply of beasts on offer in our market to-day, but the general quality of the stock was by no means prime. Sales progressed slowly, and, in some instances, the quotations had a downward tendency. The show of sheep was moderate. Prime Downs and half-breds were tolerably prime. Otherwise the mutton trade was in a sluggish state, at barely late rates. The top figure for Downs in the wool was 6s. 6d. per 8 lb. Lambs were in fair request, at from 6s. to 7s. per 8 lb. Calves moved off slowly, at barely late rates. Pigs were a dull inquiry. Milch cows sold at from £16 to £22 each.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 4d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 8d.; prime Scots, &c., 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 0d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 8d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 2d.; prime southdown ditto, 6s. 4d. to 6s. 6d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 0d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 6d.; large hogs, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; lambs, 6s. to 7s.; suckling calves, 20s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1100; cows, 130; sheep and lambs, 6400; calves, 200; pigs, 312. Foreign: Beasts, 400; sheep, 1600; calves, 195.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; mutton, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 5s. 0d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 10d. per 8 lb. by the carcass.

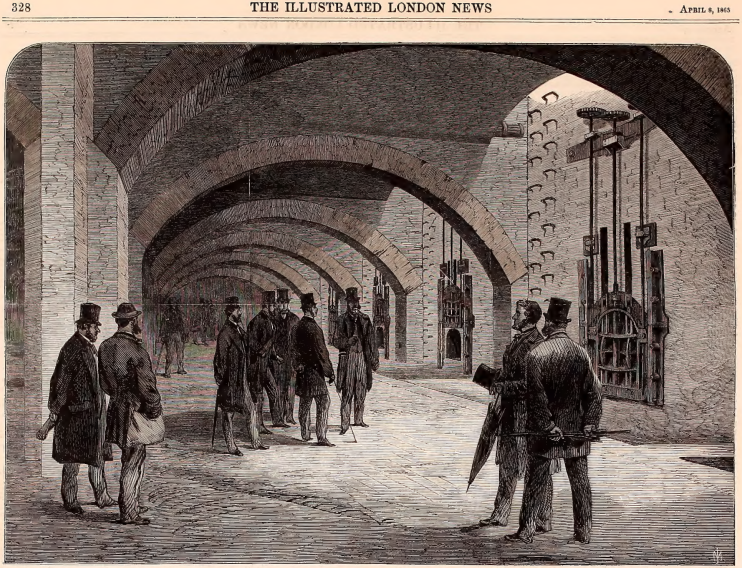
Robert Herbert.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Friday, March 31.

BANKRUPTS.

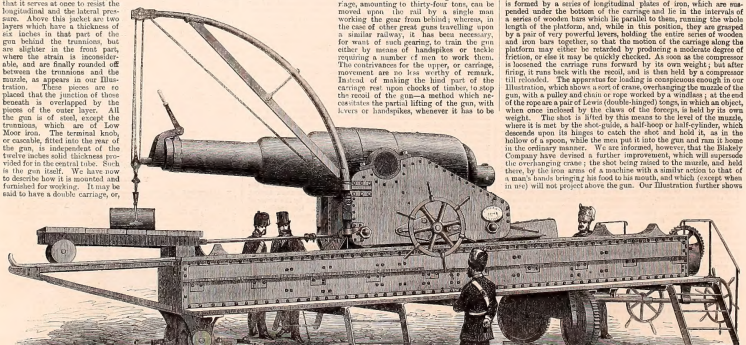
G. LOVELOCK, Pembroke-terrace, Kensington, general dealer.—W. POTTAGE, Wandsworth.—F. BEVAN, Hoxton, bookseller.—G. W. A. MILBURN, Charterhouse, attorney.—H. E. KINCAID, Turnham-green, schoolmaster.—R. FULLER, Norwich, licensed victualler.—J. CHESTERTON, Wellingborough, printer.—A. P. CUMING, Hackney-road, builder.—J. GANDY, Southampton, shoemaker.—T. WILLIAMS, Lambeth-walk, chemist.—J. HARGEST, Clapham-rise, painter.—J. ROBERTS, Norfolk-street, cabinetmaker.—T. P. CLINTON (Lord), Cleveland-square.—T. H. MORRIS, Southampton, tailor.—P. C. MALE, High Wycombe, grocer.—J. C. ALDRIDGE, Baker-street, dentist.—W. BENTLEY, Wolverton, chemist.—R. R. FISH, Newport-market, pork butcher.—J. VARNEY, Portsea, licensed victualler.—J. BRUCE, Bingfield-street, grocer.—T. TILLAM, Deptford, gas apparatus manufacturer.—J. SMITH, Mill Pool-hill, limemaker.—T. LLOYD, Hanley, draper.—J. HAWLEY, Walsall, ropemaker.—T. W. E. STONE, Exeter, quartermaster of the 1st Devon Militia.—L. STEPHENSON, Bradford, wooldealer.—J. and J. T. MORTON, Leeds, engineers' toolmakers.—F. W. TYAS, Hooton Pagnall, implement-dealer.—H. W. JENKINS, Abergele.—H. PLIMMER, Liverpool, shoemaker.—J. C. FORSYTH, Liverpool, bookseller.—J. ALCOCK, Macclesfield, silk throwster.—E. BRADSHAW, Lancaster.—P. RICHARDSON, Manchester, coaldealer.—W. ROWLAND, Manchester, crinoline manufacturer.—T. CLEGG, Rochdale, cotton-waste dealer.—J. B. DAVENPORT, Rochdale, publisher.—T. BOWNESS, Bishop Auckland, haberdasher.—J. H. DELAFIELD, Sunderland, comedian.—J. BUNNEY, Liverpool, baker.—J. KELHAM, Nottingham, provision-dealer.—F. STUBBS, Bradford, clothes-dealer.—J. ARNOTT, Sheffield, brass-caster.—J. M. DILLON, Barnsley, fishmonger.—D. CAPPER, Oswestry, shoemaker.—G. PLUMBLY, Freshwater, plumber.—J. A. KENDALL, Ryde, innkeeper.—D. BLACKWALL, Llangynwyd, beer retailer.—G. MOORE, Seething, fruit-dealer.—J. COVE, Cheltenham, wheelwright.—R. SUMMERS, Cheltenham, farmer.—W. PARTON, Much Wenlock, bootmaker.—W. BARR, Coundon, wheelwright.—W. A. BILLINGHAM, Witton Park, plate-shearer.—R. CHAPMAN, Sadberge, innkeeper.—T. DAWSON, Astley Moss, potted-meat maker.—J. BAXTER, Burnley, German-yeast dealer.—J. HUGHES, Llannwchllyn, grocer.—J. D. FLECKNOE, Great Horwood, Bucks.—T. THORPE, Hanley, shopkeeper.—W. DOUGHTY, Southampton, brushmaker.—W. STEPHENS, Freemantle, coach proprietor.—J. BRENTON, St. Dennis, cordwainer.—J. B. SIMPSON, Longdon, wheelwright.—A. CARLIN, Newcastle-on-Tyne, glassdealer.—D. HOLT, Worksop, watchmaker.—E. S. BAYNTON, St. Margaret's-at-Cliffe, Kent, baker.—E. FOSTER, King's Walden, haydealer.—J. MOON, Brighton, grocer.—M. MASON, Brighton.—F. L. LANG, Reigate.—W. CRANKSHAW, Manchester, crinoline manufacturer.—E. OWEN, Liverpool, stationer.



Tuesday, April 4.

BANKRUPTS.

E. ABLEWHITE, Mount-street, coachmaker.—J. IVISON, City, printer.—J. O. TUCKER, Kilburn, watchmaker.—T. G. NEWBY, Wandsworth-road, baker.—J. WHITE, Southwark, butcher.—E. MATTHEW and C. J. DOWNING, Kennington-road, furniture-dealers.—C. F. MARQUARDT, Pimlico, merchant.—T. GARDNER, Islington, curate in holy orders.—T. COPPARD and J. NEWMAN, Eastbourne, grocers.—E. SCHOELLER, Water-lane, merchant.—J. HOWES, Northampton, shoe manufacturer.—J. WHISLER, Mortimer-street, trimming-seller.—M. TOPLIS, Notting-hill, milliner.—W. W. RINGER, Dalston, publican.—E. TELLING, Kentish Town, stonemason.—G. P. ALBERT, Croydon, surgeon.—J. BARTLETT, Dalston, coal agent.—S. H. HAYWARD, Gloucester, pharmaceutical chemist.—R. W. BUIST, Pimlico, dentist.—J. JONES, Merthyr Tydfil, draper.—E. H. WILLIAMSON, Stafford, grocer.—S. ROSE, Abinger Hammer.—T. FROST, Darfield, mason.—H. WALKER, York, provision-dealer.—J. CARR, Leeds, commission agent.—J. KELLY, Liverpool, engineer.—T. ELLIOTT, Liverpool, commission agent.—J. E. DOYLE, Birmingham, fish salesman.—J. SMETHURST, Manchester, worsted dyer.—W. H. LAYBOURNE, Fleetwood, Lancashire, hairdresser.—C. BRADLEY, Leeds, fishmonger.—B. HARTSHORNE, Broseley, tilemaker.—M. DICKINSON, Little Bolton, joiner.—T. HOLROYD, Wakefield, bootmaker.—H. BALDWIN, Claines, market gardener.—W. CRAVEN, Landport, paperhanger.—G. BLUNT, Stantonbury, baker.—W. TOLAN, Ventnor, jeweller.—H. STEVENSON, Ipswich, cattle-dealer.—E. MULLETT, Ipswich, fishmonger.—H. BLAKEWAY, Castle Town, wheelwright.—J. H. BICKERTON, Winsford, grocer.—C. SAYERS, Trottersclifie, horsedealer.—W. GEE, Burton, tailor.—C. MILLS, Dursley, baker.—J. DAVIES, Llanfyllin, innkeeper.—T. ROBERTS, Guilsfield, druggist.—T. HORSWILL, Devonshire, farmer.—B. JENNINGS, Kenwyn, wheelwright.—J. BLISS, Brackley, Northamptonshire, bootmaker.



THE GREAT BLAKELY GUN.

The new gun, manufactured by the Blakely Ordnance Company for one of the Russian fortresses in the Gulf of Finland, is remarkable both for the strength of its construction and for the completeness of its mechanical appliances for use. A brief description is necessary to accompany the Illustration on this page. The gun itself, with a bore of eleven inches, designed to throw an elongated shot or bolt weighing 500 lb., is 14 ft. 6 in. in length, and its greatest diameter is 3 ft. 4 in., the whole gun, detached from its carriage, weighing about fourteen tons, which is very much less, in proportion to the weight of its projectile, than any of the large guns made upon a different system. This gun, as our readers will have remarked, is a muzzle-loader. It is composed of several pieces, which are so built up together as to render each other the greatest possible support in those directions liable to the greatest strain. The innermost portion consists of a single tube of steel, fourteen feet in length and eighteen inches in external diameter, which is bored to within twelve inches of the end, leaving thus twelve inches of solid steel at the breech, immediately behind the charge of powder; while, as the calibre or bore is eleven inches, the sides of this inner tube have a thickness of three inches and a half. The hind part, from the breech to the trunnions, a length of about six feet, is protected, in the first place, by a steel jacket four inches and a half thick forced on over the inner tube, and fitting at each end to certain projections in the central piece, at the breech and at the trunnions respectively, by which the jacket is locked up in its place; the end of it, moreover, being so formed as to give support to the rear of the gun, so that it serves at once to resist the longitudinal and the lateral pressure. Above this jacket are two layers which have a thickness of six inches in that part of the gun behind the trunnions, but are slighter in the front part, where the strain is inconsiderable, and are finally rounded off between the trunnions and the muzzle, as appears in our Illustration. These pieces are so placed that the junction of those beneath is overlapped by the pieces of the outer layer. All the gun is of steel, except the trunnions, which are of Low Moor iron. The terminal knob, or cascable, fitted into the rear of the gun, is independent of the twelve inches solid thickness provided for in the central tube. Such is the gun itself. We have now to describe how it is mounted and furnished for working. It may be said to have a double carriage, or, rather, a carriage which travels upon a traversing platform or slide. The platform below turning on a central pivot, and on the semi-circular railway behind, enables the gun to be trained, so as to point its muzzle right or left. The carriage above runs down and up the inclined plane of the platform, as the gun is loaded and discharged. With reference to the lower, or platform movement, we should observe that the whole weight of gun and carriage, amounting to thirty-four tons, can be moved upon the rail by a single man working the gear from behind; whereas, in the case of other great guns travelling upon a similar railway, it has been necessary, for want of such gearing, to train the gun either by means of handspikes or tackle requiring a number of men to work them. The contrivances for the upper, or carriage, movement are no less worthy of remark. Instead of making the hind part of the carriage rest upon chocks of timber, to stop the recoil of the gun—a method which necessitates the partial lifting of the gun, with levers or handspikes, whenever it has to be run out forward—the whole carriage here rests upon four rollers of cast iron; and it runs freely, by gravitation, down the inclined plane of the platform, or runs back with the recoil when discharged. This movement, for a length of from 7 ft. to 10 ft., up and down the platform, is controlled with perfect ease and precision by the use of the compressor, a sort of brake, which is worked by a man at the capstan wheel attached to the side of the carriage. This compressor itself is formed by a series of longitudinal plates of iron, which are suspended under the bottom of the carriage and lie in the intervals of a series of wooden bars which lie parallel to them, running the whole length of the platform, and, while in this position, they are grasped by a pair of very powerful levers, holding the entire series of wooden and iron bars together, so that the motion of the carriage along the platform may either be retarded by producing a moderate degree of friction, or else it may be quickly checked. As soon as the compressor is loosened the carriage runs forward by its own weight; but after firing, it runs back with the recoil, and is then held by a compressor till reloaded. The apparatus for loading is conspicuous enough in our Illustration, which shows a sort of crane, overhanging the muzzle of the gun, with a pulley and chain or rope worked by a windlass; at the end of the rope are a pair of Lewis (double-hinged) tongs, in which an object, when once inclosed by the claws of the forceps, is held by its own weight. The shot is lifted by this means to the level of the muzzle, where it is met by the shot-guide, a half-hoop or half-cylinder, which descends upon its hinges to catch the shot and hold it, as in the hollow of a spoon, while the men put it into the gun and run it home in the ordinary manner. We are informed, however, that the Blakely Company have devised a further improvement, which will supersede the overhanging crane; the shot being raised to the muzzle, and held there, by the iron arms of a machine with a similar action to that of a man's hands bringing his food to his mouth, and which (except when in use) will not project above the gun. Our Illustration further shows a small truck, which is attached to the carriage for the accommodation of the men when sponging and loading. The whole set of operations essential to the complete working of this tremendous piece of artillery may be performed by six men—namely, one man at the gearing behind the platform to train the gun right or left; one man at the elevating screw; one man at the compressor, to control the running-out or returning movement; one man at the crane, and two men for loading at the muzzle. The platform, which is 27 ft. long and 9 ft. or 10 ft. wide, has room enough on each side for the men to pass to and fro. It may, perhaps, be objected to the crane and other loading apparatus that they are in a very exposed situation and would in an hostile action, very soon be knocked off by the enemy's fire; but the gun might still be worked, like any other muzzle-loader, without the aid of those mechanical appliances. Altogether, its design reflects much credit upon Mr. Vavasseur, the engineer to the Blakely Ordnance Company; and it is a fact which deserves the attentive consideration of those who have to provide for our own national defences that the Russian Government should have employed a London firm to construct these most formidable weapons. It is said that a steel gun of 15-inch bore, carrying a shot of 1000lb., has been ordered of the same manufacturers, and is actually in hand.

THE METROPOLITAN MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS AT CROSSNESS: VIEW IN THE RESERVOIR.—SEE PAGE 335.

THE BLAKELY GUN MANUFACTURED FOR THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

AN ICE-BOAT ON THE NEVA.

A BRIEF description of an ice-boat, such as is employed on the Gulf of Finland, the Canadian lakes, and elsewhere, may not be altogether without novelty and interest to many of our readers. The boat is a wooden framework resting on three short iron runners; one at each side and one at the stern. Of these, the two forward side skates are fixtures, while the hinder one is movable, and by it the vessel is steered. She is cutter-rigged, obeys the rudder readily, tacks and goes about in her own length, and sails as close to the wind as a yacht. The length of the Skeal (Falcon) is about 25 ft., and at her widest part, where the mast rises, she is 12 ft. broad. Between the outside beams and the backbone is stretched tight a network of strong cordage, which forms the deck. Such boats can, of course, be employed only when the ice is moderately smooth, or, a still more requisite condition, free from snow. In the depth of winter, therefore, they are seldom or never used; but in the month of November and the commencement of December, if the first frosts come unattended with snow, many a pleasant run is made to Strelna, Peterhoff, and other villages in the vicinity of Cronstadt. Before a stiff breeze, the Skeal has been known to make thirty miles an hour. As these expeditions are undertaken chiefly in the early winter, before the gulf is well frozen, it often happens that you come suddenly upon open patches of blue water, whose deadly ambuscade lies hidden till you are close upon them, and then the only hope of safety lies in the quick eye of the look-out, the dexterous arm of the steersman, and the ready answering to the helm. Another danger lurks in the cracks and crevasses, the edges of which are forced upwards, and thus conceal the gaping fissure till the boat is close upon its brink. There the shock is, of course, fruitful in bruises and broken limbs. Again, there is a third inconvenience. When the wind springs up very suddenly and strongly, or when the helmsman makes a sharp and unexpected double to avoid a yawning split or a plunge into open water, the novice or the unwary may be whisked off his uncertain position; and then, even if he escape with no bones fractured, will often have a long, weary, slippery trudge to regain his treacherous but kind and jeering comrades. In consequence of these and other multitudinous perils the crews of some boats forbid these and other multimen, either as passengers or able-bodied navigators. Occasionally a sudden chasm is followed by a sharp frost without snow, and this affords a delicious terrain for the ice-boat; but such a combination is exceptional in mid-winter, though it takes place not unfrequently in March, just before the final break-up of the ice. The crew consists usually of from eight to ten men; but on board the brave Skeal as many as fourteen determined fellows have made a merry cruise in company. To face the biting cold as they rush at the rate of thirty miles an hour through the thin keen atmosphere of a Russian winter, fur caps with ear-flaps, thick leather gloves, buckled boots, and sheepskin coats are indispensable. It is hardly necessary to add that these craft transport no luggage nor merchandise, and, indeed, serve no useful purpose. The wandering Fin gazes with open mouth and undisguised awe upon the mysterious spectre hissing along over the crisp ice. To the far-clad Russ it is only another proof of the eccentricity of the English, with their love of danger for danger's sake and their keen spirit of adventure. The exhilarating motion caused by the rapid rush of a railway train, or a fierce gallop over the breezy downs, or the whizzing descent from a montagne de glace, has been often described, but none better than the hardy crew of an ice-boat can know the full perfection of such wild excitement and jubilant delight as is felt when, leaving the iron-bound bastions of Cronstadt in their rear, they spin along homewards between the low flat shores of the Finnish gulf, the jagged outline of fir-woods on each hand standing out black against the leaden sky, while in front, suddenly as in a dream, start up the needle-like spires of the Russian Church and the golden dome of St. Isaac.

AN ICE-BOAT ON THE NEVA.

SKATING ENGLISHMEN IN JAPAN.

OUR Correspondent and Special Artist at Yokohama, whose pencil has supplied us with so many illustrations of the manners and customs of the Japanese, has now sent us a sketch which represents a party of European residents in that city pursuing their diversion upon the ice, in a manner which is not prescribed by the Japanese themselves. He writes, under date of Jan. 7, as follows:—"The great amusement of the period, now that the excessive rain is over, is the manly game of skating. Every morning at six o'clock a.m. the sun does not penetrate, and where the ice is, therefore, capable of being skated upon. This spot commands a lovely prospect; and the early rays of the sun tinge the great mountain Fusiyama with roseate hues delectable to contemplate. But, as the keen air stimulates our mercer appetites, we are glad to find that our friend, the publicspirited S——, is the first in the field with hot coffee and other comestibles. The Japanese look on stoically at our frantic movements and curious politics; but we are in the full enjoyment of the sport, and feel warm and happy. Though the frost is very sharp, yet the sun during the day is too powerful for the ice; and we therefore have to choose a paddy-field in a sheltered spot to find ice that will bear."

SKATING AT YOKOHAMA, JAPAN.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

It having been announced that over £500,000 will be invested during the current quarter on account of the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, some activity has been apparent in the market for National Stocks. Increased purchases have been effected, both for Money and Time, and rather an important rise has taken place in the quotations.

There is a large supply of money on offer in the Discount Market. The demand for accommodation having been comparatively limited, the best paper is now readily discounted in the Open Market.

The imports of the precious metals have been somewhat extensive, and rather large quantities of gold have been disposed of to the Bank of England. There is scarcely any export demand, and the steamer for the East has taken out only £32,800.

Compared with the corresponding period in 1864, there is a decrease in the total circulation of £167,961. The Irish and Scotch banks hold £4,521,673 in specie.

Home and Indian Stocks ruled higher in price on Monday, with a steady market. Consols, for Transfer, realised 90½ ⅝; Ditto, for Time, 90⅝ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅝ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 217; Ditto Five per Cents, 106⅞; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. The Five per Cent Rupee Paper was 101½, and the Five-and-a-Half per Cent, 109¼. The Debentures marked 100. On Tuesday Consols, for Money, sold at 90½ ⅝; Ditto, for Account, 90¾ ⅞; India Stock, 217; Ditto Five per Cents, 106½; Ditto Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On the following day Consols, for Money, touched 90⅝ ¾; Ditto, for May, 90¾ ⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅝ ¾; India Stock, 214 to 217; Ditto Five per Cents, 106½ ¾; Rupee Paper, 101 to 102, and 108 to 110; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, 3s. to 6s. prem. On Thursday prices considerably improved. Consols, for Money, sold at 90⅞ ⅞; for Account, 90⅞ to 91⅛; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88¾ to 89; Bank Stock, 240; India Stock, 216½; Ditto Five per Cents, 106½ to 107; Ditto Bonds, 16s. prem.; and Exchequer Bills, 2s. to 6s. prem.

American Government Securities have been heavy, and drooping in price. United States Five per Cents, 58⅛; Erie Shares, 35 to 34½; and Illinois Central, 61½.

The market for Foreign Securities has ruled quiet. In prices, however, very few changes of importance have taken place. Brazilian Five per Cents have realised 100 ex div.; Ditto Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 1860, 83; Ditto, 1863, 80½ ex div.; Chilian Six per Cents, 101⅞; Danubian Seven per Cents, 82; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 96½; Ditto, 1864, 94⅞ ex div.; Mexican Three per Cents, 27¼; Ditto, 1864, 26½; Portuguese Three per Cents, 48¼; Russian Old Five per Cents, 89½; Ditto, 1862, 90¼; Ditto, Three per Cents, 55; Italian Old Five per Cents, 61½; Ditto, 1865, 73⅞ ex div.; Sardinian Five per Cents, 77; Spanish Three per Cents, 48¼; Ditto, Deferred, 41½; Ditto, Passive, 32½; Ditto, Certificates, 17⅞; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 94½; Ditto, 1862, 75; Ditto, 1858, 72¼; Venezuela Six per Cents, 1862, 40⅜; Ditto, 1864, 38 ex div.; the Confederate Loan has been done at 32 to 33.

Only a moderate business has been transacted in Joint-stock Bank Shares. Alliance have sold at 33¾; Anglo-Egyptian, 13⅝ ex div.; Anglo-Italian, 7½; Australasia, New, 69½ ex div.; Bank of British Columbia, 18½; Bank of Queensland, 22¼; British and Californian, 5½; British North American, 44½; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 50; Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China, 55; Consolidated, 10¾; Continental, 19; Ditto, New, 10; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 20½; European, 13¼; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 23⅞; Imperial Ottoman, 17⅝; London of Mexico and South America, 10½; London and Brazilian, 44; London, Buenos Ayres, and River Plate, 49; Ditto, New, 12⅝; London and County, 74½; London Joint-stock, 48; London and Westminster, 95; National, 94; Oriental, 56½; Ditto, 52½; Provincial, 3½; South-Eastern, 13½; and Union of London, 53.

Colonial Government Securities have been in fair demand. Canada Six per Cents have sold at 95½; Ditto Five per Cents, 83½; Natal Six per Cents, 105½; and New Brunswick Six per Cents, 94.

The Miscellaneous Market has been tolerably active. Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance, 3½ ex div.; Bombay Gas, 6; Canada Company, 58; Ceylon Company, 9⅞; City of Milan Improvements, 11; Ditto, all paid, 28½; City Offices, 5¼; Commercial Union Insurance, 8⅞; Continental Union Gas, 11; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 10⅞; Ditto, New, 8; Crystal Palace, 37; Ditto Six per Cent Perpetual Debentures, 113; Discount Corporation, 15; East Indian Financial, 4½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 4⅞; General Credit, 6½; Hudson's Bay, 16; International Financial, 6½; Joint-stock Discount, 8½; London Financial, 22½; London General Omnibus, 3¼ ex div.; Millwall Ironworks, 6½ ex div.; National Discount, 16; Ocean Marine Insurance, 24½; Thames and Mersey Ditto, 7½; Universal Ditto, 6⅞; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 83; Ditto, New, 57½.

Rather a large business has been transacted in the Railway Share Market, and prices, almost generally, have been on the advance. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Edinburgh and Glasgow, 90; Great Eastern, 48; Great Northern, 132; Ditto, A Stock, 147½; Great Western, 75⅞; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 110½ ex new; London and Blackwall, 87½; London and Brighton, 108; London, Chatham, and Dover, 43; London and North-Western, 122; London and South-Western, 96; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 60 ex new; Metropolitan, 128½; Midland, 136; North British, 54½ ex div.; Ditto, Edinburgh, Perth, and Dundee, 25½ ex div.; North Eastern—Berwick, 110½; Ditto, Leeds, 60½; Ditto, York, 103½; North Staffordshire, 78½; South Devon, 56; South Eastern, 86; Vale of Neath, 107 ex div.; West Cornwall, 47.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 10⅞; Bahia and San Francisco, 15⅞; Great Luxembourg, 12½; Imperial Mexican, 2½; San Paulo, 17½; South Austrian and Lombardo-Venetian, 22.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE, Managers, Messrs. EDMUND FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON.—In consequence of the immense preparation necessary for the production of Milton's Mask of COMUS, this Theatre will be closed during Passion Week.—On EASTER MONDAY, APRIL 17, 1865, will be presented Milton's Mask of COMUS. All the vast and complete Stage Appliances and Art-resources of the Theatre will be called into requisition to render this presentation a noble revival of a beautiful English Classic, and altogether in keeping with the poetical loveliness and excellence of the conception and the great fame of the Author of "Paradise Lost." The Scenical and Spectacular Effects will be designed and painted by Mr. William Beverley, and will consist of the Depths of a Wild Wood, the Tangled Brake, the Hall of Revelry in the Enchanter's Palace, and its mystical change to the Water-nymph's Retreat, and Sabrina's Translucent Home. The General Action of the Mask will be directed by Mr. Robert Roxby. The Cast of the Characters will include some of the principal members of the Company, of whom at present may be named Mr. Walter Lacy and Mrs. Herman Vezin. To give due effect to the Lyrical and Musical portions of the Mask, engagements have been formed with Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Mr. Henri Drayton, Miss Poole, and Miss Augusta Thomson (of the Conservatoire, Paris, and Bouffe's Parisiennes), who will be supported by a Choir of Fifty Voices and an Increased Orchestra, to be conducted by Mr. Barnard. Harp Accompaniments arranged and performed by Mr. Frederick Chatterton. The Masks and Decorative Furniture and Symbols will be designed from classical authorities by Mr. R. W. Keene. The Bacchanalian Dances and Revel-Rout will be arranged and directed by Mr. Cormack. The Beautiful and Characteristic Dresses, from designs by the same artist, will be supplied by Mr. S. May and Mrs. Lawler. Machinist, Mr. Tucker. Property-maker, Mr. Needham. Preceded by, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, Tom Taylor's Play of THE FOOL'S REVENGE—Bertuccio, Mr. Phelps. On Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, Shakspeare's Play of HENRY THE EIGHTH; terminating with the Fall of Wolsey—Cardinal Wolsey, Mr. Phelps, supported by the entire strength of the company. Doors open at Half-past Six; performance to commence at Seven.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern in the New Sensation in Three Spasms, with Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Compton, Mr. Howe, Mr. W. Farren, Miss Edith Stuart, Miss Lovell, &c.—MONDAY, APRIL 10, and TUESDAY, 11, at Seven, THREE WEEKS AFTER MARRIAGE—Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Chippendale, and Miss Nelly Moore, Miss Snowdon, &c. After which, at a Quarter to Eight, the New Sensation, entitled THE WOMAN IN MAUVE, with new and magnificent scenery, appropriate music and action. Concluding with EASY SHAVING—Miss Louise Keeley.

LYCEUM.—EASTER MONDAY, APRIL 17, will be produced a Drama entitled THE MOUNTEBANK, in which Mr. FECHTER will perform the principal character. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Five.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GOOD FRIDAY. GRAND SACRED CONCERT.—Mdme. RUDERSDORFF; Mr. SIMS REEVES, who will sing the celebrated War Song from Costa's "Eli," "If with all your hearts," and "Then shall the righteous" (Elijah); Mr. Weiss. Solo Trumpet, Mr. Harper.

Full Orchestra, Band of Coldstream Guards, and Chorus. Organ, Mr. Coward. Conductor, Mr. Manns.

Commence at Half-past Three, terminating soon after Five o'Clock.

The National Anthem, the Old Hundredth Psalm, the Evening Hymn, by the Orchestra, joined in chorus by the tens of thousands of Visitors.

Numbered Reserved Seats, front of Great Handel Orchestra, Half-a-Crown each, may now be had at the Crystal Palace, and at 2, Exeter Hall. Back Seats, Orchestra, and Upper Galleries, One Shilling, on Good Friday, at the Ticket-Stands in the Naves.

ADMISSION, ONE SHILLING.

Open from Nine in the morning. Palace lighted at dusk. Frequent Trains from London Bridge, Victoria, Kensington, and intermediate Stations, into the Crystal Palace Station. Trains to Anerly and Penge Stations from London Bridge; from Blackfriars, Elephant and Castle, Camberwell, and intermediate stations of Chatham and Dover line to Sydenham-hill Station. Also a quiet and pleasant new route from Charing-cross to Lower Sydenham. Extra afternoon trains. New gate to Palace grounds at Penge and North Transept, open as additional entrances for visitors arriving at Penge and Sydenham-hill Stations of Chatham and Dover Railway.

Excursion Trains from Brighton and South Coast, Chatham and Dover, South-Eastern, and other lines, particulars of which at the various stations.

NOTE.—The Clapham Junction, connecting the Crystal Palace with stations on South-Western, London and North-Western, Great Western, and North London, viâ Kensington, is now open. Also viâ Kensington to the Crystal Palace, from Bow, Highbury, Camden, &c. Also by Metropolitan, viâ Kensington.

EASTER WEEK HOLIDAY ENTERTAINMENTS.—From MONDAY to FRIDAY, ONE SHILLING.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GOOD FRIDAY. Come early. Open at Nine. Lighted at Dusk.

EASTER MONDAY.—Mr. and Mrs. GERMAN REED and Mr. JOHN PARRY will reappear in their New Entertainment, entitled A PECULIAR FAMILY. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. OPERA DI CAMERA every Tuesday and Thursday at Three, and Saturday at Eight. Closed during Passion Week.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY, Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, every Evening during the week, at Eight o'Clock (except Saturday), Saturday Morning at Three o'Clock. PARIS PORTRAYED; MRS. BROWN AT THE PLAY. Box-office open from 11 to 5.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—Patron, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.—PROTEUS; or, "We are here, but not here." This new and startling illusion (Professor Pepper and T. Tobin, Esq., joint inventors) with other extraordinary novelties. Commence on EASTER MONDAY.

THE MESSIAH.—MONDAY.—EXETER HALL.

THE MESSIAH.—MONDAY.—Miss LOUISA PYNE, Mr. SIMS REEVES.

THE MESSIAH.—MONDAY.—EXETER HALL.—Tickets, 3s.; Stalls, 5s., 10s. 6d., 21s. Notice.—The 5s. Stalls are cushioned, and reserved the whole evening. Ticket office, 14, 15 (first floor).

THE MESSIAH.—MONDAY.—EXETER HALL.—NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin. Miss Louisa Pyne, Miss Edmonds, Miss Palmer, Miss Palmer Lisle, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Weiss. Organist, Mr. John G. Boardman. Band and Chorus 700. Commence at Half-past Seven.

MUSICAL UNION.—Members having nominations to send names and address to the Director, and pay their subscriptions before Easter, at the usual places. The eight Matinées take place Tuesdays, April 25th, May 9th, and 23rd, June 6th, 13th, 20th, 27th, and July 4th. Joachim, Auer, Piatti, Hallé, Jaell, Lubeck, and Mdme. Schumann are engaged. Members can visit the Institute on Mondays, from two to four, where a fine oil portrait of Mozart, by Pompei Battoni, autographs, &c., are to be seen.
J. ELLA, 18, Hanover-square.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Mr. Costa.—WEDNESDAY NEXT, APRIL 12, the Thirty-third Annual Passion Week Performance of Handel's MESSIAH. Subscription Concert. Principal Vocalists—Mdme. Parepa, Mdme Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Weiss. The Band and Chorus—complete in every department, the largest available in Exeter Hall—consists of nearly 700 performers. Tickets, 3s., 5s.; Stalls, 10s. 6d. each; at 6, Exeter Hall. To secure tickets, immediate application is imperative. Post Office orders payable, at Savoy-street office, to James Peck. Stamps cannot be received.

SIMS REEVES, Chas. Hallé, Straus, Louisa Pyne, Sainton-Dolby, &c., at Mrs. TENNANT'S GRAND CONCERT, on MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 17, 1865, at the ST. JAMES'S HALL, on which occasion the following eminent artistes will appear:—Vocalists—Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdme. Florence Lancia, and Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Miss Palmer, Mdme. Louisa Vinning, Mdme. Weiss, Miss Stabbach, Mdlle. Ercolani, Mrs. Tennant, and Mdlle. Liebhart; Mr. Weiss, Mr. Cummings, Signor Ciabatta, M. Patey, and Mr. Sims Reeves. Violin—Herr Straus. Pianoforte—Mr. Chas. Hallé. Conductors—Messrs. Pinsuti, Frank Mori, Bucalossi, and Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Reserved Seats, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Tennant, 5, Grosvenor-street, W.; at Mr. Austin's office, at the Hall; and of Messrs. Chappell and Co, 50, New Bond-street.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—LAST CONCERT BEFORE EASTER. On MONDAY EVENING NEXT, APRIL 10, the Programme will include Beethoven's Posthumous Quartet in A minor, for stringed instruments; Schubert's Trio in B flat, for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (repeated by desire); and Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, for pianoforte alone. Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé. Vocalist, Miss Edith Wynne. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; Cramer and Co.'s; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

MR. HENRY NICHOLL'S RECITALS OF SHAKSPEARE, Tennyson, Macaulay, Poe, Hood, Dickens, Ingoldsby, Thackeray, &c., at the WESTBOURNE HALL, Westbourne-grove, on TUESDAY EVENING NEXT, APRIL 11, at Eight, including Selections from "Henry VIII." and "Much Ado," with "Lady Clara," "The Charge," "Horatius," "The Bells," "The Desert Born," "The Lord of Thoulouse," &c. Tickets and places, 3s., 2s., and 1s., at Whibley's Library, 2, Westbourne-place, Bishop's-road; and at the Hall.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL. THE TWELFTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PICTURES—the Contributions of Artists of the French and Flemish Schools—will OPEN on MONDAY NEXT. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d.

HYDE PARK in 1864.—Mr. GEORGE DOLBY begs to announce that Mr. BARRAUD'S NATIONAL PICTURE, containing 220 Portraits of the Frequenters of Rotten-row (under the patronage of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales), will be ON VIEW at 230, Regent-street, on MONDAY NEXT, APRIL 10, from Ten till Dusk. Admission 1s.

THE GREAT FYCHOW GIANT, whose appearance in Shanghai and Hong-Kong has created such wonder, is expected in England by an early mail from China.

THURTON'S "ODD FOLKS," with a New Piece of Extravagance, termed "GOING TO COURT," with a Portrait of a Japanese Dandy, and other Novelties, at Cardiff, Saturday, April 8, and Monday, April 10; Aberdare, 11; Neath, 12; Swansea, 13, 15, and 17.—Manager, Mr. J. MORFEY.

PROVIDENT LIFE OFFICE. No. 50, Regent-street, London, W. Established 1806.
Invested Capital, £1,669,447.
Annual Income, £196,956.
Bonuses Declared, £1,451,157.
Claims Paid since the Establishment of the Office, £3,736,600,
PRESIDENT—The Right Honourable Earl Grey.
The Profits, subject to a trifling deduction, are Divided among the Insured.

EXAMPLES OF BONUSES ADDED TO POLICIES ISSUED BY THE PROVIDENT LIFE OFFICE.

Number of Policy.	Date of Policy.	Annual Premium.	Sum Insured.	Amount with Bonus Additions.
		£ s. d.	£	£ s. d.
4718	1823	194 15 10	5000	10,632 14 2
3924	1821	165 4 2	5000	10,164 19 0
4937	1824	205 13 4	4000	9,637 2 2
5795	1825	157 1 8	5000	9,253 5 10
2027	1816	122 13 4	4000	8,576 11 2
3944	1821	49 15 10	1000	3,498 7 6
788	1808	29 18 4	1000	2,327 13 5

JOHN HODDINOTT, Secretary.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND, Bankers to the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, &c.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £100,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.

Auckland	Napier	Wanganui	Queenstown
Russell	Nelson	Wellington	Shotover
Blenheim	New Plymouth	Dunstan	Tokomairiro
Christchurch	Ngaruawahia	Dunstan Creek	Waikouaiti
Dunedin	Oamaru	Hamilton	Waitahuna
Invercargill	Picton	Hyde	Waikitipu
Kaiapoi	Riverton	Manuherikia	Wetherstone
Lyttelton	Timaru	Mount Ida

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with New Zealand, on the most favourable terms.

The London Office receives deposits at interest for fixed periods, on terms which may be learned on application.
F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 50, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, Corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate Rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

COMPANION and AMANUENSIS to a Lady. An ORPHAN, age twenty-four, is desirous of a situation in the above capacity. She is cheerful, lady-like, and used to good society. Unexceptionable references. Address, D., 2, Adelphi-street, Salford.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE INSTITUTION for LADIES, Tufnell Park, Camden-road, London.—The NEXT TERM opens April 27. Fee for Residents in Upper School, 60 guineas per annum; fee for Residents in Junior School, 40 guineas per annum; fee for Residents in Elementary School, 30 guineas per annum. Private bed-rooms for lady students. Governess students received. Certificates granted. For prospectuses, with list of rev. patrons and lady patronesses, address Mrs. MOREL, Lady Principal, at the College.

PROVIDENT LIFE OFFICE, No. 50, Regent-street, London, W. Established 1806.
The next Division of Profits will take place in April, 1868. Policies effected before the 1st of January, 1866, will be entitled to share in this division.
JOHN HODDINOTT, Secretary.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

LISABEE'S LOVE STORY. By the Author of "John and I," "Dr. Jacob," &c. 3 vols.
"A charming novel."—John Bull.
CARRY'S CONFESSION. By the Author of "High Church," "Owen," "Mattie," &c. 3 vols.
"A very original and clever story."—Athenæum.
BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANAGH. 3 vols.
"A very interesting story, admirably constructed."—Post.
CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By Author of John Halifax.
"A more charming story has rarely been written."—Times.
SHATTERED IDOLS. Second Edition.
"A remarkable and original novel."—Athenæum.
Third Edition of BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. M. BELLEW. 3 vols.
THE CURATE OF SADBROOKE. 3 vols.
VIOLET OSBORNE. By the LADY EMILY PONSONBY. 3 vols. [Just ready.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS.
With Portraits and Illustrations, 2 vols. 8vo, 42s.,
THE LIFE AND TIMES OF SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS; with Notices of his Contemporaries. Commenced by the late C. R. LESLIE, R.A.; continued and concluded by TOM TAYLOR.
JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle-street.

A New and Cheap Edition of Mr. Charles Reade's celebrated romance, in one thick volume, crown 8vo, cloth extra, price 6s., HARD CASH.
"But the story contains that which is absolutely grand. . . The adventures of the Agra on her homeward voyage are told with dramatic power and masterly pathos; there is no episode in Marryat or Cooper, or any sea novelist we have ever read, which approaches its excellence."—Athenæum.
"The critic draws out pearl after pearl, gems of description and thought and analysis, and masculine English writing, beneath which he recognises a wealth of philanthropic passion."—Spectator.
"There are descriptions of Oxford life and sea life, and little scenes of love-making, which are as enticing as anything of the sort we know. The picture of a boat-race on the Thames is perfect."—Times.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 14, Ludgate-hill.

A SPLENDID FORTUNE may be obtained upon application at any Library in the Kingdom. 3 vols., post 8vo. Also, the New Novel, by THOMAS HOOD, entitled CAPT. MASTER'S CHILDREN. 3 vols. Also, A MERE STORY, by the Author of "Twice Lost."
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 14, Ludgate-hill.

Just published, price 5s.,
Dedicated, by special permission, to the Right Hon. Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Bart., M.P.,
SONGS OF LOVE AND DEATH.
By GEORGE ERIC MACKAY.
London: CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

Weekly, One Penny; Monthly, Sixpence,
(Uniform with "Cassell's Illustrated Bunyan,")
CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED
FOXE'S BOOK OF MARTYRS, edited by Rev. W. Bramley-Moore, M.A. No. 1 ready April 12. First Monthly Part ready April 29. No 1 should be ordered immediately. Sold by all Booksellers.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London, E.C.

Just published, royal 8vo, cloth, price 5s.,
THE CONFEDERATION OF THE BRITISH NORTH AMERICAN PROVINCES: their Past History and Future Prospects. Including also British Columbia and Hudson's Bay Territory. With a Map and Suggestions in Reference to the true and only Practicable Route from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, Notes on Emigration, &c. By THOMAS RAWLINGS, of Gresham House, London, Author of "The United States and its Future." London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, English, American, and Colonial Booksellers and Publishers, 14, Ludgate-hill.

Ninth Edition, with 26 Plates, price 1s., postage-free,
STAINED GLASS, by the Improved Transfer Process of Diaphanie; easily performed by any person, at small cost.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

New Edition, with Drawings in Colour, price 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.,
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON LANDSCAPE PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHASE, M.W.C.I. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st.

Price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
MONOGRAMS and CYPHERS, Modern and Gothic (Handbooks of), by VICTOR TOUCHE,
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Third Edition, price 1s., postage-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Plates,
ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of DIFFERENT PERIODS, for the Use of Illuminators and Decorators, by F. C. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

Price 6d., postage-free,
PHOTO-CHROMOGRAPHY; an Easy Method of Colouring Photographs (producing a beautifully enamelled appearance), which may be practised by any person unaccustomed to drawing and ignorant of art. By M. C. C.
London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Fifth Edition, with 12 Diagrams printed in colours, price 2s.,
PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAITS, Draperies, Backgrounds, &c. A guide to Painting in Water Colours; to which is added Instructions for Painting in Oil Colours. By A. N. RINTOUL.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st. W.

THE LADIES' TREASURY for APRIL, price Sixpence,
Contains a Crocus Mat, Plover-egg Basket, Collar in Tatting, Butterfly Shapes, all suitable for fancy fairs. Also, large Patterns for the New Jacket and Vest.
65, Paternoster-row; and all Booksellers.

THE "LONDON REVIEW" CHURCH COMMISSION.—The "London Review" having sent out Special Commissioners to collect practical information as to the working and efficiency of the Church and other religious denominations throughout England and Wales, and to inquire into their respective influence and progress in the various districts, the publication of the report will be commenced on Saturday, the 8th of April, and continued weekly. The "London Review," price 4d.; stamped, 5d. Annual subscription, £1 1s.—Office, 11, Southampton-street, Strand.

Fifth Edition, price One Guinea, post-free,
THE ART OF BREWING, FERMENTING, AND MAKING OF MALT. By JOHN LEVESQUE, late of the Anchor Brewery. Wherein will be found full directions for the prevention of acetous fermentation, correct tables of mashing heats, and all other necessary directions, the result of forty years' practice in the above art.—JAMES LEATH, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard.

Ready, the People's Edition, price 1s.,
HOW TO GET FAT. Leanness, its Connection with Indigestion and Nervous Disease. By a London Physician.—London: DEAN and SON, 11, Ludgate-hill.

THE RENEWAL OF LIFE; or, the Blood and its Impurities. By JOHN HARVEY, M.D., L.S.A.L., Author of "Corpulence," 4th Edition, "Injections in Neuralgic Affections" (Lancet).
2s. 6d.—DEAN and SON, 11, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

New and greatly Improved Edition of
MR. KESTEVEN'S DOMESTIC PRACTICE OF MEDICINE.
Now ready, in 1 vol., fcp 8vo, price 5s., cloth,
A MANUAL of the DOMESTIC PRACTICE of MEDICINE. By W. B. KESTEVEN, Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, &c. Second Edition, thoroughly revised; with many Additions, and the omission of such topics as were found in practice to render the first Edition less strictly adapted for domestic use.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,
HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Gt. Queen-st., W.C.

Nineteenth Edition, 8vo, cloth, 16s., post-free,
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. No medicine is prescribed without the indications for its selection and the dose to be administered, free from all technicalities, and specially adapted to the use of clergymen, emigrants, and missionaries. Also, just published, an Epitome of the above, Twenty-fourth Edition, price 5s. The Case of Medicines, adapted to the former work, price 50s.; and to the latter, price 30s. LEATH and ROSS, 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st., and 5, St. Paul's-ch.-yard.

CONSULT Mr. A. ESKELL'S popular and reliable TREATISE ON THE TEETH before having recourse to the Dentist. "The expense is not great, and it will well repay perusal." Published by JOHN CLEMENTS, Little Pulteney-street; and may be had of any Bookseller; from Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., Stationers' Hall-court. Price 7d. In cloth, 1s. 1d.

NEW BOOKS.

Immediately, in one vol., post 8vo,
A GENERAL HISTORY of MUSIC. By DR. SCHLUTER. Translated from the German by Mrs. Tubbs. Revised and corrected by the Author.
RICHARD BENTLEY, Publisher in ordinary to her Majesty.

MISS ACTON'S MODERN COOKERY-BOOK. Price 7s. 6d. Seventy-sixth Thousand, revised and enlarged, and fully illustrated. "The best book of its class yet produced."—Illustrated London News.
London: LONGMAN and Co.

THE CORRESPONDENT. See 6th MAY.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE'S New Catalogue, containing 18 pages of Illustrations, including completed Windows of the highest character, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses, now publishing, 3s. 6d., post-free.—Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

ORNAMENTS for the DRAWING-ROOM, LIBRARY, DINING-ROOM, consisting of vases, figures, groups, candlesticks, inkstands, obelisks, inlaid tables, &c., in Alabaster, Marble, Bronze, Derbyshire Spar, &c. Imported and Manufactured by J. TENNANT (late Mawe), 149, Strand, W.C.

THE FURNISHING OF BED-ROOMS.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have greatly enlarged their premises, for the purpose of making a more complete arrangement of their Stock.
They have now Ten separate Rooms, each completely furnished with a different Suite of Bed-room Furniture; these are irrespective of their general Stock, displayed in Six Galleries and Two large ground-floor Ware-rooms; the whole forming, they believe, the most complete stock of Bed-room Furniture in the Kingdom.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, have always in Stock from Six to Eight Suites of Deal Bed-room Furniture, each set apart in a separate room, and different in colour and style.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

GOTHIC BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON, of TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, having been frequently asked for Bed-room Furniture to correspond in design with the Mediæval and Gothic houses now so frequently erected, have manufactured complete suites of Bed-room Furniture, both in solid oak and stained deal, to which they invite the attention of the clergy and gentlemen furnishing country houses. They are plain and simple in character, and moderate in price.
Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

IRON AND BRASS BEDSTEADS.
HEAL and SON have now on Show 130 patterns of Iron and Brass Bedsteads, ready fixed for inspection, in their extensive Show-rooms; and their stock consists of 2000 Bedsteads, so that they can readily supply orders at the shortest notice.—Heal and Son, Bed-room Furniture Manufactory, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, containing 300 Illustrations, with prices attached, of Bedsteads and Bed-room Furniture, together with Priced List of Bedding, sent free by post, on application to Heal and Son, 196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London, W.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See our Illustrated Furniture Catalogue, 380 Engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete Guide ever published. Gratis, from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage free.

CHALET CHAIRS.—HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, solicit the gentry to inspect their new Chalet Chairs, varied in form, and adapted to all reception-rooms. An indispensable luxury to every lady's boudoir.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two settees and two easy-chairs—a great improvement.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced List post-free.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 38, Conduit-street, Bond-street, W.—A. SEDLEY and CO. have the honour to direct attention to the following—viz., the beautiful TAPESTRIES of ST. MAUR and NEUILLY, for curtains, portières, covering furniture, &c. These elegant productions are now in price within the reach of all who desire to furnish economically and in good taste. Also a Superb Collection of High-class Carved Oak DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY FURNITURE at very moderate prices.—A. Sedley and Co., No. 38, Conduit-street, W., Upholsterers, and Patentees of the celebrated Equilibrium Chairs.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, Carpet Manufacturers, beg respectfully to acquaint the nobility, clergy, and gentry that their Show-rooms contain a choice assortment of Axminster, Velvet-pile, Brussels, and other CARPETS, in designs of Alhambra, Greek, Mediæval, and other styles, for reception-rooms, dining-rooms, halls, staircases, &c., and of superior fabrics, by which their reputation has been established. Tasteful designs for Bed-room Carpets of a cheaper description, Silk Damasks, Reps, Cretonne Chintzes, and other materials for window curtains and portières. Gilt Cornices, Looking-glasses, and other gilt decorations of elegant designs.—3 and 4, Goodge-street, and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road. Entrance in Goodge-street.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-paid. It contains upwards of 600 Illustrations of his illimited Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimneypieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Gaseliers; Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices, and plans of the twenty large Show-rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

HORTICULTURAL TOOLS.—DEANE and CO., 46, King William-street, London Bridge.—LAWN MOWING-MACHINES, from 50s.; Green's, Shanks's, Samuelson's, Barnard's, and other patents. Garden Engines, Garden Rollers, and Wire Netting, Ornamental Wirework, and every requisite for the garden. Deane's New Illustrated Catalogue gratis and post-free.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. One hundred thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—Prize Medal, 1862.—These Machines, made by the original Patentees and Introducers of the Invention, stand foremost and unrivalled for all practical purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently, with exceeding rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching (alike on both sides of the material) is without cord or ridge, and the thread cannot be pulled out.
66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, pronounced by Connoisseurs "THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper. Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. R. DOSSETOR, 5, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

SUPERB FLOWER SEEDS, post-free, at the annexed prices:—100 fine hardy Annuals, 5s.; 50 ditto, 3s.; 36 ditto, 2s. 6d.; 12 ditto, 1s. 2d. Catalogues, with sample packet, 2d. From B. W. KNIGHT, Florist, High-street, Battle, Sussex.

CONSUMPTION.—DR. CHURCHILL'S Successful Treatment of Consumption, Diseases of the Chest, Chronic Cough, General Debility, Loss of Appetite, &c., by Hypophosphites, prepared by H. H. Swann, of Paris. Full prospectuses, testimonials, and medicines, of DINNEFORD and CO., Chemists, 172, New Bond-street, W., wholesale and retail agents.

NEW MUSIC.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST may be had, in six volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—THE PILOT. A brilliant and most effective transcription for the Pianoforte of Nelson's popular Song, "Fear not, but trust in Providence." Price 3s.
BREWER and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S NEW VOCAL PRIMER, with Selections from Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Concone. This work contains numerous Exercises, Solfeggi, and Original Songs, admirably calculated to impart all the requisite information essential to the vocalist. Price 5s.
London: BREWER and CO.

HENRY FARMER'S OPERATIC GEMS for the VIOLIN, with Accompaniments for the Pianoforte, Second Violin, and Violoncello, selected from the following popular Operas:—Sonnambula, Lucia di Lammermoor, Trovatore, Rigoletto, Linda di Chamouni, Puritani, Traviata, Huguenots, Ernani, Fra Diavolo, and Luisa Miller. Nett price, 6d. each; accompaniments, 3d. each. To be had of all Musicsellers.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BRINLEY RICHARDS.—RULE BRITANNIA. Just published. A new Arrangement of the National Air for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

TRAVIS'S SACRED MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE may be had in 36 Books. Each Book contains upwards of fifteen subjects, selected from the works of the best Composers. Price 3s. each.—London: BREWER and CO.

TRAVIS'S VOLUNTARIES, for the Harmonium, may be had in 36 Books. Price, 3s. each; or in Six Volumes, bound in cloth, price 12s. each.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BELISARIO.—J. ASCHER.—A brilliant Transcription for the Pianoforte on Airs from Donizetti's Opera, "Belisario." In the hands of an accomplished performer, will be found most effective. Price 4s.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

PSALMODIA BRITANNICA. By EDWIN FLOOD. Book I. contains Thirty-eight Psalms and Hymns, for Voice and Pianoforte; also, Twelve Chants. Price 2s.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

ELLIE.—"This most successful Ballad, by J. Pridham, was sung by Miss Eleonora Wilkinson, the great Contralto, and vociferously encored, at the Assembly Room, Taunton, on March 11, 1865."—Vide Somerset County Gazette.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S New Sacred Songs. "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Illustrated.—"Abide with me; fast falls the eventide."—"Sun of my Soul, Thou SAVIOUR dear." Illustrated. Price 2s. 6d. each.
To be had of all musicsellers.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

SPARKLING STREAMLET. Composed by J. PRIDHAM.—"A charming little Ballad, with an admirable accompaniment. Rapidly gaining popularity." Illustrated. Price 2s. 6d.
London: BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

HERE WE ARE AGAIN! Just published, the popular "Slap, bang!" Song, for Gentlemen, 6d.; and the "Slap, bang!" Song, for Ladies, 6d. Also, the popular Dance Music of the Season, by R. HUGHES—namely, Slap, bang! Polka, 6d.; Slap, bang! Schottische, 6d.; Slap, bang! Galop, 6d.; Slap, bang! Quadrilles, 6d.; and Slap, bang! Lancers, 6d. The whole of these seven gems, sent by post for 3s. 10d. in stamps. Separately by post, 7d.—London: C. SHEARD, Musical Bouquet Office, 192, High Holborn.

NAAMAN. By COSTA. The Subscription Lists close on APRIL 15. Vocal Score, 21s.; Full Score, 63s.
ADDISON and LUCAS, 210, Regent-street, W.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Drawings free.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, seven octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE, 14s. per Month, seven octaves. No hire charged if purchased in six months. The most economical and judicious mode of obtaining a really good pianoforte is to hire one (with the option of purchasing it if approved) of the Manufacturers, OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, opposite Mdme. Tussaud's. N.B. No other address.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOTS, 56, Cheapside, and 32, Ludgate-st.—Nicole's celebrated Musical-boxes, £1 per air; Snuff-boxes, 7s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices gratis and post-free on application to WALES and CO., as above.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE.
Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

CROQUET and SUMMER GAMES.
An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET, 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 40s., 60s., 80s., complete.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

CROQUET.—An elegantly-bound illustrated Treatise on the Game presented with every set by ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WEDDING PRESENTS.—A Variety of Useful Elegances, at prices from 5s. to £50.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, seconds, and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	19	19	0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment, to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE JEWELLERY.—A very elegant STOCK of GOLD CHAINS, 18s. to 20 gs.; Gentlemen's Albert Chains, 21s. to 18 gs.; Gold Brooches, 20s. to 15 gs.; Gold Bracelets, 55s. to £20; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s., 15s., and 20s.; Gem ditto, 12s. 6d. to 20 gs.; Gold Earrings, 12s. 6d. to 5 gs. per pair; Gold Lockets, 10s. to 16 gs.; Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 10 gs.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 148, Regent-street. Old Chains, Jewellery, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones purchased or taken in Exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds reset. List of Prices free. Shippers supplied.

A FACT.—An ELEGANT POCKET- DIAL, with Gold Appendages, in Gilt Case, warranted to denote correct time. One Shilling; by post 14 stamps.—PAUL RANSOM, 14, Brunswick-square, Haggerstone, London, N.E.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

LOANS ON DEBENTURE.

THE GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY are prepared to receive money to replace Loans falling due. Applications to be made to Bishopsgate Terminus, April 6, 1865. J. B. OWEN, Secretary.

EMIGRATION.—Persons contemplating Emigration may hear of a very eligible ESTATE and RESIDENCE in PRINCE EDWARD'S ISLAND, British North America, by making inquiry, by letter, prepaid, to E. C., Post-office, Bath. The present owner has resided on the Property for twenty years, and expended large sums in buildings and improvements, the whole of which he now offers at a great sacrifice. Terms made easy to responsible parties.
Bath, March 30, 1865.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS, BATH.—TO BE LET, from Sept. 29, 1865, by TENDER, these splendid Rooms, with the Furniture, Cellars, and Dwelling-house. Tenders to be delivered by the 1st of May next. The highest or any other tender will not necessarily be accepted.
For particulars apply to Mr. Richd. Stothert, Solicitor, Hay Hill House, Bath.

THIRTY-TWO CHARMING COLOURED SCRAPS (Fourth series), just published, printed in oil colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—Flowers of the Field, The Sisters, Waiting for Father, The Golden Age, The Draught-Players, The Performing Dog, A Good Opportunity, Rustic Civility, Spaniel and Wild Duck, A Brace of Pheasants, The Peacock, A Basket of Fruit, &c.; altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrap-books ever submitted to the public. Address, JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, where the sets are open for inspection.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS are obtained by the new patent process of WOTHLYTYPE on Ivory. Those interested in the advance of the art are invited to view the specimens. Full information and card of prices by post.
"The pictures are printed with wonderful delicacy."—Times.
The UNITED ASSOCIATION of PHOTOGRAPHY (Limited), 213, Regent-street, W.

PICTURE-FRAMES for RED RIDING HOOD.—Handsome Gilt Frames, Glass, and Back, 3s.; broad ditto, 4s. 6d.; wide Maple and Gilt, 5s. Catalogue of Mouldings and Engravings 2 stamps, at GEORGE REES', 57, Drury-lane.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The People's Printing Press, price from £1 5s. to £4 4s., for Letter-press, Lithographic, and Copperplate Printing. "Sketch of the Art of Printing," 1s., or 13 stamps.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormolu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Note-paper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS PRINTED, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

THREEPENNY PACKET of STATIONERY, containing 12 sheets good thick cream-laid note-paper, 12 envelopes to match, and a sheet (8vo) of best thick blotting paper.—WARREN HALL and CO., Home and Export Stationers, 88, Camden-road, N.W. Price 3d.; by post, 4d.; or five, post-free, for 18 stamps.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, full directions in the new and beautiful art of getting-up the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."
No connection with anyone of the same name.

IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENT in ARTIFICIAL TEETH, and great Reduction in Prices. Mr. EPHRAIM MOSELY, Surgeon Dentist, 9, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square, sole inventor of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, on a soft, elastic, chemically-prepared indiarubber gum. No wires or unsightly fastenings are required; they are more natural, durable, and comfortable than any yet introduced. They are self-adhesive, and render support to the adjoining teeth. Consultation free. Observe—No connection with anyone of the same name.

TO LADIES.—THE CACHE PEIGNE FRIZURE, or Back Head-dress of light curls, as illustrated in last week's No. of this Journal, 6s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 10s. 6d. Long Curls, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and 10s. 6d. per pair. Frizettes, on combs, for dressing the chignon or back bow, with instructions, 2s., 2s. 6d., and 3s. each; covered, 7s. and 10s. Side Frizzettes, on combs, for the small rolls, 2s. and 3s. 6d. per pair. Forwarded free on receipt of amount in stamps and colour of hair.
W. WALLER, Court Hairdresser, 86, Camden-road, N.W.

CRETONNE CHINTZ, requring no calendering, is peculiarly adapted for curtains or furniture-coverings, being durable, elegant, and inexpensive. HOWARD and SONS, 26 and 27, Berners-street, have all the new patterns.

MANTLE and JACKET CLOTHS of all kinds, from 1s. 11½d. per yard. Also a large assortment of woollen goods, for gentlemen's and boys' wear, at very moderate prices; also Fancy Flannels for Shirts.
CHARLES MEEKING and CO., 111, Hatton-garden, London.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
I. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

MILLINERY for MOURNING.—PARIS FASHIONS.—The novelties from Paris are now ready for inspection, at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

PARIS FASHIONS.

MANTLES and JACKETS for MOURNING and otherwise.—The New Shapes, in elegant and graceful novelties, are now ready for inspection,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—PARIS FASHIONS.
The New and Beautiful Novelties are now ready for inspection
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

JUST RECEIVED FROM FRANCE,

HALF-MOURNING SILKS of New and very recherché character,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.—Patterns free. Good useful Black Silks, from 35s. to 50s. the Dress.
Superior and most enduring qualities, from 3 to 6 guineas.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street.

A NEW FABRIC.—The ROYAL BLACK CASHMERE.—Ladies requiring a new and useful Black Dress are invited to write for patterns of this excellent material, which is exactly alike on both sides, to PETER ROBINSON, of Regent-street.

FOR FAMILY MOURNING,
PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, will be found the most advantageous and economical Warehouse in England. Goods may be obtained made up ready for instant wear, or can be purchased by the yard. Goods sent free for inspection.
The Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.

MANTLES, SHAWLS, and DRESSES. FARMER and ROGERS are now prepared with their New Fashions, and request attention to several exclusive and elegant novelties. 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street.

ATTENTION is REQUESTED to a choice assortment of Paris Cashmere Shawls, suitable for wedding presents, at 20 guineas; usual price, 40 guineas.
FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street.

TO MOTHERS.—ELAM'S ELASTIC BELTS to wear before and after accouchement, affording the greatest support and relief. Price 21s. and 27s. 6d. Directions for self-measurement sent by post free.—196, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON invites special attention to his undermentioned Stock of NEW SILKS, the largest ever shown, comprising the greatest novelties of British and Foreign production.
Patterns free.—103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS LEVANTINE, a perfectly new Twilled Silk, made expressly to our order, and very suitable for Ladies' Morning Costumes, in most brilliant colours, £2 6s. 6d. the Full Dress, 14 yards, 25 in. wide; or any length cut.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LYONS FOULARDS of the most improved manufacture, the wear of which cannot be surpassed. The most fashionable article for the present season for ladies' morning suits, including great variety of style.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FOR SPRING COSTUMES
Irish Poplins in perfectly new colours,
£2 15s. 6d. Full Dress. 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

RICH FIGURED MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3½ and 4½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 27 inches wide.
Check Silks, £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR EARLY SPRING. New Colours in Rich Plain Silks, including our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, from £2 19s. 6d. to 5 guineas extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST IMPORTED,

5000 SILK DRESSES, made expressly to our order for this season, including every style for present fashion, from £1 15s. 6d. to 10 guineas extra Full Dress. Many of the above have been produced in new designs expressly for young ladies' wear.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS
(Both Sides Alike),
including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SPECIAL NOTICE!!
Now selling, upwards of 5000

WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES,
in Three Lots.
Lot 1—7s. 9d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 2—8s. 9d. " Eight Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3—9s. 9d. " Nine Guineas for Twenty.
Being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of White Dresses ever offered.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE

RICH SILK GRENADINES,
adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses,
18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS.
Finest Quality and Designs, equal to now.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Now ready, all the New Patterns in

PRINTS, BRILLIANTS, and PIQUES,
for Ladies' Morning Dresses.
An endless variety of patterns post-free.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

EVERY NEW COLOUR IN THE

ARABIAN GLACÉS,
for Ladies' Dresses and Jackets complete.
A most useful and desirable fabric either for Walking or Travelling Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

JUST PURCHASED, UPWARDS OF

2000 RICHLY-BRAIDED ROBES, and are now being sold at from 18s. 9d. to 23s. 9d.,
being less than half their value.
These Robes are all full length, and contain ample trimming for Bodice.
A set of Engravings, showing the principal designs made in the most fashionable style, post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE COLLECTION OF

NEW SPRING DRESSES.
Rich Broché Silk Poplins (new colours), 2½ guineas Full Dress.
Paris Spring Poplins (Corded), 35s. Full Dress.
The Honeycomb Poplinette, 35s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE MOST DECIDED NOVELTY FOR THIS SPRING IS THE

SILK CREPE MEXICAN,
a most elegant and useful fabric.
In all the new colours, 28s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A SELECTED VARIETY OF

CHEAP SPRING DRESSES.
A new series of colours in the Plain Mexican Cloth,
14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Also Striped, Checked, and Chéné ditto, 12s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SPRING PETTICOATS.
A choice assortment made, unmade, and by the yard.
New French and Sicilian Lawns, for Morning Dresses,
in Plain, Striped, and Checked, all colours, 14s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS,
15s. 6d. and 18s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"Like vulcanite or indiarubber."—Queen.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

EMPRESS JUPONS,
8s. 6d. and 11s. 6d.
"Beautiful shapes."—Court Circular.
"Learned in the art of petticoats."—Le Follet.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA or WAVED JUPONS,
18s. 6d. and 21s.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
"A celebrated maker of jupons."—Art Journal.
ADDLEY BOURNE (late Philpott), 37, Piccadilly.

SEWELL and CO. beg to inform Ladies that their made-up Robe Department is now replete with all the Novelties for the coming Season, including
THE NEW SILK WARP CORAIL CLOTH
(Warranted to wear),
"Mexicaine" Lustre, and Glacé Cloths in great variety.
COMPTON HOUSE, Frith-street, Soho-square.

SEWELL and CO.'S NEW MANTLES and JACKETS, in all the most prevailing styles of the season, including all the novelties in materials, &c.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

SEWELL and CO. are now prepared to show their novelties in New Spring Silks, for Morning, Walking, and Evening Costume. Also, all the New Tints in rich Plain and Fancy Silks, for Court trains. Young Ladies' Silks in endless variety.
S. and Co. call particular attention to their Foulard Silks, printed and plain, in all the newest and most beautiful shades of colour.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho.

MESSRS. JAY,

MOURNING SILK MERCERS
to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN,
H.R.H. the Princess of Wales,
H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
London General Mourning Warehouse,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

MILLINERY.—Messrs. JAY have the honour to announce the arrival from Paris of their Spring Fashions. JAYS'.

MANTLES.—Messrs. JAY, having received their Mantles from Paris, beg to invite their patrons to inspect the novelties of the season.
JAYS'.

DRESSES FOR THE CHANGE OF SEASON.

MESSRS. JAY have received some elegant specimens of the Spring Fashions in dress, which they much desire to submit for inspection to their numerous patrons and the public.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street

SPRING SEASON, 1865.

KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that they are now showing their first delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered before the late advance in prices, and 30 per cent under the present market value. Ladies who wish to avoid paying the advance price should make their Spring purchases this month.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks,
£1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks,
£1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks,
£1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains,
£1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks,
£2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques,
£3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.

Black Ducapes	£1 7s. 6d.	the Full Dress.
Black Gros Grains	1 10s. 6d.	"
Black Corded Silks	1 15s. 6d.	"
Black Reversible Broché Silks	1 17s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de France	2 2s. 6d.	"
Black Drap de Lyon	2 5s. 6d.	"
Widows' Silks	2 10s. 6d.	"
Richest Black Moire Antiques	£3 3s. 6d.	"

Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,
equal to any produced this year.

Finest Jaconet Muslins	5s. 0d.	the Full Dress.
Finest Organdie Muslins	7s. 6d.	"

Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

NEW SPRING FABRICS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street,

Marle Glacés	8s. 9d.	the Full Dress.
Chéné Cashmeres	8s. 9d.	"
Shepherd's Plaid Challis	12s. 6d.	"
Chéné Mexican Cloth	12s. 6d.	"
French Lawns	12s. 6d.	"
Chéné Satin Cloth	13s. 9d.	"
French Poplinettes	13s. 9d.	"
French Camlets	13s. 9d.	"
Marle Poplinettes	17s. 6d.	"
Chéné Poplinettes	19s. 6d.	"
Silk Warp Serges	£1 10s. 6d.	"

Patterns post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., 243, Regent-street, London.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their various departments are now replete with every novelty adapted to the present season. Their importations of FOREIGN SILKS, Fancy Dress Materials, and Lace Goods are unusually large; and the fashions in their Mantle, Costume, and Dressmaking Show-rooms of the most varied and distinguished character. In these rooms will be found some fine specimens of Brussels Lace, in squares, half squares, rotondes, Tunic, and Flounces; also, of Valenciennes, Guipure, and the new Guipure de Cluny Laces; rich embroidered Silk Robes, Court Trains, Moire Antiques, and Satins, in the newest and choicest shades of colour.—Piccadilly and Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
The New Spring Dresses at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Spring Cambrics at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Norwich Poplinettes at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
Extraordinarily good and cheap Black Silks at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The new Arabian Glacé, all Colours, at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
The New Petticoatings at Baker and Crisp's.
Patterns free.
Black Lace Shawls, 15s. 6d., worth 25s. Baker and Crisp's.
Sample free.
Last year's Muslins, Barèges, Grenadines, &c., Half price.
Baker and Crisp's, 198, Regent-street (nearly opposite Conduit-street), London.

PARIS NOVELTIES IN MANTLES, MILLINERY, &c., for the Spring Season.
Messrs. HAYWARD beg to announce that their Buyers have returned from Paris, and they have now ready for inspection an unusually choice assortment of the most fashionable novelties in SILK MANTLES and JACKETS, richly trimmed with Lace and other fashionable Trimmings; also very pretty Styles for Young Ladies.
The prices will be found very moderate.
Elegant Novelties in MORNING and DRESS CAPS, FANCY HEAD-DRESSES, &c.
81, Oxford-street, opposite the Pantheon.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO.
will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs.
Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

FORD'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LIST, post-free.—Intending purchasers, who cannot favour us with a call, will find it of great assistance. It contains over forty drawings of shirts, shirt-collars, &c. All the new fashions are to be found in it.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

FORD'S COLOURED EUREKA SHIRTS, Six for 39s. Superior quality, and made expressly to measure; the new patterns sent to select from on receipt of three stamps.—R. Ford and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING of best make at moderate prices. A stock always on hand of Chemises, Nightdresses, Petticoats, Morning Robes, &c. Price-books by post. Address "Ladies' Department," WHITELOCK and SON, 166, Strand.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

THOS. FORD and CO. respectfully intimate to their patrons and the public that, in consequence of the great increase of their business, they have REMOVED to more extensive premises, at 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S JACKETS FOR INDOOR WEAR. A large assortment of decidedly new shapes to select from. Velvet, 42s. and upwards; silk, 31s.; cashmere and cloth, 16s. 6d. to 42s.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-st. (opposite the Pantheon), W.

FORD'S VELVET WALKING JACKETS, at 3, 4, and 5 guineas, are especially worthy of the notice of ladies as an elegant, useful, and fashionable Mantle for the Spring. T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London

FORD'S NEW SILK MANTLES for the SPRING, at very moderate prices. Also, Waterproof Cloaks, warranted to resist rain, 21s. and upwards.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S GLACÉ SILK SKIRTS, in various styles, ready for immediate wear. A full handsome Skirt for 3½ guineas. Also, Seaside Dresses, with Jacket complete, 2½ guineas.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair. Illustrations of the new Riding-jacket, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.—T. Ford and Co., 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon), London, W.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

SHIRTS, SEASON 1865. A large variety of new Patterns in fancy Cashmere and Cambric Shirtings, made from the finest materials, adapted for Spring and Summer Shirts.—BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO., 11 and 50, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; 11, Old Bond-street, W., London.

NEW MUSIC.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE VALSE. On Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE QUADRILLE. A new and charming Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's new Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LA BELLE HÉLÈNE POLKA. On Airs from Offenbach's Opera. By STRAUSS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Bandmaster, &c. A new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltzes." Illustrated by Lydon. Scored for Full Orchestra. Illustrated by Lydon. Orchestra, 3s. net; Septet, 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille. Dedicated (by permission) to H.R.H. the Duchess of Edinburgh. Arranged by D. GODFREY, Composer of the "Guards'" and "Mabel" Waltzes. Illustrated. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new Waltz by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers" Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. On favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. P. GODFREY, B.M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new Quadrille on favourite Airs from Offenbach's popular Opera "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards. Illustrated. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers," by the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz. Just published chiefly on Popular Melodies of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, Bandmaster Grenadier Guards. Illustrated. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price 3s. Solo or Duet; 2s. Septet; 3s. Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 1s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN.
THE ORGANIST'S PORTFOLIO: A select collection of Pieces, Voluntaries, Introductions to the most celebrated Psalm, Hymn, and modern Church Melodies for the use of amateurs, by Dr. RIMBAULT. Each number contains from seven to twelve favourite subjects, including one arranged expressly with pedal obligato. Nos. 1 to 6 are now ready, price 2s. each. The succeeding numbers will appear every alternate month. A Quarterly Volume may be had on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DUSSEK'S INVOCATION SONATA.—A New and Revised Edition of this beautiful Sonata performed by Miss Arabella Goddard at the Monday Popular Concerts, is published by CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S BELLAGIO. Morceau for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by Brinley Richards at the Monday Popular Concerts.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.
KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's admired Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. A brilliant Fantasia on favourite Airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by Mrs. MURRAY OSBTHORN. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Haydn's celebrated Song, sung by Sontag—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS, Published by CHAPPELL, Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "JESSAMINE." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WALTER MACFARREN'S "TWO BUDS." Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.—IT'S A QUESTION OF TIME WE HEAR AND WILL OBEY. HERNE BAY. Illustrated. 3s. stamps each. The above have created a perfect furore. Post free, 18 stamps each. 2, Haldimand-place, Goswell-road, E.C.

£40 A YEAR. By J. E. ROE. Free for 15 stamps. By HENRY SMART. Specimen Song. Easy, telling, and extremely fancy. Sung at the Polytechnic.
D'ALCORN, 9, Saddlebow-place, W.

THEY'VE LAID MY LITTLE DARLING DOWN. By R. COOTE. Sung by the Christy Minstrels. Free for 15 stamps. D'ALCORN, 9, Saddlebow-place, W.

R. COOTE'S JOLLY DOGS QUADRILLES. Founded on the most popular Melodies of the day, and performed with the greatest success at the Polytechnic. Solo, Duet, or Septet, 24 stamps. D'ALCORN, Saddlebow-place, W.

R. COOTE'S ORPHEUS GALOP. Founded on Melodies in Offenbach's celebrated Opera, Orphée aux Enfers. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps.
D'ALCORN, Saddlebow-place, W.

THE SETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES, by G. COLL. Played at the Pantheon, Cafe, Holborn, 16 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the Charing-cross Bazaar by Mocklips.—D'ALCORN, Saddlebow-place, W.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new theatrical Song, sung by the great Vance at the Grand Salon and the Grand Music Hall. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Saddlebow-place, W.

Sacred Song for Basso, eight hundred copies sold.
MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING (From Rodrigo, Magdalena). Words by Price the Viscount. By C. G. HAMILTON. Sung by Mr. Weiss. Post free, 1s. 6d.; Quartet, 3d. The most interesting and beautiful sacred song of the season.
CRAMER and Co., 17, Baker-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MENDELSSOHN'S 26 FOUR-PART SONGS, Complete. Price One Shilling. Contents:—In the Forest. To Fly with me! The Jung Frau Sitt. Over the Ocean. On the Sea. May Song. Song of the Lark. Morning Song. Autumn Song. Evening Song. Song of the Bee. Spring Song. Spring Message. Spring Song. Love and Wine. Early Spring. Farewell to the Forest. Boating Song. Hunting Song. Reconnoissance. Harvest Song. Harvest Home. Drinking Song. Students' Farewell. Summer Song. The Vintage.
HOPWOOD and Co., Holles-street.

HENRY SMART'S IMPERIAL MASS of HAYDN (No. 3, in D), arranged in a complete form for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. Illustrated.
HENRY SMART'S BRILLANT MATCH of HANDEL. In the Pianoforte. Price 4s. Illustrated.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TWELVE HYMNS FOR GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER DAY, by H. SMART. Price 1s. net; in 2 Books, 6d. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

LINDSAY SLOPER'S MIRELLA. Played by Mme. Arabella Goddard at her concerts. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SIGNOR ARDITI'S L'OROLOGIO. This new and steadily popular Song, by the Author of "Il Bacio," is published in the 10 leading various forms, to suit every taste:—
1. In English and Italian ... ... 3s.
2. In English only ... ... 3s.
3. For the Piano ... ... 3s.
4. For the Violin ... ... 3s.
And for all the 10 arrangements.—BOOSEY and Co.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW VALSE ARIETTE may be had both in Italian and English, and for the Pianoforte, viz.—
1. Il Mosquero d'Amore ... ... 3s.
2. The Lover's Mosquito ... ... 3s.
3. Air Valsé for Pianoforte ... ... 3s.
To be had of all Musicsellers.—BOOSEY and Co.

ADOLPH GOLLMICK'S MARGUERITE AND MARTHA. Two charming Airs de Ballet. Author of "Dripping Well." "A Happy Thought," &c. Published this day, price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE NEW BARITONE SONGS.
I ALWAYS THOUGHT MARRIED LIFE. By J. L. HATTON. Sung by Mr. Weiss, Mr. Winn, and Mr. Lambert, with immense success.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL.
I DO NOT ASK TO PRESS THAT CHEEK. Ballad. Sung by Madame Lemmens Sherrington and the Rep." Price 3s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE, a charming Melody for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG.
TAKE BACK THE HEART THAT THOU HAST GIVEN. Sung with the greatest success by Madlle. Sherri. Third edition. Ad. Also, by the same popular Composer, THE SECRET. Sung by Madlle. Sherri. Price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 28, Holles-street. "Take back the heart that thou hast given Days," "The secret," are the two most successful of the celebrated ballads, the new edition of which, by CLARIBEL, is published. "Susan's Story." "Mill's Path." "The Blue Ribbon." "The Secret." "Take back the heart that thou hast given." Price 3s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and Co.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. The most extensive circulating library of modern music in the world. Terms, one guinea per annum. Prospectus and specimen of appearance.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and Co.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. The terms of subscription to this unique library of music, the most extensive and best planned circulating library of modern pieces in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a Guinea Illustrated Musical Magazine, are one guinea per annum. Now ready, All the newest Music is added to the Library, which comprises also the most valuable Works of the Standard Composers.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, and 28, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order. Catalogues of works gratis.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street, W.

A GEM FOR THE PIANO.
FLEETING THOUGHTS, by IUCHO, price 3s., is charming, and daily acquiring popularity.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

A PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECE.
MOUNTAIN ECHOES. By MULLER. Price 4s. This piece is exceedingly graceful, without being difficult.—HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.
COOTE'S ECLIPSE GALOP. Price 3s. This charming galop and all the others, set to the reigning favourite.—HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG.
COOTE'S ORPHÉE VALSE, price 4s., on Airs from Offenbach's beautiful Opera.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED
COOTE'S ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Gilbert's celebrated Song, "Isabella," Waterproof, 4s. Illustrated with Portrait of H.R.H. "Prince." &c.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Pas Ecossais. Price 4s. Illustrated with the Portrait of the Author, by the popular Scotch Artist, Lydon. This Quadrille takes the place of the most successful Quadrille, the same Composer's, "Jolly Dogs."—HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This simple and beautiful Waltz has become quite the rage of the season."—Court Circular.
At the best Public Gardens and Promenades.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

VERY DANCEABLE.
COOTE'S KINGFISHER POLKA. Price 3s. Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST LANCERS.
COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful Illustration of the Game in colours.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.
COOTE'S FAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC QUADRILLE on the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Hatton and four clowns, comprising "Ba, Ba, and the Postman," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "Tippetywitchet." Price 4s.
Is unanimously received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success.—Vide Times.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.
COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Encored three times at Vauxhall. By the Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS AND COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "So Early in the Morning," "The Stars," and other popular Airs. Illustrated with Portrait of Mdlle. Piccolomini, by Lydon. Always rehearsed at the Promenade Concerts.—HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The great success of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SONG FOR COSTALOTTI.
MY THOUGHTS ARE OF THEE ONLY, price 3s. 6d., by SHIRLEY, is greatly admired.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG.
THE BEAUTIFUL DAISY, by SHIRLEY, price 3s. 6d. "This song is full of melody, and has the charming chorus we have ever listened to."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S NEW SONG.
THE WEEPIN' WILLER; or, The Miller's Daughter, price 3s. 6d., is the best comic song published.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

A MOST AMUSING COMIC SONG.
HAVE MY SEEN HER LATELY. Price 3s. 6d. Sung by Albert Smith.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

IMMENSE SUCCESS AT THE ADELPHI.
J. L. TOOLE'S NEW SONGS.
1. Ba, Ba, and the Postman ... ... 3s.
2. Mr. Nix and the Fortune Teller ... ... 3s.
3. Sweetie Tate ... ... 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

VANCE'S GREAT SONG.
SWEET JENNY, OH! WHERE CAN SHE BE? Price 3s. 6d. Encored. Is always encored.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS OF
HARVEY'S NEW PLAINTED IRISH AIRS Pastels, for Piano, consisting of "Love's Young Dream," "Oh! Ould Ireland," "Rich and Rare," "Kathleen Mavourneen," "Bryan and Pegeen," &c. Price 4s. each.—HARVEY, 9, Conduit-street, W.

MR. ALBERT'S LATEST SONG.
THE GARDEN OF ROSES, by VIRGINIA GABRIEL, is the most popular of her productions. Sung for 18 evenings, Nov. 22 to Dec. 17, Baker-st., Portman-sq., W.

Just published,
MERRIE HEARTS.—A brilliant Polka for the Pianoforte. By MADELINE DRAKELEY. AUBURN and Co., 74, Cheapside.

Music Warehouse, 291, Regent-street, Pianoforte Gallery, 307, Regent-street.
MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions:—
GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Song by Gounod ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto in Leander. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto in Waldmeister. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
ARDITI—Bird of the Wild Wing. Song ... 3s. 0d.
Beauty Sleep (L'Addio) ... ... 3s. 0d.
Bird of the Wilderness ... ... 3s. 0d.
Il Bacio. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing. ... ... 3s. 0d.
BALFE—Bird of the Wilderness ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps; I breath on a star ... ... 3s. 0d.
ARCHER—The Cavalier's Bride. In E and F ... 3s. 0d.
ARCHER—The Cavalier's Bride. In D and B ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. In C and G ... ... 3s. 0d.
Maid of the silver mist ... ... 3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—Thou art so near and yet so far. Song ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Song. Top to "Ha ha, and G ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Duet. Soprano and Tenor ... ... 3s. 0d.
DELAHEE—La mère s'bells. Air ... ... 3s. 0d.
DELAHEE—Ditto. Ditto. In D and F ... 3s. 0d.
DELAHEE—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. In C and G ... ... 3s. 0d.
DELAHEE—Souvenirs d'une visite. Aria ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Sacred Song ... ... 3s. 0d.
FERRADO—Bonvent (waltzes on Airs from) ... 4s. 0d.
MACFARREN—I stood by the Church ... ... 3s. 0d.
Wear this flower ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Duet. Soprano and Tenor ... ... 3s. 0d.
ROBERTS—Don't Cry, Mary ... ... 3s. 0d.
Child's Visions. Duet. ... ... 3s. 0d.
YELLOWLEES—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Duet Song. 3s. 0d.
LOCHHEAD—The Commander's Bride ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
ARTHUR SULLIVAN—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... 3s. 0d.
ARTHUR SULLIVAN (as sung by)—The Twins Brothers. A Song and Chorus ... ... 3s. 0d.
HALLÉ—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
HALLÉ—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Duet. Soprano and Tenor ... ... 3s. 0d.
II.—PIANOFORTE PIECES.
DOUNOD—Four songs without words, each ... 3s. 0d.
DOUNOD—Four songs without words, each ... 3s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—Spring Flowers ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Belvedere) ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Solo, in 3 Books, each ... ... 3s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Grandella Pastorale ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Duet ... ... 3s. 0d.
MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON—Hit Land ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
III.—DANCE MUSIC.
MONTGOMERY—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
DE VILLEBICHOT—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
CLARKE—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
MARRIOTT—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
GIOSA—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
GODFREY—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Quadrille ... 3s. 0d.
GODFREY—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Quadrille ... 3s. 0d.
D'ALBERT—Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 3s. 0d.
D'ALBERT—Woman in Heaven. Waltz ... ... 4s. 0d.
Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto. Ditto ... ... 4s. 0d.
Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application.
ALL NEW MUSIC SENT AT HALF-PRICE.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.
For the Pianoforte Department, see other advertisements.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street, W.
Can at HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, with the option of purchase, and without any previous payment whatever, the instrument become the property of the hirer:—
Six-octave Cottage-pianoforte, in rosewood ... 2 guineas per quarter.
Six-octave Drawing-room Model Cottage, in rosewood ... ... 3 guineas per quarter.
Six-octave Model Cottage, in rosewood ... 4 guineas per quarter.
Every instrument is warranted, by long and practical experience of the best manufacturers, to be unexceptionable for quality, and the most satisfactory principle on which pianofortes are supplied.
Quarterly payments are required.
PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument 10 guineas per quarter.
10 guineas per quarter.
12 guineas per quarter.
14 guineas per quarter.
15 guineas per quarter.
Every instrument is warranted, by Pleyels, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.
HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM, as above detailed, is extended to all parts of the United Kingdom.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH HARMONIUM.—This exquisite instrument adds, 30 and 35 guineas is reserved or waived, according to the number of stops required, to the many charming effects it possesses as to its performance, bass in the key and worn in the instance.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 201, Regent-st.

BROADWOODS' NEW DRAWING-ROOM MODEL PIANOFORTE, 7½ octaves, in rosewood and mahogany cases, with trichord treble, the instruments are sold at the manufacturer's prices, and are selected without extra charge. They may be had on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, 7½ octaves, in rosewood, with trichord treble, and the most extraordinary effective pianoforte ever produced for the three-years' system.—Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARDS' NEW SEMI-GRAND, 7½ octaves, in rosewood, now ready for inspection in town at the Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

PLEYEL and Co., of Paris, have appointed CRAMER and CO. (Limited) their sole agents for England. PIANOFORTES by this eminent firm may now be had for sale or hire at CRAMER'S Pianoforte Galleries.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, 7½ octaves in rosewood, 70 in number. Further purchases of these instruments cannot be made, as the entire number is now kept in stock, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES of every class and size, from the smallest pianette to the most elaborate cabinet grand, are kept in stock for hire, sale, and may be purchased on the three-years' system.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

BROADWOODS' at CRAMER'S.

COLLARDS' at CRAMER'S.

ERARD'S at CRAMER'S.

KIRKMAN'S at CRAMER'S.

PLEYEL'S at CRAMER'S.

£70 30 GRANDS by the above eminent makers, at prices from 10 to 20 guineas, always on stock at CRAMER'S Pianoforte Galleries, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTE.—A superior upright Pianoforte, in solid mahogany, especially made with metallic plates, for the Indian climate, fitted with patent check, packed in zinc, for 40 guineas.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CRAMER'S.—CRAMER'S new Instrument is now ready.

No.	and A. One Stop	Per Month.
1.	Two Stops	15s. 0d.
2.	Five Stops	18s. 0d.
3.	Seven Stops	21s. 0d.
4.	Fourteen Stops	25s. 0d.
5.	Twenty-one Stops	30s. 0d.
6.	Twenty-four Stops	35s. 0d.
7.	Thirty-two Stops	42s. 0d.
8.	Forty-two Stops	50s. 0d.
9.	Sixty-four Stops, two Keyboards	63s. 0d.
10.	Ditto, ditto, ditto, with PEDALS	84s. 0d.

No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swell ... 21s. 0d.
2. Ditto, ditto ... ... 25s. 0d.
3. Ditto, ditto, ditto ... ... 30s. 0d.
N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on instruments kept for a longer period.
Should the Harmonium be purchased after hiring, the amount paid within six months from the time of hiring, the amount due for hire will be taken as the first quarterly payment of purchase.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CHAPPELL'S PORTER PIANINO is the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded.—A very large assortment of these elegant Pianos, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Cottages, Schools, &c. Price 25 guineas, in Rosewood Case. Also a Pianino, with Trichord Treble, and all the latest improvements.
Price 30 guineas, rosewood, or walnut, 35 and 38 guineas. A great variety may be seen at CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL PIANOFORTE, 7½ octaves, in rosewood, with the new English iron of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English check action, trichord treble, and all the latest improvements, price 50 guineas. This instrument is the result of many years' experience in the above makers, and therefore especially adapted to the country and to the climate, combining great power and brilliancy of tone with the truest. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar to the Broadwood Model Cottage, price 50 guineas. It is pronounced to be without a rival.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The Proprietors of every description of Pianoforte, all the newest kinds by these celebrated makers, may be tried also by all the other eminent makers, at CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany of plain walnut, the best possible instrument for the price, 6½ octaves, with the trichord treble and all the latest improvements. This pianoforte is the most instructive to superior to any other Pianoforte at or about the same price, whether for practice or ornament.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDER'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas. Also the Model Cottage, 30 guineas. Lists of the largest and Pianoforte and Harmonium open application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-OCTAVE HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDER, with five octaves, two fronboards, and in oak case, price 20 guineas. Lists of the largest and smallest may be obtained on application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

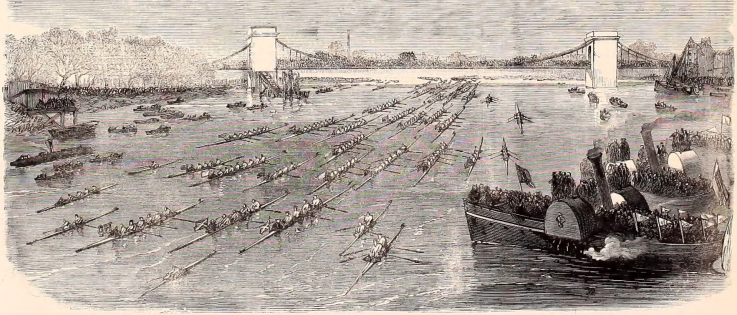
SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDER, for CHURCH, Chapels, a view of which is given in the Illustrated London News, of Nov. 26, 1864, in oak case, 22 guineas. A larger instrument may be always seen at CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS (Registered) of the best description, with the full compass of pedals, price 20 guineas. The College Harmonium, 25 guineas. Cabinet Harmonium, 30 guineas. Harmonium à 2 guineas. Chapel Harmoniums 42 25, 30, and 40 guineas. Lists of prices and testimonials may be had of
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, 6½ octaves, in a walnut case, 20 guineas. The best second to nothing recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. Testimonials, lists of prices, and the workmanship of this of the best description.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO of a model College Rights Piano, and no better can be found. It is a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as used in the new Royal Italian Opera House.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO of a model College Rights Piano, and no better can be found. It is a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as used in the new Royal Italian Opera House.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.



ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full compass, with all the latest improvements, rosewood case, 4 guineas; ditto, in mahogany, 3 guineas; ditto, in case, from 2 to 2 guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREWS, 42, New Bond-street.

LORD PALMERSTON DELIVERING THE PRIZES AT THE SOUTH LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION ON SATURDAY LAST.

THE SOUTH LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

THE distribution of prizes to the successful competitors at the South London Industrial Exhibition, recently held at the Lambeth Baths, in Westminster-road, took place on Saturday afternoon, in the presence of most of the exhibitors and a large number of visitors. The whole of the contents of the Exhibition had been removed, so that there was a perfectly clear space for the audience. The prizes and certificates were presented by Lord Palmerston, who sat in the chair which in the old House of Commons was filled by the Speaker. The noble Lord arrived at the Baths about half-past five o'clock, accompanied by the Right Hon. W. F. Cowper and the Earl of Shaftesbury, President of the Exhibition, and was received by Mr. C. Gilpin, M.P.; Mr. Locke, M.P.; the Rev. Newman Hall, the Rev. J. Bowstead, M.A.; Mr. Murphy, the hon. secretary, and a large number of the members of the committee. On entering the hall Lord Palmerston was loudly cheered. It had been arranged that a space should be left on the platform between him and the audience, and that the successful competitors should pass in succession before his Lordship's chair and receive the prizes from his hand. A large crowd of persons assembled outside the building to witness the arrival of the Prime Minister, and he was loudly cheered on making his appearance in front of the building. The prizes were awarded by a body of adjudicators chosen by the exhibitors, and the committee, preferring rather to give a large number of prizes of moderate value than one or two costly ones, hoped to satisfy all the exhibitors by awarding no less than 372 honorary distinctions—by which arrangement more than half the number of exhibitors received either a prize or an honourable mention. The prizes were of three descriptions—namely, money prizes and medals in silver and bronze. The medal, which was struck by Mr. J. Moore, of Birmingham, from the design of Mr. Martin, a working man, is very handsome; the obverse shows Fame presenting a wreath of laurel to two allegorical figures—namely, Design and Manufacture, the motto being "honour to the industrial classes;" while on the reverse is a centre of oak-leaves, surrounding the words "medal of merit," and on the outside of the wreath, springing from the centre to the circumference, are the names of twenty persons distinguished in art, literature, and science who had sprung from the working classes. The certificate of honourable mention is a lithographed scroll in gold and colour—reading like a document of the Exhibition and the dates of its opening and closing.

OPENING OF THE THAMES ROWING SEASON: PROCESSION OF THE LONDON BOAT CLUBS ON SATURDAY LAST.—SEE PAGE 336.

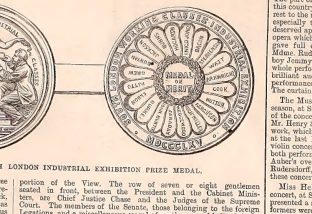
The medals were made by Mr. C. Wyon, the honorary secretary, stated that the committee had bestowed twelve first-class, thirty-second-class, and thirty-third-class medals, and twenty-one additional honours being fifty-one. The adjudicators in the mechanical class awarded twelve first-class prizes, thirty-two second-class, fifty-five third-class, and thirty-two honourable mentions. The adjudicators of the physical class, after awarding four first-class prizes, twelve second-class, nineteen third-class, and fourteen honourable mentions, state that collections and imitations of objects of natural history received no place in this department, and several of the best prizes had been awarded in that direction. In the last class (kind of fabrics and fancy work) the adjudicators awarded four first-class prizes, five second, fifteen third, and thirteen honourable mentions.

The ceremony of presenting the prizes was first proceeded with, the noble Lord commencing the cheques or medals from Mr. Murphy, and handing over to each successful candidate as he passed before him. Among those who received prizes were two little boys seven or eight years of age, and two little girls not much older. Two blind men also received a prize, for wool work; and a brewer's draymen received one of the largest sums, the cheque for which was a handsome one, bearing the figure of Britannia, with an address on the reverse, stating that the prize was given "as a testimonial of their esteem and an acknowledgment of his zealous labours to promote the success of the exhibition."

In the course of his speech, Lord Palmerston remarked that such an exhibition could be carried on with success only by the energy of the industrious people of London in their leisure hours, notwithstanding the great calls upon the time and attentions of the Constitution under which we have the good fortune to live; which opens to every man, having talents, energy, perseverance, and good conduct any honours and distinctions which the turn of mind and attainments of each might lead to aspire to. We live, pursued his Lordship, under a constitutional monarchy, which is a monarchy in connection with wealth and an aristocracy of rank are essential ingredients. It is true that aristocracies of property do not exist in many of the countries of the Continent, there are almost impassable barriers separating them from the rest of the people, while no such barriers exist in this country. With regard to the aristocracy of wealth, the medals distributed that day have rendered the names of a large number of men who, by their talent, their perseverance, and their good conduct the very highest positions of social rank and distinction. Many more might have been added to that list. And you must all have seen in your own neighbourhood men starting from the smallest beginnings who have in their very city realised princely fortunes. In the manufacturing districts examples of this kind were abundant. In no man can go, even for a few days, into those districts without hearing of great wealth, acquired by men who started with little, but by their talents and genius, raised themselves and their families to opulence. Then, again, does the aristocracy of rank in this country consist simply of those who can count in their pedigree many centuries of noble ancestry? Look at all the great men who have figured in public life. Look at your Army, your Navy, your Church, your Bench, your statesmen. You will find in everyone of those careers men who have risen to the highest points, who have risen unquestionably even from the smallest beginnings, or whose fathers began with nothing but their talents, their industry, and their good conduct. I will not mention the names of any of these, though, for the men themselves and for the public benefit, it would be an honourable roll; but you are all conversant with names renowned in the history of the country, who have raised not to noble dignity, but who founded noble families; springing, many of them, from the very class which fills now the honour of addressing you. Does not this afford even greater encouragement than the prizes you receive to-day? Is not the very knowledge that you have cultivated the talents with which nature has endowed you? Wealth is a certain extent, a great object of all; but be assured of one thing, that, even if you fail in gaining those honours or distinctions which I have indicated there is a positive source of private comfort and of individual happiness than the exercise of intelligent industry and the exertion of those talents, and the exercise of the intellectual faculties, to which the exhibitors here show that they have devoted themselves, must make them happier than; must contribute to raise them, not only in the estimation of all with whom they are connected, but in the estimation of all who know them, and must lead to the noblest of all exercises, of all pleasures—namely, the improvement and development of the human intellect. I may be told that the medals and prizes are not to be distributed to the exhibitors, but to the finished positions are few, while the competitors are many, and that to the latter those who struggle are more than those who succeed, must be hopeless. I would ask whether many of you have not gone on a fine bright day for the gratification of your own eyes and for the amusement, frequently, of your children, and seen hours run by, and found that you had not been disappointed, although you had not carried away with you any prize. All the rest failed to obtain the objects of their ambition. But these luckless horses had not had their run at Derby won other races. If they were good for anything they will win something. And thus the training, the industry, the pains, and the expense of those who had fitted them for the competition in which they were to take part were eventually rewarded; and so I say to you—you competitors for prizes. You may not all become Generals or Admirals; you may not all become Lord Archbishops, or even Bishops; you may become members of the Cabinet; but, depend upon it, you will, by systematic industry, raise yourselves in the social scale, and you will acquire what you will acquire honour and respect for yourselves and for your families. You will have the gratification of reflecting that you have materially contributed to the dignity of your country, to its welfare, to its prosperity and greatness, and that you have been worthy of the nation to which you belong. I beg again to express the extreme pleasure I have derived from what I have witnessed to-day; and I trust that hereafter these exhibitions will be attended with increased success, the progress which I am told has exceeded that of last year. Go on, ladies and gentlemen, and prosper; and depend upon it that the blessings which you will confer upon yourselves and your families will be extended to the industrial classes of this land by the cultivation which you give to those noble faculties with which Providence has endowed you. (The noble Lord sat down amid loud and continued cheering.)

A vote of thanks to Lord Palmerston was moved by the Rev. Mr. Rowsfield, seconded by the Rev. Newman Hall, and supported by Mr. Layard, M.P. The proceedings ended with the singing of the National Anthem.



Two pieces of cannon made of bronze, incrusted with gold and silver, have been discovered, buried in the earth, at Costa Chica, in Mexico. The workmanship of these two pieces of artillery is magnificent. They bear the dates of 1723 and 1703, with the initials of Philip II. and Charles III.

THE SECOND INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

WE present two Illustrations of the proceedings at Washington upon the recent occasion when Mr. Lincoln inaugurated his second term of office as President of the United States. Our first Engraving shows the scene in front of the Capitol, on Saturday, March 4—the reading of the President's address to the people assembled in the open street beneath the portico of that stately palace of the Federal Legislature. Mr. Lincoln himself will be at once distinguished. He is standing with a paper in his hand behind the small table on which a glass of water is placed, and the two gentlemen seated in front, a little to the left hand of the view, are Mr. Vice-President Johnson, the elect, and the new Vice-President, Mr. Andrew Johnson, who had made rather an unfortunate exhibition of himself at the Senate House a few minutes before. The Secretary of State, Mr. Seward, with Mr. Stanton, the Secretary for War, Mr. Welles, Mr. Blair, the Postmaster, and the Navy, are standing together near the lamp-post, in the right-hand portion of the View. The row of seven or eight gentlemen seated in front are the President and the Cabinet Ministers, the Chief Justice Chase and the Judges of the Supreme Court. The members of the Senate, those belonging to the foreign Legations, and a miscellaneous crowd of spectators fill the area behind, occupy the remainder of the elevated space. The weather had been stormy and showery till within an hour of noon; but at the time of this ceremony there was an interval of bright sunshine. The reading of the address by the President, as copied by the writer, was received with loud acclamations; a salute of 100 guns was then fired, and President Lincoln, entering his carriage, went home to his official residence, called the White House.

Our second Illustration is an interior view of the great north hall of the Patent Office at Washington, in which a grand ball took place on Monday evening, March 6, in honour of the President, as is customary at the beginning of each President's term of office. This vast apartment was chosen for the dancing, because it is nearly 100 ft. in width; but, in regard to its not so magnificent as that of the south or central hall, or that of the east hall in the same building, which were used for the general "levee" on the 5th, it was received with loud acclamations; a salute of 100 guns was then fired, and President Lincoln, entering his carriage, went home to his official residence, called the White House.

Our second Illustration is an interior view of the great north hall of the Patent Office at Washington, in which a grand ball took place on Monday evening, March 6, in honour of the President, as is customary at the beginning of each President's term of office. This vast apartment was chosen for the dancing, because it is nearly 100 ft. in width; but, in regard to its not so magnificent as that of the south or central hall, or that of the east hall in the same building, which were used for the general "levee" on the 5th, it was received with loud acclamations; a salute of 100 guns was then fired, and President Lincoln, entering his carriage, went home to his official residence, called the White House.

THE SOUTH LONDON INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION PRIZE MEDAL.

Our second Illustration is an interior view of the great north hall of the Patent Office at Washington, in which a grand ball took place on Monday evening, March 6, in honour of the President, as is customary at the beginning of each President's term of office. This vast apartment was chosen for the dancing, because it is nearly 100 ft. in width; but, in regard to its not so magnificent as that of the south or central hall, or that of the east hall in the same building, which were used for the general "levee" on the 5th, it was received with loud acclamations; a salute of 100 guns was then fired, and President Lincoln, entering his carriage, went home to his official residence, called the White House.

Our second Illustration is an interior view of the great north hall of the Patent Office at Washington, in which a grand ball took place on Monday evening, March 6, in honour of the President, as is customary at the beginning of each President's term of office. This vast apartment was chosen for the dancing, because it is nearly 100 ft. in width; but, in regard to its not so magnificent as that of the south or central hall, or that of the east hall in the same building, which were used for the general "levee" on the 5th, it was received with loud acclamations; a salute of 100 guns was then fired, and President Lincoln, entering his carriage, went home to his official residence, called the White House.

MUSIC.

The production of "Guglielmo Tell," for the first time this season, at Covent Garden, on Saturday last, was distinguished by the unrivalled splendour with which the gorgeous work has always been presented at our Royal Italian Opera. The performance was in every respect worthy of an opera which is universally regarded as the crowning glory of Rossini's genius. The character of Arnold, the real hero of the piece, was sustained by Wachtel with triumphant success. This great tenor has returned to us with all the vocal power which created so great a sensation last season, while he has made evident progress in artistic attainments. His air "O patrie" and other achievements are as remarkable as ever; but now they have less the appearance than they formerly had of being mere feats of vocal displays of voice and execution. Now they are used, in the legitimate way, without effort and ostentation, as one of the means of expression to the language of intense passion. We may give credit to Wachtel as one of the greatest tenors of the present time. The part of Mathilde was performed by Mdlle. Sonzeri, a debutante in the country. It was impossible for her to give any dramatic interpretation to the music of "Selva opaca"—in a style which drew much and deserved applause. The duet of Tell—a masterly specimen of all the opera which bears his name—was well sustained by Graziani; Attr grew full effect to the most sad but important part of Walter; and Mdme. Rudersdorff was admirable (as usual) in the character of the boy Jemmy. Taken as a whole, the opera was magnificent; and the whole performance was warmly applauded by the largest and most brilliant audience of the season. We must add, however, that the performance, especially for a Saturday night, was by far too long. The curtain did not fall till one o'clock on Sunday morning.

The Musical Society of London, on Monday, gave their first concert of the season, at St. James's Hall, on Wednesday, last week. The first part of the concert consisted of Beethoven's symphony in C major and Mr. Henry Smart's dramatic cantata, "The Bride of Dunkerron," a fine work, which, it is said, was composed expressly for the Society's Festival at the last Birmingham Festival. The second part included Gade's ballet performed by Joachim; Beethoven's vocal quartet, "Tremate, empi tremate," and Rossini's "Cujus." The vocal performers were Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mr. Cummings, and Mr. Weiss. The hall was full in all three concerts, was crowded to the doors.

Miss Helen Drusilla Blood (Mrs. C. Rooney) gave her annual concert, at St. James's Hall, on Tuesday evening last. The programme presented a singularly attractive selection of music, and the performers were a host of vocal and instrumental talent, and a very large audience enjoyed the entertainment. Such an attraction proved audience so fashionable and brilliant as it could have been at the very height of the season. Among the vocal performers were Mdme. Parepa, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mdlle. Lissa Bernard, Mr. Santley, Mr. Lockey, Mr. Montem Smith, Mdme. Conrey, Miss Grace Lindo, Miss Soldene, Mrs. Mersit (late Miss M. P. Hawes), Mr. Cooper, and Mr. Coleman. The principal instrumentalists were Herr Joachim, Miss Madeline Schiller, Mr. H. Blagrove, Mr. Aptommas, Mr. Lazarus, Mdme. Arabella Goddard (Mrs. Aguilar), and Mdme. Pyne was also disabled by indisposition from actually making up for by the kindness of Miss Schiller, whose finished and brilliant performance of Mendelssohn's transcription of Beethoven's "Wedding March" was received with the warmest applause; and by similar kindness on the part of Mdme. Arabella Goddard, who (though not down for her) sang a new and beautiful air, "O ma voulez-vous," by Rimondi. Of the pieces performed on the occasion we can only notice a few of the most remarkable. Mr. Sims Reeves's rendering of Handel's air, "Sweet bird," was with the utmost enthusiasm. In a fine song by Blumenthal (composed, we believe, for Mdme. Pyne), "The Requital," he produced a most effective, and was not less successful in Balfe's "Twilight Hours." Joachim creates a sensation whenever he appears. On this occasion he played Beethoven's Romance in F, a sextet of Bach, and a barcarole of Spohr. In all of them he was accompanied by Miss Schiller. Mdme. Parepa sang with her usual air of uncommon merit, whom we have lately had occasion to speak of with unqualified commendation, received applause in Mr. Agnew's song, "The Appeal," and in Mendelssohn's "O ziegend, o schöne Rosenelt." Mdme. Weiss gave a new composition by Rimondi's song, "Oh, river! onward as thou windest;" and Mr. Weiss sang a new ballad of his own, "The Mariner's Grave," the words being, like "The Village Blacksmith," which will add to his reputation as a genuine English composer. Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, in one of Gauss's fine song, "The Nightingale's Trill," was a perfect base of brilliancy and flexibility, and "Home, Sweet Home," in "Faust," was an admirable performance. Mrs. Mersit gave one of those ballads of our own, "Those are none of beauty's daughters," with which, as Miss M. P. Hawes, she has so delighted the public. Her pronunciation we must add Lady Gilford's new Irish ballad, "Sweet Killeeney Town," and Mr. Lockey's "Harper," and a fitting companion to that celebrated production. It was sung by Mdme. Dolby with characteristic effect. Mdlle. Lissa was par one of Mr. E. Howell's solo on the violoncello, "Souvenirs de Pétersbourg," a performance which gave evidence of the highest attainments. An Italian duet, moreover, which opened the second part—"Ah! non credea," composed by Signor Piatti, and sung by Mdmes. Parepa and Sainton-Dolby, and song by them—was too interesting to be passed over even in the briefest notice. All the pieces we have enumerated were greatly applauded, and several were encored.

Miss Emma Busby gave a matinée of pianoforte music on Thursday, in Willis's Rooms, King Street, St. James's, Portland-place, Miss Busby was, we believe, a pupil of the celebrated Kalkbrenner, and has already established a high position as a pianiste. The programme was selected from the works of Beethoven, Mozart, Handel, Weber, Chopin, Schubert, and Schumann, and the various performances were warmly applauded by a large and fashionable assemblage.

THE THEATRES.

The legitimate drama continues its successful career on the boards of Drury Lane, the performances relieved by ballet pieces. On Thursday week, for instance, some such relief was attempted by the production of Taylor's grotesque piece of "The Fool's Revenge." The story in itself is revolting, but Mr. Taylor has modified it as to its more horrible features. Its principal recommendation is, however, that Mr. Phelps has made its principal character, and still supports it with his characteristic vigour and earnestness. The piece is well mounted, and the present performance. Mrs. Hermann Vezin as Fiordelisa, and Mrs. H. Vandenhoff as Cecco Bentivoglio, Mr. E. Phelps as Bianchi and Mrs. Henry Marston; while Mr. Sinclair supports the character of the libertine Duke Galeotto Manfredi, Lord of Faenza, originally performed by Mr. H. Marston. Miss Atkinson still merits high praise as the Duchess Francesca Bentivoglio, and Mr. E. Phelps's delineation as Serafino dell' Aquila, though we see nothing very poetical either in the character or the assumption. The piece was repeated on Tuesday and on Thursday Shakespeare's Roman tragedy, "Julius Cæsar," was presented, with Mr. Phelps as Brutus, who eventually took the part of Marc Antony on the occasion. Mr. Walter Montgomery was Cassius, and Mr. Phelps Brutus. The little opera of "Rosina" formed the afterpiece, in which a daughter of the beneficiare, Miss Jenny Anderson, made her début as the heroine. The lady is very young, but has been well trained.

At the Lyceum Mdlle. Beatrice acted Mrs. Haller, in "The Stranger," on Saturday. The house is closed until Easter Monday, when Mr. Fechter reappears in a new version of "Belphegor."

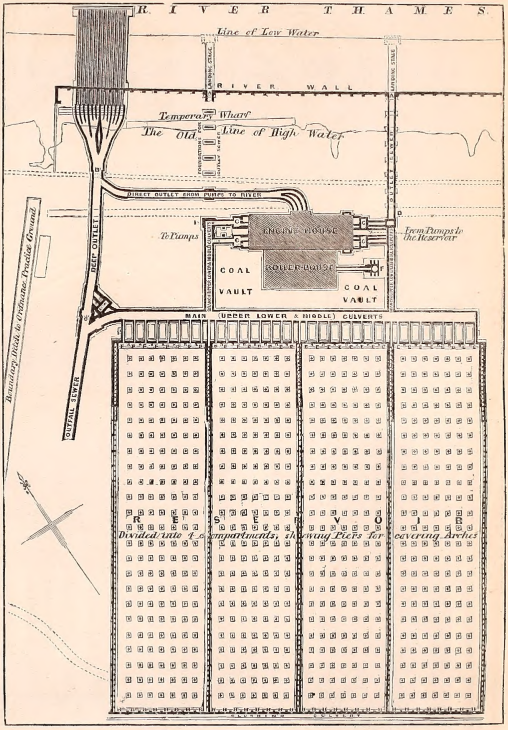
A convention between France and Bavaria for an international exportation in works of art and literature has been signed, and will come into operation on the 1st of July next, simultaneously with the treaty of commerce and the literary convention concluded between France and Prussia.

Messrs. Kelly and Co. have issued a third edition of their Suburban Directory, supplementary to their Directory of London—to which marvellous and useful work it forms a correct and indispensable appendage. It extends to the district immediately surrounding London (advantages of a directory arranged on the same plan as the London Directory). Thus this book, with the large one appertaining to London proper, contains the names and addresses of most persons of importance who have fixed abodes within ten miles of the metropolis and a surrounding circle of country of some circumference. An excellent map of the district is prefixed to the volume.

THE METROPOLITAN MAIN DRAINAGE SOUTHERN OUTFALL AT CROSSNESS.

The Illustrated London News of May 21 and May 28 last year contained some description of the Metropolitan Drainage Works, both on the north or Middlesex side of the Thames, where three great sewers—the High Level, the Middle Level, and the Low Level—are to discharge themselves into the vast reservoir at Barking Creek; and on the south side, in Surrey and Kent, where a similar reservoir, though of much less capacity, with a pumping apparatus, situated at Crossness, about two miles below Woolwich, collects the drainage of Southwark, Lambeth, Battersea, Camberwell, Brixton, Peckham, Rotherhithe, Greenwich, Dulwich, and Lower Norwood, with the districts in their neighbourhoods. Besides some illustrations of the northern outfall, at Barking Creek, we then gave a map of the southern outfall and a view of the unfinished structure at Crossness, with the buildings of the pumping-station and the extensive range of brick arches covering the reservoir; and we gave, lastly, an Engraving showing the construction of the machinery employed there for lifting the sewage and storing it in the reservoir. These works at Crossness, with the whole system of main sewers on the south side of the Thames, are now complete, and were formally opened last Tuesday by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, in the presence of a numerous company of gentlemen, amongst whom were the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, the Bishops of London and Oxford, the Duke of Sutherland, Earl Stanhope, and Sir George Grey, with many of the nobility and members of the House of Commons. We shall give, in our next week's Paper, some illustrations of the proceedings on this occasion. In the Impression now before the reader we present, first, a general view of the exterior of the works at Crossness; secondly, an interior view of the reservoir; and, thirdly, a plan of the reservoir and its outlets to the low-water mark of the shore of the Thames.

The southern main-drainage system, like that on the northern side of the Thames, comprises a high-level sewer to drain the higher districts remote from the river, and lower branches for the lowlying lands. Its total length is ten miles. By three main sewers the southern sewage is carried first to Deptford by gravitation. At this point is a large pumping-station, and the low-level sewage is raised into the main southern outfall. This outfall sewer is conveyed entirely underground throughout its whole length of nearly eight miles. It is 11 ft. 6 in. in diameter, admirably constructed of brick about 18 in. thick, and having a fall of 2 ft. per mile. The bottom of this sewer is 9 ft. below the level of low water at its outlet into the river, so that it can discharge into the river at and near to low water by gravitation, in case of necessity. It passes through the town of Woolwich at a depth of from 45 ft. to 75 ft., but its general depth below the surface is about 16 ft. The soil in which it has been formed consists, for the most part, of gravel and sand, but the Woolwich tunnel lies partly in the chalk. This portion of the work—of which the tunnel beneath Woolwich constitutes the most important feature—has been one of considerable costliness, on account of the large quantity of water which was met with in the marshes. On reaching Crossness Point the sewage brought down there is pumped into a spacious reservoir, where it is retained until the time of high water, when it is discharged into the river. The outfall sewer was finished in July, 1862, and has since been in full operation; but, until the completion and operation of the pumping-station, it cannot be said to have constituted a very material improvement on the system which it was designed to replace. On the south side of the Thames the land lies so low that it was only at low water that sewers could discharge their contents by gravitation only. This was, moreover, undesirable on account of the comparatively small body of water by which the sewage would be diluted when it got into the river; and whenever the tide was too high the tidal water would dam up the sewage and convert the sewers for the time into elongated lakes of stagnant fluid, charged with the direst elements of disease. Until now, therefore, the full benefit of the southern drainage system has not been appreciated. The outlet of the southern outfall sewer is ordinarily closed by a penstock placed across its mouth, and its contents are raised by pumping into the reservoir, which is built at the same level as that on the north side, and, like it, stores the sewage, except for the two hours of discharge after high water. The sewage is thus diverted from its direct course to the river into a side channel leading to the pump-well, which forms part of the foundation for the engine-house. From this well it is lifted by four beam-engines, each of 125-horse power, which work, direct from the beam, two compound pumps, each having four plungers. The engine-house, an edifice of some architectural pretensions, with the tall chimney shaped like a minaret, and the boiler-house, with other buildings adjoining, are shown in our View. The quantity of sewage to be lifted by these engines will ordinarily be about 10,000 cubic feet per minute; but during the night that quantity will be considerably reduced, while, on the other hand, it will be nearly doubled on occasions of heavy rainfall. The lift also will vary from ten to thirty feet, according to the level of water in the sewer and in the reservoir into which it is lifted. These variable conditions of working are provided for by the arrangement of the engines and pumps. The sewage, after being delivered from the pumps into a wrought-iron trough, is discharged through brick culverts into the reservoir; or, in case of need, provision is made for its discharge through other culverts directly into the river. After being stored in the reservoir until the time of high water, the sewage is discharged by a lower set of culverts into the river. There are two tiers of eight openings in each compartment of the reservoir, the upper eight for the admission of the sewage from the pumps to the reservoir, and the lower eight for its discharge into the river, the apertures in all cases being opened and closed by penstocks. The reservoir, which is six acres and a half in extent, is covered by brick arches supported on brick piers, and is furnished with weirs for overflows, and with a flushing culvert. Its height, level, and general construction, are similar to that at Barking Creek, which is, as we have said, far larger, being no less than sixteen acres in extent. Over the reservoir are built twenty-one cottages, for the engineers and other persons employed upon the works.



THE FARM.

By a sad and strange coincidence, Captain Spencer, to whose dangerous illness we recently referred, died in the very week which was to open a new career for him as an auctioneer, and on the very day of his Rugby sale. His death took place, from brain fever followed by an attack of gastric fever, in the house of his friend, Mr. Carr, of Stackhouse, where he had been staying a fortnight; and who, seeing that he grew worse, took out an auctioneer's license and went south to officiate for him. He was a man of singularly good taste and judgment. Be it shorthorns, pigeons, hunters, Arabs, bantams, or greyhounds, everything round him at Prospect House in old days was of the best. In a very few years he raised a herd far superior to what men with ten times the means can put together in a lifetime. He made up his mind carefully as to tribes and followed them, and they always brought back their money "and a little more." When he had got Lizzy, he bided his time till Leila was in the market. In fact, if you looked round his herd, there was no wild fancy, but a solid reason for buying everything that was there. His fine judgment and courteous manners would have stood him in good stead in the new profession he had chosen. At one time he was well known in the coursing-field, more especially with that daring, rushing dog Seagull, and the elegant Sunbeam, one of the smoothest workers that ever went from slips. Both of them won several cups, and the latter ran up to King Lear, in 1857, for the Waterloo Cup, and was in the last four the next year.

At the Rugby sale, twenty-two owners entered lots, of which twenty-six were cows and heifers and thirty-nine were bulls. Lady Pigot did not send Bustle and Roxana. Six other lots were not offered, or were withdrawn, seven were bought in, and the fifty-seven put up averaged £34 12s. 7d. Colonel Towneley bought Alice Wharfdale, of his own breeding, for 72 gs.; and Queen Thorne by 2nd Duke of Thorndale went at 54 gs. to Mr. Foster, of Kilhow, Cumberland, one of the most spirited and steady among the new school of shorthorn men. The Dukes of York and Liverpool and Eleventh Duke of Oxford headed the bull poll, at 83 gs., 71 gs., and 72 gs.; and the arrangements (which included a long covered shed for the cattle) gave satisfaction. The Althorpe sale average was £33 14s. for thirty-two; and thus the 109 shorthorns sold in the midlands that week averaged about £35 8s. Mr. Barclay, of Keavil, has purchased Northern Duke by Duke of Wetherby from Captain Gunter, and Baron Booth from Mr. Bruere, so that he will be well laid in both with Booth and Bates. His herd consists at present of nearly forty, old and young. Mr. Douglas's Next-of-Kin, the first-prize winner in the two-year-old bull class at Stirling last summer, is to be sold by Messrs. Wetherell at Driffield next Wednesday, when the Poundsworth herd and Mr. Gell's six (Rose of Promise, Rose of Hope, &c.) have been disposed of. Mr. Strafford also announces the first periodical bull sale of Mr. G. Graham, of Yardley, near Birmingham, for May 9, and forty shorthorns from the herd of Mr. J. R. Kirkham (who won the ox or steer cup at Islington last Christmas), near Caistor, for April 18.

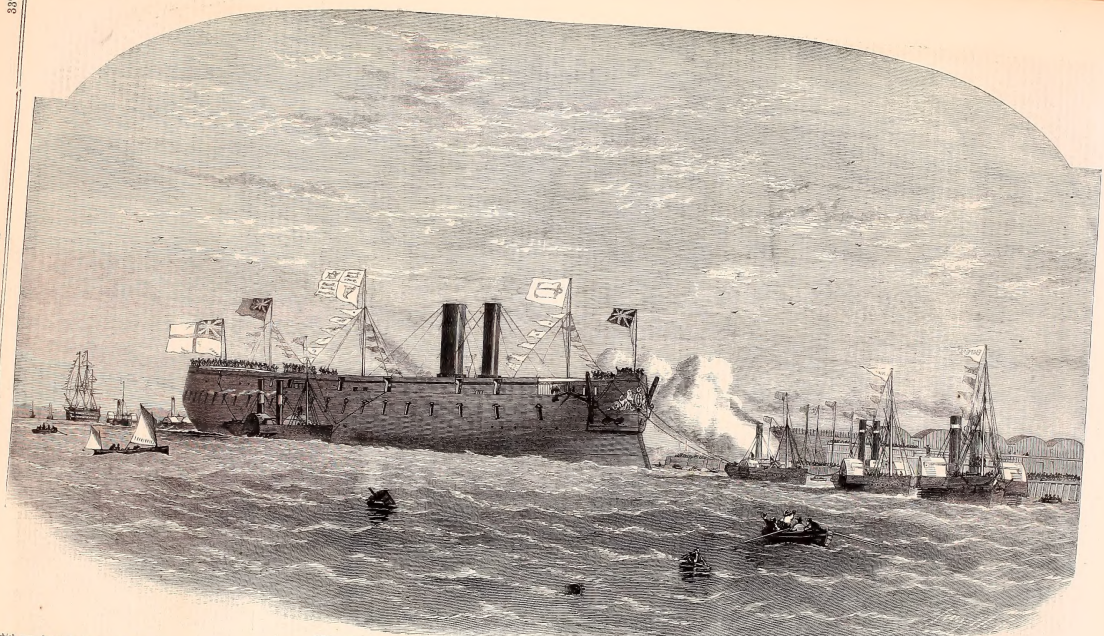
The day was not very propitious for Mr. Fawcett's sale. There were some pretty good cows and heifers, of which Cressida (Mr. Robartes, 60 gs.), Rose of Warwick (70 gs.), and Grand Duchess of Essex (70 gs.), made the highest figures. The last-named was bought by Mr. Allen for New Zealand; and Earl of Carlisle (74 gs.), the highest bull lot, fell to Mr. Joseph's nod for Sydney. The thirty-nine females (exclusive of two young calves) averaged £36 12s. 6d., and the twenty-two bulls, among which were some very plain ones, £26 7s. Lord of Warlaby, as was generally expected by all real judges of shorthorns, did not make above butchers' price.

The treatment of laminitis forms an important element in the current number of the Veterinarian, and in one of the instances mentioned it was produced by an excess of oats. Mr. Brooks, in his essay on it, speaks of two eggs given every two or three hours, day and night, in a cupful of cold water, until the fever abates, and after that small bran mashes and raw swedes, or if in summer green food to a slight extent, as very efficacious. The danger resulting from the too free use of common salt with animals is also illustrated by the death of six stirks, and enforced in a footnote by the editors. The obituary records the death of Mr. Robinson, V.S., of Lichfield, who was the first veterinary instructor at the Cirencester Agricultural College, and rendered it most able and almost gratuitous services for several years. Professor Simonds begs any member of the profession to furnish him with a sheep, the subject of the disease known as "gid," or with any entozoa met with in animals.

METROPOLITAN MAIN DRAINAGE: PLAN OF THE SOUTHERN OUTFALL WORKS AT CROSSNESS.

The Farmers' Magazine list of leading thoroughbred sires for the season includes 221, as Augur and, we believe, Chanticleer must be deducted. Nine of these, including Dundee, are "full," and fifteen of them are winners of the Derby or St. Leger, or "the double event." The senior is Gibraltar, who is now twenty-eight, and Weatherbit, who is five years his junior, comes next. Touchstone has seventeen sons in the list, Melbourne eleven, and Stockwell and Birdcatcher each twelve.

The Board of Trade returns for February have been issued. The value of the exports during the month was £11,376,214, against £12,698,121 in February, 1864, and £9,298,576 in February, 1863. And for the first two months of the year the value amounted to £21,865,553, against £23,111,707 in the corresponding period of 1864, and £17,343,731 in the corresponding period of 1863. The imports of specie during the two months were of the value of £3,065,863, against exports to the value of £2,452,677.



The Hon. F. Byng presided at a meeting in the St. James's Vestry-hall, Piccadilly, on Tuesday evening, in furtherance of an industrial exhibition by the working men of West London. Mr. Morrell, the secretary of the movement, stated what had been done, and announced that Mr. Gye had granted the use of the Floral Hall at the Italian Opera for the purposes of the exhibition.

PROCESSION OF BOATS OF THE LONDON ROWING CLUBS.

The opening of the rowing season upon the Thames for this year was celebrated by a procession of boats belonging to the several London boat clubs on Saturday last. We give an Illustration of this lively scene. Fifteen clubs were represented in the procession, which consisted of a flotilla of forty-five craft—including a twelve-oared cutter, manned by the captains of the twelve leading clubs and steered by Mr. H. Playford, the commodore; seventeen eight-oars, and twenty-seven four and six oared boats. Each boat carried the colours of the club in the stern, and corresponding flags had been planted at intervals along the towing-path to mark the various stations; but, notwithstanding these arrangements, it was a matter of some difficulty to get the boats into tolerable order at Putney, so that an hour and a half was thus employed before they could be moved to the Aqueduct, where the start of the procession was to take place. This was at length accomplished, and the miniature fleet set out on its way to Barnes. The commodore's twelve-oar, the rowlocks of which were decorated with the flags of the various clubs, led the way, followed by the London Rowing Club eight, manned by the "Henley Crew," with the West London, Twickenham, North London, Excelsior, Nautilus, Corsair, Ariel, Thames, Phœnix, King's College and School, Ibis, Waverley, and Gur's, in the order of the numerical strength of the various clubs represented. At Hammersmith the commodore's boat ceased, and allowed the crews of the bridge, they again re-formed in line, and rowed to the White Hart, Barnes, where the crews disembarked. After some delay, they once more got afloat, and as they were pulling off into the stream the Cambridge eight were observed coming up, whereupon the procession formed in order and received the light blues with a most enthusiastic cheer, those whose craft permitted the performance saluting by tossing their oars. Altogether, the procession formed a very agreeable spectacle, which was beheld with great interest by thousands of spectators on the river banks.

OPENING OF THE NEW ENGLISH PROTESTANT CHURCH AT NAPLES.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

OUR IRON-CLAD FLEET: UNDOCKING H.M.S. AGINCOURT AT BIRKENHEAD.—SEE PAGE 335.

THE NEW ENGLISH PROTESTANT CHURCH AT NAPLES.

It may be remembered that when Garibaldi exercised, as Dictator, the government and beneficence, he presented the English residents in that city with a piece of ground for the building of a Protestant church—the first instance, we believe, in which the establishment of a Church of England place of worship had been even tolerated by the Government of Southern Italy. This gift was afterwards, through the influence of Baron Ricasoli, confirmed by the Government of Victor Emmanuel. The site lies in the Strada San Pasquale, at the back of the Riviera di Chiaja, a quiet yet central spot. The British Government made a grant of £1500, under the authority of the Consular Act, towards the building fund; the subscriptions raised in Naples have amounted to about £2000, and £800 has been given by friends in England. The sum of £1500 is still required to defray the cost of the building. The committee are Dr. Robert Strange and Messrs. Donald Maclean, W. G. Stanford, Rev. Pelham Maitland, J. T. Mangay, and Alexander Scott. The architects, Messrs. Thomas Smith and Sons, of Hertford and Bloomsbury-square, were chosen by a meeting of subscribers in the spring of 1862. Mr. Smith being well known as the builder of several English Protestant churches on the Continent, and recently of one at Nice. The first stone was laid by the Duchess of St. Arpino, who is an English lady, about Christmas, 1862. The Rev. Pelham Maitland is the Chaplain of the church, which is now completed and opened for public worship. We have engraved a view of the interior. The fact of a Protestant church being erected with the direct assistance and encouragement of the Italian Government is of much importance, for it proves that those who guide the destinies of that country have arrived at a conviction that civil and religious liberty must go hand in hand. And though Englishmen are bound to express gratitude for the privileges allowed them, it is no less a duty to congratulate the Italians that they so well understand the principles on which the future greatness of Italy must be based.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.

We suppose there is an educational use for a vast number of elementary and mediocre works in art, as in letters. There must be milk for babes as well as meat for men. But, while admitting thus much, everyone with a right conception of the capabilities of art is bound to protest against the display of specious pretentiousness in painters who, proposing to minister to the public taste, are themselves but half educated in art, and who try to cloak their mediocrity with obtrusive trickery, artificiality, and meretriciousness. Unhappily, a large proportion of the contributions to this exhibition, which this year reach the prodigious number of 1042, admit only of this hard construction of the aims and motives of those who send them. In this great refuge for feebleness and conventionality we still find in rank luxuriance those characteristics of "British" art (now we are glad to hope passing away elsewhere) which make one ashamed to take—as we were imprudent enough once to do—a foreigner of taste into the gallery. And it is not to be concealed that it is the members of this society themselves—with, of course, important exceptions—who have done much to bring this exhibition into disrepute with the press and the better class of connoisseurs. On this occasion, as for several years past, it is the non-members who have put most of the real leaven of freshness and vitality into the mass. The members this year hardly preserve their long-continued statu quo, and so many repeat themselves that there is no need for the art-reviewer to reanalyse characteristics familiar to all, and especially to those congenial admirers to whose taste, and at the sacrifice of their own advancement, these painters address themselves.

Even some of the best and most noticeable of the members give occasion for unwonted regret this year. Mr. George Cole returns to the rut he lately left behind him when he achieved some really noble sunset representations, the present variations of similar effects displaying an exaggerated use of certain seductively powerful yellows of recent introduction. And this artist's son, Mr. Vicat Cole, seems to have rested too early satisfied with the well-deserved successes won by his Surrey landscapes of a few years ago. Mr. Roberts, in reappearing with church-pew scenes and domestic incident, does not, whatever their merits, confirm the impression of unsuspected power left by his "Beaching the Life-boat" of last year. Mr. Woolmer's fancy and elegance—for he has these qualities in an eminent degree—though uniquely arbitrary in kind, is again erratically diverging from nature and reality further than is justified even by his grotto scene in the enchanted island of the "Tempest" (266). Mr. Cobbett has, it appears, been "seeking scenes and pastures new" in Brittany; yet, excepting an interior subject (275) and the caps of some of his figures, one would hardly suspect the fact, so closely do his landscape backgrounds and rustic draperies resemble the well-known studio properties. Mr. Hurlstone seems to prove in one picture that carelessness is the only explanation of the extreme slovenliness of others. The work to which we specially allude is the "Spanish Peasant Boy" (218), which has character, particularly in the laughing, elvish eyes; is better in drawing, and, though rank, also better in colour, than usual. Altogether, it recalls the old-masterish merits of the earlier of the long series of similar subjects from the same hand—merits, however, which always invited unfavourable comparisons with Murillo. Mr. Pyne's unusually large picture of the ruins of the Roman aqueducts, seen from the neighbourhood of the Lateran (205) affords glaring evidence, to those familiar with the sombre hues of the Campagna, of how far a painter may depart from couleur locale who commits himself to theorising on chromatic harmonies. A habit, also, of forcing the utmost effect from colour oppositions in every part of his canvas diminishes the truth of Mr. Syers's clever landscapes, and, besides, denies to them breadth—see, for instance, his "Llyn Helsie" (139). Other popular members prefer no new claim for special consideration. Mr. Baxter sends, besides a sweet little lady with a muff, called "Winter" (511), a good specimen of his large family of very pretty, and also very artificial, beauties, with little to distinguish one from the other beyond the difference in the colour of eyes and hair; while Mr. Hill is represented by some of his sturdier race of rustic lasses. A child carried by one of these buxom wenches (No. 198, "Innocence") struck us as one of the best pieces of painting this artist has exhibited. Mr. Boddington does not invite attention by pictures so large and comparatively important as usual, and other members of the Williams family of landscapists, including Messrs. Gilbert, Percy, and the Williamses proper, contribute works not beyond the average of acknowledged ability in their several manners. We must say, parenthetically, that there appears no diminution in the quantity of indoor, tradesman-like, and commonplace landscape—commonplace not redeemed by affectation of the classical in composition, nor fired by the glories of sunset, nor braced and inspired by the tonic air and majesty of the Alps. It is pleasant, on the other hand, to be able to note that J. J. Wilson, in his sea-pieces and landscapes, exhibits no falling off, and that two or three, at least, of the members have made some advance. Mr. Physick's animal subjects are capital; witness his Scotch terrier pup and magpie, entitled "More Free than Welcome" (360), and his English terrier and tortoise, called "The Intruder" (379). Messrs. Henzel and G. A. Holmes make progress, despite that they appear to limit their ambition to the Cobbett standard. Mr. Holmes has, among others, an agreeable little picture of a child listening to a blackbird (168). Mr. Gosling has turned his hand to water colours with considerable success. There is more of life in Mr. Levin's "German Peasant Girl going to Market" (114) than in some heads near it. Mr. E. C. Barnes, a new member, is a vigorous executant, but has something to learn in refinement.

It may, perhaps, be remarked that we have made hitherto no attempt in this notice to arrange, as is our custom, the multitfarious contents of these rooms in classes according to subject. It has occurred to us that little is gained by laborious and often necessarily arbitrary classifications of so extensive and heterogeneous a mass of paintings as this, where there are so few truly representative pictures to form an ultima ratio for comparisons. At the same time, it appeared desirable to speak of the members of this "chartered and incorporated" body of artists separately from those not elected. As, however, there are advantages in following the numerical order of the catalogue, we propose to adopt this course in reference to some of the more noteworthy works by artists not of this society.

The first picture, then, answering this characterisation is, "Of course, she said Yes" (45), by Miss Osborne, which is either the original or a replica of a picture by this artist already exhibited and reviewed. A little further on is a pair of studies, by the same, for pictures likewise exhibited. Mrs. Robbinson's "Olivia and Sophia" (66) of "The Vicar of Wakefield," though a little liney, is good in character and has pleasant colour. Mrs. Robbinson is, we believe, a pupil of Mr. Maclise. A fisher-wife seated on a seabeach, "Waiting," as the title tells us, "for the boats" (87), by Mr. C. S. Lidderdale, has much quiet, open-air truthfulness. Mr. Joseph Clark's "Fisherman's Home" (96) is right in expression, as everything by this painter is sure to be; but colour and execution are more lamentably fade, woolly, and misty than in any of those recent works in which he has so curiously retrograded. "Fishing-boats off the Yorkshire Coast" (103), by J. E. Meadows, seems to deserve a better place. In "Through the Twilight, near Dorking" (111), by F. Walton, the general effect is rich and well-remembered. "Welsh Peasant Children, Valley of the Lledr" (142), T. F. Marshall, pleasing, but blackish. A capital little Dutch-like picture of nigger minstrels "Creating a Sensation in the Village" (144), by G. Lara, is considerately placed next the floor—query, to make room for the insufferable parody of "historical painting" hard by? "A Study" (174), filled with bric-à-brac, by J. D. Wingfield, has good "quality" of low-toned colour. Mr. F. Weekes's broad sense of humour urges him into caricature in his "Touchstone, William, and Audrey" (177). A large view of "Ehrenbreitstein" (204) is the most estimable work by Mr. J. Webb we have seen: though not pretending to be a poetic rendering, like Turner's famous version, it is a honest, painter-like transcript. There is promise in Mr. A. Hunt's illustration (226) of "The Fortunes of Nigel." An oil landscape by G. Mawley (228) represents this artist to less advantage than his drawings in the New Water-Colour Exhibition at the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly. We pause before the oft-painted subject, "Judith at the Tent of Holofernes" (240), by J. R. Powell, unquestionably one of the most considerable efforts of high aim in these rooms. Though the stern profile of this heroine of the apocryphal story has beauty enough for the character and that of a suitable Oriental kind, there is no sacrifice of dramatic expression to mere regularity of feature. She looks, as she stands half in the dim, cold moonlight and half in the yellow glow from the lamp within the sleeping tyrant's tent, what few Judiths do look—capable of committing the patriotic murder. Her action and the whole design of the figure must be credited to a disciplined and intelligent artist, as also the powerful colouring, knowingly transmuted in accordance with the extreme contrasts of light. "Baby's Pony" (262), by S. Anderson—a boy of twelve on all-fours giving a ride to his young brother—is successful in the essentials of expression, drawing, and modelling, but the gradations are a little wanting in aerial greys. "Old Country Church—Going to Afternoon Service" (271), by M. Anthony, has throughout a strangely impressive sentiment appropriate to the subject, with fine passages of manly painting. It is more careful and complete than some recent works. Above all, it has what many landscapes here lack—an intention that appeals to head and heart. "Getting Out the Sunday's Best" (272), by W. Weekes, shows another son of the sculptor and R.A. sharing the family relish for broad humour. "Street in London in the Seventeenth Century" (279), by A. H. Tourrier—a picture with many figures, including roystering courtiers offering mock salutes to a burly citizen and a fanatic preaching to a crowd—is but a grotesque forcible-feeble travestie, both of the period and (apparently) of the latest peculiarities of the Belgian Leys.

Passing into the smaller rooms, the first annotation we have made is apropos of a true effect of sunlight in the "Autumn Morning" (298), by T. J. Banks. "The Empty Fountain" (307), by A. B. Donaldson—children feeding flamingoes—seems to discover a painter pressing his fancy rather hard merely to get what passes for good colour with a sect—colour that resembles nothing but the sullied condition of some mannered late Venetian pictures, and which, arbitrarily dissociated as it is presented to us from nature and even intelligible expression of form, is an affectation that is not vulgar only because it is not yet common. Mr. Havell's delicately-handled "Labour of Love" (308) and "Love Not" (309), by Mr. Holyoake, deserve notice. The brilliant, telling, and real-looking "Port of Nantes" (317), by Mr. Parrott, claims warm commendation, though a little exaggerated in parts. There is much breadth and force of chiaroscuro in "Knitting," by Mr. F. Holl. A picture of a girl feeding pigeons, the head in shadow (378), by Mr. Pope, is excellent in tone. The passage from Rabelais which has furnished the subject of Mr. Daniel's picture (441), besides being a questionable reading of the text, is ill chosen. It is only of decorative, costume interest from a pictorial point of view, and against this militates the similarity of attire and the artist's uncheerful colour. With a word of praise for Mr. Garland's "Winner of the Cricket-match" (459), we come to the "Emilia e Stella" (467), by Mr. Eagles—two Roman beauties—the one stately and grave, the other arch and sly. In drawing and modelling, largeness of style, command of the material, and other indications of sound artistic education, these are the best lifesized heads in the exhibition. But the flesh textures are rather waxen, there is a want of feeling and impulse in the handling, with a hardness and finality which restrains the imagination. In the East Room, Mr. D. T. White's study of a French woman's head (588) is very lifelike; Mr. Nicholl's "Sunshine" (593) is pretty; and No. 602, by E. W. Russell, promising. Especially to be commended is Miss Westphal's study of an old woman of Schleswig, dressed in her quaint Sunday's best, looking with such animation out of the canvas as though she would gossip with you over her tea—which tea, unluckily, in her eagerness, she is spilling. No. 633, "Gentle Help," a highly-finished little picture, by C. Rossiter. "Wayside Charity" (675), by W. M. Hay, contains much dextrous painting of fresh English character, but is wanting in that concentration gained by subordination of parts. If the other figures were so well drawn, and appealed so forcibly to our sympathies as the old woman, the artist's success would have been great. "The Magic Sailor" (737), by W. Crosby, either goes too far or not far enough. Either one feels that the artist has expended a vast amount of careful and very respectable painting on too trivial a subject, or one desiderates more of the felicitous expression with which a Wilkie or Leslie redeems such simple themes.

We can afford space only for mentioning that there are (besides those by Mr. Gosling already mentioned) meritorious drawings in the water-colour room by, among other artists, the following:—Miss Macirone, J. W. Chapman, T. F. Wainewright, A. W. Ayling, G. Cole (the member), G. F. Glennie, G. Wolfe—two notable drawings of coast scenes; Miss J. A. Edwards, No. 815, a very sweet Puritan lady tending a bed of dahlias (a flower, by-the-way, naturalised here long since Puritan times); W. Bromley, jun., "Paper Boats" (816); A. Corbould, J. Dobbin, J. Hardy, Miss M. L. Oakley, F. J. Skill, and F. Weekes. Our compliments in parting to that naughty humorist, Miss Florence Claxton, who sends a triptychal drawing (751), which, though of the slightest, we must notice, it furnishes so curious a commentary on the words (of the Liturgy), "Battle, murder, and sudden death." What think you illustrates the first? Why, a most formidable amazon, with scarlet scarf over her heroic bosom, and great piercing eyes, than which a pair of 600-pounder Armstrongs would be more easily resisted; to illustrate the second, is a killing, gipsy-like siren in a riding-habit, throwing back at you out of the corner of her dark eye a Parthian glance of "murderous" treachery; and, lastly, we have an angelically fair creature, flaxen-haired and blue-eyed, with a great mourning jet necklace over her snowy dress, and looking with so innocent an appeal for pity that for any simple bachelor to witness must be—well, what short of "sudden death"?

There is to be an International Fine-Art Exhibition at Amsterdam, to open on the 4th of September next.

The seven Raphael cartoons at Hampton Court Palace are to be placed in the South Kensington Museum as part of the Loan Collection.

The following accessions have recently been made to the National Portrait Gallery:—Queen Elizabeth, well known by the engraving; Keats, by Hilton, R.A.; Professor Wilson, by Sir Watson Gordon; Southey, Coleridge, and John Law, of Mississippi-scheme notoriety.

Under the title, "How we spent the Summer; or a Voyage en Zigzag in Switzerland and Tyrol, with some members of the Alpine Club," Messrs. Longman have published a series of Sketches by "one of the party," bound up sketch-book fashion. The spirited pencil jottings by the way herein engraved, though too slight to be of much value as records of scenery and foreign character, yet present, together with the pleasantly-written memoranda accompanying them, an amusing and tolerably complete idea of what one has to expect in Alpine travel.

To the late Charles Winston the public owe a debt of gratitude for having greatly aided in the diffusion of a better and more general acquaintance with the true merits of stained and painted glass; and still more, perhaps, for those chemical inquiries into the nature of the old glass (in which he was assisted by his friend Mr. H. Clarke), to which is fairly attributable the present superiority of the English material itself over that made in Bavaria and elsewhere on the Continent. It is well known that Mr. Winston traced and made drawings of a very large number of the specimens of early coloured glass in this country. This collection is now exhibited, under the auspices of the Archæological Institute, in the rooms of the Arundel Society, Old Bond-street; and is well worth a visit from those who share the growing interest in the subject. Mr. Winston divided glass-painting into five periods, and of each of these numerous examples are exhibited:—1st, Early (English) style prior to 1280; 2nd, Decorated style, 1280-1380; 3rd, or Perpendicular, style, 1380-1530; the Cinque-Cento, combining with the last style—1500-50; and the Cinque Cento alone, of the same date. All the drawings are remarkable for their fidelity to the spirit of the originals, and also for the care and felicity with which the "texture" of the glass is represented. Mr. Winston advocated the mosaic system of glasswork, or mosaic with enamel as merely accessory. At the same time he believed "that a glass painting is, in its way, as capable of high artistic development as a fresco painting." The legitimate aim of the art, according to Mr. Winston, would, in fact, be exactly the same as that for which this Journal has always argued. On the one hand, the decorative and architectonic character of the old mosaics should be retained, and not sacrificed, as in the costly academic transparencies of the Munich school of glass-painting. While, on the other hand, to reproduce the infantine art found in the medallions, &c., which happened to be associated with the old mosaics, is to produce a sham; it is to violate all laws of natural progress—laws which must obtain here as well as in every other branch of art.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

Royal Artillery: Capts. E. Atlay, H. Le Geyt Bruce, E. B. Johnson, C.B., W. C. F. Gosling, and C. D. Waddell to be Lieutenant Colonels; Second Capts. W. T. Brown, C. M. Mercer, D. Thomson, W. Dowell, M. C. Sankey, H. R. Brownlow, J. S. Gibb, F. W. Stubbs, J. B. Swete, R. C. Henchy, A. J. Ogilvie, and P. St. George Græme to be Captains; Lieuts. F. E. Lewes, H. Smithett, A. Douie, R. T. Hare, C. E. Nairne, H. Munro, W. Gully, H. Chichester, D. S. Pemberton, W. R. Craster, W. H. Cane, W. Manderson, C. R. Buckle, M. L. Monckton, J. Ford, and W. W. Benson to be Second Captains; Cadets S. Smith, P. K. L. Beaver, G. R. Godson, N. Powlett, F. W. H. Medhurst, A. Bell, J. D. Tyzack, C. F. Errington, C. E. Brown, R. W. O'Grady, A. de Bec-Baruchson, W. B. St. George, W. P. Graves, H. H. Costobadie, and J. S. Biscoe to be Lieutenants.

Royal Engineers: Capt. H. Drummond to be Lieutenant-Colonel; Second Capts. W. E. Warrand and G. A. Craster to be Captains; Lieuts. E. T. Thackeray and J. G. Forbes to be Second Captains; Cadets R. R. Pulford and J. J. Curling to be Lieutenants.

BREVET.—Tuesday's Gazette contains a brevet, dated India Office, March 22, specifying promotions among the officers of the Staff Corps and of her Majesty's Indian military forces.

APPOINTMENTS TO THE ORDER OF THE BATH.

To be Ordinary Members of the Military Division of the First Class, or Knights Grand Cross:—Admiral Sir E. Harvey, K.C.B.; Admiral Sir F. Moresby, K.C.B.; Gen. Sir W. Rowan, K.C.B.; Admiral Sir H. Stewart, K.C.B.; Gen. Sir W. J. Codrington, K.C.B.; Gen. Sir G. A. Wetherall, K.C.B.; Admiral Sir H. D. Chads, K.C.B.; Gen. Sir J. F. Love, K.C.B.; Gen. Sir J. Jackson, K.C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. Sir J. Cheape, K.C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. Henry Viscount Melville, K.C.B.; Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir F. W. Grey, K.C.B.; Vice-Admiral Sir J. Hope, K.C.B.

To be Ordinary Members of the Military Division of the Second Class, or Knights Commanders:—Gen. W. Wood, C.B.; Gen. T. Kenah, C.B.; Admiral Sir G. R. Sartorius, Knt.; Gen. A. Roberts, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. T. M. Douglas, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. W. Cator, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. P. Montgomerie, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. T. Reed, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. J. Scott, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. W. Wyllie, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. C. A. Windham, C.B.; Vice-Admiral Thomas, Earl Lauderdale, C.B.; Vice-Admiral R. Smart; Vice-Admiral J. Kingcome; Vice-Admiral H. T. Austin, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. J. E. Dupuis, C.B.; Lieut.-Gen. F. Graham, C.B.; Rear Admiral S. C. Dacres, C.B.; Major-Gen. Lord W. Paulet, C.B.; Major-Gen. the Hon. A. A. Spencer, C.B.; Major-Gen. R. W. Honner, C.B.; Col. J. W. Gordon, C.B.; Col. E. H. Greathed, C.B.; Col. C. W. D. Stavely, C.B.; J. B. Gibson, Esq., M.D., C.B.; W. Linton, Esq., M.D., C.B.; W. J. T. Power, Esq., C.B.

ADMIRALTY.

J. Wallis to be Staff Commander, J. P. M'Ewen to be Master in her Majesty's Fleet. G. Ros to be Engineer, and J. Knight to be First-class Assistant Engineer.

Royal Marine Artillery: Col. and Second Commandant G. C. Langley to be Supernumerary Colonel-Commandant; First Lieut. H. B. Savage to be Captain.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: Major-Gen. F. Graham to be Lieutenant-General; Col.-Commandant T. Lemon to be Major-General; Col. J. O. Travers to be Colonel-Commandant; Lieut.-Col. G. Lambrick to be Colonel and Second Commandant; Capt. J. A. Stewart to be Lieutenant-Colonel; First Lieut. G. F. Blake to be Captain; Second Lieut. C. Frampton to be First Lieutenant.

Retired non-commissioned officers are to be employed as clerks in the military departments in London. Their pay will commence at £100, exclusive of pension, and gradually increase to £150.

An Admiralty return shows that the cost of the alterations and repairs executed on the Royal Sovereign and Prince Consort since their return from their cruise last autumn has been £3854 for the former ship and £7107 for the latter. The estimate of the cost of altering the Royal Alfred from the ordinary broadside to her present arrangement, in the manner approved by the Admiralty in December, is £11,912.

THE MILITIA.

The following additional arrangements have been made for the training of the militia regiments of Great Britain during the current year. Each regiment assembles at its county head-quarters on the day specified in the following list. There will be twenty-seven days' training, with seven days' preliminary drill for recruits in each case:—

Bedford Light Infantry, May 1; Berks, May 1; Brecon Rifles, May 8; Bucks, May 4; Cambridge, May 1; Cardigan Rifles, April 27; Carmarthen Artillery, May 1; Carnarvon Rifles, May 1; Cornwall Miners and Rangers Rifles, May 1; Cumberland, May 1; Denbigh Rifles, May 8; 1st and 2nd Devon and Devon Artillery, May 1; Dorset, May 1; Essex Rifles, East and West, April 24; 1st and 2nd Gloucester, May 1; Hampshire, May 1; Hampshire Artillery, May 1; Isle of Wight Artillery, May 1; Hertford, May 1; Huntingdon Rifles, April 13; West Kent and Kent Artillery, May 1; London, May 1; 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th Middlesex, May 1; Monmouth Light Infantry, May 4; Montgomery Rifles, April 26; 1st Norfolk (West), April 26; 2nd Norfolk (East), April 12; Norfolk Artillery, May 8; Northampton, May 8; Pembroke Artillery, May 1; Radnor Rifles, April 10; Rutland, May 8; Shropshire, May 3; 2nd Somerset, May 1; Suffolk Artillery and West Suffolk, May 1; 1st Surrey, April 24; 2nd Surrey, May 8; 3rd Surrey, April 24; Sussex Light Infantry and Sussex Artillery, May 1; 1st Tower Hamlets, May 1; 2nd Warwick, May 1.

The Scotch regiments assemble as follow:—Aberdeen, June 5; Argyle Artillery, June 30; Edinburgh County, June 12; Edinburgh City Artillery, June 5; Forfar, July 3; Haddington Artillery, June 16; Inverness, June 2; 1st and 2nd Lanark, June 5; Perth Rifles, June 5; Renfrew (Prince of Wales's) June 5; Ross Rifles, April 17.

The days for the meeting of the other regiments in Great Britain and of the Irish regiments have not yet been officially settled.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The annual ball of the London Rifle Brigade will take place at Willis's Rooms, on the 11th of May, under distinguished patronage.

A rifle contest recently took place between the Admiralty company, Civil Service Rifles, and the St. James's company, Queen's (Westminster), for possession of the Inland Revenue challenge cup. The result was a victory for the Admiralty company, who scored 120, defeating their opponents by three points.

The annual ball of the Civil Service Rifles will take place, at Willis's Rooms, on Thursday, the 27th inst.——The sixth competition for the challenge cup presented to the Post Office corps by F. R. Jackson, Esq., took place on Saturday. Private Crossley was the winner.

The annual ball of the London Irish Volunteers took place, on Wednesday week, at Willis's; and, although the unexpected and lamented death of Colonel Verner, the regimental major, deprived the réunion of the presence of the noble Colonel, the Marquis of Donegall, and some of the staff officers, the attendance was numerous and highly select.——A match between C and F companies took place on Wednesday week, at their new range, Plaistow Marshes, which was won by C company, after a severe contest.

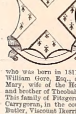
The council of the Kent Volunteer Association has decided that the annual review of the several artillery brigades and rifle battalions shall take place at Chatham lines, on the 23rd of June next, when, by the permission of the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, the force will go through the several evolutions in conjunction with the regular troops, under the command of Sir Robert Walpole, K.C.B. The annual prize-shooting of the several corps will take place at the Government practice-range, Milton-next-Gravesend, on the 20th and 21st of June.

The silver cup presented to the 1st Oxford (University) Rifle Corps by Lieutenant-Colonel Bowyer, the commanding officer of the regiment, was carried off last week by Sergeant Allen, of the Exeter College Company. There was a large number of competitors. Sergeant Allen and Colour-Sergeant Ward (Pembroke College) each scored thirty-nine marks, and, consequently, they had to shoot off the tie at the 600 yards' range. Ward missed and Allen made a centre, which terminated the contest in his favour. The Adjutant of the corps, Captain Foxcroft Jones, was close upon the winner, having scored thirty-eight marks.

On Saturday a rifle contest took place on the private range of No. 4 Company of the 3rd Manchester Rifle Volunteers, at Mottram, for a sweepstakes. Corporal Sale, after a tie with Corporal Winward, won the first prize, Winward taking the second. Corporal Allwright won the third; and Corporal Haigh, Private Gregory, and Private Ryan won the next three prizes.

On Saturday Colonel Erskine, Inspector-General of Volunteers, the authorities of the War Office, and those of the Brighton Railway and Corporation, completed their arrangements for the forthcoming Easter Monday Volunteer Review on Brighton Downs. It has been determined that the chief command of the review, and as inspecting officer, shall devolve upon Major-General Sir Robert Walpole, K.C.B., commandant at Chatham, who will be assisted by an efficient staff, including the new volunteer Inspector-General. The brigadiers on the occasion are to be distinguished by a crimson sash, and will be chosen from the following commanding officers, viz.:—The Duke of Wellington, Viscount Ranelagh, Lord Radstock, Lord Elcho, Lieutenant-Colonel T. E. Bigge, Viscount Bury, Earl Grosvenor, Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Macdonald, Lieutenant-Colonel W. B. Barttelot, Lieutenant-Colonel G. E. Thorold, Lieutenant-Colonel E. Dunsmore, and Lieutenant-Colonel J. S. Walker.

The regulations under which the Queen's prize will be shot for this year have been issued by the National Rifle Association. Two representatives from every enrolled company of volunteers will be allowed to compete on the payment of an entrance fee of £1 each man for non-subscribing corps. New long Enfields will be issued from the War Office for the competition; but the competitors will not be restricted to the use of these rifles, and may use any private maker's rifles, provided that they are stamped and certified as being of the Government pattern. The competition will take place with 1863 ammunition, and, in order that the representatives of regiments may have practice prior to the time of meeting, the Government magazines will supply a quantity not exceeding 200 rounds each competitor, at the cost price of 4s. 4½d. a hundred. The regulations for the St. George's vase competition are almost entirely different from those under which the vase has been shot for. There are now to be two stages—the first, 500 yards with five shots, deciding who is to be the winner of the vase, which will be held by the winner's commanding officer for a year, the winner himself receiving a gold and enamelled jewel of St. George and a purse of dragon sovereigns. The second stage will be five shots at 600 yards by the highest sixty in the first stage, for a dragon cup worth fifty guineas. These prizes are got up by the St. George's Rifle Volunteer Corps, and the entrance fees from the competitors will be handed over to the National Rifle Association. One representative from each company of a consolidated battalion and one representative from each corps of an administrative battalion will be allowed to compete on pay payment of 10s. on bearing a certificate showing him to be an efficient volunteer and selected by his regiment.



OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR EDWARD N. MEREDYTH, BART.

Sir Edward Newenham Meredyth, ninth Baronet, of Greenhills, in the county of Kildare, was the second surviving son of Sir Barry Colles Meredyth, the seventh Baronet, by his wife, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of John Eastwood, Esq., of Castleton, in the county of Louth. He was born on the 1st of May, 1776, and succeeded to the baronetcy on the demise, without male issue, of his brother, Sir Joshua Colles Meredyth, the eighth Baronet, on the 27th of July, 1850. He married, first, in 1819, Lucretia, daughter of Samuel Holmes, Esq., and great-grand-daughter of Admiral Holmes, and by her, who died in 1837, had a son, Edward Henry John, his successor, and a daughter, Elizabeth Louisa, wife of Major Frederick Percy Lea, late 57th Foot. Sir Edward Meredyth married, secondly, in 1838, Elizabeth, daughter of the late James Creed, Esq., of Uregare, in the county of Limerick, by whom (who survives him) he had no issue. Sir Edward died, on the 23rd ult., at his residence in Pembroke-road, Dublin, and is succeeded by his only son, now Sir Edward Henry Meredyth, the tenth Baronet, who was born May 29, 1828, and was a Captain in the 87th, and served with that gallant regiment in India and China. He married, Aug. 15, 1861, Agnes Margaret Naylor, youngest daughter of the Rev. Pierce William Drew, of Brook Lodge, in the county of Cork, Rector of Youghal, a scion of the Drews of Drewscourt, and the representative of a junior branch of that ancient and honourable house. This family of Meredyth is of very old Welsh origin, and descends immediately from the Right Rev. Richard Meredyth, D.D., Bishop of Leighlin, from 1589 to 1597, whose eldest son was the Right Hon. Sir Robert Meredyth, P.C., Chancellor of the Exchequer, whose eldest son, William Meredyth, was created a Baronet, Nov. 12, 1660. From this Sir William Meredyth the family honours came, through a goodly line of distinguished persons who bore the title, to the Baronet just deceased, who was the male heir and representative of the house. Of the junior branches, one is represented by Sir Henry Meredyth, Bart., of Carlandstown, in the county of Meath; and another, Meredyth, of Dollardstown, by the present Lord Athlumney. There is a fine tomb belonging to the Meredyths of Green-hills in the recently-restored St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. Dr. Meredyth, the Bishop of Leighlin, already referred to, held the deanery of St. Patrick's, in commendam, to him and his heirs for ever.

SIR EDWARD FITZGERALD, BART.

Sir Edward Fitzgerald, third Baronet, of Newmarket-on-Fergus, in the county of Clare, was the eldest son of Sir William Fitzgerald, the second Baronet, by his wife, Emilia Cumming, youngest daughter of William Veale, Esq., of Trevayler, Cornwall, and niece of Sir Alexander Penrose Gordon-Cumming, Bart. He was born in 1806, and was educated at Winchester School. Having entered the diplomatic service, he was attached to the British Legation at Berlin, Feb. 15, 1830, and afterwards to the embassies at St. Petersburg and Vienna, till 1840, when he resigned. He succeeded his father, as second Baronet, May 30, 1847. He married, in December, 1856, Julia, widow of Wellington A. Rose, Esq., and daughter of Edward O'Grady, Esq., barrister-at-law, brother of Standish, first Viscount Guillamore, but leaves no issue. He died on the 13th ult., and is succeeded by his brother, now Sir Augustine Fitzgerald, the fourth Baronet, late a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Bengal infantry, who was born in 1811, and married, in 1831, Eliza Margaret, daughter of William Gore, Esq., and has issue. Sir Edward leaves a sister, Emilia Mary, wife of the Hon. James Butler, fourth son of James, thirteenth, and brother of Theobald Fitzwalter, fourteenth, and present, Lord Dunboyne. This family of Fitzgerald springs immediately from John Fitzgerald, Esq., of Carrygoran, in the county of Clare, and his wife, Helen, daughter of Pierce Butler, Viscount Ikerrin; their descendant, Lieutenant-General Sir Augustine Fitzgerald, was created a Baronet, Jan. 5, 1821, with remainder to his brother and his male issue, and was uncle of the Baronet just dead and the present Baronet.

ADMIRAL MEYNELL.

Admiral Henry Meynell, who died at Paris on the 24th ult., after a short illness, was next brother of Hugo Charles Meynell-Ingram, Esq., of Temple Newsam, in the county of York, and of Hoar Cross, in the county of Stafford, and second son of the late Hugo Meynell, Esq., of Hoar Cross, by the Hon. Elizabeth Ingram, his wife, second daughter and coheiress—with her sisters, the Marchioness of Hertford, Lady William Gordon, the Hon. Mrs. Hervey Aston, and the Hon. Lady Ramsden—of Charles Ingram, last Viscount Irvine, a Scotch Peer of large estates in Yorkshire. Admiral Meynell entered the Royal Navy in June, 1803, and was actively employed during his first seven years in the Mediterranean and home stations, and afterwards sailed, as Lieutenant of the Theban, with a convoy for the East Indies and China. He was appointed acting Commander of the Arrogant, at Bombay, in 1813; and in August the same year promoted to be Commander of the Cornwallis. He subsequently became, in 1815, acting Captain of the Newcastle, bearing the flag of Sir Pulteney Malcolm, at St. Helena. Soon after his return to England he was, in the spring of 1820, appointed a Gentleman Usher to George IV., which office he held until the King's death. He also held the same post for a short time in the household of William IV., and for some years, up to April, 1845, was one of the Grooms in Waiting to her present Majesty. The Admiral for more than twenty years—from 1826 to 1847—sat in the House of Commons as M.P. for Lisburn. Meynell became a Captain in 1816, a Rear-Admiral in 1851, a Vice-Admiral in 1857, and an Admiral, Oct. 4, 1862. The Meynells, of Langley Meynell and Hoar Cross, are a family of great antiquity and high county standing, supposed to be descended from Hugh de Grente Mesnil, a potent Norman Baron. The present representative, the Admiral's elder brother, possesses, in addition to his paternal estates, the fine seat of Temple Newsam, in Yorkshire, derived from his mother's family, the Lords Irvine, of Scotland. Mr. Meynell-Ingram has been for many years a distinguished lover and patron of fox-hunting.

LADY AFFLECK.

Everina Frances, Dowager Lady Affleck, wife of the Rev. Dr. Whewell, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, died at the Master's Lodge, at Trinity College, on the 1st inst., after an illness of some duration. Her Ladyship was the eldest daughter of Francis Ellis, Esq., of the Royal-crescent, Bath, and was married, first, to Sir Gilbert Affleck, fifth Baronet, of Dalham Hall, Suffolk, who died, without issue, in November, 1854. Lady Affleck was married, secondly, on July 1, 1858, to the Rev. Dr. Whewell. Her Ladyship's demise is much and very generally lamented, and great sympathy has been shown by the members of the University to Dr. Whewell in his bereavement.

LADY GEORGIANA RYDER.

Lady Georgiana Augusta Ryder, who died, on the 30th ult., at Westbrooke, the family seat, in Hertfordshire, was the third daughter of Sir Henry Charles Somerset, K.G., sixth Duke of Beaufort, by his wife, Lady Charlotte Sophia, daughter of Granville, first Marquis of Stafford. Lady Georgiana was born on Oct. 8, 1800, and was married, May 30, 1825, to the Hon. Granville Dudley Ryder, Captain in the Royal Navy, brother of Sir Dudley Ryder, P.C., K.G., second and present Earl of Harrowby, K.G., by whom she had thirteen children, of whom two sons and four daughters survive her. Her Ladyship's fourth son, Lieutenant Henry Stuart Ryder, Rifle Brigade, was killed at the taking of Sebastopol, in 1855. Lady Georgiana Ryder was aunt of Henry Charles Fitzroy, eighth and present Duke of Beaufort, and sister of Lady Calthorpe, the Marchioness of Cholmondeley, Lady Louisa Finch, the Countess of Galloway, and Lady Mary Farquhar.

RICHARD COBDEN died of bronchitis, on Sunday, in Suffolk-street, aged sixty years. We intend to give in our next Number a Portrait and a memoir of the deceased statesman.

A mine of silver and lead has been discovered in Russia, in the province of the Don Cossacks. It is situated near the small river Nagolnaia, and within a short distance of the Grouchewskaia Railway.

The Australasian states that it is proposed to have an exhibition of colonial gems at Melbourne. Within the last three or four years, in various parts of Victoria, diamonds and precious stones of various kinds have been found, some of them very pure and of considerable value.

A letter from a midshipman on board her Majesty's ship Galatea, bearing date Feb. 20, Bermuda, distinctly disproves the truth of the reported "loss of the frigate, on Feb. 12, off Cape Henry." She left Fort Monroe on Feb. 16, and reached Bermuda on Feb. 19.

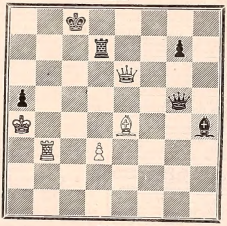
The Schools' Inquiry Commissioners have appointed assistant commissioners to investigate in selected portions of England and Wales the state of the education given in the schools comprised within the scope of this commission. The districts assigned to the assistant commissioners are as follow:—London (within the limits of the postal district) to Mr. D. R. Fearon; Surrey (outside of London postal district) and Sussex to Mr. H. A. Giffard; Devon and Somerset, with Bristol and suburbs, to Mr. C. H. Stanton; Stafford and Warwick to Mr. T. H. Green; Norfolk and Northumberland, with Gateshead and suburbs of Newcastle to Mr. J. L. Hammond; Yorkshire, East Riding of (with city and county of York), to Mr. J. G. Fitch; Lancashire to Mr. Js. Bryce; Flint, Denbigh, Montgomery, and Glamorgan to Mr. H. M. Bompas. Mr. Matthew Arnold has been appointed to inquire into the system of education in parts of the continent of Europe; and the Rev. James Fraser has been appointed, both by the Schools' Inquiry Commission and the Commission for Inquiring into the Schools in Scotland, to carry on an investigation, for the purposes of both commissions, in Canada and the United States.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. H. C., MAJOR.—They are now under examination, and shall be reported on very shortly.
A. I. H.—He can castle.
S. T. E.—No; it admits of half a dozen solutions, and is altogether wanting in strategy.
E. D.—The rule is peremptory; when a Pawn reaches his 8th square, he ceases to be a common soldier, and assumes the rank and powers of an officer.
H. H., Stockton-on-Tees.—It shall be duly examined.
I. E. W., Record Office, Toots; E. A., Nice; I. C., I. L., W. H. G., R. S., and Others.—See the notice in our last Number but one to "I. I. C.," "Farmwood," &c.
I. PHENIX.—They are under consideration.
I. B.—Of Messrs. Jaques, ivory turners, Hatton-garden, London.
MATER DE ZAMORA.—The solutions are correct.
T. C. N.—Ingenious, and apparently correct; but you will do well to keep it by you for a few weeks, and thoroughly test its accuracy. Problem composers should never send a problem for publication which they have not subjected to repeated examination.
F. W., Philadelphia.—Safely received.
TUBBS.—The notice, "all others are wrong," refers, of course, only to the "all others" which we have examined. As a rule, nine tenths of the chess communications are received after the week's article is at press—a fact it would be well correspondents bore in mind.
W. M.—First attempts at problem-composing must be failures, and the authors should keep them to themselves. To compose really fine chess problems there are required special aptitude, years of practice, and assiduous study of the best masters in the art.
I. M., of Sherburn.—We fully agree with you: but while composers look so much more to the quantity than the quality of their productions it is in vain to hope for the accuracy which was once the rule in problem-making.
M. P.—True; the ridiculous innovation now known as the dummy Pawn has not even the merit of novelty. So far back as Sarrott's time it was discussed; for Sarrott, in his treatise on the game, asks, "Will any person, who knows something of the game, venture to say that the Pawn, when it has once reached the adversary's royal line, must remain there a nondescript?" It was talked of in France twenty years ago, and was thus denounced by the then chief chess authority in that country, M. St. Amand:—"The moment a Pawn reaches the eighth square, whether by taking or otherwise, it becomes a piece, at the choice of the player. The law is precise, and bears but one construction. Otherwise, with what possible functions could a Pawn thus situated be invested? Being without any action on the game, it would become a nonentity, a perfect nondescript."
SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1100 (continued) by F. G. M., Milo, S. D. B., Theo, Ellis, Fido, Wolfgang, E. A. R., Siren, M. E. B., Punch, Conrad, Tekeli, B. B., Crokernensis, V. K., Dorothy, H. W. B., The Hague; T. Q., of Hampstead; Peterkin, Cantab, Rifleman, Teddy, Clericus, Felix, Vinny, Ludovic, P. M. E., George S., Minny, 1865, Omicron, G. B. R., Try-again, Adelphi, Harry, H. S. H., Quito, B. C. L., Volpone, Bookworm, T. C. D., I. M. K., Winifred, A German, F. W., I. N., Old Jib-boom, Trevor, Sandy, Tubbs, are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1101.



WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to K Kt 3rd	P to Q 6th, or (a)	3. Kt or Queen mates.
2. Q to Q B 7th	Any move.

(a) 1.	Q to K Kt sq	3. Q mates.
2. Kt to Q Kt (ch)	K to Q 7th

PROBLEM NO. 1102.

By Mr. ROLL.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

For the following smart little Skirmish, played between Mr. ANDERSSEN and the Rev. G. A. M'DONNELL, we are indebted to the new chess periodical, the Chess World.—(Allgaier Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. M'D.)	BLACK (Herr A.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to K Kt 5th
5. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to K R 3rd
6. Kt takes K B P	K takes Kt
7. B to Q B 4th (ch)	P to Q 4th
8. B takes Q P (ch)	K to K sq

(This is the best retreat for the King. If he play instead 8. K to Kt 2nd, White may reply with 9. B takes Q Kt P, drawing the game by perpetual check if the Bishop be captured.)

9. P to Q 4th	P to Q B 3rd
10. B. to Q Kt 3rd	B to K 2nd
11. Castles

(We believe this to be the best move at White's command. Having sacrificed a piece, he must maintain the attack at all hazards.)

11.	P to B 6th
12. P takes P

(This and the preceding move of Black are omitted by the editors of the Chess World, and the game in consequence is unintelligible.)

12.	P to Kt 6th
13. P to K B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
14. P to K B 5th	P to K R 4th
15. P to K 5th	Kt to K Kt 5th
16. P to K B 6th

WHITE (Mr. M'D.)	BLACK (Herr A.)

(The advance of these formidable Pawns has been admirably managed by Mr. M'Donnell. In order to avert their further progress, Black must now submit to the loss of a piece.)

16.	Kt to B 7th
17. Q to Q 2nd	B to K R 6th
18. R to K sq	Kt to Q R 3rd
19. P takes B	Q takes K P
20. Q to K Kt 5th	Q takes Q
21. B takes Q	B to K Kt 5th
